Parents Should Prepare Child for Stay in Hospital

Ann Arbor—So your child is going to have an operation. If you want to save him and yourself some unnecessary grief and misunderstanding, take time to prepare him for his experiences and stay in the hospital, a University of Michigan pediatrician advises.

Dr. James L. Wilson, chairman of the Department of Pediatrics and Communicable Diseases at University Hospital, states that if parents are honest with the child, and try to explain things to him in a matter of fact, simple way, he will be much happier about the whole experience and so will they. The age of the child, and how much the parents and family physician think he will be able to understand as an individual should be carefully considered, Dr. Wilson states.

Frequently a hospital stay means being away from mother and dad overnight for the first time. Says Dr. Wilson, this means that the child should be prepared for this first. Role playing may help, he adds, but "remember, the child has a vivid imagination, and too much information too early may place things out of proportion in his mind."

Dr. Wilson recommends that parents consult their pediatrician or family doctor on explaining the need for an operation to Johnnie. "Get it clear in your own mind as to exactly why the operation is necessary before trying to explain it to the child," he advises. He suggests that the child need not be told the whole, vivid story.

A little benevolent fibbing is not unduly, he adds. Be certain that you know what you are talking about, Dr. Wilson warns, because uncertainty on the part of the parents is likely to create fear in the mind of the very dependent child.

He recommends that parents of a child about to undergo surgery obtain a copy of "Johnny Goes to the Hospital" written by Josephine Abbott Sever of the Children's Medical Center in Boston, Mass. The book can be obtained in book stores. It will help to explain to the child what happens when he goes into the hospital.

Visit the child as often as possible, Dr. Wilson advises. "If you can accompany the child through the routine of getting established in the children's ward it will be helpful. At least one parent should be with him in the ward when he awakens from anesthesia."

The doctor recommends that hospitals try to make ward care for children as much like normal living as possible. For those children whose parents are not able to accompany them to the hospital, there should be a "hospital friend" designated by the hospital, a nurse, nurse's aide or possibly even a volunteer, to get acquainted with him and be with him when he goes to surgery, he adds.

If neither parent is there when he awakens from anesthesia, his hospital friend should be there. "It is very reassuring to a young child to have a familiar, friendly face to see when he wakes up," Dr. Wilson comments.

Making the hospital "home" to its hospitalized children is a pet project with Dr. Wilson. He hopes to eventually incorporate his ideas of a "motel" like ward in the new children's center planned for the U-M Medical Center. Here mothers would be able to stay with their children, prepare their meals and be with them as at home, while they receive the highly skilled and technical care available only in a hospital.

Record Total in Prizes Offered By '57 State Fair

An all-time high of $140,000 for agriculture and livestock premiums will be offered at the 1957 Michigan State Fair, General Manager Donald L. Swanson has announced.

Swanson also announced that entries for the State Fair, Aug. 30 through Sept. 8, will close Friday, Aug. 9—a day earlier than last year.

Premiums have been increased by $9,000 during the past two years.

Swanson urged farmers to make their entries as early as possible to avoid the last-minute rush and to keep from being shut out of the State Fair because of lack of space. In recent years, practically all categories have been filled to capacity—many long before the deadline for entries.

The 1957 Premium book has been mailed to farmers, including those exhibitors in last year's State Fair. Anyone not on the mailing list, or anyone desiring a free copy, should write to the Director of Agricultural Exhibits, Michigan State Fair, Detroit 8.

Annual Homemakers' Conference To Be Held On MSU Campus

Michigan homemakers will soon be taking a "refresher" course at Michigan State University. On July 23, more than 1,500 Michigan wives and mothers will register for the 30th annual Homemakers' Conference.

During the four-day conference, the women of good design in crafts, "cooking" and "sewing" but also about parliamentary procedure, public speaking, the woman's place in today's family and community, photography and other subjects. These subjects will be offered in 22 classes which will be available for conference-goers to choose.

With the changing role of women in the American society, it has become important that she know about a great deal of other things besides her household tasks. To keep her informed about the world situation, a course called "Geography in the News" is being offered. The tensions in the near and far East, as well as those in eastern Europe will be discussed.

The responsibility which women have to their communities will be talked over in the class, "Your Part in Your Community." Other class discussions will be held on the Bible, on improved reading skills for adults and on the importance of good design in crafts.

New ways of doing things around the home is another avenue of learning down which homemakers may travel during the conference. They can learn how to perfect home landscapes, how and where to invest money, methods for making housework easier, what plants are suitable for yard and home and the values of a home freezer.

The educational part of this year's conference offers a variety of study so that all may find something of special interest.

There is an inspirational and recreational side to the conference, too. Noted speakers will talk to the homemakers, a tea on the terrace of Shaw Hall, square dancing on the green, tours and a musical program presented by Do-raine and Ellis have also been planned. Reservations for the conference can be made by contacting the local home demonstration agent right away.

Washington Report

By Senator Charles F. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

SENATORIAL FIREWORKS
are exploding over the "right-to-vote" bill. Both sides are readying oratorical hydrogen bombs for what promises to be a highly emotional debate. Southern forces, every one knows, will try to talk the bill to death by a filibuster.

The rest of us, driving hard for the principle of equal rights, will man "sawing shifts" in the hope that round-the-clock Senate sessions eventually will wear down the talkathon.

It is shameful that the right to vote, guaranteed to each of us by the Constitution, requires a law to enforce. The House-passed civil rights bill, now before the Senate, makes it unlawful to obstruct any citizen's right to vote because of color, race, religion or national origin. Among other things, it sets up a Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice headed by an additional Attorney General.

Opponents plausibly disclaim any wish to deprive others of the right to vote, meanwhile grunting "scare talk"—much of it inflammatory—to beat the bill on technicalities. Their denials that negroes are kept from the polls are voided by a look at the figures. For instance, a pitiful 23 per cent of the voters went to the polls in Alabama for the 1959 presidential election. Georgia showed 80 per cent, Louisiana 37 per cent and Mississippi 22 per cent. I'm proud to say that Michigan turned out 67 per cent of its electorate last fall.

Early this year a few of us hurried for a change to ease the way for fair civil rights legislation.

Isolation. We failed then, which means that we must "sweat out" a filibuster now. Senate leaders have cleared the decks of other things to do in order to see this through to a finish if it drags out all summer.

I served beside negro soldiers in the war. I watched them die for their country. I intend to fight with all the strength I possess for the right of every American to step up to a ballot box and share in running his Government.

Half a billion of the world's people are dark-skinned and many of their nations are teetering between democracy and communism. A FAST OKAY was given to my wheat bill by the Senate last week and House action is expected soon. The bill abolishes penalties for overplanting when the excess wheat is used by a farmer on his own property for feeding or seedling. I was able to make this provision retroactive in the Senate version of the bill, in order to repay Michigan farmers hundreds of thousands of dollars in back penalties. However, House objections to this clause dim chances for back payments.

Over-all prospects for passage, however, remain bright. Between democracy and communism, Democracy has yet to prove itself in their eyes. We may be sure they are watching what happens in the Senate now. The United States is on trial before the world.

Should Michigan Kill the Goose That Lays the Golden Eggs for Us?

It is not incumbent on a small town newspaper to rush to the aid of large corporations. They usually have ways and means of protecting themselves.

Were it not for the fact that whatever affects the automobile industry in Michigan very directly affects the economic future of even small agricultural communities, we would be inclined to ignore the present controversy between the automobile manufacturers and the State Administration.

But with the location of small plants in hundreds of rural towns in the state, the matter is one which should be of concern to us all.

Governor Williams' recent statement that state taxes had no effect upon the location of industry out of Michigan, was directly disputed by heads of some of Michigan's largest corporations.

In the past ten years General Motors has opened 13 plants in Ohio employing 25,000 persons. Chrysler has built six plants in Ohio employing 14,600 persons. Ford Motor Company has built 10 plants in Ohio and Indiana employing 31,300 workers.

Ignoring all these facts, state Democratic leaders accuse the automobile industry of playing Republican politics.

Is this "Republican Propaganda" as the Democratic committee claims, or are these cold facts which, for the protection and benefit of an increasing Michigan labor force, should be considered before further taxes are levied on the industry.

What affects the automobile industry, which is Michigan's largest industry, also affects hundreds of other smaller industries in their consideration of location or expansion. Taxation, too, can reach the point of diminishing returns.

There probably is no doubt that the information was released at this time as a warning to the legislators that further taxation on the industry is certain to have a direct effect upon their future plans. The decision of where future plants will be located, whether in Michigan or in nearby states with more favorable tax structure, certainly is not based on partisan politics. Such large corporations are not that politically minded. To them it is simply a cold economic decision. If they can shift operations to states with a more favorable tax structure and a more friendly attitude toward industry, political ties have little bearing.

If upwards of 100,000 jobs have already been lost to Michigan laborers because taxes are higher here than in any other Great Lakes area state, the public is entitled to know what effect still further increasing corporation taxes will have upon employment in the state. The statement of what has already happened in this regard should serve as sufficient warning.—Gratiot County Herald, Ithaca.

Caught Again!

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Republicans have departed from their last two top elective posts in state government.

The party is already working to win back the highway department and the department of public instruction from the Democrats but, for now, they are on the outside looking in.

Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, in office for 13 years, said he was going fishing, far from the scenes of some of the bitterest political battles in state history.

Dr. Clair L. Taylor, superintendent of public instruction, on July 1 became director of the summer school and the evening college at Michigan State University.

Ziegler's farewell was a veiled challenge to his Democrat successor, Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie.

"I am hinted broadly that Mackie could not take the credit for the $88,800,000 in trunkline construction contracts awarded before June 30 for completion later this year."

Major projects are being worked out for US-31, US-131, M-20, US-12, US-27, US-2, US-23, US-10, US-16, US-112, M-63, US-24 and the Detroit expressways.

"I am proud of the condition of the highway department as I turn over to the incoming administration," Ziegler said.

Democrats also are proud of their new highway commissioner and the start he is making to reorganize the department.

They claim a good administrator can do as well or better as commissioner than an engineer—though a state law requires an engineer.

Mackie is a graduate engineer, but not a member of certain engineering groups which demand their standards be met.

Mackie already is getting started on a five-year plan of highway construction. Michigan Society of Professional Engineers announced they will file with the State Supreme Court to determine if Mackie is legally qualified to hold the job he won in the election.

Taylor pointed to the problems that will face his Democratic successor, Dr. Lynn C. Bartlett.

Since Taylor joined the department 20 years ago, he said Michigan public school enrollment has increased from 959,147 to 1,451,882.

The state's share of the cost of public schools has increased from $87,400,000 to $266,601,592.

The need for education has grown tremendously in an increasingly complex society. Taylor said, adding that Michigan's educators are faced with the problem of keeping pace.

"I extend my greetings to my successor, and I am confident you will accord him the same fine cooperation which I have enjoyed," Taylor said.

Bartlett, too, has been in Lansing for weeks since the April 1 election, conferring, reading, checking, and getting ready to take the state's top educational post.

Prisons need space. More than 10,000 now populate the state's penal institutions and, with the growth of the general population, the need for room to hold prisoners is growing.

The problem is more than one of space and cells. Modern penology is moving toward specialized institutions that concentrate more on rehabilitation than sheer punishment.

Part of Michigan's program calls for a $20,000,000 prison medical center to treat the psychotic, the mentally disturbed, deviants and those with physical illnesses.

Because of a shortage of money at the state level and quiet rebellion against increased taxes, the program may have to wait for years, but this is the direction in which the prisons are going.

Religion is beginning to play an important part in the lives of prisoners. Officials frankly concur that the lack of guidance in the family, the failure to find a church home have led many young men astray. They sometimes wind up in prison.

This situation has developed to the point that prisoners are contributing and working to build their own inmate chapel and furnish it at Southern Michigan prison at Jackson.

The building itself will be constructed by the state on the prison grounds—on the site of the green-house which was destroyed in the 1952 prison riots.

Inmates have earned their privileges since then, prison officials say. They are serious about the chapel now. With outside help the inmates have raised more than $2,000 toward the estimated $20,000 needed for furnishings. The campaign will last until the goal is reached.

St. Lawrence Seaway Seen as Boon to Economy of Area

Ann Arbor—The St. Lawrence Seaway will be the greatest thing for the Great Lakes region since the invention of the automobile, a Seaway official predicted recently at the University of Michigan.

Russel Blaklee of Detroit, a member of the International St. Lawrence Seaway Committee, said effects of the Seaway will be felt down through the whole economy of the area. Benefits, he added, will be great, but they will spread slowly, making it impossible to assess their complete effect for some time to come.

"One unexpected effect of the Seaway is already evident," he said. "Shippers are becoming aware of benefits of low-cost water shipping and of savings due to mechanical handling of cargo." He went on to say that shipping freight from Detroit to the East Coast now costs $14 a ton by rail, but only $1.75 a ton by water. Once the Seaway is completed, water transportation should be even cheaper.

While all ports may benefit in varying degrees, Blaklee indicated, the ones now regarded as likely to benefit most are Detroit, Escanaba, and Muskegon, and Hamilton and Sarnia, Ontario. He envisioned Toledo, Chicago, and Cleveland as becoming specialized ports. Michigan, he pointed out, is already the largest producer of exports, dollar-wise, of any state.

Blaklee spoke at a seminar on Great Lakes resources sponsored by the U-M Department of Zoology.

Beauty in motion—Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Sedan with Body by Fisher.

Here's why Chevy's best showroom is the road!

Because Chevrolet's sleek good looks, its advanced features, are only part of the story. The big bonus is its remarkable roadability, the crisp precision handling that has posted an entirely new standard for cars in every price class. There are reasons for this, of course: Chevrolet's balanced weight distribution that takes excessive loads off the front wheels, the wide stance of outrigger rear springs, Ball-Race steering, spherical-joint front suspension. Sure, you can admire the sculptured lines in the showroom. But Chevy's a car specifically designed for beautiful motion—you have to travel in this one to know just how terrific it is. Try it, this week!

The HERB CORNER

Flavor, Fragrance, Beauty

Most plants, including all our fruit trees, berry bushes, strawberries and melon plants, etc., are dependent upon insects to do their pollinating. The honey bees are our chief pollinizers; without them we would have little fruit.

To attract the bees, some plants have bright colored flowers. Most of the plants in our flower garden fall in this class. There is pollen for the bees, which they use to make bee-bread to feed their young bees, and some nectar, which they use to make honey. But these bright-colored flowers rarely supply sufficient nectar to be of value in the production of honey.

Other plants have small, inconspicuous flowers; and that they, too, may attract bees for pollination, they may be very fragrant or very rich in nectar. A large percentage of herbs fall in this latter class.

Honey made from nectar gathered in the herb garden has no superior. In the days of Ancient Greece, the Thyme honey from the slopes of Mt. Olympus was considered food for the gods.

Mrs. Helen Ayres Webster, in her book, "Herbs and How to Grow Them," has a very interesting description of a typical "Bee Garden" in which are found many "honey herbs" and which is adjacent to the Herb Garden.

Some of the "honey herbs" suggested are: many varieties of thyme, basil, and mint; ground ivy, hyssop, germander, catnip, marjoram, savory, lemon balm and bee balm; and rosemary about which she quotes Sir Thomas More, the author of "Utopia," as having written, "As for Rosemary, I let it runne all over my garden walls, not onlie because my bees love it, but because it is the herb sacred to remembrance, and therefore, to friendship, whence a sprig of it hath a dumb language."

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Foster, who raise both bees and herbs in Connecticut, say that some herbs yield nectar even after frost has taken goldenrod and asters. Their bees have been found gathering nectar from the blossoms of Hyssop in the warm, sunny part of some November days.

Michigan's 58 state parks and recreation areas were visited by 16,710,222 persons during 1956. This total was topped only by the all-time record of 17,845,000 park visitors in 1955.

Operation of Delinquent Tax Sale Explained by Auditor

The Auditor General Frank S. Szymanski, who is responsible for the sale of lands delinquent for taxes and the many technical operations in connection with such sales, has furnished the following little-known information about the conduct of delinquent tax sales, purchase of taxes, and the rights of property owners to redeem.

Each year on the first Tuesday in May properties delinquent in the third year after assessment are subject to tax sale. At the tax sale held May 7, 1957, the unpaid taxes of 1954 were sold. The Auditor General's office has a list of the properties in each county is advertised in a newspaper circulating in the county. In Washtenaw county, The Dexter Leader published the list for this year. A complete list of newspapers for all 88 counties may be secured from the office of the Auditor General.

The owner may withhold from sale any description included in the advertised list by payment of the taxes prior to the date of the sale. The tax sale is not an outright sale of the properties offered, rather it is a sale of the lien for the unpaid taxes and charges.

The delinquent taxes are offered for sale at the office of the county treasurer in each county. The tax is a competitive sale. The tax lien covering the properties is sold to the person who will pay the taxes, accumulated taxes and charges and take the least undivided interest in the premises. The successful bidder at the tax sale receives from the county treasurer a certificate indicating his purchase of the delinquent tax lien.

If the sale of the tax lien is for an interest less than the entire, and the purchaser forecloses, he becomes a tenant in common with the owner to the extent of the undivided interest he purchased.

The owner has the right to redeem at any time prior to the next annual tax sale by paying the amount of the sale plus one per cent per month. Redemption may be made at either the county treasurer's office in the county where the lands are located or at the office of the Auditor General.

If the lands are redeemed by the owner, the holder of the tax certificate is notified of such redemption by the Auditor General, and upon surrender of the certificate of purchase he will receive from the State the amount paid by the owner to redeem.

If the tax sale is not redeemed by the owner prior to the next annual tax sale, the purchaser must surrender his purchase certificate to the office of the Auditor General, and a tax deed will be issued.

The tax deed in itself does not convey absolute title to the premises. Redemption from the tax deed may be made by the owner by payment of the purchase price, plus 50 per cent, plus $5.00 and the cost of the service of the sheriff's notice, if service has been made. This redemption may be made by payment to the purchaser himself or by depositing the amount in the county clerk's office.

Before the holder of the tax deed may acquire title to the premises, under the law he must cause a sheriff's notice to be served upon all owners of interest and occupants of the premises. This notice calls attention to the owners that their properties have been offered for sale and that the person making service does hold the tax deed covering the properties involved.

The owner has six months after service of notice to affect redemption by paying to the purchaser or depositing in the county clerk's office a sufficient amount to effect redemption. If the redemption is not made within this period of six months, the tax deed holder has absolute title to the premises under our law.

Particular attention is called to the fact that the tax deed holder cannot take absolute possession of the properties purchased until he has served the notice as prescribed in the law.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Keokuk, Ia., sounds like an unlikely place for a revolution. And R. W. Jones does not sound like the name of a man who would lead a revolt. Yet a man named R. W. Jones has a small revolution going on in Keokuk, Ia. One day it may save your life.

Jones' revolution isn't the kind of upheaval that one associates with Russia or the Balkans or the Far East. Rather, his is one of those quiet breaks with tradition that are so characteristic of progress in the United States.

Jones is a high school teacher, and his job is to teach students to drive automobiles. There's nothing unusual about that, for almost 80 per cent of all high schools in the United States have programs for teaching students to drive safely. What is unique about Jones out in Keokuk is that he teaches his students to drive at night.

You might rightfully ask what's so important about that? Well, 66 per cent of all highway fatalities occur at night, when only one-third of all traffic is moving about.

Yet, although millions of high school students are being taught to drive, only Jones' students are being taught to drive at night! After spending a lot of time to train teenagers to drive when they can see, we are giving them permission to use the family cars at night—even though they've never been taught how to drive under the most dangerous conditions of all.

Jones reasoned that this was kind of stupid. His common sense told him that students should be trained to cope with the special problems of nighttime, when driving is three times more dangerous. Why not teach students to drive at night as well, he reasoned?

So he did. As officials become more aware of the great toll nighttime accidents are taking and begin to make conditions safer for night driving, educators are beginning to wake up to the need, too. It probably will be a long time before all high schools teach students to drive at night. But when it happens, somebody should build a monument to R. W. Jones of Keokuk, Ia., and put on it something like this: "Revolutionist, American style."

Shavings Top Nest Materials for Cleanest Eggs

Shavings proved superior to straw, ground corn cobs and oats as a nesting material in tests at Michigan State University's Upper Peninsula Experiment Station at Chatham.

For production of clean, unbroken and checked eggs, shavings came out on top in tests conducted by Floyd Hicks, district extension poultryman for the Upper Peninsula. Shavings were also superior material from the standpoint of cost of materials and labor required.

Hicks set up the study to determine which of the materials readily available and relatively inexpensive in that area would help keep eggs clean after they were laid.

Research has revealed that 99 per cent of all eggs are clean when laid.

On shavings, 94.2 per cent clean eggs were produced; on straw, 91.9 per cent; on oats, 80.6 per cent and on ground corn cobs, 87.7 per cent.

Using shavings in the nests resulted in 1.6 per cent broken and checked eggs; straw, 2 per cent; oats, 1.6 per cent; and ground corn cobs, 1.5 per cent.

Although oats rated well in the production of clean, unbroken and checked eggs, they were more costly to maintain. Oats had to be replaced three times more often than the other materials.

As might be expected, the study showed that the percentage of dirty eggs increased for all four types of nesting materials as the weather conditions became more humid in the spring.

Adequate fertilizer rates still dominate the answer to higher yields. Split higher rate applications of fertilizer into part broadcast and part banded with seed.

KILLED ON LAST DAY

Sonora, Cal.—Arthur Carlson, 66-year-old carpenter, was working his last day on the tridam project at the headwaters of the Stanislaus River. He went into a building at the bottom of the canyon for a drink of water. A boulder, about 100 feet long and 30 feet wide, undermined by rains, suddenly slid 80 feet down the canyon wall and crushed the building, killing Carlson.

Nutrition Specialists Advise Good Breakfast For Better Day

Don't leave that breakfast table with only a glass of juice and a cup of coffee.

You may have ten reasons why you're not eating a good breakfast. You got up too late or you're never hungry in the morning. But for every reason you offer, Robert Hershey, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at Michigan State University, will do you one better in favor of a better breakfast for you.

You need a good breakfast. Research proves that people who eat poor breakfasts often tend to be irritable and cranky during the morning. Or, they may have headaches and suffer from fatigue later in the day. Most folks who skip breakfast more than make up for it calorically by snacking or over-eating at lunch or dinner.

It may be true that you just can't face food first thing in the morning. If this is the case, here are some suggestions that will help. Get enough sleep to feel refreshed. Get some exercise. Fresh air first; take a look at the garden or just survey the neighborhood from the porch.

Do some active work before sitting down to eat. Gradually work up to a good breakfast.

What is a good breakfast? Miss Hershey declared that it contains fruit, protein, breadstuff, and beverage. It is the quality not the quantity of the breakfast that counts.

Protein in the form of milk, eggs, meat or peanut butter puts staying power in the breakfast so you won't get hungry before lunch. Many enjoy cheese or cottage cheese for breakfast.

A bread or cereals give you vitamins and minerals as well as carbohydrates. Go easy on the sweet dessert and doughnut type rolls; they give calories, but not much else.

Vitamin C must be supplied every day because your body cannot store it. This is one of the main reasons for including a fruit, especially oranges, grapefruit or tomatoes in a good breakfast. Aside from providing vitamin C, these fruits start digestive juices flowing.

Your morning beverage can be milk or coffee if you use a generous amount of milk on your cereal. Even if you do drink coffee, it's a good idea to have a glass of milk because of its "kick to your ribs" quality—the protein.

Skimmed milk furnishes only half the calories of whole milk, but does contain the protein.

It will be easier for you to eat a good breakfast if you make breakfast a family meal and plan ahead of time so that the meal will not reign during this hour, suggests Miss Hershey. Remember that it has been 12 to 14 hours since you and your family have eaten a meal. You need energy for the day's activities which can be had easily if you eat a good breakfast.

VFW Auxiliary Unit Observes 12th Anniversary

The twelfth anniversary of the organization of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary was observed at a birthday dinner held Monday evening in St. Mary's school hall. The meal was served by members of St. Mary's Altar Society.

A birthday cake, baked and appropriately decorated by Mrs. Dillo Keizer, was a gift to the Auxiliary. The cake was served at the dinner.

Mrs. Ren Hutzel, acting as toastmistress introduced the local auxiliary president, Mrs. Ray Franklin, who welcomed the 50 members and guests present. Also introduced were Henry Notken, commander of VFW Post 4078; Mrs. August White of Ann Arbor, past department president and past department treasurer; Ren Hutzel, VFW Sixth District junior vice-commander; Mrs. Ruth Stone of Jackson, VFW Auxiliary senior vice-president; Mrs. Naomi Paul of Auxiliary No. 823, Jackson, Sixth District color bearer; and Mrs. Jennie Wilson of Ann Arbor, Auxiliary No. 423. All spoke briefly, congratulating the local auxiliary and bringing greetings from their respective groups.

A gift was presented to the immediate past commander of Chelsea Post No. 4078, Fremont Boyer; also to the past Auxiliary president, Mrs. Mary Knies, in recognition of their services to the Auxiliary.

Mrs. White presented 10-year pins to six members of the local Auxiliary. The six are Mrs. Lauretta Boyer, Mrs. Viola Caspale, Mrs. Louise Haffley, Mrs. Emma Main, Mrs. Mary Schmitz and Mrs. Mabel West.

Five-year pins were presented to Mrs. Gertrude O'Dell, Mrs. Helen Harvey, Mrs. Ruth McLean and Mrs. Ruby Sanders.

Entertainment was furnished by a quintet from Cassidy Lake Training School who sang a number of selections. They were presented by Roger Werner who had been introduced by the entertainment chairman, Mrs. Clotilde Frayer.

East Lansing—Three Chelsea high school students, Carole Barr, Loren Keizer and Judith Wagner, next year's co-editors of The Highlight, became acquainted with the latest practices in advertising and journalism at a Michigan State University conference June 24-25.

More than 160 Michigan youths participated in the 10th annual Special Course in High School Journalism on the Spartan campus. Daily classes featured instruction in news writing, year-book planning, editing and page makeup, advertising, feature writing and photography. Plenty of Michigan Cherries Ready as Harvest Begins

Plenty of cherries for a wide variety of delicious uses will be available to homemakers this year as a result of a harvest that has begun and will continue in various parts of the state for the next several weeks.

Michigan is expected to produce more than half of the red tart cherry crop of the nation which it has done for many years. The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service estimates that the state will harvest 71,000 tons of red tarts. Growers "guarantee" place the figure slightly under this, but at any rate ample supplies should be available for fresh cherry pie, tarts, jell, preserves and for home canning and freezing. Sweet cherries, ideal fresh as a dessert and also popular for canning and freezing, are expected to total 12,500 tons. Michigan ranks third in sweet-cherry production and is the largest producer east of the Pacific coast states. This year's Michigan crop has been shown as about 4,500 tons more than last year's.

Michigan's estimated 71,000-ton red tart cherry crop is ahead of the 1956 crop of 65,000 tons. Most of the crop goes to canners and freezers, but supplies also will be available at retail stores and roadside stands.

The state's principal red tart cherry is the Montmorency variety. The variety is centuries old and was well-known in Europe before the coming of the white man to the western hemisphere. The variety was named for a valley north of Paris, France where it grew in profusion.

Improved strains of the Montmorency cherry are heavy volume in the west side of the state in a narrow belt paralleling Lake Michigan from almost the Indiana line on the south to past Traverse City in the north.

REPORT FROM BERLIN:

Three Nazi War Criminals Remain in Allied Prison

By Norman Lindhurst Foreign Correspondent

Berlin—Spandau prison, one of the last vestiges of Allied Four Power control in Germany, is ticking out its last days.

The world's toughest prison will soon close, writing this to one of the bleakest chapters in world history.

Red-bricked Spandau has housed Germany's most infamous war criminals who were convicted at the Nuremberg trials.

There were originally seven inmates: Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy; Walter Funk, Hitler's economic boss; Konstantin von Neurath, former Nazi foreign minister; Karl Doenitz, Nazi submarine chief; Erich Raeder, who built up Hitler's navy; Albert Speer, architect and industrial wizard; and Baldur von Schirach, Hitler Youth leader.

Only Hess, Speer and von Schirach are now left. The Western allies agree on economy grounds alone that the time has come to close Spandau.

Cost of maintaining the Nazi trio there is enormous. The West German city government alone contributes $70,000 a year as its share of the operation—enough, penal experts figure, to care for 500 ordinary German convicts.

Spandau has four full-time military wardens, one from each of the Big Four, and a permanent inferior guard composed of five men of each nationality. Civilians make up the staff of 11 cooks, 14 kitchen maids, 10 waiters, three housekeepers, two washerwomen and maintenance workers.

But nothing can be altered unless full agreement is reached by all Four Powers. Spandau is still run jointly by the four wartime allies.

Every month a 40-man detachment from the U. S. England, France and the Soviet Union takes its turn to provide Spandau's military guard.

The Nazi trio is the only reason everybody else is there. They live and eat in single cells painted white and green (by themselves). They were once allowed only one 15-minute visit in two months; letters were limited to two every six weeks.

Much of that has been eased. But the three whose mere signatures could once spell doom for millions still live under conditions much harder than those in San Quentin or Leavenworth.

Maximum security is still enforced. Throughout the night guards inspect the cells through peep holes, using small flashlights. The Russians impose an even stronger vigilance. They switch on the overhead cell lights during the night and search the 10 feet by 6 feet cell for half an hour daily between 7:30 and 8 a.m.

Once, in 1954, they discovered an illegal article—a bar of chocolate in von Neurath's cell. The Russians immediately notified the other three powers, demanding a tightening up on discipline.

Wheat Farmers Will Get Marketing Cards by Mail

Washtenaw wheat farmers will receive their 1957-1958 wheat marketing cards by mail this year according to Max M. Kalmbach, chairman of the Washtenaw ASC County Committee.

Kalmbach states that the Washtenaw ASC Office planned to put the cards in the mail Wednesday, July 10.

Farmers who have excess wheat will not receive a card until the penalty has been satisfied. Also farmers who have not signed the report on 1957 wheat acres will not receive a card at this time.

Kalmbach states, however, that those who do not receive a card because of failure to sign will be notified and may go into the ASC Office in the Washtenaw County Building and complete the necessary papers and pick up their cards.

These cards, Kalmbach explains are used much the same as a driver's license. You do not drive without the license and you do not sell wheat without the card.

County Republicans To Meet Wednesday With State Chairman

At the request of Republican State Chairman Lawrence Lindemer, a "full-dress" meeting of Washtenaw county Republican committee, together with all Republican office holders, delegates and party workers, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 17, at Ann Arbor City Hall.

Lindemer, who has led the meeting as a vital importance, will be the speaker.

Purpose of the meeting was not disclosed, except that it will mark the inception of a new policy of grass roots participation in party affairs, according to Cecil O'Neal, Republican county chairman. Republicans who are unable to attend are directed to send a representative to act for them, also the letter to be discussed will require full attendance, O'Neal said.

We would like to announce that we have more new cars on hand than we should have and almost no used car stock at all, and we're out to change this picture.
