PLANS COMPLETE FOR CHICKEN BARBECUE

VILLAGE CREWS, under the direction of Homer Nixon, superintendent of Chelsea Electric and Water Department, are installing 30-foot light poles for the new street lights in the downtown area. They had just finished raising the pole for the light on East Middle street in front of the Palmer building when the above photograph was taken. An eight-foot arm at the top of the pole arching over the street holds a 400-watt mercury vapor bulb which gives several times the light of an ordinary bulb. The light poles on East and West Middle, Park and South streets in the downtown area are already in place. Yesterday afternoon the first main street poles were set in place at the New York Central Railroad tracks. The new lights will extend from the tracks to Orchard street and will be put in operation as soon as installation is completed.

Russell (left), Waterloo Recreation Area park manager. J. V. Burg, II, litter bag project chairman for the Jaycees is at the right. More than 2,000 of the litter bags have been distributed by Chelsea Jaycees as a civic project. Serving Will Begin Sunday Noon on Site Of Community Fair

if anyone in the Chelsea area, as well as any visitor from southern Michigan or northern Ohio and Indiana, falls to get a fair share of barbecued chicken at the Chelsea Community Fair Board's chicken barbecue Sunday, afternoon, it won't be the fault of committee members who have planned every detail to assure the best possible service. More than 150 volunteer workers of the community will be on hand to assist in the project. The original estimate of 2,000 dinners has been increased to 3,000 the past week as reports of ticket sales were received. Roland Spaulding is general ticket chairman and will also serve as "trouble shooter" at the barbecue. Thomas Burd, general chairman for the project, said yesterday that three-pound birds are being used, assuring generous halves for each individual dinner. These are larger servings than are customarily served at barbecues. A representative of Michigan State University, a barbecue specialist, will be present to supervise broiling operation on the outdoor barbecue pits. Henry E. Ortring is to be in charge of the pits Sunday, and Everett Van Riper has been assigned to be responsible for having the barbecue pits set up and ready to go Sunday morning. A large bell, formerly used to alert community drivers of various kinds in Grand Rapids and now owned by Glen Lehr, will be mounted on a truck which will be driven around the streets of Chelsea Sunday morning to remind people of the barbecue. Serving will start at 12 o'clock noon and continue throughout the afternoon and evening as long as chicken halves are available for sale. Large numbers of patrons can be accommodated at one time at tables in the recently-constructed building on the Community Fair grounds. Arrangements have also been completed for swift service on carry-out orders. Serving lines are so planned that maximum efficiency for fast serving is assured. James Daniels, serving table chairman, and Jack Merkel, table chairman, are in charge of the serving committee. It was indicated this week that some out-of-town groups who plan to picnic in the area, will stop at the fairgrounds for carry-out dinners to be eaten at nearby picnic grounds. Committee chairmen for the chicken barbecue include M. J. Anderson, publicity; H. T. Moore, cashier; Ferd Merkel, chicken take-out; Charles Lancaster, supplies; H. E. Ortring, barbecue pits; Everett Van Riper, pit installation; Harvey Fischer, electrical; and George Heydlauff, equipment. Mrs. Jack Bradbury is general chairman of the menu committee. Assisting her as sub-chairmen are

Curriculum Study Group Reports to School Board

A junior high school curriculum study committee has been holding weekly meetings since April 28 and last week submitted the following report. The curriculum Committee recommends to the Board of Education of the Chelsea School District the following philosophy of education to be implemented by the following aims of education: The aim of the Chelsea school system is to encourage the child to grow intellectually to his or her fullest potential, to the end that the child will use the intellect in a wise and useful manner. Opportunities and assistance shall be furnished in developing a physically, socially and morally accepted code of values.

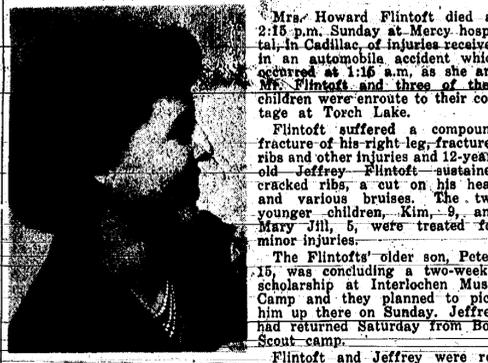

Siren Test Shows 'Poor' Coverage

Martin E. Miller, Civil Defense director for Zone VI, which includes the Chelsea area, said the limited number of reports he had received from residents of the community indicate that air raid siren coverage is not what it should be in this area. The same results were reported from all areas of the county following Monday's test of sirens. Miller said that people of the community who have not yet reported on whether they heard the sirens should do so at once. A post card giving name and address and a brief message is all that is necessary. If more convenient, people may telephone him, he said. Miller was scheduled to attend a meeting of Civil Defense directors at the County Building in Ann Arbor last night to report on coverage in this area and to hear reports from other counties.

The organization has the bags free of charge through all gas stations and stores in outlying locations. Farm Management Tour Scheduled Today Near Alba

Today, (Thursday), farmers of this area may combine a vacation trip to the northern part of the state with the 1958 state farm management tour scheduled to take place in Kalkaska and Antrim counties in the northwest portion of the lower peninsula.

Unique work-tested methods of soil building on the Orville Walker farm near Alba are expected to prove especially interesting to visitors from the lower part of the state. The farm is located on US-131, one-half mile north of Alba.

A chicken barbecue will be served there at 12 o'clock by 4-H club members of Antrim and Kalkaska counties under the direction of Grand Traverse County Extension Director Art Glidden.

John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, will speak at the noon program at the Walker farm and Mrs. Walker will provide organ music during the lunch hour.

Also featured at the noon program will be the Antrim county 4-H band winners in state music competition, the "Northland Dixie Stompers."

The Walker farm is widely known as a highly successful 1,100-acre, high-volume farm business developed from unproductive soil into some of the most productive in Michigan. A soil building program known as the "Walker Quickie" was carried out, resulting in yields of 400-800 bushels of potatoes without irrigation. Other specialized crops are also included.

The tour of the Walker farm, beginning at 2:45 p.m. will include a demonstration of mechanical stone piling; one of the most modern potato handling set-ups in Michigan; a complete farm shop trial plots on potato varieties and test plots with the use of gibberellic acid as a growth stimulator on potatoes.

The farm also has an underground sprinkling system; a sanitary garbage disposal system consisting of a dry well; beautiful lawn and flower garden; and a modern farm home which will be open for the ladies to visit.

The day's tour starts at 9:30 a.m. at the Victor J. Woodhams farm, located one mile east of US-131, 11 miles south of Kalkaska.

On the Woodhams farm will be seen demonstration plots of getting alfalfa stands, corn variety plots, bulk handling of milk, the transition from stanchion type operation to an expanded total farm operation, an excellent dairy herd and an outstanding example of success in raising dairy heifers for herd expansion and replacement cattle.

The 1958 tour will be of interest to all farmers of the state, especially those interested in rapid rebuilding of run-down soil.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 13, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woods, proved to be difficult for many because of the changes in M-92 relocation and the remodeling done by the family since the picture was taken.

Mystery Farm Is Home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woods

The July 17 "mystery farm" picture proved difficult to identify because it is no longer on the main road since re-location of M-92 north of Chelsea and because recent remodeling has changed the outside appearance of the house and garage.

Designated as "Mystery Farm No. 13," it was first identified by the present owner, himself, Albert Woods, 20160 M-92, Old M-32, which appears in front of the house in the photograph, is now the Woods' driveway to the re-located highway.

Aluminum awnings and new siding have also changed the appearance of the house.

Albert Woods and his wife, Nancy, have owned the house and garage of land surrounding it for the past 14 years.

They purchased it from the former Mrs. Michael Kappler, now Mrs. Rose Boos of Whitmore Lake. The Kappler family had owned the farm since 1912.

Purchased from the U. S. Government at $3.50 per acre in 1888, the property originally was part of a 300-acre farm owned by Frederick and Sarah Bolles. Parts of it were sold off through the years, the present Woods property having been owned successively by Aaron W. Shafer, 1863-1876; Michael Timmons, 1876-1895; Catherine Timmons, 1895-1900; and Mary Murphy, 1900-1910.

Other owners listed include John F. Runciman and Henry and Christina Winters.

Woods has been employed at Chelsea Products company the past 10 years. He has a good-sized garden spot and pastures a few cows on the remainder of the property. Mrs. Woods is employed at Central Fibre Products.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Woods, the family includes two daughters, Evelyn and Doris, and an eight-year-old son, Robert.

Others who identified the Woods place last week are Mrs. Frank Vint Dean Clark, Mrs. Harry Burnett, Mrs. Warren Forath, Paul Bollinger, Mrs. John Dvorak, Clinton Schultz, George Kleis, Anton Nielsen, Alton Brosamie, Mrs. Leonard Eder and Joseph Nyles.

Water Safety Swim for Health and Recreation

By Earle F. Zeigler
University of Michigan
(Water Safety Committee of the American Red Cross)

There is probably no finer sport for health and recreation than swimming. It is one of the few types of physical recreation that the whole family can enjoy together—from the toddler to grandpa with his arthritis.

Swimming the various strokes exercises all the large muscle groups of the body and improves the circulo-respiratory efficiency of the individual as well.

Even people with physical handicaps can enjoy this healthful exercise without fear of strain or injury. If these defects are remediable, swimming can do a lot to improve such conditions.

For these reasons we would encourage everyone to learn how to swim well through your school, recreation, or private agency program. All these organizations employ leaders who are qualified Red Cross instructors.

Even though you think you are poorly co-ordinated, practice at swimming will eventually surprise you. Swimming is different than many other sports which require continual response to new situations. People with the greatest desire, co-ordination, strength, and endurance will undoubtedly be the outstanding swimmers after long practice. Even though you may have only fair co-ordination, you can learn the motor pattern necessary for a particular stroke with practice. Strength and endurance can be developed by various types of muscular exertion involving intensity and continued exertion. If you try it, you will find yourself developing into a pretty fair swimmer. Try it out. The premiums you pay are low; the dividends are very high.

Ann Arbor Trust Made Agent for FHA Home Loans

Appointment of the Ann Arbor Trust Company as an "Authorized Agent" of the Federal Housing Administration was announced today by Earl H. Cress, president.

The appointment covers Washtenaw county exclusive of Ann Arbor, Pittsford, Ypsilanti and Superior townships. These areas will continue to come under the direct jurisdiction of the Detroit FHA office.

As an Authorized Agent, the Ann Arbor Trust Company is permitted to make FHA insured home mortgage loans without prior approval of the FHA district office. Under this arrangement, all processing will be done locally, using the services of qualified local appraisers and inspectors, Cress explained.

The value in being made an Authorized Agent is that we can offer so much faster service on FHA loans for our customers," he said.

Cress indicated that generally a commitment can be issued in a week from date of application.

The Ann Arbor Trust Company in 1957 was the first local lending institution to become an Approved Mortgagee under the Federal Housing Administration.

Summer, fall and winter may be seasons, but spring is a miracle.

Are you neglecting yourself?

Many mothers are so busy looking after their families that they often neglect themselves. Are you like that? Do you, for example, give your children plenty of milk but neglect to drink enough yourself. You should drink at least three glasses of milk a day—especially if you're over thirty-five.

Milk, you see, helps rebuild body tissues as they wear out. Helps you feel more vigorous and alert. Milk keeps your skin smooth and free of premature wrinkles. Even gives your hair more sheen. That's why you feel younger . . . Look younger . . . when you drink more milk.

United Nations Observers Report 'No Mass Infiltration' in Lebanon

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations, has issued statements about his visit to Lebanon, and that of his assistants that we think are not only unfortunate but incomplete and inaccurate.

In the first place, the United Nations Observation Group has reported to the Security Council that it was unable to confirm charges of Syrian infiltration. Hammarskjold's announcement, containing much the same information, stated that there was no evidence of "mass infiltration." (These statements were, of course, made before President Eisenhower ordered the Marines into Lebanon.)

The mass infiltration he referred to concerned charges of the official government of Lebanon, charges which laid the blame on Syria for widespread interference in Lebanese affairs. The government at Beirut also charges that Syrian arms and munitions are flowing freely across the border to rebels in Lebanon.

The assinine part of the United Nations report is the fact that the U. N. observers admit they were not allowed to go into certain rebel-held areas on the border. In other words, the value of the report is absolutely worthless, because the rebels allowed the U. N. representatives to go only where they wished them to go.

As a final note, we cannot understand Hammarskjold's announcement that there was no evidence now of "mass infiltration" when he admitted himself he was not allowed to go into certain border areas held by the rebels. How could he possibly know whether there was any evidence if he was not allowed to examine the evidence or the situation where the evidence might exist?

Care May Prevent Drowning Tragedy

Vacation time is in full swing and, judging from the experience of other years, approximately 3,500 lives will be lost by accidental drowning during these next few months. This represents only about half of the total number of people drowned each year, but they are crowded into the three summer months.

The annual death toll in the United States from drowning grows larger each year. More than one-half of those dying in this manner are young persons under 24 years of age, the largest single age group being youths between 15 and 16 years.

Every vacationist should be careful this summer. A period of rest and relaxation from work is fine, and necessary, but carelessness should not rob you of the pleasure. To venture too far in the water or to take chances in a swift current means running the risk of drowning. Please be careful.

Hired Help
 According to a headline in a local paper, four teachers were recently hired for a near-by school. It seems to me somebody picked the wrong words that time. Are teachers professional people or are they hired help? Or to put it another way, "is teaching a trade or a profession?"

There are hundreds of so-called professions today, ranging all the way from social workers to public agents. There was a time, according to the dictionary, when the three learned professions were theology, law, and medicine.

What sets a profession apart from other occupations?
 I should say a profession requires advanced education including both general and specialized knowledge. A man might be a good welder without knowing anything except welding, but "knowing" is not nothing but law wouldn't be much of a lawyer.

Next, a professional person places service above salary; so that a doctor will work as hard to cure a poor child as he would to cure a rich one.

Third, a professional person is recognized as being a responsible person. He earns blame or credit for his own decisions, because he doesn't have any foreman over him to take the blame or praise.

If he is to be held personally responsible then he must be granted the independence to decide and act according to his own best judgment.

This brings us back to teaching. I myself believe that teaching is a profession.

If a teacher's advanced education fits him to be responsible, then he has the right to be independent. And if he is to be independent, he can't have anybody bossing him but himself.

And if it isn't proper for a teacher to have a boss, then it isn't proper to speak of "hiring" him. You can hire a farm hand or a housemaid; in those occupations it is the "boss" who makes the decisions. But you can't "hire" a doctor or a clergyman, because a professional man has to know enough to make his own decisions.

A board of education ought to find the best available teachers and administrators and let them make their own decisions. It's putting the cart before the horse if a non-professional citizen tries to tell a professional teacher how to teach.

Attorneys are credited with killing more humans than any animal, other human beings excepted, of course.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Sentiment is already beginning to jell on the issue of a constitutional convention for Michigan more than four months before the November election.

The issue goes on the ballot automatically but the results are much less certain.

If approved, the state will call a constitutional convention the next year to rewrite the basic law of the state. The last wholesale rewrite was in 1908.

It has been changed by amendment 63 times since then. Dozens of other proposed changes have been rejected by the voters.

Republicans are split on the issue of whether to call a convention.

One side of the party suspected to be the majority continues to favor the desirable streamlining changes. This would retain the basic 1908 document under which Michigan lives but add features to fit it to modern society.

On the other hand, Paul D. Bagwell, the Republican candidate for governor, is using a 1908 Oldsmobile in his campaign to dramatize the need for a new constitution.

Still other Republicans are different because by using the present method of selecting delegates to a constitutional convention—three from each senatorial district—they would keep control of its product.

Democrats would like a new constitution, but

They feel the method of selecting delegates, with the Senate in control of Republicans, would be undesirable. They would like a method of dominating the new constitution by changing the way delegates are chosen.

Democrats claim, on the heels of sweeping election victories in the past 10 years, that they constitute the real majority.

They blocked enabling legislation during the 1958 session, arguing that some fairer method should be devised. Democrats favored choosing delegates according to House districts.

The argument goes back to the 1952 constitutional amendment which created the "balanced legislature."

In theory, the Senate was to be given 34 seats based on area and the House 110 seats based on population.

However, the amendment kept the moiety clause, a headache for popular parties since governments were first invented. It works this way:

The state is divided into 110 districts according to population. Any district with one more citizen than the minimum required is given another seat.

Democrats feel this grants unequal representation to the rural Republican areas. They delight in stating that the minority Democrats in the legislature represent more people and obtained more votes than the majority Republicans.

Republicans fear that some of the most cherished of the present constitution's amendments would be altered or dropped from whatever new document the convention drafted.

Republicans would like to keep the "balanced legislature" and most leaders of both parties want to retain the basic tenets of state civil service.

Recognizing its faults which, they agree, can be corrected, neither party publicly wants to renege the pre-1954 era when technical experts and stenographers were hired for their political ties and not their talents.

Some of the farm groups would like to abolish the amendment which legalized the sale of oleo margarine, feeling it severely damaged agriculture and the sale of butter.

The public, too, has a great stake in the November election on the issue of calling a constitutional convention.

Many of the major reforms have been initiated by popular petition, the civil service amendment, for instance.

Difficult and uncertain procedures remain, however, before the new constitution can be developed and finally drafted and put into effect.

The convention will extend at least five months if one is called, and the newly proposed constitution must be submitted to the voters at another election.

The whole affair is certain to produce two major campaigns, one for and against the calling of a convention and another for and against the final constitution.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
 The fellows up at the country store Saturday night was bragging about what fine gardens they got this year. I had to just not listen to no garden this year. My garden tools stay over at Ed Doolittle's house anyhow and I just figured I'd let Ed plant my garden for me this year. Fer one thing, it'll save his chickens a heap of extra walking. His chickens sleep pretty sound between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. and last year I tried to git my seeds in the ground while they was asleep but it didn't work so good. They had insomnia that night.

It's a funny thing about Ed's chickens, they got a good high school education, at least they can read, which is better'n Johnny can do. I used to stick the empty seed package on a pole to show what kind of seed was planted in each row. Then chickens would go out the back door for putting and leave the rest of 'em alone.

One year I stuck a spinach package up on ever pole and it was two weeks afore Ed's chickens got hungry enough to bother my garden.

Well, from what I read in the papers, things is still mighty complicated, especially in Washington. Some Congressman from Georgia said yesterday that the country was in such a bad fix we couldn't even give it back to the Indians. He says they wouldn't have it.

He might be right. There's a big difference between going out and shooting a buffalo for your meat and taking a five dollar bill to town and gitting a pork chop. And when a Indian squaw wanted to git some place she put a little red mud on her face, stuck a feather in her hair and strapped her papoose on her back and took off. Now she's got to put red paint on her face and also on her toenails, git a queer looking contraction on her head and a baby sitter for her papoose. And when the Indians got tired of their Chief they just granted a few times and got a new one. They didn't have to wear no buttons in their coat lapel and listen to no campaign speeches. I reckon that Georgia feller was right, the Indians would make a bad deal to trade their beads back for the country.

But taking it year after year I reckon we ain't got the greatest country on earth. If we could git prices down a bit there wouldn't be no doubt about it. I went to town Saturday to do a little shopping and when I got home my pocketbook had been washed in the blood of a lamb. I bought me a pair of shoes and I want to tell you one thing. The old lady that lived in a shoe couldn't make it today. A shoe big enough to hold her family would cost half of Port Knox.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Curly "Eggs" 'Em In

Well, we've had drive-in restaurants, drive-in movies, drive-in banks. Now a drive-in every. It was inevitable.
Curly Rice and his Misus have sold eggs retail at their place for some time. "But all that running back and forth," exclaims Mrs. Rice, "it fairly wore you out."
"So we set aside one room for the egg business. We enlarged a window about car height, and creased the driveway past it. It's efficient—but it cuts 'visiting' with customers and you know how I love to talk!"
From where I sit, I'll go along with Curly's wife—because there's nothing like good talk between good neighbors—especially when there's a healthy difference of opinions. Now you might like some older to help the conversation along—I happen to prefer a glass of beer. As long as we agree on our right to disagree what does it matter?

Nationals Team Is Tied with Willow Run for League Lead

Results of last week's recreation baseball league saw the Nationals win their first game of the season, 8-2, over the Yankees. Robert Rosenbush and Ed McCann each had two hits for the Sluggers. White was the winning pitcher.

Monday, the Chelsea National's game with Saline was postponed because of rain. On Wednesday the Nationals lost to Manchester, 6-5. Gerry Ringe and Dave McLaughlin both pined triples for the Chelsea team. The defeat dropped the league-leading Nationals into a first-place tie with the Willow Run Nationals.

On Monday, the Chelsea Americans lost a 6-2 decision to Milan. Milan scored four runs in the seventh as the Americans' defense collapsed. Homer Nixon pitched a fine game, even in defeat, allowing the Milan but two hits until the third and drove in Ken Larson who had singled and Rich Wood who had bled out a punt, for Chelsea's two runs.

On Wednesday, the Chelsea Americans defeated Clinton, 9-3. Andy Fletcher was the winning pitcher, giving up but four hits. Fly Holmes each had two hits, while Ken Larson contributed three hits, including a double, to the attack.

National Polio Foundation Expands Scope of Activities

The Washtenaw County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, now known as the National Foundation, looks forward with keen anticipation to participation in its broad new health program, Mrs. Joseph Cox, Chapter Chairman said today.

Returning from Detroit where volunteer leaders of the National Foundation of this area attended a closed circuit telecast at which Basil O'Connor, president, outlined the new objectives of the organization supported by the March of Dimes, Mrs. Cox called the widened purposes of the National Foundation "an exciting new concept in the health field."

The National Foundation, while continuing its winning fight against polio, plans to expand its activities to include a wide range of health problems. Initial new goals will be arthritis and birth defects (congenital malformations). Virus research and investigations of disorders of the central nervous system will be expanded.

"Our chapter will continue to meet its obligations to polio patients in Washtenaw county for as long as they need assistance," Mrs. Cox said. "Mr. O'Connor made it very clear that this is our primary responsibility. But the goal of a voluntary association dedicated to improvement of man's health, ready and able to move in whatever direction scientific discoveries lead to, not confined to a single disease, is a tremendous challenge."

The flexible forces which the National Foundation will now become, is the result of 20 years of pioneering and achievement by scientists and laymen throughout the nation. It will be a privilege to help fund this new program.

Financial support for the new program will be sought through the traditional March of Dimes in January, Mrs. Cox emphasized, adding that additional responsibilities undoubtedly will mean additional funds for Washtenaw county, as elsewhere.

"We must prepare this January to meet new financial commitments," she declared. "We shall not attempt to move into the new areas of patient aid over night. A great deal of study and work is ahead for those of us in the chapter, preparing to deal with the new problems of arthritis and birth defects. O'Connor indicated that precise information about these two areas is not yet available; one of the first things our chapter must do now is to determine what patients there are; what facilities we have for giving them care and the availability of qualified professional workers to do the job. Plans are being made at national headquarters to help us gather this information."

"Our patient aid program for children through 18 who have arthritis and certain birth defects will

PERSONAL NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heininger of Toledo, O. were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Heininger, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Quinan and Mrs. T. L. Smith of Detroit, spent Sunday here as guests of the Misses Margaret and Anne Miller.

The Rev. H. J. Meppelink is a patient at Foote hospital, Jackson, where he underwent an emergency appendectomy Friday and a hernia operation yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Howell and family of Jackson, spent Sunday here with Mrs. Howell's mother, Mrs. Emma Seitz.

Our research program, as was explained at the telecast, already is beginning to pursue new leads, and our professional education program is expanding.

Medical care in arthritis and birth defects is much like that for polio. Mrs. Cox pointed out: "There are no epidemics," she said, "but the patients are with us all the time, and new ones occur at a more or less predictable rate. In polio, the threat of epidemics hung over a community every summer, and no one could predict the number of cases. New cases of arthritis and birth defects occur all year around, year in and year out. We must do something for these patients continuously, just as we now do for polio. This is a real challenge to volunteers. I feel certain that the people of Washtenaw county will respond to it enthusiastically."

Friendship Renewal After 50-Year Absence

Edwin Beutler was surprised last Thursday by a caller he had not seen for 50 years. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gerken of Stockton, Calif., passing through while visiting relatives north of here, stopped to see Beutler whose home on North Main street was purchased in October, 1906, from Mrs. Gerken's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Griffith. The Griffiths sold out and moved to California to benefit their health, but Mr. Griffith died soon after. Mrs. Griffith came back for a visit about 38 years ago, Beutler said. Mrs. Gerken, the former Golden Griffith, was six years old when the Beutler house was her old home. The same day, Beutler had another caller, Clayton Alger of Napoleon, whom he also had not seen for 60 years.

Rumors are that in the "Reluctant Debutante," Kay Kendall steals it from Rex Harrison.

Orry-Kelly has signed to do the clothes for Marilyn Monroe's picture, and there won't be a sack or trap in it. He says he's following the Vivonne line, which follows the lines of a woman's body and flatters it.

Eva Gabor, when she sells her New York apartment, will buy a home in Bel-Air, just like her sister, Zsa Zsa.

Leslie Caron is certainly a lucky girl. She and Cecil Beaton became friends when he designed the clothes and decor for "Gigi." Now she's having a second baby, and Cecil is decorating a nursery for her; an unusual activity and a sure sign of a devoted friend.

Washington Report
By Senator Charles E. Potter

The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

A POWER-MAD Egyptian Hitler, egged on by the Kremlin, is launching American interests in the Middle East. Using the "big lie" technique over transmitters of Radio Cairo and six new ones bought from Czechoslovakia, Nasser is broadcasting inflammatory poison through the Nile-delta, North Africa, Ghana and the Sudan. He has fomented revolutions in Syria and Lebanon, a near-revolution in Jordan, and his latest thrust has toppled the government of Iraq, keystone of the democratic Baghdad Pact alliance.

If successful, the Nasser-Khrushchev effort will drive millions of poverty-stricken illiterates of the Arab world, who yearn for bread and a sense of personal worth, into buying Communism. On the day that happens, a giant pendulum will have swung against the free world. No one likes the thought of sending American fighting men to the seething danger areas; but we must remember that Nasser's activity, even though internally inspired, is aggression in the truest sense. Internal aggression of this type is every bit as dangerous as overthrow by armed force.

As this writing, United States Marines are moving into Lebanon; British paratroopers from Cyprus are landing in Jordan, and French troops reportedly are heading for the eastern Mediterranean. In New York the United Nations is debating the possibility of dispatching a UN force to the Middle East.

In this perilous moment in our history, we can be sure that President Eisenhower did not order troop movements off-the-cuff. The strategists realize all too well the thin edge of the sword which they tread. One slip, one blunder of armed forces in this day of atomic and hydrogen weapons, could result in the annihilation of the human race.

The United States is taking a calculated risk to protect American lives and interests, and the best we can hope to achieve for the time being is a stalemate in the Middle East. Any other consequence is too frightening to contemplate. In the meantime, members of Congress and the President in a show of support which I am confident reflects the feeling of all Americans.

victimized by ruthless commodity exchange speculators, can look forward to substantial savings.

For years perishable onions have spelled trouble for farmers. Violent price swings brought on by a few greedy speculators drove prices down to almost nothing long enough to make pockets of a few operators" then shot them up again. Onions simply do not lend themselves to futures trading and both houses of Congress recognized this in passing the legislation. The Senate amended the measure to include penalties and losses on confidence after this provision has received House approval, that the President will sign the measure into law.

Interestingly enough, the individual who can claim a major share of credit for pushing through the legislation is a gentleman with an aromatic name—Jack Rose of East Lansing, Secretary of the National Onion Association. Onion farmers owe Jack a tremendous debt of gratitude for the long fight for work he put in at the Capitol.

AND WE STILL BLAME THE SCHOOLS: For many years, the American people have spent more money on cigarettes each year than on all education of their children.

READING SPEED
Philadelphia—The average American can't read a bit faster now than he could in the sixth grade, an expert in the field declared recently. This statement was made by Dr. Nila Bantom Smith, director of the reading clinic at New York University. When he finishes grade school the average child can read about 200 words a minute. And he holds that speed right through high school and college and on into his business or professional life, according to Dr. Bantom Smith.

Fantasy Helps Child Develop To Face Realities of Life

Ann Arbor, Mich. — Because your child daydreams? You're not too insistent on calling Johnny out of that dream world.

Chances are he is rehearsing things in his imagination," says Frederick Wyatt, associate professor of psychology and director of the Psychological Clinic at the University of Michigan.

"Childhood and adolescence provide many examples for the rehearsal function of the imagination," he says. "There is little which the child learns without testing it first in his fantasy, and without working it through in fantasy many times afterward."

The new insight has been truly acquired and made part of his self.

"The roles and commitments of adult life will have to be tried out many times in fantasy before they can be adequately taken up in reality; how to assert oneself, how to take responsibility, how to be a parent, and many others."

"Imagination is that action which has been tested before it stands a better chance of success than one pushed forward by impulse without preparation."

"It is hardly possible to underestimate the enormous importance of fantasy in our lives. By protecting him at least temporarily from frustration, it affords him a small creator's power."

"This is the most enduring gift of the imagination. It gives us the power not to depend on the moment and its few chances. It also provides a realm of images, a world of one's own into which one can always withdraw for a respite."

"People whose imagination is closed live on a small patch of mental ground, while those in whom fantasy has had a chance to develop into its natural part have a big holding at their disposal."

"People with an unobstructed imagination are not likely to be bored, and at least in one important respect are independent of others. They may not be more secure, but they will be more differentiated, and their lives may become more spacious than those of less imaginative people."

Farm Safety Week Stresses Many Everyday Hazards

This week, July 20-26, is National Farm Safety Week but it's up to farm families to use safe practices—865 days a year; insists Richard Pfister, extension agricultural engineering safety specialist at Michigan State University.

"It's a job for the whole family to be alert for hazards for safe living," says Pfister. "They need to quit themselves about hazards that may be found on the farm, home, on the highway or in recreational activity. They must be especially watchful for hazards around machinery and unsafe climbing devices, the two most common areas of farm work injury."

About 12,800 lives each year are taken by accidents to farm residents. More than a million farm residents are injured. In fact, farming claims more "on the job" deaths than any other major industry, reports Pfister. This points out the need for strong accident prevention efforts among all farm people.

The theme of this year's emphasis is "When You Work For Safety—Safety Works for You."

"This clearly indicates that safety doesn't happen by accident," says the safety specialist. "Planning for greater safety on your farm may be the most important planning that you have ever done."

Young Deer Visits Garden Of North Lake Home

BY RALPH ROBEY

★ Employment Turns Favorable

Because of the large number of persons getting out of school and seeking jobs, June normally is the month when unemployment reaches its high point of the year. This year, as usual, the influx into the labor force took place. But, if June proves to be the 1958 high point in terms of unemployment it is the most favorable news in a long time.

The figures for June, which relate to the middle of the month, have recently been released. They show an increase of about 1.5 million in the labor force. Some 920,000 of this increase found jobs, and 638,000 were added to the ranks of the unemployed.

This brought the unemployment total to 5.4 million. It may be difficult to understand why an increase in unemployment can be considered favorable. The reason is the increase was less than normal for June. For those out of work and unable to find jobs, this is small solace. But for the economic system as a whole it still is good news. It had been feared, and anticipated, that the June figure might reach 6 million. Facing short of that by 600,000 is definitely good news. In percentage terms the present figure is 6.8 percent of the labor force, as compared with 7.2 percent a month earlier.

The over-all totals, however, do not tell a whole story by any means. For the first time since the recession started last August there was an increase in manufacturing employment. The growth was not large, and leaves the total well below a year earlier, but the change of direction is noteworthy. Further, the increase was in both durable and nondurable goods manufacturing. Of the decline in employment from a year ago almost two-thirds has been in durable goods manufacturing. It is especially encouraging to have this segment of the economy start to move upward. Of course, it is too early to assume that we shall have continuous improvement from here on, but such a turn for the better adds weight to the thesis that at least we are beginning to bottom out, and that is a primary essential step for an upturn.

Equally important with the growth of employment was an increase in the average work-week of factory production workers. As of last August that stood at 40 hours. It then started a decline which, with few exceptions, carried it to 38.2 hours in April. It went up a little in May and in June was 38.8 hours, or approximately one hour above its low of two months earlier.

This is significant because a lengthening of the work-week is usually a forerunner of a growth in employment. This is because employers as a class are inclined to add to the number of hours they have their employees work before adding to the number of workers. The increase in the length of the work-week, in other words, would appear to indicate that employment should continue to grow. Average hourly earnings in manufacturing remained constant. The result was that weekly wages rose to slightly above $83.00. This is the highest figure ever attained in manufacturing, but it must be remembered it is only an average, and many individual industries have a higher weekly earnings figure.

How does all of this fit into thinking on the business trend? Within the Administration it is taken as good news of high order. For example, Secretary of Commerce Weeks said that he thinks there has been a definite turn for the better in sentiment among businessmen and consumers, and that he is "more optimistic." His specific prediction is for only slight changes during the summer vacation period and then a fall upturn. Some other Administration members believe the turn already has taken place.

My own appraisal is somewhat more reserved. These employment data are strong evidence that the business trend is bottoming out, and it is difficult to believe that we shall have much variation either up or down over the summer.

Whether we shall have an upturn this fall is still an open question. We may have, and certainly we should have. But we have a lot of unsolved problems—labor taxes, and so forth—which it is not certain that business can really recover unless something constructive is done toward solving these problems.

Child Who Talks at Early Age May Be Unusually Bright

East Lansing—The child who likes to talk and starts it at an early age may have superior intelligence.

This indication comes from Dr. Elizabeth M. Drews, researcher and psychologist at Michigan State University.

Although there are no adequate tests for the very young, Dr. Drews reports these are several qualities which may indicate aspects of giftedness:

"The child who likes to talk or sing, speaks in sentences at the age of two (although a few very bright children may not speak until three or four); is adept at physical and motor activities at an early age—such as sitting up at five months or walking at nine months; is intensely curious; wants to really know how things work, and can follow directions and be given a series of things to do and remember them.

"Any or all of these may indicate superior ability. Children who draw points out that a child who is intellectually superior can be measured quite accurately by the time he reaches the eighth grade. She emphasizes that selection should not be based on only one IQ test but on as many various measures and observations as possible.

There is evidence, reports Dr. Drews, that adults can not only maintain a high level of intelligence but can actually make gains. This is contrary to previous thinking that intelligence leveled off at about the age of 16 and began to decline in the 20s.

Family Picnic Honors Guest from Massachusetts

Sara Ellen Geer left Saturday to return to Cambridge, Mass., after spending two weeks here visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. L. Geer. During her stay a family picnic was held in her honor and guests from various points in this area visited here. A former roommate, Joan Thompson of Saginaw, spent several days with her and one of her brothers, J. C. Geer of Kenosha, Wis., spent the week-end at the family home. Thursday evening, William Kyle of Boston, Mass., was a guest at the Geer home.

A LOT OF DOUGH: A million dollars in one-thousand dollar bills would make a stack barely 8 inches tall. BUT a billion dollars would make a stack 140 feet taller than the Washington Monument (or, 664 feet tall).

Immunization Reducing Number Of Polio Cases

Lansing — Immunization continues to reduce death and crippling from polio, the Michigan Department of Health reports.

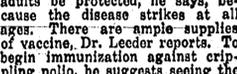

During the first six months of this year, only ten cases of paralytic polio and one death were reported, as contrasted with 10 paralytic cases and two deaths during the first half of 1957.

Since the polio vaccine was field tested in 10 Michigan counties in 1954, there has been a steady decline in crippling cases and deaths. In 1958, there was a total of 1,127 paralytic cases and 108 deaths. Last year, the widespread use of polio vaccine had cut crippling cases to 121 and deaths to 12.

"The heartening reduction in the number of cases and deaths continues only if parents make sure that their children receive the full three doses of vaccine, beginning at age three months," explains Dr. F. S. Leeder, director of Disease Control, Records and Statistics of the state health department.

If the 210,000 children who will be born in Michigan this year are not properly immunized, he warns, "paralytic polio could make a tragic return."

It is equally important that adults be protected, he says, because the disease strikes at all ages. There are ample supplies of vaccine, Dr. Leeder reports. To begin immunization against crippling polio, he suggests seeing the family doctor without delay or consulting the local health department.

RURAL AMERICANA—A practice fast disappearing from the American scene is the one shown in the above photograph with an oil pull threshing outfit in operation on the Nelson Peterson farm last Saturday afternoon. Most farmers now combine their wheat but Peterson still prefers to cut the wheat with his binder and have it threshed by his old friend, Will Barber, who owns the threshing outfit. The straw pile beside the machine is already greatly reduced in size since Peterson has been baling it this week. The threshing machine was operating on the Edward Peterson farm when the picture was taken. The wheat in this field belonged to the Nelson Petersons' son-in-law, Rudolph Rohde. The Nelson Peterson field which yielded 115 bushels of good wheat had been threshed earlier in the day. Mrs. Nelson Peterson served dinner for the nine men who took part in the work.
