Bookmobile Service Available to Children in Waterloo Area

According to Miss Eudocia Statton, librarian of the Jackson County Library, bookmobile service is available to children from the eastern part of Jackson county who attend Chelsea schools. Children who live in the Palmer district area, which was partly consolidated with the Chelsea district a few years ago, are also eligible for this service.

The bookmobile stops at Fairbrother store in Waterloo at 9:30 a.m. the first Saturday of each month. Children come to the bookmobile and select reading material for the following month.

Although a large number of students are now using the service, circulars are in the mail to parents to acquaint them with the library services available to their families.

Lawns can be fertilized in the spring. But to avoid "burning" the grass, it's best to put the dry fertilizer on before green growth starts, according to Michigan State University turf specialists.

Dear Editor:

Since, as requested, our superintendent of schools made a list of articles which would make suitable gifts by individuals or groups to our new school, it would also be well to draw attention to the fact that the first article on the list was a "television set," followed by quite a variety of gym articles and a "whirlpool bath."

It seems rather significant in our modern set-up that quite a number of these articles comprise the top of the list, while last, but not least, are listed such things as "microscopes" and various classroom equipment. Noted educators everywhere are concerned about the over-emphasis of extra-curricular activities in American schools, while European schools emphasize size science and the all important basics, so let's put those "microscopes" at the head of that list and help the people who are building these expensive schools equip them in the proper manner.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 29 was correctly identified as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Young by his late parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young.

Irwin Young Home on M-92 Shown as 'Mystery Farm'

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Young are the owners of Mystery Farm No. 29, a photo of which was published in The Standard Nov. 6 in the current series of "mystery farms." Many people recognized it at once and called in to identify the place.

Since the picture was taken, shrubs and trees have been planted around the house.

Irwin Young built the brick home for his family across the road and south of the home of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young. The farm originally included 210 acres before US-12 was re-located and passed through the north side of the property. The farm is still a part of the senior Youngs' estate except for the 70 acres purchased by Irwin Young. It is on this acreage on the east side of the road, that he built the home shown in the photograph. The barn has been on the place for a number of years.

The farm was purchased by the senior Youngs in 1917. It had previously been owned by Roland Waltrous and by Henry Pierce. Irwin Young does general farming on his 70 acres in addition to his employment at Central Fibre Products.

His wife is the former Helen Ulrich and they have six children and one grandchild. The children are Mrs. Gerald Haarer (Jean) of Saline, Carol, David, Douglas, John Edward and Nancy.

People who correctly identified the Irwin Young place are Allen Broesamle, Anton Nielsen, Mrs. Walter Beutler, Charles Curtis, Janet Bollinger, Mrs. Lee Bollinger, Armin Kuhl, David Pastor, David Young, Dick Irwin, Mrs. Frank Visek, Joan Wahl, Mrs. William Quigley, Mrs. Morgan Esch, Mrs. Lloyd Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. William Stark, David Lixey, Donald Blalock, Larry Quigley, Billy Dettling, Joe Merkel, Jr., George Sweeney of Ann Arbor, Bill Sorenson, Floyd DeHaven, Robert Schneider and Gregory Kuhl.

HOWARD F. SIMMONS

Milk Producers Manager Retires After 34 Years

Howard F. Simmons, prominent dairy leader and manager of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, will retire Jan. 1 after 34 years with the 15,000 member farmers' cooperative.

The announcement was made by Simmons at the conclusion of his annual report to delegates attending the 42nd Annual Meeting of MMPA in East Lansing today.

His successor is expected to be named later this month by the MMPA Board of Directors. Simmons, who has achieved a reputation as one of the nation's foremost authorities on milk marketing and co-operative organizations, said after his retirement he plans to continue as a milk producer on his farm near Ortonville in Genesee county.

The tall, quiet-spoken manager of Michigan's largest and most influential dairy farmer organization, started his career with MMPA in 1925 as a butterfat tester. At that time he was one of only 18 employees of the Association, which now employs about 450 people.

Before being named Secretary-Manager in 1942, Simmons served as a fieldman, director of field service, and secretary of the Association.

It was during Simmons' tenure as manager that MMPA experienced its greatest period of growth and expansion. He was instrumental in welding the major milk markets of Michigan into an effective state-wide organization, and was a key figure in the development of a farmer-owned system for receiving, transporting and manufacturing milk, which has brought MMPA recognition as one of the nation's top-ranking marketing co-operatives.

During World War II, Simmons was a special advisor to the Office of Defense Transportation and consultant to the War Food Administration. Active in national dairy farmer groups, he served as a director of the National Milk Producers Federation and the National Dairy Council, a nutrition research and education organization. Simmons has also been a director of the Detroit Dairy Council, the Michigan Allied Dairy Association, the Michigan Association of Farmer Cooperatives, the Michigan Dairy Memorial Scholarship Foundation, and the Michigan Dairy Farmers' Federation, a group he helped found.

Born in Nebraska, Simmons grew up on a farm near Greenville. He taught in Montcalm county rural schools for three years before attending a two year agricultural short course at Michigan State College.

Simmons will be 65 on Dec. 27. He and his wife Ruth live in Pontiac, where they are active in the affairs of the Central Methodist church.

400,000 Deer Hunters Set For Opener

Lansing — More than 400,000 hunters will open Michigan's fire-arm deer season on Nov. 15.

By season's end, Conservation Department officials estimate 450,000 hunters will have been afield.

The opener this year falls on Saturday, which should intensify the usually heavy hunting on the front end of the season.

Of prime interest will be the state-wide concurrent special seasons. The Department has issued special permits to 55,601 licensed hunters, each of whom may hunt the entire 16-day season in their properly permitted area, and take a buck, doe or fawn, as they choose.

This is the first year all special seasons have run concurrently with the regular 16-day buck season. Experience with these concurrent seasons has shown them popular with hunters. Also, some deer that might otherwise be wasted are recovered by permit holders.

Again this year, the Department will operate deer checking stations along principal north-south highways where hunters may if they like, have their deer checked for age, weight and physical development. Information gathered at these stations helps state biologists with deer management programs.

Also, highway counts of deer on cars will be made and the figures statistically calculated to determine total deer kill.

In past years, this method has given quick and rather accurate estimates of the kill.

Census Bureau To Gather Data On Car Radios

Information on the number of privately-owned passenger automobiles equipped with radios in working order will be available for the first time as the result of special questions to be asked in the November Current Population Survey. It was announced today by Supervisor John E. Thorsdalen of the U. S. Census Bureau's Regional Office at Detroit, which will participate in the survey.

Two other questions on radio ownership will be asked in the survey. One of these questions will seek information on the number of households in the United States with radio sets in working order, including portable sets. The other question will cover the location of these sets such as living rooms, kitchens, etc.

This is the first time since 1950 that information on household ownership of radio sets has been collected by the Census Bureau. In that year, households reporting radio sets numbered about 40 million. This represented a ratio of more than nine out of ten households. Cost of the radio survey has been underwritten by the Advertising Research Foundation.

The radio questions to be asked in November will be in addition to the usual inquiries on employment and unemployment which are asked each month in the Current Population Survey. The information will be collected locally by Mrs. Mary K. Hanson.

Although "buck" usually brings to mind a male deer, it is also the name for the male of several other species, including rabbit, caribou, antelope and trout.

COMING UP

Nov. 14—FHA dance: A record hop featuring Dave Fringle as MC.

Nov. 19—Journalism dinner: be sure to sign up for things to bring.

Nov. 20—Michigan Wildlife Assembly at 9:30 a.m.

Nov. 24—Junior class meeting at 10:30 a.m.

The last pep meeting of the season honored the Junior High, the undefeated Junior Varsity, and the Varsity football teams. Each cheerleading squad did "Yeah, Team!" after a talk from each team's coach. The skit, a mock bus ride of players from Saline to Chelsea, was presented by the GAA girls.

A special program was presented by the Varsity Cheerleaders in honor of the senior members of the varsity squad. A small token was given to each, followed by "Yeah Seniors, Nice Work-Boys!" The pep rally closed with the singing of "Victory" and the school song.

The Girls' Athletic Association's skit for the pep meet was a scene on the bus coming from the athletic field, with 28 GAA girls in it. The plan for the skit was presented at the last meeting by Carole Cameron.

The next GAA Fun Night will be held Nov. 18 in the CHS gym. The table setting committee is headed by Ann Schmunk, chairwoman of the food committee is Diane Gary.

The girls' physical education classes have enjoyed their course very much. Mrs. Finch has a very good sense of humor, which is greatly appreciated by the girls. They usually do exercises at the beginning of the period, the rest of the class period they play volleyball. Some of the high school girls help to referee the seventh grade games.

Shop I has been working very hard studying for a perfect grade on a test they will be taking covering material on "shop safety." Any person who fails to get a perfect grade on the test will be deprived of the privilege of using the shop tools.

Shop II has been very busy working on the identification of the characteristics and location of wood. Also they are busy working on welding and construction, which takes a lot of time and thought.

Susan Schroen and Marcia Bertke, seventh grade Junior Librarians, are working on a special project for the library. They are checking the H. W. Wilson Company Check List of Library Catalog Cards, to order cards for the books which will be in the new Junior High School Library, a collection of books which will probably be housed in the room which is now occupied by the High School Library.

During the week of Nov. 8, the library was used three periods by Mr. Rogers' study hall. By the end of the week the students had used the Encyclopedia Americana, Compton's Encyclopedia, the World Almanac, Statistical Abstract, Book Encyclopedia, and the World Statistics of the United States, as well as other reference books. Student comments indicated approval of the library arrangement and schedule, though deploring the somewhat limited availability of material due to the large number of demands upon it.

Speech classes have been learning six new types of speeches—presentation, acceptance, welcome, farewell, after-dinner, and introduction. The classes are divided into pairs, with two students working together, but on two different speeches. One member of the pair might, for example give an introduction, and the other might give an after-dinner speech. The class is also learning to present a proper discussion.

The annual assembly on Michigan Wildlife will be presented here on Nov. 20 by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fuller. They do their own filming, editing, and narrating on beautiful color film. The film depicts many of the wonders in wildlife, including water birds, snakes, and insects. This year an underwater view of the marsh is included along with microphotographic views of the insect world.

Student Council discussed the merits of a National Honor Society at the request of Mr. Bergman, that the Council support some new ideas of promoting the society. Honors might be given to the upper 10 per cent of the classes. If the idea is carried out, Party plans were approved for the JV Cheerleaders to sponsor a dance on Nov. 21, to honor the JV football team because they are undefeated.

A long discussion was held about cleaning up Chelsea High and keeping it clean. The motion was carried to have the building and grounds committee encourage the students to pick up waste and use the proper baskets for such waste.

Some discussion was also held on the possibility of establishing a Junior Red Cross in CHS. Mr. Russell McLaughlin has agreed to act as one of the judges in the "Name-the-League" contest. Prizes have been offered—a $5 cash prize, or a student pass good for a season—Is something going on in CHS which the Student Council should discuss? Tell the council about it by dropping a suggestion in the box provided for that purpose . . . Is traffic so heavy that we need one-way streets? At least one Council member thinks so, and the matter will be discussed soon.

The Window-Painting Contests proved profitable for seventh graders of section C. Their efforts on Foster's and Chelsea Hardware windows won first and second prizes, totaling five dollars, which were placed in the treasury in care of the newly-appointed treasurer, Carol Mayer.

Eight graders are now studying the Constitution of the United States in Mr. O'Doherty's history classes. Mrs. LaGoe is reviewing her students on English note-writing. They are also studying the functions and parts of speech of each word in sentences. Steadily working on daily math assignments, Mrs. Papadoff has her classes leaving and reviewing percentage equivalents. Finishing up on a unit of heat, the eighth graders will soon advance to weather, climate, and their importance in their science class taught by Mr. Hayden.

The Sophomores met recently to discuss class dues and the formation of a trip club. A committee was appointed by President Jerry Ringe to look into the possibilities of a trip club, and the dues matter was tabled until the next meeting.

At a recent Junior meeting, both trip club problems, and class problems were discussed. The modification of the constitution was tabled until Mr. Lane could be present to help solve some of the problems that developed. Some examination of proposed trips was made, but no decision could be reached.

Class officers appointed a general prom committee to do the overall planning for the prom, and to appoint other necessary committees. Serving are Chairman Judy Welch, Polly Willis, Victor Blacharczyk, Dallas Ferris, Jim Collins, Stella Lewis, Charles Koenigster.

The Juniors and Mrs. Bald have been going around the world in English class. They have been interviewing foreign students from the U. of M. and other colleges. Others have talked with friends and neighbors from a foreign country. Then talks were given by class members about the life and customs in the country of their ancestry. Other students have been working on their own family trees.

The week finds the seniors in a fairly calm disposition. The last senior pictures were cared for when Crane Studios appeared to do some retakes.

November 4 was important for another senior event. While actual state and county elections were taking place all over the nation, county elections were being carried on in the CHS American Government classes. One person was chosen for each of the 24 offices. Those two dozen people attended County Government Day jointly sponsored by the County Bar Association, The American Legion, and the county officers, held in Ann Arbor last Thursday. There they heard lectures about their respective offices, toured the county building, and sat in a session of the Circuit Court. Delores Scribner was Circuit Court Commissioner; Bud Huelberg was Judge of Circuit Court; Jim McKelvie was County Clerk; Ralph Fletcher was Drain Commissioner; Carole Barr was Probate Judge; Bob Smith was Prosecuting Attorney; Leroy Fisher was Register of Deeds; Karen Munro was Sheriff; Jeane Larson was Supervisor; Terry Gentner was Surveyor; Sandra Kerner was Treasurer; Wanda Patrick was County Administrator; Helen Lentz was County Welfare Agent; Steve Bristle visited the Co-operative Extension Service; Norah Greenwood was Friend of the Court; Barbara Hoffman was Director of the Health Department; Sandra Fraser was Juvenile Director; Bob Eder was County Medical Examiner (coroner); Barbara Greenleaf was Planning Commission Director; Jim Shepherd was Probation Officer; Jim Mahar was Road Commissioner; Priscilla Neal was Sealer of Weights and Measures; George Mayer was Superintendent of Schools; Elaine Walker visited the Welfare Department.

Meanwhile, through all this fun and activity, the "twelfth graders" are looking forward to that day of finality and beginning graduation! President Merkel is taking measurements for the traditional caps and gowns.

a modern gas water heater supplies hot water faster—and at savings

It's a dog's life if you have to wait for the water to heat whenever you have a little chore to do. But there's no drudging along on lukewarm water once you own a modern gas water heater. It responds so fast it provides you with a continuous supply of hot water automatically. Set the temperature you like once, then forget it.

A gas water heater is a real economy, too, operating at big savings. So why not replace your old water heater with a new gas model from those displayed at Gas Company offices and dealer showrooms?

Mrs. Anna Hoag Quietly Observes 103rd Birthday

Mrs. Anna Hoag, oldest Chelsea resident and believed to be the oldest resident of Washtenaw county, quietly observed her 103rd birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Staffan where she has made her home for the past 15 years.

Except for a short period during which she lived at Kingman, Kan., and Oxford, Ind., Mrs. Hoag has lived all her life in this vicinity. Before making her home with the Staffans she had lived on Orchard street for many years.

Mrs. Hoag's parents were William G. and Sarah Coy Dancer, pioneers and Lima township residents. She was born in Lima township Nov. 1, 1855.

For many years prior to her retirement at the age of 75, she was employed as a bookkeeper for the Chelsea Electric Light and Water Department.

She is a life member of Olive Chapter No. 108, O.E.S., of which she is also a past matron. She was secretary of Chapter 108 around the turn of the century after serving in that capacity for 25 years.

Mrs. Hoag is a member of the Congregational church and a former member of the C. in S. group. She was active in the work of the church and Sunday school for many years.

Mrs. Hoag is an aunt of the late Mrs. George P. Staffan, mother of G. L. Staffan. Since her death she has lived with the G. L. Staffans.

They held open house for her on her 100th birthday three years ago and she greeted the many friends and relatives who called, recognizing them by their voices. She has been blind for the past few years.

She is now confined entirely to bed.

Mrs. Hoag was remembered with flowers and many cards in observance of her birthday.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

★ Why the Stock Market Keeps Rising

Business recovery is under way. There's no question about it. The recovery to date has been between one-half and three-quarters of the recession decline, depending upon the measure used. But the New York stock market has gone far beyond even the higher of these two figures. Common stocks on that market, as measured by the acceptable averages, have been making historic highs week after week. There have been setbacks, or corrections, but they have been relatively minor and have lasted only a few days.

In basic terms perhaps the major cause for this extraordinary behavior has been simply a demand and supply situation. The demand upon the investment market in dollar amounts has been large, but there have been few new common stock issues. The reason is that a corporation which needs additional money has a strong tax incentive to issue bonds rather than stock, because the interest on bonds as well as other interest, is tax deductible.

Even if a corporation has to pay a high rate of interest, the Government, as a result of the 52 per cent corporate income tax, contributes half of the charge. In the case of stock issues there is no such deduction for tax purposes. Relatively, therefore, there is a shortage of stocks and with heavy buying prices tend to advance.

Another important factor in the market rise, perhaps the most significant single factor, is the widespread conviction that we are on the verge of further inflation. Such an attitude causes investors to buy stocks, rather than bonds or mortgages, because common stocks are supposed to advance in harmony with the general price level. That makes common stocks attractive as a hedge against inflation. Actually stocks may or may not advance in harmony with the price level, but at least, if they are carefully and wisely selected, they have distinct advantages in this regard over any fixed interest obligations.

A mortgage, for example, has a definite face value, and this does not vary regardless of what happens to commodity prices. The same is true with bonds. One buys mortgages and bonds because of the greater security of the income and principal, not as a protection against inflation. With more and more investors looking for inflation, it is to be expected they will turn more and more to common stocks, and less and less to bonds or other fixed interest obligations.

Still another major element in the recent rise has been what is termed institutional buying—pensions, mutual funds, investment trusts, and to a limited extent, banks and insurance companies. The funds held by such institutions are in the scores of billions and the flow to them week by week and month by month is enormous.

These funds have to be invested, and they are invested, by and large, without too much regard to the level of the market at the time. This is a powerful factor in connection with the so-called blue-chips—the top quality company stocks. It also is a powerful factor working against extensive market declines. Frequently it is said institutional investors always buy and never sell. That is not true, but they, as a group, buy more than they sell, and hence tend to give strength to the market at all times, especially in the blue-chips.

The final factor which must be mentioned is that business is recovering and profits, in an increasing number of instances, are rising. The upswing of the market, however, started well before it was clear that the business trend had turned upward, and the prices of many stocks have reached a level that is hard to justify on the basis of either present or immediately potential earnings. The business recovery, therefore, must be considered as largely a psychological factor in the behavior of the market.

To most investors, of course, the great questions are first, will the market continue to advance, and second, is there danger of a major setback in stock prices?

The best that can be said in answering these questions is to report that, in the opinion of many experts in this field, there still is room on the upside, and that there is nothing in sight which will cause a really serious sell-off of prices. It should be added that such views do not mean all stocks will advance, or that we shall not have periods of correction in other words if one is careful and conservative in selecting what to buy, there is not much chance of being badly hurt, and one may still make an appreciable profit and a fair income.

Know Your PTA

"Report Card—U.S.A." This is the general theme for this week of Nov. 9 to 15 which is designated as American Education Week. The purpose is two-fold: (1) to inform the public of the accomplishments and needs of its schools; and (2) to secure the co-operation and support of the public in meeting the needs. An invitation is issued for area residents to visit and inspect schools during "education week." Elementary school parents will be meeting with their child's teacher for conferences during this week. Look in on the display of school textbooks at the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. These are the books your elementary and high school students study as they progress toward high school graduation.

end run but the ball squirted out of the carrier's hand, took a bounce up into the arms of Saline end Ray Wiebusch who scampered 35 yards for Saline's second T.D. Jim Jordan scored the extra point for Saline.

With about three minutes remaining Coaches Al Conklin and Truman O'Boery put their seniors back in the game. But the team had a strange look as line men Fritz Wagner, Jim Mshar, Gus Steger and Pat Merkel were playing in the backfield, while Senior backs were playing in the line. Even though the players were out of position they moved 60 yards in five plays to score. Mshar went up the middle for five yards as did Gus Steger. Wagner then ran his own right end for eight more yards. Then Jim Mshar hit Keezer, who was playing end, with a pass good for 15 yards and Keezer sped for 30 more yards before being tackled. On the next play guard Gus Steger faked back and threw a pass to Don Wood who made a leaping catch in the Saline end zone for the T.D. The extra point attempt was not good as Keezer attempted a drop kick. A few moments later the game ended with Chelsea winning, 40-13. The victory gave Chelsea a winning season after two seasons of playing 500 ball. The win also placed Chelsea in fourth place in the Huron League's final standings.

As a public service there is an exhibit of school books in the window of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. on Main street. "Report Card U. S. A." is the theme of the exhibit, which is being observed throughout the nation Nov. 9-15.

Designed this year to focus attention on the new challenges to American Education posed by the space age and to answer such questions as "Where do we stand?" the observance is being sponsored by the National Education Association, American Legion, U. S. Office of Education, and National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The seven daily topics emphasized to tie in with the main theme are "Report Card on Character Building," "Responsible Citizenship," "Education and Survival," "The Curriculum," "The Teacher," "Developing Talents," and "Community Teamwork."

Librarian Will Attend Detroit Conference on Instructional Materials

Miss Joan Wiese, librarian of the Chelsea School District, and Chairman, Library Division, Region III, Michigan Education Association, will attend the Co-operative Conference on Instructional Materials at the Rackham Building, Detroit, on Nov. 14-15. This is a joint conference of the Michigan Association of School Librarians and the Michigan Audio-Visual Association in co-operation with the Michigan Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

The sessions will feature addresses by Dr. Floyd Brook, former executive secretary of the department of audio-visual instruction of the National Education Association and Dr. Frances Henne, associate professor of library education at Teachers College, Columbia University.

The general purpose of the conference is two-fold: To contribute to the improvement of instruction in Michigan schools by developing a better over-all concept of an adequate program of instructional materials and how it can be established through co-operative efforts of school librarians, audio-visual specialists, and curriculum directors; and to help all who attend the conference to return to their working situations determined to work co-operatively with others and more able to see clearly their own areas of special responsibility as they relate to the total curriculum.

Partridge Sighted Perched in Tree At High School

Bus drivers at Chelsea High school called The Standard office Monday morning to report that there was a partridge perched in a tree in front of the school.

Similar in color to a hen pheasant, the partridge has squared tail feathers instead of the longer tail feathers of the pheasant.

Conservation Officer Donley Boyer said yesterday that many people believe partridges are rare in this part of the state but this is no longer true. He said there were probably "lots of them" in the past marsh in the southeast part of the village. Partridges, like heavy cover such as the peat marsh provides.

Open season for hunting partridge, also known here as ruffed grouse, is from Oct. 20 to Nov. 10, Boyer said.

While partridges are increasing in numbers in this part of the state, Boyer said, their favorite areas in Michigan are in the vicinity of Grayling and Gaylord and in the Upper Peninsula.

The University of Michigan Bureau of Psychological Services counsels more than 700 students annually.

Water Shortage

fully estimated to be a whopping $57,000 less than that required for the 66 2/3 percent of the required revenue will be exceeded if residents' tax payers are fully informed. The council has received the following help of most local organizations that a "yes" vote is a vote to spend $57,000 more money to finance the same project.

Questions and Answers
Q. Why do we need this water expansion program?
A. For adequate fire protection, water supply, water hygiene and general health of the community in all these respects.

Q. What is the alternative to a "yes" vote?
A. That the Council has the authority to initiate the program on the basis of a revenue increase which does not require a vote of the resident taxpayers.

Q. How much more would a revenue bond issue cost?
A. Approximately $57,000, due to the higher interest rate and five years longer bonding period.
