

MAJOR ROUTES to be used by an estimated 330,000 persons attending Mackinac Bridge dedication ceremonies Thursday through Saturday (June 26-28) are outlined above in a special map prepared by Automobile Club of Michigan Travel Services Director Harry N. Rogan. Rogan predicts at least 125,000 cars will converge on both sides of the Straits for the festivities, the largest number of autos north of a line from Saginaw to Muskegon at one time in Michigan's history. Rogan cautioned against planning to stay overnight within 35 miles south of the bridge unless accommodations have already been reserved. The Auto Club travel expert advises taking the map along for guidance. "Should you encounter heavy traffic," he says, "switch to one of the several alternate routes shown."

Washington Report

By Senator Charles E. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

NEW CLAIMS for benefit checks under the federal jobless aid extension bill will be accepted in Michigan this week and payments should start about July 7. While our principal need is for more jobs, the extension will at least help to pay for food and rent in the emergency. Right now a quarter of a million Michiganders are drawing unemployment checks and by July 1 roughly 125,000 would have exhausted benefits had not the law been passed.

A recent editorial in the Detroit News credited a ten-man team of Michigan Republicans with the pivotal action in extending benefits for our State. It referred to a telegram sent the Michigan Legislature, in which nine Congressmen joined me to urge speedy okay of the federal proposal. The legislators, I'm happy to say, acted the same day, making it possible for jobless men and women to draw up to 13 additional weekly benefit checks.

TWO UNFAIR EXCISE TAXES were lopped off by the Senate in floor debate extending into the night. I voted to abolish the 10 per cent tax on travel and the 3 per cent tax on freight because I believe getting rid of these two levies is a helpful anti-recession measure. It will stimulate all types of freight shipment and passenger travel and is bound to benefit Michigan's tourist industry. As soon as the Senate finishes with this tax measure, it will move to a House-Senate conference.

In Washington and back home veterans always show intelligent awareness of public issues. Recently I had the pleasure of meeting with four outstanding Michigan veterans groups at their annual gathering in Saginaw, where the Spanish War Veterans held their encampment. I admit a few of the stories swapped back before my time. Nevertheless, all of us were stirred to recall the noble performance of a band of brave young American volunteers in 1918, who established the United States for the first time as a world power.

Up at Saint Ste. Marie, Crystal Falls and Escanaba, it was good to renew friendships with the Disabled American Veterans, Upper Peninsula American Legionnaires, and Veterans of Foreign Wars. As usual, the Legionnaires staged a fast-stepping, colorful parade.

I'm grateful to all of these groups for the support they are giving my resolution to establish a standing Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs. Their constructive suggestions were most welcome. We are still waiting for results of a poll of Senate Committee chairmen on the measure.

"SENATE SALAD" was front runner in the Capitol menu last week and is well on its way to becoming a traditional Senate dish, along with bean soup and rum pie. The 1958 version of the salad was lauded on the floor of both House and Senate, then served up in a giant bowl at a luncheon hosted by 14 members of Congress who supplied the ingredients, who supplied the ingredients.

Two quarts of Michigan vinegar gave the dressing its unique flavor. Other lawmakers seemed to be making noises about Texas shrimp, New York gelatin, Florida grapefruit and California lettuce, but cheers for the vinegar drowned them out. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, a man who favors healthy food habits, pronounced the concoction "delicious." It was spooned out by U. S. Treasurer Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest. Originally created by General Foods Kitchen, the magnificent mix was tossed up in the world's largest salad bowl, measuring three feet across, 14 inches deep, and holding 320 man-sized portions.

PARMA, Michigan, settled in 1838, was listed on many old maps as Cracker Hill. At one time there were enough Quakers in Parma to support a meeting house, and a number still live in the vicinity.

INCOME AND EDUCATION

The Census Bureau has issued a report based on 1956 surveys showing in general that income and education moved together. For example, one out of ten families is headed by a college graduate and the average income of these families was about $7,800 in 1956.

One in four families headed by a high school graduate had an average family income of $5,800. And in families headed by an elementary school graduate, the average income was $4,200.

MOMENT OF DECISION—A seemingly endless sea of dream cars, designed and built by boys from all 48 states, await judging in Detroit where professional auto designers and industrial arts instructors are determining winners in the 1958 Blaker Body Craftsmen's Guild model car competition. Winners will share $115,000 in university scholarships and cash awards.

Employers Seek Better Students, Says MSU Official

East Lansing—This year's college graduate has to be more aggressive than usual to get the job he wants, declared John H. Kinney, director of Michigan State University's Placement Bureau.

"A college degree alone will not guarantee a good job," Mr. Kinney said, "and our graduates have had to produce evidence that they have the makings of dependable, ambitious workers."

Greater competition for the better student led to slightly higher starting salaries for graduates this year in spite of the recession, the placement director added.

College recruiting by employers was reported down an estimated 10 to 15 per cent across the nation but was up 5 per cent at Michigan State. Some 1,538 different interviewing schedules were held.

Some of the things employers look for in the college graduate are faculty ratings, grades, work experience and leadership ability in various college activities, according to Mr. Kinney.

As usual engineering graduates in 1958 were being offered the highest starting salaries—averaging $5,500, although job offers in other fields for military service and other factors which probably brought the average closer to $5,000, the placement director stated.

Other average starting salaries for 1958 graduates with bachelor's degrees: Mathematics-Chemistry, $5,300; General Business, $4,900; Liberal Arts, $4,500; and Education, $4,310 ($4,800 for master's degree).

Job openings may be slow the rest of 1958 and possibly into 1959, from what employers tell us," Kinney concluded, "though some of them expect a pick-up in the last quarter of 1958."

MSU Summer School Will Begin June 26

East Lansing—The 45th annual Summer School will open June 26 at Michigan State University. Students will enroll June 24 and 25 for both six- and nine-week sessions. A special three-week post session offered by the College of Education is to open Aug. 4.

A summer faculty of some 400 teachers and 50 visiting professors will offer opportunities for guidance and faculty help as great as those of the regular school year," according to Dr. Clair L. Taylor, Summer School director. Nearly all university departments have summer course offerings. At least 30 workshops, institutes and seminars have been scheduled both on and off the campus.

Water Safety

Backyard Pool Creates New Hazards

By Earle F. Zeigler
University of Michigan
Water Safety Committee of the American Red Cross

Now we have a new swimming hazard with which to contend. That "ol' swimmin' hole" is moving into backyards all over the country. If we want to enjoy these swimming pools and use them to the best advantage, we must follow a few simple rules regarding their supervision. There is no question but that city councils will be asked to pass regulations and by-laws about their use. In the absence of any such restrictions, we should impose a few of our own.

If you have a backyard pool, or are planning to build one soon, you should find out if there are any laws in existence already.

Plan on installing a permanent fence around it with a gate that can be locked, or else you'll never have a memento's peace.

Be certain that you have a good filtration system to purify the water. Operating a health hazard will bring nothing but problems.

Have some regard for your neighbors insofar as lighting and hours of operation are concerned.

Work out a definite understanding with your neighbors about when and if their children can use the pool. Your best bet is to insist that the child be accompanied by at least one parent.

Establish some hard and fast rules about such practices as tag, ducking of others, wrestling on the deck, and horseplay in general. Inquire about liability insurance.

Some planning beforehand will insure a wise investment.

NEW TECHNIQUE

The underground explosion of a "baby" atomic bomb in Nevada last September knocked the pen last of a specially designed seismograph in Michigan clear across its recording roll.

This disclosure, combined with other information still cloaked in secrecy, has encouraged leading earthquake specialists to believe that an effective system for detecting nuclear explosions would be possible, but difficult, to achieve.

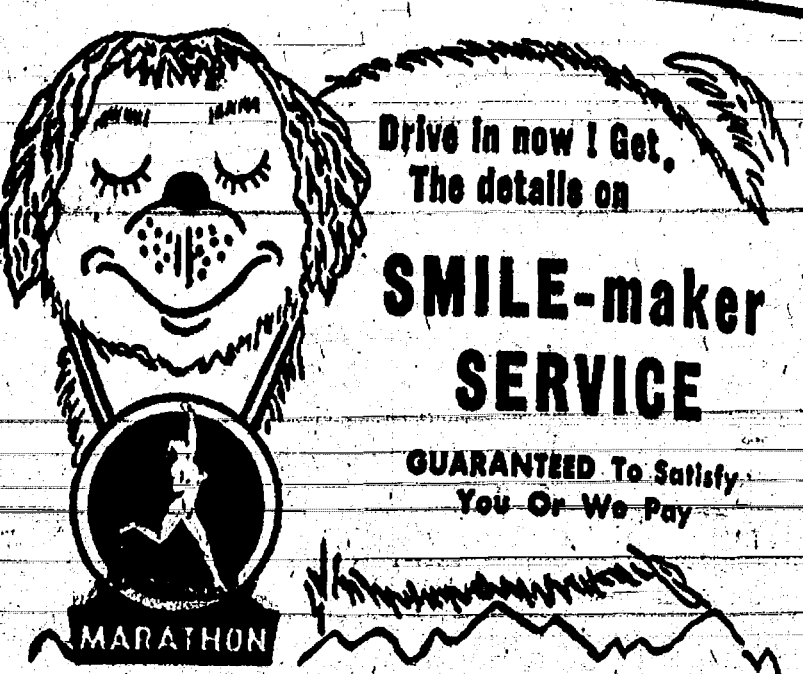

Such a system would be a key element in any disarmament inspection scheme.

MICHIGAN BELL

A YOUNGSTER WALKED into a drugstore and asked for a job.

"What's your name?" asked the druggist.

"Alexander Graham Bell," replied the boy.

"I guess that's a pretty well-known name, son."

"It ought to be," said the boy. "I've been delivering groceries in this neighborhood for two years now."

EVEN ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL himself (the inventor, not the delivery boy) couldn't have guessed how important his invention would become to us. The phone plays a part in just about everything you do. Take your vacation, for example. When it comes you'll want to be able to relax and enjoy yourself. So take care of all the worries beforehand, phone ahead to make all your reservations or let friends know when you'll arrive. It'll be such a weight off your mind and for such a small cost!

A GROCER FRIEND tells us the story of a lady who called him about an order. "Please bring some of your snap beans to the phone," said the lady. The grocer, who takes everything in his stride, complied. "Now break one," she commanded. He did, and a sharp "pop" went over the wires. "Fine," said the lady, "send me three pounds."

THE REASON WE mention this incident is to show that there isn't any end to the telephone's usefulness. Every day someone hits on a new way of saving time and money with the phone.

Lowell Thomas Occupies Unique Spot In History of News Broadcasting

Lowell Thomas has made his 15,000th broadcast, according to a wire service report. This is an interesting fact in the field of radio and television and we think Mr. Thomas has earned honorable mention on any newspaper's editorial page.

Lowell Thomas has kept his news clean, respectable, and on an interesting and educational level. He is not an actor or a trim-provider; he does not delve into sensational gossip, or into the field of muck which is the forte of many of today's columnists and commentators.

Yet, it is probably right to say that Lowell Thomas' voice has been heard more frequently by more Americans in the past 30 years than that of any other man. He is still making two broadcasts a night, his second one being beamed to the West coast where a three-hour time differential exists.

Lowell Thomas today is, of course, a successful lecturer, narrator, and producer, and yet he continues with his nightly news broadcasts. He is still heard at 6:45 p.m.—a time which has never changed since June of 1932. Anyone who remains in the business, successfully, for this long, has to have something.

Lowell Thomas has it, and he is an example for newsmen and radio people all over the country and the world. He is living proof that an honest presentation of the news, filled with interesting and warm Americana, can and does attract the support of the American people.

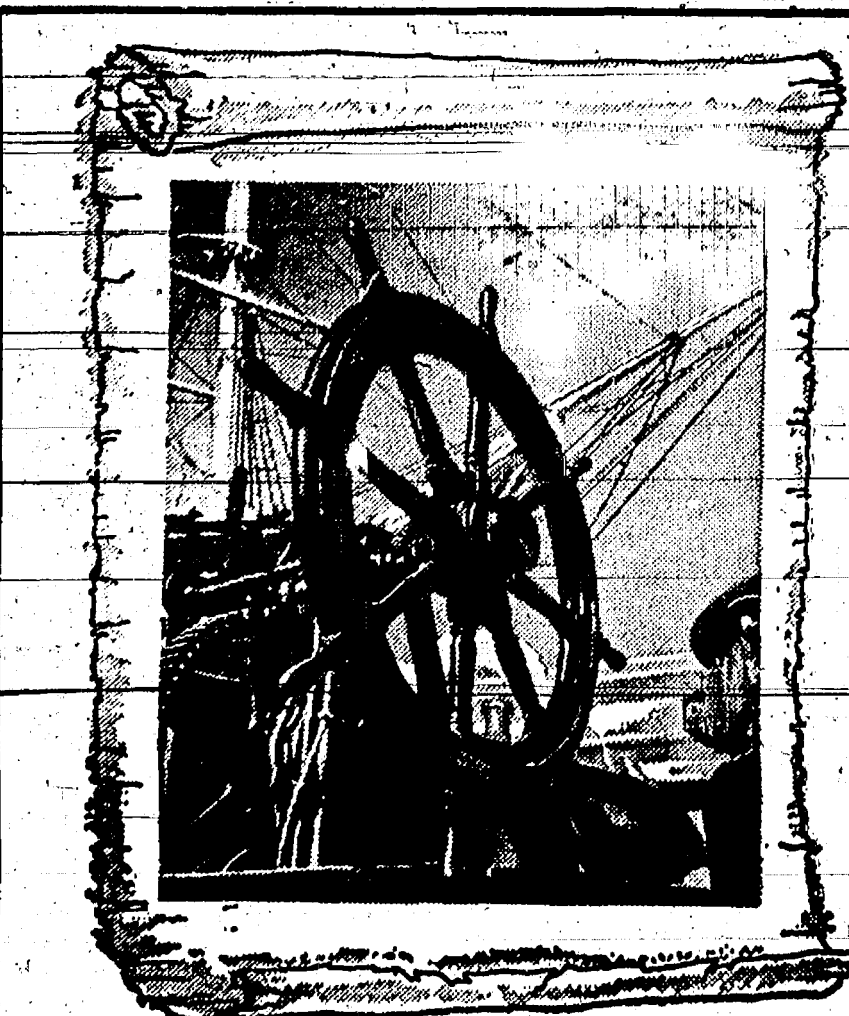

When the day comes—and we hope it will be a long time hence—when the famous sign-off, "So long until tomorrow" is said for the last time, the United States will have lost one of its great and pioneer radio personalities, and a newsman worthy of his profession in every sense of the word.

Be Careful on Vacation, Stay Alive

With the peak of the travel season near at hand, this is a proper time to remind readers that vacations are enjoyed most when the vacationers return home alive. Each year thousands start out enthusiastically on summer vacations and never return to their homes, having become victims of their own carelessness or some other drivers' carelessness on the highway.

This slaughter on the highways is one of the great tragedies on the American scene, and the death toll resulting must somehow be cut down.

Before leaving on your 1936 vacation, it is suggested that you determine not to hurry, even though your time may be limited. Haste, carelessness, and defective automobiles cause most highway tragedies. If you will practice patience and courtesy on the highway, carefulness, and be certain your car is mechanically sound, chances are you will return from this year's vacation sound and refreshed.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Republicans, while acting prudently and in good faith, lost part of a chance for a big bow on the public stage in an election year.

Democrats stole the show when the legislature enacted a federal program to extend unemployment compensation benefits to 15,000 jobs at a cost of $30,000,000. The workers, the victims of the recession, will be getting their checks beyond the present 26-week maximum this summer.

It all started when Republicans sponsored a proposed extension of benefits during the legislative session but held back to wait for Democratic action.

Democrats charged that the original Republican plans were not enough. Republicans reminded that Michigan's benefits exceeded those in all other major industrial states and ranked high in the nation. But they stuck for a time with their original state plan even after Congress set up an emergency system of federal loans, totaling $30,000,000 for Michigan, to extend benefits.

Democrats, realizing they did not have the majority in the legislature to do anything more, fought for adoption of the federal program.

Then Republicans went for the federal program. When Gov. Williams signed the bill, the Democratic delegation in the legislature was photographed behind his desk and each received a man with which he signed the bill.

The Democratic stand, rightly or wrongly, is that they created pressure enough to force Republicans to vote for the federal plan.

Republicans point out they waited to be sure which course was best, that the Democrats could not do it without their votes.

Political experts see the situation as a ready-made political issue this year.

They predict it will be a vital vote-getter among the unemployed and those who are jittery about business and industry and their fate in the recession.

Republicans must make much more of their side of the story; that it took President Eisenhower's signature in Washington and the Republican majority in the Michigan legislature to do the job.

Federal help is always ready for farmers whose land or crops become victims of the caprice of the weather.

It is a little-known agency with a state office in Lansing and units in every county, the Farmers Home Administration.

The agency is called upon for emergency loans at a low three per cent interest rate when drought wrecks crops or rain and flood conditions wash them out.

When a farmer is damaged and his financial picture is bleak, he may apply to a county committee for an assessment of his needs and a recommendation for assistance.

Small loans are handled locally, but major sums are cleared through the state office and sent on to Washington for final approval.

The Lansing office is headed by Elwood Bonine of Vandalla, in southwestern Michigan, and a former state senator from that district.

Foreign car registrations are increasing in Michigan.

Two reasons are given: that the sportier continental models satisfy an urge for the modern generations, and that domestic cars are becoming too expensive and large.

As the registrations increase, all major American automobile manufacturers have revealed they have smaller models on the drafting boards and some have definite plans for making them.

Merchandising experts insist, however, that most car buyers say they prefer smaller, less expensive cars and then purchase the gaudiest, biggest cars off the assembly lines.

Secretary of State James M. Hare, noting the increase in foreign car registrations and another boost in used car sales, has one answer.

It is reflected in the lower figures on new car sales and the slightly increased used car sales, the lower price per unit in new cars.

Perhaps the nation is beginning to trade down to the Joneses, instead of keeping up with them, he said.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I never like to start the day's work before I know what's going on in the world. Everything is so tied up with everything else that a fellow has got to be careful. A election in Greece can cause a slump in the market on Wall Street, or a street fight in Egypt may call for an emergency meeting of the Cabinet in Washington. Things are so close knit in the world that I don't want to start blowing up the weeds in one of my fields if it's going to effect somebody in France the wrong way. I'm willing to postpone my flogging till next year if the signs isn't right in East Berlin. That's the reason I like to get my paper in the morning so I can sort plan and lay out the day's work in a manner that won't hurt nobody.

The papers has been full of good stuff all week. For instance, I saw last night a fellow in a dental school in Georgia is working on a power-drive tooth brush. It'd have handles on it and you walked behind it, or if you could jump on it and ride. Along about daylight I figured it out that you could use it in a rocking chair. A great peace come over me and I fell off to sleep.

I see where Congress has set aside eight million dollars and told the Air Force to "explore in the vicinity of the moon." Looks to me like they say close than that for a bit million. I don't see why they didn't make it 10 million and order 'em to hit it on the nose. After all, what's a couple more million to them Congressmen?

Then there is this item where Billy Graham wants to hold work prayer to save them thugs in the Kremlin. I'm a great believer in prayer when you got a good cause, but right off hand I can't figure we got the percentages going for us with this one.

I've quit reading the newspaper funnies on account of they ain't half as funny as the front page. If I keep up with the news I'm going to die with excitement, and if I don't I'm going to die with curiosity. That's the reason you fellows I can see how Johnny under this new system of education would fergit how to read, but I can't fergit why he'd quit shooting marbles. I was talking to my old lady about it last night and she allowed as how it's because Johnny has got too lazy to squat.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

★ The Right Word

Hollanders love flowers, and Edward Bok, the well-known magazine editor, was no exception. He had thousands of crocuses planted along the road near his home in Pennsylvania. Friends warned him that people would steal the blossoms, but Bok counted on his uncanny knowledge of human nature to protect them. He simply put up a sign: "These flowers are under the protection of the public."

Unfortunately the footsteps that wear off the grass beside our front door belong mostly to youngsters who are either too young to read or too busy to believe in signs.

They are certainly too young to remember Greta Garbo and her desire for solitude, or I'd be tempted to post the pun that I saw protesting the grass in front of a building near here: "I want to be a lawn."

If you know what you want, you will do well to think of the best way of asking for it.

Two monks were taking a walk in the cloister, when one lit a cigar. "Say, you can't do that!" exclaimed his companion. "I asked the superior if I could smoke while I was meditating, and he said of course I couldn't."

"That's strange," replied the man with the cigar. "He said it would be quite all right, when I asked him if I could meditate while I was smoking."

Hal Stebbins tells about a St. Louis publisher who proved how much a classified ad can be strengthened by changing a single word. He was moving to California, so inserted this ad in his paper: "Owner wants car driven to West Coast. Will pay all driver's expenses."

After the ad ran three days without any response, the publisher changed one word, and on the first day he got 26 replies. The ad was transformed by changing "car" to "Cadillac."

Betty Sue came home with a stray kitten she wanted to keep. The family already owned one pet too many, but what parent could resist when a little girl says, "Well just keep it until morning, and then we'll see whether it belongs to Collie, and if it doesn't, we'll decide what to do with it after that."

Rapid Expansion of Railroads Ended Brief History of State's Stagecoaches

Ann Arbor—Stagecoaches journeying smartly along Michigan's corduroy or plank roads were a familiar sight a little over a century ago, according to information in the University of Michigan Historical Collections.

The late Roger L. Morrison, formerly a member of the U.M. faculty, wrote in a transportation article: "Stagecoaches appeared upon the roads as soon as they became passable for that form of travel."

"In 1830, there was a semi-weekly stage from Detroit to Tecumseh. In 1832 the line was extended to Niles, and 1833 stage service was established between Niles and Chicago."

The stages were drawn by four horses and were of the "Rockaway" type, the carriage bodies being suspended on leather straps. The driver sat on a high seat in front and the luggage was strapped on behind and on top. The coaches carried mail as well as passengers.

There were many taverns along the stage routes and they did a great deal of business. In fact, so great was the demand upon some of these taverns that travelers were often obliged to sleep on the floor," Morrison wrote.

The old tavern at Clinton has been moved to Ford's Greenfield Village and the Walker Tavern at Cambridge Junction on the Chicago Road (in the Irish Hills) is now a museum and antique shop.

But the iron horse finally crowded the stage coach off the roads. The beginning of the end of the stagecoach was marked in 1838 by the operation of the first railroad train from Toledo to Adrian, on the Erie and Kalamazoo Railroad.

Two years later, trains were also operating between Detroit and Ypsilanti and between Detroit and Royal Oak. Several other railroads were also under construction and 24 had been chartered.

By 1846 the railroad had reached Kalamazoo, and in 1849 it was extended to Lake Michigan, connecting with steamboats for Chicago. And so the stagecoach was eliminated as a necessary link in through travel from Detroit to Chicago 16 years after it had been established between these two points.

REPORT FROM PARIS:

The French Louvre Remains As Top Tourist Attraction

By Norman Lindhurst
(The Chelsea Standard Foreign Correspondent)

PART I

Paris—The American wife on a tour of Europe had just a few minutes remaining before the family left Paris for home.

So what did she do? She had her husband double-park their rented car outside the Louvre. She dashed inside the cavernous temple of French culture, scurried up and down the corridors until she found a souvenir stand, and grabbed a dozen postcards.

Outside, she triumphantly announced to her husband, "Now, I can say I've seen the Louvre."

The French relate this story more in sorrow than in anger. It happens all the time. It underlines the fact that even today the Louvre is still France's premier tourist attraction, outside and only by the Palace of Versailles.

Versailles drew 799,462 visitors last year, and the Louvre, 631,500. The Arch of Triumph lagged far behind the Louvre—355,792.

Whether or not you go to the Louvre with serious intentions, and regardless of the amount of time you are able to spend there, a visit is always awesome.

It is not one, but six museums, its treasure chest of objects from ancient Greek and Roman times (among them the famed Winged Victory and the Venus de Milo) to 16th and 17th Century Italian paintings, highlighted by what could be described as the Louvre's trademark, da Vinci's Mona Lisa.

This is not to say that all of Paris museum pieces are under one roof. The Louvre's six sections are devoted to painting, sculpture, and jewels, for the most part. Other collections in Paris are housed in 14 different museums, among them the Palace of Discovery, the Modern Art Museum, the Army Museum and the Museum of Man.

But when you think of THE museum in Paris, you think of the Louvre. Even those who like London, New York, Rome, or Madrid more than Paris would not dispute that this is truly one of the greatest museums on earth.

The building housing the museum is somewhat of a showplace itself, and it has a long and interesting history.

It bears little resemblance to the original structure erected in 1200 by Philip Augustus. Its present form dates from the 19th Century, when it was largely rebuilt. Although intended originally as a palace, Philip Augustus never lived there, but used it as his treasury, arsenal, and for archives.

Napoleon I liked the Louvre and the surrounding Tuilleries Gardens. By this time the old palace had fallen into disrepair, and Napoleon restoring it, adding new wings and reworking the interior. It was his palace. Reconstruction was still going on when he fell from power in 1814, but years later Napoleon II continued the expansion.

Shearing, Shaping Of Pines Gives Greatly Improved Quality Tree

Shaping and shearing in Christmas tree plantations is a very important management practice and can make plantation owners more money than any other practice.

With an average stand, the owner can't expect more than 80 to 85 per cent of the trees will be of good enough quality to market. However, a good job of shearing can improve the quality of the trees so that 90 per cent can be marketable.

Lester Bell, Extension Forester for Michigan State University, recommends that the shearing and shaping of pines should not be done earlier than June 15 and not later than July 15. The new growth on the pines is still soft and succulent during that period, and there is still time for good bud set on the newly-cut twigs.

According to District Forester, Victor Horvath from Ann Arbor, "It is possible to get some control over the European Pine Shoot-moth, by shearing during the time when the adult moths are in flight laying eggs." The adult moth is usually in evidence during the latter part of June and early July.

The shearing operation should be restricted to the new growth on the pine, by trimming the terminal shoot back to a length of about 10 inches. The Caterpillars on the terminal shoot should also be sheared so they are three to four inches shorter than the main terminal shoot. Unless the pines are sheared to give them proper formation, especially the Scotch Pines, they tend to become "leggy" because of their rapid growth.

Health Committee Studies Medical Examiner Plan

In preparation for the Aug. 5 county-wide election to determine whether or not Washtenaw county shall have medical examiners rather than coroners, the Health Committee, created by the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors will visit Oakland and Genesee counties on June 25 to study the medical examiner systems in effect in these areas and to prepare a report for the July meeting of the Board of Supervisors.

John Sterling, chairman of the Health Committee, will be accompanied by Emory Mulholland, Maurice Hoffman, Arthur Gallup and Robert Pealy, other members of the committee. This group will be joined by William Scheel, Chairman of the Board, Carl Johnson, County Administrator and Dr. Otto K. Engelke, Health Officer.

In Oakland county a meeting has been arranged with Dr. J. H. Moore, health officer and chief medical examiner. He is prepared to discuss the operation of the Oakland county plan, including arrangements with physicians, hospitals, police officers, and morticians, as well as general financing.

The Washtenaw county group then plans to call upon Dr. V. Burkett, health officer and chief medical examiner for Genesee county at Flint. Information gathered about these two systems will be used to suggest a proposal for adoption by the Board of Supervisors at their July session. Should the Aug. 5 election be favorable, the medical examiner plan will go into effect on or about the 6th or 7th of August, the day the votes are canvassed.

The Washtenaw County Medical Society spearheaded the move to place this issue before the Board of Supervisors, who in turn unanimously agreed to get an expression from the public on the Aug. 5 ballot. The new proposal requires the Board of Supervisors to appoint medical examiners to supplant the coroners elected heretofore. Only licensed physicians may be named medical examiners under this program. The Medical Society has been joined by other groups, pointing to the advantages of having licensed physicians determining the cause of death in those instances where the cause is not already known by a physician, or where foul play or violence may be of concern.

Advocates of the medical examiner plan also point to the convenience of having several medical examiners placed strategically throughout the county in contrast to the current system which has but two coroners, both residing in Ann Arbor. Approximately 12 counties in Michigan now operate with a modern medical examiner system.

Experts Expect To Find No Timber Resources on Moon

While most people are thinking of outer space, the U. S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service is focusing attention on the space in this country available to grow the timber needed by an expanding nation.

The future demand for wood will soar to new heights if America's growing population is to maintain its present standard of living. Wood-pulp and other timber products are an essential part of modern life. The 439 million acres of commercial forest land in the country now produce the wood used by 174 million people in homes, industry, packaging, and synthetics. Space for growing that wood will remain about the same. Forty years from now those same acres will have to grow twice as much timber as they do today, in order to supply the wood needed by 275 million people.

This startling fact is disclosed in a 700-page report, "Timber Resources for America's Future," released recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The report is the most complete appraisal of the timber situation ever made in this country. It is the result of a nation-wide survey and study made by the Forest Service in collaboration with State Foresters, other state agencies, forest industries, and many public and private organizations.

"There are no trees on the moon, according to experts," said Richard E. McArdle, Chief of the Forest Service, "so we'll have to get down to earth in this forestry business. As a matter of fact, we have got to get right down to the United States. We can depend only to a minor extent on supplies from other countries. I have no question about our ability to meet future needs for wood, but to do so we must apply our forestry knowledge and skills, and apply them fully, and lose no time in getting started."

OUTLOOK★ Business Trend
Leveling Out

Every day more persons are becoming convinced that the business trend is in the process of leveling out. Many items are cited to support this conviction. For example: 1. Personal income. In May total personal income rose by $1.2 billion. Such income also had risen in April but that rise was solely the result of enlarged transfer payments—social security, unemployment compensation, and the like. The May increase actually included a rise of $700 million in non-government wages and salaries, the first rise in this category in months. Since Congress just increased the wages and salaries of the military, post office workers, and all classified employees of the federal government, there is reason to believe personal income may show a further rise in coming months.

2. Production. Industrial production in May, as measured by the Federal Reserve Board index (1947-49) equals 100, increased one percentage point, or from 128 to 129, the first rise in this index since last September. It is notable, too, that there was a two point rise in durable goods manufacturing. This is significant because, to a marked extent, this has been a durable goods recession. During the summer months the index may decline again, depending upon whether seasonal correctives are adequate to take care of the volume of vacation and other shut-downs we shall have this year.

3. Housing starts. Private home-building activity in May rose on an annual basis, to above one million starts for the first time since last January. The trend of these figures is interesting. In January there were 1,020,000 starts, in February the number dropped to 890,000, in March to 880,000, in April it rose to 860,000, and in May it was 1,010,000. It appears, therefore, that those who have been maintaining we shall have at least a million starts in 1958 will prove correct.

4. Unemployment. In May unemployment fell by 200,000 to a total of 4.9 million. This was greater than the normal seasonal decline. The figures refer to May 15. The June figure will be higher because of the large number of persons coming out of school and looking for work. As a result of the good showing for May, however, there is reason to anticipate the June figure will hold below 6 million. Employment, of course, has been going up. The only weak spot is in manufacturing. That, as yet, has not begun to rise.

5. Retail sales. Consumers continue to buy at a high rate. May sales were at the April level, or about 3 per cent above the recession low earlier in the year. If one eliminates higher priced durables and automobiles, the total is favorable with that of pre-recession totals.

6. Steel production. For weeks the output of steel has been increasing. At its low, production was less than half of capacity. It is now close to two-thirds of capacity. This reflects an increase of orders, which in turn is partly the result of low inventories, and partly in anticipation of an increase in steel prices when wages go up July 1. The current level of production, therefore, may not be maintained for the remainder of the year, but there is no reason to assume that output will drop to a new low.

7. Stock market. Business profits are down sharply from last year, but the stock market recently has been making new highs for 1958. Of course this is of piggy banks which advance, but the behavior of the market has wide psychological affects from one end of the economic system to the other.

House Plants May Need Re-Potting To Aid Growth

Re-pot your house plants just before they undergo a growth spurt, as signs of new growth begin to appear, says Fred Widmeyer, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State University. They make the change most easily at this time.

As a rule, your plants need re-potting when their roots are beginning to show through the bottom of the pot. Cut these parts of the roots off before you re-pot the plant, however.

A "just-right" size of pot is important, too, continues Widmeyer. One which is too small allows the soil to dry out so quickly that the plant wilts. On the other hand, soil in an overly large pot tends to become water-logged.

You won't have to re-pot a larger plant as often if you restrict its root activity. Take the plant out and prune some of the roots. This dwarfs your plant and you can keep it in the same pot for a longer period of time.

As long as your house plant is doing well, don't re-pot it. The longer you can put it off, the better. You'll find that foliage plants are slower growers than most flowering plants and need less re-potting. Some plants go for years without re-potting. The jade plant is an example of the latter, concludes Widmeyer.

Milk is the nearly perfect food, say Michigan State University home economists. It gives you calcium for building and rebuilding bones and teeth. You also get riboflavin, a B-vitamin for building good skin and nerves. And it has protein-for-building-body-tissues, too.

Hibbs-Williams Nuptials Performed Saturday at Jackson

Jennifer Donalda Hibbs of Trist road, and Jerry David Williams of Jackson, were married at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Kingdom Hall at Jackson. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Fred Ritchey of Detroit.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hibbs, while the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Waterloo.

A waist-length gown of tulle and lace over silk tulle was chosen by the bride as her wedding dress. Lace was used for a bodice-length fitted jacket fastened with tiny satin-covered buttons. Her veil was fingertip length and was fastened to a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls. White mums and pink roses were used in a cascade arrangement for her bridal bouquet.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Wilfred Moore, was her only attendant. She was groomed for the occasion in white silk over tulle printed in a dogwood design of pink and green. She wore a tulle pointed hat and carried a bouquet of white mums.

Allan Williams of Jackson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Al Wilacker, also of Jackson, was ring bearer.

At the reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Dick Saeuga and Janet Pickles served punch and Mrs. Al Wilacker and Mrs. Charles Oliver served the bride's cake and bridegroom's cake, respectively. All are of Jackson.

Donna Wals of Grass Lake, assisted at the gift table.

Following a few days' stay in northern Michigan, the couple will be at home at 7850 Lansing avenue, Jackson.

After the wedding, the bride wore a watch plaid princess style dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses taken from her wedding bouquet.

The bride was a senior at Chelsea High school and the bridegroom is a 1958 graduate of Jackson High school.

Platform Suggested To Help Make Washing Easier

Take the energy washers, stooping and bending out of any task and your work is easier, points out Coral Morris, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State University.

If you have a front-loading automatic washer or dryer, you can "take the wash or dry" by mounting the machine on a sturdy wooden platform. The platform can be used with any front-loading machine that does not require bolting to the floor. To cut vibration, it's wise to bolt the platform itself to the floor and possibly to the wall. And be sure the machine is leveled.

Either a carpenter or a "do-it-yourself" husband can build the platform. Make it the exact size of the machine—bottom—then make it high enough so the front opening is a convenient work height for you.

In the platform there's room for a large drawer which can be used for temporary storage of soiled or unsorted laundry. Make the inside of the drawer of pegboard, a perforated pressed wood or air can circulate, thus reducing any chances of mildew.

Install the drawer with the opening below the machine on nylon rollers and metal runners for easy opening and shutting. To save the energy you can just use your hand under the lower front edge of the drawer to open and close it.

The idea for this energy saving platform comes from the U. S. Department of Agriculture experiments in energy saving kitchen in Beltsville, Md., says Miss Morris.

Homemaking Hints

If you're furnishing an apartment or a home, you'll find bench seating has lots of possibilities, say homemaking specialists. You can use it against the wall, in front of windows or out in the room where you can sit on it from either side.

Handbags are softer, rounder and slimmer this year. They may be large, but they are "chic-sat," say retailing experts. Some are of the flower garden variety, trimmed with massive bunches of flowers. Others are trimmed with fruit, heads or leaves. Look for straw, crunchy straw cloth, rough straw or the new satin straw.

Select Tools Which Will Help with Outdoor Cooking

Outdoor cookery calls for some special culinary accessories, say Anita Dean and Robert Rust, food and meat specialists at Michigan State University. They suggest some items that will come in mighty handy, when you're cooking over your outdoor grill this summer. One of the first things you'll want to get is a pair of tongs; in fact, you could get two pairs, according to Mrs. Dean and Rust. Use one for handling burning charcoal and the other for turning foods on the grill.

You could also use asbestos mittens. You'll find them handier and safer than pot holders for managing hot foods and equipment.

You need long-handled skewers for cooking these outdoor food favorites—kabobs. You can buy some equipped with wooden handles or make your own out of a heavy piece of wire—loop the end to form a handle.

For safety's sake, it's important to keep away from the fire when you're cooking. This is virtually impossible unless you have some long-handled cooking tools. The minimum three are a knife, fork and spatula.

Mrs. Dean and Rust suggest such things as a small shovel and fire rake, a hinged broiler and spit baskets for the "nice-to-have-but-not-necessary" department.

The broiler is a set of two grills hinged together. You place the food between them and simply flip them over to turn the food. They're especially nice for foods that are likely to break apart such as fish and hamburgers.

Spit baskets are designed to hold foods like spare ribs and pork sausages. Because they are attached to the spit, they eliminate hand turning.

Joan M. Mast, Lt. Stanley Toney Speak Nuptial Vows

St. Paul's Lutheran church at Ann Arbor was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding ceremony uniting Joan Margaret Mast of Dexter and Lt. Stanley C. Toney, a June 4 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. The Rev. Carl Brauer officiated.

Mrs. Waldron Vaughn of Dexter was the soloist. Before the ceremony she sang "How I Love Thee" and during the service she sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Mast of Dexter, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Henselwerdt of Steubach road.

The bride wore for her wedding a gown of imported Chantilly lace, floor-length with a chapel-length train. The long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists. The V-shaped back was accented with a tulle sash forming a bow and streamers. A lace headband, adorned with sequins and pearls, held her finger-length veil and she carried a white orchid encircled with steph-angia on a white ribbon.

Jean Mast, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Others who were in the wedding party as bridesmaid and junior bridesmaids are Mrs. Norman Marquardt of Portland, Mich., who served as the bridesmaid and Mary Ann Mast, sister of the bride, and Carol Mast, a niece, who were junior bridesmaids.

All were gowned alike in street-length, sleeveless dresses of white velvety over light blue tulle. Blue tulle was used for style accent forming a sash at the V-shaped back.

The maid of honor carried a bouquet of blue delphinium, yellow roses and mixed white flowers. The bridesmaid and junior bridesmaids carried similar bouquets with the exception that the roses were pink.

Lt. Robert L. Toney of Warner Robins, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and sabers bearers for the military style ceremony were Lieutenants Charles F. Denaford of San Antonio, Tex., George N. Lancaster of Fort Hood, Tex., Donald McCalla of Des Moines, Ia., Phillip H. Raigh of Wilmington, Del., John F. Holcek of Tampa, Fla., and Donald J. Roberts of Spokane, Wash.

Lieutenants Denaford, Lancaster and McCalla also served as ushers. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held in the church basement. Assisting there were Mrs. Glendon Boyce of Lowell, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Robert Toney, of Dexter, a sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Mrs. Robert Mast of Dexter and another sister of the bride, Mrs. Wayne Waggoner of Port Huron. Miss Joan Villwock of Benton Harbor, was in charge of the guest book.

The couple left later for a trip south and they will be at home after July 10 at Moore Air Force Base at Mission, Tex.

For going away the bride changed to a white dress and turquoise and mulberry print duster. Her accessories were also white and her corsage was the white orchid she had carried for the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Dexter High school and Western Michigan College and for the past two years has been employed as a medical technician at St. Mary's hospital, Passaic, N. J.

Lt. Toney attended Chelsea High school for three years and graduated from St. John's Military Academy at Danfield, Wis. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force when he graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, June 4.

Chicago—Automation, modern man's way of letting machines do his work for him, is reaching into new fields of business, including packaging. Some street beggars sing or play musical instruments as they hold out their cups. But one street beggar recently outdid them all.
