Annual Event Runs Through Friday Evening

Washtenaw county 4-H club members are holding their annual County 4-H Show this week at the Rural Activities Center on Saline-Arbor road. The show began yesterday and continues through tomorrow.

Members are exhibiting live-stock, food preparation, food preservation, vegetable, flower and many other projects.

Tonight's feature attraction is the horse show.

Judging of beef, fine wool sheep and poultry took place at 9 a.m. today; home economics exhibits, tractor, conservation, photography and horses were to be judged at 9:30 a.m.; judging of other sheep was scheduled for 1 p.m. and judging of rabbits at 7 p.m.

Judging of flower, garden and crop exhibits began at 5 p.m. yesterday, soon after all exhibits were in place.

Special program last night was the 4-H tractor operating contest. Tomorrow morning, beginning at 9 o'clock, dairy and swine exhibits will be judged and the Friday night program, beginning at 8 o'clock, will be the showmanship contest in dairy, beef, sheep and swine.

All 4-H club members in the county will be expected to spend Saturday at the show site to assist in the general clean-up. Exhibits are scheduled to be released by 9:30 a.m.

Sewage Plant Bonds Okayed In Light Vote

Village President Donald Alber and members of the Village Council were given a decided "vote of confidence" in Monday's election on the $235,000 bond issue for expansion of Chelsea's sewage treatment plant. The vote was 133 "yes" and 12 "no."

President Alber, speaking for the Council, said the necessary arrangements for the bond issue will be processed as quickly as possible in order that work on the sewage plant expansion may be undertaken at an early date.

Voter approval at Monday's election cleared the way for immediate action regarding the addition of the necessary expansion which the State Health Department has been recommending. The sewage plant expansion has been urged the past four years and on June 16 the Health Department informed the Village Council that, because of the existing conditions at the sewage treatment plant, construction permits for additional sewers in the Village would not be granted until definite steps had been taken to provide the adequate treatment facilities required.

Detailed plans and specifications had been completed and approved by the Council after they were ordered prepared in 1957.

If voters had failed to approve the bond issue Monday, construction of the necessary sewage facilities would have been delayed while the Health Department instituted proceedings to force the village to comply.

Supervisors Hold 21st Annual Picnic

The 21st annual past and present supervisors picnic was held Sunday at the Farm Council Rural Activities Center on Saline-Arbor road. Approximately 300 were present, including county officials with their wives and husbands.

Officers who arranged for this year's annual get-together were E. A. Wolter, Soc township supervisor, who was president of the group, and Harry Cole, secretary-treasurer.

The dinner was pot-luck with the exception of the meat—chicken barbecued on the spot.

The after-dinner program was opened with a welcome by Clayton Parr of Manchester, chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Wolter presided and William Schaefer, Salem township supervisor, acted as master of ceremonies.

Janet Parker and Carol Braun of Ann Arbor, first place winners in the 4-H Share the Fun Festival Aug. 1, entertained by presenting their winning entries. Miss Parker accompanied on the piano by her brother, Roger Parker, sang "Mississippi Mud" and Miss Braun pantomimed a dance number, "The Old and the New."

Chelsea's 125th Anniversary Brothers of the Brush Band, now known as "Beardless Brothers of the Brush Band," directed by William Blaes, played a number of selections and eight of the dancers who appeared in Chelsea's anniversary pageant, gave a demonstration of "The Charleston." In the group were Mrs. E. J. Sutter, Don Houle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Balze, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ewald.

With Harry Everett in charge, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Mounted Posse staged a demonstration to conclude the program.

New officers elected for the 1960 reunion picnic are Supervisor Sylvester Leonard of Augusta township, President; Supervisor Thurlow Sanford of York township, vice-president; and Harry Cole, former Lodi township supervisor, secretary-treasurer (re-elected).

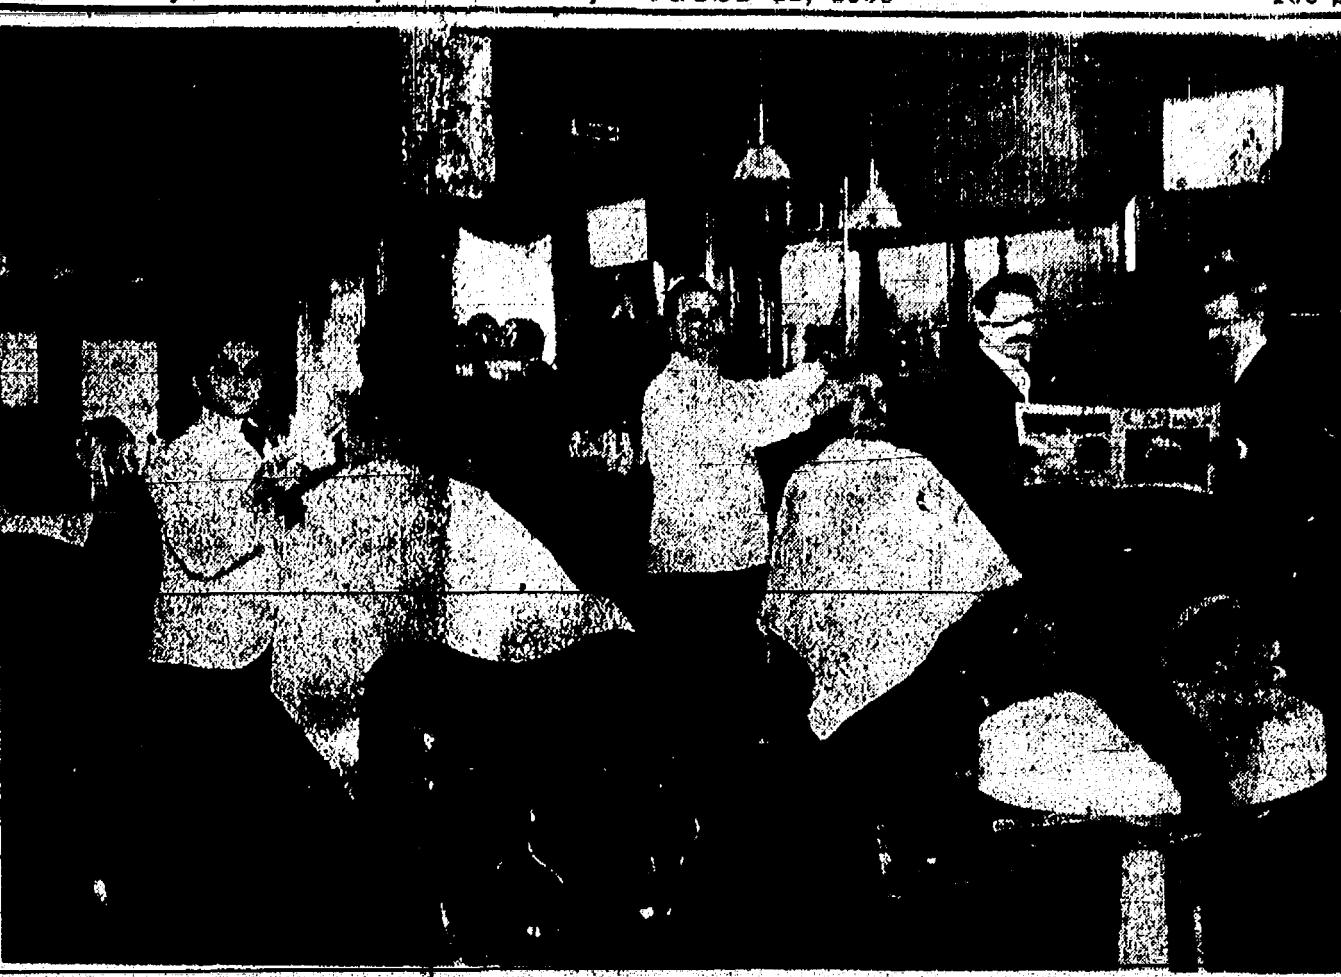

4-H Share the Fun Festival Held Aug. 1

The Annual Share the Fun Festival was held Aug. 1 in the Ann Arbor high school theater. There were 20 acts of all kinds including dramatic, novelty, piano solos, singing and pantomimes.

The four winning acts were Janice Harwood, Mary Lou and Rosemary Payeur and Nikko Shotka with a novelty of the popular song by Chipmunks; Sharon and Susan O'Connor, Chas Longstaff and Mary Jane Thias with a novelty act on "Waterloo"; Carol Braun had a pantomime that was a winner; and Janet Parker sang a solo.

Approximately 200 friends, parents and leaders attended the Fun Festival.

Sunday afternoon Edwin Butler accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Jedele and family of Saline to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fink at Rives.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN? Joseph Laban, Chelsea barber for 33 years, appears at the left in the above photo taken in 1917 when, at the age of 16, he worked as an apprentice in a Detroit barbershop, learning the trade he has followed ever since. The barber at the other chair was Michael Spies, owner of the shop which was located at Macomb and Russell street, in Detroit. Spies was a friend of Laban's father, Julius Laban, who brought his family to America from his native Austria-Hungary. The father, now 85, lives with another son, on a farm near Armada. Laban remembers that the barbers' working day in the Detroit shop was from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. Monday through Friday. Saturdays the closing hour was supposed to be 11 p.m. but they were kept busy for hours after that by the men who flocked to the shop when the saloons closed. Sundays, the barbers worked from 8 a.m. until noon, so customers could attend church freshly shaved. Haircuts were 35 cents for men and 25 cents for children. Shaves were 15 cents. Those were "the good old days" for the customer but rough on the barber. Laban is now employed in Red Eder's shop here.

New Students Should Enroll Now at High School Office

Charles Lane, Chelsea High school principal, announced this week that he will be at his office in the new high school every week day from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. to enroll students new to the system this year.

Any student who will be new to the Chelsea school system, with the exception of those who will be entering from St. Mary's school, should register as soon as possible. Principal Lane will be at his office to register new students through Aug. 26.

All juniors and seniors should report at Chelsea High school Monday, Aug. 24, for books and lockers; freshmen and sophomores are to report Tuesday, Aug. 25; all to go directly to the book store in the main building.

Lockers and books will also be issued Aug. 24 and 25 at the new high school and the junior high school. Seventh and eighth graders will report at Junior High school.

Eighth graders should report between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 24, and seventh graders from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 25.

All books that were in use last year will be good for this year; however, an additional English book will be required in the 11th and 12th grades. Prices of new books are not known at this time, but students will be required to make a deposit on books and lockers.

Deposits for students in grades 7-10 is 75 cents, while for grades 11 and 12 the deposit is $1.50.

At the end of the school year in June, 50 cents will be refunded in grades 7-10 and $1.00 in grades 11-12 when the books are returned. Physical education books, insurance, meal tickets, etc., will be taken care of after school opens. Opening date is Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Anniversary Queen Leaves Saturday Night for Florida

Chelsea's 125th Anniversary Queen, Norma Jean Popovich, and her husband, Charles Popovich, Jr., leave Willow Run shortly after midnight Saturday for the week's vacation in Florida which she received as a prize for winning the Anniversary Queen contest.

Accompanied to the airport by Chelsea Village residents and Mrs. Donald Alton, Mr. and Mrs. Popovich will board an Eastern Airlines plane scheduled to take off at 12:30 a.m.

A delegation of Chelsea area residents will be on hand to give the couple a grand send-off.

It was announced yesterday that everyone in the community is invited to be present for the "send-off"—but those who plan to attend should contact Wallace Wood for details.

During the past week Mrs. Popovich received a letter from Patricia Marchiselli who was in Chelsea for the final anniversary week activities, July 11-18, as the official representative of Clearwater, Fla., and at that time extended an invitation to the Chelsea queen to be the guest of the city of Clearwater during the week of Aug. 16.

In her letter to Mrs. Popovich, Miss Marchiselli outlined plans being arranged for entertainment of Mrs. Popovich and her husband while they are in Florida. She said they will be taken deep sea fishing and will also be taken on an aerial tour of the city in a chartered plane. Plans also include visits to Cypress Gardens, Tarpon Springs and many other points of interest. In addition to being entertained at dinners and luncheons, Chelsea's "queen" will participate in the week-long observance of the Clearwater Post Office Centennial, Aug. 16-22, and in between time will have opportunities to enjoy Clearwater's famous beach.

Interest Rate Increased on Savings Deposits

Chelsea State Bank announced this week that it is increasing its interest rate on savings accounts to three per cent, effective Sept. 1. Present rate is two per cent. This rate has been in effect since December, 1955.

Community Fair Plans Underway

Chelsea's annual Community Fair is scheduled for the second week in September. Dates are Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12, with the annual Amateur Night program scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 10, with a total of $100 in prizes offered.

Paul F. Niehaus, who is in charge of the Amateur Show, said yesterday that anyone who plans to enter the contest should send in an entry form as soon as possible. Deadline for sending in entry forms is Sept. 1, he said. They should be sent to his home address, 209 Jefferson street.

A form for the purpose is printed elsewhere on page one of this issue of The Standard.

Farmers and others in the community who plan to enter exhibits at the fair should also send in entry blanks as soon as possible. The premium list, together with the names of superintendents of the various divisions, is scheduled to be printed in the Aug. 20 issue of The Standard.

For the convenience of prospective exhibitors, the entry cards may be obtained at Anderson's Department Store, Foster's Men's Wear, Merkel Brothers, Chelsea Hardware, Chelsea Drug and Chelsea State Bank.

The September meeting of the club will again be held at the Christmas Seal camp. This is to be the annual guest night.

Summer Band Rehearsal Set Next Tuesday

The Chelsea-Manchester Community Band will hold their last summer rehearsal next Tuesday, Aug. 18, at 7:00 p.m. at the Chester Intermediate school. Chelsea members will leave the new high school at 6:30 p.m. Members should bring lyres since half the rehearsal will be marching.

The band will march in the Manchester fair parade the next evening, Aug. 19, at 7:00 p.m., and then present the following concert at 8:00 p.m.: "America," "Silver Anniversary March," by Yoder; "Park Ridge Overture," by Yoder; "With a Little Bit of Luck," by Wilson; "Three Sketches for Band," by Morrissey; "Venus," by Mercer; "Our Glorious Land March," by Olivadotti; "Autumn Leaves," "The Thunderer March," by Sousa; and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Chelsea's two-baton twirlers, Lynn Süsser and Lynne Fahrner, will be featured in an exciting fire-baton twirling act.

Robert Sotter, Gayle Grove and Byron Pearson will direct during the program. Members will leave for Manchester at 10 p.m.

Cost of Project Given as Reason By Opposition

Three members of the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors, acting as an official Board of Determination, decided that "the drain is not necessary, as petitioned" following a public meeting at the McKinley road intersection of the Mill Creek Consolidated Drain. The three supervisors, all experienced drain authorities, are Erwin Frederick of Lodi township, Russell Hughes of Bridgewater, and Sylvester Leonard of Augusta township.

The meeting, which took place Thursday, was held for the purpose of determining the necessity of the project as petitioned—cleaning out the drain from approximately the center of Section 22, Lima township (Lima-Center) north and west through the Luick, Mill Creek and Letts Creek drain, across Chelsea and then south along the Mill Creek extension to Chrysler Proving Ground.

Members of the board of determination viewed the drain in its present condition at all road crossings along the drain route, and also listened to all arguments, for or against, as presented at the public meeting, before coming to their decision.

Approximately 100 area residents attended the meeting and the majority of these voted against granting the petition.

Cost of the project in relation to the number of people directly benefitted appeared to be the reason most of those present were opposed to the project. A number expressed concern because of the fact that such a clean-out program might necessitate expensive bridge construction in the 50-square-mile area in which taxpayers would be assessable. The area extends west to the county line, south to the Sharon township line and north to the vicinity of Cavanaugh Lake. Townships included in the assessable area are Lima, Sylvan, Lyndon and Dexter.

Net result of the rejection is the fact that the drain proposal cannot be re-petitioned for at least a year.

Similar petitions of the drain proposal have been rejected on two previous occasions, once in the 1920's and again in 1953.

Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner John Flook presided at the meeting and introduced the three supervisors who answered questions of the area residents present.

LT. David Crocker Completes Marine Officers' Basic Course

David G. Crocker, a graduate of Chelsea High school and the University of Michigan, is one of 333 second lieutenants who completed the eight-months officers' basic course, Aug. 1, at the Marine Corps School at Quantico, Va. He is the son of Mrs. Jean V. Mutard of Tecumseh.

The course included indoor classes in personnel administration, first aid, map reading, weapons, field sanitation, and leadership techniques.

In the field, practical map reading, live firing of weapons, drills and ceremonies, and the practical aspects of communication and employment of supporting weapons were applied.

A family gathering was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bristle in Ann Arbor honoring Lt. Crocker and his wife, the former Doris Hais, who spent the past week with relatives in this vicinity.

The gathering also served as a surprise birthday party honoring Mrs. Crocker's brother, Kenneth Hais.

Those from Chelsea who attended are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Hais and sons, Kenneth and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bycraft and children, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hoffman, George Hais and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Vogel and daughters.

Michigan, in 1958, took a fifth place in production of sweet corn, and fresh market sale of this item alone brought growers $1,928,000.

What Michigan county is first in sweet corn production? You'd never guess it. It is highly industrialized Wayne county.

Mystery Farm Is One of Six Dairy Farms Owned by Detroit Trucking Firm Executive

Located on Grass Lake road at the end of Rank road, just inside the Jackson county line, Mystery Farm No. 62 is known as Gottfredson Farm No. 1. It is one of six large farms in the area managed by William Harris for R. B. Gottfredson of Detroit. Gottfredson operates the Trans-American Trucking company out of Detroit.

The farm shown in the photograph is one of three Gottfredson dairy farms. It is operated by William and Laura Tompkins, who came here from the Traverse City area four years ago. They have two sons, William Tompkins, IV, who is in the eighth grade at Grass Lake, and James who is in the third grade.

Mystery Farm No. 62 was formerly known for many years as the Hobart place. The Tompkins family live in the downstairs apartment of the big house. They are one of the nine families who live on the six Gottfredson farms.

Wilbur Harris, who manages the farms, is president of the Brown Swiss Association of Michigan. One of the cows from the dairy barn in the photograph, registered as May Queen, topped the Brown Swiss sale at Michigan State University, East Lansing, on Saturday, Aug. 1. Her 305-day record was 660 pounds of butterfat.

In co-operation with Michigan State University, tests on use of aureomycin to maintain health standards are being carried on at the farm.

Tompkins is in full charge of the dairy operation on Farm No. 1. The big barn houses 42 registered Brown Swiss cattle and the building in the foreground is the calf barn where Mrs. Tompkins assists with the younger cattle.

Behind the big barn, at the upper left in the photo, a new quonset-type building is being erected. This will be used for hay and machinery storage. The footings were in place when the photograph was taken.

Hay, corn, oats and grass silage for feeding the dairy herds are products of the farm. Many of the cows in the Brown Swiss herd are making outstanding production records and the new experiment in better health of dairy cattle now being carried out is creating interest among dairy men throughout the state.

Milk produced on the place goes to the Detroit market through the Sealeast company, according to Mrs. Tompkins who was delegated to come to The Standard office and claim the photograph offered to farm owners whose farms are pictured as "mystery farms" in the current series appearing in the paper each week.

the barn in the lower left being on the Albers farm in Washtenaw county. All of the Gottfredson farm is in Jackson county.

Eugene Wahl and Charles Curtis called The Standard office to identify the Gottfredson farm. Several Chelsea area people who have known most of the mystery farm photos published during the past year called to say they failed to recognize Mystery Farm No. 62.

Michigan's Annual Peach Harvest Earlier This Year

Although it seems early, arrival on market of some of Michigan's 3,200,000 bushel peach crop is a signal to homemakers to start processing this queen of fruits for the months ahead.

The state's estimated peach crop is the third largest in the nation, and is about the same size as the 1958 harvest. It assures ample home-grown peaches for every culinary purpose.

The harvesting of nearly all fruits is a week to 10 days ahead of normal, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Peaches are no exception. Several desirable peach varieties for dessert and home processing are already available to shoppers.

The peak of the Michigan peach harvest formerly came around Labor Day. After youngsters were back to school, mother turned her hand to filling cans with the golden fruit from the state's orchards. But the situation is changed.

Newer and better peach varieties that have an earlier maturity date have supplanted the time-honored Elberta peach, which sometimes did not reach peak harvest until after September was well started.

This year the general earliness of the harvesting season for all fruits will make the peak of the peach season even earlier. The season may be concluded soon after mid-September.

Earlier and better colored peach varieties that are rapidly replacing the Elberta variety are the Redhaven, Fairhaven, Fairhaven, Sunhaven and Halehaven varieties. These "haven" varieties were all propagated in Michigan at the experiment station at South Haven by an internationally known authority on peaches and blueberries, Stanley Johnston.

films, but it has a great deal to recommend it—it's warm, human, sentimental, and slightly mad in the comedy department.

The hero of the film, Tony, is a 41-year-old widower with an 11-year-old son, Ally, who is, at times, much more adult than his father who is an improvident, irresponsible, but likable would-be promoter, who dreams of the big time, making a million, and then living it up.

Edward G. Robinson turns in a superb comedy performance as the stodgy, well-meaning but uncomprehending brother. Thelma Ritter gives a gem of a performance as his solicitously busy-body wife. Red-headed Eddie Hodges has a small-boy appeal in large doses. As the marriageable widow, Eleanor Parker is her usual attractive self. Carolyn Jones claims rapt attention as the bongo-drumming hip chick who is Tony's girl friend. And last, but not least, there is Keenan Wynn as a free-spirited, big-time operator.

Nearly one in every four Americans is enrolled in school or college last year, the U. S. Office of Education estimates.

Summer's Time To Battle Bugs Of All Kinds

Pellston—Some of summer's buzzing insects would scare the "itch" right out of you, if you knew what they can do, says Robert E. Beer (PhD), insect specialist at the University of Michigan Biological Station near here.

Where most varieties of the common housefly could be killed with insecticides a few years ago, he notes, now many strains—especially in areas of intense fly control programs—have developed resistance to bug-killers.

"Some flies, purposely bred in laboratories to resist many insecticides, can be killed only with drastic measures—fly swatters or a pair of bricks, for example," Beer observes.

In addition to being a nuisance, the fly undoubtedly transmits many stomach-upsetting organisms to humans.

Man-drilling mosquitoes swap a mildly toxic injection of their saliva for your blood, Beer continues. More important than the resulting itch, however, is the fact that some varieties of this insect transmit encephalitis—a disease affecting the brain which can result in death.

The red-winged blackbird, widely distributed in the U. S., carries the infection but is not afflicted by it. After biting these birds, mosquitoes transmit the disease to horses and humans.

"What saves most of us is the fact that not all species of mosquitoes carry this disease," Beer points out. "Some of the common ones don't."

Nevertheless, he recommends cleaning up mosquito-breeding places by spraying all areas of standing water, as well as homes.

One sting from a wasp can result in death for hypersensitive persons, Beer notes. "The stinger injects a neurotoxin which doesn't have a chance to get diluted before reaching the nerves. Face stings are extremely bad, since they are close to man's principal nerve center."

Fortunately, deaths from this cause are fairly rare. Beer recommends spraying wasps nests at night—and promptly running for cover.

Bees, helpful as pollinators for plants, can be a problem when they swarm near your house. Beer suggests the best way to get these busy bugs is to call an exterminator or an apiarist, who will collect the entire colony.

Two Chevy middleweights prove their rawhide stamina!

Top hands on high-country hauls!

Ask any trucker who's been over Wolf Creek Pass, 10,850 feet up in the San Juans: a 9-mile pull to the summit and low gear all the way down. Mr. C. H. Phillips of Alamosa, Colorado, has a 6408 and a 6508 Chevrolet truck that are up over this route the year round, taking sheep and beef to pasture, later marketing the stock in Denver. In less than a year, his Chevy middleweights have averaged about 50,000 miles of this kind of treatment—and they're going stronger than ever! Watch Chevy trucks at work out in range country. It's a sight to see the way they pack into high-up mountain pastures and handle through brush and rock like a cowman's favorite cutting horse. Take any truck work for that matter. Chevy middleweights probably handle a bigger variety of jobs than any trucks alive. About anything you name, including work that used to be reserved strictly for bigger rigs. When a truck's built the way a Chevy is, lean-muscled and rawhide-tough, it takes to ugly trails the same way most trucks roll over the highway. It just keeps going, without a big to-do, but looking good every mile of the way. How they do it is your Chevrolet dealer's department. He'll be glad to supply details and specifications on the type of models you need.

No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck!

President Spells Out Duty of Congress To People in Need for Labor Law

In his recent radio and TV appeal for a "labor reform law to protect Americans" and to put an end to the "national disgrace" of the labor racketeering and corruption revealed by the McClellan Committee, President Eisenhower blasted with equal and withering scorn the Kennedy bill passed by the Senate and the House Labor Committee now up for action in the House.

The President spelled out in some detail what he considered the two most vicious labor union practices, blackmail picketing and the secondary boycott. Of each he said, "I want that sort of thing stopped—and so does America." He deplored with equal vehemence the existence of that "no-man's land" in which Federal authorities ignored labor disputes involving small concerns, and state officials had no authority to act, by virtue of a Supreme Court decision, thus leaving the decision to force and violence, terrorism and destruction. "I want that no-man's land abolished," he said. "I want the states to have the authority to deal with these situations."

If legislation fails to meet these three abuses, the President said, "it's no reform bill." The bill passed by the Senate, he said, is not effective, and the House Labor Committee bill even less so. Rather, he urged the Landrum-Griffin bill as a "good start toward a good reform bill."

The President laid special stress on the fact that protecting Americans against gangsters and crooks is not a partisan matter. The vital question, he said, is: "Shall the people govern? If they do not, crooks and racketeers could prevail."

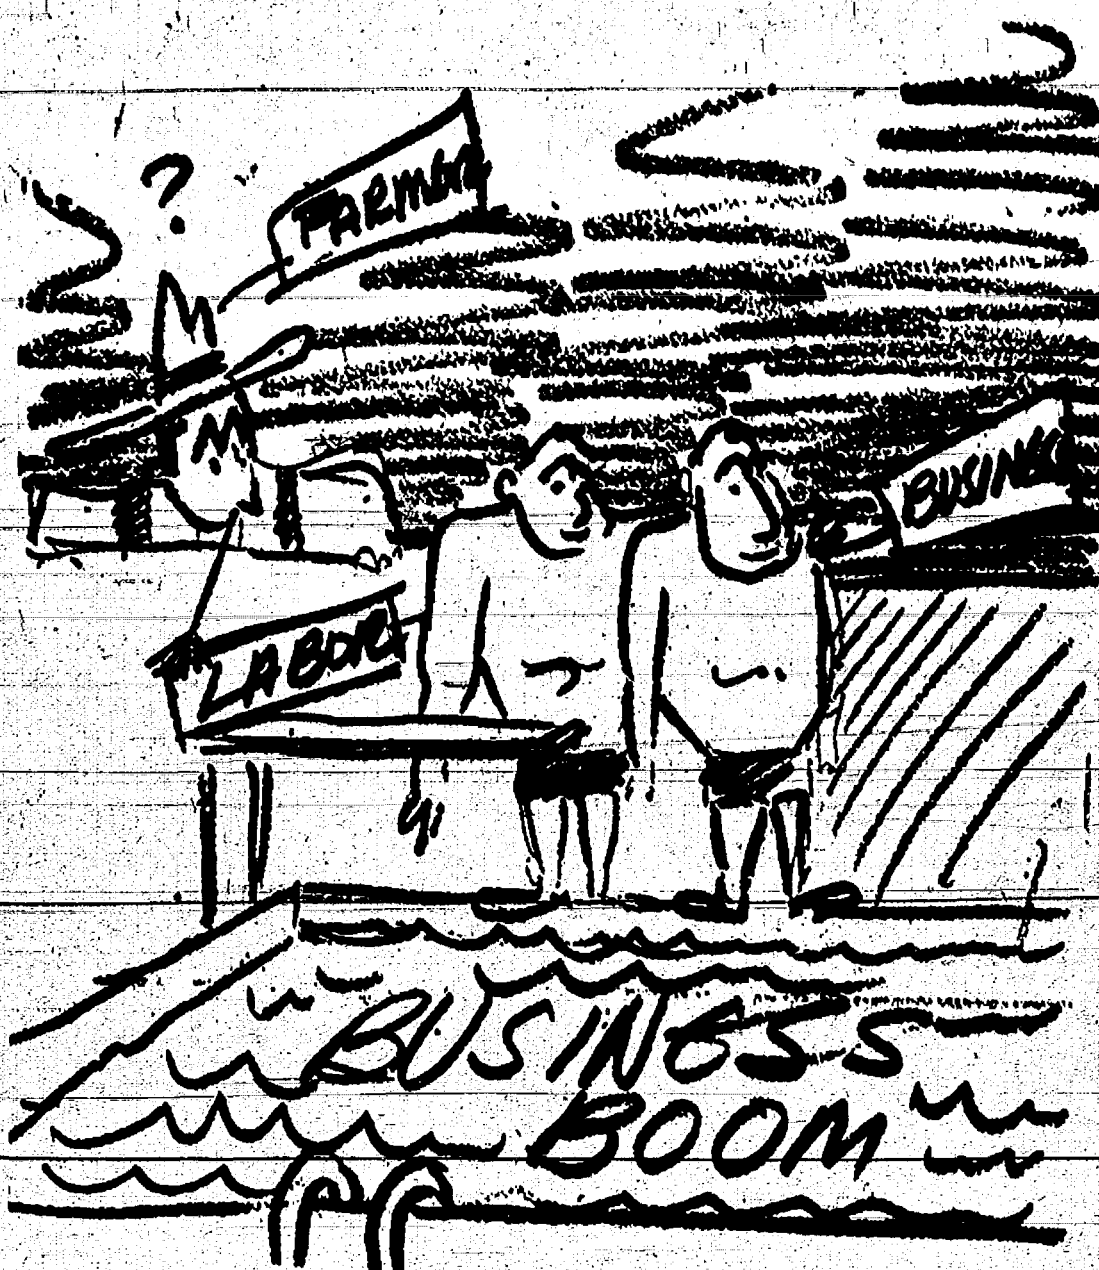

It is my earnest hope," the President concluded, "that Congress will be responsive to an overwhelming national demand."

In publicly laying in the lap of Congress the hottest domestic issue of our time (and with the pointed reminder that nothing had been accomplished), the President has made it virtually impossible for the legislators to brush the problem under the rug. And the simplest, and probably the best solution under the confused circumstances, would seem to be the Landrum-Griffin bill that the President endorsed for the second time in his address to the people. Here is a measure that does attack the evils described by Mr. Eisenhower, yet it is a moderate bill—too tough for the labor leaders, yet not as tough as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers would like.

Certainly the President has now done all that he reasonably can to impress upon Congress its duty to the people. It is therefore now up to the people to advise their Congressmen of what they want—in the strongest possible terms. And to be specific about it, they might do well to demand passage of the Landrum-Griffin bill.

Did you know that a great many accidents occur in the kitchen? Yes, and we men have to eat them and pretend we like them.—Borescope, Pocatello, Idaho.

★ MICHIGAN MIRROR ★

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Michigan's industrial development and its year-around vacation lure has helped bring atomic power to the state.

The state got a look into the future late in July when Consumers Power Co. officials outlined their plans for construction of an atomic-powered generating plant on a 600-acre tract in Hayes township, Charlevoix county.

It made a good show. And the utility says it "likes what is seen in Michigan's future."

"We look forward to the future with great confidence," said James H. Campbell, senior vice-president of the utility. "We believe that Michigan will continue to be an industrial leader and that its population will continue to grow and prosper."

Campbell said the utility thinks "that prudent foresightfulness requires that we engage in the development of atomic-powered electric generating plants in order to meet the challenge in the future as Michigan continues to grow industrially and otherwise."

Northern Michigan's future looks especially bright to Consumers.

"The kilowatt-hour consumption in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula has been growing at a faster rate than in any other area in the system," Campbell said. "Numerous small manufacturing companies have located in the area. The growth of this territory and—vacationland, both summer and winter—is adding lead in the territory."

Campbell cited the "improved economic condition of the area, and the impact of the Mackinac Bridge and the St. Lawrence Seaway."

Pioneering by another utility has helped pave the way for the Consumers project, at least in the mind of one key state official. "I am convinced these things can be made safely," said State Insurance Commissioner Frank Blackford, a member of a special committee established to study atomic power in Michigan.

Blackford and other officials recently inspected the Detroit Edison A-power plant near Monroe. Consumers officials told the Public Service Commission they would incorporate "every possible safeguard to eliminate any known danger to the public to our employees or to the equipment."

The utility thinks all of Michigan will ultimately benefit from the project, primarily because of the research that will be conducted.

"We believe that the construction of a boiling water reactor at Big Rock Point will be a sound means of meeting the growth of electric demand in that part of the state," Consumers President Dan E. Karn said. "It will also be an important step toward our goal of producing electric energy at reasonable cost by means of nuclear fuel."

The northern Michigan plan will use a boiling water type of reactor. In this type of reactor, heat produced through nuclear fission converts water into steam. The steam then spins the blades of a conventional turbine-generator, producing electricity.

Consumers also participates in the Enrico Fermi atomic power plant project near Monroe, where Detroit Edison and other utility and industrial companies are working on a "fast breeder" reactor, which produces plutonium as a byproduct.

Campbell was asked by the Public Service Commission if the utility would seek an electric rate as a result of the development of the northern Michigan plant.

"No," he said. "We have nothing of the sort in mind. This nuclear project alone will not give rise to an electric rate change."

The Consumers project makes Michigan somewhat of a proving ground.

"What we are endeavoring is to build an atomic plant of a comparatively known and tested design," said Consumers attorney Don T. McKone, "but with features aimed to further bring us along the road of the production of electric energy by nuclear fuels on a commercial basis."

The Michigan utility has gone through what McKone calls "almost a complete process of evolution from a hydro plant company to a steam-generation company."

McKone told the Public Service Commission "we may well be on the verge of a similar transition from coal-fueled plants to nuclear-fueled plants."

The Michigan legislature appeared this year to be on the verge of passing legislation to prepare for the atomic age. But two bills on atomic energy died in the Senate State Affairs committee.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

Dear Mister Editor:
 I see where a rich feller in New York wants to publish a newspaper that don't carry nothing but good news. He wouldn't be able to get out more'n one page a week. In fact, he wouldn't be able to carry the weather forecast but about once a month. Come to think about it, this feller has done about retired afore he got started.

Of course, I think a heap of improvements could be made on the newspapers we already got. You editors miss the point about as often as you hit it. For instance, when that farmer here a while back smashed up his tractor, burned down his barn and killed himself, the paper said the motive for the act was unknown. Anybody ought to know that he just got exhausted from filling out Government forms and was tired of farming. He had wore himself out estimating his crops for the income tax folks and rotating 'em for the Agriculture Department. And I reckon, too, his eyesight was getting pore from reading all them pamphlets from the farm agencies.

I was reading a piece in the papers last night where a survey shows that women use no judgment in the selection of their shoes, and that 48 per cent of 'em would be happier if they went barefooted. I didn't know the percentage of honest women in this country would run to 43 percent. The piece didn't say who made the survey, but I reckon it was another one of them Government projects, like the survey the Agriculture Department made about five year ago on the "Love Life of the Humming Bird."

A feller on television last night was saying that ever candidate for President in 1960 ought to make a speech to the nation from the front porch of the White House and tell the American people his exact foreign policy. Of course, when Harry built that porch to the White House he didn't aim for no Republicans to be making a campaign speech from it. But he might not holler too loud if the candidate kept the speech non-partisan.

There ain't nothing that makes a little feller feel as big as when he's got a balcony under his feet. The balcony did a heap for Mussolini, and nothing crows as cocky as a rooster when he's safe on the ridge pole of a barn.

Yours truly,

Uncle Lew.

Living costs, already at a record level, are reported to have risen still higher.

A government report will tell the story, and advance indications were that the new figures, reflecting the consumer price situation for the month of May, are likely to mark the highest living-cost level in history.

ON CAPITOL HILL

By Congressman George Meader

Last week the House amended the Mutual Security appropriations bill to use Congressional power of the purse to obtain from the executive branch information Congress needs concerning foreign aid operations and expenditures. Such information is necessary to determine whether aid money is being spent wisely and also to identify deficiencies in the law or its administration which can lead to improvement.

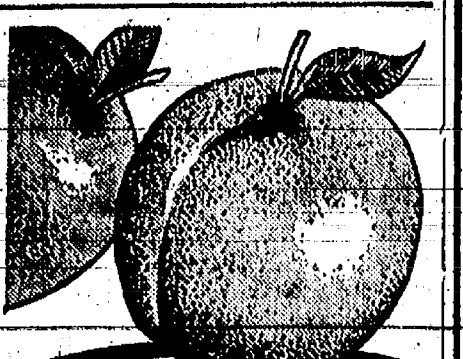

The amendment, offered by the chairman of our Foreign Operations and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee, the Honorable Porter Hardy, Jr., of Virginia, would have these benefits:

1. It will prevent aid officials from covering up blunders.
2. It will provide Congress with the facts and considerations indispensable to sound legislative judgments on foreign aid.

The amendment was the result of seven years' study of foreign aid operations in which often the committee found lack of co-operation on the part of foreign aid officials making it difficult for the subcommittee to obtain complete and accurate information, especially where stupidity, extravagance, waste or mismanagement appeared to have occurred in the handling of foreign aid funds. Sometimes there was merely procrastination, evasion and double talk. But there were also instances of outright defiance of committee requests for documents with the excuse that they were "internal administrative matters" and could be withheld under an alleged doctrine of "executive privilege."

Earlier both the House and the Senate had adopted a similar amendment to the authorization bill for Mutual Security. However, a White House statement claimed the provision was inoperative and unconstitutional because of alleged "executive privilege." The amendment in the appropriations bill firmly provides Congressional access to information in the possession of executive officials by shutting off funds if recalcitrant individuals should disregard requests for information from the General Accounting Office or from the appropriate committees of the Congress.

Muskegon Man Named To Head Michigan Week

T. Austin Saunders, of Muskegon, president of General Telephone Co. of Michigan, will be state chairman of the 1960 Michigan Week, May 15-21.

The announcement was made by Edward J. Hekman, president of Hekman Biscuit Co., Grand Rapids, chairman of the organizing committee for next year's Michigan Week, who headed the group which chose Saunders to lead the estimated 5,000 people who will soon be at work on state and local committees for the seventh annual Michigan Week. Hekman was state chairman in 1958.

Since Michigan Week began in 1954, the chairmanship has alternated between the Detroit area and outstate. 1959 chairman was Paul Carnahan, board chairman of Great Lakes Steel Corp., Ecorse. Saunders was regional chairman of the Michigan Week observance this year, in charge of 13 central western Michigan counties.

In announcing the new chairman, Hekman said:

"We looked earnestly over a large part of the state for the best man for the job and decided upon Austin Saunders. We were immensely pleased that he accepted. He is one of Michigan's outstanding business executives and a man deeply devoted to his state's progress. He can be counted on for the leadership that will carry Michigan Week well toward its goal of making Michigan favorably known across the nation, getting its people working together and making it a still better place to live, work and play."

Saunders' first task will be to appoint the nine regional chairmen who will direct county and community committees and the chairmen of six activity boards who will direct the numerous state committees.

As president of General Telephone of Michigan, Saunders directs a $77 million corporation that serves 35 per cent of Michigan's land area and nearly 200 communities in the state. The company is part of General Telephone and Electronics, America's second largest telephone system. Saunders has been in the telephone business 33 years, is a World War II veteran and active in Muskegon civic affairs.

MICHIGAN'S RICH RESOURCE, WATER—A fisherman enjoys one of water's many uses in Michigan. To the sportsman, homemaker, farmer and industrialist alike, Michigan's water is a vital resource. Among other things, it is a source of power for industry, an avenue for shipping products and a key to a booming tourist business. In addition to serving many domestic needs in the home, it is used for irrigating crops and safeguarding public health. It supports fish and wildlife populations and gives life to our forests and wild plants. Truly, it would be hard to overestimate the value of the state's water wealth.

Michigan's Abundant Water Supply Is One of Its Richest Resources

Lansing—Have you ever stopped to consider the vital role water plays in Michigan? Probably you haven't thought about it very seriously.

In a state so richly blessed with natural resources as this, water does not hold the esteem that iron, copper, oil and other minerals do. And because of the abundant supply, water is too often taken for granted.

In Michigan there is water for transportation and industry in general, water for recreation, for forests, agriculture and the public health.

Almost completely surrounded by the Great Lakes, Michigan is a keystone in the vast shipping industry on these waters. The port of Detroit is one of the busiest in the nation. Tonnage through the world famous locks at Sault Ste. Marie is more than three and one-half times that of the Panama Canal. The Detroit river ranks as the busiest waterway in the world.

The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway this year will greatly magnify Michigan's foreign trade. Even before this, the state's exports approximated a billion dollars annually, while its imports totaled 600 million dollars a year.

Water is literally the life-blood of industry in Michigan. It is converted into electric energy that keeps the wheels of industry turning. It is used for refining, for cooling purposes and for other processes that require large quantities of water.

Michigan's multimillion dollar tourist industry is closely geared to the state's water resources. The Water Wonderland—more than 36,000 miles of rivers and streams, 11,000 inland lakes and 3,000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline have stimulated widespread resort development.

This resort boom has bolstered the general economy of the state, has strengthened the tax structures of local units of government and has provided jobs for thousands of people who live outside industrial centers.

Closely related to its effect on a flourishing tourist business, water supports fish and wildlife populations, which have vaulted Michigan into the top spot, nationwide, for hunting and fishing.

Since 1854 it has reigned as the most popular state for hunters and fishermen. Michigan's hunting and fishing license sales for 1958 added record $7,775,000 to the state's Game and Fish Protection Fund.

Little wonder Michigan is called a fisherman's paradise. Principal reason is not so much the water itself, but its complexity. It can almost be said that no two lakes in Michigan are alike in their conditions for fish life.

Proof of this variety of fish life is found in Conservation Department records which show that Michigan's waters contain nearly 150 species of fish.

With a helping hand from air, soil and sunshine, water gives life to forests which today grow on 19,682,000 acres in Michigan. Payrolls of the wood-using industries alone amount to over $809,000,000 a year. Timber sales from state forests brought approximately $657,000 during the 1958-59 fiscal year.

In addition to supporting forests, water nourishes agricultural products in Michigan. In 1957, receipts from marketed farm products totaled $714,059,000.

Michigan leads the nation in production of sour cherries, field beans, celery, cucumber pickles, strawberries and tomatoes. It is second in production of asparagus, cauliflower, plums, cantaloupes and sweet corn and third in commercial apples, peaches, grapes, sweet cherries, cabbage, onions and spearmint.

Water is not solely responsible for Michigan's fortunes as discussed but it is truly essential to all these things. Certainly, it would be hard to overestimate the state's water wealth.

IFYE Student Describes Portuguese Cork Harvest

Greetings From Portugal: Mere nome e Sr. Arnold Girbach sou dos Estados Unidos. (My name is Arnold Girbach and I am from the United States). As a representative of the rural young people in the United States under the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE) to Portugal, the above introduction is a daily event for me.

I am here not on a technical mission. I am not here to tell the farmers how they should run their farms or how I think they should live. I have come to observe and understand the many differences we have. Any person can see differences, but only the wise man can understand and respect them. Although I will learn much about the agriculture and the arts of home life as practiced here in Portugal, this knowledge is important as it enables you and I to understand the way of life of each other.

It is not my intention while I'm here in Portugal to try and make them live like I do, or as Americans do, for I know and you know that the world is much richer because of our differences.

My homeland to me is great because people from other countries have come and brought their best. As a result, we both are richer. It is through understanding and exchanging of ideas. For example, if I had a nickel and you had a nickel, and if we traded, neither of us would be the richer. However, if I had an idea, and you had an idea and we traded, both of us would be richer.

While I am here, I am living on a farm, sharing family work and social life of the community. It is my hope that I will be accepted not as a guest, nor as a hired laborer, but rather as a member of my host family. The family, as the foundation of society, is the level at which we begin our program for mutual respect and understanding.

My IFYE story started on July 2 when I arrived in Lisbon, Portugal, and was met there by a member from Nestle Products, (my sponsor while I'm here) who spoke at least a little English. After three days traveling through Spain and not running into anyone that spoke English, and me not speaking Spanish, this was really a great moment.

In Lisbon I was taken to the Association of Agriculture where I received my schedule for the coming weeks. Also at this time I had the opportunity to see Herbert Ferguson of the American Embassy, Agricultural Attaché, and received some briefing on what to expect.

The following morning I set out for my first host family. The farm was located in Alvega on the Lagn River. It is owned by Dr. Jose Matafome, who was an IFYE to the U. S. in 1953. It was not a typical farm of the region, for crops were olives and cork.

I stayed on this farm for two weeks and observed the cork harvest that was taking place. This was new and very interesting to me.

Although Portugal is only the size of our state of Indiana, it is the world's largest producer of cork, supplying about half of the total world consumption. The United States is the greatest purchaser of cork, and my visit to see the harvest was an event the Portuguese people enjoyed with much pride.

The cork is produced from a tree, known as the Cork Oak, which is an evergreen that grows peculiarly thick bark unlike that of any other tree. Its first yield may be harvested when it is about 15 years old, and about every nine years thereafter. The first two yields are of poor quality, but the quality improves after each harvest, and the life of the tree is upward of 150 years.

As I mentioned earlier, this was not a typical farm. There are two distinct classes of people in Portugal, an upper and lower class. Because the lower class are so poor that they would be unable to feed an extra person, I will be staying with the upper class families. Coming from a social structure such as ours in America, I think that this was and is the hardest thing to which I have to adjust. The fact that in my first family there was only my host father, mother, one nine-year-old boy and myself, and we had four maids, and a gardener. Such service I was not used to.

Most all of the people live in small villages. The wealthier people have private social clubs for dances and other social gatherings. All people rich or poor go to movies and church together, but here their joint activities usually end.

As of yet, most of the people with whom I come in contact, in general, have a good impression of the United States. Of course, there are a few misgivings. They tend to think that Americans are all businessmen looking for that extra dollar and that all are rich and earn high wages. They were surprised when I showed them some pictures of my father and I working in the fields. They seemed to have the impression that anyone owning a farm like my father's would not have to work himself. They know that America is highly mechanized and often think so to the point that there is no work connected with farming.

During the few weeks that I have been here, I have observed and learned many things, some of which at first seem very strange to me, but after careful consideration I can usually see the reasoning behind their actions. Other things go on unexplained, and only time will give me the answer as to why.

Although Portugal is a relatively small country, even in the four months which I am here, I'm sure there will be many things that I will never truly really understand. I do know that during my short stay here so far, I have learned to love the country and its people, and admire the respect they have for me and my country. Not every day is filled with song.

and laughter. Some pass quite slowly while others fly by. An experience such as this is rich and fruitful for many reasons. Not only am I now living in a completely different environment, but it also gives me a glimpse of the United States as seen through the eyes of our neighbors across the water. Maybe too many of us are standing too close to what we are trying to see. Maybe the picture might look different if we stood back and took another look. Maybe many of us don't appreciate the things we have until we no longer have them. I shall never forget the words of an old gentleman who said, "The trouble with too many of us is that too many of us know too many things that aren't true." These words enter my mind many times as I go about observing in my new home.

I hope that the message I bring to America will be one of knowledge, understanding, and respect for the right to be different. These are the words which I think are the cornerstones for world peace and security.

Until the next time when I hope I have the opportunity to tell some more of my IFYE story, Adeus at logo, which means good-bye, until next time.

Your IFYE in Portugal,
Arnold Girbach.
