Sidewalk Days Sale Event Set

"Sidewalk Days" in Chelsea are scheduled for next week Thursday and Friday, Aug. 22 and 23, and merchants are planning outstanding bargains for the big sale event. Last year, the first time the sidewalk sale days were held in Chelsea, the project met with phenomenal success, and setting the date forward approximately six weeks is expected to add to its effectiveness. Last year the weather was bright and sunny for the two-day sale but the shady side of the street proved to be rather chilly. The 1957 sale was held the first week in October.

"Sidewalk Days" is the occasion for moving merchandise outside of the stores in Chelsea's Maxwell street style and provides a gala effect for the bargain days sale. Seasonable merchandise will be marked down to new low prices and special bargains will be featured on many items.

The dates—Friday and Saturday, Aug. 22 and 23, 1958. The place—the downtown area in Chelsea.

Ad Campaign To Promote State Growth

First in a series of industrial development advertisements to be published over the coming year as a public service by more than 275 Michigan newspapers appears today in The Chelsea Standard.

Designed to stress the importance of community participation in industrial development programs, the advertisements are directed to readers rather than organized groups. The series, consisting of 26 quarter-page ads, scheduled to appear at two-week intervals, is a co-operative effort of the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department.

Directors of the Michigan Press Association voted last January to undertake the program and plan to have been moving forward for several months through a special

Farm Bureau Lets Contract For Building

A decisive step toward the development of an office building for the recently purchased acre on the Farm Council grounds was taken Wednesday night, Aug. 6, when the Executive committee of the Board of Directors signed a contract with Ted Braun of Saline for the construction of an office building.

The building committee, headed by Arthur Kuhl of Lima, and composed of members Ronald Patrick, Superior, George Kennedy, Northfield, LaVerne Coy of Dexter, and Robert Tefft of Pittsfield township, was assisted by the Board and chairman Emerson Haussler, to obtain architectural plans and specifications and to let them out for bids some time ago.

The proposed building, designed by architect William Bailey, will be composed of an office and insurance room, and small meeting room on the first floor. A basement room with kitchen facilities will also be included.

On Monday, Aug. 4, the committee met to open four bids, which ranged from a low of $20,918 to $27,500. Bidders were Eugene Young, Ted Braun, Robert Lowery and Ralph Hartman.

The committee voted, with three members, Kennedy, Patrick and Tefft, favoring Braun, Coy and Kuhl cast votes for Young.

Braun's bid of $21,943.43 was reduced at the time of signing the contract when it was revealed that specifications could be modified without changing the quality of the finished structure. The final figure stood at $21,299. Those who favored Braun were the former Washenaw county contractor, and one whose electrical and plumbing work was to be done by persons close to the site who might be called in to service if necessary.

The Executive committee also made final plans to borrow needed additional funds from a Washenaw Farm Bureau couple who offered a low interest loan.

Work on the building will begin as soon as necessary permits have been obtained.

Tuesday visitors at the home of Miss Nina Belle Wurster and her aunt, Miss Nina Crowell, were James and John, of Pasadena, Calif., and Mr. Nettleton of Flint.

The committee includes Mrs. P. G. Schaible, Jr., Mrs. Jack Walnitz and Mrs. Robert Vanderkelen.

Farm Council's Rural Activities Center Will Be Dedicated Sunday

DEDICATION SET—The Washtenaw County Farm Council's Rural Activities Center at the end of Pleasant Lake road on Saline-Ann Arbor road, shown in the above aerial photo, will be dedicated Sunday. Ceremonies will begin at 2:30 p.m., with George McIntyre, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, as the principal speaker. The Activities Center is one of the finest in the state. Plainly visible in the photo are the main activities building; the three barns, each 150' long; and the natural arena 200'x100' in size. In conjunction with the dedication, the Farm Council's annual chicken barbecue will be held, with dinners to be served from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

Chicken Barbecue To Be Held

Only a few years ago Washtenaw county owned a fairgrounds which nobody, rural or city, was very proud of. The buildings were very much run down and the grounds were definitely an eyesore to the city of Ann Arbor and Washtenaw county.

The facilities were not adequate to hold such events as the County 4-H Show, horse shows, etc.

A group of farmers, acting primarily through Washtenaw County Farm Bureau, decided to do something about the situation. After many months of negotiating and planning, which is always slow on public projects, the Farm Council now owns one of Michigan's finest activities centers.

The center includes 20 acres of land, located at the end of Pleasant Lake road on Saline-Ann Arbor road. One year ago a main activities building of cement block, 150' x 50' was constructed. Also three pole-type aluminum barns were built. Two barns are 60'x150' and one 50'x150'. The council has just completed floor, toilet and kitchen facilities in the main activities building.

Included in the grounds is a natural arena, the bottom or show area of which is 200' x 100'. Recently the Washtenaw county Sheriff's posse constructed a fence around the show ring.

The Posse horse show, held recently, attracted horse showmen from all over southeastern Michigan. Many said it was the best show ring in this part of the state.

Next Sunday, Aug. 17, Washtenaw County Farm Council will hold the dedication of this new Activities Center. The program will begin at 2:30 p.m. George McIntyre, Director of Michigan Department of Agriculture, will be the speaker.

The annual Farm Council charcoal broiled chicken barbecue will be held in conjunction with the dedication. Dinners will be served from 12:00 noon to 6:00 p.m. Tickets are available from all 4-H club members, leaders, Farm Bureau and Extension office plus various business in towns throughout the county.

Proceeds from the barbecue will go to further improvements in the center. Improvements yet to come are heat, lights, tiling and painting of the main activities building. Tables and chairs will have to be purchased. Permanent lighting of the show arena is yet to come.

The activities center is the property of the people of Washtenaw county. Supporting the Farm Council is the obligation of all the people of the county. This will assure the people of a center of which all can be proud.

Mrs. Adolph Eisen of Detroit, Mrs. James R. Lee and son of Cambridge, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Don Labo and daughter, Sharon, of Flint, and Miss Lillie Shackonut were Wednesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elba Gage. Mrs. Lee and son spent the week with her mother, Mrs. Eisen.

Martin E. Miller, Civil Defense director for this area (Zone VI) says it should be of the utmost importance for everyone in the community to attend.

Principal discussion will center on the current CD situation in the county, the capability of both Russia and America for attack and how an attack might affect Washtenaw county.

PAUL SEITZ moved his threshing outfit to the Alfred Lindauer farm on Fletcher road the first of the week and threshed Lindauer's Rodney variety oats which yielded 1,148 bushels from 15 acres. The new type oat has proved to have fatter kernels, tougher straw which is ideal for use in barnyard lounging areas, and gives bigger yields than older varieties. Seitz grows a similar variety on his own farm and uses his own threshing outfit to thresh the oats and other grains on his home farm. He purchased the used threshing machine, a McCormick-Deering outfit, three years ago and Irven Weiss works co-operatively with him, providing the tractor power for its operation.

Seitz and his sons, Eugene, Melvin and Raymond work the 180-acre home farm; the neighboring 68-acre Reichert farm; and parts of the Alfred Lindauer farm. In addition, the senior Seitz is Lindauer farm. In addition, the senior Seitz is employed most of the year as a carpenter in the Ann Arbor area. He likes to use the threshing machine on his own farm because he can cut and thresh the grain there before he has to start combining on the other farms. In addition, he likes to have his customary two straw stacks to use for bedding his cattle throughout the year. When the bedding his cattle was taken, Irven Weiss was above photograph was taken, Irven Weiss was taking care of the blower on the threshing machine.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 17—The farm in the above photograph has several distinguishing features which should prove helpful in identifying it—the television aerial on the two-story portion of the house screened by evergreens, the large hip-roof barn at some distance from the house and other farm buildings, and the curving driveway (or is it a road?). If you recognize the farm, call The Standard, GR 5-3581. The owner will receive a mounted photo of the farm if he calls at the office by Saturday.

Family Fun in State Parks

Hot weather means Michigan's state parks and recreation areas are jammed with persons seeking fun and sunshine. At present attendance rates, new records for state park use are likely to be established this year. During recent years, parks have hosted a total attendance of 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 annually.

Washington Report

By Senator Charles E. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

THERE'S ONE thing about living in the past—it's much cheaper! An adjournment-bound Congress is facing up to this costly fact as it stamps "yes" or "no" on money measures. Last week three such bills—between them affecting just about every man, woman and child in the United States—monopolized my time.

The first would help those self-reliant men and women who earn their living independently. They are being short-changed on retirement plans. The farmer who works his land, the physician, the engineer, the writer, the man who runs the corner drug store and others add up to ten million Americans not protected by the same retirement arrangements as employed workers. I spoke on the Senate floor last week in favor of bill permitting self-employed persons to defer taxes on sums paid toward retirement policies or retirement trust funds. We allow employers to take tax deductions on money earmarked for employees' pensions, so why deny the privilege to the man who must save money for his own retirement?

Secondly, a long overdue hike in social security benefit payments is ready for Senate action and I am recommending an additional clause to protect our senior citizens. Social security benefits should be geared to living costs. I propose that we write an escalator provision in the bill, tying benefits to the cost of living, so that they rise together automatically. I'm against waiting until the end of a session and ramming through a hasty bill every two years. Social security affects us all, young and old. It must never become a political football. Let's develop a practical, humanitarian and automatic means of adjusting benefits to the cost of living, so that all of our citizens will be treated fairly.

The third measure concerns small business. This Congress cannot adjourn with a clear conscience unless it passes a meaningful tax relief bill for small business. One such bill introduced a proposal which has the support of 59 small business associations representing well over a million member firms throughout the United States. The House chose to ignore the measure, passing something which is big news, idea of what small business wants. Now, as the Senate prepares to take it up, I am for putting the "relief" back in the bill. I will introduce my original bill as an amendment, making clear to the Senate that this small business itself has called for.

Briefly, my bill would apply to individual proprietorships, partnerships, self-employed persons and corporations. It permits special deductions for depreciable assets, set-aside of earnings in anticipation of estate tax, and spreading of certain tax payments over a ten-year period.

HAMTRACKE township was named for Colonel John Francis Hamtramck, a German-French Canadian who rose from the ranks to become General Anthony Wayne's best strategist in the post-Revolutionary Indian wars, and the first American military commander of Detroit.

DEMOCRATIC GAIN SEEN
The National Committee for an effective Congress predicted recently that the Democrats would gain in next fall's Congressional elections and that as a consequence there would be a swing in Democratic party control away from the South.

The committee, a private, non-profit organization, said this development would have a "liberalizing" effect on the party, but also would create "headaches" for its leadership.

It said a Democratic victory was "generally accepted." The only question, according to the committee, is how many seats the Democrats will pick up in each house.

The ominous shadow of the Middle East crisis threatens to blot out other issues and force some major revisions in congressional campaign strategy.

★ Is More Inflation Ahead of Us?

More and more persons are becoming justifiably concerned and worried over the possibility that we are entering another phase of inflation.

Such a statement raises the question—Why use the term "another phase of inflation"? Why not merely "continuation of inflation?"

The consumer price index reached a new high for the twentieth advancement in 22 months, the other two months it merely held steady. Wholesale prices have shown diverse trends: Farm products recently have declined; industrial prices, on the other hand, have shown a slight decrease. The net result is that the index held below the peak of last March.

Taking the past two or three years as a unit, prices are up, no matter which broad index is used as a measure. It has been generally believed, however, that we are at or very close to the peak, and in the case of the consumer price index it has been thought that we would get a slight decline in coming months.

It is on that basis a conclusion was reached that the recent inflationary trend was coming to an end. Now the conclusion is being questioned, and there is growing fear another upsurge is ahead.

Among the reasons for this fear are the following:
1. Congress has made it abundantly clear that it is interested in neither government economy nor a balanced budget. One spending bill after another gets passed, and one bill after another providing tax relief for special groups also gets passed. Some of these have the approval of the Administration. Some do not. From the standpoint of total spending there is little or no basis for distinguishing between the two.

2. As a result of the increased spending and lower revenues, it is now officially estimated the deficit for this fiscal year will be about $12 billion. This will be the largest peacetime deficit in history and it is assumed, there will be deficits for years hereafter.

3. Wages are continuing to climb. It still is too early to make firm estimates on how much the 1958 increase will be in comparison with 1957. Present indications are that it will be almost as large as last year. This means wages again will be increased more than the output per manhour, thereby resulting in higher costs of production.

It was this discrepancy between wages and productivity which was primarily responsible for the price increases of the past couple of years, and it now appears we shall have more of the same kind of a wage-hour push.

4. The money supply recently has shown a rather sharp growth. For the past couple of years it had been held steady by the Federal Reserve System. With the recession it was necessary for the Federal Reserve to reverse its policy, as an incentive to borrowing, and the result has been a quite spectacular increase in loans and investments.

5. Some prices already have been lifted, notably in the metal field. Steel prices, which were held in spite of the July 1 wage increase, gave up the struggle recently and there were advances of about $4.60 a ton. Aluminum also raised prices, although the level still is below its high of a few months ago.

These inflationary forces are being brought to bear at the time the business curve is beginning to show some upward strength. Tending to offset the inflationary forces somewhat is the large unused capacity and substantial unemployment. If it were not for this unused capacity and unemployment, there would be no question but that prices soon would begin another upward movement.

In spite of this offsetting factor, however, the balance of the evidence is that we shall have at most a leveling out of prices for a few months, and then start another upward spiral. The upward spiral when it gets started will not be steep, but it will not be an element of strength in the economic system, and should the public refuse to pay the higher prices it would return the economy to more recession.

CHECKS SOIL BANK FACTS
Government agents are in the midst of measuring crop acreages on about 950,000 farms to determine whether operators are carrying out agreements to retire land under the soil bank program.

Farmer's agreed before planting time to underplant allotments of cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco by a total of about 17,000,000 acres. In return the farmers were due to get payments totaling $696,000,000 providing they carried out their agreements. As soon as compliance can be determined, checks will be made out to the producers. Officials hope to make all payments by September 30.

Incentive Payments On Wool, Lambs Told

Shorn wool payments for the 1957 marketing year are $15.50 for every $100 received from wool sales, according to John Ferris, farm economist at Michigan State University.

Payments on sales of unshorn lambs are 38 cents per hundredweight of live animals sold. Ferris suggests sheep raisers check with their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices regarding these incentive payments.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 16—Situated on a hill more than 200 feet from the road, the Walter Eschelbach farm on the south side of Jerusalem road has been in Mrs. Eschelbach's family for 52 years. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gramer, purchased the place in 1906. The photograph of the farm, published Aug. 7, in the current series of "mystery farm" pictures brought identifications from a number of area residents in spite of the fact that what appears to be a road is, in reality, a long driveway leading from the road to the farm buildings.

Walter Eschelbachs Operate 160-Acre Mystery Farm

Mystery Farm No. 16, is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eschelbach, 1945 Jerusalem road. Mrs. Eschelbach has lived on the place since she was a baby with the exception of the four years from 1923 through 1928.

Old records show that the farm was originally owned by Freeman Burden who obtained a deed from the U. S. Government in 1836. Succeeding him as owners were James Clark, Henry Boyd, Henry Nordman and Charles Whittaker until 1884 when it was purchased by Chauncey Stevens.

Five years later, in 1889, the late Daniel Wacker became the owner and he and his family lived there for 17 years. The family later moved to Lansing and all of the immediate family are now deceased. The family was well known here and many of their relatives still live here.

A brother, Emanuel Wacker, operated the Jerusalem Store for many years before he became ill several years ago. He died during the past year.

In February, 1906, Mrs. Eschelbach's grandfather, Frank Gramer, bought the farm and it has remained in the family during the intervening 52 years. The Eschelbachs have owned it since 1946.

Mrs. Eschelbach moved there with her grandparents. She made her home there with them until 1928 when they retired from farming and moved to their home at 650 East street.

The farm was rented for one year to Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Moeckel and family, and for the next three years to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Orbring and family.

March 1, 1927, following their marriage, the Eschelbachs moved to the farm and have lived there the past 31 years. They purchased the farm from Gramer in 1946.

In addition to Mrs. Eschelbach (Anita) the Gramer family included a son, George, who lives in Indianapolis, Ind.; a daughter, Mrs. Alma Keenan who died in 1914; two grandsons, George Jr., and Gordon, of Indianapolis; and a great-granddaughter, the former Kathleen Eschelbach who is now Mrs. Claude Arnett and the mother of a 20-month-old son, Brian. She and her husband and son live at 650 Flanders street.

Mrs. Gramer died at the home in Chelsea, Oct. 6, 1941, and Mr. Gramer sold the house and returned to the farm to make his home with his granddaughter and family. He died June 15, 1951.

The 160-acre property is operated as a general farm, raising crops of oats, wheat, corn and hay. The Eschelbachs have a small dairy herd, a few hogs and a flock of 120 sheep and lambs.

The house and other buildings are situated on a rise some distance from the road. The driveway leading from the road appears in the photograph and some people thought it was a road going directly through the farm property.

David Pastor, Jr., a neighbor of the Eschelbachs, was the first person to call in the correct identification of Mystery Farm No. 16.

Others who identified the farm are George Satterthwaite, Armin Kuhl, Mrs. Walter Boutler, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eschelbach, Nancy Lindow, Gerald Herrick, Pamela Kuschmaul, Ruth Ann Trinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Chapman, Paul Bollinger, Robert Schneider, Paul Rohlfuss and Billy Kuschmaul.

A reminder that the 4-H club tour will be Aug. 10. There will be a picnic dinner at Clear Lake. Arlene Schlee will be married Aug. 16.

Caroline and Lara, Mr. and Mrs. Hannawald's nieces, are staying with them. The Martin-Hannawalds and the George Liebeck's are going to a leaders meeting on Aug. 5.

Dianne Reynolds, reporter.

A crops-soils field day is being held on the Michigan State University farms at East Lansing on Sept. 6.

Notify Draft Board of All Status Changes

Colonel Arthur A. Holmes, state director of Selective Service, today warned all draft registrants of the importance of keeping their local draft boards informed of changes of address, occupation and dependents.

The recent rush of registrants reporting changes of status to their draft boards indicates that large numbers of men in Michigan are failing to keep their draft boards informed of changes which may affect their draft eligibility, Colonel Holmes indicated.

A change in a registrant's status may change his draft classification at any time. No draft classification is permanent. Registrants are required by law to keep their local boards informed of mailing address, occupation, dependency status and any other changes which affect their draft status.

The state director recommended that every registrant notify his draft board by post card or letter of his current mailing address, occupation and dependency status. All males born after Aug. 30, 1922, are subject to draft registration. Young men are required to be registered on their 18th birthday. At the current rate of classification in Michigan, registrants will receive their initial questionnaire and be classified on about their 21st birthday. Induction calls currently are being placed on local boards for registrants who are over 22 years of age.

From the time of registration at age 18, registrants are required to keep their draft boards informed of any change of address. When draft boards are unable to locate a registrant for classification, he may be declared delinquent. Delinquents are subject to immediate induction or reporting to the U. S. Attorney for prosecutive action. After initial registration at age 18, all draft registrants are required to have in their possession a registration certificate. They are also required to carry with them at all times after initial classification their notice of classification.

Water Safety

Panic Causes Many Swimming Accidents

By Earle F. Zeigler
University of Michigan
(Water Safety Committee of the American Red Cross)

Thoughtless people ignore the potential danger of deep water. When we begin to get tired while swimming, our thoughts are always about whether we can make shore. Worry and impatient fear make the situation even worse. The way to overcome this sort of thing is to be ready for it.

We should learn how to change from one stroke to another. A competent swimmer knows at least one resting stroke well in addition to the crawl. The crawl, of course, is a very satisfactory stroke, but so few people have mastered the necessary breathing technique. You should take air in once with each cycle of the arms. Air should not be held in the lungs; it should either be coming in or going out at all times.

Cramps in the legs and feet are quite common, and we must learn to cope with them. A person can still make shore although suffering from a cramp. It seems best to try to keep that portion of the body affected as quiet as possible, and to try to massage it or stretch the muscle group involved. If it isn't relieved, fight off panic, call for help if you need it, and swim quietly and slowly toward shore not using the limb affected.

Even fairly good swimmers panic at times when a boat or canoe suddenly overturns. Small children and poor swimmers should wear life jackets when going out in a boat, especially a boat with an outboard motor or a canoe. Almost always it is good advice to stay with the boat until help comes.

36,000 Michigan Children Will Receive Summer Dental Fluoride Treatments

Lansing — A record-breaking 36,000 Michigan youngsters will have had their teeth painted with fluoride solution since the 11th annual state-wide summer topical fluoride program started June 15, the Michigan Department of Health said today.

The applications were given at 195 centers in 46 counties by 30 senior dental students and 35 student dental hygienists from the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit.

New Michigan records were set this year by the number of children participating, the number of centers and the number of counties. Last year 32,500 children took part at 173 centers in 44 counties.

Orientation for the student dentists and hygienists was held by the Michigan Department of Health at Olivet College and the VFW National Children's Home at Eaton Rapids on June 11-12.

Painting fluoride on children's teeth reduces tooth decay by 40 per cent. The solution is applied during four sittings, at four different ages when the child is 3, 4 or 5 years old and then again when he is in the second, fifth and eighth grades.

The summer topical fluoride program supplements year-round topical programs conducted in many localities. Communities served by fluoridated water, which cuts tooth decay by 60 per cent, do not require topical programs.

The state-wide summer topical program is planned and supervised by the Michigan Department of Health with work at each center in charge of local dentists in cooperation with the local health department. Fees paid by parents make the program financially self-supporting.

Topical application centers will be operated this summer in the following counties: Allegan, Barry, Benzie, Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Cass, Cheboygan, Chippewa, Clare, Crawford, Eaton, Genesee, Grand Traverse, Hillsdale, Huron, Ionia, Isabella, Kalamazoo, Kalkaska, Kent, Leelanau, Lenawee, Livingston, Lapeer, Mackinac, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Montcalm, Montmorency, Muskegon, Newagen, Oakland, Oceana, Oshtemo, Oscoda, Ottawa, Roscommon, Saginaw, Shiawassee, St. Joseph, Van Buren, Washtenaw, Wayne and Wexford.

Testing Program Finds Unsuspected Cases of Diabetes

Lansing—The high rate of return from screening programs aimed at finding unsuspected diabetes patients was underscored today in a report released by the Michigan Department of Health.

The report covered a diabetes screening program in three northern Michigan counties held in conjunction with a TB X-ray campaign. Of 6,030 persons screened for diabetes, 108 unsuspected diabetes patients were referred to their family physicians for diagnostic examinations.

Dr. John A. Cowan, director of the department's Division of TB and Adult Health, said that about one per cent of Michigan's population is believed to have diabetes, and about half of these people aren't aware of their condition.

He said diabetes is now the sixth leading cause of death in Michigan and took 1,504 lives in 1967. He added that diabetes can lead to normal lives if their condition is discovered early and if they follow their physician's advice.

"Screening programs," Dr. Cowan explained, "will help find unknown diabetes patients while their disease is in its early, symptomless stages. Finding the disease early will help extend the lives of these people."

Breezy, Warm Summer Days Calm Late in Day

Ann Arbor—No doubt you've noticed in the late afternoon of a warm, somewhat breezy day that the air not only begins to cool, but also grows quite still.

If you're a fisherman you are well-acquainted with this phenomenon, as that's the time you long to lightly tap the calm water with a dry fly in a gentle invitation to a hungry bass or bluegill.

Of course, during the heat of such a day things are rather breezy, although the winds aren't necessarily cool, according to meteorologists at the University of Michigan.

The sun has been heating the ground and it, in turn, the air immediately above it. As this air has grown warmer it also has grown lighter and has risen to be replaced by heavier air from a higher level.

This replacement air probably was peeled off a layer of air moving along overhead about 20 miles per hour. Most of the breeze of the day has come from this heavier air that gradually loses its velocity and coolness as it cuts through other layers of more slowly moving air on its way to fill the space vacated by the air the ground has warmed.

The U-M meteorologists say that three hours after sunrise on a clear summer day these eddies of air resulting as light and heavy air change places may penetrate 500 to 1000 feet above the ground.

By 11 a.m. the eddies are perhaps 3,000 feet high, and by 2 p.m. they are going 8,000 feet or more to turn over the air. But as the intensity of the setting sun diminishes, the ground rapidly cools, thus chilling the air just above it.

Now this air is heavy and stays pretty much where it is. Trapped near the ground it is subject to the full braking action of the earth's surface of trees, buildings, etc.

It is then that you notice a cooling effect and that the wind has died down. And it is then that you, if you're lazy, reach for the fishing rod and head for the lake.

Some 140 different species, representing 28 families of fish, are found in Michigan. Among these are the choicest food and game fish to be found in the world.

Advertising Program committee headed by Granger Well, executive vice-president of the Port Huron Times Herald.

Early in July, Robert Marshall, publisher of the Ogemaw County Herald, West Branch, wrote to all daily and weekly newspapers inviting them to participate in the program and the response was gratifying. It was lauded by William M. Day, chairman of the Michigan Economic Development Commission, as a "great public service that will mean much to Michigan."

The advertisements cover a wide range from appreciation of existing local industries and the seeking of new industrial prospects among visitors to the need of adequate planning to provide areas for industry and industrial expansion.

Alexander Hamilton, who was directed by George Washington and the Congress to prepare a report on the nation's economy back in 1791, provides the subject of the first advertisement. Hamilton's report was the beginning of industrial development in the then new America. In part he said: "Whence it follows that it is the interest of a community, with a view to eventual and permanent economy, to encourage the growth of manufacturing."

FISH NETS LOSING KNOTS

Washington — Knotless fishing nets made from synthetic fibers may soon be replacing the knotted kind.

Special features of the new nets are that they do not damage fish, that they are lighter and less bulky, stronger, and that they offer less resistance to water currents. Dirt and microbes are less likely to adhere to the nets.

With the netting process it is also possible to get more exact mesh size.

Fishermen in Japan, where the knotless nets were developed, are using them increasingly. The United States Fish and Wildlife Service reports.

Machinery and unsafe climbing devices are the two most common areas of farm work injury.

Motorized Highway Post Office To Visit State Fairgrounds

The Pony Express was nothing compared to the Highway Post Office, a fleet of modern-day vehicles which service outlying areas. One of the little known Highway Post Offices will do double duty at the Michigan State Fair, Aug. 29 through Sept. 7. It will be open to inspection for all to see the inner workings and it actually will be a branch office to service the State Fair and its patrons.

There are all such vehicles operating in Michigan, starting from a terminal in early morning with mail dispatched along the way after it is sorted enroute. Each travels about 150 miles daily—between points not served by railroads or where railroad service is restricted.

The Highway Post office service was first established in 1941 between Washington, D. C. and Harrisonburg, Va. Today there are more than 200 routes serving otherwise isolated areas with speedy communication.

Veteran of Year Will Be Chosen At State Fair

For the first time, a veteran will be chosen Michigan Veteran of the Year and will be honored on Veterans Day, Saturday, Aug. 30, at the Michigan State Fair, which opens its 10-day run on Aug. 29.

This was announced by G. Edwin Slater of Detroit, Commander of the Consolidated War Veterans Council of Michigan, and Donald L. Swanson, general manager of the State Fair, who are planning the largest program of events, activities and ceremonies ever offered on Veterans Day.

The Commander of each of the County Posts affiliated with the Consolidated War Veterans Council of Michigan will submit his County Veteran of the Year as a nominee for State honors. The winner, to be chosen for his contributions to civic, community and veterans affairs during the past year, will receive a scroll from Governor Williams and other-wise honored during Veterans Day activities at the State Fair.

As in the past, all veterans and auxiliary members will be admitted free to the State Fair on Veterans Day by wearing service caps or otherwise identifying themselves.

When dynamite explodes, the powder or liquid changes into gas, which expands and occupies 800 to 10,000 times the space it previously did, and thus moves everything around it.

Historical Markers Show Location Of Early Forts

Michigan's visitors today come to enjoy themselves. It was not always so.

For this is a land over which the great European empires fought, where Indian, missionary, trader and soldier each left his mark.

And while the corridors of time still echo to the tales of their deeds, in many places little tangible evidence is left of their brief passage through Michigan. This is especially true of Forts Gratiot and St. Joseph in the Port Huron area.

Still history has become a favorite target of many modern travelers, according to the Michigan Tourist Council, and literally thousands of tourists come to the state armed with knowledge of unbounded curiosity.

Markers are all that stand today to remind us that the narrow channel of the St. Clair river at Port Huron once was a military objective of primary importance.

Two forts stood there at various times, their guns never fired in anger, but on the river. And all that remains of either is a mound of earth and the historic markers.

But for all that they continue to attract the tourists who can stand on the bank of the river and see in his mind's eye how the country looked in those early days.

Fort St. Joseph was the first of the bastions of the Great Northwest. Built by the French in 1688, it may have been the first fort west of Montreal and the Alleghenies. It lasted only two years and even its exact location is now just a mark on the map.

The new fort's cannon would command it, as the French fort had done. It was named Fort Gratiot for the chief engineer, Capt. Charles Gratiot of St. Louis.

Logs formed the base of the fortification, and upon them was piled earth, with upright timbers forming the stockade. It was 165 feet wide and three times that long, commanding the approach on the river from either direction.

Abandoned in 1821, Fort Gratiot became like Fort St. Joseph—walls and mounds of earth. But in 1828 unrest among the Indians caused it to be reoccupied. New buildings for officers and men were erected which remained in use until 1879.

No fortification was attempted but the low mounds indicating the old walls were leveled and an enclosure of thick pickets was built.

And today, just southwest of where the Blue Water International bridge arches between Port Huron and Sarnia, Ont., a soaring monument to understanding between two great nations rests a boulder marker placed by the Daughters of the American Revolution, marking the site of this fort—from which no shot ever was fired.

MICHIGAN BELL

DO YOU KNOW there's a place in the United States where you can reach four states without moving? It's at the southwestern corner of Colorado with New Mexico to the southeast, Utah to the northwest and Arizona to the southwest.

AND THERE'S ANOTHER PLACE where you can reach almost everywhere in the world without moving. It's the place where your telephone sits. That telephone is your magic carpet—far faster than a jet airliner and much, much less expensive. For less than ten dollars you can talk with people in England, Germany, Norway, the Netherlands, or dozens of other places. For less than two dollars you can be talking with friends or relatives in California. You don't know anyone in California? Well how long since you've talked with your sister—or brother? Remember you can call places a day's trip away for less than a dollar.

AND SPEAKING OF LONG DISTANCE—you may think you're a long distance from a phone, yet you need to make a call. If so, just keep your eyes skinned for one of our many Public Phones—in stores, gasoline stations, and in handy roadside Telephone Booths. They're a real boon to travelers who call back when they forget something, call ahead to let folks know when they'll arrive.

Frequent Mental Tests Help Both
Child, Parents

Ann Arbor—How much parents should know about their child's intelligence is still a debated question among psychologists and educators, according to Warren A. Ketcham, associate professor of education at the University of Michigan.

"I have found most parents capable of making wise use of their child's mental age at a given chronological age. This is in a situation where children are tested every other year and parents can be kept informed of a child's mental growth," he says.

"A most important purpose of mental tests is to uncover gifted children whom no one suspects of being bright. Unnoticed gifted children occur frequently among shy children.

"Frequently children's unusual intellectual abilities and interests are discouraged in modest homes and communities. A gifted child may be tolerated but dubbed odd. His giftedness may eventually be stamped out by pressures which eventually force him to conform to a family and neighborhood pattern. The chance to excel on a mental test in a clinic or at school may make a tremendous difference in the life of an unnoticed gifted child.

"Parents should welcome the opportunity to have the intelligence of their children tested. The superior intelligence of some gifted children is so obvious from their outstanding achievements that testing may seem unnecessary. However, the periodic appearance of bizarre interests and behaviors in most gifted children will cause parents to need the reassurance which test results can provide."

The chapel in Lamson Hall at Emmanuel Missionary College, Barren Springs, was the setting for the marriage service uniting Rheeta Kelley of Chelsea, and Elton Herman Stecker, Jr., of Dunkirk, N. Y. The ceremony took place at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8, and after a reception in the recreation room of Lamson hall, the couple left for a week's honeymoon in New York state.

They arrived in Chelsea Friday afternoon and left this week for California. Both plan to attend the College of Medical Evangelists at Loma Linda, Calif., to study medicine.

The fitted bodice was finished with a V neckline and long fitted sleeves with pointed outline at the wrists and extending over the hands. Her elbow-length veil, which came from Switzerland, was embroidered across the bottom. Her bouquet was of white roses encircling a white orchid and finished with streamers of shattered carnations and white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Wilson, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and Mrs. Virginia McCarrick of Elkton Rapids, and Mary Lou Claypool of Vernon, former college roommates of the bride, were bridesmaids.

All were gowned alike in white silk organza with blue cummerbunds and carried white gladioli.

Arrange Your Kitchen Area for Easy Working

The wise homemaker arranges her kitchen so she can do her work in less time—and use less energy doing it, says Coral Morris, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State University.

To save steps and time, organize storage so that things are at the point of first use. For example, spices and seasonings used during cooking are handy when stored near the stove. Store items most often used where they are easy for you to reach.

Plan work counters that are a good height for you to work at easily. You should be able to stand with your back straight and shoulders relaxed while working. You'll want different heights for different jobs.

Have your kitchen organized so that the flow of work is from right to left—if you're right handed. Plan for enough work space beside each piece of equipment so you can work easily. The food preparation area should be as free from traffic—people passing through the kitchen—as possible.

Don't be in the dark. Have your work area well lighted so you aren't working in shadows.

It's a good idea to have a place in the kitchen to sit down and do your planning. If you have enough space you may want a desk for taking care of all family business right in the kitchen.
