Chest Drive Is Extended Until Nov. 15

Due to a slowness of returns in several areas a 10-day extension to the 1963 campaign has been announced by Donald Baldwin, chairman of directors.

At the time of intended completion, Monday, Nov. 5, a total of $13,499.55 had been collected, representing 87.6 percent of the $15,400 goal.

"Although many areas are not yet complete, we doubt very much the goal will be met," said Larry Chapman and Tom McLean, campaign co-chairmen.

"It may be that some people were unintentionally overlooked during the door-to-door solicitation," Chapman further stated, "if this is the case contributions may be mailed to the Chelsea Community Chest or people may contact me at GR 5-8248 or Baldwin at GR 5-8245 and we will see that someone calls at once."

Governor Swainson Defeated To End 14-Year Democratic Reign in State

With George Romney victorious in Tuesday's election, Michigan will have a Republican governor for the first time in 14 years. The gubernatorial race in Michigan between the Democratic incumbent, Governor John B. Swainson and Industrialist Romney was the most hotly-contested election in the state in more than 10 years. Incomplete figures yesterday listed Romney's plurality as 75,000.

Romney's victory was announced as "assured" in election broadcasts as early as 10 p.m. Tuesday night in spite of the fact that at that time Swainson had a majority of the votes from early returns.

Incumbent Democratic Lieutenant Governor T. John Losinski also led in early returns; he was successful in his bid for re-election when he topped Republican Clarence A. Reid by more than 25,000 votes.

Incumbent Democrats—Secretary of State James M. Hare, Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, State Treasurer Sanford A. Brown and Auditor General Billie S. Farnum—all were re-elected.

Nell Staebler of Ann Arbor, Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large, defeated Republican Alvin M. Bentley.

Republican George Mender was re-elected representative in Congress from the Second District; and also re-elected were Republicans Stanley G. Thayer, state senator, 33rd district, James F. Warner, state representative 2nd district, and Gilbert Bursley, state representative 1st district.

Bursley defeated the Democratic candidate, Henry L. Bretton by 6,000 votes. The tabulation was 16,878 to 9,860.

Chelsea Police Chief John Palmer polled a total of 21,889 votes in his race for the office of Washtenaw county sheriff. He carried his home township, receiving 812 votes to incumbent Republican Sheriff George A. Petersen's 735. Sheriff Petersen's total was 31,816.

All county Republicans were re-elected—William F. Ager, Jr., prosecuting attorney; Luella M. Smith, county clerk; Patricia Newkirk Hardy, register of deeds; John H. Flook, drain commissioner; and Herbert S. Hicks, surveyor.

Also successful was Republican Sylvester A. Leonard in his bid for election as county treasurer. He received a total of 33,080 votes while the Democratic candidate, Thomas E. Kaas received 20,552.

On the non-partisan ballot for State Supreme Court Justice, Paul L. Adams, an appointee of Gov. Swainson, was defeated by Michael D. O'Hara of Menominee; Judge Otis M. Smith, however, defeated his challenger, Circuit Judge Louis J. McGregor of Flint.

The constitutional amendment was approved in Washtenaw county by a vote of 21,987 "yes" and 14,565 "no," following the general trend in the state.

In Freedom township, the proposal popularly spoken of as the question of "liquor by the glass," was defeated by a vote of 283 "no" to 175 "yes."

A tabulated list of votes cast for all candidates in area townships and in Washtenaw county, appears in this issue of the paper.

Argus Considering Possible Move Away from Ann Arbor

Argus, Inc., Ann Arbor Division, has been considering the option of moving a new plant in the Chelsea area and the area is considered good "bench mark" for comparison with other sites in Washtenaw county.

The presence of an active, organized Economic Development committee, available land and available utilities provide for a factual, economic analysis, according to a statement made yesterday by Mrs. W. Thompson, division general manager.

Thompson explained that the study is part of a long-range program to plan a future direction of division; the study is strictly a preliminary stage.

The Argus Division is presently located in leased buildings in Ann Arbor, buildings which have been described by Thompson as "inadequate and inefficient."

Chelsea Village Councilman R. Barry, Jr., who is chairman of Chelsea's Economic Development committee, said yesterday that the study is part of a long-range program to plan a future direction of division; the study is strictly a preliminary stage.

New Teacher Joins Faculty

Jack Weiss, who was a teacher and coach at Belleville for four years following his graduation in 1950 from Eastern Michigan University, replaces Jack Musser as shop instructor at Chelsea High school. Musser resigned to accept a position with the Grand Haven school system and began his new duties there on Monday of this week.

Weiss has been in business the past eight years in the Ypsilanti area.

His wife is the former Barbara Warner, the daughter of State Representative and Mrs. James Warner.

Committee, said yesterday that the committee has met with Thompson in recent weeks in an effort to learn the needs of the company and to offer the committee's services in meeting those needs. Barry said the EDC has option on three parcels of land in the I-94-M-22 interchange area; these sites, the committee pointed out in meetings with Thompson, appear to be ideal for the future expansion being studied by the Argus Division.

Burr said the committee is continuing its work to further acquaint Argus officials with the facilities in the Chelsea area, the availability of utilities, the tax structure here, and any other matters of interest to the firm in its study of future expansion.

ILLEGAL GUN, QUAIL.—The two quail, barely visible in the photo because of their size, together with the sawed-off ".22" rifle Conservation Officer Donley Boyer is holding, meant trouble for two Whitmore Lake men apprehended in Webster township at 1 a.m. Sunday. In the first place, quail are protected game birds in Michigan, illegal to shoot at any time, and in the second place, the sawed-off gun is considered a concealed weapon. The law states guns with barrels less than 18 inches long are illegal; the one confiscated by Boyer had a barrel only 13 inches long in violation of Internal Revenue Bureau regulations. The two men in the car also had the other three guns shown in the photo in the front seat when Sheriff's Deputies Henry Fuller and Theodore Podewell stopped them. They called Boyer when they found the guns and the two quail. In Municipal Court, Ann Arbor, Monday morning, the two Whitmore Lake men—Richard Wagner, 22, and David Fowler, 24—were assessed fine and costs of $27.30 each on the charge of having the quails in their possession after pleading guilty. A warrant was to be issued on the concealed weapons charge, Boyer said.

DOOMED.—The old peat plant a familiar sight in the southeast part of the village for more than 50 years, is being torn down this week, having been condemned as dangerous. Area children have long found the old building an attraction—climbing through the broken windows, jumping from the old sills to the ground and playing in and around the structure. Village officials and area parents have been concerned because of the dangerous condition of the old walls and have repeatedly warned children to keep away from the ruins. Out-of-town owners of the property apparently were unwilling to finance repairs or upkeep and the Village Council took action to have the building razed. Originally built in the location adjacent to the peat marsh area for the purpose of preparing the peat for sale, as such, the venture proved unprofitable. During the war the building was reconducted sufficiently for use as storage space for Federal Screw Works; since then it has been idle and gradually deteriorated. The location now appears to be in rather inaccessible spot; however, when it was built the former electric railway line ran along the edge of the property and electric freight cars provided a convenient means of shipping the company's product.

President Kennedy Wins His Most Important Victory in Cuban Crisis

President John F. Kennedy has apparently won his most important, and certainly his most dramatic victory in the foreign-policy field. The decision of Premier Nikita Khrushchev to back down and dismantle his missile bases in Cuba, and to return these missiles to Russia, was a big relief to all Americans.

This is the most decisive triumph of forceful United States action to be witnessed in many years, and significantly, it was the president himself, taking charge of foreign affairs in the crisis, who won that victory.

The U. S. accomplishment is not insignificant. It includes having gained a 19-0 vote of support from the Organization of American States, in the crisis. It includes having received the support, even if nervous at times, from our principal European allies.

It brings about removal of the missiles threat in Cuba (if the Russian pledge is fulfilled) and it reduces tension between the United States and Cuba, and between the U. S. and Russia.

The Berlin crisis still remains and it may be that the move in that area of the world will be initiated by Khrushchev. But in any event, if that move is made, it will not be supported by a ring of missile bases with rockets aimed at U. S. cities from Cuba.

The Kennedy administration has retrieved with this one decisive show of determination and force much of the prestige it lost in the last 18 months in Laos, in West Germany, and in Cuba.

With this victory the U. S. show of determination could not fail to impress the neutrals and convey the message to a questioning world that the Communist tide is not inevitable, that it can be rolled back, that a determined Washington can roll back that threat.

Experts Always Trying To Define Difference Between Political Parties

A national magazine recently featured an article on the differences between Democrats and Republicans. The article was productive of quite a few smiles in these politically-charged days.

The Ladies Home Journal states that the differences between a Democrat and a Republican are as follows: A Democrat eats the fish he catches, while a Republican hangs his on the wall. A Democrat names his children after sports figures, politicians and entertainers while a Republican names his after parents or grandparents—according to where the most money is.

A Republican is likely to have fewer but larger debts that cause him no concern. Republicans post "no trespassing" signs and Democrats bring picnic baskets and start their bonfires with the signs, etc.

The Republican party is called the "country club set" or the "fat cat" crowd and the Democratic party is billed as the "labor party" or the "poor man's party."

While there may sometimes be similarities between some of these definitions and reality, there are also millions of free-thinking Americans who do not fit into this pattern, and in a free country this is a basic democratic strength.

Nowadays when they speak of a girl reaching that "awkward age" it means that she's too old for teddy bears and too young for wolves.

Middle Age Health

Are you one of the "neglected" segment of the American population where health is concerned? We're neglecting the middle-age segment of our population in our concern for the health of the very young and the very old," contends Dr. John A. Cowan, director of the State Health Department's Division of Tuberculosis and Adult Health.

What Cowan calls "health conservation" measures should be stressed among them 20 to 45 year age group. These measures primarily consist of periodic health examinations. Many chronic diseases which afflict persons in their later years could be prevented by early detection and treatment in the younger years, when the individual is apparently healthy and not concerned about the prospect of chronic disease, Cowan says.

A recent national health survey showed about 35 percent of the population in the 20 to 45 age group has one or more chronic disease conditions, Cowan recalled. "If we would only apply the knowledge that we have today in preventive and curative medicine, much of the chronic illness and disability present in today's aging population could be dispensed," he said.

Electronics in Tourism

The use of electronics in state government are becoming more and more varied almost daily.

Data processing units used by several departments are making record-keeping and other systems simpler and more efficient.

Now, officials relate, an electronic reporting system will be used extensively next year to keep members of the tourist industry informed on the demands being placed on the industry.

This new electronic reporting system was used briefly this past summer at State Highway Department Tourist Information Centers, reports department information officer, John Murray. "Information gathered by the system will be of real value to the tourist industry," he said.

Murray said use of the system would be expanded early next year, particularly during the summer season.

"This system provides a rapid profile of the Michigan tourist," it tells where he comes from, what he wants to do, where he stays and how long, and what kind of service he is looking for," said Murray. Michigan is the first state to use such a reporting system and several other states have expressed an interest in the experiment.

"The tourist profile will be helpful to the tourist promotion agencies of the state as well as those who serve Michigan's growing tourist population," Murray said. "It will tell them what is happening in their industry in time to plan their advertising and promotional activities, to take full advantage of current trends."

Information to be disseminated among tourist industry groups will be collected next year at five permanent Tourist Information Centers as well as two mobile information units which are circulated throughout the state.

More But Not Enough
Overcrowding and waiting lists in mental health facilities may soon lose their impact as a political tool.

Waiting lists for state institutions, particularly, have been a bone of contention between Republicans and Democrats for many years.

Democrats contended new facilities were badly needed to eliminate the waiting lists. Republicans said many on waiting lists could be accommodated if senile and merely old patients were placed in private facilities.

No one is actually winning their point by action taken recently, but the weight of the two arguments should be lessened considerably.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced that public assistance grants would be available for persons in the older age groups who might be eligible for release from mental hospitals.

Care of "just plain old people" and senile citizens long had been a sore point with Michigan Mental Health Director Charles F. Wagg, who contended they had no place in institutions under his jurisdiction. Commitments of many of these people were ordered, however, at the recent level and Wagg had no choice but to take them.

Availability of public assistance grants meant release of these individuals would provide funds for their keep.

More than 500 such persons have now been referred to agencies and homes outside state government, Wagg said. It is estimated about 2,600 such persons will be placed in the near future.

The bed space made available by the discharge of old and senile patients will not, however, completely eliminate the waiting lists for state institutions.

The National Petroleum Council has called on non-Communist nations to curb their oil purchases from Russia.

"Without a doubt," the council said, "Soviet oil is the most important element in the Soviet political economic structure in the free world."

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where this new Secretary of Labor says it ain't that we got so much unemployment in this country, that what we got is a "readjustment." Back during the year '29-'30 time Uncle Lew from Lima said he announced he was getting "disappointed from the enemy." When a feller is unemployed under this new "readjustment" plan, I reckon that means he has got discouraged from his job.

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was trying to put this double talk together and get it to fit. Ed Doolittle said he figured it was a "readjustment" when your neighbor lost his job.

A depression when you lost your job and a pang when your wife lost hers. Could he, Mister Editor, that President Kennedy should make Ed his Secretary of Labor. At least, you can understand what Ed's talking about.

Clem Webster allowed us for this "readjustment" might be buying a heap to do with all the five men killing themselves in one day in North Carolina. Zeke Grubb didn't agree, argued that we ain't never had a time in history when a man had more to live for. For instant, claimed Zeke, the average feller ain't got his house paid for, his car paid for, his TV paid for, and the chances was 10 to 1 he was behind with his taxes. Everybody agreed with Zeke. Everybody agreed with Zeke that wasn't no excuse for a feller killing himself on account of not having nothing to live for.

Bug Hookum reported that he had saw in the papers where the Internal Revenue folks in Washington has announced official that, starting this year, the cost of medicine for hay fever is full tax deductible. Ed allowed as how that was mighty good news on account of all the sickness in his family this year come original from hay fever.

The session, as usual, final got around to wimmen and they was one or two comments that might be worth putting in the minutes. For instant, Josh Clodhopper said he saw a piece in the paper by some fashion designer saying the new fashions for wimmen was going to try to make wimmen look like wimmen again. Personal, Mister Editor, what they been wearing ain't left much doubt about the matter.

And one feller said he saw a piece in the papers where a man in Atlantic the other day donated a loudspeaker to his church in fond memory of his wife. On account of my old lady reading my little piece here ever once in a while, I ain't got no comment to make on this last item.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Hold World Community Day Service
Sixty area women were present Friday for a World Community Day service in the Methodist church social center; the service was sponsored by United Church Women of Chelsea.
Mrs. Holton Knisely of North Lake Methodist church, presided in her capacity as general chairman of the observance.
The guest speaker, Mrs. Wilfred Kline of Ann Arbor, enlarging on her topic "Channels to Peace in Southeast Asia," told of conditions in southeast Asia learned at first hand from young people whose homes are in that area and who are now students at the University of Michigan. Mrs. Kline meets many of the young people in her work affiliated with the Protestant Foundation for International Students at Ann Arbor.
Contributions made by women of the Chelsea churches affiliated with United Church Women were dedicated during the afternoon service.
These included 14 complete outfits of clothing for girls; 14 complete outfits for boys; nine T-shirts and blue shorts for children; and 17 sewing bags filled with thread, needles, buttons, scissors and various other accessories.
The items were prepared and contributed by women of Salem Grove, North Lake and Chelsea Methodist churches, the Congregational church, St. Barnabas Episcopal church and St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church.
The offering received for the service, $45.85, is also designated for contribution to the mission work in Southeast Asia.
Mrs. Carl Mayer served as pianist for the World Community Day service.
Women of the Methodist church were hostesses at a tea following the service.
The next general meeting of United Church Women of Chelsea is to take place in January at St. Barnabas Episcopal church.

Shure Grid Tule
other Bulldog score. Bob Riemen-schneider threw a key block to spring Lauson loose on his scoring jaunt. The try for point was partially blocked and Chelsea now led, 16-6.
The Bulldogs continued to dominate play through the third period with the defensive line of John Hand, Don Wilson, Tim Whitesall, Gary Dreesch, Bob Riemen-schneider, Mike Schrader, and Don Brooks containing the Saline attack with busing consistency.
In the fourth quarter the Bulldogs had great trouble holding on to the ball and as a result fumbled to Saline on four different occasions which set up numerous scoring opportunities. The Hornets first cashed in on Chelsea fumbles early in the fourth quarter by marching from the Bulldog 45 and scoring on a one-yard pass from Davis to Griffin. The point after was not good and Chelsea was now leading, 19-12.
Mid-way in the fourth quarter the Hornets covered another Chelsea fumble on the Chelsea 40-yard line and moved to the five-yard line on another spectacular pass reception, this time off the hands of a defensive back who had tipped the ball. Jim Griffin then covered the remaining five yards for the touchdown and an 18-19 score. The important point after was good when the same Jim Griffin (a sophomore) sprinted around end to put the game into a 19-19 tie with just 26 seconds left to play.
The Bulldogs were not willing to settle for a tie if they could prevent it, however, and proved it by passing incomplete on their first two downs before Curt Farley broke through the middle, cut to the outside and ran 45 yards before being forced out of bounds on the Saline 35. With two seconds showing on the clock, Farley passed incomplete to Mike Schrader on the five-yard line to end the game and leave two very fine teams deadlocked for the conference championship.
Dudley Holmes received a head injury midway in the fourth period and was hospitalized until Sunday but is out of danger and recovering nicely. Gordon Carpenter, who is probably the best backfield replacement in the conference, filled in for Holmes and came up with a very strong performance.
Tom Eisenbeiser, who blocked especially well, suffered an ankle sprain which forced him to the side lines early in the fourth period and was replaced by sophomore Dick McCalla who did a good job.
Don Wilson, Tim Whitesall, John Hand, Bob Riemen-schneider, and Gary Dreesch all played exceptional, well, especially on defense.
Don Brooks and Mike Schrader, who carried the load at the end positions, both on offense and defense, were both outstanding.
The success of our season could never have been accomplished without the endless efforts and performances of the "Gold" team composed of Jack Crawford, Orin Wise, Jeff Flintoff (sidelined because of a sprain) Jeff Spaulding, Richard Reed, Jim Cameron, Denie Stoffer, Mike Tarasow, and Quarterback Mike Kushmaul.
Congratulations to two very exciting teams who have supplied their followers with a great deal to be proud of and a great deal to discuss.

Bands Aid in Halloween Program

With Paul F. Niehaus as master of ceremonies, children who attended the Kiwanis-sponsored Halloween party Wednesday evening were entertained by Jimmy Weaver, well-known magician and escape artist and with band music by the 80-piece Chelsea High School uniformed band under the direction of David Lindsay.

The Seventh and Eighth Grade Band, also uniformed, headed the Halloween parade, passing along Park St. to Main St., north on Main St. to Middle St. and into the Municipal parking lot from the East Middle St. entrance.

Traditional Halloween refreshments—cider and doughnuts—were served by Kiwanis committees to all who attended the party. Auxiliary Police assisted in directing traffic in the area and one of the Chelsea Fire Department trucks added to the parade's effectiveness for the pleasure of the youngsters.

Auto Theft Foiled by Quick Action

Theft of a car Friday in broad daylight from a downtown used car parking lot was foiled because of quick action on the part of garagemen at Harper Sales & Service and Chelsea Police Chief John Palmer; the car was recovered undamaged, few miles west of town but the thief fled cross-country on foot where he was cornered.

Meritt Honbaum, employed at the garage, was returning from lunch when he noticed the car owned by Dale Claire, the garage bookkeeper, being driven out of the firm's used car lot on West Middle St.

A quick check revealed Claire himself, and all garage personnel accounted for and the owner, Sumner Osterle, at home for lunch, and Honbaum realized the car was being stolen.

Osterle took off in one car, when notified of the incident; Honbaum drove out Cavanaugh Lake Rd., in the direction the car had taken when leaving the lot; Chief Palmer was notified by Claire and joined the chase and a short time later, with cars converging on the Claire car from both ends of Kalmbach Rd., the thief jumped from the car when he realized he was trapped, headed across the fields on the George Zeeb farm and succeeded in making his escape. Claire's car suffered no damage.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By RALPH ROBEY

A Week of Crisis Threatens World War III

Oct. 22 through Oct. 28 will go down as a week of crisis in the history of the United States. With President Kennedy's declaration of a military naval blockade of Cuba on Monday evening, Oct. 22, we were the closest to World War III that we have ever been. Tension whether the difficulty really is over, in any event the trouble has had obvious effects upon the business trend.

According to the government there has been no evidence of consumer scare buying. But individual reports indicate that there has been at least some such buying. For example, in Washington, D.C., some of the supermarkets sold almost all their canned goods, and probably the same thing happened at various other places in the nation. The aggregate of such purchases, however, may not be sufficient to make an appreciable change in the total of retail trade. More important, potentially, was whether business management declined it had better increase inventories. There are no statistics on this as yet. The chances are that the crisis did not last long enough to cause business to get beyond the talking stage. In general there is no reason why inventories should be built up as a result of the Cuban trouble. We have no significant shortages at the moment. This does not mean that certain individual items might not become scarce, but it would not be comparable to what we experienced in World War II.

It would not be comparable because at that time we were just coming out of a long depression when millions of persons did not have the money with which to buy what they wanted, and then with the prosperity that came with the war, there was rationing pretty well across the board. It was about the same with the Korean War. But by around 1958, or a little later this great backlog of both business and consumer demands had been filled.

One further fact needs to be mentioned in connection with the lack of any necessity for scare buying. This is that in all our major industries we have unused capacity. Accordingly, each of these could step up its output substantially with present equipment. Steel provides a perfect example. At present the estimate is that we shall produce this year about 98 million tons. The capacity of that industry is about fifty percent above this figure. It is inconceivable that steel could become in short supply—again excepting special types. Automobiles could be produced in far larger volume than currently is planned. And so it is pretty much from one end of the economy to the other.

There was another development announced during the week of great importance. This was that the consumers price level spurted upward. This increase had nothing to do with the Cuban crisis—it could not be the result of that because the price survey upon which this index is based was made before the blockade was declared.

The increase was the largest from one month to another since 1958. It lifted the index to 106.1. The base of this measure is the average of 1957-1959.

The main causes of the sharp increase, according to Ewan Clague, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, were the recent farmers' meat strike and an unusually large increase in clothing prices. This does not lessen the significance of the rise, but it does mean that there is no reason to assume we are on the verge of a continuous upswing in these prices.

There is one sure way for young people to get ahead in life: WORK and save.

ELECTRONIC CONTROL has been applied to bacon slicing. Next time you open a package, see if the end slice is of different thickness from the others. Allbright-Neill says that final slices are gauged electronically to make the exact weights for half-pound, pound and two-pound packages. And it's automatically done in less than one-twentieth of a second. FIVE THOUSAND lives usually lost in auto accidents will be saved annually by 1973 due to the improved design of the superhighways which make up the U. S. interstate highway system, says the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. The system, linking all major cities, will be completed in 1973.

ON GUARD FOR HUNTERS—Perhaps sensing that trouble is near at hand, a big-rumped buck and his antlerless mate cautiously size up things from their brushy hideaway. And well they might. They and the white-tailed deer of them will have their woodland wisdom to put to the test this month by thousands of gun-toting hunters—and vice versa. In the Upper Peninsula, west of M-77 and U.S. 2, the firearm deer season makes its earliest opening in years, Nov. 10. It will last the usual 16 days, ending Nov. 25. Elsewhere in the state, the traditional Nov. 15-30 season remains in effect. Sportsmen with special permits may hunt deer of any age or either sex in 32 northern areas. All other firearm deer hunters will have to go after bucks only. Barring a bad break from the weather, hunters are expected to take about 60,000 bucks and 37,000 antlerless deer in Michigan this season.

JUNIOR HIGH NOTES

Reporters—Sandra Knoll and Terry Keezer. What's going on in the classes? Chelsea Junior High teachers have been keeping their students quite busy within the last few weeks. Mrs. Hatt has her seventh grade geography class doing the unit, "Farmers of Today." Her seventh grade math classes are doing fractions.

The seventh graders in Mr. Hoffmeyer's science class are learning about the human body. His eighth graders are studying the water resources of earth.

Mr. Marshall's seventh grade geography classes are studying farming in ancient, medieval, and modern times. His eighth grade classes are finding out the causes of the Revolutionary War and discussing the Colonial Government.

Mr. Conklin's seventh graders are studying the nervous system. Mr. Knisley's seventh graders are studying adverbs and possessives. The eighth graders are learning phrases and doing exercises on comprehensive reading.

The seventh graders in Mrs. Pansdorf's math classes are learning how to do fractions; her eighth grade classes are learning the metric system and percentages. Mr. Kruse's seventh graders are studying about farming; the eighth graders are reading about the Revolutionary War.

Mr. Smith's eighth graders are involved in a study of humorous techniques in writing. They are also doing book reports. The students are to imagine that enemy planes have attacked and they can not come out of the fallout shelter for a month because of the radiation. They must give reports during the isolation period.

Mrs. Smith's seventh graders are looking at the ways authors present family life through the unit, "In the Family."

Mr. Snyder's eighth grade math classes are doing samples of Roman bookkeeping.

They must learn Roman numerals to do bookkeeping. On a test one person out of 31 pupils had the lowest mark, 85. Mr. Snyder says: "These have been my closest bunched grades in all my years of teaching in Michigan!"

The eighth grade science classes are exploring a matter of fast disappearance—the green color in leaves.

The special classes have also been very active recently. Mr. Lindsay has all the uniforms passed out to both the seventh and eighth grade bands. The eighth grade band has played on at least 10 different occasions. The eighth grade band played for the Halloween parade. The seventh and eighth grade bands are playing for the Christmas Concert, Dec. 17.

Mr. Sandborn is getting his seventh and eighth grade chorus groups ready for a Thanksgiving program named "The Pilgrims Were Brave." The program will be presented to the students in Chelsea Junior High and also in the grade schools.

Mrs. Lehman is having her home economics class practice sewing straight lines and better stitches.

Mr. Taylor is having the boys do different relay races in class. Miss Fowler is teaching the girls how to play volleyball. They are also doing exercises in class.

Mr. Carl showed his art class how to draw and sew with yarn. Mr. Kopek also showed his art class how to draw and weave pictures.

Mrs. Gardner took her special education class on a camp-out at Cedar Lake this week. Mr. Carlenius is teaching his pupils from their lesson books. They are having many different typing tests.

CLASS OFFICERS—Reporter, Cindy Blacklaw. Both the seventh and eighth graders met last week to elect their class officers. Those receiving the honors in the eighth grade are president, Paul Lancaster; vice-president, Bill Harvey; secretary, Larry Snyder; treasurer, Sue Gardner. Those receiving the honors in the seventh grade are president, Sarah Storey; vice-president, Alan Beyer; secretary, Cynthia Niehaus; treasurer, Ray Worden. The two treasurers were appointed by the class advisers.

If present attitudes remain unchanged, the class which will graduate from Chelsea High school in 1967 should, in subsequent years, have little cause to worry about such things as nicotine, myopia, lung cancer, capillary cloture, with its attendant heart failure, or any of the other errors now associated with cigarette smoking.

This class, now in the Junior High school, has just finished an anti-commercial jingle contest in which the aim was to compose jingles to advertise cigarettes. Almost 100 entries were considered by the judges!

The contest was handled in the science classes, and the judges were Mr. Hoffmeyer, Mr. Knisley, Mr. Kruse, and Mr. Snyder. The rules called for double-rhyme quatrains, having only two beats to the line and carrying messages with a pun.

Here are the seven winning jingles for which prizes of one dollar were given.

Stop that smoking!
Drop that habit!
We're not joking,
Life goes quicker!
—Jim Henry.

He's puffing away
On his old cigarette;
But two packs a day
Will do him in yet!
—Anita Wenk.

If you must smoke
For fun and pleasure;
You'll wind up broke
Or a buried treasure!
—Sherry Blackwell.

If you're smoking more
And enjoying it less,
It must be a bore!
Why not quit the whole mess!
—Norwood Bush.

"You must not smoke,"
My mother said,
"For it's no joke
To wake up dead!"
—Cindy Blacklaw.

The young folks I see
Who puff on a cig
Are as phony to me
As a lavender wig!
—Cheryl Grau.

She dressed very well,
Had a shape like Monroe's,
But her nicotine smell
Laid them all down in rows!
—Don Salzer.

The faculty committee cited several entries for Honorable Mention, entries cleverly worded and with a sharp message. Here are a few:

Eastbelt Freeway Opened After Long Controversy

Ann Arbor—One of Michigan's most controversial freeway projects was opened to traffic last Friday.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie and the mayors of the communities of Milan, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti cut a ribbon (at 3 p.m.) officially opening 19.3 miles of U.S. 23 Freeway.

The $16 million project, which extends from the Washtenaw-Monroe county line at Milan to existing U.S. 23 Freeway north of Ann Arbor, passes through the beautiful Huron-River Valley just east of the university city.

Since it was first proposed by the Michigan State Highway Department five years ago, the route—known locally as the Ann Arbor Eastbelt—has been the subject of two public hearings, numerous appeals to State and Federal officials, and bitter protests by area residents.

The first public hearing on the Eastbelt was held by the Highway Department Jan. 16, 1959. A second public hearing was held July 21, 1960, after omissions were found in the official transcript of the proceedings in the original hearing.

At one point, the heated debate reached the chambers of the Michigan State Senate, which approved a resolution asking the Highway Department to drop plans for an Eastbelt in favor of another plan proposed by a citizens' group.

At the second public hearing, governmental units and civic organizations in Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Milan and the three townships involved—Ann Arbor, Pittsfield and York—supported the Highway Department's proposed Eastbelt route.

At that time, Ann Arbor Mayor Cecil O. Green, present at the opening ceremonies, testified "the only of the State is threatened by this road block."

Following the second public hearing, opposition diminished but did not entirely disappear. Protests meetings were held and appeals

Miss Hunkin, formerly of Rochester, who has been a Home resident for approximately 20 years, will be 97 years old Friday, Nov. 23, while Mrs. Jeannette Nixon, widow of a Methodist minister, will be 95 tomorrow. She has lived at the Home for nine years, coming here from Belleville.

The two men received socks, as a birthday gift from the Chelsea Home Friends of the Methodist Church. The Home Friends had provided hand lotion in attractive containers, as gifts for the seven ladies in the group.

A Thanksgiving theme was carried out in the table decorations; these included cornucopias of fresh fruit, together with gourds which had been grown by the Rev. Scott Westernman in the garden at his home.

The birthday cake carried out a similar decorative theme being topped by a cornucopia fashioned of icing and filled with fruit.

Survey Reveals Activities Reflect Housewife's Values

East Lansing—A young mother put her child down for an afternoon nap.

The value she assigned to her activity was "health."

"He needed rest," she explained. Another homemaker put her child down for a nap.

"I was tired," she said. The value she assigned her activity was "freedom."

Still a third put her child down for a nap. The child, she said, was being too noisy for her husband, a student, to study. "Education" was the value she assigned to her task.

These three cases are taken from a study on homemakers' values just completed at Michigan State University. The researchers were Doris Dyer and Dr. Beatrice Paolucci of the home management and child development department.

They found that homemakers may perform similar tasks but for different reasons or values. Or, they may perform very different tasks—but for the same reason or even the same value.

It was "time" Three homemakers gave the reason "It was time" when they said they fixed lunch, made beds or pressed a child for church. The reason was the same, but the activities were different. So were the values they gave. The one who fixed lunch named "health" as the value. The one who made beds cited "aesthetics" as the value. And the one who got her son ready for church said "religion" was the value.

The researchers interviewed 50 homemakers, all wives of MSU students, and asked each to recall her previous day's experiences.

The 50 women recalled a total of 2,457 activities and were able to assign values to 2,404. If an activity, such as preparing meals, was repeated throughout the day, it still counted as just one activity.

Values used were family centrism (unity), health, aesthetics, freedom, education, prestige, religion, economy and friendship.

"Health" was the value for 1,087 of the activities. "Aesthetics" was the value for 400 and "family centrism" rated 346.

Lowest on the scale were prestige and religion. However, when the homemakers were asked to rank the nine values in order of importance to them, health, family centrism and religion made up the top three.

THE LETTERBOX

★Veteran's Day
To the Editor
Chelsea Standard
Dear Reader:

On Nov. 11, we celebrate both an "old" and a "new" holiday. It was eight years ago that Veterans Day came to be, making it a fairly new commemorative day. But the day had its origin more than 40 years ago, as on Nov. 11, 1918 the Armistice was signed to end World War I which was supposed to end all wars. Of course this statement became a mockery with World War II, Korea, and the "cold war."

We Veterans wonder what this Veterans Day, 1962, brings to the minds of most of the Americans? It is a day of remembrance and silent prayer for the men and women who paid the complete price of war. It is a day of dedication to our nation's founding principles, Veterans Day, Nov. 11, 1962 is the day to set aside, and honor all who have fought in America's wars. There is no better way to mark it than to rededicate ourselves, and display our American flag. Have it high and with pride. Need we say more?

They applied decorations to the table cloths to be used at the dinner.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the Brownies would have a special meeting Wednesday (last night) to complete plans for tonight's dinner.

Hunters Urged To Register with Conservation Dept

Lansing—Deer hunters are encouraged to leave their "forwarding addresses" with the nearest Conservation Department field office or regional offices when they arrive in their northern hunting areas this season.

The few moments that it takes to register at these offices will save Department personnel precious time in finding hunters if an when emergencies arise at home.

As in the past, hunters staying on state-owned lands are required to post registration cards giving their names and addresses at their camp sites.

This posting requirement serves a dual purpose. It aids in Department searches for hunters in times of emergency, and encourages state forest users to do a good job of housekeeping at their camp sites.

Camp registration cards are available free at the Department's district and regional headquarters and at hunting license dealers.

Hunters looking for a few more facilities than state forest lands have to offer are reminded that state parks are still open to camping.

The daily camping fee is $1 at these parks; an additional 25 cents is charged per day for electricity. Daily or annual vehicle permits are also required at state parks.

Oct. 18, 1962 Council Room

Regular Session

This meeting was called to order by Pres. Daniels at 8:00 p.m. Trustees present: Barr, Burg, Chandler, Clark, Haselschwardt, and Paul. The minutes of the Oct. 2, 1962 meeting were read and approved.

Having called on special assessment to be levied to finance an improvement, namely, the removal of a certain ruins building known as the "Peat Plant," No objections were voiced in opposition to this special assessment.

Motion by Barr, supported by Burg to order the demolition of the property known as the "peat plant" and that the cost of said demolition, the legal fees, and the printing costs involved will be assessed against the said property. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

A discussion was held regarding Civil Defense with no official action taken at this time.

A discussion was held with Mr. Wm. Freeman, regarding the problem of settling of a small area on each side of the Chelsea Lanes driveway.

The Village feels a responsibility for problems of this nature in this particular area because of the recent installation of the sewer and water mains, and will effect repairs at the most appropriate time.

Bids for the painting and repair of the elevated water storage tank were received from the following: Huron Paint Co., $2,800.00; Dolman-Knoll, $3,705.00; G-To-be, $3,975.00; and Great Lakes, $1,450.00. Great Lakes failed to bid on the repair of the tank, and the bid was awarded to Huron Paint Co.

Motion by Chandler, supported by Barr, that on the recommendation of the Village Engineers, Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, the painting and repair contract be awarded to the Huron Painting Co. of Ypsilanti, Mich., in the amount of $2,800.00. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

Motion by Barr, supported by Clark, to authorize the Clerk to apply for money available from the Washtenaw County Road Commission for the removal of several

THINK YOU lose mental ability as you age? Well, University of Washington researchers have taken pot shots at this venerable assumption. A 12-year study conducted at the school indicates that there may be no particular decline in the IQ of elderly persons who remain healthy and vigorous and that a drop in intelligence probably isn't part of the aging process at all. CALIFORNIA has more than 7,800,000—than 43 of our states have people.

About Your Social Security

Families employing household employees working by the day, the week, or throughout the year, may be doing them an injustice by failing to report their earnings for social security purposes. Robert A. Kehoe, district manager of the Ann Arbor Social Security Office, said today.

Any cleaning woman, maid, cook, or handyman, who is paid by the hour, day, week, or month should have their earnings reported and social security taxes paid.

A maid comes to your house to clean or laundry as infrequently as one day a week and is paid as little as $3.85 for her work, her earnings must be reported if she continues to work for you each week in the calendar year and earns $50 or more.

The law has been on the books since 1951, but it is estimated that there still are many, many employers employing domestic workers part or full time who are not complying. The household employer does not learn of the application to him until his employee makes a claim for social security benefits, Kehoe said.

In many cases, the employer is faced with a staggering fine for back taxes, interest and penalties, not only for the employer contributions to social security but for the employee's share of the contributions as well.

Kehoe urged all employers who employ cash wages in a home to get in touch with the Internal Revenue Service now. Booklet No. 21, available at the Social Security office in Ann Arbor, contains an addressed post card for this purpose.

Due care is a legal phrase but lack of it causes death to many persons.

Senator Philip A. Hart's REPORT from WASHINGTON

What happens to all that money we send to Washington? Do we ever get any of it back?

Reasonable questions, to be sure. Every citizen feels he deserves some benefit from the taxes he pays. This newsletter is intended to give you some idea of how much federal tax money will be spent in Michigan during fiscal year 1963. The total is well over a billion dollars.

Accelerated Public Works Fund: This program—passed in the last weeks of the 87th Congress—is intended to create new jobs by providing federal funds for community improvements, often on a matching basis.

This money is pouring swiftly into Michigan. Government grants already total $8.5 million at this writing and will provide some 381,000 manhours of work.

Projects range from a $49,000 storm drain in Alma to a $1,200,000 improvement program in the state's National Forests. It means new city halls in Farmington and Madison Heights and new sewer systems in Ishpeming, Detroit, Muskegon Heights and 10 other communities. More projects are already under way.

Other anticipated department-by-department spending in Michigan:

Department of Defense: $271,829,000. This figure does not include any defense contracts, such as the $100 million award made this week to Chance-Vought to build missiles in Warren.

A breakdown shows $102,245,000 for payrolls, $14,403,000 for construction and $95,178,000 for Reserve, National Guard and maintenance expenses.

Health, Education and Welfare: $117,829,370. The largest chunk is for Social Security Administration, $74,543,000. In addition, the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance will make payments of about $682,598,829.

Interior Department: $3,223,402. This exceeds last year's amount by more than one million dollars. The figure includes $530,038 for Isle Royale National Park and $1,347,400 for construction of an Ann Arbor Biological Research Laboratory.

Treasury Department: $22,971,382. About half of this goes to the Internal Revenue Service and about a quarter of it to the Coast Guard.

Department of Labor: $26,515,000. A sharp drop from last year. Why? Because despite the best efforts of many of us, Congress failed to approve any further extension of Temporary Unemployment Compensation payments.

Post Office Department: $156,000,000 up almost $3 million from last year.

Commerce Department: $150,325,214. Of this sum, about $157,844,000 will be spent by the Bureau of Public Roads.

Department of Agriculture: $51,530,158. But this doesn't include programs that totaled more than $82 million last year, such as the Food Stamp program, Rural Electrification and Commodity Credit Corporation.

General Services Administration: At least $75 million. GSA operates 14 government-owned buildings in Michigan and manages 190 leased locations.

Federal Aviation Agency: $2,507,000. All of it will go in grants to 16 Michigan airports.

Small Business Administration: Somewhere over $56.5 million.

Veterans Administration: At least $250,000,000, an increase of $7 million over the previous year. I am particularly proud, incidentally, of the work the Accelerated Public Works program is doing. I am sure it will provide

Hunters Asked To Report Kills Of Tagged Deer

Lansing — Deer killed wearing plastic or nylon collars should be reported to Conservation Department field men to help in a new study on whitetail movements.

Department game men would like to know the band number attached to the collar of each deer killed, the place where each whitetail was taken, and the sex of the animal.

If possible, they would like a chance to examine the marked deer at the Department district headquarters in the upper peninsula, roadside biological checking stations, and wildlife experiment stations.

An estimated 340 deer have been tagged with different colored necklaces in the upper peninsula by self-marking loop snarers set out in 27 deer yards last February and March. Another 50 whitetails were "colored" with white nylon necklaces last year in the Petrol Grade area north and east of Shingleton.

About 25-30 whitetails have been marked with the lightweight plastic collars in the Deadstream Swamp area of Muskegon and Roscommon counties.

The new self-tagging system, through the help of hunter reports, is designed to provide more information as to where deer in browned-out yards spent their summer and fall, how far they travel, precisely where they winter, and whether their movements follow a consistent pattern from year to year.

RETURN LOOT
Kansas City, Mo. — City Manager, Ben M. Powers received $4,348.48 and a letter explaining that it was repayment of money she stole while employed in the public works department.

The case has been referred to authorities but Powers would not reveal the name of the woman.

a marked stimulus to the state's economy.

How about the other programs? Well, I was showing these figures to a visitor in my office shortly before this was written.

"Does this make you feel any kinder toward the federal government?" I asked.

"Mmm," he said, "certainly most all of these departments provided the state with valuable services and I can't argue with that. When you get down to it, there's only one agency on the list I'd like to see eliminated."

"Which one is that?"

"The Internal Revenue Service."

HANDLE WITH CARE—Pooling the biggest danger to the deer hunter each season is his own gun and the rifle of his hunting companion. Half of all deer season accidents occur when 10 yards or less separate the gun from its victim—about the range of a peashooter. Carelessness and horseplay are the major causes of accidents. Don't carry loaded weapons in cars or into camps. Don't lean your rifle against a car or trailer, or anywhere where a bump can make it fall easily. Always be sure of your target. Deer hunting is a pretty safe sport in Michigan. You can make it safer.

Vehicle Costs Higher Than Last Year

Michigan motorists paid an average of $136 more on each vehicle purchased during the first nine months of 1962 than they did in the same months in 1961.

This "higher cost of living" item was revealed in a study of auto sales tax income released by Secretary of State James M. Hare. So far this year the Department of State has collected $46,104,664.22 in vehicle sales taxes, an increase of $1,003,333.25 above the 1961 figure of $45,101,330.97.

Hare pointed out that vehicle sales also increased sharply by 118,789 units in 1961, 578,230 cars and trucks were sold by the first of October, compared to 467,019 in 1962.

The average sales tax collected on each unit rose by $5.44, from $60.70 in 1961 to $66.14 in 1962.

Hare attributed part of the increase in cost to the fact that some buyers have moved up to bigger automobiles while those who stuck to their gas-sipping compacts were spending their savings on sleeker, more expensive models or were putting additional accessories on their economy models.

"The 20 percent increase in transactions, as reflected in the sales taxes collected on 697,019 units sold, reflects the healthy auto year the industry is reported from coast to coast," Hare said.

He hoped that this sales volume will continue into the 1963 model year to bring further prosperity to Michigan workers and industry.

"It is you residents of the Upper Peninsula who are most aware of your great potential, your tremendous natural resources and understand which industries and businesses can best flourish in this area. Name your leaders, muster your forces, begin your planning and then go out and get the industry you want and need."

"You will have the ambassadors working with you 100 percent, but it must be your energy, incentive and imagination that leads the way."

As a result of these meetings Martin and other ambassadors were drafted to help with the advisory committee of another program.

Two young mothers, each the mother of a young son, admitted they took rings valued at $500 and $600 in a jewelry store robbery.

Public defender, Joseph G. Carpenter told the judge the young mothers felt they would benefit by a sentence to the reformatory because they hoped to learn a useful way of making a living.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR

By John B. Swainson

Lansing—The people of Michigan's Upper Peninsula have recently witnessed an example of what our Industrial Ambassadors do to help our state's economy grow.

The Michigan Industrial Ambassadors are 265 industrial, business, civic and educational leaders engaged in what one of them has called a "king sized public relations job."

It is their main purpose to point out the state's advantages during their travels throughout the nation on their regular business. This program is an activity of the state Economic Development Department.

During the week of Oct. 7 a series of six conferences took place in the Upper Peninsula under the title "Operation Progress."

The meetings were held at Sault Ste. Marie, Escanaba, Iron Mountain, Ironwood, Houghton and Marquette. Members of the Michigan Industrial Ambassadors played key roles in the meetings which were described as "the greatest concentrated effort ever made to stimulate the economy of the peninsula."

The annual U.P. lunch of the group kicked off the meeting in the Soo with Ambassadors Walker L. Cislak, president of Detroit Edison; Dr. Edgar L. Hargan, president of Northern Michigan College; and Robles B. Martin, president of Dundee Cement all on the program.

All three of these men pledged their personal assistance and the assistance of all other ambassadors in helping the Upper Peninsula help itself in making use of the natural resources and human skills available.

Ambassador Chairman Martin told those present that:

"It is you residents of the Upper Peninsula who are most aware of your great potential, your tremendous natural resources and understand which industries and businesses can best flourish in this area. Name your leaders, muster your forces, begin your planning and then go out and get the industry you want and need."

"You will have the ambassadors working with you 100 percent, but it must be your energy, incentive and imagination that leads the way."

As a result of these meetings Martin and other ambassadors were drafted to help with the advisory committee of another program.

Operation Action-U.P.—a program which is being hailed as a great step forward for this part of our state.

Every Michigan citizen benefits from undertakings such as these and we owe our Industrial Ambassadors another debt of gratitude for their contributions toward making Michigan move ahead.

Lansing—When this appears in print the election will be over and Michigan will be ready to settle down to two more years of hard work.

As I write, however, the balloting must still take place.

It has been a long campaign and a hard-fought campaign but I feel the people of Michigan have been the victors through the discussion of the issues facing us.

It is my sincere wish that we now lay aside our political feelings and work together to help solve the many problems we have been talking about.

It became apparent during the campaign that there is general agreement among all the people of Michigan about what the problems are.

We know that employment and economic growth is a problem. We know that providing educational facilities for our growing population is a problem. We know that there are many areas of social need. We agree that Michigan needs fiscal reform.

The people of Michigan must unite in the same fashion behind their elected leaders to solve Michigan's problems.

This is in the finest tradition of this nation and this state and it is absolutely necessary if we are going to meet the challenge of Michigan's potential.

I have said many times that we have a great state, but it can be even better.

We do not build schools for Republicans or for Democrats. We do not build mental health facilities for Republicans or for Democrats. We do not provide services for our aged because they are Republicans or Democrats.

Most important we cannot build Michigan just for Republicans or just for Democrats.

I am sure that the people of Michigan will respond to our needs, not as Republicans, not as Democrats, but as citizens of the greatest state in the greatest nation in the world.

JOURNALISM

The Journalism staff has published one paper and has another coming out Nov. 15. The first Bulldog was a small paper (6 pages) due to the smallness of the club. There were many favorable reports and some unfavorable ones. There are five individual editors who are responsible for the club, class, feature, sports, and art, respectively. It is up to these editors to see that the articles are given to either the editor-in-chief or the assistant editor on or before the deadline. If anyone would like to have a subscription to the Bulldog, they are to contact either Carol McCalla or Sandy Meabon. Subscriptions are $1.00 per year (for 10 issues).

ANNUAL STAFF

Mr. James LaGo and editor Nancy Huelsberg are both very busy with the annual staff. This club meets every Tuesday evening and consists of Juniors and Seniors. At present, the seniors are trying to think up sayings to go by the senior pictures and the juniors are doing the same for the teachers. The theme has been chosen but will not be revealed until the yearbook goes on sale. The members are busy canvassing the town to see if any businessmen would like to buy ads for the yearbook.

MR. JACK MUSSER

Mr. Jack Musser, the Chelsea High Industrial arts head and instructor, has resigned to assume the position of the Business Manager of the class A school system in Grand Haven, Michigan. This job is analogous to that of assistant superintendent. Last Friday, Nov. 3, 1962 was Mr. Musser's last day at Chelsea. His history of teaching in the Chelsea school system dates back a decade to 1952 when he accepted the position of industrial arts instructor. Later, along with his teaching, he became the coach of basketball, the junior high basketball and football teams. Mr. Musser has proven himself a very excellent athletic board advisor. He had the responsibility of advising the students chosen for the board in the correct methods of procedure in the selection of new sports equipment, the adherence of the yearly budget, and has succeeded in pulling the board's deficit of many years past to nearly even. Monday, Nov. 5, 1962 commemorated Mr. Musser's first day as Business Manager in Grand Haven. He has two children, Corinne, nine years of age, and David, four years. During the summers, Mr. Musser has built houses as a carpenter. He graduated from Eastern Michigan University, having at-Chelsea High would like to extend their good wishes to Mr. Musser for the future, and will always remember and appreciate all that he has accomplished in the past.
