GIRL SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 68
Girl Scouts of Troop 68 held a meeting Dec. 4 at the home of one of their leaders, Mrs. Ralph Kling, and planned to go caroling. They also planned their Christmas party.

At yesterday's meeting they made Christmas tree decorations from aluminum pot-pie pans. The meeting also took place at the Klingler home.

TROOP 49
Girl Scouts of Troop 49 held their meeting Dec. 4 at South Elementary school. They worked on stuffed animals for their Christmas baskets. Karen Keizer furnished the refreshments.

Carolyn Smith, scribe.

TROOP 50
Girl Scouts of Troop 50 will have no meeting Dec. 17. It was announced at the meeting held Tuesday afternoon in South Elementary school. The girls are to meet promptly at 7 o'clock Friday, Dec. 20, at Chelsea High school to go to Colonial Manor to sing carols.

This will be followed by a Christmas party to be held at the home of Cheryl Werner, 2-413 Wilkinson. There will be an exchange of gifts.

Parents are to pick-up the Girl Scouts at 9 o'clock.

TROOP 71
Mrs. Warren Eisenbeiser called the meeting to order.

Each girl made a Christmas wreath from pine boughs.

Refreshments of cake and Kool-Aid were served by Carol Reith and Janet Kern.

The meeting place has been changed to the Municipal building.

BROWNIES

TROOP 48
Brownies of Troop 48, at their Dec. 6 meeting in Room 10 at South Elementary school, had on exhibit a "nature box" sent to them from Jacksonville, Fla., by Brownies of Troop 14 of that city. The box contained, among other interesting items, a magnolia leaf, Spanish moss and bug shells.

The Chelsea girls had recently sent a "nature box" to the Florida troop with the items included demonstrating foliage and other Michigan area articles.

Mrs. Max Hepburn and Mrs. Peter Savern, leaders of Troop 48, exhibited a wintergreen plant which Mr. Hepburn had found in the woods. They broke open the berries to show girls how the flavor is preserved in the berries.

Cynthia Hepburn was the hostess for the meeting and, in keeping with the holiday season, served fruit cake.

Christmas gifts were brought to be opened at the troop's Christmas party to be held Dec. 20 at the home of Mrs. John Alber.

TROOP 51
Girls of Brownies Troop 51 met at South Elementary school Friday at 1:15 p.m. for supper. Afterwards they played games and went caroling until 8:30 p.m.

At the regular weekly meeting Tuesday in room four at South Elementary school the girls made gifts.

To help sell $100,000,000 in bonds for building of the Mackinac bridge the Michigan legislature in 1953 voted an annual appropriation of $44,000 from the highway fund for operating and maintenance costs of the huge span. This assures that toll revenues will be reserved exclusively to meet interest payments and retire the bonds.

Peter Cottontail Receives Attention Of Winter Hunters

Lansing—Although he is around throughout the year—in abundant numbers—the cottontail rabbit doesn't really achieve prominence until the winter months.

When snow is on the ground and other hunting seasons are past, rabbits receive the attention that has made them Michigan's most popular small game animal.

At least 800,000 hunters take to woods and fields each year, seeking the sport and good eating provided by the bouncing cottontail.

Hunters are well-rewarded for their efforts, too, and bagged some 1,487,000 rabbits last season.

The reasons for the rabbit's popularity are many. Rabbits are available to almost everybody; they are found close to towns; you don't need expensive equipment to hunt them; they are a tasty dish; and hunting seasons are long—extending through March 1 throughout the state.

Southern Michigan contains the main cottontail range, but bunnies also are found in the northern lower peninsula and even in the upper peninsula.

In northern parts of the state, however, most hunting pressure is directed at snowshoe hares. About 285,000 of these broad-footed hares were bagged by Michigan hunters last season.

Even with long seasons and heavy pressure, all surplus rabbits and hares are not harvested. As a matter of fact, hunters could take about two-thirds of the rabbit population each year without damaging the next year's production.

In actual practice, hunters don't come close to harvesting two-thirds of the crop, but it has been accomplished experimentally without hurting rabbit populations.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. John Hofhansian and son spent the past week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kalorian and family, in Monroe.

Enroute home they stopped in Dearborn to call on Mr. and Mrs. John Manoulian and their new baby.

Miss Enid Freeman of Birmingham, and her sister, Mrs. N. D. Mobley of Dry Prong, La., who was her guest for two weeks, spent Friday of the past week here with their aunt and uncle, Miss Minnie Schumacher and Henry Schumacher.

Dr. Elmer Hammond of Oxford, Miss., here to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, James G. Schofield, of Ferndale, spent from Monday until Tuesday night as the guest of his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hopper.

Earnings of Michigan farmers turned upward last year after four years of continuous decline, say Michigan State University farm-economists.

Demands for Service, Packaging Accounts for Food Price Increases

Consumer demands for more services and packaging accounts for much of the recent increase in food marketing costs.

The result is that the farmer's share of the food dollar has been shaved and is expected to average only about 40 cents this year. Ten years ago, farmers got 47 cents of each dollar the consumer spent for food.

Earl Brown, food retailing specialist at Michigan State University, says as long as today's consumer wants her chicken, for instance, dressed, cleaned, cut up and packaged, the farmer's share of the food dollar will continue to be less.

But he goes on to say that retailers are getting only about 20 cents of the food dollar and that they are working hard to improve marketing efficiency to keep retailing costs from climbing. Brown feels this in turn will mean more of the marketing profits available to producers.

Self-serve markets have contributed much to cutting food retailing costs, Brown believes. Mark-ups are relatively small as these stores depend upon volume for profits.

Christmas Tree Production in State Is Big Business

Lansing—Christmas tree production, a $5,000,000 industry, is a year-round business in Michigan.

Early last summer, long before most people gave any thought to winter, operations were begun to bring your Christmas tree into your home.

Contracting for Christmas trees and boughs for marketing begins in earnest in early summer and most trees are spoken for when cutting time rolls around.

Cutting and hauling gets underway in late October and reaches a peak in early December. Cutters bundle and pile their trees on roadways where trucks pick them up for delivery to wholesale points or to the more than 4,000 retail outlets in the state.

Before cutting operations, of course, trees receive careful attention which provides better quality and quantity of production.

Wild trees make up about half of Michigan's annual production, but plantation-grown trees gain a larger share of the market each year.

Most plantations conduct systematic programs of sprays for protection against insects throughout the growing season. In addition, trees are sheared and shaped to produce desirable form and compactness. Christmas tree grades and standards are increasingly important because the market will not take all available trees and purchasers are becoming more and more selective. Michigan residents use about 1,500,000 Christmas trees each year, of which about a million are grown in the state. Michigan plantations are major sources for the popular red and Scotch pines and other species, while types such as balsam fir grow wild in many northern areas of the state.

Autos Kill More
Deer Each Year in Southern Michigan

Lansing—More and more deer are being killed on southern Michigan highways each year.

Through October, about 600 whitetails had been killed in collisions with cars and trucks and other vehicles on state roadways south of the Muskegon-Bay City line.

The total, at year's end, will almost certainly be a record high. In 1954, highway accidents killed 689. The next year it jumped to 829. And last year it was up to 748. The state-wide total last year was a record 3,127.

In addition, southern Michigan conservation officers estimate the real kill is actually about 10,000 each year when mortally injured lands are accounted for.

The total southern Michigan loss has grown to one-third the size of the legal hunting season harvest of whitetails in southern Michigan counties.

Heaviest losses are usually sustained in Kent, Tuscola, Livingston, Oakland, Montcalm, and Calhoun counties.

But, these roadway kills are not only a loss to wildlife; the car owner who hits a deer at high speed frequently lands in the hospital or beside his wrecked vehicle. Michigan is not liable for such damage (though some states are) and insurance often doesn't cover such accidents.

ARIZONA'S FLAG STILL FLIES:

Pearl Harbor - 16 Years Ago

By Edward H. Sims
Special Writer for The Chelsea Standard

Pearl Harbor. —On Dec. 7 it will be 16 years to the day since the Japanese attacked the United States of America at Pearl Harbor. The Navy recently conducted 15 visiting newsmen at Pearl Harbor on a tour of the anchorage, one of them being this writer.

Pearl Harbor, it is obvious, has come to mean more than just the name of a place or battle in American history. Perhaps the greatest symbol to emerge from this sneak attack, and the resulting hard-fought victory which followed it, is the sunken battleship Arizona.

Sunk about eight minutes after its magazine exploded on the morning of Dec. 7, in approximately 50 feet of water several hundred feet off Ford Island, the superstructure of the Arizona still juts out of the water.

And aboard this sunken ship are the bodies (or what remains of them) of 1,102 American servicemen. The Navy at first began removing the bodies, but after one diver was killed, it requested that the bodies be allowed to remain there and the families concerned agreed.

Then, in 1950, Admiral Arthur Radford officially raised the U. S. flag on the flagpole of the Arizona, saying:

"From today on the USS Arizona will again fly our country's flag just as proudly as she did on the morning of 7 December 1941."

I am sure the Arizona's crew will know and appreciate what we are doing.

Every morning an honor guard raises the flag on the Arizona and each evening it is lowered, just as if the ship were in commission. In the Navy's sentimental way the ship is considered to be still in commission, and it is said that she will do her part in any new war in which the United States is engaged.

It is this kind of faith and tradition which makes an armed service more than just a military machine, and which gives a country a proud military tradition and heritage, and something to live up to in the future.

Gray-haired men, a group of newsmen were carried to the superstructure of the Arizona and disembarked on its walkways. It was a bright, clear day, with a brilliant blue sky and soft white clouds overhead. Only the noise of water lapping at the rusting metal and the single of metal on the rope of the flagpole as it struck the pole repeatedly, broke the silence at this scene.

Civilians do not visit the sunken hulk of the Arizona, but military personnel do go aboard and look down on the deck of the old battleship and the rusting ventilators and superstructure which jut out of the water.

The same brown-stained concrete anchor structure to which the Arizona was anchored when she was struck by the Japanese stands alongside the sunken hulk.

Gray-wooden walkways have been built up over the deck, and above the water, and one can look down upon the walkways and see fish swimming in the few feet of water above the main deck.

It is practically impossible not to remember that more than 1,100 men are still aboard, down below, when one looks over the length of this 600-foot vessel. But it is good for all of us to remember. Similarly, it is good for us to remember the Unknown Soldier and it is good for us to remember the day that the Arizona's gallant crew was surprised and only several hundred of between 1,500 and 2,000 men were able to swim their way to safety through burning waters or be blown to safety over the inferno.

Many acts of bravery were carried out on that day about which the American people will never read. One wonders what the thoughts of those officers and men who were trapped below on the morning of the attack in the Arizona, were, when they heard the first explosions. Many of them never gained the deck before the ship sank and therefore, probably never understood the cause of the explosions and fire which enveloped them.

Little did they know, when they went below for the last time, that they would never see the beautiful green water of the Pearl Harbor anchorage, or the lush green of the Australian pines and monkey pods and banyan trees, which can be seen just a few hundred yards away from where the Arizona sunk.

Perhaps thinking about the Arizona and what happened on Dec. 7, 1941, is a lesson in the dangers inherent in complacency. Today the United States also faces a formidable enemy. Today we are also confronted with an enemy who could surprise us. Pearl Harbor, and the part of the Arizona which still stands above the water, is a living warning and a symbolic memorial, all in one.

Hold Joint

Installation Tuesday

Joint public installation of officers of Olive Lodge No. 156, F&AM and Olive Chapter, No. 140, R.A.M., took place Tuesday evening at the Masonic hall here with Vivian Richards, past master of the Milan Lodge, as installing officer.

Olive Lodge No. 156, F&AM, is headed by George Cantrell as worshipful master. The slate of officers, elected at a meeting Dec. 3, was published last week.

Officers of Olive Chapter, No. 140, R.A.M., elected Thursday and installed this week, are: Clara Knickerbocker, high priest; Henry Lerget, king; Marvin Salver, scribe; Carl Mayer, treasurer; Carl Benjamin, secretary; Donald Dancer, captain of the host; Alvin Reinhardt, principal sojourner; George Cantrell, Royal Arch captain; Eugene Klumpp, master of the third veil; George Atkinson, master of the second veil; Rha Alexander, master of the first veil; Martin E. Miller, sentinel.

An easy way to flour chicken or meat is to put the pieces in a bag containing seasoned flour, and shake.

If you have leftover cooked chicken, refrigerate it as soon as possible after the meal. Cover it to keep it from drying out and put gravy and stuffing in separate dishes. Use cooked chicken within three days.

The next regular club meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 14.

Choose Laundry Starch Best Fitted For Particular Need

There's a starch on the market to suit every taste—crisp, heavy, pliable or light, says Bernetta Kahabka, extension specialist in clothing at Michigan State University.

Both vegetable and plastic starches are available to give body to washable fabrics. Some starches also add a glossy finish that makes washable fabrics easier to iron.

You may want to try different kinds of starch to find the one to give the effect you want.

Hot water and cooked starches come in powder, cubes and crystals. They usually tend to add more body to fabrics.

Pre-cooked instant starches used with cold water are convenient. They dissolve fast and stay dissolved.

Plastic starches may or may not be permanent. Some types are sizing agents which dissolve in water and come out in each washing, bringing soil with them.

Permanent plastic starch penetrates the fabric and is set by heat as you iron the garment. Depending on the brand, the finish will last from 5 to 10 or more washings.

You'll find some plastic starches suitable are made—give garments body but not stiffness. These work well on dark cottons.

To keep the dark, rich color of dark cottons you can add bluing to any pre-cooked or plastic starch. No matter what starch you use for dark-colored cottons—be sure it is completely dissolved for satisfactory results.

With any starch follow directions on the package and be careful not to over-starch.

IN BEAUTIFUL CHELSEA

Jean Evon Wortley

ENGAGEMENT TOLD—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Wortley of near-Francisco, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean Evon, to Gordon D. Hubbard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Hubbard of Battle Creek. The couple has set no date for the wedding.

The bride-to-be is a 1954 graduate of Grass Lake High school and is employed at the E. J. Foster Furniture store at Grass Lake.

Mr. Hubbard graduated from Battle Creek High school. He is employed at Hill-Fiston Service in Battle Creek.

Store Child's Toys Near Play Area To Encourage Neatness

Where do you want storage for children's toys? The kitchen, bath, living room and child's sleeping area are probably the main places.

Coral Morris, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State University.

The child needs storage where he plays. This makes it easy for him to "be good" and put things away. It also keeps things handy for him to use and makes it easier for you to keep the house neat.

Shelves are probably the best storage as the child can learn to arrange things neatly. He can take pride in keeping toys and books in order.

A box can serve as a place to put things, but it doesn't encourage neatness. When his toys are thrown in a box he's less likely to learn to take good care of them.

If space is limited you may need to use a sack, hung from the wall, but with the top open so he can reach in easily. Similarly, the box, it doesn't encourage being careful of the toys.

A drawer in the bottom of the cupboard or dresser can be used too. Be sure it's low enough for the child to reach easily.

Children like to be near you so you'll want some storage in the kitchen. Ask him to have a bottom drawer or a low shelf away from the stove and from your busy area.

In the bathroom you'll only need a small amount of storage for tub toys.

A closed shelf or drawer will keep play things in the living room neat.

The largest amount of storage is usually needed in the child's bedroom. Open shelves of varying heights work well. Things are out where he can admire them. The toys are easy to get for playing and shelves are handy for putting them away.

When you bring fresh chicken home from the market, remove the store wrap. Rewrap the chicken loosely in waxed paper so air can circulate. Keep chicken in coldest part of the refrigerator and use within three days.

Pacific Fleet Commander Felix Stump Says War with Soviets Is Not Inevitable

Pearl Harbor—Admiral Felix B. Stump, Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet, recently answered some sixty-four dollar questions for newsmen visiting Pearl Harbor. It was a frank and practical discussion of our military power compared with that of our potential enemy, or enemies.

Admiral Stump is the new unified Commander of an area which reaches to the border of Burma and India and back to the West Coast of the United States. Moreover, he is not necessarily restricted to this area and his command may be requested to perform jobs outside. This unified command setup was established just this past summer.

Under Admiral Stump are three sub-commanders: Air Force General L. S. Kuter, Army General I. D. White and Admiral M. E. Gurne, his Deputy Commander in Chief.

Admiral Stump's responsibilities are staggering. Under him are all military assistance groups operating with the one and a half million Asian troops on the side of the Western democracies. Our aid programs to these Asian countries cost less than one billion dollars a year, according to Stump.

Stump believes we have become stronger in Asia in recent years. He admits, however, that the Communists have also grown stronger.

As to our bases in the Far East, Stump believes we should hold on to them. "On Okinawa, we have spent hundreds of millions of dollars. It would cause great trouble if we turned this island over to the Japanese. It would not be in the interest of either the Japanese or the United States or the anti-Communist world."

Stump also believes the United States should keep the Bonin Islands and that it would not serve any useful purpose to turn this base over to the Japanese.

As for the prospect of war, Stump frank words: "I don't think there will be any general war. The Reds are not that foolish. I do think the Reds know we will not start a war. So they can stop weapons production at any time to concentrate on their newest types. We must continually stay stronger than they are and therefore cannot always have the most modern weapons in adequate quantities."

Stump believes a way should be worked out to channel the productive capacity of the United States toward defense so as to maintain the balance of power.

Stump views the situation in China and Korea as the most serious now facing the Allies, but he notes that the small country of Laos, one of the three states of Indochina, is now dickering with Red groups in that country and points to the fact that Laos borders all Southeast Asian countries and is in a strategic location.

even though boasting a population of only two million people. The United States is now giving Laos some assistance and hoping that the country does not fall under the spell of international Communism.

our security and not cause inflation. The Pacific Fleet commander is quite frank in expressing his opinion that the only way that trouble with the Communists can be prevented is for the United States to remain strong enough to win small wars, and be determined to go in and fight aggressively to win them—with tactical atomic weapons, if necessary.

On the subject of Japan, our greatest potential ally in Asia, a question which may decide the turn of the tide in the Far East, Stump believes that Japan must have the raw materials of Southeast Asia. The United States, he says, must realize that the Japanese must support 80 million people—a population which is increasing by one million a year.

Stump is firmly convinced that the only thing the Russians respect is force and that if the United States enters a local war with all its power and force, the Russians will not risk World War III.

Stump also believes the United States should keep the Bonin Islands and that it would not serve any useful purpose to turn this base over to the Japanese.

As for the prospect of war, Stump frank words: "I don't think there will be any general war. The Reds are not that foolish. I do think the Reds know we will not start a war. REPORT FROM WASHINGTON:

Capital Is Speculating on Possible New Man at Helm

Washington—President Eisenhower's illness is by far the most disquieting news since Russia announced it was firing earth satellites into outer space and the mood in Washington is a pessimistic one. Perhaps the reason for pessimism is that this is the third serious illness the President has encountered in approximately two years. And this time it is a blood clot, not a heart attack, that produces the concern. There are those who think this is the gravest indication of failing health yet evident in the President.

Speculation swirling around Capitol Hill includes the belief that the President is heading into a period such as that experienced when Woodrow Wilson went into declining health in his second term as President. Naturally, if this is the case, the question of Vice President Nixon's role arises. Needless-to-say, there are both Nixon boosters and detractors in Washington. But most Democrats prefer Mr. Eisenhower to the Vice President. Nixon at one time was considered a sort of progressive conservative but now he is considered by conservative Democrats as a radical and by leftwing Democrats as an opportunist politician.

As this is written, criticism is being leveled at the White House news staff for its tardy and incomplete reports on the President's health. In the case of Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack in 1955, first reports indicated that the trouble was something else entirely and only slowly with each new communique hours apart, did the public get the full story.

This time history repeated itself. The President was said to have suffered a chill. Then a strange announcement said his illness was being re-evaluated. Then it was said he had suffered a blood clot in a blood carrier going into the brain.

Only slowly did the seriousness of the event reach the public. Whatever is said, or denied, the President's illness is certain to have an effect on business and on all branches of the government. And despite what some may hope, the trend of opinion seems to be that the President should not go on filling the toughest job in the world. (There were many who said he should not have run.)

Just what will develop is a question but both Democrats and Republicans are speculating widely about the serious effects this new illness of the President's will have on the lives of every American.

GUN BLAST KILLS BOY

Salisbury, Md.—William Harry Bradford, 10, and his brother, David Lee, 14, missed an early school bus and, while waiting for the next bus, began playing with a 12-gauge shotgun. The younger boy grabbed the barrel of the gun held by his brother. It discharged, striking the boy in the chest, instantly killing him. The boys' parents were at work at the time.

Washington Report

By Senator Charles F. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

THE WASHINGTON party circuit is something I almost never frequent because of press of important legislative duties. And with not too much regret. But sometimes I miss a party, which causes me the kind of sadness a boy has when he finds he can't go to the state fair or the circus. Such was last Saturday's party at Colby Dale Farms in Romeo, 35 miles from Detroit. The guest of honor was Longmeadow Minnie, a registered Guernsey cow, who in November completed a production record that is the highest of any breed on twice-a-day milking.

My curiosity about the details of that party I couldn't attend whistles questions around in my head. Was Minnie on a receiving line? Did she shake a front hoof with all the guests, or did she retain the charming aloofness of outchewing in the meadow? Were Minnie milk shakes served instead of highballs? Were refreshments made from cheeses originating in Minnie herself? Was there a little spot of hay for Minnie on the way? And did Minnie wear a yellow daisy over her left ear for the fête, or a lei of cowbells?

Maybe the Guernsey Cattle Club sponsoring the party will fill us in on these details.

UNHEALTHY INTER-SERVICE competition in the Armed Forces of the United States continues to worry the American people and their representatives in the Congress. I am giving my fullest co-operation to all efforts to stop this rivalry from halting the speed-up of efforts in the missile field.

A lack of real interchange of information between the services suggests that some brass within the services have a tendency to forget the identity of the enemy. Each service's struggle to be top-dog in one field or another has a tendency to weaken rather than strengthen the overall defense position. And keep the United States from being top-dog in the world's military picture.

LOBBIES OF EACH of the services have strong legislative friends here on the Hill who have always protested in the past when attempts were made to correct this situation. But at this point the American people and their representatives in the Congress are in no mood to let the defense of the United States go down the drain to back any branch of the armed forces. We simply cannot afford interservice rivalry, and I will fully support any action by the Congress or the President to put a stop to it.

Bigger Farms Are Here To Stay

Three generations—a span of 75 years—and the smallest profitable farms in the country will contain no less than 260 acres. In this generation, the minimum profitable operation will hover around 100 acres. These predictions are the opinions of statisticians who have projected economies into the future.

In addition to this big-farm theory, other smaller farms will give way to home development. The over-all effect, of course, points not only to fewer farmers and farms, but to larger farms and more production. The announcement of this trend is not a shock to those who have seen the capabilities of modern machinery, livestock and crops and the farms. A case in point was the demonstration at the corn field day near Mason recently.

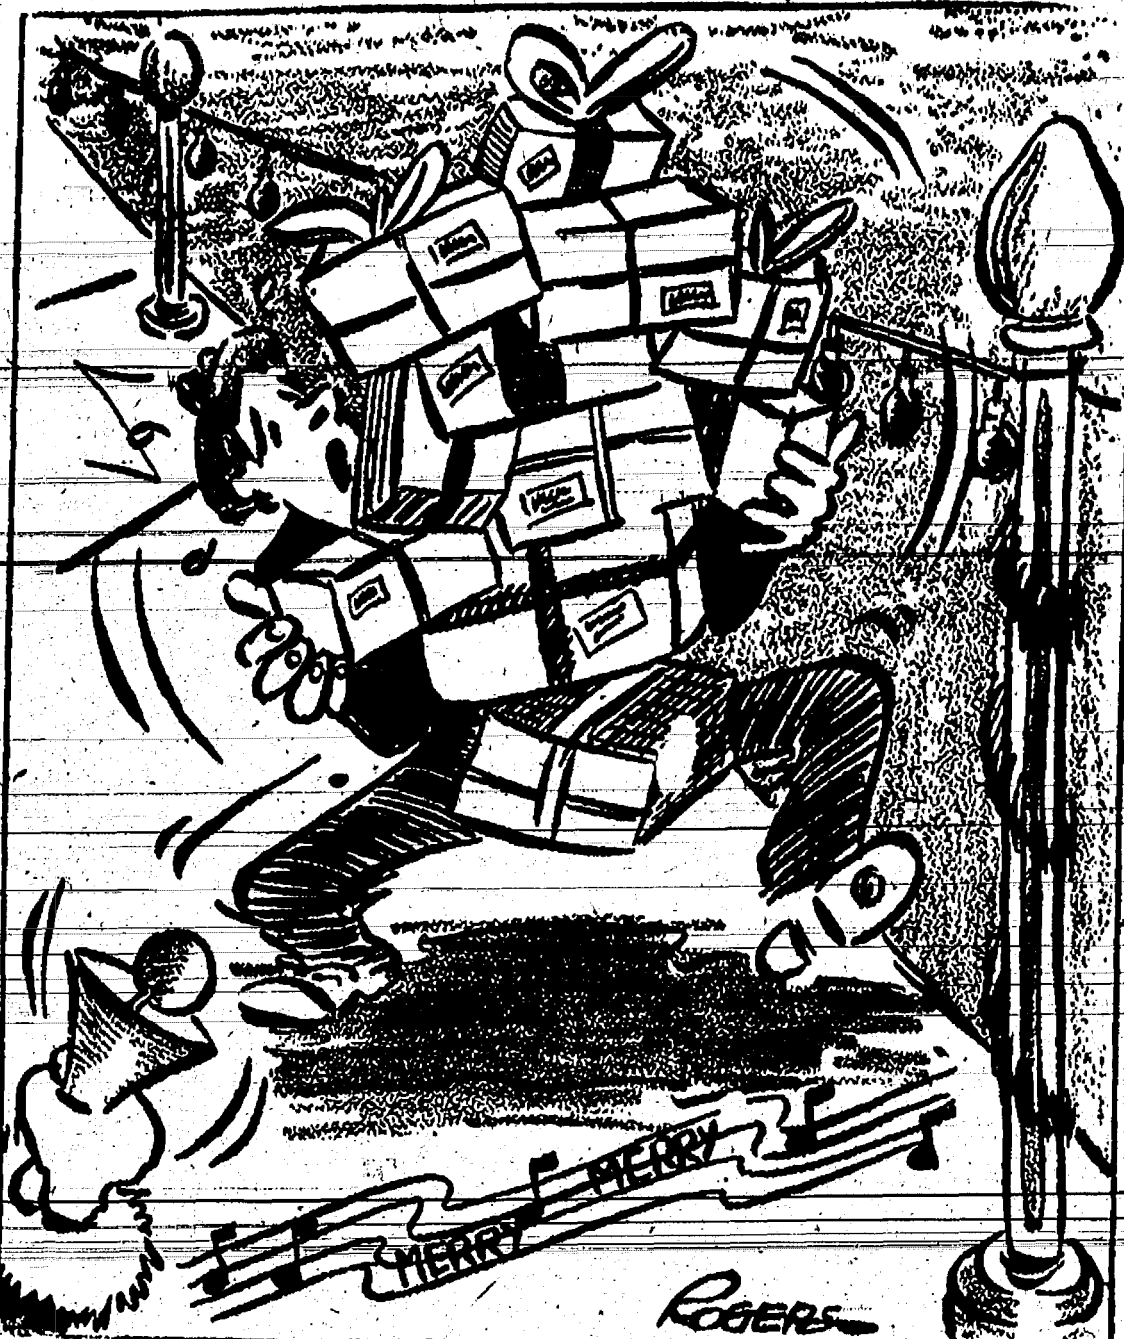

Such perfection along the lines of efficiency long ago spelled out the doom of small farms. For such advancements must be measured in terms of man-hours. A farmer or industrialist who has a machine that can do the work of five men ought to have that much work to be done. Farmers with a couple of cows can't justify a gutter cleaner any more than an industrialist can afford to own a machine capable of producing a million tea kettles a year when the most he ever sold was 500.

It seems almost a sure thing that small farms are falling fast. And in their wake will be big farms with big machinery. The bigness won't necessarily be evil. For this predicted transition will be brought about by competition. It will be no stranger than the evolution of small businesses.

Farmers especially, must learn to live with the trend to bigness. Those who intend to stay in farming or those who desire to make a career in farming available to their youngsters should be quick to adopt modern methods of production. They should be quick to discard the old ways for new. They should start now to grow big.—Arenac County Independent.

A prominent agriculture expert says the earthworm is the farmer's best friend. Some political candidates would dispute that statement.

"Loaded" For Christmas

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Republicans will fight to keep their last elective stronghold, the Michigan legislature.

A special committee has been set up to concentrate on a 1938 campaign in the "swing" districts, those where the Democratic-Republican vote was 20 per cent apart, or less.

Main concentration will be to keep the 59 Republican House seats. Democrats now have 51, enough to block two-thirds votes on some major issues.

Republicans are less fearful that the Democrats will take over the Senate where they hold a 23 to 11 edge.

The committee, however, has singled out the 18th district of Senator John D. Swainson (D-Detroit), minority leader, for special attention along with other close Detroit districts.

Superimposed over the contests is the automatic vote in 1938 on proposal to call a constitutional convention.

Technically, a convention could re-write the entire state constitution—last re-written in 1908—and upset the 1938 reapportionment of the legislature now in effect.

Republicans contend that present reapportionment plans create "a balanced legislature," basing House membership on population of the state and the Senate on geographical areas.

Democrats contend that the plan was devised especially to keep the House in rural Republican hands. They would like to change this. GOP leaders fear a new plan would permit Wayne and Oakland counties to control the entire state.

The issue has split the parties with Republicans opposed to a convention which could upset present apportionment; Democrats favoring a convention for the same reason.

Under present law, the convention membership has three members from each senatorial district. This maintains the ratio of senatorial votes each party has in the legislature.

Universities and colleges, facing their biggest financial crisis in years, will go before the legislature again with a plan to finance construction with student fees.

The fees were increased 10 per cent last year at legislative insistence but a last-minute maneuver killed a plan to use the money for bond issues to finance new buildings.

Financial experts in Lansing predict the plan will again clash head-on with a Republican pledge to hold the line on spending for another year to wait for completion of two tax studies.

Another attempt will be made to tag the state's farm products with a "seal of quality" or a "Michigan's Best" label this year.

Most major farm groups already have supported the idea, which has been offered annually since 1940.

It will be part of a big farm program to be presented to the 1938 legislature, following a series of conferences with agricultural leaders.

Controversy from a number of new sources is worrying Democrats as 1937 nears its end.

Gov. Williams replaced the state labor commissioner, John Reid, with a UAW official from Lansing, Russell White. Reid immediately charged the UAW forced his resignation.

He charged that the union wanted to use the department to harass employers. Two weeks after replacing Reid and a week after Reid made his charges, Williams still had not answered them.

Still another controversy involves a letter written by Alfred Pitt, the governor's legal advisor, to the state parole board asking that Pete Mahoney, prison inmate be released.

The letter argued that Mahoney, sentenced for armed robbery, was given a stiff term—25 to 40 years—because officials felt he knew something about the murder of former State Senator Warren G. Hooper.

WIRE BRUSH MADE FROM WINDOW SCREEN

You can make an excellent wire brush for cleaning rust from tools, flaking paint from metal and doing other scraping jobs out of window or door wire screen, say agricultural engineers. Here's how: Fray several strands of a 4 inch by about 36 inch piece of screen. Then roll it into a small tight roll and tie it up with fine smooth wire. To make a handle you might force one end into a sturdy jar or deep jar cap.

★ Write It Down

I have seen the motto, "Put It In Writing," posted in various business offices, and it is well worth heeding, even though it is distributed with ulterior motives by a firm that makes writing paper.

If you have a brilliant idea, write it down before it escapes you. It may not look so brilliant the next day, and you may decide not to pursue the matter any further, but at least you didn't let it get away from you by carelessness.

I jot down ideas for this column whenever they pop into my mind, even if it means jumping up from the breakfast table or stopping my car by the roadside. Somebody will say it's hardly worth all that bother, and I must agree that many of the subjects I discuss are trivial rather than brilliant, but whatever value they do have would be lost if I didn't write them down.

Even the vision of a prophet doesn't inspire many people unless it is put into written form. The Lord told the prophet Habakkuk, "Write the vision; make it plain upon tablets, that he may run who reads it." The idea appears to have been that if the prophet would condense his message into a form clear enough that a person who was running past could understand it, then everybody could understand it.

Your thinking becomes clearer if you write your thoughts down, and outline them, and write them again. For this I have no less an authority than Francis Bacon, who wrote, "Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man."

When someone asked how to overcome worry, my first answer was, "Write down exactly what you are worrying about." It is difficult to worry about anything that is definite, because worry thrives on uncertainty.

Making a dream definite by writing it down brings it one step closer to realization. Dreams usually need to mature a while before they materialize, but, as the Lord said to Habakkuk, "If it seem slow, wait for it."

A good way to get things done is to make a list of things you intend to do. Then keep checking away at it until you can check off every item on the list. If you agree that this is a good idea, and that you ought to start a list of things to be done, don't just sit there and agree.

Get a pencil and start writing.

IT IS OFTEN SAID
that the best gifts you can give are those you'd like to receive yourself. Wouldn't you like to receive, as a Christmas present, a bedroom or kitchen phone, or a phone for the den or workshop? Then wouldn't they make great gifts for Mother, Dad or the teenagers in your family? Extension telephones (in any of nine decorator colors) cost only about $1 a month after a one-time installation charge. So order your gift telephones now. It's easy; just call our Business Office.

CHRISTMAS IS GETTING
closer and closer and you probably have a hundred and one things to do - presents to buy, holiday parties to plan, and lots of errands to run. Just the spot for your telephone to come to the rescue. You can shop around by phone and find out if certain items are still available and what they cost. And for planning holiday get-togethers, there's no faster, easier way than doing it by phone. Holidays and every day, there's just no end to your telephone's usefulness.

NEWLY-DESIGNED
equipment is being used to bring telephone service more quickly to fast-growing sections of town. Called Cable Concentrator, it lets as few as 16 pairs of telephone cable wires do the work of 58. In a new and heavily built-up area, where the Cable Concentrator is most useful, it means more phones can be installed without waiting for additional lines to be built. And it means more people there can have single or two-party lines. The development of these concentrators is one more milestone in Michigan Bell's continuing program to bring you more and better phone service.

★ Food Bargain

Dear Friend:

If you were offered 200 pounds of good staple groceries for every dollar you wished to spend and that in unlimited quantity; you would either start buying or you would dismiss the offer as too preposterous to be true.

It must be the latter because, I don't think that many in this general area are taking advantage of this bargain. It may be also that most of us do not realize our personal responsibilities toward ourselves or our neighbors.

Most of us know by now that our immediate neighbors are now living all around this small world of ours and many of us are becoming increasingly aware of the fact our own welfare in the future may depend on how much our neighbors, in other parts of the world, respect and love us. We have a wonderful opportunity right now to show our Christian love and respect for them.

This opportunity comes to us through CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program). Catholic and Protestant were united in this effort a few years ago and I hope they still are. Our Government will supply 200 pounds of good staple food from our Agricultural surplus stockpile for every dollar contributed for this foreign relief through this program.

We certainly should want to participate in this just because we profess to be Christians. But I certainly can also see some real economic savings to ourselves in this thing. We are all helping to pay a tremendous storage bill for these surpluses through our taxes. I have heard those fantastic figures which I believe run into millions of dollars per day alone. I, for one, wish that I could be relieved of some of those taxes. You certainly do also.

Farmers should be particularly interested because in addition to paying those taxes, markets for their produce can hardly rise very much as long as these commodities are in storage to suppress those markets.

I am under the impression that the chief activity in behalf of this program is a Thanksgiving offering lifted for this cause at the Thanksgiving services in our general area. Those offerings have been rather meager during the past few years. Maybe many of us have not been aware of tremendous potential for good for others as well as for ourselves in the past. There too, many do not attend church on Thanksgiving Day.

Let's start all over again right now and run it into several thousands of dollars. It might even be more important than building satellites and missiles. I imagine that most private or pastors would still be glad to accept your money and put it into this investment for you. I am also sure that the Secretary of the Washtenaw Council of Churches, Ann Arbor, would be willing to act as your broker. If you cannot give it to a pastor of a church, send it to her. If we hurry maybe some of it might still be used to give some Christmas joy to someone who may never have known what a full stomach feels like. I believe that CARE provides you with a similar opportunity.

Let us buy as much happiness for ourselves, other American taxpayers, our Farmers and our Neighbors. It might influence favorably the attitude of peoples of other lands if we showed a willingness to share our surpluses with them instead of letting them rot in storage.

Don't wait for an organized campaign. Do it spontaneously as an individual. Be as generous as possible, but remember that any small contributions are multiplied many fold by our Government.

I believe that most people in this area are intelligent enough to be practical, Christian enough to feel their responsibility and prosperous enough to share. If any results are forthcoming; no one should derive any credit; consequently I am signing this.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. X
