There are 13 new teachers in the elementary grades this year of 13 to date, in junior and senior high school. Two others are needed in the high school and had not been signed up at the time the accompanying lists were submitted.

Five elementary teachers and eight high school teachers are not turning this year.

The elementary teachers who have resigned to take positions elsewhere are Mr. and Mrs. Jack and Mrs. George A. Staffan, who have gone to Lansing; Mrs. Smith, former fourth grade teacher at North school, who has accepted a position in the high school; Mrs. Judith Meyer, third grade teacher at North school, now at Garden City; and Mrs. Howard, former fourth grade teacher at North school.

In addition, two elementary teachers are retiring—Mrs. Sallie Smith, who taught sixth grade at North school, and Mrs. Ruth Speltz, who was a first grade teacher at North school.

Three other elementary teachers have resigned—Mrs. Janice and Mrs. Elaine Katz, first grade teachers at South school, and Mrs. George A. Staffan, who taught third grade there.

High school teachers who have resigned are Julie Bach, physical education; George Bergman, counseling; Merle Hummel, art; William and Mrs. Duane Johnson, science; Thomas Slater, science; and Truman O'Donoghue, history and coaching; and Mrs. Maxwell, English.

Some elementary teachers have resigned—Mrs. Lucille, former kindergarten teacher at South school, will be a first grade teacher this year; Mrs. Patricia, formerly teacher of South school fifth grade, will teach sixth grade at Junior High school; and Mrs. Suzanne Cowles, fourth grade teacher at South school, will also move to the Junior High school.

Donald Young, a graduate of Bowling Green University, Okla., is a new sixth grade teacher at Junior High school. He comes to Chelsea after two years of teaching at Bucyrus, O.

One of two new kindergarten teachers at South school is Mrs. Bernice Packard, who joined the staff last year. She is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University.

The other new kindergarten teacher is Charlene Chisholm of Ann Arbor, who is a graduate of Wayne College, Detroit. She served three summers as a counselor at the Cedar Lake Girl Camp. She majored in child psychology and has devoted her spare time to social work among children.

Opening Day Schedule Told For Schools

Junior High School Principal Alan Conklin has announced the schedule for the opening day of school at the Junior High school.

He said all seventh and eighth grade students, plus all sixth graders who were in South Elementary school last year and sixth grade band students, from the North school should report to the Junior High gymnasium at 8:20 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Following a meeting to discuss school policies and regulations, all students will go to home rooms to fill out enrollment cards. At the conclusion of enrollment, students will go through a shortened schedule of classes; classes will be over at 3:00 p.m. and students will have from this time until buses leave to purchase books and locks.

Students who plan to eat lunch at the Junior High school should bring five cents if they wish to purchase milk. As soon as possible milk tickets will be sold to those who want milk on a regular basis.

Regular school hours at the Junior High school will be as follows, after Tuesday: morning sessions—8:20-11:38 a.m.; afternoon sessions—12:30-3:48 p.m.

High School Principal Charles Lane said the schedule at Chelsea Senior High school for the first day, Tuesday, Sept. 4 will be the same as that at Junior High school—students going directly to the high school auditorium at 8:20 a.m. for their opening meeting.

High school students grade 9-12 will also complete their shortened classes at 3 p.m. so they may purchase books and rent lockers, if needed, before buses leave.

The High school cafeteria will be in operation, beginning Tuesday, and will again be in charge of Mrs. Lucille Olson, assisted by Mrs. Lorenz Wenk and Mrs. Duane Weiss.

Don Schoenberg Will Be Operator Of Sinclair Station

Don Schoenberg who has been with Chelsea Hardware has been in charge of small engine repair for five years and has been in charge of four years—has taken over the Sinclair service station at the intersection of Old Manchester Rd. and M-92, 1,000 feet north of the I-94-M-92 interchange, and begins operation of the station Saturday, Sept. 1.

MOUTHPieces FOR GRIDDERS—Jack Howard, one of Chelsea High school's football team captains, is shown here being fitted with one of the mouth guards which are now required for all football players. Each boy is required to purchase the mouth guard kit containing the material for fitting, similar to that used by dentists in fitting dentures. Chelsea dentists, Dr. Andrew L. Jankens (at left in the photo) and Dr. Clare Warren, fitted the guards individually for each team member. At right, looking on as Howard was being fitted for the mouth guard Thursday afternoon is Coach Robert Taylor.

Ann Arbor Man Killed Here in Fall

Cecil L. Bennett of 813 Spring St., Ann Arbor, died Sunday afternoon as the result of a skull fracture received in a fall down the stairs leading to the basement at The Pub, 113 South Main St. The skull fracture was listed as the cause of death by the medical examiner.

According to Police Department reports, Bennett had entered the bar with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Patricia Lipnik. They stated later that they were out for a Sunday drive and had stopped here. Mrs. Bennett and her daughter went to a table and sat down and he started for the men's restroom in the basement; he had not been drinking, they said, and he had not complained of feeling ill.

Bennett was an employee of the past seven years at the Midway Gardens Bar on US-23 north of Ann Arbor and formerly was employed at Kaiser-Frazer Corp.

School Tax 2 Mills Less This Year

At the regular meeting of the Chelsea School Board on Tuesday Aug. 21, the recommendation of the Finance Committee to levy 10½ mills for operational expenses and 4½ mills for interest and bonded debt retirement for the school year 1962-1963 was adopted by the Board.

When the Board requested an additional 2 mills by vote of the electorate in May of this year, it made clear at that time, the need for this full two mills would depend on the millage subsequently spread by the Joint Allocation Board. It was emphasized at that time that only a total of 4½ mills would be necessary to meet its operational budget for the school year 1962-1963.

Inasmuch as the final spread by the Joint Allocation Board was 9½ mills, only one mill of the two mills voted was levied by the Board.

This levy of 10½ mills for operating expenses represents a decrease of one mill in the levy for the 1961-1962 school year for this purpose. A further decrease resulted from the elimination of the one mill levied for the 1961-1962 interest and bond retirement requirements in connection with the North Elementary school bond issue.

Accordingly, the total millage levied for the 1962-1963 school year will aggregate 15 mills as compared to 17 mills for the previous year.

Chelsea Milling Employees Guests At Sunday Picnic

Chelsea Milling Co. employees and their families were guests of the company at a picnic held Sunday at Dexter-Huron Park.

Following the dinner, games were provided for all children according to age groups and adults were entertained at a baseball game.

Children who won prizes in the various age groups were listed as follows: Ages one to three—penny hunting, L. McKaig; four to six years old—balloon contest, Carl Summers, watermelon contest for boys, C. Foytik, and for girls, K. Rowe; penny hunting—T. Haas.

Ages seven to nine—whistling while eating crackers, J. Push; sack race for boys, G. Banks, and for girls, B. Taylor; ball hitting, D. Erskine.

Children's Events Arranged for Opening Day

Chelsea Community Fair gets underway Wednesday, Sept. 5, which has been designated Children's Day.

Thursday, Sept. 6, is Dexter Day and a special invitation is extended to Dexter area residents to attend; also to enter exhibits.

A complete program of events for each day of the four-day fair is printed in this issue of The Standard.

Among the booths at the Fair is that of the Chelsea Co-Operative Nursery where information about the nursery will be available and where home-made yeast baked goods will be on sale. Chairman of the booth project is Mrs. Jack Musser. Her assistants are Mrs. Charles Trinkle and Mrs. Donald Rowe.

Indications are that a larger-than-ever number of entries will be exhibited in all divisions of the Fair.

At Tuesday evening's Fair Board meeting, plans were discussed for adding a new feature for the pleasure of youngsters and others who like to see "baby animals."

If enough interest is shown, a corner of the livestock building will be given over to such an exhibit. No prizes will be awarded and there will be no competition involved. The feature is planned as an added attraction and exhibit—may be children or adults, Donald Reeman and LeRoy Heller are in charge.

Blankets, tables, gates, etc., are to be put in place the first of the week and Fair officials said anyone willing to lend assistance with this work will be welcomed. The "big" starts at 8 a.m. Monday.

A children's day parade is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, beginning at the Municipal parking lot and the annual big Community Fair parade is to take place Saturday afternoon, Sept. 8.

The Fair Board, at its meeting Tuesday evening, also decided that after 7 p.m. each day of the fair, the northeast gate will be reserved for entrance only; all those leaving the grounds after that hour will be asked to use the west or south gates.

Another meeting of the Fair Board will be held at the Red School office on the fairgrounds Tuesday evening, Sept. 4.

Peace Corps Agency Now Solidly Established After Shaky Beginning

The Peace Corps first found itself near an actuality when President Kennedy advocated it in his presidential campaign of the 1960's. After his election, progress was slow in its organization and a great deal of criticism was leveled on the effort.

Many of the Republicans claimed that the new agency would build another giant bureaucracy within our government. This may have helped prevent such a bureaucracy from being formed.

To the credit of both parties, the Peace Corps has become a bi-partisan agency. This has resulted from the good which they have accomplished and the praise of both Democrats and Republicans. Members who are considered as ultra-conservative, as well as those who are considered ultra-liberal, have joined in their praise of the work of the Peace Corps. The last piece of legislation concerning it passed in Congress by a vote of 315 to 70. It would seem that it is now well established and will be an agency, no matter which party is in power.

What is the Peace Corps accomplishing, if anything? That is best answered by the fact that in every country to which the Peace Corps has gone, everyone without exception has asked to double or triple their quota of Peace Corps volunteers. Many countries which border the countries which now have Peace Corps members have requested for volunteers to come into their country, also.

Members of the Peace Corps can teach these people values which no amount of money can buy or give.

Alcoholics Anonymous Has Earned Respect of All in 27 Years of Service

Alcoholics Anonymous, which began some 27 years ago and which therefore recently observed its 27th anniversary, is an organization known and admired by all Americans.

The good work that AA is doing is generally appreciated but it accomplishes can never actually be known by the general public. So much of this good work is done privately and quietly that many achievements will never be fully known.

Perhaps the best thing citizens can learn from the work of the AA is that it has proven that alcoholism can be licked, and by the person who might be suffering from the disease.

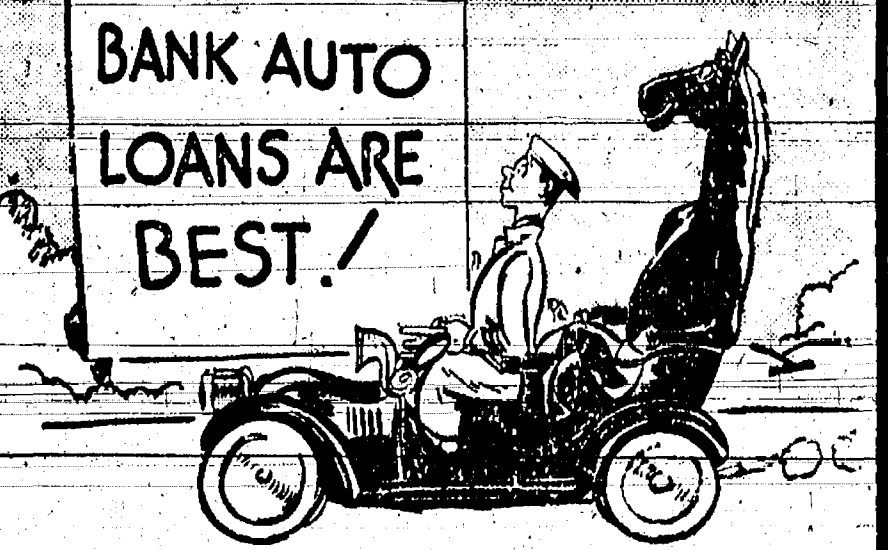

One of the first great lessons the founders gave to the world is that one can help his problem by seeking to help others and by recognizing the same problem in others. No one can say that overcoming the problem is easy or that everyone will overcome it.

Another admirable feature of AA is its anonymous nature. There are no national offices and great publicity splurges. There is very little actually known about the personal and specific work of the various AA clubs throughout the country.

Yet many persons put a considerable effort into the task of making this organization successful. The time and money some individuals put into this cause is often surprising and, because of lack of publicity and promotion, etc., such sacrifices go relatively unnoticed.

Yet few organizations in the country deserve the support and respect of the people as much as the AA. It is an organization dedicated to selfless duty—to the cause of restoring human beings to full citizenship and respect, after they have suffered an agonizing experience.

Long may the AA live and long may its wonderful work, in behalf of the dignity of man, be known and appreciated.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Michigan's birth rate has been on a steady decline for the past four years, State Health Department officials note.

The number of births recorded in 1947 was 192,230, a drop of 2,698 from the 1946 report. The state's birth rate has been dropping over the last four years at a rate of 1.2 to 1.4 percent annually, said State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis.

A highlight of tourism in Michigan through last fall is the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the War of 1812. That was the year the British captured Fort Mackinac in a surprise attack on the American garrison.

The fort museum on the island depicts the original garrison life through various years with manikins fully dressed in the uniform of the day.

While no automobiles are allowed on the island, visitors may soak in the historic atmosphere of the tourist spot on bicycles, horseback, in horse-drawn cabs, or short walks.

The island fort was built by the British in the 1780's after they abandoned the old Fort Michilimackinac, at the present Mackinac City on the mainland.

This restored fort also is a highly-regarded tourist attraction. The fort on the island was turned over to American forces in 1796 but was recaptured by the British in the War of 1812. It was turned back to the Americans in 1815 and remained an active army post until 1895.

State officials turned a major portion of the island into the current tourist attraction by making it a state park development.

Mental health programs have increased and improved greatly in the past 12 years under the direction of State Director Charles F. Wagg, according to the Mental Health Commission.

Wagg recently was nominated by the Commission for a national award recognizing contributions to the field of mental retardation.

In this specialized field of mental health, the Commission noted Michigan's home and training school for the mentally retarded in 1950 to nine this year. Two facilities to accommodate mentally retarded children jumped from the care of 2,800 patients to 10,082 in the same 12-year period.

The staff serving in institutions for the mentally retarded also was increased during the 12 years, from one staff member for every 3.77 patients in 1950 to one staffer to every 2.5 patients this year.

Expansion of therapy departments, improvement of the quality as well as number of staffers, and extension of clinical services in the operation of 19 child guidance clinics and 12 branches were also cited as major accomplishments during the period.

Wagg started his service with the Mental Health Department 25 years ago and was named director in 1949. A year later he started a long-range program of improvement which prompted the Commission citation for service.

The annual calm of the summer has finally arrived in the State Capitol. The legislative chambers, busy for about six months each year, become almost deathly quiet during the summer months between sessions.

In an election year particularly, the interim committees named to study various state problems frequently delay their working sessions until well after the August primary.

Soon to begin, however, are the endless committee meetings, on laws or ideas for laws relating to trading stamps, state parks, juvenile delinquents, community colleges, and scores of other miscellaneous subjects.

In the interim between the 1951 and 1952 legislative sessions, some 70 committees existed to study laws. Less than 10 per cent of the committees turned in reports or recommendations.

Of the committees which do work on the study assigned, however, most present valuable recommendations to the Legislature; either proposing regulation or recommending retention of the status quo.

Pickle Problems

As anyone knows who's back has ached picking them... "pickles" pose problems. And in Michigan, about 2,000 farmers have first-hand experience with the backache and the headaches they produce, for Michigan is the nation's top cucumber pickling state.

The delicious gherkin is not exactly delicate. They are fast-growing, high producing members of the same cucurbit family which includes cantaloupes. Getting them to grow is not the big problem, it's the work involved in harvesting the crop. As the tired washer-woman said, "I wouldn't mind the work if it wasn't so daily!"

And when cucumbers come into bearing, the whole "patch"—which in Michigan can run up to 200 acres in size, must be picked by hand approximately every other day. Since price is closely tied to size, the smaller number ones are most desirable. Besides better price-growers have another incentive to keep the cucumbers small. When a cucumber ripens, (turns yellow)—it sends some sort of hormone signal back down the vine to tell a halt to the total growth process. A field can be ruined by letting a few cucumbers mature on the vines.

What prevents automation in the pickling-cucumber industry? According to Noel Stuckman, of the Market Development Division of the Michigan Farm Bureau, it's the very nature of the cucumber vine. "Since fruit does not all 'set' at the same time, the vines bear cucumbers in all degrees of maturity, from blossoms to the large and nearly worthless cucumbers.

Before automation becomes practical, some method must be found to assure uniform ripening." Stuckman, who is a recognized fruits and vegetables authority, reported that plant biologists are nearing their goal. He described the cucumber-pickle of the future as growing on a bush-type plant with little or no vine, and bearing small fruit that matures at the same time. "At this point, automation becomes truly practical," Stuckman says.

He foresees a harvesting machine that uproots the entire bush and strips the cucumbers in one operation. Researchers at Michigan State University have already developed a cucumber strain that produces nothing but fruit-bearing female blossoms. Stuckman reports... a prime break-through in the direction of less backache and headaches and more income for Michigan cucumber farmers.

Miss Wackenhut Displaying Many Antique Heirlooms

Miss Lillian Wackenhut entertained at a luncheon Wednesday, Aug. 22, at her Chelsea home, 220 South Main St., in honor of her niece, Miss Marguerite Eison of Detroit, a highlight of the affair being the presentation to Miss Eison of a "pearl chair" more than 100 years old. The chair, which belonged to Miss Eison's great-grandmother, Mrs. George Wackenhut. The cane-seated chair is in excellent condition with the original cane still intact.

Long admired by Miss Eison, the chair was the property of Miss Wackenhut, who gave it to her niece as a birthday gift.

For the pleasure of Miss Eison and the other luncheon guests, Miss Wackenhut had arranged a display of some of the family heirlooms she has and many of her friends, interested in antiques have called at her home during the past week to see them.

The luncheon was served on a table covered with a red-bordered white linen damask cloth which had been brought from Germany by Miss Wackenhut's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Steinbach. The design of the damask cloth included figures of turkeys, flowers and fruits surrounding the central design representing a house.

In the display of antique items were several smaller embroidered linen table covers; this linen, still in good condition was woven in Germany by Mrs. Henry Steinbach from flax grown and spun there. It was brought to the United States when the Steinbachs came here to make their home about 100 years ago.

Also on display was a large Bible, printed in 1834 in Germany; it had been brought to Chelsea by Miss Wackenhut's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wackenhut, and was used for early services of a group of 11 families who later formed the congregation of St. Paul's church here. The services were conducted in the home of Miss Wackenhut's grandparents, now the home of Mrs. Martha Weinmann, 527 South Main St.

Miss Wackenhut has a photo of the house as it appeared before the outer appearance was changed by adding a large porch. Additional Bibles, books of sermons, prayer books, hymn books and a "primer" containing children's prayers, all printed in German, are among the items on display—some of these dating back to 1854.

Clothing and accessories on display included a black-bordered mourning handkerchief and a long black crepe mourning veil; other items are a cane snuff box brought from Germany, a fancy hand-made bookmarks, floral design calling cards, albums of photographs of the Steinbach and Wackenhut families, and a baptismal certificate of Miss Wackenhut's great-grandfather Wackenhut, dated Feb. 6, 1794.

An old-fashioned school slate in the collection on display, had been a gift to Miss Wackenhut's mother from Mrs. Carrie Vogel Maroney (mother of Paul Maroney) who had decorated the back of it with a hand-painted floral design.

Because of interest in the display, Miss Wackenhut planned to leave the items in place for the remainder of the week.

Among the guests at Wednesday's luncheon were Mrs. Hannah Schoen and Miss Emilie Steinbach of Dexter, and Mrs. Elba Gage of Chelsea.

State Conventions . . .

Congressman-at-Large: Republican, Alvin M. Bentley, 43, of Owosso: Democrat, Neil Staebler, 56, of Ann Arbor.

The Republican convention platform was unusually brief—little more than three pages. The resolutions called for more jobs and economic development in Michigan; it also denounced the John Birch Society; it promised "action" to meet state problems such as the "financial mess" and — ignoring the words income tax—pledged to "first find out where our state dollar goes, getting more for each dollar spent, and enact a sound and equitable tax structure."

The GOP civil rights plank pledged "full support of the principles of equal protection, equal rights and opportunities. We shall strive to eliminate all barriers to equal opportunity in . . . employment, education, housing and public accommodations."

The Democratic platform, approximately 40 pages in length, had lengthy planks on civil rights, education and programs for the aged, based on party stands of previous years. It opposed the new constitutional document, which was endorsed by the Republican convention.

The tax plank of the Democratic platform called for Gov. Swainson's plan for "an equitable system— which contained a personal and corporate income tax; repeal of the sales tax on food and drugs, repeal of the business activities tax, and aid to municipalities and school districts. But the plank did not spell out the income tax as such. Another plank condemned the John Birch Society as "dangerous; anti-American."

The U. S. Public Health Service will spend more than $2 million on a seven-year study of community health programs by University of Michigan researchers.

Local 1284 Calls for Effort To Make 'Safest Labor Day'

Jack A. Taylor, president of UAW Local 1284, today called for all union members to make this Labor Day the safest holiday ever.

"Labor's own holiday should not be one marked by tragedy. Safe driving practices and careful observation of the road will do much to make this a great holiday for everyone," Taylor said.

Last year's Labor Day holiday saw 380 traffic deaths; 59 drownings and 24 boating fatalities, according to the National Safety Council. The UAW Local 1284 is participating in the Labor Day safety campaign sponsored by the Standing Committee on Safety and Health of AFL-CIO and the Labor Conference of the National Safety Council.

"The traffic toll last year was the fifth lowest on record for a Labor Day weekend," Jack Taylor said. "And when the number of cars in use and the miles they traveled are taken into consideration, it was the safest Labor Day on record."

"But these deaths are still too many. Safety is everybody's job on the highway, in the home and at work. Accidents can be prevented if all concerned do their part. Union people are urged to join this all-out effort to save lives and maintain the dignity of Labor Day."

Beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, the nation's streets and highways will start to swarm with probably the greatest number of cars ever to take to the road.

The intelligent driver will keep this in mind and remember that the increased traffic increases the possibility of accidents. So he will drive defensively, Taylor asserted. Such a driver will be especially alert during the holiday, Taylor explained. He will observe all the rules of good driving, but he will not depend upon the other driver always doing so. When he sees another car approaching a crossroad at a high rate of speed, he will slow down.

He is always ready to yield the right of way. He does not depend on the other driver to yield or to obey a stop sign. By slowing, he increases his own control of the situation by being able to stop quickly or to take other measures to avoid possible trouble.

The defensive driver rests frequently and will not drive when he is overtired. He will not drink if he must drive afterwards. He knows and follows the rules of the road.

Others on the road who do not obey the basic safety rules, and is alert for them so that he and his family do not become innocent victims of another's recklessness or mistake.

Sent bolts can help protect members of families from death or critical injury. An immense amount of scientific research, including actual vehicle crashes under controlled conditions, proves that the automobile seat belt is the most effective single item of protective equipment to reduce the toll of traffic injuries and deaths.

Favorite Labor Day outings are picnics, fishing trips, boating and swimming. Unfortunately, these activities also have fatal consequences each year. Drownings lead the list.

About two-thirds of the drownings each year are not of swimmers, but of persons who fall into the water from boats, piers, bridges, etc., fully clothed. Swimmers and waders take an unnecessary risk when they go into unguarded or unpatrolled areas of lakes and rivers.

Taylor asked everyone to follow these tips on water safety: Supervise children playing in or near water; swim and boat only with companions, never alone; provide each person in the boat with a Coast Guard approved life preserver; should the boat swamp or overturn, stay with it and wait for help or push and paddle it toward shore.

"Those who plan to spend the week-end at home should not leave their safe practices at work Friday," Taylor said. "The safe way of doing anything is the right way—anywhere."

WILLS UNCLE SAM $14,000
Miami — A Spanish-American War veteran will $14,000 dollars to the federal government because, "The government has been good to me, and I'm giving the money back."

Marc Anthony, 92, made this statement shortly before his death in his trailer home. He had managed to save the majority of the pension the government had paid him.

Many people who keep working after they become 65 can get monthly social security checks despite their earnings. Working people over 65 should visit their nearest social security office to see if they're eligible for benefits. The Social Security Administration urges.

U.S. Navy's TALOS Missile Will Be Displayed at Fair

The Navy TALOS missile will be one of the outstanding attractions of a Navy display at the Chelsea Community Fair from Sept. 5 to Sept. 8.

The first sea launching of the Navy's TALOS missile took place on 4, 1960 aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Galveston (CG-3). Within 10 seconds after launching, the TALOS was speeding toward its target at speeds more than twice the speed of sound.

The take-off power of the TALOS is furnished by a 10-foot high propellant rocket booster which is jettisoned when the missile reaches cruising speed. Ignition simultaneously with the jetting of the booster, the missile's 4,000 horse-power ram jet ignites powers the TALOS to its target, allowing it to maintain a high altitude and speed throughout its flight at an altitude higher than that capable of any known missile.

TALOS, a surface-to-air missile 20 feet in length and weighs 3,000 pounds. It is capable of striking either a conventional or nuclear warhead. Although TALOS is primarily a surface-to-air missile, it may be used against ship and shore bombardment targets, and has successfully hit targets miles from its launching site. The missile is controlled by a guidance system. When launched, the missile is guided by radar beam. When underway, the missile's homing device guides to the target.

Developed by the Applied Physics Laboratory of Johns Hopkins University under the Navy's Bumblebee program, TALOS represents years of research and development to provide the U. S. Fleet with an atomic-age weapon.

Other than the USS Galveston, TALOS is used aboard the cruisers USS Little Rock, USS Oklahoma, USS Albany, U. S. Fall River, USS Chicago and the atomic powered cruiser USS Long Beach.

Annual State 4-H Show Underway On MSU Campus in East Lansing

There's a lot more to a university than classrooms. More than 8,000 4-H members, their club leaders, and visitors will tour Michigan State University's most fascinating experimental crop plots during the 47th annual State 4-H Show Aug. 27-30.

As a new program feature 4-Hers will visit the farm crops exhibit, experimental area south of the MSU campus. The walking tour will make featured stops at MSU's new turf-grass research plots, the forage crops nursery, and the field crops laboratory.

State Show will also feature a visit to the Davison Chemical Co. in Lansing. At this plant, members will see fertilizer in the making.

On another tour, 4-Hers interested in landscaping and home planning will visit a nursery home and a well-designed rural landscape in the Lansing area. This will top off a program featuring at least 10-15 prize home plans and models designed by 4-H members.

"We stress simplicity along with beauty in rural home design," points out MSU home planning specialist Joe Cox. "Farm families have little time to design or maintain elaborate yards."

Both the crops and landscaping tours should draw large crowds. In 1961, about 2,800 Michigan 4-Hers had field crops projects. More than 4,500 completed projects involving home-grounds beautification.

The State 4-H Show program reflects these new interests of club members. It reaches far beyond the livestock show and the traditional dress reviews.

Engagement Period Is Still Needed Says U-M Prof.

Ann Arbor — Is the engagement period before marriage an obsolete social custom?

A University of Michigan sociologist says, "No."

The engagement definitely has its value as "a ritualized transition," notes Prof. Robert O. Blood, Jr. "In any society ritualization of the transition from single youthfulness to married adulthood adds strength and stability to the institution of marriage."

Says Blood: "The engagement period lasts so long that we rarely think of it as a ceremony. However, the girl's ring on her finger, picture in the paper, and round of showers merit the use of the term even though the male partner is marginal to the process."

Writing in his recent book, "Marriage," the U-M expert on marriage and family relations notes that the engagement fulfills three major purposes:

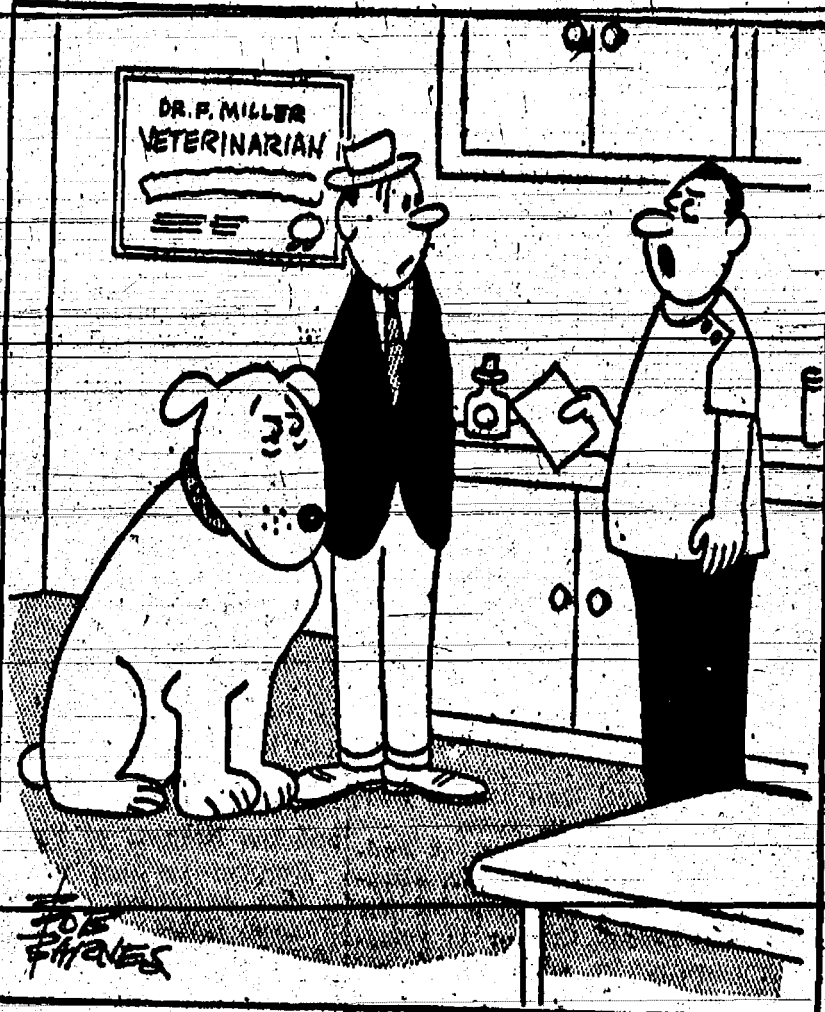

It serves public notice of serious intent. It not only gives outsiders (parents, for example) a chance to intervene but also gives couples themselves a taste of what it's like to be recognized as a unit.

It's the last chance to protest the marriage. "It is an opportunity to see what it feels like to be almost married but not quite—partly committed but not completely."

Finally, the engagement "sets the wheels of planning turning at full speed. Plans must be made not only for the wedding and honeymoon but also for the first year of marriage."

The U. S. Bureau of Public Roads reports Michigan led all states during 1961 in the award of contracts for construction of interstate highways. Michigan started construction on 182 miles of interstate highways.

Laff Of The Week

Wool Referendum Ballots To Be Mailed Next Week

Ballots for voting in the referendum on the lamb and wool production and market development program will be mailed between Sept. 4 and 7 to producers in Washtenaw county, Max M. Kalmbach, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, announced today.

The referendum will determine whether or not deductions will continue to be made from producer payments earned under the wool incentive program. Funds collected are used by the American Sheep Producers Council to carry out a program of advertising, promotion, and related activities under an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture.

Variety of Exhibits In State 4-H Show Seems Endless

Rural life is getting more complex. This trend is apparent from the vast array of project being represented in the 47th annual State 4-H Show at Michigan State University, Aug. 27-30.

Prize exhibits and displays will range from hogs to home design, from driving of tractors and automobiles to diplomas. About 8,000 young men and women the cream of Michigan's 4-H Crop, will take part.

As always, there will be a distinct rural flavor to the gala affair. The meaty hog, blocky lamb and prize steer will all be there. But other show rings will also feature horses and dogs—animals often raised by urban and rural non-farm youngsters.

In 1961, more than 14,000 of Michigan's 71,000 4-H members lived in town. Another 28,000 were classed as rural non-farm. This difference of interest shows up in the State Show program.

Events held for the first time this year include: A tour of a plant nursery and some well-designed rural landscapes in the Lansing area. Many of the over 4,000 4-Hers who completed home-beautification projects last year will take this tour.

Progress is being made at Michigan State University on a vibrating plow which is designed to vibrate up and down as it moves through the soil, improving the seedbed and eliminating such field tillage operations as disking and harrowing.

Public Library Begins Fall Schedule Sept. 1

McKune Memorial Library, which has been on a summer schedule since June, returns to the fall and winter schedule Sept. 1: open daily from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, and evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

During the summer the evening hours were restricted to Fridays only.

The library will be closed all day Monday, for the Labor Day holiday, the first regular evening hours—that week being Wednesday, Sept. 5.

A new sign, the gift of an anonymous donor, was erected this week just inside the walk leading to the library. The wrought iron sign, in two parts, hangs from a crossarm attached to a square redwood post painted white.

The upper portion of the sign gives the daily library hours, 12 to 5 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday and the smaller lower portion tells the evening hours.

In the summer the sign gives the evening hours as Friday only, 7 to 9 p.m.; in the fall, this part of the sign is removed and another one attached, stating the library is open three evenings a week, Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday.

The new sign is an attractive utilitarian addition to the library facilities.

Thomas Tucci contributed his work to paint the sign for the anonymous donor.

When the bridge opens, ferries that have been carrying traffic between the two Soo's since 1888 will be discontinued.

Proposed Zoning Ordinance Studied by Lyndon Residents

The public hearing for a Lyndon township permanent zoning ordinance was held at the Lyndon Town Hall, Saturday evening, Aug. 25. There were about 50 property owners present.

George Bauer, township supervisor, opened the meeting. He stated that the meeting was called for the purpose of informing property owners of any changes or amendments that had been made to the Interim Zoning Ordinance before the text was submitted to the Township Board for approval. This must be done in accordance with the Rural Township Zoning Act and is a legal requirement in the process of adopting a permanent zoning ordinance. Supervisor Bauer then introduced Charles Balze, chairman of the township Zoning Board. The other members of the Zoning Board who were present, Wynne Boyce and Mrs. Thomas Masterson, were also introduced.

Balze said that a large number of property owners had requested that the zoning question be brought to a vote. According to the issue must be brought to the electorate at the next election if there is sufficient time for the proper notices and ballots to be prepared. With this in mind, the Zoning Board had made every effort to revise the existing Interim Zoning Ordinance to make it better meet the needs of the community; submit same to a public hearing; secure the approval of the County Co-ordinating Committee; another required step; submit the ordinance to the Township Board for approval and meet the necessary dates to put the question on the November ballot. However, some technicalities may still postpone the voting to a later date.

Several people present stated they would like to become better acquainted with the provisions of the entire ordinance before the question is put on the ballot. It was suggested that another hearing be held after the text of the ordinance is printed in the paper. It would then be possible to better inform the interested property owners regarding the purpose, provisions and administration of the ordinance in a more informal neighborhood meeting or another Town Hall meeting, as desired. Suggestions and questions concerning possible changes may also be made at such recommendations presented to the Township Board. This possibly may be done and still be on the question on the November ballot.

Mrs. Masterson advised who attended the meeting zoning should not be confused with building codes. Zoning is primarily with the use of property of land use with the various areas best suited for particular purposes such as farms, homes, lake homes, stores, recreation areas, shops, and even industry, which are logically a part of a rural community. What Is The PTA?

This is the second of four articles prepared as an introduction to the 1962-63 school year as it concerns the Chelsea Parent-Teacher Association.

The only meeting scheduled for the PTA so far this year is on Sept. 19, at 8 p.m. The association will be unable to continue beyond that date without a president.

No one was elected last March to succeed David Soule who has been president for the last two years. Today's article answers the question, "What is the PTA?"

The PTA is a noncommercial, nonsectarian, and nonpartisan organization whose purpose is to promote the welfare of children and youth in home, school, church, and community; to raise the standards of home life; to secure adequate laws for the care and protection of children and youth; to bring into closer relation the home and the school, that parents and teachers may co-operate intelligently and to develop between educators and the general public such united efforts as will secure for every child the highest advantages in physical, mental, social, and spiritual education.

In these trying times the development of a sound educational program is essential to protect and maintain the future welfare of our children. That the lay citizen should participate in determining the nature of the school program has been an integral part of the American tradition—ever since the founding of the first public school in Massachusetts.

The PTA gives everyone the opportunity to unite his efforts in working toward a common goal—the welfare of children and youth. To belong and actively participate makes you a partner in this great and important enterprise.

New Boating Regulations Are in Effect

Lansing—Motorboat owners are reminded by the Conservation Department that many new regulations are now in force governing the operation of watercraft in Michigan.

Among those which took effect Aug. 1 is the requirement that all motorboats in use must be equipped with one Coast Guard-approved life preserver, vest, ring buoy, or cushion for every person on board.

It also calls for one Coast Guard approved B-1 type fire extinguisher on motorboats less than 26 feet long which are of closed or semi-closed construction. At least two of these extinguishers are required for the same type of motorboats 26 to less than 40 feet long. For motorboats 40-65 feet long, the minimum is three B-1 extinguishers.

Another new regulation provides that boats must, as near as possible, operate their craft in a counter-clockwise fashion in unmarked channels, canals, or rivers. In such areas, watercraft must be kept at least 100 feet away from docks, rafts, bathing areas, and boats that are moored or at anchor.

Exceptions may be made to this when boats are being operated at a speed of five miles per hour or less, or are engaged in picking up or dropping off water skiers in a safe manner.

The following new rules apply in the event of a possible collision:

(1) When two boats are approaching each other head on or nearly so, each operator must bear to the right; (2) when overtaking another boat, the operator must pass on the port side of the vessel ahead if it is safe to do so; and (3) when two boats are approaching each other at right or oblique angles, the operator on the right must hold his course and speed while the other operator must give way to the craft on his starboard side by altering his course to pass behind its stern. If necessary, he must slow down, stop, or reverse his boat.

Copies of a folder giving more details on these and other new rules and a complete rundown on previous regulations are available through the Secretary of State's office in Lansing.

If at least two-thirds of the growers voting approve quotas for 1934, wheat, price support available to growers who comply with their allotment will be at a national average of at least $1.82 per bushel (75 percent of parity).

Marketing quota penalties will apply to the "excess" wheat of growers with more than 15 acres of wheat who do not comply with their farm wheat allotments.

If the quotas are not approved by the necessary two-thirds of those voting, there will be no quotas or marketing penalties for the 1934 crop of wheat, but the price support available to growers who comply with their wheat acreage allotments will drop to 50 percent of parity, or a national average of about $1.21 a bushel.

In either case, no price support will be available on the 1933 wheat crop to growers who do not comply with their farm wheat acreage allotments.

Proclamation of wheat marketing quotas is directed by legislation whenever the supply of wheat is more than 20 percent above the normal supply. Actually, the total supply for 1932-33 is estimated at 2.4 billion bushels—60.5 percent above normal.

Marketing quotas have been in effect for the past nine wheat crops, as approved by growers voting in referendums held annually on the question.

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN MICHIGAN, the new mines in the southwest corner of the state were supplying the Union with desperately needed iron ore. And, all over Michigan, beer was supplying folks with sparkling refreshment.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of hospitality to any occasion. Folks in Michigan have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its Centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.
