Lenten Service To Be Held at Congl. Church

The second Union Lenten service of the current series was held last night at St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church, with the Rev. Philip Rusten of the Congregational church delivering the sermon.

The Rev. Rusten chose as the basis of his sermon scriptural passages from Matthew V, verses 13 to 20. Theme of the sermon was "Making Use of Our Opposites."

He spoke of the inner compulsion that motivates people, as Christians, to do the right, comparing this compulsion to a magnet which pulls for the good and repels the evil.

Quoting the statement attributed to Jesus—"I am come that ye might have life"—the Rev. Rusten explained that Jesus was emphasizing the fact that the evil currents prevalent at the time were responsible for his sojourn on earth as well as the good which he was able to do. He said the evil in the world in Jesus' day influenced the good he was able to do.

The next Union Lenten service is to be held Feb. 25 at the Congregational church and the Rev. Louis Caister of Salem Grove and North Lake Methodist churches will deliver the sermon.

FUNDS STILL NEEDED:

Progress Reported on Remodeling Library

Work on the McKune Memorial Library has begun. Floors are being strengthened, walls are being relocated, and in general, work is progressing, under the direction of Thomas Tanner, architect and Koch Brothers, contractors.

At present, unless additional donations are received or pledged fairly promptly, there is no possibility of putting wallboard on the ceilings to strengthen the plaster, no new lighting fixtures, no tile flooring, and possibly no redecorating. Those things were listed as near-necessities.

Absolute necessities were floor-strengthening, rewiring, preparation of the caretaker's apartment, a safety-exit from the second floor, and two washrooms.

Other things desirable, but not absolutely necessary, are a drinking fountain, additional furniture, improvement of some of the second-floor rooms to be used for club or committee meetings and to house the historical and museum collections; (the Board had hoped to do the basic work to avoid another "mess" later, a suitable charging desk, and so on.

Extreme importance is attached to prompt securing of either cash or pledges, as some of the work could be done on "credit," if reasonable assurance of later contributions were made toward a goal of approximately $10,000. At present about half that goal has been reached.

Important contributions have recently been received from Mr. and Mrs. Armin Schneider; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Eaton; the Chelsea Woman's Club (help in preparing the north memorial room); Leonard Keith (donation of plumbing services); Merkel Brothers Hardware, Chelsea Hardware, Finkbeiner Lumber Co., and Chelsea Lumber Co. (all four of whom are supplying certain materials practically at cost); Mrs. Richard Riemenschneider, Mrs. Ellsworth Smith; Mrs. "Anonymous"; Mrs. Paul Niehaus; Mrs. H. Pierce; Mrs. E. Kipfmiller; Mrs. Alfred Lippert; and Miss Dorothy Piesmeier.

The board is very grateful to the three young men who chipped away the ice from the sidewalk last week.

Mrs. Warren Daniels, chairman of the fund-raising committee, is busily writing letters soliciting contributions of all sizes—anything from a dime to hundreds of dollars. Contributions may be sent to her at 4001 South County Road, Palm Beach, Fla., or may be handed in at the library, or to any member of the Library Board—Mrs. Thomas Bust, William Collins, Mrs. Edwin Eaton, Mrs. John Fisher, Miss Mabel Fox, or Philip Smith. In fact, any board member would be happy to call to pick up a contribution, if desired.

Mixed-Up Robins Check in Early!

Mrs. Frank Reed called The Standard office Saturday to report that she saw a pair of robins in a tree outside her kitchen window. She said she believes they are the same pair that returned there early last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle S. Barr, Sr., reported a pair of robins appeared at their home on the Manchester road Sunday.

Livestock Banquet Set Wednesday Evening at High School Cafeteria

Susan Cobb, 4, Rescues Playmate From Icy Waters

Susan Cobb, 4½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb of 515 North Main street, proved she had the qualities of a heroine late Tuesday afternoon when she helped a playmate help himself and averted a possible tragedy after the playmate, Billy Osnaki, fell into the icy water of the creek in Veterans Memorial Park.

Playing near the creek is "out-of-bounds" for both youngsters on orders of their parents and when Susan's six-year-old sister, Linda, saw them head in that direction she reported the fact to her mother.

By the time Mrs. Cobb reached the scene, Billy was out of the water and racing for home, soaked to the skin, and Susan was lying on the bank crying, but safe. She had been the water to her knees while helping Billy. She explained that she had instructed Billy to take hold of a bar under the foot-bridge and pull himself up and then reach for her hand. Holding on to the bar herself, she managed to stay upright and get back to the creek bank where her mother found her.

Adult Classes Forming at High School

Anyone interested in adult education classes at Chelsea High school should plan to be present for a general planning meeting to be held in the new Chelsea High school auditorium Monday evening, Feb. 23, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Typing and bookkeeping classes, taught by John Cook, and sewing classes, taught by Miss Julia Hammond, are already available, providing a sufficient number of people are interested.

A driver education instructor also has been secured and people who wish to enroll should be sure to attend Monday's meeting. The new instructor for driver training is K. P. McKay of Ann Arbor.

Instructors will be provided for any subject in which a sufficient number of people indicate interest. Monday's meeting will afford everyone an opportunity to express their wishes regarding adult classes. These will be the final adult education classes of the current school year and should be started at once.

Rev. John Lee Is Guest Speaker

The Rev. and Mrs. John Lee and daughter, Judy, will be guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Allan Reed Sunday and the Rev. Lee will be the speaker at the morning service at St. Barnabas Episcopal church. The Rev. Lee formerly served St. Barnabas here as lay vicar and is now director of boys' work for the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan. He is also assistant secretary of the diocese.

First Stop Scheduled at Baldwin Farms

Approximately 400 people are expected to attend the Washtenaw county livestock banquet to be held next Wednesday evening at the new Chelsea High school. The banquet follows the 1959 Washtenaw County Beef Tour sponsored by the Washtenaw County Livestock Council of which LeRoy Heller is president. Heller is general chairman of the annual affair which promises to be one of the most interesting events of the current year.

Those who plan to go on the tour are to meet at 9 a.m. at the John Brooks farm, 2650 Manchester road.

The first tour stop is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. at the Baldwin Farms, on Dexter Trail, Stockbridge, where all new facilities will be seen in operation. In addition to the barns there are four 24'x50' silos, all automatic for bulk feed handling. There are 450 heifers on feed there.

It is suggested that tour participants get their noon lunch either in Chelsea, Stockbridge, Ann Arbor or Saline.

At 1:00 p.m. the second stop will be made at the William Klapper farm, corner Maple and Textile roads, between Ann Arbor and Saline. Inside and outside feeding of 80 head of 650 to 700-pound Herefords is the feature to be demonstrated at the Klapper farm.

The third and last tour stop will be at the George Wallo farm, 338 Willis road, Saline. Two 24'x60' silos and a clearspan 112'x56' barn, all new, are in use on the Wallo farm for its automatic feeding. Stock on the place includes 300 head of Herefords weighing 500 to 550 pounds. The stop at the Wallo farm is scheduled for 2:15 p.m.

Hugh Henderson, animal husbandry specialist, will accompany the tour and a number of market men are also expected. The climax of the day will be the livestock banquet to be held in the cafeteria at Chelsea's new high school at 7:30 p.m.

At the dinner, the Rev. C. J. Renner, Rogers Corners, will give the invocation and LeRoy Heller will welcome the guests.

Remarks by Donald Johnson, director of Washtenaw County Extension Service, and election of officers for the coming year will conclude the activities in the cafeteria.

This will be followed by the evening's program which is to be held in the new auditorium.

Paul F. Niehaus will emcee the program and will also lead group (Continued on page seven)

C. of C. Meeting Devoted to Plans For 125th Birthday

In a report of Chelsea village affairs, given at Tuesday's Chamber of Commerce meeting by Village President Donald Alber, he said village crews are swamped with street work because of the unprecedented icy conditions which have persisted since the first of the year. Two additional men have been added to the public works crew, Alber said, and all calls received are processed as soon as possible. The office has been swamped with calls because of road conditions, Alber said.

U-M Medical Center Will Hold Open House

Ann Arbor—Exhibits and demonstrations, ranging from monkey morphine addicts to laboratory research on individual cells, will go on public display Sunday afternoon, Feb. 22, when the University of Michigan Medical Center holds community "open house" in the new $35 million buildings of the Medical School and School of Nursing.

More than 25 special exhibits will be manned by faculty members of the various departments to give visitors a first-hand picture of the training and research activities that go into the education of Michigan's future doctors and nurses.

Students in medicine and nursing will serve as escorts to show the public through the new buildings from 1 to 5 p.m.

The Medical Sciences building opened last fall and now houses the Departments of Biological Chemistry, Pathology and Pharmacology. Located at the northwest corner of the U-M Medical Center, the structure is the fifth building occupied by the Medical School.

Planting corn in a single operation not only saved labor and money, but produced nearly 11 bushels per acre more than the usual method, according to a research report made by Clarence Hansen, a Michigan State University agricultural engineer.

Equipment designed to plow, plant, fertilize and apply emergency spray for weeds in a single operation was tested on 11 Michigan farms. Yields were 10.9 bushels per acre larger than on companion plots tilled the conventional way.

Michigan State agricultural engineers compared the method with minimum tillage in 1958. Yields for both operations were about the same.

The one-over operation saves 38 per cent on fuel and 37 per cent on horsepower hours, as compared to the minimum tillage method. Savings over conventional systems was more than 50 per cent in fuel and horsepower.

The equipment designed for the experiment was mounted on a four-wheel tractor. The method of plow-planting used in this research would save about $3 to $6 per acre, Hansen's report indicated.

Since its establishment 100 years ago.

During the open house, biologists will display a research laboratory in full operation, probing unknown virus effects on the chemical processes of a living cell.

Pathologists will open their tissue laboratory where they diagnose surgical specimens from the operating rooms.

In the Pharmacology Department, visitors will see some of the 250 Indian macaques which are used in studying narcotic addiction. The department serves as the nation's screening center for morphine-like drugs.

Visitors to the School of Nursing will witness actual demonstrations of modern nursing care, the preparation of special diets and the operation of a new "push-button" hospital bed.

A cancer display, a newly-developed germ-free laboratory, and an apparatus which checks the effect of different drugs on a living turtle heart will be among other features to be seen during the guided tour.

And for the first time the public will be able to visit the U-M animal quarters where scientists will be making an electroencephalograph (brain wave) recording from a live monkey.

The new home of the Medical School consists of three interconnected buildings linked to the University Hospital by an enclosed bridge. It contains over 123,000 square feet of teaching, research and office space, including the administrative quarters of the two schools.

Among the major teaching facilities are two amphitheatres, seating 250 students each, a museum and 41 general and special-purpose laboratories.

The first medical building was erected in 1850 on the east side of the main campus at a cost of $9,000. In 1903, West Medical opened at a cost of $137,000 and this was followed in 1926 by East Medical, built at a cost of $559,283.

Last summer, West Medical and the old Pharmacology building were vacated when the departments moved into the modern building, The Pharmacology Building, has since been razed and this University is seeking funds to renovate West Medical for use by the School of Natural Resources.

Future plans call for a $6-million addition to the new Medical Sciences Building. This will be joined to the west end of the new structure and will provide space for the departments of anatomy, physiology and bacteriology which are currently located in East Medical.

Missionary To Speak at Assembly of God

Miss Elsie Marialke, missionary formerly to India and more recently to East Pakistan, will be a guest speaker at the Chelsea Assembly of God church on Tuesday, Feb. 24, the Rev. H. J. Moppellink, pastor, announced today.

Miss Marialke will relate some of her experiences and will tell of the Assemblies of God work in India and Pakistan. She is under appointment of the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God with headquarters in Springfield, Mo.

Miss Marialke went to north India in 1946 and spent five years there. After a time of language study she was stationed at Purulia, Bihar, where she supervised the mission station, including the Door of Hope Orphanage. This orphanage has saved the lives of many children in Bihar, for most of those admitted to the home would have died had it not been for the care given them at the orphanage.

In 1953 Miss Marialke went to East Pakistan for her second term of service. For one year she did evangelistic work in the village areas. She travelled by river, steamer, small country boats and rickshaws, and slept in the "basha" huts of the villagers and ate their native food. In 1955 she went to the evangelized port city of Chittagong, a city of approximately 200,000. Chittagong is called the "steep-pot" because of so many races and nationalities living here.

She had under her supervision a growing English-speaking church and was instrumental in organizing a Bengali-speaking congregation.

Prior to going to the mission field, Miss Marialke ministered in Indiana. She is a graduate of Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Mo.

At present Miss Marialke is visiting various churches of the Assemblies of God telling of the work in north India and Pakistan. She plans to return to East Pakistan in the near future.

The Rev. Moppellink extends a cordial invitation to the public to hear Miss Marialke. The service begins at 7:30 p.m.

How To Save Money On Winter Driving

East Lansing—Members of the Michigan State University Highway Traffic Safety Center and the Michigan State Police teamed up today to issue some seasonal money-saving advice to Michigan motorists.

Michigan's icy, snow-clogged streets and highways may slow up most drivers, but they have an opposite effect on accidents. Reported injury accidents increase.

The number of property damage accidents to vehicles shoots up sharply. And up go repair bills.

This observation was made by Orrin Lucas, traffic analyst, Michigan State Police. "In my experience," he said, "the same accident trend invariably asserts itself when our roads are suddenly hit by ice and snow. Fatalities usually drop, but injury and property damage accidents climb. This year has been particularly bad over a long period of time."

Lucas pointed to the adverse weather and highway conditions in December as an example. Provisional figures for that month show a 19 per cent decrease in highway deaths but a 10 per cent increase in injury accidents and a 16 per cent increase in property damage accidents. Preliminary figures for January, indicating a greater decrease in deaths, show similar increases in other accidents.

Richard W. Bishop, assistant professor, teacher education department, and the MSU Highway Traffic Safety Center, feels that this trend indicates that drivers slow down—but not nearly enough.

"Motorists slow down enough to keep from killing themselves when they do lose control of their vehicles," he said, "but they don't slow down enough to keep their cars going in the right direction. These accidents are costing motorists unnecessary dollars."

Bishop offered the following proving ground recommendations to drivers based on observations during skid test demonstrations held recently in Clintonville, Wis., and conducted by the Committee on Winter Driving Hazards of the National Safety Council:

Traction is the important question on slippery road surfaces. Just how much—or how little traction you have is vital. And traction varies greatly depending on temperature as well as just what it is that's making the road slick—snow, rough ice, glare ice, etc.

The first thing is to find out just how slick the road is. In short, "get the feel of the road."

When there's no traffic around, try your brakes until you find just when the wheels lock and start to slide. Try them when you start out and keep on trying from time to time. If the temperature rises, ice gets more treacherous. Ice is slicker at around 32 degrees and it will take you farther to stop than at 0 degrees. It's the film of water from the ice melting at higher temperatures that causes the trouble.

There are tricks that will help you keep control of your car. Drive at a speed well under that at which the rear of your car starts to slide around.

Avoid sudden acceleration and deceleration. Keep your speed constant and pick up speed and slow down gradually. This is the kind of error that causes one car to slide into another in passing.

Always remember that front wheels that are sliding can't turn your car.

This means, stay away from the brake pedal as much as possible. If you do have to brake, don't slam them on and hold them there. You'll lock the wheels, go into a skid and you'll lose steering control completely. Your wheels must be rolling if you are to be able to steer.

Staying away from your brakes means anticipating trouble way ahead of your car. That red stop light ahead for example. Slow down a long time before you get there and try to pace yourself so that you aren't caught on a light change and have to try to make a sudden stop.

Evading danger, if you think you can't stop in time, can save needless repair costs, possibly hospital bills.

If there's danger ahead that you have to avoid and there's any place to go, try keeping your wheels rolling and steering around it if at all possible. This calls for accurate, last minute decisions; but there's no substitute for good judgment and skill when you're driving on ice or snow-slick roads.

If you must brake, there's a proper way to do that, too. Push the pedal down just to the point where the wheels lock and you feel a skid starting. Then back off the brake pedal slightly. Repeat this intermittent on-off movement and try to keep your wheels rolling just before the point at which they skid.

You get the maximum braking power at the point just before the wheels lock and the tires slide. The advantage is that you keep steering control of your car while the wheels are rolling.

Skids are caused by locked wheels—uneven road surfaces, too fast increases or decreases in speed and abrupt changes in direction.

Curves compound the same skidding problems found on straight roads. On a curve, centrifugal force quickly uses up what little traction you may have on a slick road.

Your best defense on curves: Slow well in advance and enter the curve at greatly reduced speed. If you're going too fast, or you lock your wheels by slamming on your brakes, you won't be able to steer around the curve. Your car will slide off the outside of the curve.

Whenever your car does go into a skid, stay away from the brakes. Keep your speed constant. Turn your wheels in the direction of the skid. Locked wheels or sudden acceleration or deceleration will only increase the skid.

Compensate for a side skid early. Turn the steering wheel easily. Over-compensating (that is, oversteering to correct for the skid) will only throw your car around into a skid in the opposite direction. Correct for the skid the moment you feel the rear of your car sliding around. If your car gets too far around you won't be able to recover no matter what you do.

Snow tires will increase your traction in loose snow. Tire chains give you more traction on hard, slick snow and on ice. But even with these aids, slow down.

"It takes a lot of know-how to drive on slick surfaces," Bishop said. "You have to know your car. You have to know how slick the road really is. You have to know what to do. This takes practice."

"There's still plenty of bad weather driving ahead," he continued. "And the increased number of accidents when the roads are bad are costing Michigan motorists money. Get away from traffic and practice at slow speeds until you know just what you and your car can do on ice and slick snow. Then adjust your speed accordingly.

Don't push your luck, or that accident you might have will help push up the accident rate—as well as your repair bills and insurance rates.

Lucky to Have "Noisy Neighbors"

A recent news item about an Air Force base and the townspeople nearby illustrates a point I've made for some time.

Most of the local people had the same complaint—the roar of jets was irritating—so a group of them petitioned the Air Force to move the base.

Then the Air Force invited the petitioners to the base to show them how vital it was to their defense. The people soon decided jet noise was really a welcome sound—and all petitions were dropped.

From where I sit, jumping to conclusions—without knowing all sides of a question—is something people ought to avoid. It would make living together a lot easier. On little things, too—like your preference for tea or coffee and mine for beer. Understanding the other fellow's point of view will make traveling a lot smoother in this "jet" age of ours.

Mr. Sanborn sent post cards to several teachers all over Michigan, inviting them to attend the next meeting of the Michigan Future Teacher Association, which will be held on Feb. 16. Half of the cards were returned, with reasons for not attending. He read the cards to the group. Several pamphlets were distributed which discussed the high school curriculum and what the teacher should be teaching in addition to subject matter.

Mrs. Kayser is working as a volunteer helper in our new high school library. She has volunteered her help every Friday and has already helped twice. Mrs. Kayser has also arranged the library display case for February. It covered Mardi Gras, Ash Wednesday, Abraham Lincoln's birthday, Friday the thirteenth, Valentine's Day, Brotherhood Week, and George Washington's birthday.

The silver cross shown on the board was loaned by Mrs. R. Taylor of Chelsea. It was given her grandmother when she visited a monastery in the East.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 43 proved to be the Irvin H. Lounsberry farm at 13565 Jerusalem road, just across the road from the Dave-Pastor farm which appeared in The Standard the week before. The Lounsberrys have lived on the farm here since 1929.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin H. Lounsberry proved to be the owners of "Mystery Farm No. 43" published in last week's issue of The Standard. Their daughter, Mrs. Lee Weiss, was among the first to telephone The Standard office to identify it.

Also among the first to correctly identify the farm were Allen Broesamle and Anton-Nielsen, both of whom have identified most of the farms in the series.

Others who called the office to identify the Lounsberry place are Mrs. Gerald Lukic, Walter Rothfuss, John Lindow, Joey Merkel, David Pastor, Earl Kuhl, Mrs. Dave Pastor, Mr. and Mrs. Benner, Mr. and Mrs. Don Keizer and Mrs. Lounsberry.

Mrs. Lounsberry said she and her husband and their family moved to the farm No. 8, 1929, from their former home near Northville.

The present home was built in the fall of 1941 after the original house burned to the ground on Mothers' Day of that year.

The original house, as well as the barns were built by Frank Leach, a former owner, from lumber cut in the woodlot on the place.

The Lounsberrys' family now includes the daughter, Mrs. Lee Weiss, a son, Elwood Lounsberry of Dexter, and six grandchildren.

Jerry Herrick who recently was married to Leah White, Robert Weiss who is active in 4-H horse club work, and Janis, Susan, Robert and Donald Lounsberry of Dexter.

Resolution of Farm Bureau Federation Objects to Supreme Court Legislation

"The framers of our Constitution never intended," says the American Farm Bureau Federation in a resolution adopted without opposition at its recent Boston convention, "that there should be vested in the Supreme Court of the United States power to legislate, or power to interfere with the language of the Constitution, or power to distort the plain language of the Constitution, or power to interfere with matters of purely State or local concern where constitutional privileges and immunities of citizens are in no way bridged."

The convention was, it said, "seriously concerned with the present tendency of the Supreme Court to legislate with the acquiescence of the executive branch" and with the further tendency of Congress to relinquish legislative powers.

The resolution urged that Congress prescribe proper limitations of the court's jurisdiction, and that it enact "corrective or conforming legislation in those fields where the Supreme Court has invaded the legislative area."

While the Farm Bureau resolution did not refer specifically to any decision or ruling of the court, the delegates are obviously in agreement with former Indiana Congressman Samuel B. Pettengill, who takes issue with the oft-repeated statement that the court's ruling in the school segregation issue is "the law of the land."

"But even more important than integration or segregation," writes Mr. Pettengill in a recent magazine article, "is the preservation of the Constitution against the brainwashing of the American people now going on to support the curious notion that a decision of the U. S. Supreme Court—any decision—is law."

"There is not a word in the Constitution which says that a Supreme Court judgment is 'the law of the land'; there is not a word which says that public officials or private citizens are legally bound by a decision of the Supreme Court (except the parties to the particular case itself)."

"There is not a word in the Constitution which gives the Supreme Court the power or right to enact a law, or to amend the Constitution by giving it a meaning which the proposing Congress or ratifying state legislatures, or the people, did not intend it to have."

Pettengill goes on to observe that only the people have the power or right to amend the Constitution and only the Congress to enact Federal law. "This is what is meant," he says, "by a government of law. And Congress has never said that segregated schools are against the law."

Certainly, as the Farm Bureau resolution suggests, it is time for the Congress to assert its prerogatives and its responsibility to the people. We have faced intolerable situations before, and usually found orderly and dignified solutions. Our need for statesmanship in Congress was never greater.

Women Now Earning One-Fifth Of Nation's Total Payroll

The National Manpower Commission is now an authority on "womanpower," which is the title of a study showing that there are 22 million working women in America of whom 50 per cent are more than 40 years old, 60 per cent are married and collectively, they bring home one-fifth of the nation's payroll. It also shows that 80 per cent of all married women and 40 per cent of the mothers of all school-age children have steady jobs outside of the home.

As a result of these findings the Council has published a book on the subject called "Work in the Lives of Married Women" and which takes the position that it would be a national calamity of "incredible magnitude" if they all took a notion to quit—and explains why. Apparently it would be even more of a disaster if they waited a few years, since the Council estimates that there will be 35 million working women by 1965—and that more of them than ever will be grandmothers.

We don't know how the manpower problem is coming along—or even whether there is one any more. Perhaps what we really need is a National Manpower Commission against the day when men are earning one-fifth of the nation's wages and salaries, or have given up the idea of working altogether.

★ MICHIGAN MIRROR ★

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Taxpayers and citizens are still the important ingredients of government.

They can make or break political aspirants at the polls.

Those are the dual positions of the voter, the man who ultimately has the last word because he pays to be governed and served and he decides who will do the job for him.

The role of the Michigan citizen as a voter becomes important every two years on a state-wide scale, but the role of the voter as a citizen is often obscured.

Some Republicans and Democrats would like to place the proposed income tax and a proposed sales tax increase directly in the voter's hands April 8.

If they succeed, the role of the citizen again assumes the cloak of the voter.

The voters for whom the voter elected legislators and administrators to make are then made by citizens themselves.

It has happened many times in Michigan's recent history: civil service in 1940, the original sales tax, size margarine and dozens of others.

All were sizzling hot issues before the legislature but neither party wanted to take the onus of placing them in the lawbooks.

Gov. Williams has proposed a state income tax.

Republicans in the legislature prefer a flat rate, perhaps two per cent, to his graduated income tax version, which, they claim, would hit the middle-income groups hardest.

Democrats are committed to go along with Williams, realizing that many of their own supporters will be affected.

Republicans, in effect, proposed the income tax first, because it came from a report of revenue researchers working for the legislative tax study committee.

Now they would like the voters to decide.

Fast changes can be wrought in three years.

It was in 1955 that Gov. Williams flatly opposed a state income tax and party leaders were embarrassed when it appeared the idea would be proposed.

One Democratic legislator said it would be the "fairest of all" taxes and then spent days denying he meant it as an endorsement of a levy on personal incomes.

Since shortly after he first took office, Williams has proposed a corporation profits tax. Republicans answered with a business activities tax.

Williams objected, but it became law. He charged that the tax was levied whether a corporation made any money or not. His tax, he said, would be based only on profits.

His plan now indicates Michigan will have both.

Joined with the income tax idea is a corporation profits tax of five mills, seven mills on utilities. Two other business taxes would be all but repealed but the business activities tax will remain.

Business and industry already have attacked the governor's program. They say that the extra burden of taxes will further damage Michigan's economic climate.

But both parties agree that the state will need a large new tax if it is to continue the services and expand some of them to cover a growing population.

The need is indicated by the $110,000,000 deficit.

"Our needs will never break us, but our wants certainly will," said Sen. Clyde Geerlings, Republican from Hope, in a talk to the Rotary Club of Detroit.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where the U. S. Army and Navy is our biggest owners of fine grazing land. The Army has got three million acres and the Navy one hundred thousand acres. The Army has did away with the cavalry so I reckon they're holding on to that grazing land for retired Generals. I don't know what the Navy aims to do with theirs unless they're getting ready to retire battleships to pasture. It's a sight in this world.

Mister Editor, some of the things them fellers in Washington git away with.

I think one of the things that's wrong with this country today is that this generation ain't got no whittlers left in it. Back when I was a boy a feller always carried his knife and whittled while he was thinking or making a deal. I recollect once when my grand-father bought a armchair at a auction sale that had one arm whittled plum off. It had come from a bank and folks set in it while they was dicker for terms with the banker. I think the country would be better off if them Congressmen did a little whittling that expensive furniture they got up there. A armchair now and then would cost the taxpayers less than three million acres of grazing land.

We had a little social note come to light up at the country store

Saturday night. Ed Doolittle and his wife is celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary next week. Ed said he told her he'd kill a nice fat calf for the occasion but his old lady allowed as how she didn't see no reason for killing a innocent calf for a mistake they made 35 years ago.

Some of the fellers Saturday night was mighty worried about inflation and saying them Congressmen ought to do something about it. In my opinion they don't know no more about it than the rest of us. The manufacturer blames it on labor and labor blames it on the manufacturer, and the wholesaler blames it on the wholesaler and the retailer blames it on the retailer and there ain't nothing left to do but enlarge the stadium and hope for the best.

All I know about inflation is that I ain't no better off under it than I was before. In fact I ain't been no better off since I can remember, but it's my opinion that prices is going to stay high just as long as folks has got any money or credit left. If the folks in this country would follow my lead and git rid of their money, we'd git rid of high prices. What else we'd git rid of in the process, I ain't so shore.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

 Chelsea Standard

Dear Editor:

There are a few aspects of the recent school building program that have not been brought out publicly. It seems that these bits of information might be helpful in guiding the taxpayer in future problems of this kind.

I would like to say that I have always supported the idea of new high school facilities in view of the fact that the previous facilities were too small, antiquated, and generally of poor quality for this age. However, it does not seem wise to borrow for 30 years in the future as most of the taxpayers will not live to see the end of it. This brings to mind the thought that maybe we are not doing as much for our children as we are doing to them.

I am not completely sure of the interest rate other than knowing it is near 6 per cent and that the term of the issue is approximately 30 years. If we would assume, for the purpose of discussion only, that these figures are correct, the 30 year issue for 2.2 million dollars at 5 per cent interest will require an annual payment of $143,220 over the 30 year period for a total repayment of $4,296,600 or $2,096,600 in interest.

If we could have found a way to be a bit more frugal and made 1.5 million do the job, (one third less in total facilities) over a 15 year period at 5 per cent interest, the annual repayment would be $144,450 over the 15 year period for a total repayment of $2,166,750 or $668,750 in interest. In neither case is the annual repayment excessive but in the latter case we would be free of debt after 15 years and in a position to re-evaluate the school facilities program.

If we could have gotten along with $700,000 less facilities for the next 15 years, the taxpayers of the district would have been saved $1,429,850 in interest.

For dissecting a problem of this kind there is no better aid than the hindsight logic that has been applied here. However, there were a few in the district that had the foresight to see the end of the problem and these few were not contributing their ideas to the community effort that administered the program. These few can do the community a real service in the future to make their voices heard even at the risk of embarrassment.

We have a beautiful school and

★ Why Shop Courses?

The question, "Why do we have shop courses in high school?" was raised in my mind by a conversation I had with Frederick Millard a few days ago. Frederick used to be the athletic coach and shop teacher in our local high school, and now he teaches his full time teaching shop in a larger school.

That points to one advantage of a larger school: that a teacher can concentrate on his favorite specialty, instead of having to teach a variety of subjects.

Last week I mentioned the difficulty that a high school with less than 100 in its graduating class would have in offering a large enough variety of advanced subjects for those who plan to go to college.

The difficulty that Frederick brought up was not a matter of variety; he was talking about offering enough of one subject to be of practical value to the student.

In Garden City it is possible for a boy (or girl) who likes drafting to take a four-year sequence in mechanical drawing, or to take two years of machine drawing followed by two years of architectural drafting.

"These boys can go out and get a job when they have finished high school," he said, "but a boy who has had a year or two of mechanical drawing in a small high school just doesn't need to apply. He hasn't a chance to get a job in the city unless he goes to a technical school for a year or two at his own expense."

As James Bryant Conant says in his new book, "The American High School Today," what we need

This year, the light, medium- and heavy-duty trucks of the 1959 Chevrolet Task Force fleet are out to whip anything that comes their way—and they've got what it takes to do it!

Take the panel pictured above, for example. Powered by the '59 Thrifmaster 6 with new economy record, despite the sizzling pace of its work. That's typical of the way Chevies of all sizes are turning it on the most challenging jobs in America. The way they're made, with tough-built truck components, they make the hardest hauls look easy! If you have a job that puts a truck on its mettle, see your Chevrolet dealer!

NATIONAL CONGRESS OF PARENTS AND TEACHERS

Statement of Principles
The National Congress of Parents and Teachers believes that the following principles, based on the objects of the organization, must be practiced if every child is to have an opportunity to live a full life, satisfying to himself and useful to his community.

Human Value
We believe that individual freedom, individual rights, individual responsibility, and individual dignity are indispensable components of a democracy.

Spiritual Faith
We believe that religion is fundamental in our American tradition as a basic factor in personal and social behavior, and that every child is entitled to the opportunity to develop a religious faith.

Good Homes
We believe that the home is the basic unit in the structure of our society and should be the most constructive influence in building the child's character, sense of values, and his conception of the world.

Sound Health
We believe that the concept of health as physical, mental, emotional, and social well-being is vital to the welfare of the individual citizen, the community, and the nation.

Safety
We believe that every child should have an education that develops safe living habits and attitudes and should have an environment free from avoidable physical hazards.

Educational Opportunity
We believe that every child should have the opportunity through free public education to develop his capacities to the maximum.

Vocational Competence
We believe that vocational competence is a way to satisfaction, self-confidence, and independence for the individual and to increased stability for society.

Conservation of Natural Resources
We believe that every child should be taught to respect this country's natural resources and should be given general knowledge of how these resources may be conserved and replenished.

Constructive Leisure
We believe that the worthy and satisfying use of leisure plays a significant role in the wholesome development of children and youth.

International Understanding
We believe that by understanding the characteristics, cultures, and religions of all peoples and by recognizing the interdependence of the nations of the world, we shall move nearer the goal of enduring peace.

Civic Responsibility
We believe that every child should understand that the privilege of American citizenship demands the acceptance of its responsibilities.

TROOP 25
Don Wilson opened the meeting and Mr. Hitchingham gave a talk. The camp which was set to be this coming weekend has been cancelled. The Boy Scout Benediction closed the meeting.
Michael Hitchingham, scribe.

Look for feeder lamb prices to hold steady through this trading season, say Michigan State University farm economists. Prices will also likely hold a slight margin above a year ago.

Production Record Told for Holstein in Erkes' Herd

A registered Holstein cow owned by George Erke & Sons is included on a list of dairy animals with outstanding production records as compiled by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America in co-operation with Michigan State University. The testing program is part of the Herd Improvement Registry program, commonly referred to as HIR.

Milked twice daily for 865 days, the Erkes' cow, Gallant King Ruby Maxine, 3948474, produced a total of 16,889 lbs. of milk and 624 lbs. of butterfat as a five-year-old. Approximately 88,000 cows in 2,200 herds are now enrolled in the program with MSU supervising the weighing and testing of production.

The colors of green and white with a touch of black were emphasized with the use of a pure white cloth on the table and white snapdragons and chrysanthemums and green leaves in a black container for the centerpiece.

Democrats Hold County Convention Thursday Night

Washtenaw county Democrats concentrated their attention on state finances and the problems of higher education at the county Thursday night.

Meeting at the County Building, in Ann Arbor, some 150 delegates and guests heard addresses by W. K. McNally, Neil Staebler and Bernard McGulgan, passed a set of eleven resolutions on state and county affairs, and chose delegates and alternates to the state Democratic Convention, to be held in Grand Rapids, Feb. 20-21.

McNally, chairman of the board of the National Bank of Jackson, and a candidate for nomination to the University of Michigan's Board of Regents, called for expansion of the state's institutions of higher learning. He pointed out the vital role of education in the space age, and referred to financial support of education as "an investment without risk, and yielding certain returns."

Staebler, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, called upon Democrats to study the problems of state finances, and to acquaint the people with them. He pointed to the record of Republican legislators as "a record of irresponsibility unparalleled in Michigan history."

McGuigan, finance chairman for the State Central Committee, pointed out the need for funds to carry out the spring campaign at both state and local levels. He announced the beginning of a finance drive, to take place in Washtenaw county in March, and called upon Democrats not only to pledge money personally, but also to help in soliciting funds.

The delegates passed resolutions covering a wide variety of issues. They supported Governor Williams' tax proposal as one that would "provide adequate revenue and allocate the burden fairly."

In a resolution dealing with legislative reapportionment, the convention called for abolition of the moiety clause, in apportioning House seats, and periodic readjustment of Senate seats, "with at least some regard given to population."

County affairs were dealt with in a resolution calling for county home rule legislation which would allow counties to reorganize their government structures.

what makes a co-op work?

Co-operation, of course. Obvious? Maybe, but remember that co-operation means working together toward a common goal.

Co-operation—working together—has built the Michigan Milk Producers Association into the nation's outstanding milk-marketing co-op. Co-operation has given MMPA members—year after year—more services, a more stable market and a greater return for their milk.

In price negotiations, for example, MMPA bargaining will add an estimated $11,500,000 to members' income in 1959. In the Detroit market alone, a recent one-year contract negotiated by MMPA assures members an additional $8,500,000 return for their milk.

Working together, MMPA members achieve goals impossible for anyone to achieve alone.

should set the policy for state services, how extensive the services shall be, how they shall be financed.

Citizens' letters to legislators plead for economy.

Administrators say they have trimmed operations as far as possible and claim waste is at a minimum. Legislators charge that waste is widespread in state government.

The emergency officials say results in part from the fact that about two-thirds of the state's revenues are earmarked and placed beyond the control of the legislature.

Restricted funds include gas and weight taxes for highway construction, two of the three parts of the sales tax for schools and parts of the tax and profit on liquor.

As the crisis reached a breaking point, the treasury had $99,000,000 but no one could touch a cent. Voters had placed it out of the reach of the legislature, sometimes at the request of the legislature. Observers expect the 1959 legislative session to last until July.

If it does, it will be one of the longest in recent history. If needed decisions are made, it will be one of the most decisive.

Thumbnail Sketches

is "a meaningful sequence of courses leading to the development of marketable skills, rather than a hodgepodge of miscellaneous subjects."

The shop teacher in a small high school realizes that he will not have enough time or enough equipment to develop "marketable skills," so his courses tend to deteriorate into a series of unrelated projects. Some of these may help to make a boy handy around the house, while others are more like the busy-work one should expect to find at a Boy Scout camp.

Girls who take a commercial course in a small high school have the same problem. There is not enough concentration of effort to produce typists who can spell and accountants who can count. In the world of business, 70 per cent is not passing.

Do you suppose the answer lies in consolidating our schools so they will be large enough to offer courses concentrated enough to train the terminal student to make a living?

Helpful Tips
Make Cleaning
Tasks Easier

True, you must clean the house and wash the clothes. But there are ways to do these jobs without wearing yourself out, says Ruth Kettunen, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State University.

Be on the lookout for ways to cut down on unnecessary motions that just use energy. For example, sit whenever you can. If you're sorting clothes or even dusting small objects, sit down and save that precious energy. And remember, whether sitting or standing, your posture must be good to avoid getting tired.

Use leg muscles instead of back muscles when lifting objects from the floor, continues Mrs. Kettunen. Bend your knees instead of bending at the waist. Better yet, instead of stooping for things, bring them up to you! Adjust laundry tubs, clothes baskets, and washing machines to a comfortable level. Perhaps your clothes dryer could be placed on a bench or platform.

When carrying things from one place to another, use elevated carts and clothes baskets. A table on wheels can be very handy when doing such jobs as washing windows. The table and the cleaning equipment can be easily wheeled from window to window. If you must carry things, hold the load close to the front of your body, or divide the load and carry part in each arm.

Work at a comfortable and restlaxed pace, advises Mrs. Kettunen. Rhythmic, sweeping motions instead of short, jerky ones will save energy. If it's possible, rest ten minutes out of every hour.

Comfortable clothing is a must when cleaning. It should allow for free arm and shoulder movement.

Remember to use both hands for such jobs as dusting, washing woodwork or windows, and cleaning parallel clotheslines.

Cagers Lose To Lincoln Consolidated

Sharp Dundee Team Hits 44% of Shots For Tuesday Victory

Chelsea Bulldogs traveled to Ypsilanti Saturday evening to play Lincoln and lose their sixth game of the season, 62-54.

Chelsea fell behind 15-8 at the end of first quarter but pulled up to trail only 29-27 at half-time. They were outscored 33-27 in the last two periods to lose, 62-54. This left Chelsea with a 6-6 record for the season.

Alton Nixon was high for Chelsea with 19 points; 11 of these points came on free throws.

The JV's lost 82-30. Dave McLaughlin was high with 9 points.

The Chelsea Bulldogs playing well throughout all four quarters Tuesday night, lost to a very hot Dundee team by a 63-43 score.

The figures on the scoreboard, however, fail to reflect a true picture of what took place.

The Vikings from Dundee took 61 shots from the floor and hit on 27 of these attempts for a very warm 44 per cent, while the Chelsea team could score on only 17 of the 73 shots they took, for a very cold 22 per cent. Even though the Bulldogs defense and floor play was good they could not pry the lid off the basket.

At the end of the first quarter Dundee led, 16-8, and by a 30-17 margin at half-time.

In the second half Chelsea continued to have shooting troubles and trailed by a 46-28 score at the three-quarter mark.

During the fourth quarter the Bulldogs were again outscored, but this time by only two points as they failed to crack and continued to work hard.

George Mayer was high for Chelsea with 13 points, with Frank Frederick and Homer Nixon each getting 10 points.

Big 6'6" Don Tennyson led the Dundee attack with 27 points but received strong support from Darryle Miller and Barry Sheldon, getting 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Dundee's Junior Varsity defeated the Chelsea Jayvees in a close, hard-fought contest by a 38-30 score.

The Chelsea team will travel to Ypsilanti tomorrow in an effort to get back on the victory trail as they play Roosevelt at Bowen Trail House.

Next Tuesday evening Flat Rock will play here on the new Chelsea gym floor. The Junior Varsity game time has been changed to 6:15 p.m. instead of the customary 6:45 for home games.

Band Festival Set Saturday At Willow Run

This Saturday, Feb. 21, the Senior Band travels to Willow Run High school to take part in the annual Southeastern Michigan Band Festival. Buses will leave the new high school at 9 a.m. Members are requested to be at the band room at 8:30 a.m. for a short rehearsal.

The Chelsea Band will perform at 11:10 a.m. The numbers which they will play are: "Field of Color," by Bowles; "Green Dominoes" by Grundman; and "Folk Song Suite," by Williams. After playing these three numbers the band will proceed to another room to sight-read a march and an overture. They will arrive back in Chelsea at about 1:30 p.m.

All participating bands will be judged on basic elements of musical performance and will be placed in one of five divisions ranging from highly superior to poor.
