CHELSEA FIREMEN had their picture taken wearing their new uniform coats with luminous bands on the sleeves and around the bottom and the letters CFD across the back with each fireman's number. The luminous bands are visible at night and are a safety feature especially useful when called out for highway fires such as cars and trucks. Those who appear in the photo, standing from left, are LaVerne Hafner, 2nd Lt. Richard Rogers, Ray Johnson, Donald Mshar, Arthur Paul, James Gaken, Capt. George Atkinson and Claude Spiegelberg. Seated, at front, are William Brown (no longer with the department), 1st Lt. Paul Bollinger, Assistant Chief Charles "Bud" Hafner, Merle Leach, Chief Ted Halmer, Marvin Schiller, Secretary-Treasurer David Longworth and Frank Reed. Mac Packard, another member of the department, was not present for the photo. Since the picture was made, Kenneth Schanz was re-appointed to the department to replace William Brown.

Record Number of Boats Being Registered with State

Lansing—As record numbers of boat registration applications, available into Lansing in mid-June, the Michigan Department of State last week processed more than 8,000 applications.

According to Secretary of State James M. Hare this is twice the weekly number handled a month ago and more than four times the weekly number handled in April.

The backlog on watercraft applications has been cut from more than 18,000 which piled up in May to less than 5,000 today.

This temporary bottleneck was removed by adding temporary help and processing machines to meet the spring season rush of applicants.

"Our principal problem now," Hare said, "is that many people are still failing to fill out the simple application forms correctly. The State and Federal laws we operate under call for very little information, but we must have the requested data in order to maintain the proper records."

Boat owners, Hare explained, are failing to show the length and make of the craft. Others fail to indicate the citizenship of the owner.

Some fail to fill in their name or their address, and a substantial number forget to put in either name or address. When no address is given, it is impossible for the Department to write for more data.

"We just wait two or three weeks," Hare said, "until we get a gripe letter from the unhappy and forgetful boat owner."

Recreation Program Starts Monday with Record Attendance

Fireworks Display Canceled Because of Fairgrounds Work

Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31, American Legion, announced this week that the traditional Fourth of July ice cream social and fireworks display has been canceled this year because of the work being done the grounds at the Community Fair property. Legion committees stated that because of the work being done on the grounds it was feared parking of the great number of cars which customarily attend the annual event would prove hazardous.

David Strieter, speaking for the Post, said plans for "a bigger than ever" celebration next year are already in progress.

Afternoon Swim, Baseball Prove Most Popular

Total attendance for the first day of the summer recreation program, Monday, June 27, was officially listed as 499.

Ideal summer weather brought out a total of 194 youngsters for the afternoon swimming program. The swimmers are taken by school bus to Grooms Beach at Whitmore Lake.

At the morning sport program, 197 were registered for baseball and 140 for arts and crafts at the three playgrounds—North and South Elementary and Junior High school.

A total of 58 were present for the evening program.

The first day's attendance this year was an increase of approximately 200 over the first day of the 1959 summer program when, because of chilly weather, only 40 turned out for swimming.

Arts and crafts attracted only a total of 85 the first day in 1959 as compared with 140 this year; baseball registration in 1959 was 92 as compared to 107 this year; while the evening program last year listed 72 as compared to only 58 this year.

In High School League play last week, prior to the opening of the summer recreation program, Chelsea defeated Manchester with Homer Nixon and Mike Marsh combining to pitch a one-hitter.

In Junior League play the Chelsea A's dropped a 10-1 game to Stockbridge and the Chelsea B's lost to Dexter 11-9, in a game halted at the end of the fifth inning because of darkness.

Lifesaving Instruction Is Offered

Sis Wagner is donating her services to demonstrate basic swimming first aid techniques to youngsters at Cavanaugh Lake at 11 a.m. each Wednesday, weather permitting; however, children must be accompanied by a parent or other responsible adult, it was pointed out.

The demonstrations are of immediate value, not only in case of water, automobile and home accidents but also for national Civil Defense emergencies.

Dr. Otto K. Engelage, Washtenaw county health officer, said recently, "I'd settle for a Boy Scout to take care of my kids in an emergency." Miss Wagner's technique is similar to that practiced by Boy Scouts. According to the announcement of the Wednesday sessions, she is well qualified to teach artificial respiration and such first aid measures as treatment of shock, bleeding, etc., since she has earned an American Red Cross Lifesaving certificate.

Civil Defense officials have spoken in favor of such first aid demonstrations as a means of disseminating life saving information to as many young people as possible.

Interested persons who wish to participate in the program are asked to wear swim suits for the demonstrations which will be held in front of the Randall property on the east side of Cavanaugh Lake.

The swim suits serve the double purpose of giving a more realistic impression to the demonstration and preventing possible damage to regular clothing.

Robert James Weir Enlists in U.S. Navy

A graduate of Chelsea High school, he has completed two years at Olivet College and plans to return to his studies at the conclusion of his military service.

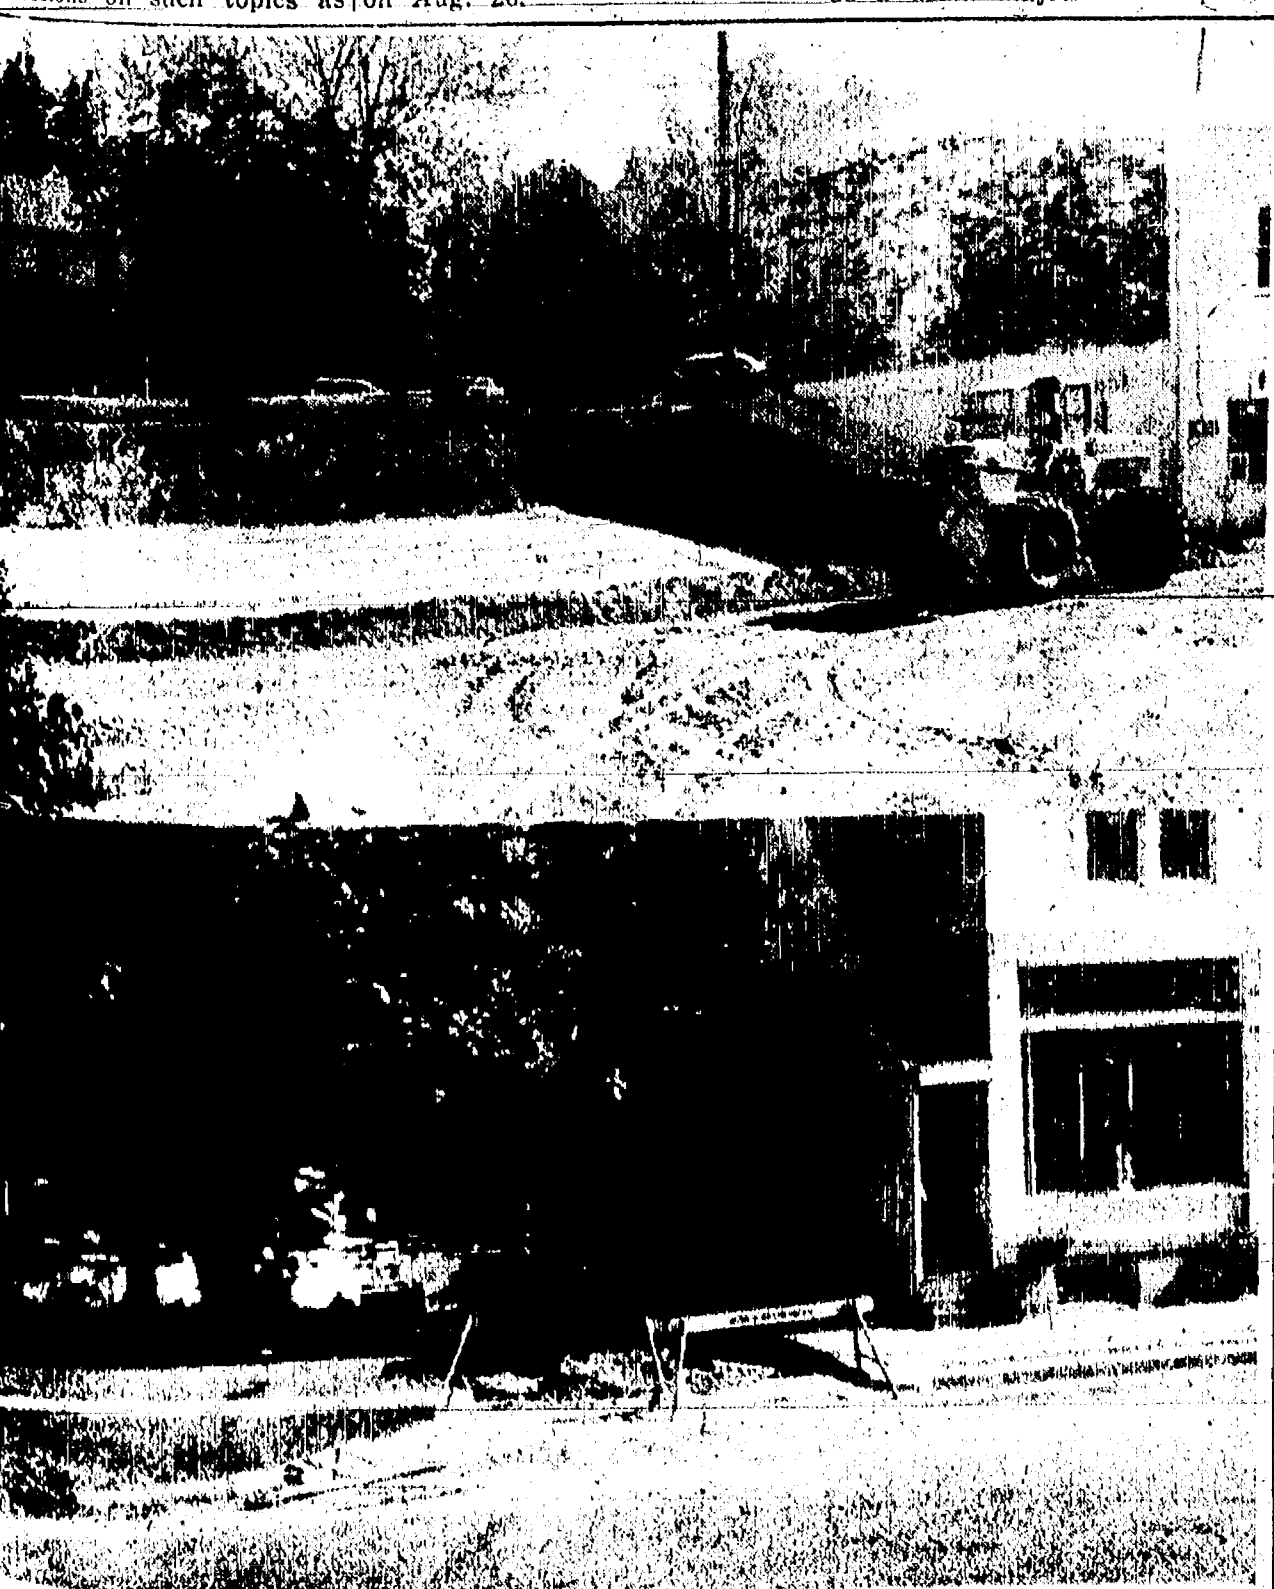

Sylvan Township Road Work Uses 'Matching Funds'

Sylvan Township Supervisor Maurice Hoffman, reporting on road work done in the township under the Washtenaw County Road Commission's "matching fund" program stated that total cost of the work done amounted to $6,217.50. The township's share of the matching fund was $1,633.79, thus reducing the cost to be paid by the township to a total of $4,583.71.

Under the "matching fund" program, the Washtenaw County Road Commission provides the men and equipment to do the work and pays a pro-rated share of the cost, providing the township pays an equal amount. In this instance, the share was $1,633.79 which substantially reduced the cost to the township.

The work done under the contract with the Washtenaw County Road Commission, as reported by Supervisor Hoffman, includes liquid chloride, $1,025.00; graveling of local roads, 1,925 cubic yards at $1.70 per yard, $3,272.50; and new metal road name signs and iron posts, installed at 60 intersections in the township, $1,320.00.

In addition to the road work done by the township this year, Supervisor Hoffman reported that the inside of Sylvan Town Hall has been completely redecorated.

THE MUNICIPAL PARKING LOT on Park St. is beginning to show results of the extensive improvement program now in progress. The above photo, looking toward Park St., shows the extent of the grading and leveling already done in preparation for eventual blacktopping. The lower photo shows the East Middle Street outlet from the parking lot. A driveway has been constructed at the west end of Mrs. Philip Broesamle's property at 118 East Middle St. The parking lot improvement is part of the 1960 village program which includes major work on four streets and repair on many others.

From my front porch...
I watch the world go by.

How would you like to have a nice pet cricket singing on your hearth?

There's nothing cheerier, and a cricket in the house will bring you good luck. So says a Hollywood man who raises and sells them by the score.

They are the little gray Ewe crickets, not the big, black fellows we know which live outside and only occasionally venture indoors, to be met by irate housewives with fly-swatters and brooms.

English households, influenced perhaps by Dickens' tender tale of "The Cricket on the Hearth," let them chirp peacefully between the fireplace bricks, even encourage them and their progeny to be permanent guests.

The Californian will sell you a single cricket in a cunning little cage; to let you determine if you'd like such unique pets—or potential mates which might raise a family for you.

Seems that they're inexpensive to buy and to feed—a bit of lettuce and cracker crumbs. So, who wants crickets? Who indeed?

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By RALPH ROBEY

Employment and Unemployment

It may be recalled that the employment and unemployment report for March was highly unfavorable. The explanation was bad weather over a large part of the nation in the survey week, April returned to the normal trend and revealed a substantial improvement in both categories. We now have the report for May. It again shows normal seasonal changes.

Actually the April improvement in unemployment was not as great as expected. In February the seasonally adjusted unemployment was 4.8 percent of the civilian labor force. In March the figure rose to 5.4 percent. April should have erased this entire increase but it failed to do so and in that month unemployment, seasonally adjusted, still was 6 percent of the civilian labor force. In May there was a decline of 200,000 in the number of the unemployed, but the percentage of the civilian labor force unemployed dropped to only 4.9 percent.

It is not possible to be complacent about this volume of unemployment. Clearly it is higher than either necessary or desirable from both the economic and the social viewpoints. However there are some favorable elements in the picture when one examines other than the total figures.

For example the long-term unemployed, those who have been seeking work for 15 weeks and over, declined in May by 300,000, and this brought the total of this group well below a year earlier. Secondly, nearly half of the unemployed have been seeking jobs for less than 5 weeks. Finally the average factory work-week reversed the downward trend of the past three months and rose to 39.8 hours. This was in spite of a reduction in hours of work in steel plants. As a result of this longer work-week average weekly earnings rose 91 cents to $30.74.

On the other hand the volume of employment in factories continues to drag. It currently is well above a year ago, but the total is still 400,000 below the pre-employment level. This means that employment in manufacturing is not increasing as rapidly as production, and it appears that this probably will remain a permanent trend.

The failure of factory employment to increase as rapidly as output is largely explained by the fact that during prosperity management is less cost-minded than normal and builds a larger labor force than is necessary. With a recession "management reviews" its operation closely and eliminates those workers who are not essential. Ultimately, it is true, management may again become careless and build a larger labor force than it needs, but this takes time and it has not happened over-all up to the present.

The reason for thinking that manufacturing will continue to use less labor in relation to production than heretofore, is that wages have been maintained at a level which is a tremendous urge to use machines rather than manpower when ever possible. Such technological unemployment does not indicate that the total number of jobs will be less. Most factories that buy machines attempt to find other spots for the displaced workers, and in many instances this is done completely. In every shop, too, there is a certain number of resignations, and this gives leeway for introducing machines without the necessity of discharging workers.

June figures will show a sharp increase in both employment and unemployment. This will be because a large number of persons get out of school and start looking for jobs. Following that time will be a month by month decline until October, for purely seasonal reasons.

Too much weight must not be put on the figures for any one month, but we must recognize that we have, and will have for a long time a genuine problem in connection with unemployment.

American Housewife Uses Common Sense To Avoid Frauds

By Paul L. Adams
State Attorney General

The American housewife, with her shrewdness and common sense, protects the family purse from the frauds and sharpies who are after an "easy buck."

Women from all areas of the state have contacted the Attorney General's office to express interest in my consumer's protection program and to ask how to protect their families from frauds.

Although there are many different techniques used to bilk the public, these are some general rules to keep in mind:

—Whenever possible shop with local merchants, comparing prices and quality of products.

—If you do purchase from door-to-door salesmen, demand identification when they claim to represent a "national concern."

—Ask salesmen to call back, and in the meantime check with the Chamber of Commerce or Better Business Bureau as to the reputation of their firms. Also, use this time to compare prices with local merchants.

—Before you sign anything, make sure what, if any, interest or carrying charges are added to the bill, and have this spelled out on your contract and note.

—Request and save receipts for your purchase.

—When in doubt about a transaction, check with your lawyer.

These are general hints which should be of some value. But remember, there is one invaluable asset which must be used to the fullest—the common sense of the American housewife.

BOY SCOUTS from Portage Trails Council for the Junior Leaders Training Course at Burt Lake Boy Scout Camp last week, June 24. Director for the course was Paul Hoffman, and 32 boys enrolled for the five-day intensive study, which gave the boys, mostly senior leaders, junior assistant scoutmasters, patrol leaders and their assistants, special pointers on how to more effectively lead their fellow scouts. The program included camping skills, as well as other courses in basic scout skills. This picture, snapped by an unidentified photographer, was taken at the campsite. Leaders shown at the extreme right are Gerald Fox of Ypsilanti in the back row, and Paul Hoffman directly in front of him. David Adams, second row from front, fifth from left, of Troop 76 was present for the training course. Scouts from 29 troops in the council participated. The enrollment was limited to 32 boys, who were divided into four patrols of eight boys each. Harry South of Ypsilanti was senior patrol leader, and junior assistant scoutmaster was Richard Harris of Howell. Fox is the Commissioner for Potawatomi District, and Hoffman is Scout Executive for that district.

Michigan Education Is Real Bargain' Says U-M Official

Ann Arbor—Michigan taxpayers receiving an outstanding bargain in the purchase of higher education for their youth, a University of Michigan vice-president said.

Walter Niehuss, U-M dean of education, says a study by his office of data available from 21 states shows that Michigan ranks 19th in the cost to the average taxpayer to train 1000 students in the state's public institutions of higher education.

The average Michigan resident pays 13 cents for every 1,000 students in all state-supported institutions of higher learning, Niehuss says, whereas taxpayers in 18 other states pay from 17 cents to $1.90 per 1,000 students.

"Not only does the Michigan resident pay less for every 1,000 students," Niehuss points out, "he also obtains more for his tax dollar in terms of the training provided at the major universities of the various states."

"At the University of Michigan, for example, 19 cents from each citizen buys a year's education for 1000 students, of whom 600 are undergraduates and 400 are graduate-professional students, including doctors, lawyers, and dentists."

"But in Montana, for instance, $1.57 is spent to educate 1000 students, of whom not one is a physician or a dentist, and less than 100 are graduate or graduate-professional students."

Nearby states, such as Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa, all spend more (21c, 28c, 27c, and 63c respectively) to train 1000 students at their state universities, Niehuss notes. Only California (15c) and Ohio (11c) spend less.

Niehuss stresses that all states for which comparable data were available were included in the study. The analysis was made by Theodore H. Dews of the office of the dean of faculties.

Even if the state of Michigan were to increase its contribution to public higher education as much as two or three times, it still would

Don't Purchase Unsuitable Shrubs For Home Planting

In spring the urge is strong in the average citizen to beautify the lawn and garden, but the purchaser of nursery stock and seeds sometimes is victimized unless he thinks twice before buying that new tree, plant, or shrub.

G. S. McIntyre, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, urges persons to make sure the species of plants they seek to purchase are suited to the local climate.

McIntyre recently received reports from his chief of the Plant Industry Division indicating some out-of-state firms have sought to sell nursery stock that is undesirable. Among these Boyer cited ailanthus trees and "climbing vine peaches."

Some horticulturalists consider the ailanthus tree to be strictly a weed tree, entirely unsuited for the home grounds.

Climbing peach vines are a close relative of the cucumber, and the fruits bear no resemblance to the peaches that grow on trees, he said.

All nurseries in Michigan must be inspected and certified by the Michigan Department of Agriculture's plant industry division. Such nurseries are reliable sources of plants and shrubs, suitable to conditions in the state.

If there is a question regarding desirability of certain types of plants, Plant Industry inspectors will gladly be of assistance, as will county agricultural extension agents, the Michigan State Agricultural Experiment station or local nurserymen.

Washington Notes

RED CHINA'S OUTPUT

Production of oilseeds in Communist China in 1959 were estimated by foreign sources at 19,100,000 short tons, a decrease of 5 per cent from 1958.

The Foreign Agricultural Service says reports indicate that there was a sharp reduction in peanut production, a 3 per cent decline in soybeans and a 5 per cent drop in cottonseed.

MILK RECORD SET

Milk production per cow in 1959 exceeded all previous records with an annual average of 5,488 pounds.

The Agriculture Department reports that production per cow shows the most significant gains last year in the West North Central and South Atlantic regions.

INCREASED COSTS

The Agricultural Research Service reports that economic developments clearly indicate that farmers' production costs this year will exceed last year's estimated $28,000,000,000.

It says the average prices paid for production goods and services in April was slightly above that of a year earlier despite lower prices for feed and livestock bought for fattening for slaughter markets.

END OF STUDENT OATH

The Senate has voted to remove the controversial, "non-subversive affidavit" from the National Defense Education Act.

The Senate action came on an amendment introduced last Jan. 27 by Senator John F. Kennedy, Democrat of Massachusetts, to strike out the affidavit and leave merely the oath of allegiance. The bill had received the endorsement of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

DEFENSE INCREASE

A drive has been opened in the Senate to expand a $40,385,000 defense money bill that is already more than $1,000,000,000 over President Eisenhower's budget request.

Senator Henry M. Jackson, Democrat of Washington, a most active backer of a bigger military buildup, urged that the bill be increased by $140,000,000 to speed the modernization of the Army.

SPACE BUDGET

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted recently to add $20,000,000 to the Administration's space budget in an attempt to relieve a budget squeeze that threatens to slow down the space program.

The appropriation, tentatively approved by a subcommittee headed by a Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat of Washington, would give the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $935,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

U. S. PAY RISE

The House of Representatives has passed a bill to give $687,000 in annual pay increases to workers. The vote was 377 to 40, or ninety-nine more than would be required to override an expected veto. President Eisenhower had asked for no increases this year.

The recent House vote sent the pay measure to the Senate, whose Post Office and Civil Service Committee a few hours earlier had recommended identical legislation.

One-hundred miles of divided four-lane highway was opened to traffic in Michigan during 1959.

FIRE DETECTION FROM THE SKY—A conservation Department pilot reports a forest fire and its location to an officer at field headquarters who pinpoints the blaze on his district map. The alarm will be relayed over an intercommunications hookup and within a matter of minutes, mechanized ground forces will be fighting the fire. Close teamwork, such as this helped Michigan to post its second best year in fire control during 1959. Strengthened by two new planes since last season, the Department's small wing of "aerial watchdogs" will give the state's forest lands better coverage in fire detection during 1960.

Michigan's Forest Fire Control System Rated Tops

Lansing—There was a time in Michigan when forest fires left their slow-healing scar on 125,000 acres each year; a time when the main defense was a huge firefighting militia poorly armed with shovels and back-pack water units.

These days, like those of all other states, Michigan has made way for mechanization. Today, Michigan's forest fire control system rates among the best in the nation.

Tanker-plow units, with four-wheel drive, hydraulic fireline plows and a host of other specialized equipment, both little and big, have replaced hundreds of men with hand tools. Small, portable well-sinking rigs have out-moded the burdensome back-pack units. Latest to come off the assembly line at the Conservation Department's forest fire experiment station near Rosecommon are modified half-track units which will join the fire suppression attack this year.

Important, forward strides have been made elsewhere since the early days. Major among these is the modern intercommunications system, boasting more than 600 mobile, portable, trailer-mounted and fixed-station radios, which provides close teamwork between ground crews manning these mechanized tools and pilots helping to direct the over-all attack.

Bolstering lookout towers, once the Department's main vanguards in fire detection, is the Department's small, but growing, squadron of planes. Two new planes were recently stationed at Marquette and Gaylord to give forest lands in the state better aerial coverage than last year when Michigan posted its second best year in forest fire control history. Other planes are based at Marquette, Rosecommon, Marquette, Newberry and Gladwin.

The Department's ground and aerial forces even have a nautical counterpart. Last year, a 25-foot surf boat was assigned along the Lake Superior shore bordering the Porcupine Mountains state park to transport men and equipment to fight fires in this remote area.

Impressive and important as all these things are in suppression, they rank second best in the total scheme of forest fire control. Fire prevention is, and always will be, No. 1. It rests with the people who use and benefit from forest lands in Michigan.

The battle against fires begins this month when landowners start their spring burning and people, by the hundreds of thousands, invade the great outdoors. Last year's fires dealt more than one-half of their 1959 acreage toll during April.

ALL OUR TOMORROWS
By Josephine Lawrence

If you read many novels you soon get the impression that everyone in the world is no older than 35 at best. If they are, then they are wishing they were, (or trying to be) in their twenties again. It is extremely refreshing to read a book like "All Our Tomorrows" that deals with life after 50 with all of its joys and problems, its grandchildren and concerns with old age... and makes it seem desirable.

The theme is very simple one. It centers around three sisters, now over 50, and their families, their sons and daughters-in-law, their grandchildren, their husbands, parents and their own lively, unpredictable mother who shares her time with them, going wherever she is needed or leaving whenever she might "be in the way." Never has family life seemed so normal in a novel. If Josephine Lawrence were telling you this story over a cup of tea in your living room, you would know that these were her closest acquaintances, and undoubtedly people that you, too, had heard about.

Technically, I suppose, the book does have a problem that it is dealing with, namely the problem of middle age and the care of older people by their children. But there is no "wonder's theme" in the book—it is a wonderfully written story of life as it really is. It will leave you feeling better for having read it and glad that there is so much goodness in the passing of the years.

—Philip Rusten.

Committee on Alcoholism Discusses Financing of Of Information Center

Establishment of an Alcoholism Information Center for Washtenaw county was the main theme of the June meeting of the Washington county Committee on Alcoholism held at noon on Thursday, June 23, at the Michigan League in Ann Arbor.

Howard Wolf, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported on plans which he and other committee members, Judge Francis O'Brien and Howard Hilton, had formulated regarding a tentative budget, possible location for the Center, and possible private funds sources for the project.

It will be necessary for the Center to be supported by donations from industries, organizations, and private individuals for its first three years of existence at least. Funds collected from these sources will be matched by a contribution from the Michigan State Board of Alcoholism.

Committee members will attempt to contact potential donors in the near future. Meanwhile, the Alcoholism Committee is compiling material which will show and more clearly define for interested individuals and organizations the urgent need for such a center in this area.

U. S. Navy Seeks Re-Enlistments of Rated Ex-Servicemen

Former Navy men who held general and service ratings at the time of honorable discharge may now re-enlist for submarine duty in the same pay grade held at the time of discharge, even if it has been as much as two years since they left the Navy.

Because of the continuing expansion of the Nuclear Powered Submarine Training program, re-enlistment for initial submarine training and duty are particularly desired from highly qualified career-minded ex-Navy men who held ratings in the 10 ratings now open for submarine duty.

With more than a dozen atomic powered submarines now in commission and many more to be commissioned shortly, training in today's new Atomic Navy can mean a career of the future as well as a future of freedom for your country, according to Navy Recruiter Chief O'Connor located at 220 N. Main St. Ann Arbor. He urges all ex-Navy men to contact him for the complete details.

THIS ONE WAS CAUGHT—Don Dickelman, senior patrol leader of Boy Scout Troop 25, displays the 26-inch Northern Pike he pulled in at Burntwood Lake, Chapleau, Ontario, while he and other Scouts were there last week for a camping-canoe trip. His was the prize catch of the 86 fish caught by the campers during the week. In true woodman fashion, however, the campers kept only enough fish for their use and returned the remainder to the water. They had three meals of fish during the week—including the 26-inch pike. Everyone on the trip caught some fish—all had good luck. Moose and many other wild animals roam the island where the Scouts camped and the Scouts had the opportunity to see many of them. Their experiences also included clearing a campsite in the island wilderness. All report having had "a wonderful time."

Investigate Before Hiring Investigator

Lansing—Secretary of State James M. Hare warned Michigan citizens to be sure that persons they may engage as private detectives are properly registered with the Department of State.

"We have been receiving an increasing number of reports of unauthorized personnel engaging in investigation activities," Hare said. "Many persons end up by being bitterly disappointed, if not cheated and swindled."

Michigan now has 120 licensed private detectives. This is double the number registered six years ago.

The increase is largely due to the fact that private detective agencies are now engaged in many more activities than trailing wayward husbands or wives or engaging in some of the pursuits practiced by television "private eyes."

Chain stores employ licensed investigators to keep their eyes on light-fingered cashiers or on customers with shoplifting tendencies. Car-wash owners engage them to take counts to determine if the cash intake checks with the number of cars which pass through the wash racks.

"The private detective business is a serious one and it becomes more respectable as leaders in the field continue to raise their standards."

The Department of State gets scores of postcard inquiries from television addicted youngsters who write for information on "how to become a private eye and get a badge to catch criminals and crooks."

Many near-functionally illiterate adults take pencil in hand to scribble that they have just finished a mail order "private detective course" and now want, by return mail, a gold-sealed license to hang on their wall.

"Many reputable persons in this growing field believe that our present licensing law is not strong enough," Hare said. "My staff and I agree. Last year the Department and the Michigan Association of Private Detectives sponsored legislation which would have established higher standards."

"Among the many changes in the proposed law was that an applicant must have at least a high school education or its equivalent, that he must be a resident of Michigan, and that he never has been convicted of a felony or high misdemeanor. The bill was killed in committee on the last day for reporting bills out, even though many key people testified strongly in favor of the bill."

BIRTHDAY HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Schooley spent the week-end in Livonia as guests of their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bergeron, and children. They had been invited by the Bergerons to attend a dance recital at Northville Saturday evening in which their granddaughter, Linda Bergeron, participated.

Then on Sunday, the Bergerons surprised Mrs. Schooley with an afternoon party in observance of her birthday.

Guests at the party were from Detroit and St. Clair Shores, some of them being childhood friends of Mrs. Schooley when she lived at Hancock.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 104 proved to be the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barth, Sr., at 881 Fletcher Rd. It was originally published in the 23 issue of The Standard without identification.

Arthur Barth, Sr., Home on Fletcher Rd. Quickly Identified by Many Area Residents

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barth, Sr., located at 881 Fletcher Rd., proved to be well known to many area people as Barth place. Following its publication without identification in the 23 issue of The Standard, E. W. Schmidt of Ann Arbor, the first to call the office for the correct identification. A son of Arthur Barth, Sr., it was home until her marriage. She has two sisters and three brothers, including the present owner of the farm, all were born in the family are Mrs. Andres (Minnie) of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Rose Geigler of Gay, Mich., Fred Barth, now of 11640 Salem Rd., and the late Carl Barth who died in 1942 as the result of an accident while working as a well driller. A coincidence is the fact that a photograph of Fred Barth's farm appeared in The Standard the previous week, June 16, as Mystery Farm No. 103.

The Fletcher Rd. farm has been in the Barth family since the present owner's father, Charles F. Barth, purchased it on Jan. 27, 1881, shortly before his marriage. March 15, 1881, to the former Louise Alber. Both lived there the rest of their lives.

Arthur Barth, Sr., their youngest son, and his wife, the former Effie Arnold, have owned the place since 1946.

The present owners have two sons and a daughter, all now married.

Arthur Barth, Jr., is married to the former Betty Kraftchick. They and their three sons, Dale, Jerold and Douglas, live at 13652 Old US-12.

The second son, Donald, whose wife is the former Joan Guenther, have a daughter, Cherie, and a son, James. They live on Bethel Church Rd., near Saline.

The daughter, Shirley, is now Mrs. William Weber. She and her husband and their sons, Jeff and Todd, live at 17450 Waterloo Rd.

Arthur Barth, Sr., is known to many Chelsea School District students as one of the drivers of school buses. He does general farming on the 123-acre place and raises registered Corriedale sheep.

The beautiful large home and all other buildings on the farm were built by Charles Barth, father of the present owner.

The Barths are members of Zion Lutheran church, Rogers Corners and Arthur, Sr., formerly served as a member of the church council for approximately 10 years.

The Barths also are members of the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau.

According to ownership records, the farm was secured from the U.S. Government, Oct. 14, 1885, by Peter Van Alstyne and J. Van Valkenburgh. Later owners included George Reeves, Jonas Freer, Elisha Freer, David Webb, Consider Cushman and Jerome Cushman. The latter was the owner when the present owner's father bought the place in 1881.

Those who correctly identified the farm, in addition to Mrs. Schmidt, are Paul Rothfuss, Mrs. Albert Schiller, Janet Bollinger, the Rev. E. J. Weiss, Charles Curtis, Mrs. George Bretschneider, Arthur Barth, Sr., Mrs. Dave Pastor, Mrs. Arthur Barth, Jr., and Blaess Elevator men.

Unmatched design and operating features! Low center of gravity for stability... single-pedal clutch and brake control... 3 forward speeds and reverse... handy attachment lift... easy accessibility! Give Your Local Merchant The Support He Deserves

Your local merchant is your neighbor and your friend. He uses the profit from his venture in support of your community. It makes no difference if he is managing a large chain store or operating a small, one-man service shop, the bulk of his profits stay right in your home town.

You may ask in what way this concerns me, a housewife or a factory worker, when I can perhaps buy cheaper by going a few miles away.

Your purchases concern you and your town in many vital ways. One of these is taxes. The average small retail store pays more in personal property tax than is paid in real estate taxes on a good farm and much more than on a home. Think what this means to your schools and your teachers!

Another thought is payroll. On an average, every full-time employee is supporting a family. Every family is in turn supporting his church, his club, his favorite charities and paying his taxes. All of this in addition to giving his family a few of the better things of life.

The average merchant in addition to paying double taxes, helps support many other local projects. Your local newspaper is made possible by local business advertising.

Cites Dangers of Inflationary Trend

East Lansing—To continue today's inflationary trend is to stifle growth and progress and to risk the loss of public confidence, Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Institute of Life Insurance, writes in the current issue of Business Topics, a publication of the Michigan State University Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

"Any premise that inflation can go on creeping at some specified rate year after year, as regularly and as predictably as clockwork, is both unrealistic and the purest nonsense from my point of view," Johnson states.

He expresses the hope that the federal budget may be balanced and the surplus used for debt reduction, thus slowing down and eventually stopping the erosion in the dollar's value.

FOR COOKING TOO

For your family's favorite beverage to work as a dependable kitchen helper. Cook with milk and taste the difference for yourself! Cooked foods are more flavorful than ever before. Use milk when you bake... in puddings and custards... in soups, gravies, sauces, creamed vegetables. Milk makes them all taste just scrumptious... adds extra nutrition, too.

Read the Constitution Before Getting Excited about 'Con-Con'

Many of the people loudest in their demands for a constitutional convention to draw up a new state constitution have never read the present document. They dismiss its value by calling it a horse and buggy constitution.

Yes, the state constitution was adopted in 1908, so it is going on 52 years of age. Yet there is no demand for a new federal constitution written in oxcart days of 1787.

The constitution of a state or nation is a set of basic laws. Few people can find anything basically wrong with Michigan's constitution, only with the amendments which have been added in the past 52 years. They can be altered or removed at any time by a vote of the people.

Preparing a new constitution would call for the expenditure of a large sum of money. The chances that the civil service and sales tax diversion provisions would be eliminated in a new constitution are remote. We'd end-up with about what we now have and a terrific cost.

The secretary of state has compiled and is now distributing a pocket-size edition of the state constitution. Even a slow reader can wade through it in about an hour. Before you get excited about "con-con," the lingo for a constitutional convention, read the constitution and insist that the constitution convention promoter read it, too.—Arenac County Independent.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Job security in upper reaches of state government is a question that bothers some of the heads of state departments.

Elected officials, of course, expect to take their chances every time their name goes before voters at the polls. But many of the men holding top administrative jobs are appointed.

The Civil Service Commission has decided to make a study to find out if there is a need to put some—or all—of these appointive jobs under the classified service.

Present regulations call for keeping the top jobs unclassified and not covered by Civil Service. The philosophy behind this is that men holding these positions would want to do so strictly on the strength of their own ability to perform required duties adequately.

Perhaps more importantly, the Civil Service Commission has assumed that appointing authorities—the Governor, state commissions or boards and the top administrators themselves—would want to hold the power to replace an administrator at will.

The Civil Service provision in the state Constitution reads as follows: "The state civil service shall consist of all positions in the state service except those filled by popular election, heads of departments, members of boards and commissions, employees of courts of record, of the Legislature, of the higher educational institutions recognized by the state Constitution, all persons in the military and naval forces of the state, and not to exceed two other exempt positions for each elected administrative officer, each department, board and commission."

But several men holding these positions, and groups with authority over them, have requested that they be classified in recent years.

If and when the Civil Service Commission decides to classify top positions for each elected administrative officer, each department, board and commission.

Required military training will have a new look at Michigan State University this fall. A recent controversy, which waxed hot and heavy at times, resulted in a shift to more academic subjects in the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program.

In both the Army and Air Force programs, male students in the first two years of college will be allowed to substitute special courses in other departments, mainly military history, for the old "hardware" courses.

These refer to subjects which deal with the weapons and other equipment used by the military forces. The advanced program, which will remain voluntary, was unchanged except for substitution of certain courses in geography and political science for present weapons courses.

All changes in the program were worked out through combined efforts of military authorities and the academic staff. In addition, a committee of faculty and military representatives was set up to carry out a continuing study of the program, and make periodic reports to the MSU Board of Trustees.

When herbs give off a dust-like aroma, they are beyond their "seasoning" days. Roberta Hershey, foods and nutrition specialist at Michigan State University, suggests herbs be purchased in small quantities and kept tightly covered on the shelf.

The incumbent would have to pass the exams and be among the top three contenders in order to be eligible for appointment.

Four positions for which classification requests were received, and which triggered the Commission decision to study the situation were Mental Health Director, now held by Charles F. Wagg; Deputy Mental Health Director, where the incumbent is Dr. Vernon A. Stehman; State Aeronautics Director, now held by James D. Ramsey, and Secretary-Manager of the Upper Peninsula State Fair, presently occupied by Ray LaPorte.

A gentle chiding to certain county officials was administered recently by Attorney General Paul L. Adams.

Adams said lawyers and District Attorneys in California had contacted him recently about failure of the Michigan officials to act in some cases involving the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support law.

The statute has to do with payment of alimony and other domestic money matters. The Michigan Attorney General urged the county officials to take prompt action to process requests filed through California courts—and courts in other states—with which Michigan has reciprocity agreements—to avoid creating a "disadvantageous situation."

"Michigan has enjoyed prompt and effective cooperation from all state and local officials in California," Adams said in a letter to prosecutors and county clerks.

Economic Strength Close Ally of Education

Lansing—Next week-end we will celebrate the 184th birthday of the Declaration of Independence. When this was written, it was a bold, courageous action of the brave colonists who would not countenance tyranny. Since then it has become a symbol to all freedom-loving peoples in the world. It is today the great beacon of hope for those whose country has been overrun by oppressors determined to destroy human rights and liberty.

On Independence Day this year, we recall again and rededicate ourselves to the principles spelled out in the Declaration of Independence. This great document sets forth our inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

We guard our liberty jealously and we are prepared to protect it and to aid its preservation wherever in the world it may be threatened.

This same zeal should be demonstrated in the preservation of life. Each year precious lives are lost on our highways because of carelessness. At this long holiday week-end, may I urge every motorist to drive carefully and to show the same consideration for life that we have always demonstrated for liberty.

Over the 1959 July 4 week-end, 14 traffic accidents caused 18 fatalities.

talities on Michigan streets and highways. These tragedies brought sorrow and suffering to the families and relatives of those whose lives were taken. It is my sincere hope that this heavy toll will not be repeated this year. A determined effort by every driver to be careful will reduce the number of deaths or, hopefully, eliminate them entirely over this happy holiday. In this way the holiday will be a happy one for all.

Only recently I had the privilege of speaking at the annual convention of the Michigan Bankers' Association. Whenever I talk to a group of bankers, I like to do a little boasting for Michigan. On this occasion, after detailing a few of the many industrial expansions in progress or just completed, I mentioned our long-range prospects.

It seems to me that one of the great potentials for increased economic strength for Michigan is education. This isn't as far removed from the task of stimulating business as many might think.

Daily it becomes more apparent that there is a definite connection between "academic" research and economic growth. Top scientists and engineers do more than study magnetic forces—they exert them. They create their own small industries as adjuncts of large corporations, interested in obtaining the benefits of the intellectual arm of the community. And they are important factors which spark economic growth.

Here in Michigan, we are in a perfect position to grow through the advancement of research. We have the skilled labor, the St. Lawrence Seaway, the second longest coastline of any state, an abundance of fresh water, space for industrial development and the universities. In our new Institute of Science and Technology, we have a facility unique in the United States that it provides for the first time direct state support of research activities.

Michigan is growing rapidly. Each year we will need more jobs. Our educational facilities will assist immeasurably in providing employment opportunities and I was happy to describe them to the bankers.

Deadline for the filing of petitions which would change the Constitutional provision for changing method of selecting judges to Constitutional Convention is July 8. Petitions seeking to have this amendment on the November ballot are being circulated. If you have not signed one, may I urge you to do so.

Controversial Dr. Keyes Campaigning Again

Former Lt. Gov. Eugene C. Keyes has returned to the political scene which makes me feel young again because Dr. Keyes holds a very special place in my rather turbulent life.

In all my years, he is the only person at whom I have thrown a punch with malice and anger. Not even in the yard back of the public school was I embroiled in fistfuffs—a shameful fact that made me feel secretly, until the incident with Dr. Keyes, that I was a coward.

Like the Johansson-Patterson fight, our encounter was before television cameras. Unfortunately, it developed that the cameras had been switched off seconds before my terrific blow to the side of the good Doctor's kisser.

And what happened later deflated me more than any shattering event in my career, as you shall see.

The "Keyes Imbroglia," as it became known among sports and political writers, was recalled the other day when the newspapers announced that Dr. Keyes is remaining in the race for the Democratic Governor.

He held that office in 1943-44 and again in 1947-48. But in those days, and in the subsequent years when he was running for Governor, the Doctor contended he was a Republican.

Not enough voters believed him in 1948, 1950 and 1954, when he ran for the GOP nomination for Governor. So this year Dr. Keyes is testing his luck as a Democrat.

Since he arrived like lightning on the political scene when he was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor in 1942, there has been amusement because Keyes is a medical doctor, a dentist and an attorney. The explanation is simple.

When Keyes was 15, and I was 10, he ran errands each Thursday afternoon for my father, who was a dentist in Windsor, Ont. His ambition was to become a medical doctor. My father persuaded him to enter dental school, instead.

After graduation, Keyes opened a dental office in Springfield, now a part of Dearborn. But he still wanted to be an M.D. so he returned to school and finally achieved his goal.

Years later, Dr. Keyes was involved in a lawsuit when Dearborn residents tried to stop him from building a private hospital in their neighborhood. They contended he was violating zoning laws.

Suspecting that his lawyers were betraying him, Dr. Keyes checked up on them by taking a couple of night courses at the Detroit College of Law.

He became interested in the law. Being a bachelor and a scholar, he kept attending classes. To his surprise, it wasn't long before he was admitted to the bar. He has never practiced that profession.

As a Detroit newspaper political writer, my association with Dr. Keyes.

Keyes was one of perplexity and misgiving. I always questioned his unfettered ambition to rule the state, suspecting he really hoped to rule the nation and perhaps the world.

On the night of Aug. 1, 1954, I was covering a series of campaign speeches at WWJ-TV in Detroit. Dr. Keyes was last on the program.

As I was making notes, I heard him say in connection with the need for more mental hospital beds:

Sitting out there is Frank Morris, who has been cracking up and who could be taken to one of our hospitals for the mentally ill.

Being a drinking newspaperman at the time, my first reaction was that Dr. Keyes was unfair in telling the truth so blatantly.

But I soon decided I had been insulted. I jumped to the stage and swung my Sunday-bunch for the first time in my life. Unlike Johansson, Dr. Keyes didn't drop.

We later appeared on television together and he apologized, explaining he had been cut off before he had a chance to say that he was using me as a hypnotical guinea pig.

However, fearing he might be right, I went on the wagon and have remained there rather steadfastly.

And now the deflating part. "Did you really hit me Frank?" Keyes asked. "I didn't feel a thing."

Catherine Dorr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dorr of Beeman Rd., and Robert Draper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Draper of Pensacola, Fla., were married at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist church. The Rev. S. D. Kinde officiated.

The bride's ballerina-length wedding gown was of white chiffon over taffeta. Her fingertip-length veil was fastened to a crown-shaped headpiece of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis and red roses.

Lana Centilli, as maid of honor, and Irene Roehm of Saline and Marjorie Coppinell of Flint, as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in ballerina length blue chiffon over taffeta. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white carnations and red roses and the two bridesmaids carried white carnations edged with blue.

Richard Draper of Pensacola, Fla., twin brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were brothers of the bride—Errol, Howard and Duane Dorr.

At the reception which followed in the church social center, Mrs. Caroline Biggs of Dexter, poured punch and Mrs. Patricia Mayer of Ann Arbor, poured coffee.

The wedding cake was cut by Mrs. Elmer Hartman and the guest book was in charge of Mrs. Eugene Shoemaker.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Draper are making their home at 500 1/2 Chandler St.

The bride attended Chelsea High school.

Mr. Draper is employed at the Stop & Shop supermarket.

LIFE SAVED

Detroit — For nearly four minutes John Plocinik, 48, was dead, but he has returned to the ranks of the living.

Plocinik's heart stopped when he arrived at a hospital for treatment of a minor ailment. A quick-thinking physician, Dr. George Holcomb, grabbed a jackknife, cut open the man's chest, massaged his heart and saved his life.

He was able to leave the hospital in less than a week.

JOY TO SADNESS
Denver — When she found her change from a supermarket purchase included three rare 1921 silver dollars, Mrs. Joanne Smith was elated. She is an enthusiastic coin collector.

But her high spirits were soon deflated. At home, she found that 70 silver dollars and $200 worth of Jefferson and buffalo nickels had been stolen from her collection.

Contributions Pour in For Chilean Relief

Pennies from children and hundreds of adults swelled the total of generosity of the American people to about $2 million in aid to the stricken in Chile, according to the American Red Cross.

Although the immediate emergency needs for food, clothing, and medicine have been met, long-range needs for housing, household items, and clothing are still to be faced with the winter season just a few weeks off and monetary contributions are still needed.

The local Red Cross responding to the request by President Eisenhower formed a Chilean Relief Commission headed by Edward Adams, Jr., president of the State Bank and Trust Co. in Ann Arbor. Adams noted that local contributions from all over the county total over $2,000 with many clubs and organizations yet to report their progress. Anyone wishing to make monetary contributions may do so at any of the Red Cross offices or to any of the offices of the State Bank and Trust Co.

NINE LIVES?

Callands, Va. — Twice lightning has struck Burtor Conner, but he still is alive and well. When he was six, lightning struck a tree near which he was standing. He was only stunned. Recently lightning struck his home while he was washing his hands. He was stunned and unconscious two hours.

Nearly everybody will perk up at the news that a distant relative has recently died and left a huge fortune for division among the heirs-at-law. Miracles rarely boom the growth of towns and cities; it is largely a matter of having some unselfish men who have some unselfish money.
