Bulldogs Give Victory to Manchester

Possible 20 Points
Lost by Team from
Free Throw Line

The Chelsea High school basketball team came home last Friday night realizing that effort is not enough to win games, but it is also necessary to put the ball in the basket.

For the third time this season, and the second in succession, the Bulldogs were unable to capitalize on their opportunities at the free throw line which would have resulted in victory, and were therefore defeated 47-42 by another determined team, the Manchester Dutchmen.

In the first quarter the Bulldogs broke fast and spurred into a 10-4 lead, as the home team had a hard time finding the hoop during the first eight minutes.

The second quarter found the Bulldogs continuing to score well as guard Jack Patrick led the attack with eight points. However the Dutchmen checked the first three minutes and connected for 15 points to put the Bulldogs' lead at half-time to 24-19.

In the second half Chelsea went cold and was able to score but two baskets in the third quarter and three baskets in the fourth. However, had they had more success at the charity line the game could have been put out of reach, as a possible 20 points, including one-and-one shots were missed by the entire Bulldog team.

The Dutchmen, in the meantime, were enjoying a very warm second-half and were able to come from behind to win for a very wild home-town crowd, 47-42, with two Manchester free throws being scored after the final horn.

The absence of a very fine Junior guard, Daryl Keizer, who suffered a fractured leg when he fell on the ice, was also felt by the Chelsea Bulldogs. Daryl will undoubtedly be out for the remainder of the season.

The Manchester victory forced Chelsea into a three-way tie for second place in the Washtenaw Conference, as U. High took the measure of Dexter to remain in contention along with Manchester and Chelsea.

The undefeated Conference leader, Saline will journey to our village this week where the Bulldogs will try hard to do what no other conference team has been able to do so far. That big front line of John LaRue, Jim Fuhrman, and Calvin Kari have been controlling the backboards against all comers so far, and it will again be the job of the much smaller Bulldogs to out-manuever and out-hustle the Hornets if they expect to be able to slow them in their drive for the conference championship.

Stamp Collectors Urged To Attend Wednesday Meet

Chelsea area men and women who are interested in stamp collecting are invited to attend a meeting Wednesday evening, Feb. 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the McKune Memorial Library at which time the possibility of organizing a stamp club here will be discussed.

According to present indications, the club will be open to young and old alike, the only requirement being an interest in stamp collecting.

Among adults in the community who are expected to attend the meeting are E. W. Eaton, Paul Maroney, Mrs. Nellie Flood, Otis Titus, Dr. L. J. Paul and the Rev. Philip Rusten, all of whom are interested in stamp collecting as a hobby.

Many young people are also known to be stamp collectors and all are invited to Wednesday's meeting. The meeting will be over by 8:30 p.m., according to present plans.

Fire Destroys N. Prentice Barn, Stock

Fire, discovered at 2 a.m. Thursday completely destroyed a large barn and milk shed, together with 24 head of livestock and a quantity of hay and equipment, on the Nelson Prentice farm, 10301 Mt. Hope road, two miles east of Munith.

The blaze was first noticed by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bernard Prentice. It is believed the fire resulted when a sow kicked over a heating lamp.

Livestock lost in the fire included three head of Holstein cattle, five sows, 16 pigs and a pony. A boar and 11 sows were rescued.

Also destroyed was a tractor, 500 bales of hay, 200 bushels of corn, 100 bushels of grain, 300 pounds of hay mineral and 14 tons of loose hay.

Henrietta and Stockbridge fire departments fought the blaze in 20-degree temperatures.

The Prentices formerly lived in the Chelsea area.

Philip Bareis Earns Degree at WMU

Philip Dean Bareis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bareis, received a bachelor of science degree from Western Michigan University at Kalamazoo Sunday afternoon.

Sunday evening his wife, the former Helen Eismann, entertained at a reception at their home in Clinton.

Bareis expects to leave in March for Fort Walton Beach, Fla., to fulfill his contract to play ball for the Jets of that city, a farm club of the Washington Senators.

9 Directors Elected to Chest Board

Members of the Chelsea Community Chest, at their annual meeting Wednesday evening, elected nine new directors.

Seven of these were elected to full terms of three years each. The seven are Howard Anderson, George W. Atkinson, Donald Baldwin (re-elected), Allen Brossamle, Mrs. Robert Daniels, Richard Kern and Richard Smith.

Two new directors elected to two-year terms to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of Elton K. Musbach and Harold Dove are Willard Guest, Sr., and N. B. Miles.

Others whose terms do not expire at this time and who remain on the board are J. V. Burg, II, Mrs. Leon Chapman, William Collins, Lyle Haselwerdt, Dr. Michael Papp, Robert Rudd, Mrs. Fred Schumann, Miles Smith, David Strieter, Calvin Summers, Robert K. Taylor and Gertrude Young.

The new board of directors re-elected Calvin Summers and Lyle Haselwerdt president and vice-president, respectively.

Gertrude Young was elected treasurer, succeeding Donald Baldwin, and Mrs. Leon Chapman was named secretary, replacing Robert K. Taylor.

Directors who had completed two three-year terms at this time are S. R. Booker, E. W. Eaton, Harold Jones, Alfred Mayer, Mrs. Stephen Slane and Robert Anderson. By-laws limit service to two consecutive terms on the board of directors.

Final reports given at the meeting regarding the Community Chest fund-raising campaign, list total contributions, to date, to be $14,400, or 91 per cent of the $15,667 goal.

It was pointed out that allocations to benefitting agencies will be made on that basis, each agency to receive 91 per cent of the amount originally included in the budget. The funds will be disbursed in February.

Wednesday's meeting was held in the Village Council room in the Municipal building.

Richard Hoelzer Burned When Heater Explodes

Richard Hoelzer, wholesale produce dealer, suffered burns and a shoulder injury when a propane gas heater in a produce truck exploded Tuesday as he was preparing to start his early morning run.

He was taken to St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor.

Chelsea firemen responded to a call to the scene at 4:35 a.m. and found the side of the truck had been blown out.

The accident occurred just outside of Hoelzer's Wilkinson street warehouse.

Anti-Rabies Vaccination Clinic Set

For the convenience of dog owners in this area the annual anti-rabies vaccination clinic is being held in Sylvan Town Hall from 7 until 9 o'clock this evening (Thursday). Dr. P. E. Sharrard and Dr. W. C. Lane, are the Chelsea veterinarians who will be in charge. The regulation charge for the inoculation at the clinic is $1.50.

Every dog must be vaccinated for rabies before a dog license is issued by the township treasurer and dog licenses must be purchased on or before March 1. The clinics are a convenience for dog owners in complying with the regulations. They are sponsored by the Washtenaw County Board of Health and the Veterinarian Medical Association.

Township treasurers customarily are present at the clinics to sell dog licenses. License fees are $2.00 for male and unsexed dogs and $5.00 for females. After March 1 the prices are $5.00 and $8.00 respectively.

Dr. Lane and Dr. Sharrard conducted a rabies vaccination clinic at Dexter on Jan. 16, with headquarters in the Dexter Fire Department hall. A total of 326 dogs were vaccinated.

Thursday evening, Jan. 21, Dr. Sharrard was at Lyndon Town Hall to conduct a clinic and vaccinated 36 dogs.

Dog owners of neighboring townships whose dogs have not yet been vaccinated may bring them to the clinic in Sylvan Town Hall this evening and then go to their own township treasurer before March 1 to purchase their dog licenses.

Sylvan Township Treasurer Leatha Beach and Lima Township Treasurer Hilda Pierce will be at the clinic to issue dog licenses.

Senate Inquiry into Drug Prices Brings Some Strange Suggestions

The Senate's subcommittee's drug industry investigation, which will probably last several months, is just now getting underway but already some of the parade of witnesses have made suggestions with such serious implications as to deserve comment.

One is the proposal that any manufacturer whose research turns up something new be required to make it available immediately to his competitors so they, not having the expense of research and development, can sell it more cheaply. Nothing could be more stultifying to progress or contrary to the American ideal of incentive and reward for the inventor and risk taker.

Another is the suggestion that advertising of drugs, even to physicians, be reduced or eliminated. While any publication may have a little self interest here, it seems to us that anybody with something new that will cure ills and save lives not only has a right but a duty to make it known.

It may be that, as E. B. Weiss, an advertising man, suggested to the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, the industry needs more, not less, advertising, and advertising not only to the medical profession but also to the public which pays the bills.

Work Rule Clarification Must Be Accomplished Soon by Someone

Horse-and-buggy work rules, popularly characterized as "featherbedding," loomed as major issues in the dock strike of 1959 and in the record-breaking steel strike that was ended ingloriously under political auspices on the first Monday of the new year. But in each case, when the smoke cleared away, there was no work rule clarification to be found. In both instances this bitter controversy was swept under the conference room rug—in the steel hassle, for the future consideration of a committee whose recommendations will be binding on no one.

But the featherbedding issue must be faced and it seems inevitable that the railroads must do it . . . or else. The railroads are in a class by themselves, with company earnings at half the rate of our other regulated industries and one third that of general manufacturing. Of all industries, the railroads can best prove the injury that featherbedding inflicts not only on the public, on investors, on the industry, but most especially on railroad workers.

These antiquated work rules that require payment for work that isn't done or for work that isn't needed have admittedly been a bonanza to a relatively few railroad workers, but at the expense of 500,000 others who have lost their jobs in the last ten years. And these unfortunate men, who are probably the most dedicated and admired of all workers, will be joined by thousands more unemployed unless these rules are changed.

It may be too much to ask that the rail union bosses give a thought to the welfare and security of their dues-paying members, since the railroads have been vainly asking the unions since last winter for their collaboration in solving this problem of mutual concern. The labor chiefs have likewise rejected all suggestions for impartial outside study of the facts. Thus, it's time now for them to take a good look at the handwriting on the wall.

Let them consider where they and the workers they are supposed to serve would get off if and when their obstructionism pushes the railroads into bankruptcy. And let them consider, too, that at this late hour, we need but a single labor statesman to lead the way to recovery of the railroads and to more railroad jobs than ever before under the soul-satisfying pledge of a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

The Axe is poised again over more than half of Michigan's school districts which offer incomplete education programs. Whether the blow is dealt depends on the Legislature.

About 1,500 of the state's 2,200 school districts cannot offer a full "K-12"—kindergarten through 12th grade—program.
 The K-12 bill that would have forced consolidation of these districts passed the House last year but died in the Senate. Another bill is expected to be tried—but not before there is legislation to clarify tax millage disputes that would develop out of forced consolidation.

Bigger bills will be presented to taxpayers for education.
 Even if there is no change in the state school aid formula and there probably won't be—the bill for public schools will go up about $14 million. This much will be needed to pay out in full the amount that will be committed to schools under the present formula.

State assistance for school building construction has been proposed by Lynn M. Bartlett, superintendent of public instruction. He said state would distribute between $5 million and $25 million to local school districts on a per capita basis.
 Bartlett says Michigan needs at least 9,000 new classrooms.

Community Colleges appear to have an increasingly brighter future in Michigan. Bartlett sees a 10 per cent increase in enrollment next fall. Currently, there are 17,000 students enrolled in the state's 16 community colleges.
 Although they had slices of state aid, community colleges have grown primarily through community effort. They have had little, if any, direction from Lansing. Bartlett says it now is about time for Michigan to have a Community College Development Commission to serve in an advisory capacity.

 Bartlett says Michigan also should be giving serious consideration to the extension of free public education beyond the 12th grade. This would be a bold and controversial step.

The decade ahead offers major challenges in education.
 But urgency of school problems is sometimes hard to market among those who don't have school-age children—or have forgotten when they did.
 The Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers and the Michigan Association of School Boards are trying to stimulate interest in school issues at a series of 13 regional conferences.
 All taxpayers will find them worthwhile.

A stab in the back. That's what township officials are trying to avoid these days.
 They were told by their executive director, Joseph Parisi, to beware of "do-gooders and reformers" who want to streamline government "under the guise of efficiency, economy and so forth."
 The Michigan Townships Association adopted a series of resolutions aimed at preserving the status quo in the structure of local government.

An underdog complex has developed among township officials in the inter-government struggles.
 Parisi called for help from the Governor and Legislature "to assist us in gaining first class citizenship for the residents of our townships."
 "We in the townships are ready to discuss or negotiate with other units of government, any time they are ready to treat us as co-equal citizens," Parisi said.

 The townships appear ready for their struggle for survival in one of the nation's fastest-growing states.

Red tape would be slashed by a legislative proposal designed, among other things, to reduce the cost of going to court.

A committee of lawyers, judges, educators and court officers had the legislation drafted after more than three years of study.
 The bill, authored by Rep. Thomas Whinery (R-Grand Rapids), was one of the first introduced in the 1960 Legislature. It was hardly noticed in the opening-day flurry at the Capitol, yet could develop into one of the major issues before lawmakers this year.

Courts, like hospitals, are expensive places to be.
 The Whinery bill would help cut the cost by providing for a single form of civil action. This would help eliminate the need for several different court suits arising from the same cause.

Unnecessary paperwork would be eliminated, procedures for starting court action would be reduced.
 It appears the scales of justice need oiling.

Will Constitutional Convention Help Michigan?

All over Michigan, the critics of Michigan's Constitution have organized to rip the historic document asunder. They have joined in a chorus which, if I hear correctly, goes something like this: "Oh! Blow on the trumpets! And beat on the drums; Smash on the drums, crash on the drums."

"For today is the day the garbage man comes.
 "To carry the garbage away!"
 But is the Constitution really a pile of odorous garbage? Every voter must pause and probe for an answer before going to the polls next November to pass on the apportionment proposition to be submitted as the first step toward a constitutional convention.

As pointed out previously in this column, the constitution of 1893 was a noble document when it was adopted by the people. The flaws that have developed in the last half century were subsequently written into the document by 63 amendments.

In these five decades of Michigan's industrial growth, the people rejected 55 amendments, or almost as many as they approved. So they did not act blindly, as critics now contend, when they made the changes now labeled "patchwork."

Perhaps a lot of good would come out of a constitutional convention. Everyone recognizes defects. The trouble is that sections regarded as flaws by one group are guarded by others as necessary guarantees of justice and equity. So there is deception in the present well-planned campaign to convince the people that Michigan's ills will vanish practically overnight once a new constitution is adopted.

The document cannot be rewritten to prevent higher taxation to meet the constantly-mounting cost of government, particularly the cost of operating the school system.

It cannot be rewritten to bring back from Ohio and Indiana the automobile plants, and feeder industries, which have fled from Michigan.

It cannot be rewritten to cure the anti-business attitude of the state government under Democratic control.

So what are the aims of the leaders in this drive for a constitutional convention? Ask any of them, and the answer always is a vague comment that the document was designed for a "horse-and-buggy era" inasmuch as the original framework was written in 1893.

A favorite criticism is that the constitution earmarks funds, thus tying the hands of the legislature. The critics fail to mention that these earmarked funds are the highway moneys, restricted for roads; the revenue from two-thirds of the three-cent sales tax, earmarked for schools, and the revenue from a half cent of the sales tax restricted for townships and cities.

Do the people want these restrictions removed and full control of these funds given to the legislature?

Another criticism is that the Civil Service amendment gives the Civil Service Commission the power to raise the pay of state employees when the cost of living warrants increases.

Do the people, recalling the "zipper" bills of the past, want the Civil Service guarantee rewritten? Democrats want the legislature reapportioned to give control of both branches to Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Would this change, designed by the UAW, be good for Michigan?

But the principal goal of the UAW is to eradicate the clause requiring that all taxation must be uniform. The union has been ranting about that section since the late Gov. Frank Murphy proposed a one-house legislature and a new constitution in 1937.

So there are arguments on both sides of this controversy, which will be a major issue of the 1960 election.

The people have judged carefully when asked in the past to tinker with their constitution. They will weigh both sides intelligently once again.

Governor Signs Petition Calling for 'Con-Con'

Lansing—The drive of the League of Women Voters and the Junior Chamber of Commerce to place a constitutional convention proposal on the November ballot offers the best prospect of getting action toward a new Constitution for Michigan.

At the request of the League and the JC's, I was happy to be the first signer of this petition.

The League made a similar request to Paul Bagwell, titular head of the Republican Party, but he declined to be a signer, at least until the matter had been discussed by the Republican State Central Committee. I hope by the time you read this the Republicans will have decided to fall in behind this move.

The League-JC plan is a compromise designed to break the deadlock over representation in the "con-con"—a deadlock which has blocked the calling of a convention for several years.

The present constitution says that any future constitutional convention will consist of three delegates from each senatorial district.

The Senate, as we all know, is unrepresentative of the people, and a "con-con" on this basis would mean that delegates representing a minority of the citizens would have a majority voice in writing the new Constitution.

Republicans have been urging a constitutional convention on this basis, while Democrats have been insisting that the "con-con" be based upon seats in the House of Representatives, which more nearly represents the people.

This difference has resulted in the defeat of every recent effort to get a constitutional convention.

The League of Women Voters and the Junior Chamber of Commerce worked out a compromise. Their plan would call for one delegate for each Senate seat and one from each House seat. This would not result in a perfect reflection of Michigan's population, but it would be much more equitable than a "con-con" based on the Senate alone.

If the election of delegates followed the pattern of the last legislative elections, the Republicans would have 77 seats and the Democrats 67.

It's hard to see why Republican leaders wouldn't grab this compromise if they really want a constitutional convention.

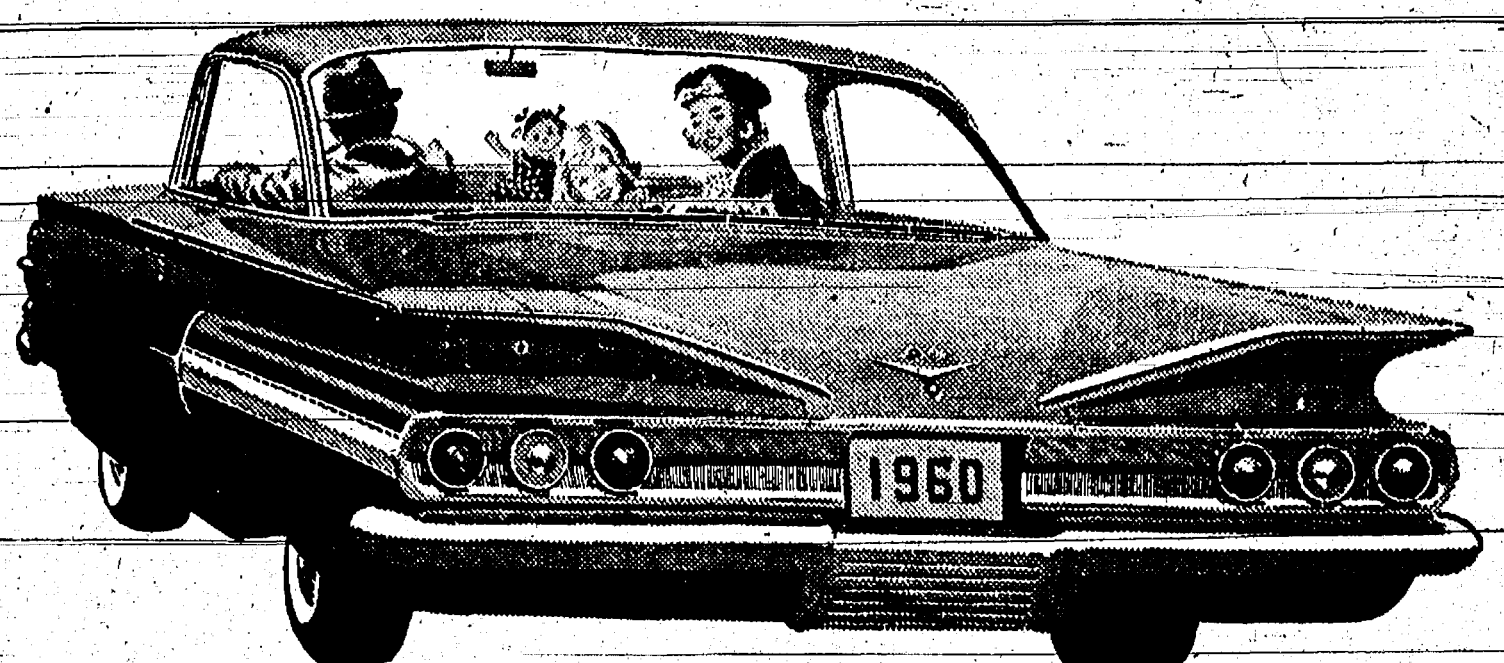

Actually, it should not be necessary for the League and the JC's to go to the tremendous effort and expense of getting 300,000 signatures for this plan to get it before the people in November.

The legislature, by a two-thirds vote, can put the proposal on the ballot. I intend to do all I can to persuade the legislature to do this, and save everybody a lot of time and money.

Bagwell blames the League of Women Voters for his embarrassment when he declined to sign the petition. Referring to the League in slighting terms as "the girls," he called the petition "rigged" and implied that they should have waited until they got the approval of the GOP State Central Committee.

This is entirely unfair to the League and the JC. This compromise has been under discussion for at least a year. Everybody knew they were going to move with it soon. The League called my office on Jan. 18 and asked me to be the first signer. They said the same request was being made to Bagwell. I agreed immediately, and I was surprised in view of all his speeches on the subject—when he declined. I hope he will change his mind and join this effort, and do what he can to persuade Republican legislators to act favorably on it.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR

It looks like everybody in this country that isn't running for some office is busy conducting a poll of them that is running. Between the candidates and the poll experts, business has about come to a stop.

Over in England they say a fellow "stands" for office. In this country he "runs" for it. A candidate "standing" for office in this country would get squeezed to death in the rush. I reckon you might say the difference between politics in England and the United States is that they handle their standing and we handle ours running.

Different countries have different systems. I recollect reading a few years ago where the voters a town down in Brazil was so disgusted with the local situation that they elected a goat named Smelly to the town board with a write-in vote. While we don't go in much for goats in this country, we have elected a few jackasses to office from time to time.

In all these political polls, I see where a certain per cent is listed for or agin certain candidates and a certain per cent "has no opinion." I'm awful curious to meet one of them fellows that ain't got no opinion on somepin. I ain't never met nobody in my life that didn't have an opinion on about everything under the sun. And most of them was anxious to express it. I got a hunch, Mister Editor, that this campaign for President is going to be rough. Already the Democrats is speaking of "Richard Milhouse Nixon." Regardless of how a fellow feels about politics, I think it's carrying it a bit far when you expose a candidate's middle name. For instant, Ed Doolittle's middle name is Cornwalls and he'd shoot his brother for divulging the fact. Ed says Cornwalls wouldn't be just as good and a darned sight easier to spell. There's a heap of folks that don't like their middle name exposed in public and some of 'em, like Woodrow Wilson, gets rid of it by law. And they'll vote for Nixon on account of the Democrats taking advantage of his middle name. Ed Doolittle, for instant, is a stomp-down Democrat but he'll vote for Nixon as sure as shooting on account of that "Milhouse" trick.

But actually, Mister Editor, there ain't much difference between political campaigns now and back when I was a boy just after the turn of the century. I can't see but two small changes. In them days we didn't have no "polls" to give us the results afore the vote was counted. And in them days all the candidates dragged about being a pore boy that started life off in a log cabin. Now they brag about being a pore boy that started life off as a pedestrian.

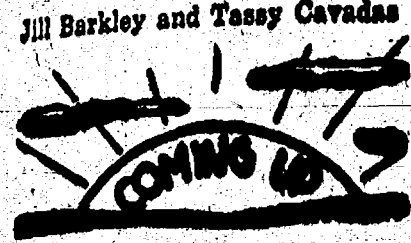

Yours truly, Uncle Lew.

Mrs. Wanetta Finch, the teacher, is training not only the players, but student referees, student timers, and all girls not actively playing act as scorekeepers.

Referees for FFA teams will be chosen by Mrs. Finch from the girls in gym class.

Boys' physical education classes started instruction in wrestling.

Members met at Sylvan Lanes, to and have work-outs each Wednesday. Much attention and interest, as well as effort, have been devoted to work on the trampolines. It has been hoped that several of the boys would be able to demonstrate on the trampoline during high times at the basketball games. Competition and practice are still going on.

The Chelsea chapter of Future Farmers of America will sponsor the district FFA contest on Feb. 10, at 4 p.m. The contest will include parliamentary procedure, farm forum, and public speaking. Participating schools will be Milan, Saline, Dexter, Manchester, Clinton, Tecumseh, and Chelsea.

Mr. John McGill is holding evening classes for his geometry students, for further, deeper, or review study as seems needed. The final class was held just before exams. Next semester Mr. McGill hopes for wider participation in the meetings.

The Girls' Athletic Organization enjoyed an afternoon of bowling on Jan. 19, when 35 interested members met at Sylvan Lanes, to bowling under the direction of Mrs. Wanetta Finch from 4:15 to 6:30. It was reported that the girls had a wonderful time. Anyway, a lot of announcements about "teams" and "leagues" have been flying about the loudspeaker lately.

Sophomore English classes have heard records of "Julius Caesar." The other Sophomore English class has been reviewing Silas Marner with Mrs. Gwen LaGoe.

The Student Council's activities for the week were very few; they approved a party plan for the Journalism club for March 11 and voted to reduce the rent on the pop-corn machine from $3 to $2 per evening.

Eighth grade basketball team defeated U. High by a score of 20 to 12. High scorers for Chelsea were Jeff Flintoft and Curtis Farley. They each had six points.

Mr. Sanborn hasn't told the chorus (Junior high), anything about when their next chorus concert would be coming up, but the youngsters think they are working hard.

From my front porch...

"I watch the world go by."

On swanky Park Avenue in mid-Manhattan there's a famous church. Visitors go there to see its interior beauty; fashionable New Yorkers go to Sunday morning services.

The nave and vault sparkle in gold mosaic; the altar and crucifix are gleaming gold. The ushers wear frock coats, striped pants; gray gloves, white carnations. The ladies of the congregation are loaded with mink.

Often when I find myself in New York of a Sunday I go there, principally to hear the scarlet-robed choir and witness the stately procession.

Always, as I approach the church, I am met by shabbily dressed, slims-seeking members of the human race. Maybe they're really as needy—or hungrier—or broke, as they whisper, maybe they're not. I don't know, and I don't care. I carry a supply of loose change to give them, as unostentatiously as possible.

I have yet to see one of the Homberg or derby hatted gentlemen of the parish stop to give them anything but a frigid look.

More often, the sanctimonious swells just choose to ignore their lowly existence.

As I go in and sit in the mahogany pews, I can't help but think of the Man of Nazareth for whom the church was named; the meek, the humble One who said "Even as ye do to the least of these, ye do unto Me..."

And I get to wondering what He would do should He return to us some Sunday in the human form once more. Would He go inside that sparkling edifice supposed to be His—or would He stay out there on the sidewalk?

Slate Youth Programs at Farm Week

A half-dozen special programs for youth have been arranged for Farmers' Week at Michigan State University, Feb. 1-5.

All are scheduled on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Regardless of which of the three days a youth attends, he will be able to take part in four of the programs, according to Farmers' Week officials.

The four programs that will be repeated on the three days cover college and careers in agriculture, getting acquainted with agricultural television, meeting the military service obligation and behind the scenes in a museum.

On Tuesday morning only, youth visitors can hear about opportunities in agriculture for farm youth. Part of this program will point out the opportunities in agriculture as well as farm operation.

A youth farmer will report what he thinks about farming today.

On Thursday morning only, a special program has been arranged for girls. This session deals with "city," with a talk by a noted women sociologist who has successfully combined marriage, a career and a family.

Farmers' Week officials point out that the time was when agriculture meant farming and ranching, and little else. But today it means not only farming and ranching but opportunities in science, business, sales, industry, conservation, communication, education, etc. Farmers' Week Youth programs will stress these many opportunities.

Justice Rogers Describes Duties For Kiwanis Club

William Rich, installed as president of the Kiwanis club of Chelsea at the Jan. 18 meeting, presided at Monday's club meeting in the social center of the Methodist church.

A guest at Monday's meeting was Floyd Fowler.

Chandler Rogers was the evening's speaker. He told of his work as Sylvan township justice of the peace, going into detail about the duties of the office and also relating some of the interesting experiences encountered in the course of those duties.

Kiwanians who heard his talk appeared to be convinced that he was doing an excellent job.

William Rich and his staff of officers were installed at the Jan. 18 meeting by Clarence Manselmann of Dexter, lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis Division VI.

Guests at the installation in the social center of the Methodist church were Lyle E. Hackett of Mt. Clemens, and John A. McComb, Charles Ramsdell, Dan Probert, Roy Stark, D. T. Ramsey, Marden St. John and Ted Wood, of Jackson Eastern Kiwanis club.

Southeastern Michigan Sanitation Council Formed To Study Sewage Needs of Area

Washtenaw county is included in an extensive survey of overall needs of six southeastern Michigan counties for drainage and sewer facilities, according to an announcement made in Detroit Tuesday by Louis Miriani, mayor of Detroit.

At the same time Mayor Miriani announced the formation of the Sanitation Council of Southeastern Michigan. It will be headed by John R. Wilt, senior vice-president of the Manufacturer National Bank, Detroit.

Representatives of Washtenaw, the other five counties, the city of Detroit and several semi-public agencies will comprise the council.

The sewage study will be similar to one which the National Sanitation Foundation conducted some time ago on water needs. That study indicated that Washtenaw county would need to obtain water supplies from the Detroit and Wayne county system by 1980.

Speaking of the survey to be made, Wilt said an area consideration of sewage needs is the only answer to the problem in the six counties involved since drainage basins cut across cities, townships and counties on a geographical basis. He said the problem cannot be handled on the basis of artificial boundaries of governmental units because such "piecemeal" consideration would only result in one community dumping its sewage and run-off in their neighbors' yards.

According to Wilt's announced plans for the survey, a technical committee to oversee the actual survey is being formed and will include representatives of county, city, township and other agencies concerned with sewerage and drainage.

Dr. Henry S. Vaughan, president of the National Sanitation Foundation, which has its headquarters in Ann Arbor, took the leadership in organizing the sewage and drainage survey after the Supervisors' Inter-County Committee requested the action. Dr. Vaughan and other members of the foundation staff are expected to take important parts in conducting and evaluating the survey.

US-12 X-Way Bid Letting Set Feb. 17

According to an announcement by the Michigan State Highway Department, low bidders will be determined at Lansing, Feb. 17 on 20 highway contracts in the state including two contracts calling for 4.9 miles of expressway and seven structures in the Chelsea area.

The 4.9 miles of expressway and six of the structures are included in one contract, while the seventh structure, a single bridge to carry the eastbound expressway over the New York Central railroad tracks three miles west of Chelsea, will be the project in the second contract.

The bridge over the railroad track will be 153 feet long and will carry a 42-foot roadway. Completion date is set for Nov. 30 of this year.

The first contract will include the 4.9 miles of US-12 expressway and six structures from near Fletcher road, just east of Chelsea, to Parker road. Completion date on this contract is June 30, 1961 with provisions that the expressway will be ready for traffic Nov. 30, 1960.

Structures on this section are: A grade separation to carry existing US-12 over the expressway three miles southeast of Chelsea. It will be 235 feet long and will carry a 24-foot roadway.

A dual bridge to carry the expressway over Mill Creek 3.5 miles southeast of Chelsea. It will be 44 feet long and will carry two 42-foot roadways.

A bridge, north of the expressway, to carry a service road over Mill Creek. It will be 44 feet long and will carry a 24-foot roadway.

A dual structure to carry the expressway over Dancer road. Both will be 112 feet long and each will carry a 42-foot roadway.

A dual bridge to carry the expressway over Mill Creek about 6.5 miles southeast of Chelsea. Each will be 60 feet long and each will carry a 42-foot roadway.

A grade separation to carry Parker road over the expressway. It will be 250 feet long and will carry a 26-foot roadway.

chosen as the candidate to receive a $100 U. S. Government bond and later, from DAR winners of the 50 states of the Union will be selected the girl who is to receive a new award being presented this year, to be known as the "National Chairman's Gift to the National DAR Good Citizen."

The "yardstick" by which the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution judges good citizenship is four-fold as follows: (1) Dependability which includes truthfulness, loyalty and punctuality.

(2) Service, including co-operation, courtesy and consideration of others.

(3) Leadership, including personality, self control and ability to assume responsibility.

(4) Patriotism with unselfish loyalty to American ideals.

THANK YOU

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to all my friends and neighbors for all the get-well cards I received; also for the beautiful Christmas flowers that were sent to me at the hospital and for all the visits, telephone calls, cards and letters I received from the mothers of children of the Chelsea Co-Operative Nursery and from the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce. These kindnesses are very much appreciated.

Joseph Protz

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the many thoughtful kindnesses extended by friends, neighbors and relatives during the illness and following the death of our loved one; also for the sympathy expressed by means of flowers, gifts and cards. Our grateful thanks to everyone who remembered us in any way.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank my relatives and friends for the many acts of kindness shown me while I was in the hospital and since my return home.

Donald Hinderer.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank Rockwell-Standard Corp. of Chelsea, the Women's Fellowship of the Congregational church, the Chat 'n' Sea and all my kind friends and neighbors for cards, plants and dainties sent me during my recent illness.

Mrs. Elton Musbach.

Post-Prom Parties Discussed by PTA

Partisan but not acrimonious discussion filled the cafeteria at Chelsea High school when the PTA met there Jan. 20 to discuss post-prom activities for high school seniors and juniors. About 20 students, the usual number of teachers and a small number of parents were in attendance.

Senior class president David Rowe pointed out that proms are highlights in a high school career, coming but twice in a lifetime; that at the time students wish to drive the traffic load is at its lightest; that senior boys are licensed and experienced drivers; that the whole affair must be based on trust—trust which is given by the parents and appreciated by the youngsters. He further pointed out that "consideration for his date" would prevent any boy from becoming reckless; and that tradition is something to be upheld.

Junior class president Daniel Mayer declared that traffic at a distance is no different from traffic at hand, therefore objections to discussing the somewhat pointless; that his class plans to have some post-prom parties, and predicted that all but 10 per cent of the class would be in attendance at those. He further stated that the 10 per cent who failed to attend the parties are probably the 10 per cent whose parents fail to supervise them properly anyway.

Wallace Wood, parent and local citizen, declared that parents trust their children, but still are apprehensive about what may happen to them. He said that seniors, if they are home, therefore objections to discussing the somewhat pointless; that his class plans to have some post-prom parties, and predicted that all but 10 per cent of the class would be in attendance at those. He further stated that the 10 per cent who failed to attend the parties are probably the 10 per cent whose parents fail to supervise them properly anyway.

though they feel grown up, are still children, and parents are legally, financially and morally responsible for them. Wood suggested that a questionnaire be circulated to find out just what are the standards and rules that parents would like to see adopted.

George Frisinger suggested that a committee be formed of parents, students, and teachers to consider possible plans—such as the Greyhound "mystery trips" or the Aquarama "dine and dance" round trip to Cleveland.

Charles Cameron pointed out that post-prom drivers are 17 or 18 years of age, the age when some young men "have a gun thrust into their hands." He said that past education and parental influence should guarantee consideration and safe behavior by our group of young people, whose participation in that particular meeting should increase everyone's respect for and trust in them.

Discussion was general, and pointed toward the welfare and safety of the younger group rather than to curtailment of fun.

90% of Blood Given at Clinic Is Available

Mrs. Dudley Holmes, Chelsea Community Blood Bank chairman, in reply to a query about a 10 per cent deduction of credit available to clubs that hold blood clinics, received the following letter from W. de St. Aubin, executive director of the Washtenaw County Chapter, American Red Cross.

"This is in reply to your letter of January 12th, 1960, in which you inquired what happens to the 10 per cent of the blood credits which are not available to the clubs that hold blood clinics.

"As you know, the Regional Center attempts to balance exactly the income of blood from all of the blood clinics in the Regional Center and the requests of the hospitals. Whole blood can only be used for 21 days after which it is necessary for the Regional Center to send it to the State Department of Health where it is turned into by-products and returned for free distribution to hospitals. At the end of any given day blood which is more than 20 days old must be withdrawn and used for this purpose.

"As you can well imagine, it is extremely difficult to estimate many months in advance what the demand will be from the hospitals for members of our groups and obtain this exact amount from our various blood clinics.

"Through our very careful planning, they have kept the outdated blood to approximately 10 per cent. Therefore, it is necessary to advise each blood club the 10 per cent of the collections will not be available for replacement as whole blood.

"I hope this is clear to you. We feel that the Regional Center has done a very good job of holding this percentage down which permits us to make such a good distribution of whole blood replacement."

Some of the by-products of blood and blood derivatives available at the Detroit Regional Blood Center are listed as follows: packed red cells; fresh frozen plasma; fibrinogen; normal serum albumin and antihemophilic globulin, dried and frozen.

Mrs. Holmes again pointed out that all people who live or work in Chelsea and all in their immediate families are entitled to six pints of blood per year if needed. Mrs. Holmes should be contacted if blood from the Chelsea Community Blood Bank is needed.

Almost all leather gloves made in the United States are washable and, if washed frequently, give better wear.

230 Attend Chelsea ABA Annual Meet

The 13th annual meeting of the Chelsea Artificial Breeders Association was held Thursday, Jan. 21, at Dexter High school.

The fried chicken dinner was served to approximately 236 members and friends.

Mrs. Leo Hoyer, chairman of the dinner, was assisted by senior class members and mothers class advisers, Mr. and Mrs. William Dunavin, Hubert Beers and Mrs. Boutain.

The program included a pantomime by Miss Carol Brauh of Northfield Church Rd. and vocal numbers by the Serenaders quartet of Ann Arbor.

Speaker for the evening was Aaron Harrison, State Board of Directors, who gave a short talk on state-wide happenings during the past year.

County Agent Don Johnson showed a film on "Inheritance."

Walter Wolfgang of Chelsea was re-elected to the Board of Directors and Walter Loeffler was elected to the Board replacing Wayne Harvey.

Other members of the board include Raymond Schairer, Harold Gross, Ronald Spiegelberg, Harold Sias and Wesley Amadill. Clifford Bradbury is inseminator-manager.

Bottle Gas Tank Stolen from Cottage At Farband Camp

A rash of robberies in the county over the week-end included one in this area, presumably Sunday night.

A 100-pound tank of bottle gas was stolen from a summer cottage at the Farband Camp near Waterloo road in Lyndon township sheriff's men reported. Officers said the heavy tank apparently was loaded on a sled and pulled almost a mile over hills to Waterloo road where it was placed in a car. The tank was removed from a cottage owned by John Bailey of Detroit.

EXPENSIVE—Officials of one New England state recently estimated that 1,884 Progressive Party votes cast in the last election cost the party $5 each.

Some of the by-products of blood and blood derivatives available at the Detroit Regional Blood Center are listed as follows: packed red cells; fresh frozen plasma; fibrinogen; normal serum albumin and antihemophilic globulin, dried and frozen.

Mrs. Holmes again pointed out that all people who live or work in Chelsea and all in their immediate families are entitled to six pints of blood per year if needed. Mrs. Holmes should be contacted if blood from the Chelsea Community Blood Bank is needed.

Save Time, Effort By Using Short Form For Income Tax

The Internal Revenue Service announced today that each year more and more taxpayers are saving time and effort by using the "short form" 1040-A Income Tax return.

Taxpayers can use the Form 1040-A if their wages, subject to withholding, are less than $10,000. Up to $200.00 can be shown on the 1040-A if it was from interest, dividends, or wages not subject to withholding. However, if any combination of income adds up to $10,000.00 or more, taxpayers cannot use the Form 1040-A.

R. I. Nixon, District Director of Internal Revenue, urges all taxpayers to investigate the possibility of using this simplified return, Form 1040-A.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 82—Located at 8312 Werker road, the farm photo originally published in The Standard without identification Jan. 21.

Frank O'Connor Farm Proves Difficult for Many To Identify

Mystery Farm No. 82 proved to be a real "mystery" to a number of people who called The Standard office in the belief they recognized it but found they were wrong. Some placed the farm south of Chelsea and others thought it was west of Chelsea. It is the Frank O'Connor farm at 8312 Werker road.

O'Connor has owned the farm since 1956, he and his son, Norman, making their home there. Mrs. O'Connor had died in 1944. O'Connor is now retired and rents the land to neighboring farmers. The son, Norman, now married to the former Marlene Schneider, and their two children live a short distance down the road.

The 92-acre farm was formerly known for many years as the Wirker place, Werker road having been named after the family. It is believed the farm was settled by Peter Hindelang, ownership going next to his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Doll; then to their daughter, Mrs. Mary Doll Fimmel and, in 1906, to another daughter and her husband, Peter and Rose Doll Wirker, who were the parents of Mrs. Sylvester Weber, now living on Seco Church road.

Peter Wirker died in 1940 and Mrs. Wirker, in 1942, went to live with her daughter. She died in 1950.

Mrs. Margaret Hindelang who has made her home for many years in Mishawaka, Ind., was another daughter of the Henry Dolls. Her picture was in The Standard recently along with that of her nephew, Dr. Louis Doll of Bay City. The picture was taken when Dr. Doll presented her with a copy of his newly published book, "A History of Ann Arbor Newspapers."

Mrs. Hindelang was born on the farm. The Peter Wirkers built the present home during the time they owned the farm. The present owner has modernized the interior.

Those who correctly identified the O'Connor farm are Frank O'Connor, Arthur Paul, Shirley Schneider, Mrs. William Schaeles, Judy Woolley, Mrs. Carroll Clark, Mrs. Laura Fitzsimmons, George Kleis, Ronald Ferry and Mrs. Mary Clark.

★ Bulldogs Still Hoping

Chelsea will have a chance to make the Washtenaw Conference race a much better one if they can defeat Saline in this Friday's big battle on the Bulldog court.

Coach Bob Taylor has high hopes that a combination of hustle and of making some free throws for a change will do the trick. Manchester played a good game in winning, and the inability of the Bulldogs to hit from the charity line was one of the big things that caused their downfall. Saline, with a tall team, has been scoring higher each game since they won the holiday tournament at Chelsea. It's going to have to be either Chelsea or U. High who will knock them off, and it has to be during this round of games. The game should be a good one, and will be broadcast as our Game of the Week over WOVA.

Dexter had their troubles last week-end when they met a fast improving and very tough University High team at Ann Arbor. The Dreadnaughts never got started, and trailed 19 to 5 at the end of the first quarter. U. High is looking very tough, and they have some real depth too. According to our form chart, the next three weeks of conference play will tell the story.

A strong field of more than 450 entries from 28 universities, colleges, clubs and high schools will knock the lid off the 1960 indoor track season in the annual Michigan-AAU Relays at Yost Field House in Ann Arbor, Saturday.

The 24-event program, which includes competition in 15 individual events as well as nine relay events, will start at 1 p.m. with preliminaries in both track and field events. Finals in the broad jump and novice races will be run in the afternoon. The remainder of the program starts at 7:15 p.m.

Among top entries who will compete are George Rhoden, Olympic champion and record holder in the 400 meters; Ken Mory, Olympic place winner in the high jump; Hayes Jones, Eastern Michigan sprint and hurdles star; Willie Atterbury, Michigan State student and world record holder in the outdoor 600-yard run; Bob Lake, Michigan State student, who set the Big Ten outdoor mark of 4:08.5 here last spring; Bruce Kidd, 17-year-old Toronto Track Club distance star; John Telford, former NCAA and NAAU 440-yard king; Mark Smith, a former NCAA high jump king, both representing the Detroit Track Club, as well as a strong University of Michigan contingent.

Wolverines who will compete in individual events will include Tom Robinson, Bahamas 1958 Olympic dashman, who defeated Ira Murchison indoors last season; Lester Bird, Big Ten indoor broad jump king; Bennie McRae, sophomore sprint, hurdles and football star, in the hurdles; Dick Cephas, Big Ten runner-up in both the indoor and outdoor hurdles and John Gregg, in the sprints. Coach Con Canham will have a full complement of athletes in the field events and sprints with middle distance runners competing in the relay events.

Entered in special high school 880 and mile relays are teams from Ann Arbor High, Flint Northern, Lansing Eastern and Sexton; Ypsilanti, Farmington and Birmingham.

The baseball season is just around the corner.

In another month the advance guard of major-league teams will head to spring training sites in Florida and Arizona.

Meantime, front office officials are busy signing players for the 1960 season. The top player to come to terms this past week was seven-time National League batting champion Stan "The Man" Musial of St. Louis.

Stan slumped at the plate last season and he figured that a salary cut was in order. His latest pact called for about a 20-thousand-dollar slice on his estimated 100-thousand dollar earnings.

Early Wynn, the 40-year-old righthander, signed for a reported $45,000 with the Chicago White Sox. Wynn said that he hoped to continue pitching until he's 50.

There were a lot of other signings too and a number of contracts returned without a signature. One of them was from Yankee star Mickey Mantle, who said he didn't care for a salary cut of $11,000.

Shortstop Luis Aparicio returned his first contract and said he wanted $35,000 instead of $25,000. President Bill Veck of the Chicago White Sox explained to "Looney" that he was actually getting what he asked for because of taxes.

By week's end Looey and the Sox were still apart, but expected to settle differences soon.

Sluggish Ted Williams planned to talk contract with Boston Red Sox officials Monday.

Williams underwent a four-hour physical examination at a Boston clinic Saturday. Sox Trainer Jack Fadden reported that the 41-year-old outfielder in "batted condition" now than last September.

Williams has been bothered by a pinched nerve in his neck.

The world-of-sports harbors a million memories. Now, another great moment in sports, the 60-year-old last Friday that the American League was formed.

Through the years, the junior baseball circuit has had its share of colorful players and managers. One manager who appears to be nearing the end of his career is likeable Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees.

"Old Case" would like one more pennant with the Yankees to make it a record 10. Stengel has had many thrills with the Yankees and with the old Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Casey broke into baseball with Kankakee, Ill. The Dodgers called him up late in the 1910 season. The Dodgers played at Washington Park in Brooklyn. This was three years before Ebbets Field opened.

Most rookies get tryouts during spring training or in the early months of the season. But Stengel's case was different. He arrived on the Major League scene in the waning weeks of the campaign.

Casey got a cool reception when he showed up in Brooklyn. But that was to be expected—most rookies did. When Casey first walked into the Dodger clubhouse he found some of the players playing pool.

Stengel thought the best way to get acquainted would be to join the game. Besides he had $20 in his pocket and felt lucky.

Casey asked if he could play, but all he got was a blank stare. However, finally he was invited to sit in. On the first hand he lost his $20.

He was all set to dig into his pocket for change when he felt a hand on his shoulder. It was Bill Dahlen, manager.

Dahlen gave Casey an icy look and told him that he hoped he was a better ball player than card player. With that he ordered Casey to get dressed and onto the field while he still had car fare.

Before the game that day Casey snagged a few flies in the outfield. But as a rookie there was an unwritten law that kept him from taking batting practice like the others.

At game time Stengel was surprised to find that he was the starting center-fielder against the Pittsburgh Pirates. On the mound for the Pirates was Claude Hendrix, the top hurler in the league.

When Casey came to bat for the first time there was a teammate on first base. He was flashed the bunt signal, but after the first pitch was wild, Casey swung at the next one and lined a single to center.

Manager Dahlen grabbed Stengel between innings and wanted to know why he ignored the bunt signal. Casey answered that in the minors the sign was good for only the first pitch.

Dahlen screamed that Stengel was in the majors now and that he would do as he was told.

Stengel still was cocky as he took the field. He was warned by Zach Wheat to play deeper for Honus Wagner. The first time Wagner batted Casey pulled down a long fly.

The second time Casey still refused to play deep for Wagner and the slugger hit a triple over Stengel's head.

Stengel was great at the bat. The first four times up he hit safely. A southpaw was on the mound when Casey batted for the fifth time. Pirate Manager Fred Clark razzed Casey and dared him to bat righthanded. Casey did and drew a walk.

That's how one of baseball's all-time colorful figures broke into the game.

Club and Social Activities

DEBORAH CIRCLE

Deborah Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church entertained the Philathea Circle at a joint meeting held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. David Soule. Mrs. Charles Spencer was co-host.

Mrs. Maxwell Sweet was in charge of the program and chose as her topic, "Why Methodists Sing."

The program was concluded with some of the more familiar older hymns sung by the assembly. Mrs. Daniel Ewald presented the devotional service.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer, vice-president of the Woman's Club, presided at the regular meeting Tuesday evening. The meeting was held at the McKune Memorial Library with 18 members present.

In keeping with the theme of the year's program, "Freedom," Mrs. Nina Belle Wurster and Mrs. Louis Rapp presented reviews on the sub-topics, "Freedom—and the Future."

Mrs. Wurster related background history of the theatre, applied to Europe, and Mrs. Rapp concluded with a resume of the American theatre and its development through the years. Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. T. Moore and Mrs. Charles Masera.

MODERN MOTHERS

Modern Mothers Child Study Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Osterle, with 10 members present.

Principal business at the meeting was a discussion of the formation of committees for the Child Study Clubs area spring planning meeting to be held at Chelsea High school, April 30.

With Mrs. James Herman as co-hostess, refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

The next meeting is to be held Feb. 9 at the home of Mrs. Jack Musser.

SHARON HELPING HAND EXTENSION CLUB

Mrs. Mahlon Smith and Mrs. Tina Hawkins were co-hostesses for the Jan. 20 meeting of Sharon Helping Hand Extension Club. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Smith and began with a one o'clock dessert luncheon.

Mrs. Gottlieb Jacob, chairman of the group, presided at the business meeting when it was decided to hold a "white elephant" sale at the next meeting, scheduled for Feb. 17 at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Niehaus.

CHILD STUDY CLUB

At Tuesday's Child Study Club meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Charles Lancaster, the principal topic of business was a discussion of plans for the annual style show sponsored by the club.

The show is scheduled to be held at Chelsea High school Tuesday evening, March 29, with Mrs. P. G. Schaible, Jr., as general chairman.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 9 at the home of Mrs. J. R. Seitz. At that meeting Jack Williams will be the guest speaker, illustrating his talk on the advantages of camping with a number of slide pictures.

Husbands of members are invited to attend the meeting. Either of the two hostesses, Mrs. Michael Papo and Mrs. M. L. Diehl, should be contacted by Saturday, Feb. 7, by members whose husbands plan to attend.

Mrs. Jack Wellnitz and Mrs. P. G. Schaible, Jr., were co-hostesses for Tuesday's meeting at the home of Mrs. Lancaster.

MORNING PHILATHEA CIRCLE

Morning Philathea Circle members of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church had as their guests at their monthly meeting Jan. 20, the members of Deborah Circle.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Chandler Rogers who asked those present for requests of favorite hymns to be sung during the devotional period.

Mrs. Guy Hulce concluded the devotional service with a timely excerpt from a sermon by the Rev. N. V. Peale, "How to Begin the Year 1960 for Yourself."

Mrs. John Chaplin read the lesson from the year's study book, "Light upon the Mountains," which tells of the vast amount of missionary work being done in Africa.

The meeting was closed with one of the favorite hymns, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds our Hearts in Christian Love."

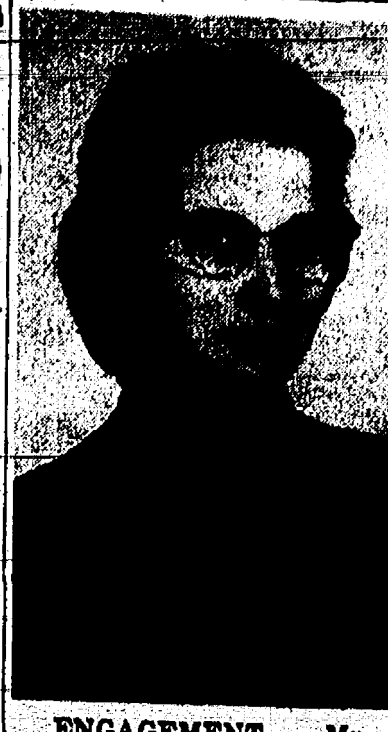

SYLVAN EXTENSION CLUB

Sylvan Extension Club, with 14 members present, met Thursday for an afternoon meeting at the home of Mrs. Eric Brady.

Following a dessert luncheon served by the hostess at 1:30 p.m., the day's lesson on the topic, "Facts, Fads and Frenzies about Food," was given by Mrs. Brady assisted by Mrs. William Brosamle.

Roll call was taken, each member present responding with a comment on the day's topic.

The next meeting of the club will be held Thursday, Feb. 18, at the home of Mrs. Leon Sanderson.

Women of Community Invited To Hear Former Methodist Home Matron Speak

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church is inviting the women of other churches in the community to attend a meeting in the church social center at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3, when Mrs. Beth Hollidge of Muskegon will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Hollidge will be remembered by many friends she made here during the time she served as matron at the Methodist Home.

Invited to be guests of the Methodist women at the meeting are women of St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church, the Congregational church, St. Barnabas Episcopal church and Salem Grove and North Lake Methodist churches.

Mrs. Hollidge's talk will be based on her experiences, during six months of travel in Africa a year ago.

The WSCS will hold a short business session at 7 p.m. in the new educational unit prior to the evening's guest night program in the church social center, scheduled for 8 p.m.

Afternoon Philathea Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church met Wednesday, Jan. 20, in the church social center. Thirty-one members and one guest were present for a dessert luncheon served at 1:30 p.m. by Mrs. Walter Hinderer, Mrs. Glenn Hayes, Mrs. Harry Prudden and Mrs. Byford Speer.

Mrs. George Stanford, chairman of the group, presided at the business session and Mrs. Frances Fellmy presented the devotional service.

Mrs. Fellmy's topic was "Paul, the Missionary." She related the hardships he endured and read Scripture passages from the 13th chapter of Corinthians, I, in which he stressed the verse "Faith, hope and love abide, these three, and the greatest of these is love."

Mrs. Guy Barton, as program chairman, introduced the Rev. S. D. Kinde who showed a missionary film pertaining to the work of the church in Africa and showing the many advantages being made possible because of the contributions of money sent to the missionaries stationed there.

The Cavanaugh Lake women and Mrs. Fitt were especially interested in the program at the hospital since they are now in their eighth week of a somewhat similar program they instituted at Whitehall Convalescent Home, Ann Arbor.

At the hospital they were shown treadle sewing machines, a loom and other equipment used to assist partially disabled persons in making various articles, including woodwork.

On Friday, Mrs. Fitt went to Lansing to attend a seminar meeting at a diversional therapy project sponsored by the Junior League of Lansing.

Members of the group organized here after deciding there was a need for volunteer work of this type, are constantly in touch with various groups interested in such work in an effort to learn how they may best serve the people with whom they are working at Whitehall.

Others interested in volunteering for the project begun here may contact Mrs. Joseph DeCoster or any of the women already affiliated with the program.

Volunteer Group Undertakes Project To Comfort Aged

Last Thursday, Mrs. Walter Schrader, Jr., and Mrs. J. B. Casey of Cavanaugh Lake, and Mrs. Frank Fitt of Ann Arbor, were guests of the University of Michigan Department of Gerontology at the Washnaw County Hospital where the department is carrying on a research project in diversional therapy.

DINNER PARTY HONORS RECENT BRIDAL COUPLES

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gracey entertained Saturday evening at a dinner party honoring their granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hafer, who were married the previous week at Daytona Beach, Fla.

The young couple will make their home at Truth or Consequences, N. Mex., where Mr. Hafer is a partner in a radio station.

Mrs. Hafer is the former Mildred Wigle.

BIRTHDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bauer entertained at a party Sunday afternoon in observance of the first birthday of their son, Steven Lee, which occurred Tuesday, Jan. 26.

Guests Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Proctor, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robbins and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Proctor, Jr., and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Proctor and family. Evening guests were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Proctor of Livonia and Mrs. Harvey Proctor of Manchester.

BUSY BEAVERS 4-H CLUB

A cold, tired, happy and hungry group of Busy Beavers and their families returned from the sledding party which was held Sunday afternoon at the Carl Schoonover home. This was planned the night before at the regular meeting which was held at the home of Bob Norm, and Ruth Hannewald. Games and pot-luck lunch was enjoyed afterwards.

Clare Armstrong met with his handicraft people after the meeting Saturday night. The next handicraft meeting will be Saturday morning Jan. 30. Sewing girls and their leaders will meet Tuesday, Jan. 26 after school at Mrs. Carl Schoonover's.

The club was saddened to learn that Linda and Janet Prentice's pony was lost in the fire which destroyed their barn recently.

THE NATIONAL OUTLOOK

★ Interest Rate Ceiling Gets Top Priority

Last summer President Eisenhower made three specific requests of the Congress. These were, first, raise the government debt limit; second, authorize the payment of a higher rate of interest on E and H savings bonds; and third, eliminate the 4 1/2 percent ceiling on U. S. obligations of five or more years maturity.

The requests were backed by top Administration spokesmen before the House Ways and Means Committee and it was assumed that there would be no particular trouble in the House and that the Senate ultimately also would agree.

What actually happened was that the debt limit was raised, and after much debate and delay the Treasury was authorized to increase interest payments on E and H savings bonds from 3 1/2 to a maximum of 4 1/2 percent. The rate has been raised to 3 1/2 percent, but nothing was done on the interest rate ceiling of 4 1/2 percent, and as expected the President has again requested action on this.

This current request was made in the form of a special message from the President to the Congress. This gives this problem top priority in the opinion of the Administration, and quite properly so.

We are now, and have been for many months, in a position where the U. S. Treasury cannot sell an obligation of five or more years' maturity. The reason for this is that most of the bonds of the government now outstanding of this maturity are selling in the market at prices which give a yield of more than 4 1/2 percent. All the Treasury financing therefore has to be done in the short-term market.

The volume of such financing is enormous and the short-term rates have been driven to over 5 percent. Since the passage of time makes more and more of the public debt short-term, this means the carrying charge is getting higher and higher.

It is not possible as yet to forecast what the reaction of the Congress will be this year. House Speaker Rayburn has indicated that he does not know whether he "can swallow whole what Mr. Eisenhower proposes" but adds that if he can get the kind of a bill that he wants he will support it. That probably pretty well typifies the attitude of Wilbur Mills, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and various of his Democratic committee members.

In the Senate the issue is even more confused. The Senate Finance Committee, under the chairmanship of Senator Byrd, may decide to have hearings on the proposal before the House takes action. If it does, and granting the committee agrees on a proposal, the suggestion could be attached to any other tax measure coming out of the Ways and Means Committee. But even this does not assure favorable Senate action.

Senate Majority Leader Johnson wants to make interest rates a major political issue this fall, and in view of this he must be expected to oppose the President's request.

This would appear to indicate that there will have to be some type of compromise. The one receiving most attention is to permit the Treasury to pay more than 4 1/2 percent only in the case of swapping new bonds of longer than five years maturity for other issues already outstanding. This would be better than nothing, but it is not even an approximate solution of the problem.

MICHIGAN OIL DECLINE HALTED—Yields from the relatively new Albion-Pulaski-Scipio pool area were instrumental in halting a 16-year oil production decline in Michigan during 1959. With this southern Michigan area producing approximately 30 percent of the state-wide total, oil output rose to an estimated 10,210,800 barrels, highest figure since 1956. Viewing the area's steady expansion and the increase in drilling interest there, Conservation Department geologists feel Michigan's oil production may near 12,500,000 barrels in 1960.

Southern Michigan Oil Wells Yield 30% of State's Total

Lansing—Southern Michigan is currently holding three "aces" to oil production in the state—Albion, Pulaski and Scipio fields of Calhoun, Jackson and Hillsdale counties.

The first two fields came into the "chips" in 1959. Together with Scipio and other fields in the state, they helped "trump" a 10-year oil production decline in Michigan.

With these three fields producing approximately 30 percent of the state-wide total, oil output rose to an estimated 10,210,800 barrels, highest figure since 1956.

The impact of these fields is aptly told by their progress during the year.

The Albion field rocketed to the No. 2 spot in monthly production during its first year. The monthly figure made its biggest jump after September, catapulting from 98,000 barrels to 84,000 by the end of November. The field's 24 wells yielded more than 250,000 barrels through Dec. 1.

The Pulaski field also made an impressive debut during 1959 as its 19 wells produced more than 168,000 barrels through this same period. Near the year's end its monthly production hit 46,000 barrels.

Scipio, Michigan's top producing field in monthly yields, continued to surge ahead, hiking its cumulative total to some 1,900,000 barrels. Thirty-two wells went into production there in 1959. Boosted by these additions and the previous 25 wells, monthly output zoomed by more than 400,000 barrels over the pace at the onset of the year. By December, more than 181,000 barrels were being produced monthly at Scipio.

State-wide, 211 wells joined the production parade in 1959 as completions approached the 1954 pace. More drilling permits were issued in 1959—approximately 700—than any year since 1953.

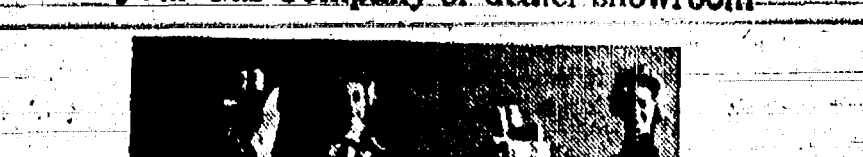

Much of this increase was due to a growing interest in the Albion-Pulaski-Scipio area which is steadily expanding. Viewing this trend, Conservation Department geologists feel Michigan's oil production may near 12,500,000 barrels in 1960.

Mrs. C. C. Lane Dies at Home Thursday After Long Illness

Mrs. C. C. Lane died at her home, 638 North Main street, early Thursday morning following a long illness. She was 73 years old.

She was the widow of Dr. Chandler C. Lane, veterinarian here for many years before his death Dec. 12, 1943, and the mother of Dr. Wilfred C. Lane, DVM, and Charles H. Lane, principal of Chelsea High school.

She was a member of the Congregational church and the Women's Fellowship of the church. The former Caroline Schurz, Mrs. Lane was born Feb. 14, 1886, in Erie, Pa., a daughter of Karl and Mathilda Streck Schurz. She came to this vicinity in 1913 and was married to Dr. Lane in Detroit on July 8, 1917.

Survivors, in addition to the two sons, are two grandchildren, Charles and Jennifer Lane; two sisters Mrs. Edward Hedderick (Bertha) and Mrs. Perry Stancliffe (Mathilda), both of Erie, Pa.; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Burghardt Funeral Home with the Rev. Philip Rueter officiating. Burial followed in Oak Grove cemetery.

Contributions in memory of Mrs. Lane are being made to the Congregational Church Memorial Fund.

Legion Post Sponsoring Safety Drive

The American Legion, Herbert McKune Post No. 31, of Chelsea, today joined some 500 Michigan American Legion Posts in launching a special state-wide safe-driving campaign.

The program, sponsored by Legion State Commander Lewis C. Bricker, is called "Operation Example."

According to Frank Rohr, local post commander, the campaign calls for more than 70,000 Michigan Legionnaires to set an example in street and highway driving that will be a model for all other motorists to follow.

Post Commander Rohr appointed Legionnaire Orvis Zimmerman chairman of the local safe-driving program.

Rohr said the local drive will stress "Three-O's" of Safe driving:

Obey all traffic laws. Observe all traffic carefully, especially pedestrians.

Oblige other motorists and pedestrians, yielding right-of-way, rather than risk injury to a person or property.

Commander Rohr, said he hoped newspapers, radio, TV stations, civic leaders, educators and other opinion leaders would help the Legion educate the public about the vital need for safe driving.

He said there were more than 150,000 automobile accidents in Michigan last year. More than 1,450 persons were killed in auto mishaps, he asserted. "That's a horrible toll of life and machine."

"Safety experts are already predicting a higher auto accident rate in Michigan for 1960," the Commander continued. "The only way we can turn the tide is to impress motorists with a need for safe driving habits."

The local Legion Post hopes that "Operation Example" will be a tool for cutting down the highway slaughter.
