Robert Daniels Wins Jaycee Distinguished Service Award

Named as Chelsea's outstanding young man of 1959 at the Jaycees annual Distinguished Service Award dinner at Schumann's restaurant Tuesday evening was Robert Daniels, co-manager with his brother, James, of the Chelsea Lumber Co.

Daniels was picked from a list of nominees submitted by 22 Chelsea area people. Several were duplicates, including the winner, who was nominated for the honor by the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea, A. D. Mayer, James Daniels and Roland Spaulding.

Among the reasons for his nomination given by those who nominated him are the following:

"I earnestly believe Bob is a good example of the kind of young man our community needs and that your organization, Chelsea Jaycees, is trying to recognize—very capable—thorough—considerate. Am well acquainted with Bob's works in spite of the quiet way in which he carries them out."

"He was born here, attended high school and college and has been in the service of our government."

"He is well qualified for the award."

"He takes a very active interest in all community affairs."

Under the classification of contribution to community welfare during the year 1959, it was mentioned that he was editor of the 125th Anniversary commemorative booklet published for Chelsea's 125th anniversary celebration last summer and was solely responsible for the anniversary book make-up, material collection and sale of advertising.

Also mentioned was the fact that he was committee chairman for the Kiwanis club of Chelsea Boy Scout Troop-76 for three years; although he, himself, does not have a son in the Boy Scouts.

As evidence of leadership ability, another requirement for the DS award, his success as a Boy Scout leader, his popularity with the boys, his service as a supply officer in the U. S. Navy with the rank of lieutenant, and membership in the active Naval Reserves were listed.

Qualifying evidence of personal or business progress mentioned his co-management of Chelsea Lumber Co.; his graduation from the University of Michigan School of Business Administration with a BA degree; membership at the Methodist church; and his having done all the finish carpentry in his home.

Donald Bacon, chairman of the board of Central Fibre Products, Inc., who was the guest speaker at the DS award dinner, congratulated the Jaycees organization for its community service and for its recognition of young men who make outstanding contributions of time and effort which benefit the community and its people.

Bacon said he had heard that the Jaycees have mentioned plans for providing additional improvements at Pierce Park. He recommended securing the services of an architect or planner experienced in park development to make a long-range forecast of recreational needs here. In this way, Bacon pointed out, it would be an easy matter for individuals or organizations planning a contribution to decide on a project to fit in with the over-all plan.

The Jaycees committee in charge of the Distinguished Service Award project was headed by Daniel Maroney as chairman. Others on the three-man committee were Richard O'Hara and Charles Gelman.

For the past month the committee has canvassed churches, clubs, organizations, business and industry to determine which young man, 21 through 35 years old, had contributed the most to the community during the year.

Last year's winner of the award was Charles Lane, Chelsea High school principal.

March of Dimes Total Hits $1,440

Chelsea's January March of Dimes campaign total as listed to date by Mrs. John Keusch, campaign chairman, indicates that the amount collected is approximately $1,440 more than was collected here during the 1959 campaign.

With additional mailers still expected to come in, as well as some belated contributions from organizations and individuals, the Chelsea campaign fund now totals $1,440.07.

The various categories of donations are listed as follows: Mothers' March, $742.34; peanut sale, $197.12; mailers (incomplete), $197.00; canisters, $88.21; bowling, $82.00; St. Mary school, $10; Junior High school, $10.80; Chelsea High school, $5.60.

Mrs. Keusch said she was "very pleased" with the results of the campaign and commended all who worked as well as all who contributed money.

The "dime boards" listed include one which was located at Frank's Bar on Old US-12 and one in The Pub. The latter accounted for a total of $37.40 while Frank's Bar donations (which included dollar bills as well as dimes) amounted to $71.80.

Boy Scouts of Troops 76 and 25 participated in the peanut sale project, working on Saturday, Jan. 23, and Friday evening, Jan. 26. The peanut sale total of $197.12 was approximately $44 higher than last year.

Mrs. William Adams was peanut sale chairman.

Bowlers at Sylvan Alleys contributed $82 toward the total raised here.

Mothers' March County Total May Hit $25,000

Thursday's Mothers' March totals for the entire county are expected to reach the $25,000 mark, according to incomplete reports available yesterday.

The amount includes the $742.34 collected in Chelsea; $76.88 in Sylvan township; $253.11 (incomplete) in Lima township; and $65 (incomplete) in Lyndon township.

Rubbish Pick-up Starts Next Week

On Feb. 2 a new garbage and rubbish contract was entered into with William Terns whereby all garbage and all rubbish within the village will be taken care of by him. This will end the necessity of the village maintaining a dump, which has been both costly and controversial.

Therefore, residents who have unusual rubbish, bed springs, refrigerators, hot-water tanks, etc., may call Terns at GR 5-7466 to have him make special arrangements to pick up this extra rubbish.

The days of rubbish and garbage pick-up will be the same as last year. Garbage on Tuesdays and Fridays from behind the house and rubbish on Wednesdays at the curb. Commercial rubbish will be picked up from the rear of the buildings on Wednesdays also.

Effective immediately the village dump on Cavanaugh Lake Rd. will be closed.

Aroused Bulldogs Knock Off Saline In Spirited Contest

Chelsea Products Credit Union Names Officers

Chelsea Products Employees Credit Union board of directors organized for 1960 at a meeting held Tuesday noon and elected William Nagley, Jr., as president. Others elected to office are Edward Risner, vice-president; Frank Oates, secretary; Ralph Frisch, treasurer; and LeRoy Loveland, assistant treasurer.

Daniel Maroney was elected to the board of supervisors and Harold Salyer was re-elected to the credit committee.

Ralph Frisch is a newly-elected member of the board of directors and Mrs. Dorothy Orthing was re-elected when the fourth annual meeting was held on Saturday, Jan. 23.

Other action taken at that meeting was voting approval for a three per cent dividend as had been recommended by the board. Approximately 90 employees at the plant are affiliated with the Credit Union.

Meet Roosevelt Friday Evening in 'Must-Win' Game

Hustle, hustle, hustle and rebound. That was the word around the Bulldogs' pen last Friday night as they upset the previously undefeated conference leader, Saline, 60-51.

The one factor which cost Chelsea two consecutive losses, this time allowed them to outscore a very strong Saline team and hand them their first loss in conference play this season.

Yes, free throws made the victory possible as the Bulldogs scored 30 points from the charity line.

The game moved fast from the opening whistle with the Bulldogs putting a full court press into effect whenever possible, which seemed to upset the Hornets considerably.

Scoring during the first quarter was well balanced for both teams, as five players scored for each squad, with Saline leading, 12-11, at the end of the first period of play.

In the second quarter the Bulldogs went on a scoring spree and hit for a very fine 27-point total, while Saline was collecting 15 points.

Chelsea, led by Homer Nixon and David McLaughlin who scored 15 and 8 points, respectively in the second period, controlled both backboards and dominated the play completely as the full court press bothered Saline and gave the Bulldogs many opportunities which they took advantage of.

Going into the third quarter with a 39-27 lead, the Bulldogs slowed the game to a walk. This forced the Hornets who have played nothing but a zone defense all season, to come out and play man-to-man. Unaccustomed as they were to the defensive change, Saline began to foul unnecessarily and forced their two big scoring aces, Calvin Karn and Jim Fuhrman, out of the game on personal fouls. Fuhrman left the game with 18 points to his credit, but Karn who usually gets between 15 and 25, went out with only seven points, as Homer Nixon did an outstanding defensive job in holding him down.

The Bulldogs held a 45-37 lead going into the fourth period, but the Hornets from Saline were not through.

Going into a pressing defense themselves, Saline forced the tempo of the game to speed up and the Bulldogs to look a little shaky at times. Dalice Ferris and Homer Nixon then went to work and soothed the nerves of many Chelsea followers as Dalice scored a field goal and six out of six free throws, while Homer was collecting a field goal and hit four out of five free throws when the pressure was really on.

At one time during the fourth quarter the Hornets were within five points of the Bulldogs before they went to work at the free throw line.

The victory was inspirational in many ways. Not only does it give the Bulldogs a new life in the conference race, but it was a milestone for many of the players.

Homer Nixon hit a new scoring high for the "fine fencer" center; David McLaughlin came through

SAFETY AWARD—For the second consecutive year, Rockwell-Standard Corporation here was presented with an award in recognition for a safety record which is outstanding—no lost-time accidents for a total of 665,000 man hours. The award was presented Tuesday, Jan. 19, by William Hadfield (extreme right) representing the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. Credit for the remarkable safety record, according to Lowell Davison, general manager, is due to the plant's program of constantly training employees of safety practices and installation of guards and other safety devices wherever possible danger to workers is discovered. The outstanding record of 24 months of no lost-time accidents involves a total of approximately 150 employees. Days of Golden Opportunity Are Here Such as World Has Never Before Seen

A business executive recently turned the proverbial tables and knocked "opportunity." Reflecting upon the Fabulous Fifties, he echoed the frustrations of a great many Americans who feel that the rags-to-riches kind of opportunity that still flickered in the post-war years is now as dead as a two-button suit. During the past decade, said he, the little man's chance for overnight success was slowly strangled by bigness—big business, big government, big taxes. All the so-called "growth" we've been hearing about, he concluded, was simply the big things growing bigger . . . and so it shall be in these Sizzling Sixties.

Is he right? Has the treadmill replaced the success ladder in this "land of opportunity"? We think not. In our opinion, the Horatio Alger heroes were still thriving last month as the Fifties passed away.

Take the 31-year-old engineer whose machine shop recently exploded into a multi-million-dollar corporation. The son of a Boston electrician, Ed White suddenly became big—by thinking small. In the early fifties, at 23, he quit an engineering job and opened up shop in a two-car garage in Fort Wayne, Ind. Although at that time miniaturization was only a gamble, White began turning out special tiny gear mechanisms that put a Swiss watch to shame, aimed for the space market where missile men were starting to cry for lighter and smaller hardware.

A few months ago, he found that the business had grown so fast that he was finally forced to turn to public investment for further expansion. By the end of the decade, Ed White was a king in his own hand-made world of pygmy parts.

This Fort Wayne story was not rare during the Fifties. It was common to hundreds of towns across the nation—where there were young men with young ideas, keyed to a young age of space. As we see it, the knock of opportunity on Henry Ford's door 50 years ago was but a meager tap, compared to the relentless pounding that today beckons our young men to a challenge as limitless as space itself. As we enter the Sixties, don't knock opportunity, but listen. It may be knocking for you.

Birthday of World's Greatest Inventor, Thomas Edison, Will Be Observed

If you are agin' progress and feel you were born 50 or 100 years too late, perhaps you'd better stay in bed on Feb. 11. This will be the 113th anniversary of the birth of Thomas A. Edison and a lot of people will be whooping and hollering over the miracles of the electrical age which he definitely invented. In fact, maybe you'd better stay in bed all week, since it will be National Electrical Week in his honor.

On Edison's birthday, kids in school and their teachers will celebrate National Science Youth Day and will be able to get out of some school work by talking about our greatest inventor and science and how they'd better get with it unless they want to start learning Russian.

It has been estimated that Mr. Edison received patents at the average rate of one every 15 days from the time he was 30 until he died at 84—for the amazing total of 1,093. And if you wince at the electrification of the world, consider that the Wizard of Menlo Park also invented the phonograph (great grandpaw of hi-fi), the movies—both still and the "talkies"—the stock ticker, the miner's safety lantern, the medical fluoroscope, waxed paper and gummed wrapping tape, to mention a few items. The Edison notebooks (2,500 of them of 300 pages each) contain sketches of what we now call helicopters. And more than half a century ago he predicted that some day a teacup of energy would drive an ocean liner across the seas and back.

Not only was Thomas A. Edison a man who couldn't let well enough alone, but now, 29 years after his death, his questing spirit is carried on by thousands upon thousands of firms and persons using and improving upon his patents. We might as well face it, there will be no end to what he started many years ago.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Once there was a Train-of-Cars, and she was flying merrily across the country with a load of Christmas toys for the children who lived way over the other side of the mountain.

But all of a sudden, right at the foot of the mountain, the engine broke down.

Things looked pretty grim until the Little Engine That Could came along. Chugging "I think I can" with every turn of the wheels, the Little Engine pulled the toys over the mountain.

Another Little Engine is toiling to get another train underway. "I think we can do it," said Sen. John H. Stahlin (R-Belding). "I think we can tell the true Michigan story and counteract the unfavorable publicity that the state has been receiving."

Stahlin's proposal for a "truth train" has picked up momentum since he put it on the tracks at a meeting of the Michigan Products Subcommittee of the Michigan Week Committee late in January.

Michigan Week planners generally agree there is not time to launch Stahlin's streamliner in time for the 1960 observance May 15-21. But there is a feeling it could be a major feature of the 1961 celebration.

"Time is needed to raise the money and manpower to put the show on the road. Manufacturers and others—who would supply the exhibits need more time to prepare their displays."

Stahlin, a Belding manufacturer who has stirred more interest than most freshmen senators in recent history, will devote much of his time these next few weeks to drumming up support from business and industry.

"The train is rigidly non-political and would be devoted entirely to selling Michigan," said Stahlin, a politician who feels there has been too much politics connected with Michigan business climate controversy.

Other means of promoting Michigan products are in the making.

Manufacturers, retailers, newspapers, radio and television, and other interests are planning an all-out program.

It looks like another successful year for Michigan Week.

Michigan's success—and failure—in industrial development has been compiled by the Michigan Economic Development Department.

Most states report only favorable movements.

But Dr. Paul Herbert, the department's research chief, doesn't believe in sweeping dirt under the rug.

Herbert's analysis of reported industry movement in Michigan last year revealed 98 "unfavorable" movements, including 39 expansions outside the state, 26 closings, 23 move-outs, and 8 contractions of operations.

There were 313 "favorable" reports, including 199 local expansions, 50 new starts, 36 in-state expansions, 17 move-ins, and 11 reopenings of operations.

In general, there were more favorable industry movements—reports in 1959 than 1958—an increase of 42 or 19 per cent.

Political ammunition for both sides is available in Herbert's report.

Someone wanting to "prove" Michigan has an unfavorable business climate need only cite that 23 industries moved out of Michigan while only 17 moved in.

Everything would appear rosy if it were reported that 199 firms expanded operations, while only eight reduced operations.

The best bet is that Michigan's economic climate will be an issue in the 1960 election campaign—but not to the extent it was in 1958.

For one thing, there are other issues; viz, taxes, constitutional convention, legislative reapportionment, and the 1959 cash crisis.

A state nursing its 1959 black eye is beginning to realize it's better to build an out-of-state reputation by bragging from the zoo of tops instead of dragging through the mud.

The epitome of integrity. That's what a top democrat said of a top Republican.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams had these words of praise for Vernon J. Brown, President Eisenhower and other political leaders added.

Brown, who was the president of the Michigan Press Association in 1953 and was editor-publisher of the Ingham County News, received the praise at a luncheon honoring his more than 60 years of public service.

The 86-year-old Republican elder, who was a legislator, auditor general, and lieutenant governor, was honored as the "grand old man of the Grand Old Party."

A rare day it was. Retired politicians are usually quickly forgotten. But not Vernon Brown.

A new exploding scarecrow is timed to make a noisy discharge every three minutes to keep pests away.

By FRANK C. MORRIS

Senator Seeks To Stir Interest in Government

Couple of months ago, State Senator Lynn O. Francis of Midland, the Republican floor leader, published a 16-page booklet setting forth his philosophy of government. Although not many citizens have heard of it, the demand is increasing steadily and the book now is in its second printing.

It will become an important document in political affairs this year for at least two reasons.

First, Senator Francis takes an unbending stand against theories of government that have elected Gov. Williams to six terms and have given Democrats complete control of the state government outside of the legislature.

Second, Senator Francis speaks as his party's floor leader in the one chamber where the GOP survives as a majority party. The party this year must take a "me too" stand in appealing to the voters or revert to principles that Francis contends should never have been abandoned.

The fancy word "posture" was first used in Lansing in 1955 by a professor of economics on the Governor's staff who said: "If Gov. Williams is to be regarded nationally in 1958 as a serious candidate for president, he must assume a new posture. He must be presented to the nation as an executive who has served Michigan's economy well, and he must shatter the allegation that he is controlled by the UAW."

Today, the word is almost an out-worn bromide.

But in the election campaign of 1960, Senator Francis contends the Republican party must assume a firm posture, without double-talk, for or against increased spending; tighter government control over local school systems, removal of debt limits without a vote of the people, Constitutional earmarking of funds for education and for roads, and the many so-called "liberal" policies that have plunged Michigan so far in debt and sickened its industrial climate.

The platform will be written by delegates to the GOP state convention in August following the nomination of a candidate for Governor. Those delegates will be chosen at county conventions in all counties except Wayne. In Wayne, they will be chosen at six Congressional District meetings.

In the more populous counties, the process starts with the election of precinct delegates by the voters at the primaries. In the others, delegates are chosen at neighborhood party meetings.

Under both systems, professional politicians always have won control. The voters seldom have shown interest in the selection of their convention delegates. It is the Senator's theory, therefore, that the platform-writers do not reflect the thinking of the rank-and-file of party voters.

His hope is that the booklet will generate thought and debate at the local level and get more citizens active in the processes of government on days other than election days.

The booklet is entitled "So This Is Michigan." Each chapter is a letter to a mythical "Uncle George" stating in conversational language why the Senator is so violently opposed to the trend toward close state management of local government.

He tells why he is opposed to Federal control of education; why he fears Michigan gradually is surrendering its sovereignty to the national government (as predicted once by Gov. Williams), and why he believes more cautious administration can result in reductions in spending on all government levels.

In his conclusions, Senator Francis writes that he does not expect all loyal Republicans will agree with him.

"Some people will go so far as to think that I am a crack-pot," he writes. "It is not easy to go against the trend."

"But I think it is time we put a few more conservatives in office, just to kinda keep things balanced."

Slight Increase in Budget Goes to Education

Lansing—Education is the foundation on which our progress during the Splendid Sixties is based. From our institutions of higher learning will come the findings of researchers that will accelerate our industrial progress and expansion.

Our University of Michigan is one of the world's leading institutions in the field of space exploration. The University and our other colleges and universities are outstanding in many other fields. To maintain this position of leadership, it is necessary that we have at our universities men who are experts in their particular areas. To do this, we must have the facilities and equipment that will permit our scientists to carry on their research.

When I presented the outline for my recommended 1960-61 general fund-general purpose budget to the legislature last week, it showed only a slight increase over the budget for this year. Most of this small increase is for education. What I recommended is really only a token increase. It does not represent what I feel are the needs of education. It was held at this low level so that the State of Michigan will be able to live within its present income during the coming fiscal year which starts July 1. This year I recommended no new taxes. The action of the 1959 session of the legislature, in adopting a series of inadequate "balance" taxes, made it clear that real tax reform will not come until after this fall's general election.

For that reason, this budget is a stop-gap one which in no way indigests my estimate of the real needs of the state.

This recommended budget, which totals $409.3 million, means a continuation of rigid economy for state government. It includes an increase of $8.6 million for combined education and school aid supplementation, an amount far from adequate.

Much of this increase is directed to improving salaries and providing needed equipment and facilities. Of the additional amount for the University of Michigan, which is only $2.4 million over this year's appropriation, $400,000 reflects an increase for the Institute of Science and Technology. The Institute is one of the means we have to keep pace in the swift race of scientific research. It is to our colleges and universities and their research centers that we look for even greater progress during this new decade. This is particularly important in the face of continuing spectacular Soviet advances in space technology.

Our institutions of higher learning will have an increasing influence on the location of science-oriented industries in Michigan.

Our growing population means more jobs are needed each year. We must have the facilities to attract the industries which will provide the needed employment opportunities. Our universities are important factors in such a program, and must not be short-changed by false economy.

This budget does not represent the real needs of education or other branches of government. Later I will indicate what the budget could be, had the legislature performed its constitutional tax functions last year.

The budget which I have recommended is $173.8 million less than the $583.1 million requested by

Get the quiet proof of Chevrolet's superior performance on the road. No other car in the low-priced three can match the borne-on-the-wind sensation you get from a ride in the 1960 Chevrolet. But that's not surprising when you consider to what lengths Chevrolet has gone to provide for your comfort at no extra cost to you. As you drive, count the ways Chevrolet has been thoughtful:

Supple Full Coil suspension.—Coil springs at all four wheels melt bumps as no other suspension can. Taking the punch out of rough roads is their only function—they don't have to anchor the rear axle.

Butyl rubber body mounts.—Thicker, newly designed body mounts further insulate you from the road. Body by Fisher.—Only Chevy in its field offers the polish and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.

Foam cushioned seats.—Chevy offers foam cushioned seats in both front and rear in all series but one. Safety-Gilder frame.—X-built and not merely X-braced, the Safety-Gilder frame affords greater rigidity to minimize twisting and squeaks.

Hydraulic valve lifters.—Oil hushed hydraulic valve lifters reduce engine noise to a whisper. Cushioned steering shaft.—A universal joint and cushioned coupling keep those annoying road tremors from the steering wheel.

Precision balanced wheels and tires.—Here again Chevy has shown concern for your comfort by eliminating vibration in this vital area—the life is longer, too.

Easy steering ratio.—Chevy's high ratio Ball Race steering takes the work out of steering for you. Superior weight distribution.—Chevy rides better, handles better and stops better because the car's weight is more equally divided between the front and rear wheels.

Wide choice of power teams.—Choose from 24 different power combinations to satisfy the itchiest driving foot—more than any other car.

TAX FACTS FOR THE HOMEOWNER NO. 2

Buying, Selling Or Improving Your Home

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax facts. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Michigan Society of Public Accountants, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.)

IN TODAY'S economy, with constantly rising prices and land values, it is quite common for the family man to look upon his home as an investment. Not that he entertains the idea of selling it necessarily, but at least he knows that it will probably climb in value, and that he could then sell it if he wanted to. However, as an investment, the ownership of a home differs in many respects from the ownership of stocks or bonds, and these differences have important tax implications that you should be aware of.

Changing Your Residence
If you sell your home (which is your principal residence) at a profit and move to a new house, you may not have to pay tax on the profit. Let's say you bought a house five years ago for $15,000, which you sold last year for $20,000. Since you held the house for more than six months, the profit of $5,000 is taxable as a long-term capital gain at a maximum rate of 25 per cent. However, if you move into a new house either one year before or one year after the sale, and if the new house costs $20,000 or more, then you pay no tax on the $5,000 profit. If you are having the new house built for yourself and construction begins either one year before or one year after the sale of the old house, then the period of replacement is extended to eighteen months from date of sale, providing you occupy it within that period.

The important point here is that the new house must cost as much or more than the amount you receive for the old house. If it cost only $19,000, you must pay the long-term capital gain tax on the balance of $1,000. You could actually sell your house at a profit and buy a new one every few years without paying a tax on the profit, but you aren't really avoiding tax; you are merely postponing it. The cumulative gain will be taxed when the last house is finally sold without being replaced.

Expenses of Owning a House
A home owner is usually in a more advantageous tax position than a person who rents. This is because home owners who elect to itemize their deductions rather than use the standard 10 per cent deduction are allowed to deduct interest on a home mortgage, property taxes, and other expenses. When you invest in a home, it is almost always a business. To be able to take advantage of the legitimate tax considerations you are entitled to, you will need to keep accurate records of your various expenses. Don't forget to save your paid bills from year to year.

Retarded Childrens Group Assisting With Special Education Survey

A regular meeting of the Washtenaw County Chapter of the Michigan Association for Retarded Children is scheduled for Monday evening, Feb. 8, at 8 o'clock. The gathering will take place in the basement floor-meeting room of the County Building at Ann Arbor. Mrs. Fredrick Poole, director of the Ann Arbor Bureau of Community Services will be the guest speaker. She will speak on the topic, "Community Planning in Retarded Children's Group."

A question period and social hour will follow.

The chapter recently formed a committee to assist Washtenaw County's Director of Special Education, John Mader, in his effort to find the number of children in each school district who need special education. He has used this listing to determine the number and kind of special classes to recommend for each school district or system.

The list of retarded children whose parents live in Washtenaw County will be taken from three sources: (1) Michigan State Institutions for Retarded Children such as Coldwater, (2) public school classes for retarded children in Washtenaw County, (3) the WARC operated School for Trainable Retarded Children. The Washtenaw County Chapter wishes to urge all parents of a retarded child up to 21 years of age who is not currently attending one of these schools or institutions to notify the County Chapter. Such children might be attending a private school, an out-of-state institution or staying at home.

The current list of known retarded children in Washtenaw County is roughly 50 per cent short of what statistics indicate the actual number may be. Spokesmen of the WARC report that according to statistics every school of 500 children would have 15 retarded children, 12 or 13 of whom could profit from a class for educable mentally retarded children. This is enough to start a special class for that building since the State's legal limit for these classes is 15 pupils. There would be two children who could profit from a class for "trainables" where they would acquire simple habits of self care. Of the original 500 children only a theoretical 1/4 of one child would require total hospital care for the rest of his life. In real life, however, it was pointed out, children do not distribute themselves evenly among school districts. There will be a few more here and a few less there.

"In urging that parents co-operate with our census, we hope that parents will consider not only their own child but the children in their own area who might possibly be served if school administrators were certain there were enough to plan for," spokesmen for the Chapter state.

"Names of the children will be kept confidential. In our organization they will be seen only by the census committee. These names, listed by school districts will be given to Mader who will use this information when drawing up recommendations to school boards throughout the county. If your school board should find itself in a position to open a class in your area, your superintendent of schools or director of special education would contact you later. No school official will have the power to coerce a parent in any way."

REP. ROBERT P. GRIFFIN

County GOP Plans Lincoln Day Dinner Feb. 12

Mrs. Robert J. Wollam, general chairman of the annual GOP Lincoln Day Dinner, announced today that final plans are being made for this important event to be held Friday, Feb. 12 at 8:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Michigan League, Ann Arbor.

Featured speaker is Congressman Robert P. Griffin from Michigan's 9th District who will be introduced by Congressman George Meador.

Bob Griffin's name has attracted national attention and acclaim since he co-sponsored the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act which President Eisenhower endorsed in a historic radio-TV address. This bill, after much study and debate, reached the floor of Congress, resulted in bitter fighting, but finally legislation was overwhelmingly approved embodying most of the provisions and all the principles of the original act. Griffin led this fight during the closing days of the first session of the 86th Congress. It became the first major law enacted in more than 12 years dealing with labor-management relations.

In addition Bob Griffin, only 35 years old and a rising star in the Congress of the United States, led a successful effort which resulted in the Federal Student Loan Program. Griffin's name has been widely mentioned as a candidate for U. S. Senate in the 1960 election.

Republican County Chairman Stanley G. Thayer states that "we are indeed lucky to have obtained such an outstanding national figure for our local Lincoln Day event."

Red Cross Calls for Volunteers

Forty years ago this month an epidemic of Spanish influenza was sweeping the country; hundreds of Washtenaw County residents were ill, and there were 10 deaths in three days in Ann Arbor alone. Medical facilities of the community were over-taxed, and nursing service was not available to many who needed it.

An emergency call for volunteer nurses was issued by the county Red Cross chapter, and it was answered quickly by women who had completed courses in home nursing under Red Cross direction.

This has been the experience through the years. In times of disaster as well as in time of war, the Red Cross has responded to emergencies. But the work of this great humanitarian organization continues year in and year out, bringing help and counsel to millions of servicemen, veterans and their families, mending lives touched by personal tragedies, transporting the handicapped, collecting blood for the injured and the sick and comforting hospital patients.

The key to the success of Red Cross is its vast volunteer program. Only a few persons in each county are paid staff; hundreds of others are ordinary citizens giving a few hours a day, a week or a month to one of the many activities of the chapter.

More of these volunteers are needed in Ann Arbor. In Ypsilanti, in Milan, Chelsea, Saline, Manchester, Dexter, Whitmore, Lake and in the rural areas. A campaign for volunteers is being carried on this month in southeastern Michigan, and the Washtenaw County chapter of the Red Cross is participating. A meeting for new volunteers is planned, according to Jack L. Shipman, chapter chairman, at which time the various programs and activities of this chapter will be outlined. Volunteers may choose a field of interest and give whatever time they have available.

Last year an average of 38 volunteers served more than 5,000 hours in the VA hospital. Red Cross Motor Service had 24 regular volunteer drivers and five extras. They contributed 6,000 hours of service and drove 61,000 miles, most of it within the county.

These are only two of the many services in which volunteers, both men and women, acting through the Red Cross, do so much to benefit their fellowmen and their community, Shipman pointed out.

Those wishing to volunteer may obtain additional information from or register with Mrs. Leigh Palmer or Mrs. John Fischer, Chelsea Red Cross Branch chairmen, or the American Red Cross office at Ann Arbor.

Mass Meeting Set To Explain VA Pension Law

A mass meeting of veterans and their families interested in the new Veterans Administration pension law will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14, at the Disabled American Veterans Memorial Home, 3744 East Michigan Avenue, Jackson.

Announcement of the meeting was made today by Earl Vandenberg, chairman of a special veterans committee set up in co-operation with the VA to help veterans, their widows and orphans in obtaining maximum pension benefits under the complicated new pension program which goes into effect July 1.

On the Jackson committee are Vandenberg, past 6th District commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Russell G. Hill, field service officer, Disabled American Veterans; John L. Vincent, commander, Richard F. Smith Post No. 20, American Legion; and Walter McCowan, Veterans Employment Representative, United States Employment Service.

Lloyd H. Jameson, manager of the VA regional office in Detroit, has assured the committee that two VA representatives will be on hand prepared to answer questions concerning the old and new pension laws.

Jameson pointed out that the VA has already mailed the first of two pamphlets to present pension beneficiaries. The second mailing—both dealing with pension law changes—will go out in February.

Along with the February checks, due March 1, VA will send a form on which the veteran or beneficiary must elect whether to continue receiving his pension under the old law or transfer to the new program. A beneficiary is allowed just one election, Jameson warned.

Thus, every effort is being made by the VA and service organizations to assure that all beneficiaries recognize advantages of the new law.

Vandenberg explained that committees of service organizations have been established in nine Michigan communities—Jackson, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Flint, Saginaw, Cadillac, Kalamazoo, Petoskey and Escanaba—to arrange mass meetings of veterans and their families interested in the pension program.

Invited are not only veterans, widows and orphans currently receiving pensions but those who may have reason to apply in the future.

The new pension law concerns only those VA payments made to veterans, widows and orphans on the basis of non-service connected disabilities or death. It does not apply to compensation being paid for disabilities connected with service.

Bendix V-P Will Direct Science Fair

Ann Arbor — Dr. Russell D. O'Neal, vice-president in charge of engineering for the Bendix Aviation Corp., has been named director of the 1960 Southeastern Michigan Science Fair.

Announcement was made last Thursday by the director of the 1959 fair, Dr. Henry J. Gomborg of the University of Michigan, during a meeting of high school teachers.

The fair is to be held April 9-10 at Yost Field House, under the sponsorship of the Ann Arbor Exchange Club, the Ann Arbor News, and the University.

Recently named Bendix vice-president after serving since 1955 as general manager of the company's systems division in Ann Arbor, Dr. O'Neal is a physicist who has taken part in numerous developments in the fields of nuclear energy, radar and advanced missile systems.

The Way the Ball Bounces

With Tom Johnston

Chelsea certainly threw the Washtenaw Conference race into turmoil with their victory over Saline last week. The battling Bulldogs of Bob Taylor played up to par, hit their shots, and got position on the boards to claim the win. Bob Taylor did a fine coaching job in preparing his club, and in the way he played the boys.

While Chelsea had 50 foul shots, and made 30 of them, and the Hornets fans yelled about this, it was just the way the ball bounced. Most of Saline's fouls were committed as Chelsea players went up for shots, thus, the Bulldogs generally got either a 2 shot or a 1-and-1 free throw situation.

The only criticism, which worked both ways—that I might have, is that the average prep official calls too many fouls on play that doesn't affect the game, or the play at the time. Then when the boys get into state play, they call fouls either very close, or very, very, loose.

But all in all, it was a great ball game, and fans are already looking forward to the meeting between these two quintets that will close out the conference season.

With Saline now having one loss, the Hornets, Chelsea, U. High and Manchester are all right in the thick of the league title race.

Roosevelt, will meet the Bulldogs this week, and Coach Taylor hopes that his club doesn't have a letdown against the Rough Riders who have already surprised Manchester once this season. Saline will be favored to defeat Dexter with ease. Tom Walsh, the Drexelnight mentor, has a club that just can't seem to score. Walsh, however, earns our plaudits for his "peanut" basketball program, which is showing the way to better Dexter basketball in the future.

Manchester will travel to Pinckney to meet the wireless Pirates, who at times have proven very tough on their own floor this season.

Michigan's basketball team is the most hapless collegiate quintet we have ever watched. The Wolverines won't win again this season, and fans want to know why. In other sports, the Wolverines are still attracting top talent, what's wrong with basket ball?

The National Basketball Association is getting encouragement to expand to the West Coast.

Some 10,000 fans turned out at Los Angeles recently to see the Philadelphia Warriors gain a 103-96 victory over the Minneapolis Lakers.

The owner of the Lakers—Bob Short—said the crowd would encourage the scheduling of other NBA games in Los Angeles this year. However, he was indefinite on whether he would move the Lakers to Los Angeles from Minneapolis.

Said Short: "We certainly will look with favor to Los Angeles, and to other cities if we fail to break even this year."

The torch heralding the Winter Olympic Games is on its way to Squaw Valley in the hands of a relay of runners.

The flame—lighted in Norway—arrived in Los Angeles yesterday by jetliner over the North Pole. From Los Angeles, the flame goes 500 miles north to Baxter, Calif., at the top of a pass leading into Squaw Valley. From there, it will be taken by skiers to Little Pappoose Peak to remain there until the opening of the games.

Korea's little delegation will get the honor today of being the first group of athletes to test the Squaw Valley slopes. The Koreans arrived yesterday in a blinding rain and sleet storm.

Today's picture review: SOLOMON AND SHEBA Devotees of screen spectaculars, especially those based (however freely) on the Old Testament, will be in for a treat with "Solomon and Sheba." It is certainly spectacular and colorful, and it enlisted the help of hordes of extras. It is, as the reader will probably know, the story of Solomon's inheritance of the throne from his father, King David, in Jerusalem. The picture depicts the jealousy of Solomon's brother, Adonijah (George Sanders) and of the ensuing struggle for power.

As Sheba, Gina Lollobrigida parades her charms in front of Yul Brynner as Solomon (Yul Brynner as Solomon) who was stricken with a fatal heart attack) and who could resist her? Certainly not Yul!

Others in the cast include Marisa Pavan as Abishag; David Farrar as the Pharaoh.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 83 was quickly identified. Louis Kuhl farm at 2834 Peckens road. It has been owned by the Kuhl family for 95 years.

Armin Kuhls Operate 212-Acre Mystery Farm on Peckens Road for His Mother

Patricia Bell of Detroit, called The Standard office early Saturday to identify Mystery Farm No. 83 as the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Louis Kuhl, and her uncle, Armin Kuhl and family.

The farm is located at 2834 Peckens road, just east of Chelsea-Manchester road. In another five years the farm will be eligible to receive the Michigan Historical Commission's designation as a centennial farm. It has been owned by the Kuhl family since Oct. 5, 1865.

Others who correctly identified the farm included Mrs. Walter Bentler who was the first to call The Standard office following publication of the photo without identification last Thursday. The farm was also identified by Helen Rothfuss, Armin Kuhl, Robert Schneider, Henry Orthing, William Curtis of Grass Lake, and Mrs. Edna Faulkner.

Mrs. Louis Kuhl lives in the larger of the two houses (in the foreground) and her son, Armin, and his family, live in the other home.

The Armin Kuhls have two daughters, Gail and Dorene, and a son, Gerald. All attend school in Chelsea. Gail is active in 4-H club work, leader of her club being Mrs. Walter Wolfgang.

Armin Kuhl works the 212-acre farm for his mother. He does general farming. Included among the stock on the place are dairy and beef cattle, sheep and hogs.

The Armin Kuhls are members of Emmanuel Evangelical and Reformed church at Manchester.

Mrs. Louis Kuhl is a long-time member of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at Rogers Corners. She is also active in the Women's Guild of the church.

The farm has been her home since her marriage to Mr. Kuhl June 16, 1911. She is the former Elja Eschelbach and the Rogers Corners area has been her home all her life. Mr. Kuhl died Dec. 8, 1952.

The Louis Kuhl family includes a daughter, Lucille, now Mrs. Oliver Bell of Detroit. She has two children, Patricia and Marcia.

First member of the Kuhl family to own the farm was Arnold H. Kuhl who acquired the property in 1865. He built both houses and all the other buildings on the place.

The Arnold Kuhls were the parents of four daughters and three sons, Mrs. Benjamin Breitenwisch-er, Mrs. John Huss, Mrs. Godfrey Fitzmier, Mrs. Edward Kuhl, Louis, Theodore and Gust Kuhl.

Mrs. Huss now lives in Ann Arbor and Mrs. Breitenwischer lives at 4085 Fletcher road. Others in the family are deceased.

Following Arnold Kuhl's death, Feb. 3, 1929, Louis Kuhl became the owner of the farm which now is owned by his widow.

According to legal records, the original deed was signed by Andrew Jackson, U.S. president from 1829 until 1837. The signature was not dated, however.

Levi Rogers was listed as the original owner.

Aug. 25, 1841, Morgan B. Donaldson purchased the land. In 1849 two owners were listed—John Williams and Ira Williams.

On Feb. 18, 1862, William H. Calkins purchased the place, retaining ownership for 13 years before it was sold to Arnold Kuhl, in whose family the farm has remained for the past 95 years.

CHECK THE BUTTONS
Button up your overcoat—and look at the buttons. Home economists say that buttons should have smooth edges so they can slip in and out without straining or wearing the buttonholes. Since buttons may need to be reset, they often are not sewed securely to a new coat or suit. To avoid loss, reset every one with strong thread. Loss of one button can force you to buy a complete new set.

Legion Auxiliary Joins Drive To Save Historic Battlefield

The regular meeting of Herbert J. McKune Unit No. 81, American Legion Auxiliary, was held Tuesday, Feb. 2 at the McKune Memorial Library.

The rehabilitation committee reported that plans are complete, for the coffee hour to be held Feb. 18 at the VA Hospital in Ann Arbor. It was also voted to give $10 worth of canteen books to patients at the hospital. Veterans use these coupon books to purchase items in the canteen.

At the Second District meeting held in Jackson on Jan. 24 the Chelsea Unit was presented with the Mary Kopka Memorial Membership Trophy. This trophy is awarded each year to the first unit in the district to send quota membership in to the department offices in Detroit. Mrs. Leon Shutes, president of the Chelsea Unit, accepted the trophy. Also present at the District meeting were Mrs. Ruth Christawell, Mrs. Harold Spaulding, Mrs. Paul Maroney, Mrs. Chas. Popovich, Jr., and Mrs. William Blaess.

A motion was made to contribute $10 to the New March of Dimes and it was decided to purchase 1400 Poppies for the annual Poppy Day to be held in May.

The Legion Auxiliary decided to back the drive which is now on to save the battlefield at Gettysburg. This great memorial is likely to be completely destroyed within the next few years and all turned into commercial property if all citizens of the United States do not get behind the drive. Anyone can become a part of this great move by simply contributing just $1.00 for one square foot of property. Any person in the Chelsea community may learn more about this by contacting any Auxiliary member, according to an announcement at Tuesday's meeting.

The next regular meeting of Unit No. 81 will be held March 1 at the McKune Memorial Library.

Comfort, Good Fit Are Requisites in Husband's Shirt

Choose that dress shirt for "hubby" as carefully as you choose a blouse for yourself. Comfort, as well as quality and appearance, is important to the man who wears a dress shirt daily, says Bernetta Kahabka, clothing specialist at Michigan State University.

Comfort may depend greatly on whether or not the fabric is porous enough to permit air to move freely through it. Fabrics made from fibers that do not absorb moisture, such as nylon, Orlon and Dacron, should be constructed in an open weave so that air may circulate. Otherwise, moisture on the skin will not evaporate and the wearer will be uncomfortable. Cotton and rayon absorb moisture, so an open weave is not so necessary. The many pins used to keep shirts neatly folded on the shelf hide much you need to see when judging shirt quality. Miss Kahabka suggests you unfold the shirt to check details that add so much to appearance, comfort and service of a shirt.

The shoulder yoke should have a double thickness of fabric for good wear and fit. A deep yoke makes the shirt fit smoothly and gives extra fullness over the shoulder blades where it is needed.

For a custom-made look, back fullness should be pleated under the yoke rather than shirred. This also locates fullness at correct points.

Sleeve plackets should be long enough to allow the cuffs to open flat for ironing.

A small gusset at the lower edge of the shirt where seams are joined serves as a seam reinforcement.

Don't overlook the buttons and buttonholes. Well-made buttonholes feature close, firm stitching and are back-stitched across the ends. Good quality buttons are smooth and clear with no discoloring or chipping and they are firmly sewed to the fabric with thread ends securely fastened in the back.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Mrs. Donald Alexander was the hostess for a meeting of Beta Sigma Phi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held at her home Tuesday evening.

During a business session Ruth Beuerle was elected treasurer for the remainder of the year to replace Mrs. David Longworth who is on leave.

Theresa Hankard presented a program on fashions and Jan Hule concluded the program period with a presentation entitled "Nature's Landscape."

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next regular meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 16 at Market Brothers store.

Rebekah Lodge Meets Tuesday

Twenty-four members and six guests were present for a meeting of Chelsea Rebekah Lodge held Tuesday evening at the IOOF hall on M-92.

Guests included Mrs. Myrtle Price of Stockbridge and five members of Harmony Lodge of Dexter.

Hostesses who served refreshments at the meeting were Mrs. M. L. Diette, Mrs. Stephen Slane and Mrs. Leon Marsh.

It was voted at the business session to remember Mrs. Alice Krumm with a card shower in observance of her birthday which occurs today (Feb. 4). Mrs. Krumm, a member of the lodge, has been a patient at Colonial Manor Nursing Home for several years.

Lodge trustees have provided window shades and a new guest book for the lodge room and made formal presentation of the items at Tuesday's meeting.

A "penny march" collection was sent to the Assembly secretary, Hope Sheldon, to be used for a camp repair and upkeep fund at the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs camp for boys and girls at Big Star Lake.

An officers' march practice is scheduled to be held at 7:30 p.m. prior to the next regular 8 p.m. meeting.

A baked goods sale will be held at a social meeting scheduled for Feb. 26. Proceeds are designated to be used to help pay the cost of a new well recently installed at the hall.

A committee appointed for the next meeting includes Mrs. Lucille Atkaster, Mrs. Doris Smith and Mrs. Addie Fitzmaier. The regular meeting is scheduled for Feb. 16.

Members of the Chelsea lodge chose fifth Wednesdays of the month as the dates when they will assist with volunteer physical therapy work at the Odd Fellow Home in Jackson. The first group will go to the Home for that purpose on March 30.

About 310,000 Michigan school children were given screening tests last year to find undetected hearing loss. The Michigan Department of Health reports that children found to have hearing losses are referred to private physicians for examination and care.

Whooping cough caused 3,001 cases in Michigan in 1959, or more than twice as many as the 1,233 cases in 1958. Most of the increase was in young school children. To reduce whooping cough in five- and six-year-olds, the Michigan Department of Health recommends that every child be given a booster dose of whooping cough vaccine when he starts to school.

Pre-Birth Disease Research Offers Wide Opportunity

Ann Arbor—The study of diseases which strike before birth offers a great untapped field for future medical research, a children's specialist at the University of Michigan Medical Center declares.

Dr. James L. Wilson says "We must direct more effort toward finding answers about the diseases which can afflict a human being before birth."

"We suspect a large number of birth defects are caused by prenatal diseases, for a child is not immune to disease just because he has not been born. On the contrary, some diseases he could throw off after birth may have a shattering effect if they strike within the womb."

Dr. Wilson, chairman of the U-M Department of Pediatrics, says severe defects of the heart, eye and ear found at birth sometimes can be traced to German measles occurring in about the second month of pregnancy.

"Changes in the mother's diet might also cause defects in the offspring," he adds. Research with animals has given us a glimpse of what can happen. But so far we're not sure how it happens, why it happens or if it happens to human beings. These questions demand intensive study.

"We are forced to make many assumptions about birth disorders because we lack detailed scientific knowledge. One reasonable assumption is that prenatal disease is just as important as a child's parentage in determining whether he will be born healthy."

Dr. Wilson has been appointed program chairman for the First International Conference on Congenital Malformations to be held in England next July. Under auspices of the National Foundation, the conference is designed to focus world-wide attention on the subject of birth disorders.

These disorders are slowly being catalogued as either "acquired" or "hereditary," or a combination of both, Dr. Wilson points out. "But for the great number of birth defects, the origin is still unknown, or only suspected."

The extent of the birth defect problem is greater than most people realize, Dr. Wilson declares. About 85 per cent of the infants hospitalized at The University of Michigan Medical Center are there for correction of congenital malformations. For the most part, these are heart disorders and hydrocephalus, defects which often can be corrected by major surgery.

The U-M has asked the legislature to add a Children's Hospital at the Medical Center to provide care for the increasing number of patients needing assistance. The facility also will expand teaching facilities to help train the doctors who will attack the growing problem.

where the same parents have two children with entirely different abnormalities," Dr. Wilson says. "The first child might have a structural defect in the esophagus, and the second child may lack bile ducts leading from the liver. We need to know whether there is a connection between the two, or whether it is pure chance."

"Our only hope of finding out is to step up medical research in this whole field of the life before birth."

Women Play Key Role In 'Dimes' Research

Growing a killer virus in a laboratory test tube to see what makes it tick may not seem like an ideal pastime for women. Yet in recent years an increasing number of women have attained top-rank recognition as medical research scientists, many of them under grants supplied by The National Foundation with New March of Dimes funds.

The researches of these women have enlarged the body of new medical information and helped solve a wide variety of health problems. Not least among these was the conquest of a virus that killed and crippled its victims in wave after wave of epidemics—polio.

Pioneer in Protection
Dr. Isabel Morgan Mountain is one of the most famous of these women scientists. As a member of the Johns Hopkins research group some years ago, she won medical recognition for demonstrating that animals could be protected against polio by a vaccine. This was a giant step toward the development of the Salk vaccine for humans, which—like Dr. Mountain's work—was done under grants financed by the March of Dimes.

Dr. Mountain's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunt Morgan, were both well-known geneticists. Her father won a Nobel Prize in 1933 as the originator of the gene theory of heredity. Dr. Mountain, who is married to a prominent surgeon in New York, is included in the Polio Hall of Fame at the "Georgia Warm Springs Foundation."

Until recently Dr. Mountain has been collaborating with two other well-known women research scientists at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons. They are Dr. Hattie Alexander and Dr. Katherine Sprunt, both notable for their work in contagious childhood diseases. The March of Dimes supported grant under which Dr. Alexander and Dr. Sprunt work calls for studies in the possible control of the hereditary factors of polioviruses. The findings of this team have added new knowledge to the whole field of virus research.

At Yale University, Dr. Dorothy Horstmann has won fame for her researches in polio virus, in epidemiology (the science of epidemic diseases) and in the newer viruses only recently discovered. She is on the research team of Dr. John Paul under a National Foundation grant.

Nun Studies Proteins
At St. Louis University, Sister Mary Celeste of the Order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary and a doctor of medicine, is involved in studying the role proteins may play in virus reproduction. Her research project, headed by Dr. Norman E. Melechen, one of the most advanced scientists in the virus field, is also financed by New March of Dimes funds.

Another woman scientist who can be found hard at work in a laboratory is Dr. Matilda Melnick at Baylor University Medical School, Houston, Tex. She and her famous scientist husband, Dr. Joseph L. Melnick, are conducting experimental studies in the Sabin live-virus anti-polio vaccine which, like the Salk vaccine, was developed under March of Dimes funds.

These projects are aimed primarily against three major crippling diseases: birth defects, arthritis and polio. But every new discovery made by these women and other scientists with New March of Dimes support adds to the great body of our medical knowledge and contributes to man's health and well-being.

MOTHERS' DOOR COUNT TOPS MARCH OF DIMES
The 1960 New March of Dimes campaign for funds to support research, patient aid and the training of experts in the three health areas of birth defects, arthritis and polio is climaxed by a Mothers' March of two million volunteers. The Marching Mothers are also conducting a nationwide "door count" at some 30 million homes to collect facts concerning the problems of crippling diseases in their communities. The local New March of Dimes office has also appealed to all donors who have not already done so to send in their contributions in the "mailer appeal" envelopes distributed at the beginning of the year.

State milk legislation, a current topic of high interest in Michigan agricultural circles, gets a prominent spot on the Wednesday Farmers' Week program at MSU. This Feb. 3 program begins at 10 a.m. in the University auditorium.
