Cagers Defeat U. High Cubs Friday Night

The Bulldogs, once again the underdogs, defeated the U. High Cubs last Friday night, 47-41.

U. High grabbed a 4-0 lead but Chelsea battled back to a 10-10 tie at the end of the first quarter. Chelsea outscored the Cubs 14-12 to lead 24-22 at halftime.

Chelsea had to cope with the Cubs' big front line and their scoring ace Jim Bradley but came out in the second half really fired up. They outscored U. High by one point to lead 34-31 at the end of the third quarter.

In the closing minutes of the game U. High was behind by two points but a field goal and three foul shots by Loren Keiser and three foul shots by George Mayer pulled the game out of the fire.

Loren Keiser and Jim Bradley were high for the game, each hitting for 16 points. Only three others scored for Chelsea. They were, George Mayer, 13; Willie Heiligh 11 and Frank Fredrick 7.

Chelsea will start the second half of the season by hosting Milan tomorrow night. The Bulldogs were defeated by Milan the first time. The J. V. game will start at 8:45.

Chelsea Insurance Agent Honored

Wallace Wood was honored as a State Mutual Insurance Company agent at a dinner commemorating the insurance company's 50th anniversary at the Durand Hotel in Flint, Jan. 22.

Wood has been associated with State Mutual Insurance Company since 1947. His production ranked seventh in the state for 1957.

A 50th anniversary dinner was attended by Mayor George Algeo of Flint, company officials and home office employees, and 35 other top agents and their wives.

Principal speaker at the affair was Dr. Joseph W. Thompson, Professor of Marketing and Sales at Michigan State University. His topic was "Creative Salesmanship."

Train Hits Deer Herd, Killing 5

Five deer were killed and four others injured when a herd of 14 ran down the railroad track toward a fast New York Central westbound train at the Washtenaw-Jackson county line west of here Saturday. Site of the mishap is between Grass Lake road and Kaimbach road.

Conservation Officer Donley Boyer said Darrell Kniss, predatory animal control officer, and other conservation men trailed the four wounded animals all Saturday afternoon but could not catch up with any of them. Three appeared to be badly hurt, he said.

Original reports listed four deer killed, but Tuesday, Boyer received a call from a section foreman on the railroad stating a fifth dead deer had been found about 60 feet from the railroad track.

Herds of deer have been reported seen frequently in the Chelsea area, but this is the first time a herd has been involved in an accident in which a number were killed and wounded.

When the train struck the herd, three of the deer killed were thrown more than 100 feet.

Three Does Hit Recently by Autos In Waterloo Area

Two does were killed recently when struck by cars and a third was injured in a similar accident, according to Conservation Officer Boyer.

One of the does was killed Thursday night in front of the Clarence Lehman home on Cavanaugh Lake road when it ran in front of a car driven by Mrs. Florence Walker.

The other doe was killed on Clear Lake road as it was struck by a car driven by Kenneth Platt on his way to work early Friday morning, a week ago.

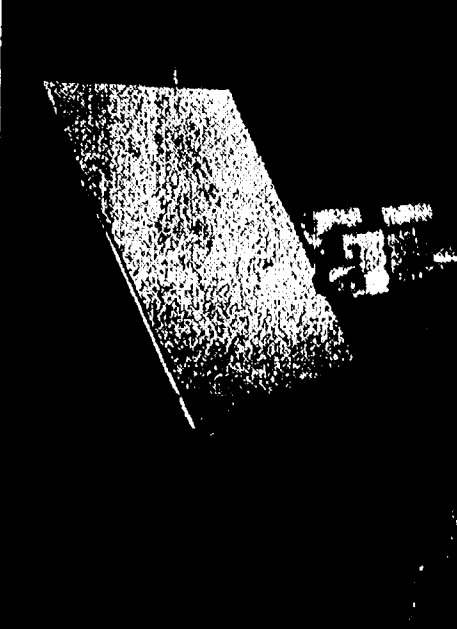

The third deer-car accident occurred at midnight Sunday on Clear Lake road near the intersection of Cavanaugh Lake road. Driver of the car was Robert Dawson of Waterloo, according to Boyer's reports.

All three cars were damaged to some extent.

Plans for the proposed school call for faculty members and students to work the farm as a means of practical application of the study of profitable farming methods.

The school, as planned, will be for boys whose intellectual capacity is below average to the extent that they lack the ability to make normal progress in public or parochial schools.

A religious order of priests and brothers, the Order of the Holy Trinity, will administer the school.

Construction of a school and any other buildings which might be needed for its operation is not expected to begin until May or June, a representative of the Archdiocese stated.

Methodist Sunday School Teachers Will Meet Here

Sunday school teachers of several Methodist churches in the Ann Arbor District are expected to attend demonstration classes to be held in the Methodist church here Friday (tomorrow) at 7 p.m.

A teacher will demonstrate the use of lesson material for four and five year old kindergarten children, with Chelsea children participating and the Chelsea church providing the facilities.

Anti-Rabies Dog Vaccination Clinic Scheduled Tonight

Tonight (Thursday), from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m., is the date of the annual rabies vaccination clinic for dogs of the community. Dr. P. E. Sharrard and Dr. W. C. Lane, Chelsea veterinarians will be in charge.

Health Department and Veterinarian-Medical Association sponsored clinics are currently in progress throughout the county and are open to any person wishing to have his dog vaccinated for rabies. Representatives of county or township treasurer's offices will be present at all the rabies vaccination clinics for the purpose of issuing a license to any dog owner wishing to purchase one at that time.

Michigan law requires that all dogs be licensed once each year and a 1948 county ordinance requires that the dog be vaccinated within 12 months immediately preceding issuance of a license. The Washtenaw County Health Department and the Washtenaw County Veterinarian Medical Association jointly sponsor the rabies vaccination clinics each year at this time to facilitate compliance with this county ordinance.

License fees effective Jan. 1, 1958 are $2.00 for male and unsexed dogs and $5.00 for female dogs until March 1. After March 1 the license fee will be increased to $5.00 for male and unsexed dogs and $8.00 for female dogs.

The flat rate of $1.50 per dog is charged for the vaccinations received at the clinics.

Zoning Board Okays Permit For School

The Sylvan Township Zoning Board, at a meeting held Tuesday evening approved the application of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit for a conditional use permit to use the Franklin Van Valkenburgh farm for a private school for boys.

No objection was registered at a public hearing on the request for the permit, held at Sylvan Township Hall last Thursday, and the Zoning Board's approval action at Tuesday's session followed.

Plans for the proposed school call for faculty members and students to work the farm as a means of practical application of the study of profitable farming methods.

The school, as planned, will be for boys whose intellectual capacity is below average to the extent that they lack the ability to make normal progress in public or parochial schools.

A religious order of priests and brothers, the Order of the Holy Trinity, will administer the school.

Construction of a school and any other buildings which might be needed for its operation is not expected to begin until May or June, a representative of the Archdiocese stated.

Adult Classes To Organize Monday Night

Anyone interested in adult education classes at Chelsea High school should plan to attend a general organization meeting scheduled for next Monday, Feb. 3, at 8 p.m., in the high school study hall. Principal Charles Lane said yesterday.

It is expected the general meeting will be a means of speeding up registration and formation of classes so the classes may be started at once.

Cost of tuition and other details will be determined by the size of the class enrollment and meeting nights will be selected for the convenience of those participating.

Interest in various courses has been indicated in previous requests, including cake decorating, china painting, typing, bookkeeping, conversational English, sewing, furniture refinishing and upholstery.

Principal Lane said classes will be started in any subject in which a sufficient number of people are enrolled to make it practical to hire an instructor.

Lane emphasized the importance of attending the meeting Monday if classes are to be organized for the remainder of the school year.

County Planning Official Addresses Kiwanis Club

James Liebeck was in charge of the program at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening and introduced Ed. Drabkowski of the Washtenaw County Planning Commission as the evening's speaker.

He also introduced his fellow members of the Sylvan Township Zoning Board of which he is secretary. The members are George Bretschneider, chairman, Lynn Kern and Doris Whitaker.

Others introduced were Norman Eismann and Donald Cook, who are on the board of appeals for zoning.

Drabkowski, in his talk, defined zoning as a break-up of a community into districts. Here in Sylvan township the districts are agricultural, rural-residential, general business, residential, engineering research, and industrial, he explained.

He stressed the fact that zoning is protective rather than restrictive and mentioned that zoning originated in Boston late in the 19th century. New York was next with zoning and the courts questioned the validity of such "restrictiveness," fearing a restrictive power and not seeing it as primarily a protective power.

Approval by the Supreme Court paved the way for zoning of urban and rural areas as it is known today.

A survey at Monday's meeting, held in the social center of the Methodist church, was Dexter Superintendent of Schools Wayne Webb.

115 Sportsmen Take Part in Fox Hunt

Chelsea Rod and Gun club members and Detroit and Jackson area hunters who participated in the club's fourth annual fox hunt here Sunday are already talking about "another hunt next year."

There were 115 men in the group when the hunt began as scheduled Sunday morning under the leadership of Calvin Summers of the Chelsea club, Carl Hobart of the Chelsea club, and Walter Olsen of Detroit.

It could not be determined which of approximately 12 shots fired by that many hunters were responsible for downing the one fox secured. The fox was bagged in the first section covered. The area is bounded by Hasley, Grass Lake, Sylvan and Wingate roads and is quite hilly.

After the second section was hunted the men met for a coffee break at noon at the corner of Grass Lake and Sharon Hollow road. A portable kitchen or "chuck wagon," provided by the Jackson Outdoorsmen's club, was used to prepare the coffee. Doughnuts were also served.

A third section was covered before the group concluded the hunt which by this time numbered approximately 75 men and the half-dozen women who had participated. Others had left the party, some after the first section was hunted, and others following the coffee break after the hunt in the second section.

Dinner (the traditional mulligan stew) was served at Lyndon Town Hall by Mrs. L. D. Guinan and Mrs. Orson Beaman assisted by Mrs. Howard Anderson of Detroit and L. D. Guinan who had been so busy helping with the dinner preparations Saturday and Sunday.

President Gerald Carr announced that the proposed program for that meeting is to be a Science Education panel discussion.

John Thomson, chairman of the health committee, was in charge of the program for the January meeting. He outlined briefly what his committee has been doing concerning health problems of this community. So far the projects discussed have been Salk vaccines, fluoridation of the village water supply and a mental health program.

Thomson pointed out that at present the Chelsea schools are participating in a county-wide survey to determine the need for a training program for exceptional children. Mrs. Reinholdt of the high school faculty is conducting the survey for this area, according to Thomson.

To acquaint the PTA with what is already being done to train exceptional youngsters in the county, Thomson presented Miss Agnes Rogers, instructor from Eastern Michigan College at Ypsilanti.

"Most of us think of ourselves as normal," Miss Rogers said, "and there are yardsticks by which we can measure our normalcy."

The normal person, she went on to say, is physically, mentally, emotionally alert, has an active conscience, and is able to express himself.

PTA Hears Discussion on Gifted Child

About 75 members turned out for the Jan. 22 meeting of the Chelsea PTA held in the high school auditorium Wednesday evening.

The meeting was opened by a prayer read by Mr. A. C. Downie. The business meeting was chiefly concerned with a discussion of funding projects for PTA. The question of whether or not to continue with the annual Penny Carnival as a fund-raising project was brought up.

Three other alternatives were offered and members were asked to think about these projects and come prepared to vote for their choice at the Feb. 25 meeting.

These are the alternatives to the Penny Carnival: A chuck-wagon Bar-B-Q in which professional cooks furnish and cook the chicken and PTA members furnish salads, desserts, etc.; a game night; or the request of $200 donations from each of the 600 families who have youngsters in school.

PTA members are asked to note that the February meeting will be on the fourth Wednesday of the month instead of the usual third so as not to conflict with Ash Wednesday religious services.

President Gerald Carr announced that the proposed program for that meeting is to be a Science Education panel discussion.

John Thomson, chairman of the health committee, was in charge of the program for the January meeting. He outlined briefly what his committee has been doing concerning health problems of this community. So far the projects discussed have been Salk vaccines, fluoridation of the village water supply and a mental health program.

Ensembles and solos will be included as well as full band numbers.

You don't have to be a PENNY PINCHER

Getting ahead financially is not a matter of "pinching pennies." Quite to the contrary! Actually you can spend money more happily (because free from worries and misgivings) once you have embarked on a program of systematic saving. First step is to establish the amount that you reasonably can and MOST CERTAINLY WILL save each payday. Then see to it that these dollars go promptly into your savings account every week... before they have a chance to go elsewhere. You'll have more fun spending what's left when you do your saving FIRST!

REPORT FROM PARIS:

Paris 'Metro' Still Regarded As World's Finest Subway

By Norman Lindhurst
(Foreign Correspondent)

Paris—It was in 1900 that Paris opened the Metro, and today, 57 years later, this remarkable transportation system is still the pride of Parisians.

Other cities, notably New York, grumble that their subways are antiquated, but the Metro seems as ageless as when opened at the turn of the Century.

On one experimental line, all of the trains ride on white-walled rubber tires. The rubber-tired coaches are quieter, faster and stop quicker than the conventional steel-tired cars. It is the first subway in the world to use them.

Franklin D. Roosevelt station, on the Champs Elysees, is the most modern station in Paris.

All advertising on the platform is done in illuminated panels.

The panels, made from colored bits of glass and illuminated from behind are something new in the world of art.

Several artists, Picasso among them, are planning to work in the new medium.

All Metro trains are electric-powered. Since hydroelectric power isn't available in the flat northern part of France, most of the electricity is carried to Paris on high-tension wires from the Alps or central France.

The system uses 1,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per day.

In a country where inefficiency is virtually a tradition, the Metropolitan is a wonder of smoothness and speed.

When the streets are a few yards above the Metro are strangled with crusting stalled drivers. Metro trains move some 4,000,000 passengers a day at average speed of 15 mph and a top speed of 40 mph.

At high noon, a reporter drove from the Etoile to the Opera in his car in 22 minutes. A friend, who started simultaneously, went by the Metro transferred once and made it in 15 minutes flat.

The Metro was built on a single-platform principle. All trains coming to any one station are always headed for the same destination.

Different lines use different platforms, so it's not necessary for passengers to ask where the train is going.

There are maps (some of which light up like pinball machines to show you your route) all over the city. All you do is follow the lines to your destination.

In all the cars there are schematic maps, which show which stops are coming up and when to get off to transfer to a different line. There are 13 lines in the system.

All the lines have numbers, but it's easier to remember the names of the lines and the direction in which you want to go. Just tell the ticket-taker your destination, and she'll tell you which direction will take you there.

A second class ticket, which will take you anywhere in the city costs 30 francs, about 10 cents, and there are books of tickets which are more economical.

Tourists can buy special visitors' tickets good anywhere in Paris for seven days. The tourist ticket costs about $4.

The Metro is an electrical and mechanical marvel today. But when it first started to run in 1900, it was a miracle or a devilish contraption, depending on your viewpoint.

Left-wing newspapers supported the novelty at first, describing it as "the friend of the workman."

Rightwing elements condemned it as one of the worst examples of creeping socialism and a hazard besides.

The infant railway got a severe setback in 1904, with the worst accident in its history.

A fire broke out in one of the underground stations during a rush hour and the crowd became a mob in its panic.

Fifteen people died in the stampede. Emergency safety precautions were set up and there hasn't been a major accident since.

Every year an average of 22 despondent Frenchmen commit suicide by throwing themselves in front of Metro trains.

"Throwing yourself in front of a train is not a very good way to kill yourself," said one Metro official. "It's not certain to be fatal."

And if a person's troubles were considerable before, they will certainly be greater after being maimed in an unsuccessful attempt at suicide.

The Metro is an easier system to figure out, even for a person who doesn't understand French than either the New York or London subway system.

The Metro system is about 120 miles of double track, some of it as deep as 100 feet under the ground, and some of it emerging from the ground for brief stretches. Tracks run under the Seine River in three places.

The tracks follow the streets of Paris above the ground because this is public property. Land under private property belongs to the property owner, no matter how deep the tracks might burrow.

The longest single line of the Metro system runs about 12 miles. The shortest is about 1 1/2 miles long.

Scientists Now Racing To Master Nature's Secrets of Weather Control

One of the wars which is now underway, between the United States and the Soviet Union, is the war to control the weather. The actual fighting cannot be said to have broken out but it is known that weather scientists in each country are hoping to unravel the secrets about the weather first—and be the first to control it.

Two basic approaches are known, but of course, there may be other ways. One of the forms of human control might come from controlling evaporation. If evaporation could be controlled, then the amount of precipitation could be controlled.

The nation which controls precipitation, or which can deny it to the other, holds a powerful trump card in any prolonged conflict.

Another approach to the weather control question concerns the storage of heat. There are reports that Soviet scientists have made some progress toward the storage of heat from the sun in particles particularly receptive to sunlight and heat. The theory is that these particles would be scattered in the polar regions and gradually melt the ice cap, which would raise the ocean levels to dangerous heights, cap.

This would result in new seacoast lines, the inundation of some port cities, and the moving of the vegetation line northward—if carried out successfully on a large space for a period of time.

Nuclear weapons might also affect the weather, according to some experts.

Thus there are several approaches to the problem and scientists of the leading countries are undoubtedly engaged in something of a race to be the first to control the weather. To date, though, Mother Nature still keeps most of her secrets locked tightly. And much as we have sometimes thought we would like to be able to control the miserable weather, it all seems rather foreboding now and we would almost hate to see the mystery solved.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

FRINGE ISSUES before the 1958 legislature have developed an importance all their own while the state's finances form the core of knotty problems.

While the budget will need extra millions to keep the state from bankruptcy, other issues are multiplying.

There is a chance that labor legislation—the right to work issue—will become one of the hot test of the session.

Senator Robert E. Faulkner (R-Coloma), chairman of the Senate labor committee, already is planning a bill to require unions to incorporate.

The bill is simple, as are most of the vocal issues of the day.

But it would place unions under the same restrictions that manufacturing and business corporations have. Regular audits, government controls and taxes all are part of the controls.

The toughest would be the ban against any corporation making a contribution to a political party or candidate.

Republicans and Democrats and union leaders all predict this would mean the end to the CIO-PAC and other labor groups.

Significantly, labor has generally favored Democrats. Republicans claim further that Democrats and unions used each other to gain power in Michigan and share control of state government.

The right-to-work law, now in effect in Ohio and other states, would end the union shop. No man could be required to join a union to keep his job.

Labor leaders call this the ultimate in "union busting." Its advocates call it a "right." It is certain to develop a sizzling battle in Michigan, if introduced.

Democrats will work to get a $90-a-week minimum benefit for unemployed workers and those injured and incapable of working.

Speed Limits on county roads will be another issue this session. The 65-mile-an-hour speed limit during the day and the 55-mile-an-hour ceiling at night in effect for two years is too high, some say.

When the original law was passed, officers said it would not be adequately enforced on county roads. Now, with the accident and death rates climbing each month on county roads, the demand for a speed limit is growing.

License plates will be another issue, this one touching only indirectly on the financial issue.

Secretary of State James M. Hare is proposing that, starting in 1959, the state issue a plate good for three years, with metal tags for the next two years.

Hare said the program would cost an extra $70,000 the first year, but over the three-year span, would save something like $300,000.

The money would be both spent this year and saved over the three-year span from highway construction money—a separate matter from the problems with the deficit-bound general fund.

Republicans and Democrats are racing the clock and each other in the civil rights issue. Michigan now has the Fair Employment Practices Commission to work against discrimination based on race, creed, color, religion, and national origin in job-finding.

The state also has a series of laws prohibiting discrimination in public places, restaurants, hotels,

Washington Report

By Senator Charles E. Potter

The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

VETERANS—more than 22 million of them—will cheer the good news that my proposal for a permanent standing Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs has received a significant forward push.

The Chairman of the powerful Rules Committee informs me that he is polling every Committee chairman in the Senate for comments and reactions to my resolution. In the meantime, the Rules Committee itself is actively studying the proposal and asserts that when the 14 chairmen have reported, public hearings may be held. The Rules' group then will hammer out a decision.

Until now, the Rules Committee has been standing on a dime. This is the first solid action in the direction of a Senate Veterans Committee since the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946.

More than a year ago, when I introduced the resolution, I pointed out that veterans' problems had been getting second-class treatment. The same holds true today. The House of Representatives does have a Veterans Affairs Committee, but the Senate tosses veterans' matters to two already overworked Committees, Finance and Labor and Public Welfare.

What happens when the Finance Committee is swamped with tax bills and debt matters, as it is today? What happens when Labor staggers under massive new education and union proposals, as it does at this very moment? Obviously, with the best intentions in the world, those two Committees can only give veterans' bills hit-or-miss attention, often shelve them.

Almost half the population of the United States consists of veterans, their dependents and relatives. This patriotic community of Americans is entitled to a Senate Committee to devote exclusive attention to its unique problems. On the other hand, the taxpayer is entitled to know also that veterans benefits, the largest single item in our civilian budget, receive full and careful scrutiny by such a Committee.

Under my resolution, the Senate Veterans Committee would consider legislation covering pensions, life insurance, compensa-

★ Why Catch Cold?

AFTER YOU have a cold, you can't do much to cure it. It is still true that a cold can be cured with treatment in a week and a half, or if left alone, it will go away in ten days.

But I think there is something you can do to keep from catching a cold.

I used to have several colds every winter, but I have had only two during the last four years. This may be due to the fact that I started taking multi-vitamin capsules about four years ago. Or it may be due to an idea I got from a book by Agnes Sanford, called "The Healing Light."

MRS. SANFORD points out that colds are not caused entirely by "germs," because germs are always around, and we don't always catch cold. Nor are they caused by cold weather, for we don't always catch cold when the temperature drops. She thinks that one of the main reasons for catching cold is EXHAUSTION. To catch cold, this would seem to be borne out by the fact that children with the most "careful" mothers are often most susceptible to colds.

Mrs. Sanford's idea is that congestion in the nasal passages is partly a result, and partly a cause, of colds. Now congestion occurs when a great many white corpuscles are needed in some particular part of the body to fight infection. Congestion may also occur, says Mrs. Sanford, when our subconscious mind THINKS that white corpuscles are needed in some particular part of the body. If you tell yourself that you are catching a cold, then your subconscious mind sends blood rushing to the nasal membranes, and the resulting congestion sets the stage for a cold to develop.

FROM EARLIEST CHILDHOOD, mothers have filled our minds with such thoughts as: "Wear your rubbers or you'll catch a cold." "Put on your scarf or you'll catch a cold." "Get out of the draft or you'll catch a cold!" and so on. Because our young mind accepted these thoughts, now as adults we tell ourselves we must catch cold whenever we are caught in a draft or get our feet wet.

THE THING TO DO, the moment you feel a draft, instead of thinking, "Oh, oh, there's a draft; I'm going to catch a cold!" is to substitute instantly the thought, "My, isn't that fresh air invigorating!" Then take several deep breaths, being sure to expel all the air you can from your lungs at the end of each breath, and waiting as long as you can before you inhale the next breath. The lack of air in your lungs will tend to cause the blood to rush there in search of oxygen, instead of rushing to your nostrils in search of a cold. If you can think of "fresh air" instead of "catching cold," you won't catch a cold. In time you may find that you don't have to make an effort to think of anything. The idea of "catching cold" hardly enters your mind any more. But since I've been thinking about colds all the time I was typing this column, I suppose I'll have a cold by night.

I HOPE you mothers will stop planting thoughts about catching cold in the minds of your youngsters. Instead of saying, "Wear your mittens or you'll catch cold," just say, "Put on your mittens, darling." Don't connect mittens with colds in your child's mind. It won't cost you anything to breathe fresh air thoughtfully instead of ducking from drafts. And even the vitamin capsules are with-in the means of most of us.

Farm Leader Warns Against Too Much Activity

Ann Arbor—Too much club activity can frustrate America's farm youth.

Rural parents should make sure organized events don't rob their children of the chance to spend a lazy afternoon in the summer just wandering down a stream or lying in a pasture watching birds.

This advice was given the 11th annual Rural Health Conference at the University of Michigan by Mrs. Robert F. Tefft, of Saline. Active in 4-H, Farm Bureau and numerous Washtenaw County rural groups, Mrs. Tefft is the mother of two boys, aged 10 and 13.

While youngsters can profit from participation in many of these activities, Mrs. Tefft warned there is a real threat of "over-organization." She said:

"There is little time for today's child to dream, to mull things over, to reach conclusions about his relationships to the world or even to himself."

"Farm children are among the few who are privileged to live close to the source of life, out in the open spaces of the farm."

"Parents should help them attain a wondering and quiet appreciation of the existence they have, and not try to push them into activities merely to keep up with the neighbors."

Extensive club activity has its effects on parents, too.

Citing her own case as an example, Mrs. Tefft said, "With so much rural youth activity for my youngsters, my work is out of for me—it's chafing!"

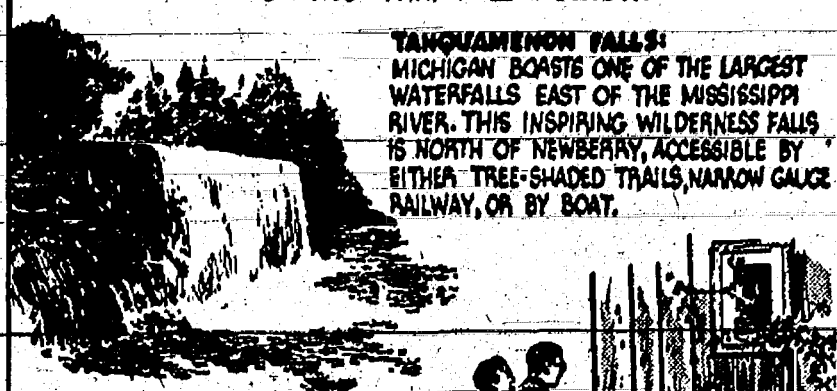

Even so, she's found time to author a book now in press for teenage girls, edit the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau News, and help develop the Bureau's Young People's Organization.

Constitutional Convention Doubtful Says U-M Professor

Jackson—Because of the high tide of partisanship in Michigan today, it will be difficult to get bi-partisan backing for a convention in 1959 to revise the state constitution, a University of Michigan professor of political science pointed out at a regional meeting of the Michigan Municipal League here last Thursday.

Voters will decide in November if they want a constitutional convention, and if called, the constitutional convention would have the power of revision, but the new constitution would have to be submitted to the voters for approval, said Prof. Arthur W. Bromage of the U-M Department of Political Science.

He addressed mayors, village presidents, councilmen and other elected and appointed officials from the Michigan Municipal League Region II, which includes Hillsdale, Ingham, Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe, and Washtenaw counties.

He believes, "Only bi-partisan support of the call is likely to persuade enough people to vote for it. Neither major party has so far come out for it."

The more densely populated centers of the state will be under-represented if the constitutional convention is called, Professor Bromage said. This is because of the requirement that state senatorial districts be used to elect the delegates.

"Conservatives who lean toward the present constitution are opposed to revising it. Liberals worry lest a convention elected from state senatorial districts be unrepresentative. Partisan disagreement has already broken out, and to maintain any call in the absence of assurance as to the revisions which a convention would formulate," he explained.

The state has not had a convention for 50 years, and in this time numerous issues have arisen. A built-in provision in the present constitution allows Michigan voters to call a convention every 16 years. In 1942 the proposal was defeated, and if defeated again in 1958 will not reappear until 1974 under the mandatory rule.

To call a constitutional convention, a majority of all the votes cast in the November 1958 election must be in favor. Delegates to a convention called to revise the Michigan constitution would be chosen from the 34 senatorial districts (three from each district) at the spring election in 1959.

Professor Bromage lists a few of the questions which the delegates would face:

1. Change the present system of apportionment of the legislature to give more nearly equal representation to heavily populated areas?
2. Preserve and strengthen city and village home rule?
3. Allow urbanized counties a

Rains Carry Tons Of Soil from MSU Conservation Plots

August through October rains of about five inches, coupled with poor planting and cultivating practices, cost a run-off plot at Michigan State University's Kellogg farm more than a ton of surface soil.

That's the report from Russell Hill, extension specialist in soil and water conservation at MSU.

The plot that lost the ton of soil had been in corn which was planted up and down the slope.

Plots of oats drilled up and down a 10 per cent slope lost a half ton of top soil while a nearby plot worked across the slope lost only one-tenth ton of soil.

Soil losses on established legume plots were negligible, notes Hill. On plots where recommended conservation practices were applied, soil and water losses were even less.

MSU soil scientists have kept records since 1954 on soil losses on these plots at the farm in Kalamazoo county. Since then, one plot cultivated up and down the slope has lost more than 40 tons of surface soil.

Improper cultivation practices not only mean a loss of valuable top soil, but they also cut down on the amount of water that the soil can store up for growing plants, Hill points out.

Demonstration plots are co-operatively operated by the Calhoun, Kalamazoo and Barry Soil Conservation districts and the MSU Kellogg farm.

Hogs are moving to market earlier in the summer months than they were five years ago. Farmers have been aiming for the high price point that was formerly in August. The summer high is now in June.

Marine Pfc. Ralph Owings Training at California Base

Camp Pendleton, Calif.—Marine Pfc. Ralph L. Owings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Owings of 183 W. Middle St., Chelsea, Mich., took part in an air-ground-landing exercise by units of the First Marine Division, at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Jan. 11 through 24.

The main assault force, made up of the 7th Regiment, landed on D-Day, Jan. 20, and engaged the "enemy" forces.

Four days prior to D-Day, the forces landed on San Clemente Island, 45 miles off the Southern California coastline, to "seize" an airfield needed to accommodate close support aircraft and helicopters.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

It's in the Bag

Out-of-towners must have wondered what was going on last Tuesday. Every parking meter was covered by a paper bag lettered "Free Parking."

Tuesday was officially designated "Free Parking Day" by the Town Council as a reward for going a year without a traffic accident.

"Traffic safety, like virtue, is its own reward," said Judge Cunningham as he proposed the motion. "But let's show our drivers we're proud of 'em!" From where I sit, a little praise never hurts—in fact, that's why I talk in this column about the nice, fair-minded people I meet. Folks who live—and let live... who don't care whether you like beer or buttermilk at dinner time. I say real neighbors never try to "park" their ideas on others!

Bill Now in Legislature Would Provide Early Deer Season in Upper Peninsula

Lansing—The state Conservation Commission has agreed to "support" legislation allowing the Upper Peninsula deer hunting season to open about Nov. 10.

A bill proposing such a change from the regular Nov. 15 opener was expected to be introduced during the current session of the legislature.

Commission approval of the proposed earlier season in the U.P. was given at the group's Jan. 9-10 meeting in Lansing.

The Commission emphasized that its "support" of such a change does not mean the Conservation Commission or Department is "sponsoring" legislation for an earlier season.

Deer specialists in the Department's game division told the Commission there is no "biological reason" with present hunting pressure why the U.P. season could not open five or six days earlier, if the public desired such a change.

Biologists did say, however, an earlier opening date in the Lower Peninsula could be harmful to the deer herd.

In the Upper Peninsula, hunting pressure is relatively low and buck deer are not closely harvested. An earlier hunting season would not interfere with the mating season.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, however, male deer are more heavily harvested and an earlier season might reduce the reproduction rate.

Various proposals for an earlier season in the U.P. have been made by legislators and sportsmen because of heavy snowfall, which hampers hunting activity, during the regular season. Particularly heavy snows have been reported in parts of the U.P. during the last three deer hunting seasons.

FLU SHOTS ADVISABLE
Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney says Asian flu vaccinations are advisable even though the flu epidemic appears to be on the wane.

Burney said the disease can be expected to remain a threat through next March.

The Public Health Service chief said there were an estimated 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 cases of Asian flu in the nation from September 1 to November 30.

License Plate Sale Offered in Dexter

At the request of the local Dexter Democratic Committee, and chairman, Wallace Wood, Chelsea branch manager of the Secretary of State's office has announced that he will extend his service to the residents of Dexter area on three afternoons during the month of February. On Feb. 1, he will be at Devine's Chevrolet Service; Feb. 8 at Alfred Gross, Inc., Ford garage, and on Feb. 15 again at Devine's Chevrolet Service. Hours will be from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Sale of license plates, in Dexter, is an extension of the "Community Service Week" initiated this year by Secretary of State James M. Hall.

Wood has been in Dexter three times during the last three months. On Jan. 18 he issued 82 new license plates. There are two things that will speed up the issuing of the 1958 plates, Wood states. First, be sure to bring your title to your car. Plates cannot be issued without it. Secondly, commercial vehicles and trailers do not have to be re-weighed this year, if you have your 1957 registrations verifying the weight. Also remember that all pick-ups weighing less than 4,000 pounds, should have a "regular commercial registration blank" filled out. This applies, regardless of whether the pickup is used for farm or commercial uses.

The State has initiated a new policy of not accepting personal fees. This rule was made necessary because the State was receiving too many checks returned, marked, "no funds," Wood stated.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Moore plan to attend a family dinner at Sylva, O., today in observance of the birthday of Mrs. Moore's father, B. H. Elden.

Village President Tells of Efforts To Gain Industry

At the Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday evening, Jan. 21, Donald Alber reported on efforts to gain new industries for Chelsea and Willard Guest and Waldemar Crossman reported on the progress of Chelsea Civil Defense program work.

The Civil Defense report mentioned that three classes in home nursing courses had been held in Chelsea during the past two years but 40 additional women waiting to take the course cannot do so until instructors are secured.

Other reports included one by Rolland Spaulding on development of the skating rink adjoining Veterans Memorial Park which has been a joint Village-Chamber of Commerce project, with approximately $500 spent for excavating and improvement to date. Plans were announced for obtaining either cards or decals for members to display in their place of business. Guests at the meeting were John Detling and Charles McDaniels.

Dr. W. C. Lane and Dr. Parker E. Sharrard, of Chelsea, attended the 35th annual Post-Graduate Conference for Veterinarians at Michigan State University Jan. 22-23.

Practicing veterinarians and university students from many mid-west states heard about advances in the treatment of farm and home animals.

The conference was held concurrently with the annual Alumni Day Reunion of the sponsoring College of Veterinary Medicine. More than 300 veterinarian graduates returned to the East Lansing campus for the two-day event.

FOOD SPENDING TO GAIN

Americans are expected to spend more than 50 per cent more for food ten years from now, according to Arno H. Johnson, New York economist. Johnson added that the increase would raise the nation's total annual food bill to $113,000,000,000 by 1968 as compared with the current $73,000,000,000 a year for groceries.

Indian Trails Set Pattern For Michigan Highway Net

Ann Arbor—You can thank the Indians as you go whizzing along Michigan highways. The first land communication lines in Michigan were Indian trails, according to information in the University Historical Collections.

The late Roger L. Morrison, for many years a member of the U-M faculty, wrote in a Michigan transportation article, "These formed a network over the state, some being parts of overland routes extending from the Atlantic coast and other far distant points. Many—if not all—later became roads for the white man."

"Several of the great modern highways leading out from Detroit were originally trails, used probably for centuries by the Indians."

A century and a half after the first settlements were made in Michigan Territory and after Detroit had been occupied for more than a century, there were still no wagon roads anywhere in Michigan except possibly in the immediate vicinity of the settlements.

According to Morrison, "The most important Indian trail was that known to the Great West which ran from Fort Pitt, at the site of Pittsburgh, Pa., to Fort Detroit and was an extension of Braddock's Road from the Atlantic Seaboard. This trail crossed the Maumee River just above the present site of Toledo and from there led northward to Detroit."

"One of the most important of the old Indian trails was the Sauk Trail from the Detroit River westward to the lower end of Lake Michigan and the Chicago River. When the white man came, he also used this trail, but after the War of 1812 it was inadequate for the demands made upon it by the settlers."

In 1824 Father Gabriel Richard, then serving as a delegate in Congress from the Michigan Territory, moved to have the advisability of opening up of a road from Detroit to Chicago investigated and Congress appropriated $3,000 for a survey of the route. The route through Ypsilanti, Jonesville and White Pigeon is practically that now followed by US-12.

Construction was begun in 1829 and by the end of 1830, 64 miles had been completed. Even before it was finished the Chicago Road became a vital factor in the settlement of southern Michigan," Morrison wrote.

Settlements were being pushed northwards as well as westwards from Detroit and when the Chicago

Chelsea Bandmen Appear on Radio Show

Jon Smith and Quentin Smith were guests last Saturday afternoon on radio station WOIA for the weekly Parade of Bands program. They were interviewed by the host, Art Katterjohn, who is also the Saline High School band director.

Both boys were asked questions about their families and about the band program in general at Chelsea High.

The program features concert band recordings and interviews with students from nearby school bands. Jon is first chair of the Senior Band's French horn section, and Quentin is a cornetist in the Senior Band.

COLD WAR.

The time for victory in the cold war is running out under pressure of Soviet success in weapon technology, says Industrialist David Sarnoff. He believes that it is only a matter of time—"within five years and possibly sooner"—that both Russia and the United States will have mass production of the transoceanic missiles, and then will come "dreadful party."

Chelsea Child Study club members, with 31 present, met Tuesday evening with Mrs. John Alber, Mrs. Richard Kern and Mrs. Marion Dietle as hostesses at the Alber home on South Main street.

The evening's program was a panel discussion on the subject of baby-sitting with Mrs. Louis Burghardt as panel moderator.

Club members on the panel explained what parents expect of baby sitters while three teen-age and three adult baby sitters brought out ideas they had regarding what baby sitters expect of those who employ them.

The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

KINDER KLUB

Kinder Klub Child Study club held a "Husbands' Night" meeting Saturday evening at the Legion Home at Cavanaugh Lake with 38 members and guests present.

Later, dancing and cards were enjoyed and refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. Donald Cook.

Topic of the service pertained to some of the hymns used in the Methodist church and several recordings of hymns were played.

Mrs. Charles Finkbeiner was in charge of the program and read an article entitled "The Best is Yet to Be," carrying out the thought of Robert Browning.

Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be.

At the close of the program, refreshments were served by the hostess.

There were nine members and two guests present.

MODERN MOTHERS

The meeting had been postponed from the previous Tuesday. Mrs. William Briston assisted as co-hostess.

Mrs. E. M. Beach, in charge of the opening devotional service, read descriptive passages to emphasize the prayer theme, "Ask, Seek and Knock."

The program was presented by Mrs. Thomas Smith who reviewed the third chapter of the study book, "The Kingdom Beyond Castles," by Liston Pope.

The chapter makes a comparison of the caste systems of Africa and America, bringing out the fact that Americans consider themselves above "thinking" in terms of the African caste system, which is backed by laws of that country; however, because of customs carried on from past generations, and with no laws to justify their actions many Americans unconsciously draw "caste" lines because of race, creed or color.

The program material quoted statistics showing that slow progress in overcoming this prejudice has been made in the past 100 years.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Polyethylene Bags Used To Ship Young Fish

Lansing—The Plastic Age is bringing innovations in new ways.

Polyethylene bags have been used with excellent success to transport young fish from hatcheries to streams.

The fish are placed in bags partly filled with water; these are set in cardboard boxes, and the bags then filled with oxygen.

In one experiment, Ohio conservation officials shipped 500 pike fry in these cheap, convenient boxes. The trip took nearly 30 hours and only three fry died.

The bigger the summer vacation the harder the fall.

self. The normal person enjoys a balance of work and play. He is able to give as well as receive. Most important he is in touch with reality.

The exceptional individual on the other hand varies from the normal in two directions. If he is a gifted person he will manifest all the normal traits to a pronounced degree. His capacity for learning, feeling, and doing will surpass that of his normal brother.

If one of these is slighted in training a person cannot make use of his full potential. Miss Rogers ended her address on the note that she hoped each PTA member would go out of the meeting a salesman to promote the more complete mental health program in Washtenaw county.

The meeting ended with coffee and cookies served by the refreshment committee.

Immunization Clinics Set For Children

Immunization clinics in schools, an annual program of the Washtenaw County Medical Society will begin Friday, Feb. 4, in Ann Arbor and in Ypsilanti schools and will continue through March 27, according to Dr. Henry A. Scovill, Ypsilanti, President of the Washtenaw County Medical Society.

"During the seven-week period a total of 46 immunization clinics will be conducted in the county," said Dr. Scovill. "All the clinics will be staffed on a volunteer basis by members of the Washtenaw County Medical Society and St. Joseph Mercy hospital."

Clinics offer "booster" immunizations without charge, against diphtheria, tetanus (lock jaw) and smallpox, to all children in the county who are in need of the injections. Attendance at the clinics has increased each year. Last year attendance totaled 11,454 children. It is expected that this figure will be exceeded this year.

Dr. Scovill expressed hope that the attendance among high school age children would increase during the 1958 clinics. "The percentage of attendance for high school students is considerably lower than for the lower grades," he said.

"The immunity provided by these injections is of a temporary nature and needs to be boosted about every three years. Even servicemen are currently being immunized against diphtheria and tetanus and for 'protection exists at all ages,' he said.

"Before a child can be seen at these clinics," said Dr. Scovill, "the parents must sign a request for their child to be given a specific immunization. These request slips will be sent home by the school teacher in the very near future. There will be separate slips for smallpox vaccinations and for the diphtheria-tetanus immunizations. Parents should be certain they are signing the proper slip when requesting only one immunization."

The Medical Society is assisted in conducting these clinics by the schools which provide quarters for the activities, the teachers who send home and collect the request slips, number of community persons, a number of community persons, and by the Health Department, which supplies public health nurses as clinic managers.

In some instances where it is impossible for Medical Society members to be present at the clinics, staff physicians of St. Joseph and University hospital conduct the clinics.

This year, there are scheduled nine clinics in the Ypsilanti school system, 16 clinics in the Ann Arbor school system and 21 clinics in out-county areas.

Records from last year's clinics show that 2,562 students attended Ann Arbor clinics, 2,214 in Ypsilanti and 6,778 in the out-county areas. The county attendance was distributed as follows: Chelsea 722, Dexter 526, Manchester, 300, Milan 740, Salem 119, Salsine 326, and Whitmore Lake 185.

"Complete schedules for all areas will be released soon," said Dr. Scovill.

Two cars were severely damaged in an accident which occurred at Lima Center early Friday evening and a passenger in one of the cars involved, Steve Baker, of near Stockbridge, was treated at St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, for facial and scalp lacerations.

Drivers of the two cars involved were listed as Charles Ward of Stockbridge and Janet Ann Bernath of Chelsea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bernath. Miss Bernath was driving her father's car, a new Oldsmobile with only a few miles registered.

Slippery pavement because of the snow falling at the time was listed as a contributing factor in the accident.

At about 11 o'clock Tuesday night David T. Cook of Manchester suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and face lacerations when the convertible car he was driving south on the Manchester-Chelsea road went out of control and struck a tree. Cause of the accident was listed as a blow-out of the right front tire.

Cars owned by Mrs. Mildred Weinberg, 644 West Middle street, and Frank Dault, 221 Cavanaugh Lake, were involved in a collision which occurred at 7:10 p.m. Sunday as Mrs. Weinberg drove into the driveway at her home.

Harold R. Nabb, of 253 Cavanaugh Lake, was driving the Dault car at the time of the mishap. Police department reports state the car skidded 46 feet before the left front struck the side of the Weinberg car.

Nabb was charged with having an expired operator's license, driving with excessive speed and following another car too closely.

Mrs. Weinberg's mother, Mrs. Julia Hayes, who was a passenger in her daughter's car, suffered a bruised arm and a slight eye injury, Mrs. Weinberg reported.
