

'Brothers of the Brush' Chapters Being Organized Here

Need 15 Members To Gain Charter

"Brothers of the Brush" was officially started last night when 69 men representing most of the fraternal organizations, men's clubs, factories, rural groups and general Chelsea geographical section, attended a meeting held at the high school. The meeting was in charge of George Palmer, chairman of the Chelsea 125th Anniversary Participation committee.

Rolly Spaulding, general chairman of the celebration, gave a brief report of progress so far and outlined several of the activities scheduled during the climax of the huge celebration.

Among these activities are the special "for men only" events, part of which were summed up when Village President Donald Alber read the official Brothers of the Brush proclamation (see below).

George Palmer described 18 different types of facial foliage and stressed the fact that the proclamation decreed "hair on the face where heretofore it has not appeared."

It is not intended that men be encouraged only to grow wild natural-growth beards, but rather, any version, from the glorified full-bloom to a neatly-trimmed mustache.

In this manner, each and every man who grows hair on his face where it has not been seen before immediately identifies himself to all who see him, as a community-spirited, enthusiastic booster of the celebration.

This dignified old organization, the "Brothers of the Brush," is made up of chapters formed by securing a loyal membership of 15 men and thereby qualifying for a charter (Continued on page five)

ANNIVERSARY HEADQUARTERS—This was the scene at 10 a.m. Thursday of last week as workmen began the one-day job of erecting the log-cabin style building which will serve as headquarters for Chelsea's 125th Anniversary Celebration. (For a picture of the building project at 5 p.m. the same day turn to page 8 of this issue of The Standard). The 30x20 foot building, located on the North Main street parking lot, was constructed by the Squires Manufacturing & Lumber Co. of Milan, who specialize in prefabricated log buildings and log lawn furniture. Russell McLaughlin, celebration headquarters chairman, at right in the photo, stated that through the assistance of Robert Daniels of the Chelsea Lumber Co., local distributors for the Squires Co., this building is being furnished absolutely free of charge. A. N. Squires, president of the Milan firm, appears at the top of the ladder in the photograph and the other three men are his employees. Lloyd Heydlauff of Frigid Products donated a heating and air-conditioning system; the Village installed wiring and sewer facilities; Hilltop Plumbing and Rowe Plumbing offered their services for the plumbing work; Stocum Construction Co. donated the time for laying the foundation; Chelsea Associated Builders offered to help on inside construction and also made a large sign panel; and Alber Oil Co. offered free fuel oil for the heating stove.

BROTHERS OF THE BRUSH—This dignified group of Chelsea citizens was found loitering on the steps of the Chelsea State Bank this morning comparing their first-day growth. (Honestly, they said this was all grown after the Loyal Order of the Brothers of the Brush was proclaimed last night!) Donald Bacon, extreme left, is proud as a peacock of his healthy mustache. Of course, Al Mayer, Bill Schatz and Lynn Kern (left to right), each in his own way thinks he has the best-looking facial foliage of the group. Anyway you look at it, this is just a sample of things to come as the Chelsea 125th Anniversary Celebration gets underway.

Jaycees Name Vanderkelen President

Chelsea Jaycees held their annual election at the April meeting held Tuesday evening at Schumm's restaurant, and named Robert Vanderkelen their new president.

Others elected are Jack Wellnitz, first vice-president; Elton Guenther, second vice-president; Daniel Maroney, secretary; Lyle Christwell, treasurer; and Robert Jacobs, George Palmer and Merle Beach, members of the board of directors.

Jaycees decided to sponsor a door-to-door broom sale the evening of April 23, designating the proceeds to finance purchase of a pool table for the Chelsea Recreation Center.

The group also discussed the May 22 state Jaycees parade in Jackson and Robert Jacobs was appointed chairman of a committee responsible for obtaining a stage coach, surrey or covered wagon to be used in the parade. If such a vehicle is located the committee will be responsible for making any necessary repairs to fit it for use in the parade.

Registered at Tuesday's meeting were two chapters of "Brothers of the Brush," a program including men of the community pledged to raise mustaches or beards for Chelsea's 125th birthday anniversary celebration.

New members introduced and presented with membership pins at Tuesday's meeting are Ray Steinbach, David Atkinson, Leonard Thiel, Cecil Cobb, Leonard Hafner and Alan Booth.

Mentioned in an outline of the Jaycees' annual report were the following activities:

May—Teen-age rodeo; June—Tiger baseball game in Detroit and junior golf tournament; July—Dis-

CHELSEA SCHOOL CHILDREN shown in the photograph visited backstage with the famed Rubini following a free morning concert in the new auditorium at Chelsea High school Monday morning. The girls who appear in the photograph are, from left, Judy Wright, Penny Boyer, Frances Shepherd and Connie Scripser. They were enchanted with the maestro's Stradivarius violin which he told them is valued at $100,000. Rubini had made appearances at North and South Elementary, Junior High and St. Mary's schools before the 11:10 a.m. concert at the new auditorium. In the afternoon he appeared in a one-hour concert in the new Chelsea High school gymnasium where 1,045 students had paid 50 cents admission to hear the celebrated violinist. Climax of Rubini's one-day appearance in Chelsea was the evening concert held in the high school auditorium which was attended by approximately 500 people of the community. The attentiveness of the audience during the concert and the enthusiastic applause accorded Rubini and his accompanist, Homer Phillips, registered their whole-hearted approval. Rubini closed the concert by directing the audience in singing the national anthem while he played his violin and Phillips played the piano accompaniment. Rubini's appearance here was sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Chelsea. Proceeds have been designated as a contribution to the McKune Memorial Library Fund.

Four Children Left Alone Since Sunday

Discovery that four young children had been left alone since Sunday followed investigation by sheriff's officers after a motorist had picked up the oldest child, an 8-year-old girl, who asked for a ride into town to "get something to eat." This was at 6:10 p.m. Tuesday. The motorist reported the matter to Chelsea police officers.

The little girl told investigating officers that her mother and 10-year-old brother had left the four young children at home Sunday morning and had not returned. She said there was no food left in their rented home at 8026 Wacker road.

The four children are—Sharon Hayes, 8, Pamela, 5, Cynthia, 3, and Cheryl Ann, 1 year old. Their mother, the older girl said, is Carol Hayes and their 10-year-old brother's name is Patrick.

Sheriff's department records state that Douglas Hamilton was listed as the man who had rented the house in which the family lived.

Officers brought the children to Chelsea and placed them in a private home to be cared for until other arrangements could be made.

Load Restrictions Removed from All County Roads

Weight restrictions on county roads since Feb. 26 were removed at 8 a.m. Monday, April 6, by the County Road Commission. The restrictions had been placed on primary and secondary roads.

General Vogel Adequately Defends Explains TVA Purchasing Policies

Mr. Walter P. Leonard
Editor and Publisher
The Chelsea Standard
Chelsea, Michigan

Dear Mr. Leonard:

I have just received and read my copy of The Chelsea Standard dated January 22, 1959, containing an editorial entitled "TVA Purchasing Policy Invites Disaster if Allowed to Continue." Since I am both the Chairman of the Board of TVA and a native of Chelsea, I feel that you deserve a personal answer to that editorial.

The best way to proceed, I think, is by discussing your editorial paragraph by paragraph, starting with your reference to "TVA—our tax-fed, electric power octopus." TVA was indeed built with dollars from the American Government, whether from taxes or borrowings—more than 2 billion of them. Some 1.4 billion dollars have been invested in power, of which 260 million has been offset by payments to the Treasury and bond redemptions from power revenues. The difference between 1.4 and 2.6 billion has paid for developing the Tennessee River for navigation and flood control and for developing new and more efficient types of fertilizers, some of which are being used on Michigan farms. The improvements for navigation and flood control are similar to those which have been effected in every part of the country.

In the nation as a whole we have spent a total of about 17 billion dollars since 1820 in improving our rivers and harbors. These improvements, stretching from east coast to west and from Canada to Mexico, have formed the basis for the development of all commerce and industry. For the 17 billion dollars I have mentioned, we, as a nation, built the Panama Canal, many of the great hydro power installations of the West and Northwest, flood control projects for hundreds of cities, including not only small localities but also industrial areas such as Pittsburgh, Dallas, and Los Angeles, together with adjacent farmlands. The Mississippi, Ohio, Allegheny, Monongahela, and dozens of other rivers have not only been brought under control but have also been made navigable—in many cases by locks and dams—to serve the needs of a great and ever-growing national economy. I could go on and on about this, but I think a little reflection on your part will convince you that the 17 billions spent on river and harbor development (which, incidentally, includes all the harbors of the great Lakes and the locks at the Soo) have yielded returns far in excess of costs. Compare then, if you will, the 17 billions spent since 1820—the bases of our commerce and industry—with the current national budget of 77 billions. Should any American begrudge this?

But you were talking primarily about power, and I have told you that 1.4 billions of dollars from the Federal Treasury have been expended on the TVA power system for the building of hydro and steam plants and for transmission lines to distributors. TVA, I might add here, is only a producer and wholesaler of electric power. It sells directly to only a few large industries and Government institutions, including the Atomic Energy Commission. Individuals in communities and on farms are supplied by 150 organized distributors. At this point should add further that 60 percent of all power produced by TVA is sold to AEC and other defense installations at prices that result in many millions of dollars saved the taxpayers annually.

But getting back to the "tax-fed" idea—the money invested in TVA by appropriations is being repaid at the average rate of 2 1/2 per cent per year so that in 40 years from the date each element has gone into service the Government will be fully repaid. We are considerably ahead on those payments.

Out of our earnings, which average about 4 per cent annually of the basic investment, we pay all the costs of maintenance and operation and of depreciation. We pay to states and counties a sum in lieu of taxes which amounts to 5 responsibility of resisting labor increases and of devising better engineering methods to offset the increased costs.

We are moving more and more into the field of international commerce and there is an increasing challenge to American industry. The problem cannot be solved by subsidizing industry or by industry's simple passing on increased costs to the consumer. That is the inevitable pathway to inflation.

It is true that union leaders (specifically, the bollermakers' union) sent a long telegram to a number of senators, demanding that "TVA directors be fired." That telegram was based on representations made by Allis-Chalmers. Later we received a letter from the president of the union, copies of which were sent to all who had received the telegram, and in that letter it was stated that the telegram had been sent without knowledge of all the facts. In view of information later received, the union requested that its objections be withdrawn.

Now, let me comment on your reference to John L. Lewis and the coal people. TVA is the largest power utility in the United States and the largest single buyer of coal. We buy all our coal by competitive bidding, and we try to keep prices down. If we did not act conscientiously on this, I think you can see what the results would be all over the country. As we let coal prices soar, prices everywhere would go up and the electric utility supplying you would pay more. Now the price of power is directly related to the price of coal because it takes about three-fourths of a pound of coal in a modern plant to produce a kilowatt-hour of electricity. If we acted carelessly with respect to coal purchases, the cost of your power, even in Michigan, could go up and you yourself would be forced to write a larger check every month.

The coal producers and John L. Lewis have really been pressing in direction of getting TVA to relax its standards and even indulge in welfare-buying to aid particular regions. I cannot subscribe to that, and I know the good people of Chelsea could not. I lived too long as a boy and young man in Chelsea to have any illusions about the way people think who live there.

I can assure you that my principles with respect to all the things I have talked to you about are the same as I grew up with. I see nothing wrong about trying to operate a business as efficiently and economically as possible in order to pass on the savings and benefits to the consumer. Nor do I see anything wrong with seeking to accomplish that end by employing the principle of seeking competitive bids.

In effect that is the American way of doing things; and if we are to establish a reasonably stable economy in the future, all people responsible for the conduct of industry must begin to think of themselves as servants of the consumers—who are also taxpayers. As to whether or not the Government should have established TVA as a power utility, I see no point of argument. The fact is that TVA exists and it exists by virtue of law. It could not be abolished any more than the clock can be turned back to regain time that has been lost.

In the future this Nation will need electric power in ever-increasing amounts. Both private and public utilities will be required to do the job. Philosophically speaking, there is nothing new or unique in a public utility, nor does it represent a form of socialism. I can well imagine the indignation of my father if anyone had suggested that it was socialism of him to motivate construction of the old Chelsea Power Plant back in the early years of this century. It would be difficult to find a more rugged individualist than my Dad, who promoted the plant along with Jabez Bacon, and others, or Pete Boehm, who ran and managed it. Their idea was to provide a service to the community in order that the community might grow. America, fortunately, has always had men who were more interested in service and progress than in the label that might be put on their efforts.

If you find time to read all this and the other things I am sending you, there may still be questions in your mind. If so, please let me know and I will give you as straightforward an answer as I can.

Sincerely,

Herbert D. Vogel

Chairman of the Board

RD. NOTE: Thank you for your comprehensive, straightforward explanation of the facts involved in the TVA situation. With you at the helm this nation needn't worry about the future of TVA. Since this letter from General Vogel was received, it has been learned that the Jan. 22 Chelsea Standard editorial and General Vogel's reply were read on the floor of the Senate by Senator Sparkman, thus becoming a part of the Congressional Record.

Professional Engineers Plan Awards For Outstanding Science Students

The Ann Arbor Chapter of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers has announced a program through which it is planned to give significant and rewarding recognition to outstanding science and mathematics students in the area served by the chapter. Specifically, the recognition is to be given to the outstanding senior students in these fields selected by the principals and faculty of some 28 schools in 17 communities within the area bounded by Howell, Northville, Belleville, Addison and the west line of Washtenaw county.

The 28 students so selected from the area will be invited to attend an award banquet on the evening of June 4, this year, and to bring with them as the chapter's guests, their parents and one member of the high school faculty. At the banquet they will be given nicely framed citations and a gift award. The nature and value of the gifts have not at this time been determined except that it can be said that they will have significant value.

In addition to the 28 gift awards it is planned to select one or more of the 28 students to be the recipients of the annual MSPE Local Industry Annual Scholastic Award Scholarship.

Chelsea Merchant Named to Michigan Retailers Committee

The Michigan Retailers Association has recently announced the appointment of M. J. Anderson of Anderson's Department Store, to the organization's community and public affairs committee.

As chairman for Chelsea, Anderson will serve as the legislative and governmental affairs leader for the association in this area, as well as acting to coordinate statewide activities with all retailers in the community.

Cloak of Secrecy Flung from Tale of Spinach Greatness

Ann Arbor—Generations of obstinate children now have their champions among dieticians at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Spinach, say these food specialists, is highly overrated. Traditionally, spinach has been thought of as a great strength food, rich in iron.

Nutritionists now say you get far more iron in equal portions of potatoes, squash and carrots.

Actually, say the U-M dieticians, spinach is a fine reducing dish because of its filling capacity and low calorie count. It contains quantities of vitamin C and moderate amounts of vitamin A—but so do most green vegetables.

Methodist Men Invited to MSU For Conference

East Lansing—More than 1,000 Methodist men in Michigan are expected for the seventh annual state conference of Methodist men April 11 at Michigan State University.

Inspirational addresses by Dr. Charles X. Hutchinson, International Reform Federation, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Robert Mayfield, General Board of Lay Activities, Chicago, Ill., and 17 discussion groups led by lay leaders and MSU faculty members will highlight the program.

"Turning Toward the Light" will be the theme of this Kellogg Center event, sponsored by the Michigan and Detroit Conference Boards of Lay Activities in co-operation with the MSU Committee on Church Related Activities.

The original U. S. Liberty Bell was cast in London.

Smelt-Time Smiles

Fishermen and women, equipped with dip nets, dish pans, wash tubs and lanterns, began making their once-a-year mass migration to many of Michigan's streams and rivers. Cause for the excitement are the annual smelt runs which normally reach their peak during the frosty nights of late March or early April. In 1958 the commercial smelt catch was more than 6,000,000 pounds. The season runs from March 1 to May 31 in waters designated by the Department.

Lingering Snow, Ice Will Probably Delay Start of Smelt Run This Year

Spring's lingering mementoes of winter—ice and snow—may very likely delay the beginning of smelt spawning runs this year.

Upstream smelt migrations begin when water temperatures rise to about 40 degrees which generally occurs in early April. However, since these two persistent agents of winter influence water temperatures, it appears that fishermen will have to wait longer than usual to try their luck.

Michigan School Principals Study Leadership at MSU

East Lansing—Educational Leadership in this Changing World is the theme of the annual Elementary School Principals Conference at Michigan State University, April 9-10.

About 500 principals from schools throughout the state are participating in this Kellogg Center event, sponsored by the Michigan Education Association and the MSU College of Education.

Talks by Dr. Ernest Meiby, MSU distinguished visiting professor, and Dr. Paul F. Brandwein, senior editor and consultant to schools, Harcourt, Brace and Co., are highlights of the event. Professional problem clinics and "town hall meetings" are also on the agenda.

Travel Tips Book Lists Several Spots To Visit in Chelsea

Chelsea has been selected as a place to visit in an illustrated, 64-page guidebook just published on things to see and do in greater Lansing and surrounding area.

The book, entitled "Tips and Trips," culminates a year of research by members of the Child Service League, a Lansing area child study organization dedicated to parent education, child guidance, and community service.

Special mention is made of the Chelsea State Game Area, Waterloo Recreation Area, Methodist Old Peoples Home, The Community Fair and fall color routes. The Waterloo Recreation Area is thoroughly described in a section on parks and recreation areas.

Red Arrow Memorial Park is also mentioned. Visitors to Lansing will find the book a complete guide to town trips, cultural activities, business and industrial tours, seasonal events, sports, parks and recreation areas.

Tips on trips are also given and include such hints to the traveler as where to obtain a variety of maps, road and weather information, and vacation guides for use anywhere in the state.

A section on trips to other towns in which Chelsea appears, cites those communities of special interest within an hour's drive of Lansing.

The entire book is geared to family interests, for the recreational and educational use of leisure time.

I wish to thank my friends and neighbors for their kind support at Monday's election.

and the right to choose a chapter name and be awarded all the privileges of the brotherhood.

Ron Eder, co-chairman of the "Brothers of the Brush" committee, then proceeded to explain the organization of the chapters and offered organization kits to any individuals present who wanted to start chapters and secure their charters.

A rush started when Chelsea Fire Chief Ted Palmer tried to secure the No. 1 charter for his Fire Dept. chapter who had already decided to be known as the D.S.T.T.C.M.—A.G.F.N.S.H.O.B.F. chapter.

Order was finally restored by officially ruling that the No. 1 charter would be left open and the chapters would start at No. 2.

This compromise satisfied the Jaycees, the Scraw Plant and the Knights of Columbus who had been trying to outbid the Fire Dept. for the No. 1 charter. The meeting then continued.

Ron Eder and George Palmer passed out the organizational kits which contained the official buttons, membership certificates and the charter forms, as well as beard descriptions and actual chapter organization procedure.

Chelsea's 60 chapters should be in the process of being formed tomorrow and the following announcement was made with the request that all present pass it along to every man they meet in the next few days.

All men who wish to form a chapter or join a chapter and have not been contacted are urged to request to drop in at the celebration headquarters (the new log cabin) any time this Friday night from 7 to 9 or until all applicants have been signed up. An adequate force will be on hand to serve you before your wife realizes that you have sneaked away.

A general gab-fest ended the meeting with those who had previously thought the "Brothers of the Brush" was "just a beard growing affair" expressing their eagerness to get their chapters formed and start in with the many fun-filled activities mentioned at the meeting.

Dramatic Science Stage Show, 'Gasarama,' Presented for Chelsea High School Students

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's contribution to the education field, "Gasarama," a dramatic science show designed for high school students, was presented at Chelsea High School at 10:00 a.m. Monday. The demonstration was given in the new high school auditorium.

Widely acclaimed by educators for its influence in encouraging students to take a deeper interest in scientific subjects, "Gasarama" has added international laurels since it was translated into German and presented to 10 industrial leaders who recently visited the company from West Berlin.

The production is headed by a cast of three talented employees who narrate the show: Mike Josephine Hardy, a customer service clerk; David Fyffe, a service man; and Robert Bronsky, a registered professional chemical engineer. Behind the scenes, Roy Bishop, an engineering technician, manipulates "Gasarama's" unusual lighting, stage and sound effects.

Originated by Noble D. Travis, "Gasarama" took a year to design and produce.

As a civic gesture of good-will to high schools within its service area, Michigan Consolidated has provided a special truck to transport equipment to fill the demand for school presentation.

More than 80,000 students in 68 Detroit high schools and three colleges have now seen "Gasarama," according to Travis, and nearly that number have yet to see it next fall.

"We interrupted our Detroit schedule so that local students may see our performance," he added. Through a series of demonstrations, "Gasarama" points out the

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my thanks to all the people who supported me in the recent Sylvan Township election.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Reed and son, James, were at Lansing, Saturday, to attend the Block and Bridge Show at Michigan State University and went on to Muskegon to spend Sunday visiting the former's aunt, Mrs. Anna Dove, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Reed.

role scientists play in the discovery of natural gas through the use of seismograph sound waves to detect gas deposits buried for centuries beneath the earth's crust.

It dramatically tells the story of how natural gas is transported 1,200 miles to Michigan through three giant pipelines from Texas and Louisiana to serve homes and industry in some 120 communities.

As the show develops, the audience discovers that there are approximately 25,000 industrial uses for natural gas—and that the gas industry is the fifth largest in the nation.

During the 40-minute stage production, the audience learns how natural gas is used by Chrysler Corp. as motor testing fuel instead of gasoline on the Plymouth assembly line.

One demonstration shows how dynamite and a seismograph are used to discover gas thousands of feet below the earth's surface. Another proves that natural gas will burn under water. Another proves that natural gas is not toxic, as a mouse dances around inside a glass container filled with gas. Other demonstrations show the principals of compression, how a thermostat operates and how heat is employed to freeze water.

Electricity is created directly from a gas flame and from a gas fired internal combustion engine.

The principal of storing gas in old gas fields is demonstrated by burning gas as it passes through solid sandstone. A clock is operated by gas flowing through a meter and a miniature "satellite" goes into "orbit" to prove natural gas is lighter than air.

These and a number of other demonstrations are performed on a darkened stage using black light and a spotlight to add drama to the effect.

Hugh C. Daly, executive vice president of Michigan Consolidated said, "Gasarama, while slanted toward science and engineering students in particular, adds to the knowledge of all who see it, students and teachers alike."

"We hope 'Gasarama' will in some way prove that every industry, including ours which is generally thought to deal only with men, machines, pipe and a natural resource, offers a real scientific challenge and future."

NEWS

"Some Like It Hot" is two or three stories in one. Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon, made up as women, will have you holding your sides.

Jack Warden, so good as the mute in "The Sound and the Fury," get a co-starring role from Jerry Wald in "The Best of Everything."

Edie Adams expects her baby this summer. She still does the Marilyn Monroe imitation, but without mentioning Marilyn's name; and she has added one of Zsa Zsa Gabor with a Hungarian accent and carrying a poodle coated in Chinchilla.

Polly Bergen has bought an original by Paul Monash, titled "Random Factor" and will star in the motion picture.

The story deals with a German war orphan raised in the United States who goes back to the homeland and learns that the relative she's thought was an underground worker in the war was a Nazi official.

Today's picture review: A NIGHT TO REMEMBER "A Night to Remember" is a magnificent screen portrayal of the sinking of the Titanic.

A triumph of technical ingenuity all the way, it is based on the popular book of the same title by Walter Lord, and retells the story of the Titanic, the "unsinkable" luxury liner, which struck an iceberg and sank in the North Atlantic back in 1912.

Interwoven in this story of the ill-fated maiden voyage of the doomed Titanic, are telling portrayals of a cross-section of passengers aboard the liner, ranging from the boisterous Irish immigrants in steerage to the wealthy aristocrats in first class. Despite emphasis on the human element, however, no one forgets that the Titanic itself is the center of attraction.

In this version of the oft-told sea tragedy, the reasons for the disaster are made quite clear. Too much cockiness as to the boat's unsinkability; ice warnings that were ignored by an over-worked wireless operator; distress signals misunderstood and ignored by apparently incompetent and weary seamen on a nearby ship; too few lifeboats for the complement of passengers, etc. . . . all the unfortunate combination of circumstances that turned what had started out as a gala occasion into a screaming, tumbling nightmare of human beings at the mercy of the icy Atlantic and their own human frailties.

We rate this one not to be missed.

Women's Fellowship Jackson Association Will Hold Spring Meeting at Ypsilanti

The spring meeting of the Jackson Association Women's Fellowship of the Congregational Christian Churches will be held at the Ypsilanti Congregational church, Ypsilanti, April 15. Registration begins at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. Horace Whitney, will call the meeting to order for its 26th annual session.

Following the business session, which will include election of officers, the state president, Mrs. Earl Blinn of Jackson, will present the materials and goals for the year 1959-1960. Luncheon will be served at noon by the local fellowship.

During the afternoon the group will hear Miss Mary Dewar, who is at present director of nursing at Sara Hurd Scott Memorial Hospital at Dorr, Angola, Africa, and formerly was a missionary nurse and teacher of nursing in North China. Her topic will be "Modern Medicine and the Church in Changing Africa."

At an age when many young women are settling down to careers as housewives, Mary Dewar looks back on 11 exciting years as a Congregational Christian missionary nurse to two remote areas of the world. In China she spent almost three years under the Communist regime and though imprisoned for only 12 days was held incommunicado for nine months.

During this period when she was cut off from the outside world, she was fed, clothed, housed and provided with cash funds by grateful Chinese. And except for the short time she was in prison, she continued her nursing duties, as well as her efforts to reorganize the school of nursing at the American Board Hospital at Taipei.

Though she is amused by the suggestion that she is something of a linguist, she has in the course of her missionary work become proficient in three difficult languages. In China she taught twelve hours a week in Chinese. In Angola she converses with the Africans in Umbundu, the native tongue, but teaches Anatomy and Physiology in Portuguese, the official language, as required by the government.

What does she consider the most important part of her work in Africa? "Teaching the student nurses," she says without a moment's hesitation. "Medicine gets the missionary into many areas that have not yet been evangelized. Nurses serving under the American Board overseas may do little preaching but in their way they are taking the Christian Gospel to people who otherwise might never hear of it."

Miss Dewar is entitled to a year's furlough, but because of the Angola government's practice of limiting visas to one year from date of departure from the country, she will have to leave the United States on the return journey in May, 1959.

156 Students from County Schools Enter Science Fair

Ann Arbor—A total of 156 students from seven Washtenaw county junior and senior high schools are scheduled to display 132 scientific projects at the South-eastern Michigan Science Fair here April 11, fair officials have announced. High school students who will be participating are Gary Berger, Cynthia Klingler, and Polly Pastor.

Projects to be displayed range from the biological sciences to the "space sciences," reports the fair's director, University of Michigan Prof. Henry J. Gomborg.

The event is to be held in Waterman Gymnasium, corner of North and East University streets, on the U-M campus. It is being sponsored by the Ann Arbor Exchange Club, the Ann Arbor News, and the University.

Payments on GI Loans Allow for No Grace Period

Despite what some veterans may believe, there is no grace period for the late payment of installments on GI loans, Lloyd H. Jameson, manager of the VA regional office in Detroit, said today.

Thus, he added, veterans should make their GI loan payments on or before the date they are due. Failure to do so may prove costly, he pointed out, since GI leaders may make an extra service charge when payments are received late.

Jameson warned that veterans who gain the reputation of being "chronic delinquents" will find their lenders taking that fact into account if the veterans should ever need an extension of repayment time on their GI loans.

In addition to their loss of credit standing, veterans who become delinquent in their payments may ultimately be faced with the loss of the property acquired with their GI loans, Jameson said.

RE-DEDICATION SERVICE SCHEDULED
—An interior view of the Waterloo Village EUB church which on Sunday will celebrate completion of an extensive renovation with re-dedication services scheduled for morning and afternoon. The trim around the altar niche, the new pulpit, altar, lectern, altar rail and the cross above the altar all are in natural wood finish contrasting with the soft pale green of the walls. The altar chairs are also in natural wood finish upholstered in rich red. The wooden altar vase and candleholders were presented to the church some time ago as a memorial to William Woolley who lost his life in World War II.

Waterloo Village EUB Church Schedules Special Re-Dedication Services Sunday

Waterloo Village Evangelical United Brethren church has scheduled re-dedication services Sunday, April 12, following extensive improvements to the church interior. Guest speaker at morning and afternoon services will be Dr. Norman Klump of Detroit, the conference superintendent.

The morning service will begin at 11:15 a.m. Special music will include a vocal solo by Haldon Ferris and a vocal trio selection by June LeVan and her sisters, Shirley Case and Yvonne Adkins.

Following a noon dinner served at the schoolhouse next to the church, the afternoon dedication program will continue in the church.

Mrs. Annabelle Woolley is to sing the solo "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," accompanied on the piano by Georg Pluck. Mr. Pluck also appears later in the program with the piano solo "Tristan and Isolde—Liebestod." Wagner-Liszt.

Following the afternoon sermon by Dr. Klump, Gordon Beeman will play a cornet solo.

A history of the church will be read; visiting clergy will be invited to speak and the program will be concluded with a vocal solo.

The renovation program at the church includes complete redecoration of the interior; addition of a new pulpit; altar, lectern and desk; also, new hardwood floors; new front entrance doors; and new carpeting.

The history of the church, as it will be read during the program Sunday, states that the congregation was organized 87 years ago.

The church was built at a cost of $4,000, with half the amount paid before the dedication date and the remainder pledged on the day of the original dedication, Nov. 15, 1874.

Forty-one pastors have served the church during the years, the present one being the Rev. Dale Ferris.

Present church officers include Wilbur Pluck, Leigh Beeman, Walter Vicary, Bernard Prentice and Henry Walter, trustees; and Kenneth Carty, Sr., Grace Davison, Legna Beeman and Nelson Prentice, stewards.

Agriculture Conservation Program Offers Cost-Sharing Plan for Tree Planting

Now that winter is over and spring planting season has almost started, some consideration should be given to tree planting. Every farm has a couple of acres of rough, abandoned portions of land, unsuitable for cultivated crops or good pasture which can be turned to profitable use by planting tree crops. There may be more than one objective in a forest planting; and a single objective may serve multiple, unintended purposes.

The federal government has made available, through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee (ASC) in each county in Michigan, a program to encourage and assist in tree planting. The county ASC committee will make arrangements with technically trained foresters to advise on species and methods of planting trees for forestry purposes, for preventing wind and water soil erosion, for windbreaks, and for wildlife habitat. The owner, who participates in this program, will be reimbursed a share of the cost of establishing a plantation.

Stop in at your county ASC office at the County Building for additional information, or contact the District Forester of the Michigan Conservation Department who is in charge of your district.

Why Should I Grow A Beard Just Because Chelsea Is Planning Huge 125th Anniversary Celebration?

I don't want to grow a beard! I know it would probably itch and feel like there was something crawling on my face. It would certainly not be comfortable working around the printing presses and the heat of the summer months wouldn't tend to encourage my acceptance of facial foliage (as we hear it referred to).

I don't want to appear and feel conspicuous everywhere I go. I can't possibly imagine myself sporting a beard when I'm all dressed up and out among strangers or even casual acquaintances whom I wish to think favorably of me. I just don't want to grow a beard!

My wife doesn't want me to grow a beard! This space isn't big enough to list all the reasons why my better half feels this way. So let's just say that it is definitely unanimous around our house that we do not want hair growing on my face.

However, notwithstanding and nevertheless, I AM going to grow a beard of some kind, or at least try to. Yes, that's right! I am going to grow some kind of beard. I have decided and my wife agrees with me 100 per cent.

Here is part of our thinking which has brought about this queer decision on our part.

Chelsea is in the process of staging a huge—partly solemn, partly hilarious—125th anniversary celebration during the next three-month period. The entire success of this celebration depends upon the mass participation—active participation—of everyone—and everyone means you and I as well as the people across the street. We must ALL get into the act if we are to have the successful celebration this anniversary so richly deserves.

The growing of beards or some type of facial foliage is the major visual male proclamation that our men folks are entering into the spirit of this celebration wholeheartedly—that they are proud of their community and are thankful for the spiritual and worldly benefits they have derived from their associations in the community of Chelsea.

Chelsea has been good to my family and me. I am proud to be a part of this community and, looking forward, I am even thankful that our future is tied in with the future of our community and its people.

Certainly, I'm going to grow some type of beard. I'll feel silly for a while, but I'll grow a beard! I'll wear an old-fashioned hat or whatever else our hard-working celebration committee comes up with. I understand that I will be furnished a button to wear, explaining to any and all that I am a member of the "Brothers of the Brush" and above all—a proud member of my community and full of community spirit.

As my wife pointed out to me, around Chelsea I'll be one of more than a thousand men with facial foliage, and away from town my button will identify me as a booster of Chelsea and the wonderful community surrounding it. And furthermore, she tells me, no matter how important or formal any man may be whom I have occasion to meet or deal with in the course of any business transaction—wouldn't he think more of me for making a fool of myself (if you want to call it that)—in the name of fellowship and community pride than he would think of me if he knew that 90 per cent of the male population of my community were busy showing their civic pride and I was too much of a snob to put my community foremost? (Wives have a habit of being right!)

Of course, I'm going to start cultivating that facial foliage. Right now I'm debating the merits of a small, neat mustache, as I know that is all that is required to be a full-fledged member in good standing of the "Brothers of the Brush." And I've been looking in the mirror the past few weeks wondering how longer sideburns would look... or maybe a goatee.

I'm beginning to agree with my wife who says "If you're going to be repulsive you might as well be repulsive 100 per cent as long as it's for a good cause."

Yes, there's going to be a huge surplus of razors and shavers around this one community for the next few months!

Jet Airlines Now in Domestic Use

American Airlines recently inaugurated its Los Angeles-New York flight from California to New York. The airliner, designed for domestic use, carried more than 100 passengers, non-stop, and made the trip in approximately four hours time. It carried 56 first-class passengers and 56 tourist-class passengers.

National Airlines recently inaugurated the first jet service from New York to Miami, and cut the time on that run almost in half, as American has done with its trans-continental service.

This spring, at least two American airlines will put even larger jet airliners into operation on trans-Atlantic runs, each carrying approximately 150 passengers, and each capable of making the New York-London flight in six hours, non-stop.

Thus by the summer of this year, 1959, the air traveler will have available to him transportation benefits and pleasures never before enjoyed in the history of the world. It might be said, actually, that 1959 is the year that the jet era comes of age—at least to Americans.

Industry is booming in Michigan. The "state with the problems of economic climate" was ranked fourth in industrial plant growth during the past year and the future looks even brighter.

Consumers Power Co. is planning a $100,000,000 electric generating plant on Lake Michigan at the mouth of the Big Pigeon River, 30 miles west of Grand Rapids.

It required a special act of the Michigan legislature to give the company use of state-owned submerged lands. The bill would authorize the state conservation department to grant an easement over 63 acres of submerged Lake Michigan land in Port Sheldon township, Ottawa county.

President Dan E. Karn said the new plant would serve Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Kalamazoo and the other communities in the 61-county area supplied with electricity by the company.

Coal to fuel the plant will be delivered by barge. "We are now in the preliminary construction work on the site and hope to begin construction of breakwaters and a deep ship and water intake channel by the summer of 1960," he said.

"Actual plant construction will begin this summer, with the first unit, of 205,000-kilowatt capacity, scheduled to begin operation in 1962."

The submerged land is shallow rivermouth area and because of the shallowness of the water, it is navigable only by small crafts. The company's petition to the legislature promises that the general public will be able to use the breakwater and port for a harbor of refuge.

Democrats in Michigan are promoting Gov. G. Mennen Williams as a presidential candidate in 1960.

but are getting little co-operation from the nation's pollsters.

It poses the question of what Williams intends to do following his present term, which will give him 12 years in the executive office. Consider these:

1. Mrs. Williams, traveling around the world for the United Nations' World Health Organization (WHO) said in Tokyo that her husband has "had enough" and will not run for governor again.

2. Michigan Democratic leaders were upset when a Chicago political writer took a poll of 1958 convention delegates without mentioning Williams.

3. The palace guard in Lansing is running for the governor's office. There are Secretary of State James M. Hare, Treasurer Sanford A. Brown and Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson. Supreme Court Justice George Edwards is also mentioned as a candidate.

4. Williams, himself, is non-committal, but his close colleagues consider this is his last term.

If Williams holds true to form, no one will know for certain until the last minute.

Michigan's most important industry—automobiles—is working toward a record sales year.

Some of the industry's spokesmen are predicting a 6,000,000-unit year, despite the competition from foreign cars, which one re-

University faculties are getting worried about finances, both long and short range.

They are fretting that, even if their administrators receive the hoped-for appropriations, that other pressing needs will stand in the way of salary increases they consider long overdue.

The legislature appropriates money for the support of the universities, but has no voice in earmarking it for any special project or use.

Facts and figures: Michigan has more than 30,000 state employees—900 miles of state trunklines—more than 11,000 inland lakes—surpassing that "Land O' Lakes," Minnesota... a deficit expected to exceed $100,000,000, which considered by legislators of widely diversified views as to a solution.

★ Over the Hill

I see by the papers that the Liberal party of New York State has come out in favor of a tax allowance for human depreciation. The argument seems to be that since tax laws allow for depreciation of buildings and machinery, working people should be allowed to take depreciation for wear and tear on the human organism.

This makes me wonder whether pay scales, as well as tax scales, shouldn't be adjusted so as to recognize that an older man can't work as fast as somebody in the prime of life—but that he can still do some work, and still deserves some pay.

The present practice seems to be that his salary increases as he gains more experience, and it stays at that high level until someone realizes he isn't worth that much any longer. Then, instead of decreasing his salary, they chop him off the payroll entirely.

A recent action of one of the school boards in our county casts an interesting sidelight on this subject. At the suggestion of a committee of teachers, the board agreed to pay a base salary of $4,300 for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience. Then each year of experience would bring a salary increase of $150, up to nine years' experience. Thus a teacher with two years' experience would receive $4,600, and one with seven years' experience would get $5,350.

But it seems that the board didn't feel that the added experience really increased a teacher's efficiency as much as $150 per year, for they also decided that "young, inexperienced teachers will be hired when possible." Apparently they feel they are getting more for their money if they pay an inexperienced teacher $4,300 than they are getting if they pay a teacher with 9 or 19 years' experience $5,350.

No one will deny that young teachers have certain advantages, in addition to the fact that they are at the cheap end of the salary scale. They probably have more energy and enthusiasm than older teachers, and may more readily adopt newer methods of teaching. (Of course in America anything that is newer is bound to be better.)

But I can hardly believe that if your child needed an operation you would prefer a "young" inexperienced surgeon. Is it any more reasonable to prefer a young and inexperienced teacher to influence your child's character and intellectual development?

My proposal would be that, instead of firing a teacher when he gets to the top of the salary scale, we might have a scale that increases to a point of peak efficiency, and then begins to decline. Let's say if he begins teaching at the age of 22, his salary would increase each year until he was 32, then hold steady for twenty-five years, until he was 57, then gradually decrease each year until he was 67, and remain at that minimum figure until he retired.

GREAT OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW

Just as great oak trees grow from little acorns, so do fine, big industrial plants have humble beginnings.

As with that sturdy oak, many things happen before a small plant becomes a large one.

The oak tree depends on favorable soil and weather during its early years. Our town, if it is to have good industrial payrolls, must provide a good climate for industry.

Climate for industry boils down to how present industry is treated. Good climate for industry makes our town grow stronger.

Good industrial climate helps small industry, like good climate helps the oak tree. And it attracts new industry.

Future of State's Petroleum Industry Rests with Supervisor of Wells

Lansing—The future of Michigan's petroleum industry, potentially bolstered by the recent discovery of two productive oil fields—depends, among other controlling factors, on an optimum production level of remaining oil and gas resources.

Responsibility of minimizing oil and gas waste rests largely upon the shoulders of the Supervisor of Wells who, in a Public Act of 1939 was given power to establish and enforce regulations governing such provisions as the size of drilling units, well spacing patterns and production limits.

These regulations are not arbitrarily affixed, however.

Oil representatives present reservoir data pertaining to a particular field or problem at public hearings and, based upon this information, recommend regulations to the Supervisor and his Oil Advisory Board.

This information is then privately discussed by the Supervisor and his Board which is composed of six representatives from oil and gas producers and operators.

Following consultation with the Board, the Supervisor establishes regulations that are deemed necessary to prevent petroleum wastes yet foster development of the industry.

Oil interests may request a review at another public hearing, appeal to the Conservation Commission or seek court action if they feel these regulations are not justified.

Board members are selected by the Supervisor and approved by the Commission. Three of the members represent independent oil and gas producers or operators whose ownership, production and operations are chiefly within Michigan.

The other three members are chosen from similar oil and gas interests whose operations are chiefly interstate and who are engaged as actual oil producers in five or more states including Michigan.

No more than one representative from each company or any of its subsidiaries is permitted on the Board.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Doc Didn't Pull His Punch

The other day Doc Williams got to talking about one of his patients.

"This fellow had a bad tooth," he explained, "but I told him I could save it with a few prompt treatments. Then, after that one visit it was six months before he came back."

"This time," Doc said, "his cheek was all swollen up. It's that same tooth," he said.

"Think we can save it?" Sure, I said, after I take it out you can put it in your pocket and take it home with you."

From where I sit, trouble gets worse with neglect. That's why we should never ignore "intolerance" in any form. Sometimes it crops up in little things like begrudging a man his right to a glass of beer, or telling him what kind of television programs he should watch. Let's all respect our neighbor's preferences and opinions. That way we won't "pull" at each other's freedom.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Washtenaw County, Michigan Ladies and Gentlemen:

Your Board of County Park Trustees takes pleasure in presenting herewith its twenty-seventh annual report for the year 1958 as a part of the fortieth annual report of the Board of County Road Commissioners.

Respectfully submitted,

BOARD OF COUNTY PARK TRUSTEES

H. L. Frisinger, Chairman

C. O. McLaughlin, Secretary

Raymond L. Koch, Trustee

REPORT OF THE COUNTY PARK TRUSTEES

FOR THE YEAR 1958

With the appropriation from the Board of Supervisors, the following improvements were made in addition to normal maintenance at the two Washtenaw County Parks.

CAYANAUH LAKE PARK

During the year this 1.8 acre park in Sylvan Township was patronized even more heavily than in previous years, making it a necessity to provide daily maintenance and clean up. Twenty odd picnic tables were sanded and varnished before setting them out in the spring. A damaged children's slide was replaced with a new one. A new metal cook stove was set up, guard posts around the parking area were painted, and several dead trees removed. The camping area on the south side of Cavanaugh Lake was fine graded, fifty pounds of grass seed was applied, and about 800 feet of ditch along the south side of the road was cleaned out so as to provide for better surface drainage for this area.

SUPERIOR CENTER PARK

This 0.8 acre park in Superior Township provides needed clear sight vision for the southwest corner of the intersection of Prospect and Cherry Hill Roads. During the summer months this area was cleared, kept mowed, and new plantings were watered. Two rustic appearing toilets of the chemical tank type were constructed, painted with Lionoil, and given two coats of spar varnish. Construction is complete except for the installation of agitators and stools. A

The Washtenaw County Road Commission Proposed 1959 Construction Program was presented.

Law Requires Fish Shanties To Be Removed

Lansing—"Don't wait until the last minute to remove your fish shanties from the lake," warns the Conservation Department.

Deep snow and freezing rains during the winter are ample reasons why fishermen should start their shanty removal early. On many lakes, shanties are firmly anchored in the ice. Since laws forbid the burning of shanties, removal will entail a great deal of chopping and elbow grease.

Fishermen failing to remove their shanties before the ice becomes unsafe are liable to a $50 fine and/or 30 days in jail.

Each year several cars plunge through the ice when fishermen risk a late outing to haul in their shanties. Department officials point out that driving one's car becomes unsafe long before the actual spring breakup.

Water flow increases steadily toward the end of winter to undermine and weaken the ice even though it may still appear safe. Discolored ice is one reliable sign of weakened and dangerous areas.

The important thing for our community is to provide a healthy climate for every single industry we have, no matter how small, to encourage it and let it know we appreciate what it is doing for our people.

Let's let industry know that here in our community it will find a warm welcome and the encouraging rod?

Favorable Climate Helps Local Industry To Grow

When a young man starts out on his first job, he usually starts at the bottom of the ladder. The success he attains comes through a gradual growth based on training and experience. As his stature grows, so does the potential contribution he may make to his community.

The favorable "climate" he finds in his community plays an important part in how much he grows. Industry is much the same as the individual. Most industries start on a small scale. Take the automobile, for example. Ford, Olds and others, who became great in this industry, were very small at first.

But like the great oaks that rise from tiny acorns, the little shops that produced the first automobiles, grew and grew into great industries.

Who knows, the little industry that may be operating today in our midst, or one that we can bring to our community through a good community selling effort, may grow to become a mighty big concern in a few years. This would mean jobs for many people.

The important thing for our community is to provide a healthy climate for every single industry we have, no matter how small, to encourage it and let it know we appreciate what it is doing for our people.

Let's let industry know that here in our community it will find a warm welcome and the encouraging rod?

Then, like the little acorn, as they grow they will help build a bigger and better community that will benefit all who live here.

"Great oaks from little acorns grow" is the theme of an advertisement in today's Standard. It is another in a year-long series of public service advertisements sponsored by the Michigan Press Association and Michigan Economic Development Department. The ads are designed to stimulate local industrial development programs.

small catch basin was constructed at the intake end of the tile line along Prospect, and the tile line was extended to the north so as to eliminate the open ditch in this area. The park was not opened for recreational use this year due to the lateness of the season following the completion of the above mentioned work.

With the appropriation from the County Board of Supervisors it is planned to make the following improvements in the year 1959 at Cavanaugh Lake Park and Superior Center Park.

1. Develop more table area in the south section of the park.
2. Furnish and place six or eight additional picnic tables.
3. Plant ten to twelve trees in the south section.
4. Investigate the feasibility of acquiring ground for the development of a softball diamond.
5. Provide required maintenance.

1. Complete construction of toilets.
2. Furnish and place six picnic tables, two cook stoves, two refuse barrels.
3. Fine grade a parking area.
4. Fertilize the grass areas.
5. Provide required maintenance.

Fewer Registrations Of Motor Vehicles Reported for 1958

Motor vehicle tax collections in Washtenaw county decreased from $1,149,191.71 in 1957 to $1,117,340.98 in 1958.

According to an annual report issued by James M. Hare, Secretary of State, the total registrations of all motor vehicles in Washtenaw county decreased from 74,099 in 1957 to 70,821 in 1958.

A Washtenaw county breakdown by types of vehicles registered in 1958 shows 55,237 passenger cars, 7,017 commercial, 1,076 farm vehicles, 5,238 trailers, 363 trailer coaches, 1,003 motorcycles, and 886 municipal or local government owned cars.

The total number of registrations of all types of vehicles in the 83 counties fell 83,485 below that of last year. The 1957 figures show 3,678,656 registrations compared with a total of 3,495,171 for the 1958 plate sale year.

"This decrease is less than three per cent," Hare pointed out. "Normally, registrations increase each year. The downward dip reflects the state of business we had in 1958."

The first importation of bananas into the U. S. occurred in the late 1890's.

BUSY BEAVERS

Mrs. Prentice entertained the sewing girls Friday afternoon. Twenty-nine members and parents went to a theater party and saw "The Shaggy Dog" March 30. We had something to eat after the show.

The regular meeting will be held April 18 at the home of Bob Norm and Ruth Hannewald. The members will sign up for summer projects.

Norm Hannewald, reporter.

Needles for your sewing machine come in different sizes to use with different weights of thread and fabric. Clothing specialists point out that a fine needle works best with the fine, delicate fabrics. For heavy materials, you'll want to use a sturdier machine needle.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 50—Located on Bush road, the farm designated as "Mystery Farm No. 50" proved a real mystery to many area residents. Even those who have recognized most of the photos printed during the past year found it

Bush Road Farm of Mrs. Mathilda Klink Shown as Last Week's Mystery Farm

The farm photo published in the April 2 issue of The Standard as Mystery Farm No. 50 was difficult for many area residents to identify. It is the farm owned by Mrs. Mathilda Klink and is located on a corner on Bush road in Sylvan township, northwest of Chelsea.

First to call in the correct identification was Bill Altenbernd, a grandson of Mrs. Klink.

Others who correctly identified the place are Sharon Bollinger, George Klink (another grandson of Mrs. Klink), Mrs. Eugene Martin, Mrs. Leonard Eder, Allen Broesamle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beutler and Keith Kleis.

Mrs. Klink and her late husband, George, purchased the farm in 1936 from the Grand Rapids Trust Co., after their former farm home was purchased by the state as part of the Waterloo Recreation Area. The farm they sold was located on Cassidy road and included the area of Lake Winnemahna and parts of Green Lake.

Early history of the present Klink farm was not available; however, it is known that the Albert Elsie family owned the place and lived there several years in the early 1920's. Albert Elsie and his brothers were well known throughout Chelsea and Washtenaw county as master craftsmen in their work as stone masons. Albert Elsie remodeled the home extensively during the time he lived there.

Others who have lived on the farm include the Harold Gage and Earl Bauer families.

Three sons, William, John and Albert, now live on the farm with Mrs. Klink. Albert operates the difficult to identify the 50th in the current series, published in the April 2 issue of The Standard. It is the home of Mrs. Mathilda Klink and three of her sons.

150-acre farm for his mother, doing general farming and raising hogs and sheep. He also has a few cows.

William is employed at Chelsea Manufacturing Corp. and John is employed by the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

There are two other sons and two daughters who are married—Fred Klink of Waterloo, Carl Klink, who is employed at Chrysler Proving Ground and Mrs. Louise Altenbernd, both of Chelsea, and Mrs. William Hawkins (Pauline) of Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Klink, who is a native of Germany, accompanied by her son John, has visited her former home in Wuertemberg twice in recent years. She is a member of St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church and the Women's Guild of the church.

Mr. Klink died in 1944.

Henry Merkel, Jr., Now Works Farm For His Parents

In the April 2 story of Mystery Farm No. 49, owned by Henry Merkel, Sr., a paragraph telling about one of the Merckels' sons, Henry, Jr., was inadvertently omitted.

Henry, Jr., who with his wife and son, Larry, lives on the farm in a new home facing Taylor Lane, works the land on the 887-acre home farm and also the 400-acre farm on which his brother, Martin, and his wife are living father east on Dexter road. Martin is a cattle dealer.

The Merkel family also includes a daughter, Grace, now Mrs. William Hitchingham. She and her husband and two sons live on Railroad street.

The Henry Merckels, Sr., who were married in St. Mary's Catholic church here Oct. 13, 1921, have lived in the present farm home the past 29 years, moving into the home after Mr. Merkel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Merkel, moved to Chelsea.

FARM INCOME DROP SEEN
Farm income may be cut hundreds of millions of dollars over the next few years by new changes in figuring agricultural price supports.

Agriculture Secretary Benson announced the changes in a surprise administrative action.

To the Editor
Chelsea Standard
Chelsea, Mich.

Because of the strong conflict of opinions on the new schools of the Chelsea District and conditions which will still arise in the near future, the enclosed clipping of an expert on American schools seems to be very pertinent and I believe worth reprinting in your up to date paper. It points out many things which the average person does not know, and brings out facts proven by research.

This item was printed in the March 24 issue of the Detroit Free Press.

Standard Reader.

Money Alone Won't Cure School Ills

An expert on American schools told the Economic Club Monday the education is nearly as "poor" as it has been made out to be—and that pouring additional billions into schools won't necessarily make them any better.

Roger A. Freeman, former consultant on school finance to the White House Conference on Education and now vice president of the Institute for Social Science Research, said that, while it is essential that schools receive more money, money alone is not "a substitute for higher standards and fuller and more effective use of the available resources."

HE CITED figures showing that teacher salaries are not low, that salaries have risen much faster than the pay of other professional workers, and that the number of teachers has increased at a far faster rate than enrollments.

Between 1920 and 1958, enrollment in our educational institutions almost tripled and prices more than tripled, Freeman said.

"This would call for a tenfold increase in educational spending, but expenditures have multiplied over a hundredfold."

"We now spend 10 times as much per student," Freeman said.

"It appears that the United States spends almost twice as much on education as the rest of the world combined—and that includes the Soviet Union."

FREEMAN SAID 45 million people—one-fourth of the United States population—are enrolled in public and private schools, which employ more than 8 million persons at an annual cost of more than 20 billion dollars.

"Education is by far the largest service of government next to national defense," Freeman said. "About half the state and local government payroll is in education."

He said this showed that education is not being denied adequate funds.

Freeman also said the alleged inadequacy of teacher pay "is probably the most involved—and most misunderstood—aspect of the school problem."

THE NUMBER of certificated teachers in the public schools has increased five times faster than the civilian-labor force, Freeman said.

"It is apparent that compensation and other benefits are inducing an increasing percentage of college students to choose a teaching career."

He said that good teachers are still underpaid but it is doubtful they ever will be adequately compensated.

"Unfortunately teachers' organizations insist on union-type salary scales and strongly oppose recommendations for paying teachers as other professional workers are paid—according to merit and performance," he said.

"Until this deadlock can be broken, we probably shall go on underpaying good teachers while not getting the caliber of candidates the schools need."

FREEMAN was critical of teachers and their organizations from another standpoint, accusing them of fighting efforts to improve their "productivity" through such modern techniques as classroom television.

"The industrial worker now turns out twice as many goods as he did 30 years ago," Freeman said.

"No parallel development is evident in the field of education—it has even been demonstrated that productivity in education has declined."

Freeman said he has been unable to locate any significant evidence that the quality of education is proportionate to the number of dollars spent.

"I submit that we can afford to spend more on education than other countries, and we should," he said.

"But we cannot afford to get less education for it."

"Our young people won't learn one iota more in a spurious glass and marble building than in a plain one."

"Too many of them will keep electing themselves out of an education if we offer them a cafeteria-type course program and a diploma for faithful residence."

"They will learn more only if they study harder."

County Jail Earns Highest Possible Rating For Efficient Operation

The Washtenaw County Jail has been given the highest possible rating for efficient operation by the state jail inspector.

William F. Neale visited the jail Wednesday, March 25, and after an inspection, told Sheriff George A. Petersen he was forwarding a rating of 99 per cent to Lansing headquarters. Such a percentage is the highest possible under the state jail rating system.

More than $355,000 was raised by the capital funds program of The University of Michigan Development Council during 1958, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over 1957.
