Village Seeks Federal Aid For Sewage Plant Addition

At the Village Council meeting Tuesday evening a resolution was passed to apply for a federal grant to aid in construction of an addition to the sewage disposal plant. A similar request was made last year but other communities were placed higher on the list than Chelsea at that time. It is believed Chelsea will stand a better chance to have such a grant approved this year.

The Council also passed a motion to advertise for bids for completing the municipal parking lot, including surfacing, lighting, sewer and everything necessary.

Bids for sale of police cars were considered and the bid of Daniels Motor Sales was accepted. The firm's bid was for $147.50 per month, including all maintenance, the village to furnish all gas used. A new car is furnished each six months, according to terms of the bid.

Second prize of $100.00 went to the Ann Arborian, a group of four young people from Ann Arbor—Ruth Ann and David DeBorde and Glenn and Garry Eschelbach.

Sharon Smyer's piano solo was judged as $25.00. Linda Warner, 10, $20.00; Acropolis, Wanda Lou Ray and Roger Jenkins of Jackson, fourth prize, $10.00; and the "Melody" of Ann Ann and Danny Helmer, $5.00.

Transportation Display

The Chelsea Community Fair Saturday afternoon. The outfit attracts favorable attention wherever it appears at fairs and other events.

The Michigan State Police are reminding motorists that a new Michigan school bus law, effective September 13, requires stopping when overtaking as well as meeting a school bus stopped to receive or discharge school children. The old law required stopping only from the rear. Cars may not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the driver signals other drivers to proceed or the flashing red lights on the bus are no longer actuated. State Police are urging motorists to be exceptionally cautious to avoid rear end collisions during the changeover in the law.

New State Law Requires Stopping from Both Directions for Halted School Bus

Michigan's new school bus law requiring motorists to stop when meeting as well as overtaking a school bus stopped to receive or discharge passengers will become effective Saturday, Sept. 13, according to a reminder by Sergeant Horvath, of the Jackson post of the Michigan State Police.

The old law required stopping only from the rear. The new law now conforms with all states but Utah in requiring stops from both ways.

The law does not apply in incorporated villages and cities, but stopping can be required by local ordinance if there are signs informing motorists of the regulation.

"Stops must be made at least 10 feet in front of or from the rear of a stopped bus and motorists may not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the school bus driver signals other drivers to proceed, or visual lights on the bus are no longer actuated," said Sergeant Horvath.

"There are two exceptions to the rule. Stops are not required at intersections controlled by a stop-and-go signal or a police officer. But in these cases drivers may not pass a bus at a speed greater than 10 miles per hour and then with due caution. Cars traveling on the opposite side of a divided highway are not required to stop when meeting a school bus."

When a school bus is about to stop or is stopped to receive or discharge school children, the bus driver is required to give notice by operating flashing red lights at the front and rear of the bus. Sgt. Horvath warned, however, that motorists are still required to stop even though the red lights may not be operating.

TROOPER VOGEL HONORED—Michigan State Police Trooper Douglas Vogel of the Clinton Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vogel of Chelsea, received a medal of valor at a special ceremony Thursday at State Police Headquarters in Lansing. Commissioner Joseph A. Childs made the presentation. Only a half dozen such awards have been given in the 40-year history of the department and Vogel is the third to receive the valor award while still living. The award is the State Police equivalent of a Congressional Medal of Honor. Trooper Vogel was critically wounded near the heart in a gun battle near Clinton, Sept. 30, 1957, but crawled to his car and gave a radioed description of the two gunmen, starting a man-hunt which spread 300 miles into Indiana and led to the capture of one of the gunmen and the death of the other. A medal of valor was also presented posthumously to Trooper Douglas Pellot who lost his life in the same gun battle. His widow, of Lansing, accepted the award. An award for bravery was presented Lieutenant Frederick B. O'Donnell, Paw Paw, who at the time was sergeant and commander of the Clinton post. He narrowly escaped being killed by a bullet which whizzed over his head while he was going to Pellot's aid. Shown in the above photograph, from left, are Trooper Douglas Vogel, Mrs. Pellot, Commissioner Childs and Lt. O'Donnell.

Sept. 11-10:30 a.m. Seniors meet for magazine sale instructions.

According to the high school records, the enrollment of Chelsea High school has almost doubled since 1953. Last year the number was 555, and this year it is approximately 800. Therefore, many changes have been made in our high school. For instance, the shop finishing room, located on the main floor, has been made into a classroom. The junior high girls' locker room is also a classroom, and the lockers have been transferred to the old basement.

We are very crowded this year, especially in the halls and study halls. The 140 seats in study hall are filled every hour, with overflow study halls elsewhere, and sometimes as many as 25 students standing. We shall just have to endure the situation until the new building is ready for occupancy.

Mrs. Wanda Finch, the new physical education teacher, graduated from Central Michigan College in Mt. Pleasant in June 1958. This is her first permanent teaching job.

Mr. Stephen Hayden, the new agriculture teacher, is from East Jordan, where he attended high school. He graduated from Michigan State University, and this is his first year of teaching.

He is from a family of eight. Mr. Hayden has been married a year. Some of his favorite activities are bowling, playing bridge, and all sorts of spectator sports.

Mrs. Gieske graduated from Albion College, Albion, with an AB degree. She is now teaching mathematics, algebra, and geometry at Chelsea. We are very glad to welcome her.

Mr. Richard Rogers, teacher of junior high mathematics and science, graduated from Eastern Michigan College in June of 1958.

The new counselor, Mr. George R. Bergman, was born in Tallin, Estonia. He attended Gogebic Junior College, East Michigan College, Adrian, the Pacific School of Religion, and the University of Michigan graduate school. Mr. Bergman taught the last three years in Erie. He is married and has two children.

Miss Janet Barto attended Bowling Green University in Ohio where she received a Bachelor of Science Education degree.

She taught food and nutrition at Lincoln Park, and is now teaching home-making at Chelsea High school. Her plans for the future are a secret.

Miss Julia Hammond attended Eastern Michigan College in Ypsilanti and received a Bachelor of Science degree, majoring in art, which she is now teaching at Chelsea.

Class activity began with a rush in some instances. Under the chairmanship of Stephanie Wagner, the junior stand did well this year. Hot dogs, numerous flavors of pop, gum, candy, and potato chips were sold. Classmates signed up no work certain shifts so that everyone would get a chance to help out. Congratulations, juniors. At the same time, the class was busy engaged in preparing a float for the Saturday parade.

The senior stand operated Sept. 8 to Sept. 6 from 9:30 to 10:30. Such food as Seven-Up, candy bars, potato chips, hot dogs and chili dogs were available. The class arranged to have different "shifts" to enable every senior to participate in the stand.

Some youngsters report wonderful and enjoyable vacations. Jill Barkley and her family spent eight wonderful days in Florida this summer. Some of the interesting places that they visited were Winter Haven, Cypress Gardens, and Lakeland. Jill is planning to make the trip by herself next year.

Lola Stark spent a wonderful week with her sister in Ames, Ia. While she was there her brother-in-law took her through the Iowa State College, where he is teaching at the present time. She made the trip by train, while it is itself an interesting experience.

On Aug. 17, nineteen Chelsea FFA boys and Mr. Steven Hayden the new Ag. teacher, went on a school bus to Wisconsin for six wonderful days. While they were there, they visited different kinds of farms and the Bowman Milking Co. They returned on Aug. 24.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 20—The photograph of the John Brooks farm on Chelsea-Manchester road, proved easy for many Chelsea residents to identify. It has become familiar through the years it has been located on the much-traveled highway south of Chelsea. Soon after its publication as Mystery Farm No. 20 in the Sept. 4 issue of The Standard, Frank Sweeney called in the correct identification. The Brooks farm photo is the 20th of the current series being published each week as "Mystery Farms."

Mystery Farm No. 20 Is John Brooks Home on Chelsea-Manchester Road

Frank Sweeney was the first of the many Chelsea area residents to telephone correct identification of Mystery Farm No. 20, published Sept. 4, as the John Brooks farm on Chelsea-Manchester road. Brooks has owned the farm the past 17 years. He also operates the farm on Sibley road formerly owned by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks, Sr.

His principal operation on both farms is feeding and fitting beef cattle for market and he customarily has approximately 100 cattle on hand.

Brooks also does general crop farming.

Brooks lived on the farm before he and Mrs. Brooks were married eight years ago. The family includes their 3½-year-old daughter, Heather, and their daughter, Karen McAllister, who was Community Fair Queen in 1957.

The Brooks farm was known for many years as the Ed. Spaulding farm. Brooks said the elder Spaulding bought the farm in about 1800 and after his death his two sons, Harold and Walter operated it, and later had others operate it for them. Among these was the Proctor family, including Kenneth Proctor who now lives west of Chelsea.

At one time before Brooks purchased the farm, the Otto Polenz family owned the place.

In addition to Frank Sweeney, those who identified the farm are Mrs. Gerald Luick, Don Dolce, Alvin Pommerening who said he handled the sale of the farm to Otto Polenz in the 1920's, Mrs. Bernard Herst, Mrs. Walter Beutler, Norman Dible, Teresa Laier, Allen Brosamle, Anton Nielsen, Mrs. Leonard Eder, Fred Sager,

Integration is Process of Evolution

The widely advertised collision of the irresistible force and the immovable object scheduled for the opening of school in Little Rock, Ark., has been postponed until Sept. 15 by action of both the Eighth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo., and by the Little Rock school board.

Earlier, this seven-judge court had reversed, by a six-to-one decision, the order of U. S. District Judge Harry J. Lemley granting the Little Rock school board a two and one-half year delay in desegregating. Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner, who wrote the dissenting opinion in the Lemley reversal, announced the stay and said it is granted to permit appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, which is meeting in special session, to hear the case. Now the school board has announced its decision not to begin school until Sept. 15.

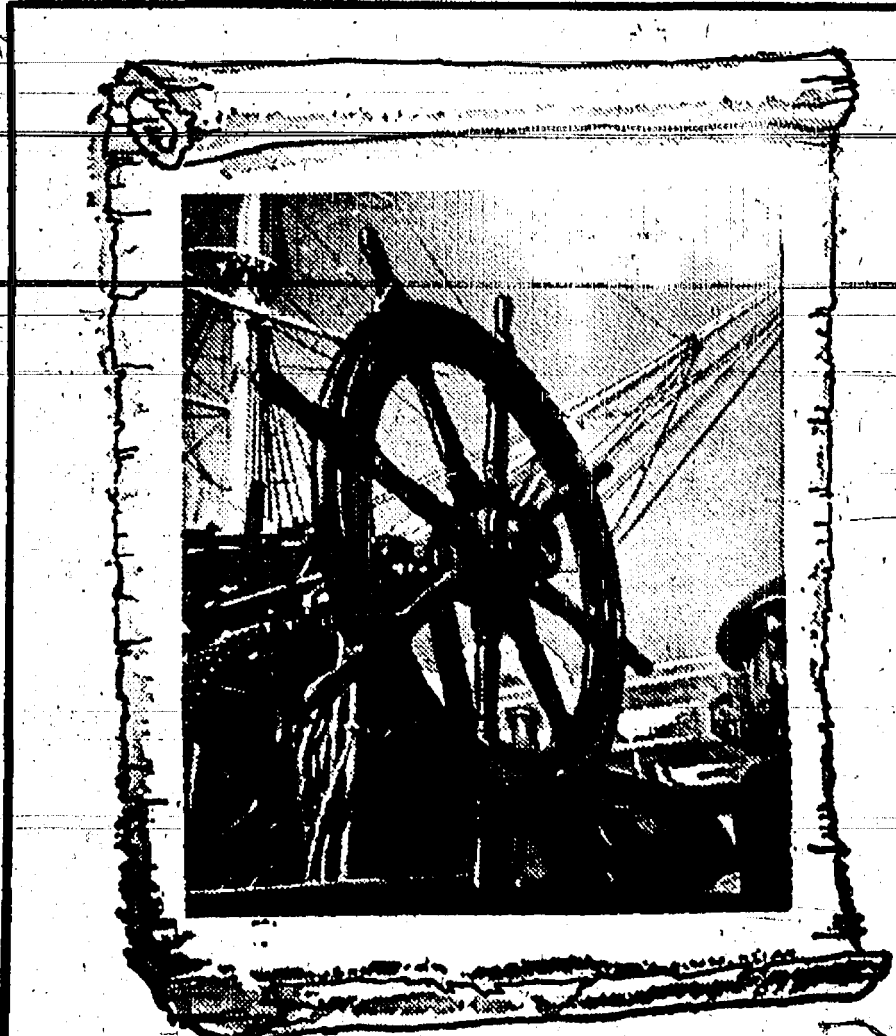

On the day before the Appeals Court action, President Eisenhower opened his news conference by reading a rather ponderous statement on the Little Rock impasse to the effect that "there can be no equivocation as to the responsibility of the Federal Government" in maintaining order and "compliance with the final orders of the court." This written statement, said to have been carefully drafted by the Department of Justice, was widely taken to mean that the President would again implement integration with federal bayonets if he felt it necessary.

At the close of the written statement, the President added informally: "I continue to insist that the common sense of the individual and his feelings of civil responsibility must eventually come into play if we are to solve this problem." These words seemed rather out of harmony with the bristling language he had just read. On Aug. 7 he had stressed that "mere law will never solve this problem."

In the welter of Southern maneuvering to retain control of its schools and its traditional social structure and still remain within the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Constitution, a single fact stands out in a sea of uncertainty. There may be integration at Central high school when it opens. But there will be little education absorbed in Little Rock or anywhere else in the nation, North or South, where the Supreme Court's irresponsible decision of 1954 has provided an unending field day for those who would destroy us by setting race against race and section against section.

Until the conduct of their own internal affairs is returned to the states, there can be no solution. In their own time, and in their own way, the several states will evolve integration. There is no other peaceful way out of the dilemma we now find ourselves in with a Supreme Court decision attempting to force the issue.

The naval research laboratory reveals that the planet we live on has a tail. It would be humiliating to discover that we are the fleas.—Detroit News.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Paradox: Michigan is bordered on three sides by water; has more than 11,000 inland lakes. It boasts myriad streams and rivers stretching in every direction across the land.

But, Michigan has a water-shortage.

It is a problem of mal-distribution: enough water is not always in the right place. Enormous new uses of water for farm irrigation for industry, for sewage disposal systems of mushrooming cities and for recreation emphasize the shortage.

The legislature is concerned. The problem has been growing more acute for five years. It is approaching the critical stage as industry and cities expand into new areas.

Rural areas, which once made Michigan an agricultural state, are shrinking under pressure of progress in other fields. Now, only 10 per cent of the population is engaged in agriculture.

Farmers are turning to irrigation to make the fields do more work; to produce food for Michigan's 7,000,000 people and other markets.

Experts recommend that artificial ponds be created to collect water during the winter and spring for use during the hot, dry summer.

George S. McIntyre, state director of Agriculture, contends ponds are impractical because of the large investments, land and equipment.

As the study goes on, the problem becomes more serious. Industry needs more water in its processes.

A new copper mining technique to excavate low grade ore out of the ground in marketable quantities uses tremendous amounts of water—1,000,000 gallons for each ton of ore mined.

The process, which has been tested and proven in the Upper Peninsula, promises to bring another economic boon to the state. But the supply of water must be guaranteed.

The Bear Creek Mining Co., planning an installation in the Upper Peninsula is waiting for, among other things, the certainty that it will have sufficient water over a long period of time.

Rep. James Goulette (R-Iron Mountain) said the company, as ordered by geologists that the copper field exists under Lake Superior is not interested even in test borings until making sure of water.

New cities spreading out from the metropolitan centers are preparing sewage disposal systems of the most modern design. They need water to make them operate efficiently.

Southeastern Michigan, a honeycomb of small towns grown into big cities, critically needs water for their new homes and factories.

As the shortage grows daily, the state still argues about a solution. The issue: whether to set up a priority system for water use or stick with the present system which guarantees the first owner the right to use it any way he sees fit without damage to others.

The solution becomes important when the use of water by an industry or city lowers the stream level and the shoreline property owner declares it is diminishing his rights.

This, too, affects the resort and recreation industry, which has made Michigan a vacation spot for the nation during the summer months.

Lower levels on inland lakes and streams would give the tourist industry a new headache.

Already, there is competition on the water between fishermen and swimmers, boaters and water skiers. This situation will become more severe with more people and longer vacation periods.

Senator Edward Hutchinson (R-Pennville) is chairman of a special House-Senate water rights study committee which plans to develop a legislative proposal for the 1959 session.

What it will be remains the problem—whether to protect existing rights of ownership or place a priority system on the way water is used.

An important issue comes before voters Nov. 4 when they select state and local officials for coming terms.

It involves a proposal to call a state constitutional convention. If approved, machinery would be set in motion to redo the present state constitution which was last designed in 1908.

Republicans have supported the proposal in their state convention. Democrats oppose it only because they feel the manner of selecting delegates would give Republicans an "unfair" majority in the convention which would decide terms of the new constitution.

Although the regular trout season draws to a close soon, fishermen will be able to take part in a special rainbow trout season in certain lakes and streams.

These special waters, designated by Conservation Department director Gerald E. Eddy, are open to rainbow trout fishing during September, October and November.

So while hunting claims the attention of most sportsmen, many avid fishermen will test their skill against the sporting bows. The fall rainbow season is especially popular because anglers usually find streams low enough to wade.

A complete listing of lakes and streams open during the special rainbow season—covering 61 counties—can be obtained from the Michigan Conservation Department Fish Division, Lansing 26.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see where the soil conservation folks is claiming that the nation is getting so populated that "five city dwellers now are directly dependent upon the success of a sixth man on the soil." If I get the gist of this thing correct, it means the fate of five men in town depends on the success of my farm out here.

In other words, for example, I got to produce enough for me and five other men living some where in town. This is the first time I've heard of this, and I don't know who my five is, but just say for example that they is Elvis Presley, Frank Sinatra, and three Congressmen. What kind of justice do you call that, Mister Editor? Who started this kind of arrangement? If you'll find out for me, I'll write him a letter that'll blister the paint off his mail box. If I got to feed a parcel of you, you'd better be any chance of getting you out here to help keep the grass out of my fields. It's not that farmers ain't already loaded down with taxes, high labor costs, tractors getting higher all the time, insects getting worse over year, prices always dropping at selling time, but now somebody assigns me five other fellers to take on. I tell you, things is getting to the breaking point with us farmers.

Maybe that's why so many farmers has started plowing way into the night. They're working for them five other fellers. It ain't no easy problem when your farm may be a little behind and you tell your old lady you ain't got time to do everything and she wakes you up in the middle of the night whamming you with her elbow and pointing out the window to them tractor lights slashing to the sky on farms all around you with motors sounding like a bomber attack and says, "See that? If you was out there working like your neighbors you wouldn't be so far behind and maybe we could get a new washing machine."

Just between me and you, Mister Editor, if you five fellers in town is depending on me plowing at night, you're going to have lean pickings next winter. It looks like our national economy has got to the place where the farmers is supposed to provide what the Lord don't.

Five extra mouths or not, it ought to be agin the law to install lights on tractors and a compound felony to plow after sundown. If the Lord meant for a farmer to plow at night, He'd have put tail lights on mules.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

★ Visiting the Sick

When anyone is sick enough to be in a hospital, he is governed by his emotions much more than by his intelligence. This may make it quite an unpleasant effort for him to speak with any but his closest friends and relatives.

At the time when Editor Frank Kierdorf was near death, after being severely burned under mysterious circumstances, it was reported in the papers that he told a clergyman of one faith to "Get the hell out of here," and that he indicated to a clergyman of another church that he wished to become a member of that church. All we can assume is that he had had some unpleasant experience with the first kind of church at some time in the past, and that the second had made a more favorable impression on him. The point I am interested in just now is that whatever veneer of politeness he might have had when he was well was destroyed by his illness, and his actions were caused by his emotions.

A person who is emotionally worn out by illness is often supported by the quiet presence of someone who is very near to him in an emotional sense, but he may be distressed to have to speak with a mere acquaintance. Certainly we may assume that if you are going to have to explain to the sick person who you are, your visit had better wait until he is on his feet again.

Clergymen usually consider it a privilege and an obligation to call on those to whom they minister, in time of illness, and to these they represent the healing power of the Divine. It is not considered good practice for a clergyman to call on strangers unless it is requested to do so by the patient himself, or by someone who is speaking for the patient.

A friend handed me a leaflet by Myra C. Johnson which he picked up in St. Lawrence hospital, Lansing, entitled, "Why Visit the Sick?" The author suggests several "substitutes for visiting," which will show an acquaintance that he is thinking of him in his illness. A note, a card, a letter, a magazine, may be mailed or left at the hospital desk. Helping with a man's work, or caring for a mother's children will speed recovery by relieving anxiety. "Relieving members of the patient's family from their duties to leave them free to visit the patient is a long-remembered act of great kindness."

Trained Crow
Visiting Homes in North Lake Area

Mrs. Jack Gilbert who lives on the south side of North Lake, and Mrs. William Dehn whose home is located on the north side of the lake, compared notes and found that a trained crow, not yet fully grown, had visited both homes. Further inquiry brought to light the fact that the crow visits practically every home around the lake at least once every day, plays with a ball, picks fruit from the trees, hides the fruit and food it receives at hand-outs, in areas overgrown and has number of interesting accomplishments.

At the Walter French, Sr. home, it has been heard talking and early yesterday morning, Mrs. French heard it calling the French's cat "Lucky".

Mrs. French said the crow will perch on her hand and comes to her when she whistles. It calls out "Ma," "Pa" and "Grandpa"; asks for water, drink, crackers; and has been heard to say "Folly wants a cracker."

It is believed the crow may have been trained by youngsters who spend the summer at the lake and now that school has started, released the bird to fend for itself. It's antics in the neighborhood indicate that it is well able to look after itself.

Philadelphia—It turns out that Sgt. Peter J. Maids should have told his wife about the 1957 telephone directory. She quite properly turned it over to the telephone company employee when he came to the house with the new directory.

A few minutes later bills in denominations of $10, $20, $50, and $100 fluttered along the sidewalk. $315 was accounted for when the sergeant came home and told his wife that he kept his $880 savings in the old telephone book.

NEWS * HOLLYWOOD

Spencer Tracy's salary for "The Last Hurrah"—$250,000 and ten per cent of the gross!

Mary Ure, who appeared on Broadway in John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger," has been signed to co-star with Richard Burton in the motion picture version to be released by Warner Brothers.

Julius Blaustein has succeeded where others failed. He has persuaded that fine English novelist, Eric Ambler, who has never worked in Hollywood, to come over and do the screenplay of "Wreck of the Mary Deare."

Ambler wrote "Journey Into Fear" and "Cruel Sea" among others.

A CERTAIN SMILE

The smile in question belongs to that ladykiller, Rossano Brazzi, who dashes about in his white Mercedes Benz casting a pearly smile on all the daughters of France while his gorgeous wife, Joan Fontaine, puts up a brave well-dressed front.

Added to the plot is a romantic young girl (Christine Carere) who is very lonely because her parents can't get over the death of her brother. Christine is engaged to Bradford Dillman, a classmate at the Sorbonne, but Dillman is not romantic enough to elope. Instead, he innocently introduced Chris to his uncle (Rossano, of course) and in no time at all Rossano is telling her he loves her but—of course—not forever. Nevertheless, notwithstanding, she spends a week with him on the Riviera; after that idyllic Rossano is ready to return to business (the lucrative kind) but Chris is ready to die of love—quite literally. This is quite a blow to Rossano (to say nothing of what it does to his wife, who meantime has become Christine's best friend). Come to think of it, it is quite a blow to Bradford Dillman, too.

The scenery, needless to say, is wonderful.

Read Labels

When You Buy

Wool Clothing

Wool garments and yard goods on the market now may have a "finish" applied to them. When you shop it's wise to read labels carefully to know what you're really buying, advises Bernette Kahabka, extension clothing specialist at Michigan State University.

Some wools on the market have a shrink-resistant finish. This does not mean they are completely free from shrinkage, but it does mean the fabric can be hand or machine washed without a lot of shrinking and little felting or matting. Although the shrink-resistant wool garment may still shrink slightly, it should not shrink out of fit, says Miss Kahabka.

Look on the tag or label for a guarantee of minimum shrinkage without loss of fit. Then care for garments according to instructions on the label. If there are no instructions, try the suggestions. Wash wools in lukewarm water. If water is hard, add water softener. Handle garment gently without wringing or twisting it. Avoid strong soaps or bleaches. Or if you like, use one of the commercial cold-water soaps for wool garments—compare prices when using these.

Some wools are also being mothproofed now when they are made. No special storage is needed for these garments during the lifetime of the finish. When shopping, check the label for length of the mothproofing guarantee. Also, check to see if mothproofing is durable through washing. You may find some wools are mothproofed for several years or the life of the garment. Follow directions on the label for care to keep the mothproofed finish.

CIVIL DEFENSE PLANS OUTLINED

attack, evacuation is the only means of saving lives and such evacuation requires at least two to three hours advance notice. Sunday's evacuation exercise, when people from the Ypsilanti area were directed to come to Chelsea, was a trial exercise to learn whether plans worked out on charts were practicable. Chelsea Director Miller said this week that while the number who participated was somewhat disappointing, the operation appeared to be well planned.

The program is designed not only to improve the status of party finance but also to broaden the scope of participation in party matters.

All contributions for the support of the Republican Party in Washtenaw County should be sent to Washtenaw County Finance Committee, Box 102, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REPLY TO SPUTNIKS

The dramatic voyage under the polar ice cap by the atomic submarine Nautilus has been hailed in Western capitals as a momentous achievement opening new vistas for both war and peace.

On Capitol Hill, several legislators called the feat an answer to Russia's sputniks.

Hay production in Michigan this year will be the smallest since the drought of 1934. The favorable grain price situation this year makes it more profitable to buy grain than to buy additional hay.

KNOW YOUR PTA

Have you heard some of the enthusiastic response to the school calendar? Your local PTA has enjoyed gathering the material for the calendar and they hope parents and teachers will find it a real need and use it throughout the school year. It is only through the interest and encouragement of a group of sponsoring merchants that the school calendar became a reality. Please mention your appreciation of the calendar to those merchants when you meet them.

Parents are being asked to watch for the PTA calendar which will be sent to each family through their children in school.

Distribution of the calendars, an innovation here this year, was started at the PTA booth at the Chelsea Community Fair when the 62 people who joined the organization by signing up at the booth were presented with calendars.

Take a cue from Mrs. Anna, the teacher in the play "The King and I," in her familiar song "Getting to Know You" and learn to "Know Your School."

"Getting to Know You" at the Sept. 17 meeting, Charles Lane, principal of Chelsea High school, will present a brief explanation of the "whys and wherefores" of school policy. Everyone should plan to attend the meeting. Remember the date—Wednesday evening, Sept. 17.

The hospitality and refreshment committees have planned entertainment which includes a community sing led by David Sanborn of the school music department and refreshments will be served following the meeting.

The PTA meetings will give parents an opportunity to meet and know and work with other parents and with teachers and administrators, as well.

Volunteer Hunters

Wanted for Deer

Herd Experiment

Lansing—Volunteers are needed to help the Conservation Department find answers to a deer hunting problem.

The question is how well hunters can see deer in the woods and how effective they are, as hunters, against the wily whitetail.

This question has long perplexed woodsmen and provided fare for campfire arguments (and boasts) wherever hunters gather. But this is the first time a controlled experiment to answer these questions has been attempted.

And now it's time for the mighty hunter to put up or shut up, with Brer Whitetail pitting his wits against all comers.

This is the way the test will work:

Near Shingletown, in the central Upper Peninsula, the Conservation Department's Cusino wildlife experiment station has a deer-proof fence around a square mile of typical deer country. The fence was constructed back in CCC days and this "pen" has for years served as proving ground for various research projects.

In the last few years, Department personnel have been used to remove the annual surplus crop of deer. The square mile usually has 30-35 deer just before deer season. Some of these deer are removed each year to simulate outside hunting conditions, the meat going for local school hot lunches.

But it has always been difficult to fill work gaps when officers and biologists are taken from regular chores for the three to five days necessary for the hunt. Now the Department hopes public volunteers can help with this year's hunt.

Hunters will have to use their own equipment and pay their own way; the deer they might shoot would be given, as usual, to school hot lunch programs. And the hunt will take place Dec. 1-5, or as long as necessary to remove the number of deer necessary. For particulars, write the Game Division, Department of Conservation, Lansing 28.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK★ Omissions of 85th Congress

Praise has been high for the second session of the 85th Congress. It has been called one of the most productive in history. In many respects there are grounds for praise. There also are grounds for serious disappointment.

In three crucial fields there was no significant action. These were:

1. For all practical purposes nothing was done in the area of labor. A bill was passed requiring routine reporting on pension funds, but it was not of a character which will assure there will be no further fraud in the handling of such funds. On over-all labor legislation the only proposal considered by either House was the Kennedy-Ives bill. This passed the Senate with only one dissenting vote, and much has been made of that. Actually, this top-heavy vote in no sense reflected the basic feeling of the Senate. This is shown by the fact that one amendment after another was offered in the Senate to strengthen the bill. These amendments received substantial support, but in no case a majority.

The Kennedy-Ives bill, upon passage by the Senate, was referred to the House. It was held on the desk of the Speaker for forty-one days. By then we were in the last days of this session of the Congress, and the House Labor Committee failed to report out the bill. An attempt was then made to bring the measure up without a committee report, which would require a two-thirds vote of the House members for passage. Not even a majority voted to bring up the bill, so the measure died.

Even if the Kennedy-Ives bill had passed it would have done no good from the viewpoint of solving the labor problem. As a matter of fact, as a result of various provisions weakening the Taft-Hartley Act, it would have done genuine harm. It also is questionable whether the President would have signed the bill had it reached his desk. This is indicated by his call for a real labor reform measure just at the end of the Congress, and his supplementary Labor Day message in which he briefly outlined the principles which must be followed in solving the labor problem.

2. Various tax bills were passed, but nothing in the way of basic reform of the income tax rate structure was considered. The bills passed were an extension of the old corporate tax rate, elimination of certain transportation taxes, various changes in excise taxes, and a measure designed to help small business. The total revenue effect of these actions was relatively small except for the extension of the corporate rate.

The failure to take up the problem of rate reform is all the more remarkable because the House Ways and Means Committee held hearings from January 7 to February 7, and the majority of the witnesses made it clear they were in favor of something along the lines of the Sadiak-Herlong tax reform proposal. That proposal was a five-year program designed to reduce the base individual rate by 25 per cent, and all progressive rates by a designated amount each year until the top rate was 42 per cent. Corporate taxes also would have been reduced within the same period to 42 per cent from the present 62 per cent.

The Administration never was in favor of the Sadiak-Herlong proposal, and with Congress in a spending mood and revenues declining as a result of the recession, neither this nor any other tax reform measure even reached the floor of the Congress.

3. Nothing was done to clarify the issue of State versus Federal jurisdiction. This issue has arisen because the Supreme Court has handed down various decisions which have clearly indicated that when there is a Federal law on a subject, any State laws relating thereto are not enforceable. That this is a new doctrine goes without saying. A bill (Smith bill, H.R. 8) introduced in and passed by the House would have corrected this situation, but it was opposed by the Administration and in the Senate was re-committed by a vote of 41-40. The question of Federal pre-emption, therefore, is just where it was before the 85th Congress convened. There are other areas where legislation is needed and was not passed, and others where it was desirable that nothing be done. The three mentioned above, however, are the most important omissions because each will continue as a major problem until each one is solved.

SO MUCH MORE FOR SO MUCH LESS—
GAS naturally

Gas serves you so well in so many ways—yet it remains one of today's best buys. While other basic living costs have been climbing sharply over the years, your gas service rate has remained almost stable. Your gas dollar still buys more for less—more speed, convenience, quiet and cleanliness.

For cooking, water heating, refrigerating, drying, incineration, home heating and air-conditioning, gas is fast—gas is silent—gas is clean—gas is thrifter. Count all its blessings and then count the cost—from then on you'll choose gas, naturally!

The Rev. Fr. Leo Sabourin officiated at the wedding of Patricia Ann Dvorak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dvorak, and Ronald Gene Borders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elita Borders, in St. Thomas Catholic church at Ann Arbor.

The double-ring service took place at noon with the bride's father giving her in marriage.

The "Ave Maria" and the wedding music were played on the organ by the church organist.

The wedding party returned to Chelsea and greeted guests at a reception held in the Odd Fellow hall at 1 o'clock. Those who assisted at the reception included Mrs. Cal McDermott of Ypsilanti, an aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Duane Landwehr who served punch and cake, and Peggy Miller and Mary Patrick, in charge of the guest book and gift table.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length gown of lace and net over white tulle with a scalloped neckline of lace extending to the long lace sleeves which fastened at the wrist with tiny buttons covered with satin and lace. She wore a shoulder-length veil fastened to a Juliet cap of pearl-trimmed lace. Her bouquet was of pale pink and white carnations.

Other attendants were Luke Collinsworth, best man, and Edson Barker and Leo Borders as ushers. The bride's mother wore a
