Continuing the habit of re-making old successes, Twentieth Century-Fox has at least five such films scheduled for early production. The latest edition is "Our Love," which originally appeared as "Sentimental Journey" in 1946, with John Payne and Maureen O'Hara. A more recent version of "Girls Dormitory" is to be made, while "April Love," with Pat Boone and Shirley Jones, in the process of production, is an adaptation of "Home in Indiana," released in 1944.

"Under the Influence," a story about a London bank cashier who is able to read people's minds while under the influence of liquor, may be made by Danny Kaye and his wife, Sylvia Fine.

Taina Elg, who was so good in "Les Girls," will be starred in "Dancing Lady," a love story about a ballerina who falls for a handsome opera singer and marries him. Then her troubles begin.

Buddy Ebsen has been signed for Metro's "Northwest Passage," and will have a straight dramatic role as a change from his many comedy character parts. Either

Rod Taylor or Don Burnett will have the starring role.

While many of the TV shows have fallen by the wayside, "Telephone Hour" goes merrily along—it was renewed for 52 weeks long before option time was due. This makes Producer Jerry Staggs very happy of course.

During the filming of "The Vikings," Don Curtis was struck in the eye by an arrow. An eye specialist expressed the belief, however, that the eye could be saved. The particular scene in which Curtis was injured was being shot at a castle on the French Channel because suitable castles could not be found in England.

As soon as Danny Kaye finishes his work in "Merry Andrew," at MGM, he plans a tour of Australia.

Louis Jourdan has been signed to costar with Leslie Caron and Jeanne Crain in the picture "The Coquette," which is being filmed in France this month and then move to MGM's studio in Culver City for completion.

Although Suzy Parker has begun a screen career, she says she won't give up modeling for the time being. Her modeling picture salary isn't big enough. Immediately upon finishing her work in "Kiss Them For Me," she did a fashion job for John Engstead, for which she received $120 an hour.

State Fair
Lists Record
Prize Total

Livestock exhibitors will fare much better at this year's Michigan State Fair to be held Aug. 30 through Sept. 8 at Detroit.

Eldon McLachlan, Director of Agricultural Exhibits, reports that for the first time premium money will average $30 per steer shown as compared to $20 in the past, and that there will be a $50 in place of a $30 maximum on first-place steers. In addition there will be the usual $50 for grand champion and $25 for reserve grand champion.

All told, a record $24,000 will be offered in the Beef and Dual Cattle department; $4,000 for each breed in open competition with additional prizes offered by the National Breed Associations.

The Sheep Department, with Commissioner George Merriman, Manchester postmaster, in charge, is offering a record $14,954 in premiums. Elmer Mayer, Sharon township supervisor, is superintendent of this department.

The Dairy Cattle Department will offer $20,000, an amount equaled by few states, and premiums in the Horse Department have been increased to $14,500 an all-time high.

Donald L. Swanson, State Fair general manager, has urged exhibitors to enter as early as possible before the August deadline if they want to be assured of space.

"In many instances," Swanson said, "We'll have to accept on a first come, first served basis because of space shortage."

The $140,000 in prizes, has been mailed to exhibitors including those in the 1956 Michigan State Fair. Anyone not on the mailing list, or anyone desiring a copy, should write to the Michigan State Fair, Detroit 8.

Bombs Blameless
For Bad Weather,
Scientist Reports

East Lansing—Nuclear bomb explosions are not responsible for recent bad weather, and fallout from tests at the present rate is not a serious danger, a noted nuclear scientist has reported at Michigan State University.

Scientists "are not even in the same ballpark" when it comes to matching nature in energy production, Dr. Ralph R. Overman, chairman of the special training division of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Nuclear energy is equal to five hydrogen bombs, and the only weather effect from a bomb test is strictly "local," or of minor importance to the general test area, he stated.

Dr. Overman said atomic tests could continue at the present rate until the year 2011 and the increased hazard still would be "insignificant."

The average person, the scientist explained, has been exposed to about four roentgens of natural radiation by the time he is 30 years old and receives about three additional roentgens from such things as dental and medical X-rays.

Additional radiation from all bombs exploded so far amounts to only one-tenth of a roentgen, according to Dr. Overman. Continued bomb testing at the present rate would increase radiation from fallout to four times the present level by 1986 and to six times the present amount by the year 2011. "But the increased hazard still would be negligible," he declared.

In reference to the so-called "clean bomb," Dr. Overman said the fallout is due not to hydrogen type material but to surrounding materials such as the casing or the bomb tower.

William Henry Harrison was the oldest U.S. president to take office. He was 68.

REPORT FROM FRANCE:

Traffic Jams in Paris Are Getting Worse, Not BetterBY NORMAN LINDHURST
(Foreign Correspondent)

Paris—July 20. Anyone who has ever battled his way across the Place d'Ecaille to the Arch of Triumph understands why traffic is a major topic of conversation at cocktail parties in Paris.

Half the guests probably arrived late because they were caught in a traffic jam. This perennial bumper-to-bumper parade of automobiles affects nearly all of Greater Paris' 6.5 million residents—most of them adversely. Like the weather, though, this is something that no matter how much you talk about it, there isn't much to be done.

Paris traffic creates some funny, some tragic and often some ridiculous situations.

Fashionable women have been seen dashing out of beauty salons, curlers dangling from unfinished permanents, to move cars before they were impounded for overparking on the Avenue des Champs Elysees.

Being a traffic officer at a Paris intersection can be one of the more hazardous occupations.

Last year a policeman was killed when a tiny automobile mowed him down. The driver claimed he couldn't see the policeman because there were too many cars about him.

The Paris suburbanite is a good example of a man harried by this downtown disorganization.

Of Paris inhabitants, more than half live in the densely populated fringe of the Department of Seine, just outside the city limits.

If a suburbanite wants to bring his family into town for a show or for dinner, he spends an average of 40 minutes finding a parking place—and then there is a likelihood he'll have a six block hike to the theater or restaurant.

Within a one and one-half mile radius of the Champs Elysees, it is nearly impossible to find a parking space after 2 p.m. and until the theater crowd has gone home, sometimes after midnight.

It's a rare day when you don't see, or in fact aren't involved in, a flat-shaking session in front of a vacant parking spot, one car nosing into the space, the other trying to back in.

After an initial exchange of complimentary descriptions of their driving abilities, the contenders for the space settle down to a dialogue something like this: "That is my parking place."

"No—I saw it first, or I've been against the rules to drive in head first."

"Well, I need this space worse than you do. I have an appointment at 2:30."

"What do you mean. It's already 2:30. My appointment was for 2:15."

And then the flat-shaking starts all over again.

THE DRIVER'S

Costs of arms are usually associated with the Middle Ages, knights in shining armor and one-horsepower transportation. But Henry VIII exists on our highways. And the people in the license bureau of any state.

Each year about this time, when state, are getting ready to issue new license plates, thousands of motorists start jockeying for special tags for their cars.

Foetusmen particularly like to get low-numbered plates. In fact, the state sectors of one eastern state a few years ago refused to confirm a nominee for the job of state licensing commissioner unless he assured them that they would have control of plates in their counties numbered 1 to 9.

The three commissioners who administer the District of Columbia's plates are a case in point. A political party takes over control of the Federal government, there is a wholesale switching of license plates in Washington, D. C.

But politicians aren't the only ones who like to get distinctive license plates. Take, for example, the photographer who insisted that his plate suggest his profession: he wanted—and is willing to pay a premium for—plates that have on them only the four letters TYPE.

Maybe there will be a day when highway heraldry will die out, for state licensing commissioners this year are issuing "standardized" plates. For the first time, all plates will be six inches high and a foot wide.

And there seems to be a trend in the direction of more standardization. For example, five states now are using reflective plates. These plates are hailed as safety devices and several other states probably will adopt them soon.

The plates used in four of the states can be seen from 2,000 feet. All but 21 states now issue plates that identify by a special number or letter the counties in which the plates were bought. Law enforcement bodies say this aids in catching criminals and in automobiles by making plate numbers shorter and easier to read.

There is also a trend away from the use of promotional legends on license plates. Law officers say that promotional legends on a standard-issue plate take up space that could be used for bigger, easier-to-read numbers. Strange as it may seem, Texas is one of the states that does not use a promotional legend on its plates.

The trend in license plates seems to be toward highway heraldry and toward standardization in the interests of safety.

Don't call him high pockets: The shortest male dwarf on record was Frank Flynn, of Green, New York, often known as General Mike. He stood a shade over two feet high.

THE PEOPLES PYRAMID, my name for the colossal St. Lawrence Seaway project, has passed its point in construction. The great sea lane, which will bring the ships of the world into the heart of America, creating new jobs and markets for the people of the Middle West, has been pushed to 54 per cent of completion. Some of the heaviest machinery in the world clusters the shores of the twisting, dangerous traffic reach. Iron skeletons swing shovels big enough to hold a piano. Dynamite blasts send rock and shale flying high, rumbling rock crushers and ear-splitting bores and drills gauge the terrain, coffee dams reroute the stream as concrete is poured. By July 1958 the Long Sault will open for 14-foot draft, will carry nine months later hefty Lake freighters and ocean-going vessels drawing 27 feet will be plying the channel.

Man Starts Conquest of Space

For a long time man has toyed with the idea of flying out into space, high above the earth, and maybe, sometimes, of making a trip to the moon. While it may be some time yet before man will accomplish this feat, late this year or early next year, he will hurl his first challenge at the most mysterious and huge dimension of all—space.

Right now plans are being made to launch a three-stage rocket system into the skies above Patrick Air Force Base, Florida. In the head of the third rocket will be the gold-plated satellite, its skin as polished as science can make it. In it will be delicate instruments, capable of gathering space data and sending it back to the earth by radio.

Before the end of next year scientists hope to make "six earnest tries" to establish the satellite in an orbit encircling the earth from 200 to 1,200 miles into the unknown. If it orbits at 300 miles, it may stay aloft for several years.

Once lodged into space, the satellite will perform four Herculean tasks: It will measure the amount of ultra-violet radiation from the sun, measure the earth's magnetic field, gather information on high speed particles like cosmic rays, and measure the energy balance of the earth.

On the earth, hundreds of miles below, radio stations, manned by scientists of many nations, will receive the messages, decoding them and putting together a minute-by-minute report on the state of the great void above us.

This is, of course, only the beginning. From this attempt, if successful, man will learn more and more about the vastness of the Universe, and from it all should appreciate more fully than ever before the greatness of its Creator.

And Talk... And Talk...

Some people have said the automobile is breaking up our social life.

They point out that people isolate themselves in metal vehicles—everybody's moving around and out of contact with the human race.

But all this is nonsense. Perhaps people don't stand around and gossip over the back fence or the lawnmower as much as they used to.

Instead of this, they double-park on the street and sit in their cars and gossip.

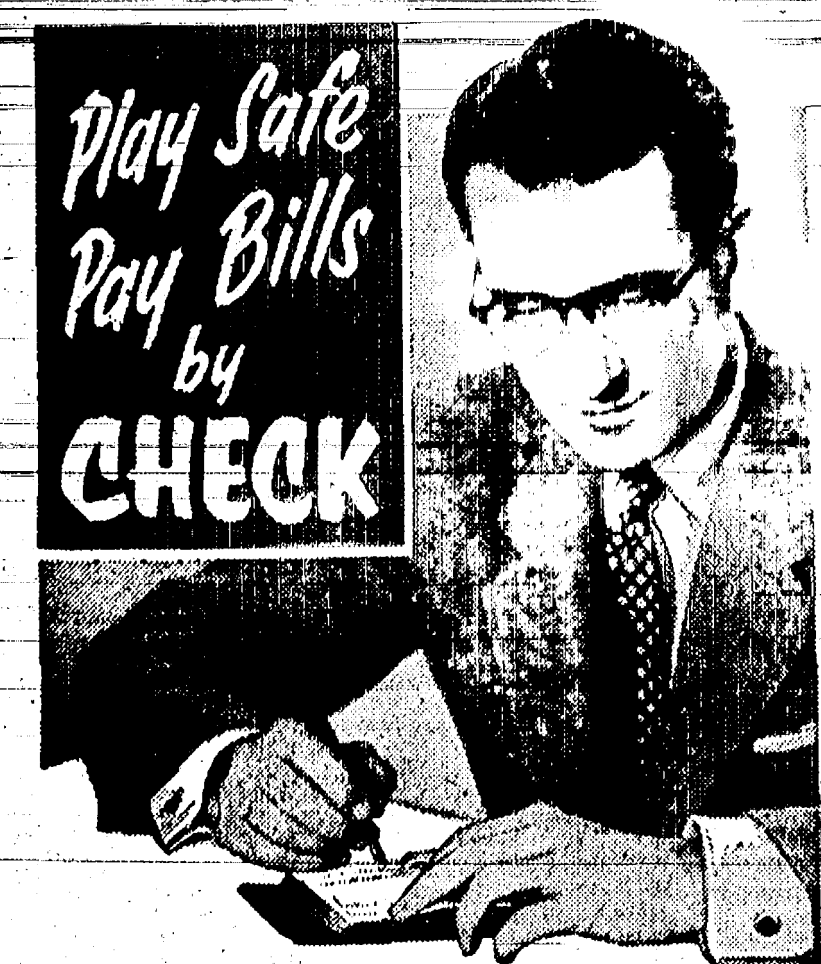

Almost any day we can drive down the street and see cars double parked... blocking traffic... And we say to ourselves "Why the automobile isn't breaking up our social life at all. Here are a couple of pinheads talking politics while they sit right there in their cars... double parked... blocking traffic."

Such a relief! Here we were worried for fear people would lose touch with one another.

Yet even in our present crowded traffic conditions, people can talk. The knuckleheads just stop their cars wherever they happen to meet... and talk... and block traffic.

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Michigan will spend $63,362,007 for mental health programs during the 1937-38 fiscal year.

The field always has been a battleground of controversy between Gov. Williams, who claims needs are not being met, and Republicans, who claim they are.

Republicans this year said the spending program for mental health will be $3,575,114 more than last year and places Michigan in a leading position in the country in mental health care.

Democrats reported that the mental health department would have to stop taking new patients at Northville State Mental hospital and make other cutbacks if more money were not provided.

In their report, Republicans said the hospital received more than it did last year; that Hawthorn Center, at the hospital, will get $900,000, an increase of $240,000.

After conferences, the plan to stop taking new patients at Northville was dropped.

The legislature provided $1,578,000 for the Lafayette Center in Detroit, training location for psychiatrists. This is an increase of $278,000.

To further their program of "brains instead of bricks" legislators turned over $225,000 to the neuro-psychiatric institute at Ann Arbor for research into the causes and treatment of mental disorders.

In addition the mental health department received $30,000 for research and was authorized to set up an $85,000 training program with the help of Federal funds.

Republicans said they had added 579 new employees to the mental health system in two years.

A start was made on construction of a new hospital for mentally retarded children at Plymouth with an appropriation of $1,250,000. Total expansion will net more than 1,000 new beds.

The Republican legislative program was designed to treat and care the mentally ill so they can return as quickly as possible to society—rather than being confined to our state institutions for lengthy periods of time, said House Speaker George M. Van Pelt (R-Zeeland).

"We have a mental health program we can be proud of," Van Pelt said, a legislative veteran who has risen to its top position of leadership, has been designated as the party's spokesman for the House.

Some party spokesmen indicate strongly that the young lawyer from Zeeland is a fast-rising star in partisan politics and could be tapped for higher state office—maybe, for governor.

It was Van Pelt's interim committee on labor which last summer exploded the battle over whether Gov. Williams' tax ideas were forcing business and industry out of Michigan.

The theory then, as now, was that business and industry are paying their limit in state taxes. Williams' proposed six per cent corporation profits tax would tip the scales, they said.

The issue boiled along through the summer and fall, until industrial leaders, including Harlow Curtice, president of General Motors, publicly stated his position.

He said that his corporation is considering expansion in other states rather than in Michigan partly because of the tax structure.

Political experts saw the resulting uproar as the most damaging attack on Williams since he took office in 1940.

Whether or not it was, leaders of both parties are keeping in mind that Van Pelt was one of the early leaders in the fight.

What has happened to Van Pelt since has done nothing to dim his rising political star.

Michigan's new Democratic highway commissioner, John C. Mackie, has found himself bound by some of the commitments made by his predecessor, Charles M. Ziegler.

Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh ruled the day after Mackie took office July 1 that bond issue money raised for limited-access expressways cannot be diverted to any other purpose.

This was a legal blow to Mackie, whose platform was to start at once with the new funds available in Michigan.

The net effect will force the new commissioner to finish many of the jobs already started by Ziegler—some of the projects under heavy criticism from Democrats.

Use Care When Animals Cross Highway in Traffic

Lansing—Michigan motorists are reminded to be on the alert for wildlife crossing roads.

Rabbits, pheasants and other game species are raising their young at this time of year and fast-moving automobiles on highways make life increasingly uncertain for wildlife parents and youngsters.

When it can be done safely, a touch of the brake often will allow the moment needed for a bird or animal to clear the road. At night, changing the light beam and sounding the horn usually does the trick.

Pfc. Arden Mushbach, who left for Korea April 28, is now stationed with the 25th Division near Seoul and last week received his private first class rating.

In a deal announced yesterday, the Red School on Manchester road was acquired by the Chelsea Community Fair Association for use as an office building on the fair grounds. A resume of the history of the school district shows the present building was constructed in 1877 at a cost of $500. The roll of pupils through the years included familiar family names through the 111 years since the district was founded—Merkel, Weber, Laubengayer, Faulkner, Wortley, Hinderer, Davidson, Schiller, West, Bahnmiller, Storms, Osterle, Bollinger, Klingler, Congdon, Sager and others.

The addition, at the north side of the mill will be 25' x 30' and two stories high. All of the work will be done by men now employed by Mr. Holmes.

According to Al Richards, an ardent local Republican, Herbert Hoover's statement, made in last fall's presidential campaign, that grass would grow in the streets of our cities if Democrats were elected, has been found to be true in Chelsea. Richards dashed into the Standard office with the information of a healthy growth of clover was growing from a crack in the pavement.

Chelsea's famous state-owned cement plant, which has been honored with front page position in many newspapers and which has been a political football for several years, is again brought to the attention of news readers through advertisements offering the plant for sale.

President Warren G. Harding died suddenly today of a stroke of cerebral apoplexy after he appeared to be rapidly recovering from a week's illness while on the west coast. His death occurred in San Francisco, Calif. False reports of his death were circulated in Chelsea Tuesday after telegraphic messages overheard at the local telegraph office were misinterpreted. The flag was flown at half mast for several hours before the report was found to be false. Carl J. Mayer and Paul F. Niehaus returned Sunday from a two-week vacation trip through the northwest, their route taking them through Wisconsin, the Canadian provinces to Hudson Bay, back to Duluth and down the Great Lakes to Detroit.

The state administrative board on Tuesday let the contract for a concrete highway on M-17 between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti.

Advertised by the Great Northern Steamship company are round trips to Europe for $110.

Bishop Kennedy To Speak at State Fair Sunrise Service

One of the Nation's leading clergymen, Bishop Gerald Kennedy, resident Bishop of the Los Angeles Area of the Methodist Church—will be the speaker for the seventh annual Sunrise Service to be held Sunday, Sept. 1 at 8 a.m. at the Michigan State Fair.

For the past six years, the Sunrise Service has been sponsored by the State Fair in cooperation with the Detroit Council of Churches. It has attracted approximately 10,000 early morning worshippers each year.

Bishop Kennedy is one of the youngest Methodist bishops. His spectacular rise to the episcopacy in 1948, at age 40, is unique in the denomination. Unique also is his cosmopolitan Los Angeles area to which he was assigned in 1946. He supervises churches that include congregations of Anglos, Latinos and Negroes. Also there are Chinese, Korean, German, Swedish and Norwegian groups which are bilingual but are integrated with the other churches of the area.

The territory administered by Bishop Kennedy includes Southern California, Arizona and Hawaii.

Bishop Kennedy is a prolific author of religious books and contributor to church publications and is one of the most forceful preachers in America. Ordained in 1928 he was selected and consecrated a bishop of the Methodist Church in Seattle, Wash.

ABOUT YOUR HOA

Carpets represent a major investment and should have the best of care and cleaning. There are a few simple points that every owner of good carpeting would do well to remember.

Before carpeting is laid, examine the floor thoroughly for protrusions, cracks, holes, bare floorboards and around baseboards with a filler. If such cracks are allowed to remain, they make fine breeding spots for carpet beetles.

Weekly cleanings should be made through the use of a vacuum. This is the best time to get under big pieces of furniture to clean the carpet they hide. It is a good idea to air a carpeted room once each week.

Carpets should be cleaned by a professional once every two years. At the meantime, spot cleaning should be done with a carbon tetrachloride or any one of a number of on-dry-cleaning liquids with this as a base.

Rough or uneven floors and wide spaces between boards cause premature wear spots in carpets. A cushion under your carpet smooths out the floor's uneven spots and takes much of the friction. A cushion also adds to the sound-absorbing quality of a carpet.

Most new carpets "fluff" for a time after they are laid. This is nothing to worry about as it is only the bits of lint left in the pile when the yarn is cut during manufacturing. Vacuuming a new rug every day will speed up this process.

If a carpet is to give long and satisfactory wear and retain its original color, it must be kept clean. Sand and dirt particles

If the family puppy is not house-broken yet—use warm water first, then a dry-cleaning agent followed by more warm water.

Corn Silage, Cattle Make High Return

Corn silage can be worth up to $200 an acre when it produces yields of 10 to 15 tons per acre and is fed to quality beef cattle. That's how Warren Huff, one of the hosts at this year's State Farm Management Tour in Washtenaw county, figures the best return from his 240 acres of crop land.

According to John Doneth, extension farm management specialist at Michigan State University and chairman of the program at the Huff farm, Huff is aiming for a 100 percent return on his investment by using a high-powered fertility and soil improvement program on a straight corn rotation.

Besides that, Huff is an experienced hand at feeding quality cattle and has some top-notch ideas about labor efficiency, says Doneth.

Huff has the capacity to turn out 1,000 head of fat cattle a year. He buys some shorn corn to put on a choice to prime finish, but says the profits come from turning farm produced feed into marketable beef.

Feed handling on an operation of this size is a big job, but Huff is equipped to do it with the least possible effort. He uses a self-unloading wagon to haul both silage and grain in one trip from the silo unloader to the feed bunks in his completely covered feed lot.

Huff prefers this system to a conveyor feed bunk directly from the silo because it gives him a chance to make more changes in his plans as he moves through the feeding period. He says, "Conveyors tie you to a frozen position."

Huff has space to store 2,400 tons of silage in six upright silos and one bunker. This summer he will build another glass-lined silo which will be under construction on the day of the tour.

The keys to high yields of silage, according to Huff are plant population, fertility and soil structure. And he is taking advantage of all three. Even with his straight corn rotation, Huff hopes to improve his soil with deep plowing, plenty of fertilizer and green manure. At planting time he tries to drop a fertilizer every seven and a half inches to hit about 20,000 plants per acre.

On the tour, to be held Aug. 20, farmers will have a chance to see and hear more about the many new and different ideas Huff is using to make farming pay off.

Mrs. Joseph Laban returned home Thursday after spending three weeks at the home of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Miller and children, at Schiller Park, Ill., and helping care for the Millers' new baby, Janet Elizabeth, born July 6.

Mrs. Elba Gage, Mrs. H. G. Gage and Miss Lillie Wackenhut were Friday luncheon guests of Miss Emilie Steinbach at her home in Dexter and were entertained by her during the afternoon. Mrs. Henry Steinbach of Dexter, also was a guest.

May Pay To Store Wheat At Harvest

Michigan farmers may gain by storing wheat for a limited time after harvest but whenever it is possible to realize the equivalent of the support price, the wheat should be moved.

This is the report made by Dale Hathaway, farm economist at Michigan State University. For most wheat farmers, it should prove profitable to put their wheat under loan, he says.

Hathaway partially based his reports on improved wheat crop prospects in the great plains area as a result of much needed rain. The winter wheat crop now promises to approach that of last year, despite nearly a one-fifth reduction in planted acreage due to drought and the soil bank program.

As a result, this year's crop will be more than enough to provide for normal domestic use and commercial exports. Therefore, the support program will again be an important factor in the market.

Hathaway says that in previous years when this has been the case, the market price has been substantially below the support price during and immediately following harvest. Thus, it has paid many farmers to store wheat, at least for a few months until the market price approaches the support level at the farm.

The current uncertainty about the acreage reserve part of the soil bank and the announced lower support price for 1958 wheat crop also figure in Hathaway's report. Both of these suggest that wheat prices will probably be lower for the 1958 crop.

Planning for Local Disasters Needed, U-M Doctor Says

Ann Arbor—When a disaster strikes, 20 percent of the survivors will "lose their heads" or lose control of themselves and be of no value to those trying to establish order, says a University of Michigan surgeon.

Dr. C. Thomas Flotte, instructor in Surgery at the University of Michigan Medical School and University Hospital, states that one-fifth of disaster victims experience a complete psychological block and fail to evaluate what has taken place or respond quickly to emergency needs. Only one out of five survivors will be alert and capable of immediate action, while 80 per cent become momentarily paralyzed but are able to think clearly and assist the injured after a brief period of shock.

Medical handling of emergency disaster victims today requires much more knowledge than "what to do until the doctor arrives," Dr. Flotte states. It requires that all persons possible know the right things to do to aid an injured person in an emergency situation—how to stop bleeding and insure adequate respiration. He suggests that every citizen make a course in first aid. The Red Cross offers this type of instruction in most communities.

Dr. Flotte maintains that disaster planning should begin in our schools. He advocates that citizens, both young and old, learn to act by habit in an actual emergency situation. He states that although planning for local disasters such as fires or explosions, and regional disasters such as tornadoes or floods, is now taking place, a mass casualty situation, such as that created by an atomic bomb explosion, involving thousands of victims, must be planned for by government agencies, with the support of the people. "Thinking on such a scale must be made a part of our background if we are to reduce the number of individual who cannot think and act quickly in a disaster."

Family Changes Their Minds About Keeping Baby Skunk for Pet

Lansing—One Michigan family learned a valuable lesson recently about picking up wild animals for "pets," particularly skunks.

A member of the family, which makes its home in Utica, wrote to the Conservation Department in order to obtain a permit to keep a baby skunk which was found near its dead mother on a highway.

Department officials sent conservation officer George Bruno of Clemens to investigate the application for the permit. Bruno reported to his supervisor as follows: "The skunk took care of the situation better than I could. It sprayed all over a rug at the applicant's home. The family, no longer thinking it was a cute pet, did as I ordered two weeks ago; they released the skunk in the woods."

The Utica family was refunded its permit fee, but probably still has a fairly strong reminder of the skunk's short visit.

Recently, two men from Ironwood went fishing in the nearby Carp River and hung their packsacks in a tree. When they returned, a bear or bears had stolen one sack and the other was torn open and the contents scattered.
