Tourist Council Issues Ski Map

A revised edition of a state-wide ski map and winter sports guide has been released by the Michigan Tourist Council.

Some 50 thousand copies will be distributed throughout Michigan and the Midwest during the season, according to Robert J. Furlong, Council executive secretary.

Main feature of the folder is a 17x22 inch map which pinpoints locations of the 64 winter sports areas and a listing of facilities offered by each. Fourteen of the areas are in the Upper Peninsula, 23 in west Michigan, 21 in east Michigan and six in the southeast section of the state. Nine of the winter sports centers are new this year.

Included in the Council's advertising campaign is sponsorship of the Bob Reynolds "Late Sports Report" radio program from Detroit as well as 24 one-minute radio announcements out of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Chicago.

Single copies or quantity supplies of the Michigan winter sports map-guide are available free of charge from the Tourist Council, Lansing, 20.

World War II Vets Urged To Convert Term Insurance

World War II veterans holding term GI life insurance might do well to ponder the experience of nearly 20,000 veterans of World War I who didn't convert their term policies to permanent GI insurance.

That's the advice of Lloyd H. Jameson, manager of the Veterans Administration office in Detroit. Term GI insurance, he explained, must be renewed every five years at an increasingly higher premium rate.

Having carried their term GI policies through as many as seven renewals, these 20,000 World War I veterans now face an almost insoluble problem, Jameson said.

Averaging 62 years of age, with their earnings generally declining, they are finding the renewal cost of their term policies so high that many of them are being forced to drop their GI insurance. Even those who can afford to renew currently may not be able to do so in another five years, Jameson pointed out.

He said that World War II veterans can avoid the dilemma of their older comrades by converting to permanent GI insurance. The initial cost of permanent insurance is higher than term, but the premium rates do not increase.

In addition, Jameson explained, permanent GI insurance has a cash surrender, extended insurance, paid up insurance, and loan value. Term insurance has none of these.

Information about conversion of GI insurance policies is available at the VA office in Detroit.

Periodic Booster Shots Needed for Disease Protection

Lansing—Immunizations and vaccinations are capable of holding communicable diseases in check but they aren't capable of eliminating them completely, according to Dr. F. S. Leeder, head of communicable disease control for the Michigan Department of Health.

"Disease flareups such as the current diphtheria outbreak in Detroit should remind all of us of two vital facts about immunity," Dr. Leeder said. "They are:

"First, the general availability of vaccines and the high level of immunity in Michigan will not protect us personally unless each of us is vaccinated.

"Second, once we become vaccinated we must restore and reinforce our immunity with periodic booster shots. For continuous protection against diphtheria, boosters should be administered every five years."

Dr. Leeder explained that persons who have little or no immunity against diphtheria are jeopardizing their health and lives because diphtheria can always be brought into Michigan from other states.

In Michigan, Dr. Leeder said, the people most vulnerable to diphtheria are those between the ages of 18 and 35. Persons up to 19 usually are still protected by immunizations received in childhood. Persons over 35 probably acquired life-long immunity by being exposed to the disease during the high incidence era before diphtheria was brought under control in the early 1920's.

"In case you have any doubts about your protection," Dr. Leeder suggested, "see your physician to have your immunity checked and brought up to date if necessary. And while you're in his office," he continued, "you can also receive a tetanus booster if you haven't had a tetanus shot in the last five years. The two boosters can be given to you in just one injection. And in the other arm you can receive a polio shot if you need one."

Through Dec. 10, a total of 41 cases of diphtheria had been reported this year to the Michigan Department of Health, including 35 in Detroit, two in Lenawee county, one in Genesee county, and two in St. Clair county. During the same period of 1966, Michigan recorded 187 diphtheria cases.

STRONGER FLU VACCINE

Dr. Leroy E. Burney, U. S. Surgeon-General, has announced a more powerful vaccine against the Asian flu should be ready for release by the last of November. The present vaccine produces antibodies to give some protection against the virus to 81 per cent of the people vaccinated, the doctor said, but by doubling the potency, the number which it produces antibodies will increase up to 95 per cent.

Winter Makes Official Debut Saturday, Dec. 21

Ann Arbor—If you long for the sultry days of summer, the place for you right now is the southern hemisphere, says a University of Michigan astronomer.

Official beginning of winter in the northern hemisphere comes at 9:49 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 21, according to Prof. Hazel M. Losh of the U-M Department of Astronomy. This is the time of the sun's turning point, or solstice, when it reaches the most southerly point in its apparent yearly journey around the earth.

"On that day," she says, "the sun will swing its shortest daily arc across our southern sky, and we in the northern hemisphere will have our shortest day, about nine hours, and longest night, around 15 hours. After this time, the sun will start its long trek north again, continuing to lengthen days and shorten nights until our longest days of June.

"Conversely, in the southern hemisphere the summer season will be starting at the same instant as our winter, for the seasons are reversed in the two halves of the globe."

Contrary to common beliefs, the seasons do not depend primarily upon the variation of the earth's distance from the sun, but rather on the 23½ degree tilt of the earth's axis. During the winter, the earth's north pole is tipped away from the sun. We have our colder weather because the sun is shining at a more oblique angle in the northern hemisphere, Professor Losh explains.

On the other hand, the south pole is turned 23½ degrees toward the sun, and as a result the southern hemisphere is getting its greatest heat of the year. "However," she continues, "it's in the north benefit by the fact that at this time of year the earth is about three million miles closer to the sun than during our summer. This tends to make our winter a little milder and the southern summer a little hotter."

You might expect that the cold weather would come with the winter solstice, when the number of sunlight hours is least and intensity of sunlight a minimum. But this is not the case, for the peak of the season usually comes from four to six weeks later at a time known as the "lag of seasons," Professor Losh continues.

For a period after Dec. 21, the northern hemisphere will lose more heat at night than can be replaced by the sun during the shorter-than-average days, and the temperature will continue to drop. Although the sun's altitude and duration of sunshine increase after Dec. 21, it is not until February that the rate of heating overtakes the rate of cooling, due to the conservation of the earth's heat by its atmospheric blanket.

Every Guilty Person Expected To Have Some Kind of Excuse

Grand Rapids—Needless to say, all officers rather expect an excuse of some sort when they find someone committing an infraction of the law.

Most excuses fall into a general pattern, such as: "I'm sorry, officer, but I really didn't know that was illegal, etc." This year, however, two Conservation Department officers ran into a new one. While on a boat patrol, officer Paul Durham of Rockford checked a boat with three fishermen aboard. One of the anglers looked "chilly" at Durham, then said:

"Say, believe I know you. Aren't you officer Barham or Durham or something like that?"

"Yes," the officer replied, "I'm Paul Durham."

"Well, don't you recognize me?" asked the fisherman. "You gave me a ticket here a few years ago. You said I was fishing with three lines, but I really wasn't. You see, I had all my teeth pulled the day before and my teeth were so sore I didn't feel like arguing with you. But I want to tell you now that I really wasn't fishing with that third line."

Durham points out that the angler, who didn't want to argue, had pleaded guilty.

Dec. 20—Christmas vacation begins about 4:30 p.m.
Dec. 20—Dundee plays here, two games.
Jan. 6—School resumes.

The senior high physical education classes have been practicing basketball. The girls have been learning the various rules of the game and are doing very well. At the last meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association on Nov. 27 all members interested in basketball signed up to try out for the team. The first two practices were to allow Mrs. Thurston to observe the abilities of the girls. All practices will be held Mondays from 7 to 8 o'clock. Varsity forwards will be Lynn McMannis, Geri Risher, Kay Vogel, Des Scripser, Angie Murphy, Carol Cameron, Judy Speer, Donna Moore, Sue Grossman; guards will be Carol DeMint, Nancy Irwin, Jan Bernath, Sandra Yarnes, Nancy Mayer, Carol Redman, Tessie Matthews, Carol Reith, Anita Elsmann; managers will be Barbara Balmer and Alice Klink. Junior varsity will include forwards Sue Steger, Des Schmitz, Lynn Lippert, Linda Burghard, Alice Webb, Sharon Smyser, Mary Jane Harris, Marsha Young; guards Irene Wenk, Sue Elsenbecker, Diane Garry, Carol Young, Diane Holmes, Sandra Abol, Barbara Maynard; managers Donna Sherman and Mary Ann Sorenson.

The basketball schedule is not yet completed because there is a possibility that other schools will be interested in having a "B" team compete as well as a first team. The annual Christmas party was planned for Dec. 18. A grab bag was decorated by Shirley Dyer and Peggy Miller for a 50-cent to 75-cent gift by and for each member present. South Lyon's GAA will come to Chelsea some Tuesday night in February for an exchange fun night. Mom's Night for the varsity basketball team is planned for Feb. 21. It is the last game of the season and will be played with Roosevelt. The mothers of the players will be honored at half-time.

Christmas season is here; art students are getting to the spirit of things by making Christmas cards. At the same time they are experimenting with linoleum block prints and spatter paints.

The Latin club has joined both the National Junior Classical League and the state chapter. As their taffy sale came to a close the club announced a profit of approximately $35 with which the club will purchase their award pins, and $20 was sent to the "Feed a Family" program.

Girls of the Future Homemakers of America went shopping Monday Dec. 16 for their supplies. The following day they made cookies during fifth and sixth hours to take to the Methodist Home and to the Convalescent Home. They had planned a Christmas party but could find no free evenings, so they had to cancel the party. The homemaker classes have had a practice teacher, Miss Maxwell, who has been working with Miss Potter for several weeks. She finishes Dec. 20 and will not return after Christmas.

A check for $5.5 million for the state primary school fund evokes a pleased smile from Lynn A. Barlett, state superintendent of public instruction. Largest single payment ever made to the fund, it represents one-half of the 1957 payment from the Michigan Bell Telephone Company. Louis A. Nims, state revenue commissioner, (center) received the check from Herbert F. Lange (right) vice president and treasurer of Michigan Bell.

Day and evening choirs met for extra practices recently for their Christmas concert Dec. 17. Shirley Dyer, Ann Schmunk, Byron Pearson and Lavere Carr sang a quartet number, "While Shepherds Watched," with the choir. Also, Lana Cintlille, Shirley Dyer, Marilyn Pajot and Grace Penhallogan sang a quartet number, "Mary's Lullaby," of which Grace Penhallogan sang one verse.

The band also participated, playing "Oh Holy Night" to accompany the evening choir.

All members of the junior high and senior high bands have been assigned a solo to play to the rest of the band as a demonstration of the mastery of their instrument.

The junior high choruses also sang in the concert. The seventh grade sang "Silent Night" and "Rise Up, Shepherd, and Follow," and the eighth grade sang "Come, Little Children," and they both sang "The Creation" and "The Children's Prayer."

The choir worked hard on their "formal" dance "The Jack Frost Ball" on Dec. 14. Candidates for king were Fred Wenk, senior; Pat Merkel, junior; sophomore, Jack Patrick; and freshman, Homer Nixon; and Robin Wright, choir candidate. The student body voted for the king during the study hall of Tuesday, Dec. 10, but no announcement was made until the night of the party.

The Camera club announced the membership of four additional people, Roger Herman, Ronald Walter, Stanley Dyer, and Tom Dunlap. The school camera is available for all members. They hope soon to learn how to adjust the "f" setting on a camera.

Junior High Library club went to the Public Library Friday, Dec. 13 to find out just how to go about doing things in a library.

Student Council is sponsoring a contest for the collection of canned goods for the needy families at Christmas. The class donating the largest amount of canned goods will receive a $5 prize. A box will be placed in each home room for the collection of the canned goods.

Mr. Phillip Smith plans to use Christmas vacation to visit his wife's family and to gather strength for the New Year. Mrs. Pappendorf plans to stay home. Mr. Sanborn plans to rest after the eight concerts he worked on before Christmas. Miss Maxon will be in Traverse City with her parents. Miss Potter will visit friends in Iowa, Texas, and Arkansas. Mr. and Mrs. LaGoe will visit friends in Mr. Pleasant and Traverse City, while Mr. Conklin will get only as far as Milan and Saline.

Mrs. Benedot said "I'll be lucky to get to my sister's at Cavanaugh Lake." Mr. Al Smith will take his family to Toledo and Norwalk in Ohio. Mr. Grove plans to visit his parents in Indiana. Mr. Prinzing plans to make test sheets and work on bookcases, and to "entertain in-laws."

In English the ninth grade is reviewing capitalization of letters. In biology they are studying about bacteria.

In civics the class is discussing "Protecting Life and Property."

The sophomores held a class meeting Friday, Dec. 6. The purpose of this was to choose their candidate for king of the "Jack Frost Ball." Jack Patrick was elected to represent the sophomore class.

All of the five candidates are to be present at the dance.

The seniors held a class meeting, Dec. 12, in which they discussed their financial difficulties. The problem boils down to the fact that they are not making enough money. Therefore, they ended the meeting by discussing new money-making projects. Good luck, seniors!

7th GRADE LIBRARIANS VISIT LOCAL LIBRARY

Members of the 7th grade library club visited the Chelsea Public Library on Friday afternoon, Dec. 13, 1957 from 1:30 until 2 o'clock. Mrs. Lewis Bernath, librarian, pointed out the location of the juvenile books which are arranged by subject groups in the children's alcove. She called attention to how magazine articles on current topics such as Asian fire were indexed in the Abridged Reader's Guide because 7th graders are writing papers.

The back issues of The Chelsea Standard were of interest to the boys and girls as they saw Christmas advertisements of the 1880's and recognized many names of the older families in Chelsea. Some students tried to find the announcement of their births. The students were surprised to learn that the books in the Memorial Collection may be taken out for home reading.

Some of the boys and girls took out library cards for the first time; others borrowed books on their regular cards. While some junior librarians were browsing among the books, others were reading the local paper, using the Vues-masters to enjoy Christmas pictures, assembling a geography map puzzle of the United States and sampling other pictorial books.

Margie Bauer is president of the 7th grade library club.

TROOP 68—Girl Scouts of Troop 68 changed their plans and did not go caroling as announced. They planned their Christmas party to take place after school yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ted Balmer.

TROOP 71—Girl Scouts of Troop 71 met Monday afternoon at the Municipal building. Refreshments of cookies and ice cream were served. Christmas gifts were exchanged between the scouts. Some of the girls addressed March of Dimes letters while others worked on favors for the party.

The seniors held a class meeting, Dec. 12, in which they discussed their financial difficulties. The problem boils down to the fact that they are not making enough money. Therefore, they ended the meeting by discussing new money-making projects. Good luck, seniors!

NEWEST LANDMARKS on the Lake Erie

shore near Monroe are the dome-shaped steel reactor building of the Enrico Fermi Atomic Power Plant and the adjacent water-tower. At an open house in October the public viewed the first completed structures of Michigan's first atomic-electric generating station. The great steel capsule which will contain the reactor and all nuclear components measures 120 feet from its crown to its base 50 feet below ground. The welded steel dome, pressure-tested to assure airtightness and strength, is the outermost of a series of protective shields which, together with positive automatic controls, guarantee the safety both of plant personnel and the public. Hours of the open house, sponsored by Power Reactor Development Company and Detroit Edison, will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. next Saturday and Sunday. The plant site is near the end of Pointe aux Peaux Road, which runs east from M-56 (the old Dixie Highway) between Rockwood and Monroe.

ISLAND DISAPPEARING—Rio De Janeiro, Trinidad 600 miles from Rio De Janeiro, is slowly disappearing, according to Dr. Alphonse Richard Hoge of the Butanta Institute. The island, about fifty miles square, was formed ages ago in a volcanic upheaval. The molten lava cooled and became rock, which is now losing its resistance and the sea is making dangerous inroads.

PEACH OF A PRIZE—Silver Springs, Md.—Sydney Mendelsohn ordered some fruit trees five years ago from an Illinois firm which was later convicted of mail fraud. The trees—about 8 inches tall—were marked plum, apricot, pear, cherry and apple. The plum seedling died and the apple tree was barren. But the apricot tree grew and this year Mendelsohn's 9-year-old son picked several and won first prize at the Montgomery County Fair with them. They were beautiful peaches—not apricots.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula is experiencing a major revival brought about by building of the Mackinac Straits bridge which links the vast area with the Lower Peninsula for the first time. According to figures furnished to the Michigan Economic Development Department, a $200,000,000 building boom is taking place in the Upper Peninsula.

State's Deer Kill Estimated To Be Higher Than 1956

Lansing—Hunters bagged some 30,000 deer in northern Michigan during recently completed regular and special firearm seasons, according to statistical estimates by Conservation Department game specialists.

The total includes 61,800 bucks—a six per cent increase over last year's buck kill.

Some 18,400 antlerless deer were bagged by 59,600 permit holders during special seasons in food shortage and crop damage areas.

The over-all take of 80,200 deer was up 13 per cent over last year when hunters bagged 69,400 bucks and some 18,050 antlerless deer.

Biggest increase in the buck kill was recorded in the northern lower peninsula where hunters took some 43,100 legal bucks—a 26 per cent increase over last year's tally of 34,240.

Meanwhile, success dipped in the Upper Peninsula as hunters bagged an estimated 16,700 bucks—about 23 per cent below the 1956 figure of 21,720 bucks—despite a 15-20 per cent increase in U. P. hunting pressure this year.

Some of this decrease in the Upper Peninsula is thought to be the result of poor hunting weather, poor starvations losses and reduced deer production in some areas.

Preliminary estimates of the kill of antlerless deer are optimistic, with some 18,400 deer bagged during concurrent and post seasons in designated areas. The goal for special seasons was 17,700 antlerless deer.

In the Upper Peninsula, special season hunters took 1,900 deer, somewhat short of the goal of 2,310. Meanwhile, some 16,500 deer were taken during special seasons in the northern lower peninsula—compared with a goal of 15,300.

This statistical estimate of the deer kill is based on a count of whitetails on cars at selected highway points throughout the state and at biological checking stations.

Post card polls of hunters will provide more exact information during the next few months.

Farmers Urged To Check Hens for Fowlpox Infection

Some of the state's laying flocks are being troubled with fowlpox, according to Dr. William Matthey, poultry disease specialist at Michigan State University.

Matthey explains that fowlpox is a viral disease that is similar to smallpox of man.

It may show up as scabby spots on the comb and wattles, or as so-called "wet pox" in the mouth and eyes. Dr. Matthey says. It is rarely fatal but egg production from infected birds goes down.

Some infections are more mild and birds may be sick for only a few days. Other infections can be severe and it may take birds a month or so to get back into production.

Fowlpox is readily prevented by vaccination. But because the disease can be confused with other difficulties, it's best to have sick birds checked by a veterinarian. He can prescribe the specific treatment.

THANK YOU!

Many thanks to each and every one for their sympathetic and kind thoughts expressed by means of visits, cards, flowers and telephone messages while I was a patient at St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor. They were all swell and a big help over the rough spots.

Stretching five miles across the Straits of Mackinac, Michigan's new $100,000,000 Mackinac bridge is the world's largest. It measures 8,471 feet between anchorages, surpassing the previous record of 7,250 feet set by the Golden Gate bridge.

NEWS FROM PARIS:

'Les Halles,' Paris Market Place Interests Everyone

By Norman Lindhurst (Foreign Correspondent)

Paris—"Les Halles" has been called the "belly" of Paris. Some see it as the largest of shopping centers, a supermarket to end all supermarkets.

Invariably, it is termed the world's most unromantic business enterprise, an excellent example of how to keep the price spiral on the rise.

Any way you look at it, "Les Halles," the great market place, which feeds not only Paris, but most of the remainder of France, is one of the awesome and exotic features of the capital.

"Les Halles" covers 10 acres in the middle of the city. Its mountains of food—every kind from every province and several overseas territories—overflow crooked, narrow streets leading into the huge glass-and-iron market sheds.

This vast area is cold and silent all through the day. It isn't until dusk, when the rest of Paris is going home, that activity begins.

That's when huge trucks drive down the Rue de Rivoli, past the Louvre, checking traffic, creating a rush-hour chaos which has been a topic of conversation in Paris for the past 20 years.

That was when the last of the great pavilions was erected. The first was started in 1880 by order of Napoleon III, but even at that date there was agitation to move the market to a less congested district to avoid future bottlenecks.

It is not explained why the last of the 12 shelters, covering a total of 30,000 square feet, was built in 1939, when Paris traffic already was confused.

Nor is anyone able to satisfactorily answer this question: Why must vegetables grown in the Rhone Valley, be shipped to downtown Paris, handled by a half-dozen middlemen, then returned to the Rhone Valley before they are finally consumed by the farmers who grew them?

Studies have shown that a head of lettuce may cost the farmer 10 times the expense of growing it.

Although nearly everyone has something to say for or against the market, not one does much about it, and it looks as though it is here to stay.

Legend says Louis the Fat granted fishmongers licenses to sell to the right bank of the River Seine in 1134.

Fifty years later, two stone buildings were put up to accommodate other food peddlers. This was the origin of "Les Halles" (the halls), the French reference to a covered market place.

As Paris grew, the market expanded and evidence of some of the old stone buildings still may be seen.

These are the little food shops and creameries, cafes, and restaurants located beyond the pavilions.

They are part of the market activity which involves 6,000 persons and about 5,000 tons of food each night except Monday.

Little has changed since the market first was established. Today's vegetable trucks, of course, aren't much the same as the flimsy wagons of former days (although there still are push carts), and power lifts which speed the unloading of cauliflower have also been added to the melange which is "Les Halles."

Also of fairly recent origin are the foreign-speaking visitors who crowd into the onion-soup restaurants after midnight.

But for the most part, the market lives by the same traditions it did 500 years ago. It is one of the trademarks of Paris.

(To Be Continued)

Vernal Alfalfa Seed Prices Higher With Short Supply

Michigan farmers can expect to write bigger checks for Vernal alfalfa seed. Certified seed supplies are about one-third less than earlier expected.

But even with the increased cost, Leyton Nelson, farm-crops specialist at Michigan State University, feels Vernal is still a good buy.

Nelson says that research tests show that Vernal is a bargain even if it costs $10 a bushel more than certified Ranger. Yield tests show Vernal can out-yield Ranger by one-half ton hay per acre a year.

Vernal is a leafy, dark green, fine-stemmed plant that is winter hardy and is more resistant to leaf spot than is Ranger.

Because Vernal is higher yielding and a little more expensive, Nelson recommends that farmers keep for at least three years.

Nelson also urges Michigan farmers to reserve their seed supplies for next spring right away. He feels the local dealer is the best place to order the seeds.

Wage Contracts Best Arranged by Parties Involved

East Lansing—Management and labor must be more self-reliant in settling their own problems and differences without government intervention, an outstanding industrial relations authority stated at Michigan State University.

Failure to do so, said Dr. Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the National Wage Stabilization Board during the Korean War and now a professor of law and labor arbitrator, said: "There is a greater degree of legislative intervention today than at any time since 1932, and the likelihood of increased intervention."

The roll-call of men in the field of ophthalmology—the science of vision—is filled with the names of well-known historical figures. The roll includes Leonardo da Vinci, Florentine painter, sculptor, architect and engineer, who, about 1508, recorded a theory of contact lenses; Roger Bacon, 13th century English philosopher, statesman and author, who made history's first mention of the employment of lenses as a means of assisting sight; and Ben Franklin, American philosopher and statesman, who invented (for his own use) bifocal lenses about 1760. Perhaps the forerunner of all was Alhazen, an Arabian astronomer, who worked out the principles of optics in the 11th century.

Atomic Wonders To Come Greater Than Anything Yet

East Lansing—The first 15 years of the atomic age will be far overshadowed by developments which lie ahead, predicts a leading Michigan State University scientist who was in on some of the early work.

The atomic age was born officially 15 years ago this month with the first controlled release of energy from the nucleus of the atom.

The first self-contained chain reaction was achieved by a team of top scientists working in a laboratory fashioned in a squash court beneath the seats of the University of Chicago stadium.

Dr. Laurence L. Quill, now head of the chemistry department at MSU, joined the project at a later date. He ranks the utilization of nuclear power with "the top discoveries of all time."

Dr. Quill worked with the nuclear project's information division where information and findings were correlated and dispatched. He recalls that an elaborate code system was used so that many persons working on phases of the project did not know the exact nature of the goal.

"We did not go from here depends on our attitudes," Dr. Quill asserted. "One can hardly visualize the destruction that may result if the utilization of nuclear power is left in the hands of a godless, aggressor group."

On the other hand, Dr. Quill pointed out "sober, clear-thinking" scientists face "unlimited possibilities" in nuclear power, and are "fully aware of their place in human society."

Dampness in Barn Is Signal of Poor Ventilation

Moisture beads hanging on the ceiling of a barn means the ventilating system isn't doing its job, says Merle Bismay, agricultural engineer at Michigan State University.

Excess moisture not only contributes to poor health of livestock housed in the barn, but it shortens the life of the building and makes it an uncomfortable place to work.

Farmers depend on open windows and doors for fresh air circulation. But Bismay feels this is not good enough. Sudden drops in temperature or shifts in wind direction may cause cold, dangerous drafts in the barn.

For best barn ventilation, Bismay recommends a passive system that includes (1) reasonably tight and well insulated walls, (2) fresh air intakes and (3) exhaust fans on the leeward side of the building so fans won't have to buck prevailing winds.

If you don't have a positive system, Bismay suggests you make slots in haymow floor where it meets barn wall on the side opposite the fans. If construction prevents slots, a series of one and a half inch holes in the mow floor close to the wall will work. Fix now so hay won't block air movement.

Such a system allows tempered air to be drawn from the mow into the barn so it can pick up moisture before it is exhausted by the fans. Fans should be big enough to move 100 cubic feet of air per minute for each 1,000 pounds of livestock housed in the barn.

Spending Alone Won't Buy Scientists, Says Philosopher, Educator

East Lansing—A crash program of spending in the field of science is not the answer to America's lag in scientific development, says Dr. Ernest O. Melby, distinguished visiting professor at Michigan State University.

"There are some things we can't buy," declared Dr. Melby, a noted philosopher, author and educator. "We can't buy brains and we can't buy a satellite scientist or physicist. The only way to get a physicist is to start with a child and state with him in terms of education." America, he added, has put more emphasis on practical progress than on the theoretical scientist and his brains.

"In our culture we have failed to respect learning," he said.

THE LETTER BOX

To the Citizens of Chelsea: Why doesn't Chelsea have a hospital?

I don't know if there has been much discussion on this topic or not, but I think some should be generated. As a community, we are large enough to support such an institution. Certainly, we are close to Ann Arbor and two, fine, large hospitals, but there is still a definite place for the small hospital and its more personal approach. Our doctors would be better able to serve us with more equipment at their command.

I, and I'm sure many more like me, would like to see something constructive done toward a hospital in Chelsea. If some of Chelsea's civic-minded groups would take this in hand, some progress would soon be made.

With our ever-expanding population, it will become increasingly difficult to get a doctor in an emergency. A hospital would have a doctor on call at all times and nurses on duty for immediate first aid.

We will soon be losing one of our doctors, whom many people in Chelsea have come to respect as an excellent doctor and very thoughtful man. We may have been able to keep him in Chelsea if we would have had the facilities a doctor of his potential would like to have available. It will probably become more and more difficult to keep a young doctor's interest without hospital facilities.

Let's do something about this now!

Sputniks May Aid Us by Spurring Science Education

East Lansing—Some "benefit" for America from the launching of Sputniks I and II is seen by an expert on the Soviet Union, Dr. Alfred G. Meyer of Michigan State University.

"The thought that the country we have always considered backward might be beating our American scientists is a healthy shock," said the MSU political scientist.

"The shock," he added, "is a wakening in American policy makers more respect for learning and the sciences. The Soviet educational system is geared to bringing out the latent talent in all the population and we have known for some time that the Russians have been producing more and better engineers than we are."

The higher the grade average in Russia, the more scholarship money the student gets, Dr. Meyer stated.

The MSU political scientist has made an extensive study of the Soviet Union and is author of the books "Leninism" and "Marxism" published by the Harvard University Press.

Of the Russian political situation and the recent downgrading of Defense Minister Zhukov, Dr. Meyer said: "The question of who is going to run the Soviet Union is relatively unimportant. Soviet policies depend far less on who makes them than on the groups he may represent, the problems faced by such groups and Soviet society as a whole."

The struggle for power in Russia, Dr. Meyer opines, is also a struggle against power. And with scant information, self-styled "experts" on Russia have done too much irresponsible speculation, he added.

NEWS & HOLLYWOOD

Plans for a rather unusual film have been announced by Auslander Productions—a new company formed by Leland and Gloria Auslander. The picture is titled "Unattached" and will be the life story of Olympic diving champion, Victoria Manalo Draves, known in sports as Vicki Draves. The film will utilize no studio facilities, but will be shot entirely on location.

Metro has announced that Elizabeth Taylor will definitely star in its film adaptation of "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" the Tennessee Williams play. It will be before the cameras shortly after the first of the year.

It seems that Los Angeles is to be the first city in which pay-to-see home television will go on "big time." It is expected that, come next April, the 5,000,000 people of this third largest American city will record the verdict on this vehicle on a major scale. The verdict is awaited with interest by the TV industry and the public at large.

While Shirley Temple has agreed to come back on only a very limited scale, it is said her new reactivated dolls are creating a new fortune for her.

Judy Canova recently celebrated another birthday by recording an album with Brother Zeke and Sister Ann, to follow her "Pigtails in H-F-I." Not many people remember it, but the Canovas were a trio about 20 years ago and started with the Paul Whiteman Band.

Having completed his Universal International contract, George Nader was off to London to star in "Nowhere To Go." After this, he goes to Italy to do a second picture.

It is said that David Selznick is making plans to do "Gone With the Wind" as a spectacle and operetta on Broadway and has already talked to Dimitri Tiomkin about writing a musical score. It would run for four hours, with a break for dinner. Sounds interesting!

Cesare Danova, brought to this country from Italy as a possible star of "Ben Hur," is being considered for "Green Mansions" opposite Audrey Hepburn. Danova, by the way, didn't get the "Ben Hur" role.

The film adaptation of Wm. Owen Wheeler's novel, "Cast a Long Shadow," will star Audie Murphy. It's a story of pioneer settlers fighting for their land against eastern syndicates in the late 19th century.

The screen rights to the W. R. Burnett novel, "Pale Moon," have been acquired by Howard Hughes as a vehicle for Jane Russell.

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 1

Act Now To Trim Your Federal Income Tax Bill

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

You still have time—but not much time—to do a little year-end tax planning and assure yourself of the best possible break when you file your tax return next April.

Millions of high, low and middle income taxpayers, regarding their financial affairs between now and the first of the year can pay off handsomely when the tax collector calls next spring. Have already begun to establish those extra deductions and special exemptions that will reduce their tax bills.

You can do this too, but you must act no later than December 31.

To alert you to the tax-saving steps you may be able to take before the end of the year, this newspaper is printing a series of articles prepared with the help of the national and state organizations of certified public accountants. These articles—if you keep them and follow their advice—can save you money.

Evaluate Income Prospects

If you are like most individual taxpayers, your goal at this time should be to level out income for this year and next year. Needless to say, careless bunching of income in either year can be costly. The sharp bite of today's progressive tax rates—which you can assume will be as high or possibly only slightly less in 1958—makes it much better to have an income of $8,000 in each of two years, rather than $6,000 in one and $10,000 in the other.

Taxpayers who are in danger of being whipsawed from one year to the next because of wide fluctuations in their 1957 and 1958 income should act before December 31 to try to average out their taxable earnings. This can be done by careful shifting of income and deductions from one year to the next.

How to Shift Income

For example, if your two-year income estimate shows that your income for this year will be significantly higher than next year's, you should take immediate steps to throw as much income as possible from 1957 into 1958. At the same time you should speed up the payment of all expenses that can be deducted on your 1957 return. By concentrating deductions in the higher year and switching income to the lower year, you will keep your taxes for both years in the lowest possible tax bracket.

Should you be faced with the more desirable problem of a sizeable increase in your 1958 income, reverse this procedure—delay expenses and speed up income if you can.

Timing income and deductions to gain a tax advantage is not too difficult for the millions of taxpayers who file returns on the basis of cash receipts and cash disbursements. "Cash basis" business and professional men can shift income by simply delaying or speeding up the collection of accounts receivable near the end of the year. Salesmen and contractors can do the same thing by extending or closing deals that may be pending in November or December.

Farmers who operate on a cash basis can accelerate or postpone income by proper timing of the sales of their crops or livestock. While their income will be taxable in the year each is received, the cost of raising crops or cattle are deductible for the year in which the costs were paid.

Special Income Situations

There are special situations in which it can be advantageous to bunch income in a single tax year. For example, a husband and wife can file a joint return to gain the benefits of income-splitting. Should one of them die, the survivor may file a joint return for the year in which the spouse died and also for the succeeding years under certain conditions.

Widow or widower may profit by throwing more income into this year and less into next if his or her spouse died in 1955, since the privilege of filing a joint return will be lost in all cases in 1958.

If you are planning to be married in 1958, remember that the income-splitting privileges you gain will last like a rain cloud. You will lose them if you are single in 1958. If you are single, assuming that you take the standard deduction and claim only exemptions for you and your dependents, you can consider postponing income from 1957 to 1958, while accelerating deductions from 1958 to 1957.

Architects Can Improve Mass Housing

Ann Arbor—"Mass production techniques applied to building construction is one of the major problems confronting domestic architecture today," states Prof. George B. Brigham, Jr., of the University of Michigan College of Architecture and Design.

Professor Brigham was interviewed recently by a student for The Michigan Journalist, laboratory of the U-M Department of Journalism.

"The American Institute of Architects is criticizing architects for not contributing more to the mass production of housing and condemning the builders who are content with inferior housing," he says.

"If the builder and architect would work together to mass produce good housing and spread the cost over 1,000 houses, they would produce houses more ideally suited to the needs of the people."

Professor Brigham observes that although at present there are three or four big names popularizing modern architecture, the great progress will be made by the majority of architects as a group. "The new and old men graduated from universities today and men who have been trained since the war will revolutionize architecture," he declares.

Professor Brigham says the basic concept of modern architecture is taking the needs of today and utilizing the present techniques, materials, and forms to satisfy those needs. He foresees this concept being carried on to a greater extent in the future. He asserts that people who accuse modern architecture of being "washed up" are either misinformed or prejudiced.

He points out that some people think that a change in the concept of modern architecture occurs when a different shape is used in building. When this is done, he explains, it is to satisfy the demands of a different environment and different space requirements. The basic concept of modern architecture remains the same regardless of form.

SCHOOL FUNDS.

Federal aid for school construction, turned down twice by Congress in the last two years, has been quietly ticketed for a House committee plenary at the coming session of Congress. Politics, school-segregation issue and Democratic irritation with President Eisenhower's leadership in last session's school-aid battle were all factors contributing to the decision, it is said.

Vets Training on GI Bill Near 1956 Record Enrollment

Fall enrollments of veterans training under the Korean GI Bill in Michigan appear to be only slightly less than the all-time record established last fall, according to preliminary reports received by the Veterans Administration Detroit regional office.

On Nov. 1 with complete enrollment figures still not in—the total had passed 24,431. This is only 4.8 per cent under the 25,654 veteran-trainees reported on Nov. 1 a year ago.

Last year, after VA had completed Michigan GI enrollment figures, the complete fall total was above 26,500. Once the regional office receives all its reports this year, the 1957 figure will not be far behind. Lloyd H. Jameson, manager, predicted.

Based on figures VA has already received, Michigan veterans' enrollments in colleges and universities, as well as in schools below the college level, seem to be running almost neck-and-neck with last year.

On Nov. 1, more than 18,228 Korea veterans were reported in college—only 1.8 per cent below the 18,628 total of a year ago. At the below-college level, the gap is greater—4,975 this year, against 6,487 last year, a 2.5 per cent decline.

However, GI enrollments in on-the-job training have been dropping off more rapidly over the past year, Jameson said. The job training total for Nov. 1 was under 755—down 36.6 per cent below last year's figure of more than 1,187. The GI farm training total had increased to 405—11.3 per cent over the 364 reported last year at this time.

The Korean GI Bill has been in operation five years. It doesn't come to an end until 1965.

Don't Mar Holiday With Auto Accident

Noting the stepped-up tempo of Christmas shopping activity, the Chelsea Police Department today cautioned local drivers against the possibility of having their holiday plans shattered by an unexpected traffic accident.

Safety authorities are aware that crowds in shopping areas create traffic difficulties, and the uncertainty of weather conditions during the Christmas shopping season adds to the hazards which made it one of the most dangerous times of the year from the standpoint of traffic accidents.

"I've heard of a woman who every time she wrote out a shopping list for her husband, added an extra line: 'Don't forget to drive carefully.' That's a good idea, and that's the one item on any list a fellow hadn't better forget," commented one local policeman.

Drivers who haven't yet checked and equipped their cars for safe winter driving are pushing their luck, the police warned. In the hustle of holiday preparations they shouldn't forget that keeping all members of the family safe and unharmed is the best of all possible Christmas gifts. Make sure you have a set of tire chains in the trunk, ready for use when needed for snow or ice, and that your windshield wiper arm has adequate pressure on the blade to remove snow as well as rain. Wipe arm pressures are stronger on new cars and do a better job on snow. Adjustable pressure arms are now available for older cars.

AND THEN SOME . . .

Did you ever wonder why some men are successful and others are just average? A retired business executive was asked this question. He gave his answer in three words: "And then some." "I discovered at an early age," he says, "that the top people did what was expected of them—and then some. They were thoughtful of others; they were considerate and kind—and then some. They were good friends and neighbors—and then some. They could be counted on in emergency—and then some."

One of the outstanding merits of Chiropractic is "and then some" benefits. People go to a Chiropractor with some predominant complaint—a headache or stiff neck, perhaps. The spinal adjustment corrects the major complaint "and then some" to the astonishment of most people.

A recent case had this to say: "Do you know that I had indigestion and couldn't sleep when I came to you about my headaches? Now that trouble is gone and I eat anything I want and sleep like a baby."
Chiropractors correct the spinal cause—and then some. They restore health and make it possible for you to live more abundantly.
See your Chiropractor! You have nothing to lose but your bad health!

Washington Report

By Senator Charles F. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

WHAT KEEPS—Washington's wheels whirling? Women, to a large extent.

In this town, where politics and government are major preoccupations, the girls are moving front and center. It seems to me that the Christmas season is the time to be big about it. Let's acknowledge what the lovely creatures have achieved in what is generally described as a man's world.

Here in the Capitol, gifted women in law, diplomacy, journalism and science are holding men's jobs with distinction, often serving simultaneously as fine wives and mothers. These, of course, are the five-star generals. The barricades are manned by thousands of "second grade" girls, on whom too high a value cannot be placed, who come here from every State in the union to fill key secretarial and administrative spots. From the White House to the embassies, from the press galleries to the military bases, the girls are in the thick of it at every level of responsibility.

This thumbnail list does not pretend to include all of the brightest stars in Washington's female firmament, but is enough to convey an idea of the gratitude the nation owes its women. A source of personal pride to me are the Michigan names sprinkled throughout.

A MIDLAND GIRL, Miss Mary Jane Morris, holds the key post of Secretary of the Federal Communications Commission. A 36-year-old graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, Mary Jane is a crackjack communications attorney who deftly makes decisions affecting the vast radio and television networks of America.

POLITICS monopolizes the talents of Mrs. Catherine Gibson of Monroe, who heads the National Federation of Republican Women and works closely with Barth A. Kins, Assistant Chairman of the National Committee. "Michigan has given us some of our ablest women politicians," Barth says, "and Catherine Gibson is a shining example."

PORT HURON produced newspaperwoman Alice Anderson, now holding down a major public relations post in the U. S. Department of Labor. She works for dynamic Alice Leopold, Assistant Secretary of Labor, a fast friend of Michigan's skilled working population—both men and women.

MISS CORA BROWN of Detroit is an attorney, former State Senator and candidate for Congress. The U. S. Post Office Department is fortunate to have this highly intelligent and attractive lady serving in the Solicitor's office.

A DAUGHTER who studied at the University of Michigan, a son-in-law from Wayne and a highly unusual professional career entitle Mrs. Isabella Jones to a prominent place on this roster. Isabella's specialty is legislation and she works closely with Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson on matters vital to Michiganders. A former newspaper editor and publisher, an eloquent speaker, she was the first woman ever elected Secretary of the Republican State Committee in Pennsylvania.

"THE DUCHESS"—also known as Mrs. Esther Turley, noted newspaper correspondent and radio commentator, is a cosmopolite who has traveled the world and somehow managed to remain Michigan.

to her fingertips. Esther is a past president of the Women's National Press Club and Washington Chapter of American Women in Radio and Television.

LORRAINE POTTER a Cheboygan girl with a cheery disposition and a wonderful smile, who makes it possible for United States Senator to fill a heavy schedule and serve his State to the best of his ability. She is only one of an army of intelligent and dedicated official wives who place their own wishes second to the demands of their husbands' jobs.

Let's face it. Women are here to stay.

A MAN in a gray flannel suit is on his way to Washington to demonstrate a new wicker. When he arrives the man will talk directly into the Federal Communications Commission, where key members of Congress, radio, television officials, and the press will be waiting for the first disquieting "look" at his invisible presence. Advance notices of the invention have been chilling of the nerves of some Washingtonians.

The invention has only two innocent-looking parts—a movie projector and an engineer. The engineer seems like a wholesome type who likes his morning eggs sunny side up, but don't let that fool you. He has been trained to send phantom messages through the specially-designed projector.

HERE'S HOW: As the group in the FCC projection room settles back, a standard film—perhaps a musical ballad—appears on the screen. The prima ballerina twirls. The orchestra skirls. Back in the studio, as the program unfolds before the camera, one of the new-type engineers is keeping his "ghostly" projector busy. The viewers at the FCC notice nothing unusual and unwittingly enjoy the entertainment. As they do so, "invisible" messages lodge in their subconscious minds.

Soon many of the viewers may find themselves wanting a drink of Glugg Beer. Strange, for some reason, they have a long-standing preference for Glugg. But after watching the ballet, somehow they all thirst for Glugg.

SPOOKY? You bet. It's a new advertising technique called "subliminal projection" which flashes messages a split second (1-3000th second duration) that the eye cannot read them. They register, however, below the level of conscious awareness. Mr. James Vicary, the inventor, claims remarkable selling results in recent movie theater tests. He aims to spare audiences the usual wearisome commercials by superimposing his "invisible" flashes over regular programs. In other words, the "sell" is injected directly into unsuspecting craniums. Nice and spooky, isn't it, until you begin to think it over.

Atomic Aircraft Possibility Bettered

The administration recently placed the atomic airplane project under a central authority. The idea was to cut red tape and prevent the confusion and delay which has apparently left us behind in the race for an ICBM and an earth satellite.

The move is, nevertheless, slow in coming and has long been advocated by the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. The atomic-powered airplane may be the answer to most of today's military defense problems. Atomic-powered aircraft would have an almost limitless range and could remain airborne for days at a time, perhaps weeks or months.

When this stage of progress is reached, a nation may be able to cover itself with a blanket of defensive atomic-powered aircraft, at very high altitudes, and they might be equipped with sufficient detection gear to enable other aircraft, or ground stations, to fire an anti-missile missile with a nuclear warhead, out to intercept enemy planes or missiles. It is known that the Army is already working on an anti-missile missile.

It is still difficult to say whether the United States is ahead of Russia in the race to build an atomic airplane. The achievement of this goal may be long in coming, for it is estimated it will be 1960 before the first atomic-powered ship, now being built by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, will go into operation.

Experts Find Wasted TV Advertising

Time magazine reports that Ford Motor Company recently conducted a 10-city survey in which 2,600 TV set owners were queried within 30 minutes after five top shows went off the air. The first jolt hit the big advertising spender when it was revealed that only 10.3 per cent of the owners had even seen the shows in question.

So, with only 270 viewers to question, the company took another jolt when 31 per cent admitted they left the room during commercials. Even more shocking was the revelation of 23 per cent more, who sat in the room during the commercials, but could not remember a single detail of what they had seen or heard.

Obviously, Ford's advertising effort was wasted on all but a few more than 100 viewers, 1 in 26.—Arenac County Independent, Standish.

Then there's tentative amnesia, a condition suffered while wondering how come you're carrying matches that advertise a night club in Ardmore, Okla.

★ MICHIGAN MIRROR ★

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's shortage of doctors, dentists and other medical personnel was underlined in a report submitted to the governor by a 24-member commission he appointed to look into the matter.

With J. Cohen of the University of Michigan School of Social Work, who is chairman of the committee, reported that this state which ranks 10th in wealth and personal income, ranks 36th in its supply of physicians.

National average for one doctor to each 1,761 residents, said Cohen. Michigan has only one doctor for each 2,000.

National average for nurses is 250 per 100,000 people, Michigan has only 200. His report showed.

Only sound solution to the situation seems to be the graduation of more doctors. Cohen's report urged that facilities for medical training be expanded rapidly at Wayne State University, where a minimum expenditure would permit an increase in student load, and the early construction of a third medical school in the state.

Education has become Michigan's top political and practical problem. It will come in sharper focus during the 1952 session of the legislature when schoolmen and lawmakers will seek solutions to problems which are largely financial.

Interwoven into the money issue is the new emphasis on education as a cold war weapon for the nation.

Sputnik makes its point even before it becomes an important military weapon.

Republican legislators estimate that education costs through high school grades, the area covered by the school aid formula, will cost $41 million more next year.

It will take that much to make up a $2 million to $6 million deficit in the school aid fund this year. Another $14 million is needed because of an expected 70,000 student enrollment increase and to replace the $25 million raised this year only by cigaret and liquor taxes.

Legislators feel that the liquor and cigaret taxes, levied as an emergency maneuver to guarantee schools $190 per student this year, cannot be extended beyond the June 30 expiration date.

The sales tax revenue is down from last year, further reducing the automatic two-cents on the dollar spent which goes to the schools. The third cent goes to the state treasury.

Demands have developed for a greater emphasis on science subjects since the Soviet Union launched its Sputnik, the earth satellite. Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, told one group that the Russians are concentrating more on physics and mathematics in the high schools than the United States does.

His answer is more money for schools, higher salaries for teachers and a re-assessment of curriculum.

Dr. Samuel M. Brownell, superintendent of Detroit schools, calls for governments on all levels to determine who has the responsibility for improving schools.

He said that the Federal government, the states and local committees "all are pointing fingers at each other," demanding more participation and more help without attempting to solve the problem themselves.

Higher education also will be asking for more money and help this year.

Both the University of Michigan and Michigan State University state they need more if they are to provide the education in science and other fields that students need.

John A. Hannah, president of MSU, said the institution needs help if it is to "achieve the miracle the American people expect of us."

Marion S. Hasteller

Some dealers suggesting we should do our Christmas shopping early as we can get a good deal on toys. But if this isn't too late, I think I'll make a couple of comments about toys.

A toy is for fun, so it ought not to be too difficult for the child to handle by himself. The experience in our family has often been that toys selected for the younger members actually proved to be more amusing to a child who was two or three years older. Adults often seem to over-estimate the interests of a small child.

Dolls are the best playthings for girls, just because real babies are most worthy of the devoted attention of grown women.

One of our best toy investments is a set of wooden building blocks. They don't look as glamorous as plastic structural toys, but they last indefinitely, and are big enough and heavy enough to give a child a feeling of satisfaction in handling them. The set I have in mind was designed by kindergarten experts, so the various blocks can be stacked in a multitude of ways.

With such blocks, a child of any age can build "make-believe" houses, choo-choo trains, or airplanes, according to his interest and ability. He can fill barns with domestic animals, make forts for Indians to attack, or sell merchandise from his own grocery store.

All the while, he is developing his imagination, and learning to use what he has in order to make what he wants. Isn't that, after all, what life amounts to—to take whatever raw material God gives us, and use our best efforts to make it into something useful and beautiful?

Children looking through catalogs think they want complicated mechanical equipment: automatic rocket launchers, electric washing machines, robots whose eyes light up. We put a few of these fragile trinkets under our tree, but our better judgement tells us they won't bring lasting happiness. Too much is done automatically; not enough is left for the child to do.

It is when we solve problems that we grow, whether we are children or adults.

ABOARD THE FORRESTAL:

Big Carrier Striking Force Found To Be Hard Target for 'Enemy' Bomber Planes

Special Writer for
The Chelsea Standard

During the period when the aircraft is aloft, activity is constant in the CIC room. There the carrier's radar Carrier Control Approach system operates. Operators stand in front of round radar sets listening to earphones which bring in messages from the various bridges and from the deck. The long night light needle constantly sweeps around the 360-degree screen, which shows yellowish spots and marks when the radar beam is reflected. Dials below and to the side of the radar screen give the precise distance and speed of approaching aircraft. After the aircraft has completed its mission and is approaching the carrier for a recovery, the radar operators get busy.

Up at PRY-FLY, the Flight Control Officer has called for the deck to be cleared and now flicks on the carrier's landing lights. The carrier is bordered in small red lights and the canted deck is outlined with yellow lights. The mirror lighting system now goes into play and the banks of yellow and red lights show the pilot whether he is high or low, or right or left. The pilot's air speed is registered in both CIC and in PRY-FLY. The Captain of the ship has completed swinging the carrier around into the wind to receive the pilot.

Three small red lights change to green in PRY-FLY, and that is the signal from the skipper that the carrier is ready to receive an aircraft. The Flight Commander signals a white flag and now the aircraft descends slowly as it approaches the end of the carrier. Down in CIC the pilot is talked in, told whether he is too high or too low, or right or left. The aircraft glides in, its hook extended and one of the six-foot cables catches the hook and jerks the aircraft to a halt. The tension on this cable has been set up in PRY-FLY immediately prior to landing.

On the yellow screens of the many radar sets, the aircraft drops out of view and the landing is completed. Altogether, more than 100 men have been involved in the operation. The only one who has risked his neck is the pilot, of course, but the process is almost unbelievably complex and requires split-second timing on all sides. The greatest danger encountered or left. The pilot's air speed is carrier comes at night when the weather turns sour. Then the radar equipment must be relied on almost exclusively, but even then, fate can play tricks on both pilot and radar operator and the system is not foolproof.

During Operation Strikeback, recently completed, the tragic night of September 24-25 (when 10 lives were lost) was not caused by bad weather during landing operations. The two fastest crashes on that night were the result of a collision of two jet fighters, and the following collision of two search planes, each with four men aboard, which were looking for the jet pilots.

Ice Can't Stop Training of State Police Skin Divers

It was really cold outside for 17 Michigan State Police skin divers who were given a training test in diving under winter conditions. The test was held at Higgins Lake, where the troopers, representing all sections of the state, met at the conservation training school.

Air temperature hovered around zero when the officers, toggled out in their diving suits, masks and compressed air tanks, submerged. It was first necessary to break a path through 40 feet of ice that rimmed the shore.

The troopers did their underwater swimming for intervals as long as 15 minutes.

The skin diving squad was organized last August and trained at East Lansing headquarters and in nearby lakes and streams. The divers have since recovered the bodies of several drowning victims and numerous articles of evidence. The Higgins lake test was planned last summer, as the divers are expected to work under cold weather conditions as well as when the water and air are balmy.

SOMEWHERE IN the past few weeks spectators at Olympia Stadium were treated to the mystery of the wandering net. Since Jacques Plante of the Montreal club had begun skating to the side and behind the goal in recent seasons, hockey fans were fairly familiar with wandering goalies, but certainly not with wandering goals.

Most of the spectators failed to see what happened. However, we understand that the television camera followed the goal, although the play had moved 100 feet away, and that the viewers of the Stroh TV Hockey Network had a better view of the entire event than did we in the press box.

Apparently in some way the net became loosened, either by accident or the design of New York goalie Marcel Paille. In either case it was a happy misadventure for the Rangers. Short-handed through penalties to defense men Harry Howell and Jack Evans, three Ranger defenders and Paille were attempting to withstand a Detroit attack, at a time when the game was tied in score.

Bathgate Falls
Andy Bathgate of New York rushed out of his own end of the ice, carried cleverly near the Detroit goal, then fell. Back came the Red Wings with only Paille and two of his three defenders between Detroit and the tie-breaking score. Suddenly... look...

THE NAUTILUS

The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus has "scored" another "first" by traveling 1,000 miles under the Arctic ice pack in five and a half days, according to Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates. The Nautilus was on a cruise testing equipment and machinery and gathering operational and scientific data.

Production costs on most Michigan farms will probably continue to rise next year, believe Michigan State University agricultural economists.

no place to shoot. For the net was turned around.

Play was stopped and a face-off ordered. Detroit's advantage was lost.

There were many who believed that Paille had deliberately loosened the net, then swung it around, and if he had, what?

This brings us around to goalies' penalties. In the past five years they have become far more prevalent. Referees have stopped being lenient with goalies who trip and hold players in the immediate vicinity of the cage. They are quick to hand out penalties. The reason for this appears to be that the goalie himself never has to leave the ice. His penalty time is served by a teammate, and except in the case of misconduct penalties by any teammate of the coach's designation. Thus while the team is short-handed, the loss of a key player is not even threatened.

Teammate-Serves
True, in the case of misconduct to a goalkeeper the penalty must be served by one of his teammates who wait on the ice at the time of the foul. This can work an additional hardship, but it is a rarity.

Certainly it seems that the present rules provide for better hockey than in the late 1920's when a goalie had to enter the penalty box each time he committed a rules infraction. A teammate, armed only with the big stick, tended the nets during his absence. It was colorful, but it wasn't particularly good hockey.

THE DRIVER'S

Why does the number of highway deaths rise as the sun goes down?

How fast should you drive at night?

Can a man 50 years old with 20-20 vision see as well at night as a 30-year-old with 20-20 vision? Are present headlights adequate for modern driving?

These are some of the questions asked by Phil Hirsch in an interesting book just published by Pageant Press. The book, "The Nighttime Accident Problem," does a thorough job of investigating a problem that has confused safety and traffic officials for years.

Way to the times as many highway fatalities occur at night as during daylight hours? More important, the author offers some practical solutions to the problem.

The whole problem of night fatalities boils down to the fact that humans are not made to see at night. The author, in what is the first known book specifically devoted to a detailed investigation of the causes and cures of night fatalities, suggests several solutions.

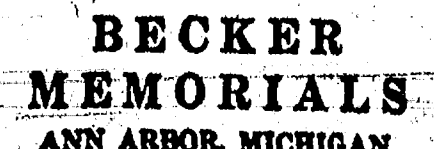

Logically, his first suggestion is that citizens and their elected and appointed officials recognize the problem. Strangely, he points out, not much attention has been given to the fact that more accidents happen at night although there is only one-half as much traffic then.

He then suggests such practical solutions as the reduction of speed at night, training drivers how to handle night-driving problems, lighting dangerous roads and streets and utilizing reflective materials to make hazards more visible.

The summation of his book states that hazards, no matter what their form, must be made more visible at night. It is impossible, he maintains, to give humans better night vision. He claims, however, that it is a relatively simple matter to make hazards more visible. He cites case history after case history in which about $50 worth of reflective signs prevented accidents and saved lives.

The important thing, according to the author, is that something be done now in areas where results can be produced within present budgets rather than wait for expensive—but distant new solutions.

Hunters Quitting
Tent Camps, Now
Cram Cozy Motels

Ann Arbor—The old deer-hunting camp is almost a thing of the past.

So says Warren Chase, chairman of the Department of Wildlife Management at University of Michigan.

"Although deer camps have been going down in numbers in the Upper and Lower Peninsulas for several years, it was a surprise to me to find them reaching such a low state during the early days of the deer season this year," says Chase.

"Where we often had six or seven deer camps in 1950, this year we had only two in the McKinley Bridge area of the Au Sable River."

Why is deer-camping declining? Says Professor Chase, "It might be said that deer camping is being reduced because it is a rough, hard way to live. You guessed it. Those once rugged hunters are now living in cozy motels and driving out to the deer haunts in the morning."

"Another reason why there are fewer tent campers is that hunting success has been reduced in this part of the state since 1954. While we used to find seven or eight bucks hanging in the tent camp the first day of the season, we now find that two or three deer have been taken out of the area on the same day."

"A third major reason for lower numbers of deer taken the first day of the 1957 season was because of the weather report that the rain would last over the opening day. No doubt many hunters who had planned to go delayed for a day or two."

"The main reason we may ascribe to reduced hunter numbers in the Lower Peninsula is the opening of the bridge to the Upper Peninsula. No doubt this will make a change in hunter numbers from now on, but we will not know until after Dec. 1 what the effects have been on this year's hunting."

"Another reason why the deer population has stayed down is that it reached its peak in 1949 and 1950, when there was great starvation of the herd due to lack of food and a severe winter. Since that time the deer food has not increased as much as was expected."

"There still may be some starvation but it is hoped that the food will increase fast enough in the next few years so that we may have as good hunting in this area in the future as we had at its peak."

Biggest Deer Produced
In Southern Michigan
Because of Food Supply

Lansing—Michigan's north country is famous for deer, but farm and wooded areas in southern portions of the state often produce the biggest bucks.

Among the big deer taken in southern Michigan during the 1957 season was a 225-pound, 10-point buck bagged in Ingham county by George Perry of Leslie.

Bruce Willis of Jackson got his deer—a 198-pounder—at the Waterloo recreation area in Jackson county.

Both of the big whitetails were three and one-half years old. The deer were field dressed when weighed.

The average southern Michigan deer is larger than his northern counterpart because of the abundance of food in lower sections of the state.

Research has not yet found any harmful effects from gibberellin, a plant growth stimulator, according to Michigan State University horticultural scientists.

The scales of justice might well be called the trial balance.

Chattering of Red Squirrel Unprintable

Ann Arbor—When the red squirrel is mad, his language isn't fit to be printed.

With academic understatement, William H. Burt, curator of mammals at the University of Michigan, remarks, "Its explosive, draw-out, hatchet-like call indicates all is not serene."

"With winter coming on, the red squirrel will don a new and different cloak," says Burt. "His fur will be longer and thicker and the color much brighter."

Maybe he'll look sayer, but he could hardly be busier. "The red squirrel is active throughout the year. He's out at break of dawn and may continue to be active until well into the night."

"Mating takes place in February or March and again in June or July. The four to seven young are born about May 1."

"Nests may be either in hollow trees or constructed of leaves and twigs of bark among the branches. The young make their first appearance outside the nest when about one-half or two-thirds grown, in the latter part of May. A second litter may be born in August."

The mother remains with the young, as a family group, until they are nearly grown," he says. "And for a high-strung creature who won't take anything from anybody, she puts up with quite a lot from her bad-mannered youngsters."

"The young may fight among themselves, especially over food," says Professor Burt, "but the mother remains in the background and offers no interference. She will even permit them to cuff her about and take food from her until they are nearly as large as she is."

"When fighting among themselves, the young squirrels strike with their front feet. I have never seen them attempt to bite one another."

What does the red squirrel eat besides the peanuts he freeloads from his human admirers? "The food of red squirrel consists of practically everything available in its habitat, chiefly nuts and pine cones, with mushrooms of various kinds, bird eggs, meat, and sap in season."

During seasons of abundance, food is stored for future use. Pine cones and nuts may be stored in caches in the ground, usually while they are green, and mushrooms are stored in crochets in the trees. Twigs and nuts are cut from the branches, and when they fall to the ground the squirrel carries them to his caches. Many nuts are buried in the green husks."

Burt reports that the maximum life span of the red squirrel probably is about ten years.

About Your Home

Paint and wallpaper can work wonders for your home. It can be brightened, made to appear larger or smaller, help emphasize good points and play down bad ones.

One new trend is to combine paint and wallpaper in one room using paint on certain walls and wallpaper on the others. Both of these materials are being used to complement one or more walls of wood-paneled.

There is an almost limitless list of wallpaper patterns. Many designs go equally well with traditional or modern furniture. Monotone prints and textured designs create interesting backgrounds for modern decor and can be very effective with early American furniture. Many new designs simulate pebbles, bamboo tufted leather and bricks.

There have been recent improvements in both paint and wallpaper. There is a paint that gives a slate-like finish which can be written on with chalk or crayon and easily erased. Washable and stain-proof wallpaper costs more but it is more than worth the extra money.

Fabric and plastic are popular wall covers in the modern home. Most of the good fabric coverings have baked-on finishes and are washable.

The rubber-base paint is very good for use on masonry. There is a cement-base paint that is wonderful for outdoor masonry, also.

It is natural for young children to discriminate among foods and to like some better than others. Vegetables with strong odors and sharp flavors are high on the "don't like" list of children.

Many prejudices are only imaginary. Very often children will not eat the foods their parents dislike.

For this reason it is wise to pretend—at least—to eat all foods around young children. In other words, don't give an example.

Disliked food should never be forced on a child, but encourage him to taste it. If a certain food is pushed aside untested, it would be a good idea to say, "Take one bite and if you don't like it, leave the rest and eat your dessert."

One bite seems like such a little bit that most children will comply. Quite often after he has taken "just one bite" several times, he will be over his prejudice and begin to enjoy this food.

When children are old enough to understand, explain the value of certain foods. Make sure they understand the relationship of health and well-balanced meals.

Cooperate with them when they begin studying nutrition at school. Encourage them to help plan the "well-balanced" family meals.

Learn to cook a large variety of foods, so there will be no chance of monotony. If the children refuse, after much effort, to eat a certain food, experiment with new ways of cooking it.

Silver grows more beautiful through use if given the proper care.

Coming in contact with certain things will cause silver to tarnish. Keep silver away from matches, eggs, rubber and gas fumes.

Wash silver as soon as possible after use with mild soap and then rinse in clear water. Dry immediately. Silver left standing too long after a meal often collects hard-to-remove stains.

A polishing cloth helps keep silver bright. An occasional cleaning with silver polish is necessary to keep silver now-looking. Buy a reliable polish and follow directions on the container.

A brush is helpful when removing polish from elaborately designed silver.

Temperature changes affect silver. If possible, keep it in a room with an even temperature.

Pioneer Feasts Had Deer After Wild Turkey Was Gone

Ann Arbor—What wild game was used for Thanksgiving dinner after the gobbler disappeared from Michigan's forests?

"The wild turkey was common in southern Michigan in the pioneer days but disappeared in the 1890's," says Warren Chase, chairman of the Department of Wildlife Management at University of Michigan.

"After our forefathers no longer heard the familiar call of the turkey gobbler and could make him their Thanksgiving game banquet, venison was the most common wild game meat available. Many of the early settlers of Michigan regularly made use of venison for their Thanksgiving dinner rather than using turkey."

"This was particularly true farther north in Michigan as the turkey only extended over the southern half of the Lower Peninsula. Deer were very abundant throughout Michigan and enough meat could be obtained in one hunt for several banquets."

"Other Thanksgiving game dinners were made up from numerous small game species, sometimes mixed together as the main dish. Partridge, squirrel, and rabbit made up the pioneer dinner when the hunters' luck had not made venison or turkey available."

"Among many families, the goose and duck, as well as the passenger pigeon (squab), were common and delicious. Some of the scatter-gun hunters even made use of woodcock, jack snipe, and upland plover. So even though the traditional turkey was not always available, the hunters of Michigan always had abundant game for the table."

"From the early accounts it appears to me that thanks were given in just as great measure when venison and small game were used for the big dinner as when turkey was the main dish."

"Chances are the dinner wound up with mince pies made of venison or rabbit and these are every bit as delicious as other meats used in mince pies," says Professor Chase with evident enthusiasm.

COSMETICS INDUSTRY.

American women—with a big assist from men—are expected to shell out some 1.2 billion dollars this year for cosmetics and toiletries. This total has doubled within the last ten years.

ROBOT BUILDER

London—Soviet scientists have developed a "building robot" which can apply plaster, lay bricks and build houses, it is said by Tass, the Soviet news agency. The automatic house building machine can construct a five-story brick house in from 50 to 90 days. The robot, controlled from a revolving working cabin, cuts labor costs to a tenth.

Michigan cattle feeders can expect a continued strong market for fed cattle through December, say farm economists at Michigan State University.

Rabbit Stew Coming Up

Hunting seasons on game birds and deer are completed, but rabbit hunting provides plenty of sport—and good eating—for Michigan rimrods. Statewide seasons on cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares continue through March 1. The rabbit hunting season formerly ended January 31 in the southern lower peninsula, but has been extended.

To Hell and Back

(Editor's Note—The following literary masterpiece is reprinted from an early edition of The Standard. It was called to our attention by Mrs. Minnie Scripser. The author is unknown.)

Two well-known Chelsea men recently made a fishing excursion over to the Reeves mill-pond country near Pinckney, locally known as "Hell," because of the rough and broken nature of the country. The trip inspired one of them to write the following ditty:

Two old gray nuts, on fishing bent,
Borrowed a Ford and to "Hell" they went.
The day was fine, the weather good—

The birds were singing thro' the wood.
The two old nuts with kindred ties
Enjoyed the ride and swapped "fish lies."

Things went merrily on like a wedding bell
With two old nuts on their way to "Hell."

With "Hell" in sight and visions of fish galore,
The old Ford coughed and refused to go more.

They played the aceticism, and they cranked the hubs,
But as Ford doctors they were dubs.

They greased the windshield, turned over the liver
But not a cough could they get from the old driver.

Now phones are scarce so they know well—
They finally located one there in "Hell."

The Pinckney Fordman, on the jump,
Soon arrived with a suction pump.

This wise Fordman with judgment neat
Soon located the trouble under the back seat.

His diagnosis correct, his judgment true,
His advice: "Don't go to 'Hell' without a corkscrew."

Now this little spiel without rhyme or reason
Is just an experience of the fishing season.

Just trouble, trouble, alas and a lack—
Two old nuts to "Hell" and back!

Consider the arrangement of your fields this fall. Sometimes changing the boundaries of fields can bring about greater efficiency, according to Michigan State University soil specialists.

LANGMEADOW MINNIE

Romeo Guernsey Becomes All-Breed Production Champ

Peterborough, N. H.—The American Guernsey Cattle Club here has announced that a registered Guernsey dairy cow has become an all-breed production champion.

The cow is Langmeadow Minnie, an eight-year-old Guernsey owned by Howard H. Colby, Colby Dale Farm, Romeo, Mich.

"Minnie" has completed an official production record of 26,600 pounds milk and 1,461 pounds fat on twice-a-day milking. This is the greatest fat record ever made by a cow of any breed on 2x.

Although this was 365-day record, it would also have been the world's best had it been stopped at 305 days.

Minnie presents the ultimate in those qualities most desired in a dairy cow—production, reproduction, conformation and longevity.

This great cow has posted seven official production records which average 16,980 pounds milk and 881 pounds fat. She has had seven calves, including three daughters that are all-breed production leaders.

Excellent for type, the breed's highest rating.

Langmeadow Minnie was sired by the fine Guernsey bull Flying Horse Master's Monarch, bred at Flying Horse Farm, South Hamilton, Mass. Monarch has 73 tested daughters with a 305-2x M. E. of 10,841 pounds milk and 502 pounds fat.

During her recent record-breaking lactation, Minnie had a high day's production of 100.7 pounds of milk. She averaged an even four pounds of fat per day.
