The buck dressed out at 190 pounds, Kosinski said. He took it to Frigid Products for processing after getting the picture — it was one of approximately 90 deer handled there to date, according to Duane Weiss who is employed in the locker department. Kosinski is employed at Federal Screw Works.

Blood Banks Have Saved Thousands of Lives in 25 Years of Their Existence

Wary of having to find donors when patients needed blood and sometimes seeing them die for lack of it, the late Dr. Bernard Fantus, a little, mild-mannered, bearded Illinois physician, back in 1937 established the world's first blood bank at the Cook County Hospital in Chicago. He began to keep the precious and perishable fluid on hand and made arrangements for its systematic replacement.

In the 25 years since, his idea has saved thousands of lives and speeded the recovery of countless ill and injured. We now have more than 2,000 hospital and community blood banks, according to the American Association of Blood Banks, which recently held its annual meeting in Memphis, Tenn. These blood banks use more than 5 million pints of blood a year and serve every state. The newest member is in Anchorage, Alaska.

The San Francisco Medical Society established the first community bank in 1941. Another was started in Miami, Fla., the same year with local unions donating labor for the first building. Dr. Lamar Soutter, later Dean of the Boston University Medical School, started one at the Massachusetts General Hospital in 1942 in time to save many of the injured in the Coconut Grove fire.

A blood bank at Jamaica, N. Y., turned out 1,500 donors on a cold November night in 1950 to aid the injured in a big Long Island train wreck. Other blood banks have served similarly in more recent disasters and tragedies closer to home.

Since May 27, 1961, the American Association of Blood Banks and the Red Cross, which began to collect blood in World War II, have co-operated in a reciprocal clearing house system under which you may give blood locally and have it credited to a relative or friend who needs it perhaps hundreds of miles away. This promises to be as important to health as the Federal Reserve System is to banking.

All this is traceable to little Dr. Fantus and his idea. We might think of this little-known man and his great idea which has benefited almost all of us or some member of our family when we sign up to give blood next month in our own community blood bank clinic.

Governmental Officials Believe They Must Spend Every Cent Appropriated

Early last year President Kennedy called in his department heads and, in a hoble gesture toward economy, advised them that "Agency heads are not required to spend every dollar appropriated."

The Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare took this advice seriously. He returned to his department heads and advised them to take it easy, the substance of his remarks being that they didn't have to spend every red cent they could lay their fingers on just because they had congressional authority.

At least one of the department heads (Health) took the secretary at his word, and didn't spend everything he could have spent. The results are now in and must be reported in sorrow.

Congress took one look at the surplus in health funds, sent word to the Secretary that he had better get busy (What did he think he was hired for, anyway?), and voted the health services $182 million more than they had asked for in the new fiscal year.

The lesson will not be lost. It is a fate worse than death to be caught with a little money in the till.

—Charleston W. Va. Daily Mail.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where some feller from the U. S. Department of Commerce went on radio and television the other night to tell the folks back home about our "national economy." I'm glad I wasn't tuned in on it. They ought to be a law again anybody in Washington even using the word "economy," much less putting such propaganda on the air.

I was raised up to think economy meant careful spending and saving. Everywhere you could whether you was dealing with the leftovers from a meal or trying to make last year's hat do for another season. If they ain't stretched the dictionary a heap, we ain't got no more "national economy" than a goat has got feathers.

They is two things, Mister Editor, you can depend on. Water will run down hill ever chumt it gits, and them Government agencies will spend ever cent they can git their hands on.

Per instant, I was reading this piece where the Pentagon boys had bought 402,000 blue uniform coats for the Air Force at a cost of around $10 million, then put 'em in storage. Senator Byrd traced the thing down and the Pentagon admitted this was a 9-year supply. They claimed they bought 'em on account of getting a good price, but Senator Byrd figgered it out and the storage and upkeep on 'em, plus the interest on the Government money would come to more than the coats cost. Furthermore, Senator Byrd found the Pentagon boys had more than a billion dollars worth of military clothes on hand in storage and that this was at least $467 million more than they could use in a 9-year war. Seeing as how the experts say the next war can't last more'n a couple days, it looks like we're a little overstocked on these items, too overstocked for Washington politicians to go on the air with somepoin' about "economy."

They ain't nothing too good for our boys in the service, and I'm in favor of fixing 'em up with the best food, clothes and weapons money can buy in this life, but it looks like them Washington bureaucrats is also laying in a good supply for the hereafter.

And I see where Brazil has took over another American firm without paying the owners for it.

That's a good sign that as soon as Congress gits back in session, we'll increase our foreign aid to Brazil. The good news of the week come from our space scientists. They say they're about to discover what is holding the universe together. When they find it, I hope they tie a knot in it because it's shore coming unraveled.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

More College Students

Community College, of which there are now 12 in the state, will see increasing growth and popularity in future years, according to a number of Michigan educators.

Philip Cannon, president of Lansing Community College and head of the Michigan Council of Community College Administrators, predicts the percentage of college freshmen attending school in their community will continue to rise as it has in past years.

Just a very few years ago, 20 percent of all freshmen at Michigan institutions of higher learning were attending community colleges. This year the figure was 30 percent, while the number at four-year institutions, both public and private, decreased.

"Community colleges have a very distinct character and must be considered as an entity which will increase in importance and use," Cannon said.

The spokesman for the community colleges gains support for his observation from Ferris Crawford, of the State Department of Public Instruction.

"These institutions must be viewed as an important part of the total framework of higher education in Michigan," Crawford said. "The demand for education beyond high school in or near a student's home community is increasing almost daily even now. This demand will continue to increase."

John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, voiced some agreement on the need for community colleges as a service to Michigan's growing student population.

"The problem of educating our youth is not a problem of the colleges and universities," Hannah said. "It is a public problem, because it is the public's children."

Oldest Michigan Citizens Honored

Lansing — Three persons believed to be the oldest living in Michigan are being honored by the Michigan Commission on Aging.

Mrs. Josephine J. Anteau, 107, of Monroe; George E. Litz, 107, of South Saginaw; and Miss Mallie Taft, 103, of Otisville, were enrolled by Director Gary D. Hansen as honorary members of the Senior Service Corps.

Mrs. Anteau was born Feb. 28, 1855; Mr. Litz on May 4, 1856, and Miss Taft on Sept. 19, 1859.

The Senior Service Corps was organized by the Commission on Aging last summer to provide opportunities for part-time jobs and volunteer service for senior citizens.

who must be educated?

Hannah, a graduate of Grand Rapids Junior College, said there likely will be a day in the not too distant future when Michigan's colleges and universities will need more help in handling the needs of the annual high school graduating classes.

"When this day comes, the burden will be on the services available at the community level," he said.

Throwaway Bottle Battle
 The effort to get a year-round anti-litter campaign off the ground is continuing in the Lansing area by state officials and in other parts of the state by individuals and groups interested in the campaign.

One facet of the litter problem which partially prompted the Governor's appointment of an anti-litter committee may be taken out of the realm of the campaign, however.

The hue and cry to legislate against throw-away beer bottles is growing louder and louder. The cry was first set by basically one man, State Rep. Oscar Bopwsma, Muskegon Republican. He complained to the Liquor Control Commission seeking a ban on the deposit bottles and then proposed legislation when the commission's rule was halted by the Governor.

A report by the Governor's anti-litter committee proposed a year-round campaign to make Michigan citizens the most litter-conscious in the nation.

Bopwsma and a number of others, however, feel litter-consciousness is not the answer to eliminating the throw-away bottles from the curbs, streets, beaches and streams.

The Muskegon Republican indicated he will propose the prohibitive legislation again this year. At least one large lobbying force, the Michigan Farm Bureau, has gone on record supporting legislation to ban the sale of beer in throw-away bottles.

Active Oldsters Are Usually Happier, Healthier

Ann Arbor—Older people can be happier and healthier if they keep active, according to a doctor at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Dr. C. J. Tupper, director of employee-pendula examinations, of a concrete program of daily activities to help the aged help themselves. He advises them to:—Cultivate appropriate external activities; Moderate sports and club activities; he says, can "lead to a feeling of belonging and of being a contributing individual."

Keep in touch with current affairs. An older person's conversation can be interesting and stimulating if he's up-to-date on sports, politics, and books, Dr. Tupper explains. "Forget your past when talking no matter how superior you think it may have been. Focus your mind on the present and future."

Pay more attention to dress and posture. "Walk buoyantly and sit erect, and try to keep your face as free from distortion as possible," Dr. Tupper stresses that a better appearance contributes to success with others and increases self-respect.

Create a definite masculine or feminine personality. "A woman at 87 can be a fascinating and charming individual, obviously feminine, and a man of 80 can be strikingly masculine," Dr. Tupper says.

Also he cautions older people not to lose their sense of humor. All too frequently, he says, a person's sense of humor departs with the onset of aging.

He points out that other activities that help are writing letters, attending church services, and doing maintenance work.

A simple thing like developing an inquiring attitude about food can make mealtime an adventure rather than a dull routine, he adds.

Finally, Dr. Tupper says, these points can serve as a daily checklist to constantly remind senior citizens that they can do so much to think about the way they live. His comments were made at a University broadcast, co-sponsored by the Michigan State Medical Society.

New Chairman of Volunteers Named at Red Cross Meet

A new Chairman of Volunteers was named at the Washtenaw County Red Cross quarterly Board of Directors meeting held in Saline, Nov. 20.

Mrs. James Prendergast of 1039 Martin Pl., Ann Arbor, will assume the duties of chairman of the office of volunteers this week. Assisting Mrs. Prendergast will be Mrs. J. Wilmer Sundelson vice chairman for orientation and training; Mrs. W. Aubin, vice chairman for records and recognition; and Mrs. John S. Worley, chairman of the Supporting Services division.

Announcement was also made that the first training session for new volunteer "recruits" has been set for Nov. 28 at 1 p.m. at the YM-YWCA in Ann Arbor. The Wednesday afternoon session will qualify "recruits" as Blood Program Aides. These "new" aides will be able to work in the upcoming blood clinics in each community.

The more than 50 people attending the dinner meeting were also advised that construction had begun on the Red Cross Operations Center under a $147,000 contract to Robert Lowery Construction Co., of Manchester. The new center will be located at 2729 Packard Rd. Ann Arbor is tentatively scheduled for completion in July 1963. The Building Drive committee pointed out, however, that funds are still needed to complete "postponed items" to make the Center operational.

The Board was also advised of the Department of the Army Audit of the Chapter's books. It was explained that because the Red Cross operates under a federal charter, an Army Audit section is charged with auditing the National Red Cross books annually. The Army Audit section selects at random chapters around the country and makes "surprise audits" to insure the monies contributed to the Red Cross are used in accordance with the provision of the charter. The Army Audit was additional to the Chapter's policy of having the books annually by a Certified Public Accounting firm. Chapter Chairman James M. Davis noted that he was pleased with the reports as they show that the chapter has an excellent financial control system and that the chapter has been operating within its budget.

The first point mentioned is shelter markings for interim shelter space and permanent markings for permanent shelter space.

A plan has been instituted to proceed with the marking of all shelter space which might save lives under nuclear attack without waiting for building owners to give licenses to do so. The marking teams, under direction of military engineers will ask for verbal permission of owners to put up shelter signs "without prejudice to a later decision by the building owners to withdraw the space."

Regarding shelter stocking, it was pointed out that large scale installation started early this month and "about 10,000 box cars of shelter supplies can be installed in the next six months with adequate local co-operation."

Interim shelters, would not be stocked in advance.

In rural areas home shelters are relied upon in the six-point program for people, livestock and crops.

The fourth point of the program pertains to training—three-hour to four-hour workshops are to be held throughout the country to train architects, engineers and contractors in the complex technique of locating, shielding in buildings and in improvising shelters.

Concentrated short training courses in radiological monitoring and shelter management to train large numbers of people in short periods and stepped-up production and distribution of training materials for medical self-help programs are also included.

The information from the national CD office states that during the three-month period, requests for federal surplus property for use in the state and local defense programs will receive priority treatment and processing of requests from state and local governments for financial and other assistance is being expedited by action on verbal applications submitted to written confirmation. Authorization is also given for immediate expenditure of matching funds for the purchase of supplies and equipment for state and local government emergency operating centers in shelter space found under the national survey.

Col. Miller's information states that the Department of Defense has authorized the use of stand-by military reservists on a voluntary basis for civil defense service at the request of civil defense authorities. As an incentive, those reservists will be given retirement point credit for such service. Local civil defense directors have requested this form of assisting the strengthening of their organizations.

The county Civil Defense office has not at this time received all the details for implementation of the six-point program, Col. Miller said; however, action has already been started to meet out pertinent points which will be disseminated to all concerned as soon as possible.

In 1920, a 25 mile section of a county road in Ingham, Jackson and Washtenaw counties, terminating at Chelsea, was taken over by the State Highway Department and designated as M-92.

In 1951, another 15 miles of county roads in Washtenaw and Lenawee counties, south from Chelsea, were taken over by the State Highway Department to extend M-92 to Clinton.

This season's apparent in bear kill has occurred in an abundance of wild and nuts in northern Michigan. The excellent food supplied the animals to fatten up more than in many years, a fact that may have contributed to the high kill.

Generally mild temperatures at the start of the firearms season undoubtedly played a role in boosting bear kill. Warm weather tends to delay the hunting of these animals go into hibernation.

Another key factor was the Nov. 10 opener west of the upper peninsula. It gave hunters five more days of favorable weather conditions

Ben Donaldson Attends Conclave Of UN Association

Ben R. Donaldson of Cavanaugh Lake was an official delegate to the third biennial convocation of the American Association for the United Nations held in the Hotel Roosevelt, New York City, from Nov. 16 to Nov. 18.

Donaldson is treasurer and member of the Board of Directors of the Michigan AAUN Division, affiliated with the national AAUN.

The 350 convention delegates, coming from more than 40 states with Acting Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations Saturday afternoon, Nov. 17, in a special session at the United Nations headquarters.

As a Sunday (Nov. 18) luncheon session, the delegates were briefed on the subject "Where do the UN go from here?" by Paul Hoffmann, director of the United Nations Special Fund; Arthur Larson, director of the World Rule of Law Center at Duke University (Durham, N. C.) and former head of the United States Information Agency; and Benjamin V. Cohen, former U. S. Representative on the UN Disarmament Commission and former counsel of the Department of State. The panel was moderated by Clark M. Eichelberger, executive director of the American Association for the United Nations.

A special tribute to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, late chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Association for the United Nations, opened the first session of the convention. Short eulogies were delivered by Herman Steinkraus, president of the AAUN; Oscar de Lima, chairman of the Executive Committee of the AAUN Board; and Eichelberger, John Roosevelt, son of the late First Lady, gave a response on behalf of his family.

The convention delegates met in 10 business sessions to elect members of the Board of Directors and to decide over-all policy and program for the American Association for the United Nations for the next two years.

First Expedition to Mars
May Be in Space Convey

East Lansing — America's first expedition to Mars might be in a convey of space ships.

Freeman D'Vincent, who is in charge of design of manned space systems at General Dynamics-Astronautics, is making plans for two crew ships and two service ships for the initial flight, hopefully in the early 1970's.

"Among other advantages, this convey arrangement would provide a safety margin for crew members," he told a Michigan State University audience recently.

"If something went wrong with one of the crew ships," he pointed out, "the entire section housing the crew would be removed and substituted for the corresponding section on one of the service ships."

However, Jupiter is by far the brightest object in the night sky during the November evenings, the Michigan astronomer adds. Jupiter appears directly south as the evening dusk sets in.

Professor Losh also notes that Venus has disappeared as the bright evening star in the western twilight.

"On Nov. 12, Venus passed the Sun, emerging after that date as a morning planet and will be conspicuous as the bright star in the east before sunrise during December."

In the meantime, the sun is rapidly moving southward, appearing daily in shortened arcs across the sky. Says Professor Losh, "By the end of the month, the day will have shortened to about 9 hours and 20 minutes with only about 15 minutes to go to reach the shortest day of the year in December."

Mars Is Moving Closer to Earth

Ann Arbor — Mars and earth are getting closer together.

Mars now is about the same distance from us as the sun and will reach its shortest distance from the earth around the first of February, explains University of Michigan Astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

As it draws nearer to the earth Mars becomes steadily brighter. It has been rising earlier and earlier until it now comes up around 11 p.m. Professor Losh notes.

However, Jupiter is by far the brightest object in the night sky during the November evenings, the Michigan astronomer adds. Jupiter appears directly south as the evening dusk sets in.

Scientist Says U. S. Should Adopt Use Of Metric System

East Lansing — Your car speedometer would read in kilometers as well as miles if a distinguished scientist had his way.

Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a recent speaker at Michigan State University, recommends the above system as a start to changing over to the metric system in the U. S.

"The English speaking peoples are causing themselves unnecessary inconvenience in clinging to the ancient system of measurements," he said in his MSU lecture.

"Scientists everywhere use the metric system," he declared. "What a scientist measures in one country can be verified by a scientist in another country. This is what makes the system so powerful."

CHELSEA VILLAGE COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

November 6, 1962 Council Room

Regular Session.

This meeting was called to order by Pres. Daniels at 8:00 p.m. Invocation by the Rev. Philip Ruster of the Congregational church.

Trustees present: Barr, Burg, Chandler, Clark, Haselschwardt, and Paul. The minutes of the October 16, 1962 regular session were read and approved.

A discussion was held with Mr. John Ford regarding the need for new trees on East Street, between East Middle and Jackson Streets. Several possibilities for tree planting were discussed. Trustee Barr was instructed to investigate.

A discussion was held with Mr. Elwin Beach regarding civil defense. A report was made on the installation of the generator for emergency power for the Municipal Building. Most of the building's electrical system could be utilized, and power will be available for the civil defense and fire department radios. A tank for storage of gasoline for the generator was installed underground by the Public Works crew. John Palmer and Kellie Allen have installed an antenna on the Municipal Building for civil defense radio. Radio operators Bob Schroen and Marion Longworth expect to install the civil defense radio as soon as possible. Mr. Beach reported on the availability of equipment for use by civil defense.

Motion by Burg, supported by Paul, that Mr. Elwin Beach be appointed as Zone 6 Director of Civil Defense. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

Motion by Haselschwardt, supported by Paul, to purchase a used 1954 GMC Truck from Palmer Motor Sales. Purchase price $180.00. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

A discussion was held with Mr. Neil Fahrner regarding the need for a youth center. It was mentioned by Trustee Burg that the J. C.'s had provided this type of center for some time several years ago, but that it was not successful. Pres. Daniels stated that the proposal had merit, and deserved to be investigated.

A discussion was held regarding the activity of the "Youth Committee," which was formed last March. No official action was taken at this time.

A discussion was held regarding the proposals that have been submitted to Argus for their consideration of Chelsea as a possible future site. Trustee Barr, and

THE LETTERBOX

To the Editor:

In regard to the ten-point "A Challenge to Americans," Nov. 22, 1962:

The founding fathers who shaped our destiny were landowners. A law almost went into effect that only landowners should be allowed to vote and hold office. This unfair discrimination has victimized negroes and others.

1. The only truly strong are those who are eager to help the so-called weak to help themselves. From the one-to-the-many-cell organisms life has survived and progressed mainly through mutual aid.

2. The so-called small and the so-called big grow best through constructive criticism—evaluating facts with knowledge in order to arrive at a conclusion beneficial to everyone.

3. The best way to keep from pulling down the wage-payer is by sharing the fruits of the wage earner with the wage earner to create a better market for the fruits of labor and thereby improve the economy.

4. When the so-called rich share voluntarily with the so-called poor there will be no need of any penalizing. Our greatest product is intelligently compassionate human beings. War takes most of our tax dollar.

5. All the thrift of the laborer can hardly offset the waste of goods by the privileged. An unjust economy demands military prodigality.

6. Inequality, exploitation and destructive competition feed the fires of class hatred.

7. Borrowed money makes progress possible.

8. Everything worth while is attended with risks.

9. Our worst criminals are those who rob people unnecessarily of the means of employment, and then blame the unemployed entirely for being out of work.

10. With automation becoming more prevalent, many will be thrown out of work through no fault of their own and will need help to get started in other gainful employment.

The founding fathers of our exalted Republican philosophy were subsidized by the government through huge land grants and generous tax exemptions. This practice has always been prevalent in America.

When the so-called privileged are subsidized it is called constructive statesmanship. But with the underprivileged whose need is far greater, it is deplored as being detrimental. Economy, like government should be of, by and for the people. We have yet to catch up with Lincoln.

A Concerned American.

Three Men Fined For Hunting Deer With Searchlight

Conservation Officer Donley Boyer reported Monday that two Whitmore Lake men and one from Pinckney appeared that day before Sylvan Township Justice of the Peace Chandler Rogers, presiding in Municipal Court, Ann Arbor, and were assessed fines of $50 and costs of $10 each when they pleaded guilty to charges of using a light to hunt deer at night.

The men are William B. McCormick, 20, and John D. Bonin, 18, both of Whitmore Lake, and Donald P. Harvey, 20, of Pinckney.

They were arrested by Sheriff's Deputies Ray Armbruster and Jerry Stauch at 1 a.m. Monday. The officers said two cars which the trio were using had loaded guns in them.

The deputies said they also found a powerful searchlight in one of the vehicles. The light was hooked up to the car battery.

The youths had been stopped by the two deputies in a wooded area on Old US-23 in Northfield township. The deputies called Conservation Officer Boyer.

Under questioning by the deputies and Boyer the youths admitted using the spotlight to attract deer so they could shoot them; however, they had not succeeded in bagging any.

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862... the same year that

IN MICHIGAN, the new mines in the southwest corner of the state were supplying the Union with desperately needed iron ore. And, all over Michigan, beer was supplying folks with sparkling refreshment.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of hospitality to any occasion. Folks in Michigan have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its Centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

★ Christmas Adventure

"Home for the Holidays" is just a dream to a majority of foreign students here in the United States; yet through an unusual program, a lucky few will share the Christmas Season with Michigan host families, many of them farmers.

Bringing them together is a non-profit group that operates under the title of "Christmas Adventure in World Understanding." Through it, 280 to 100 carefully selected foreign and 10 American students representing about 60 countries of the world and nearly as many Universities, are brought together at Kellogg Center, East Lansing.

Michigan Farm Bureau Women are typical of the sponsors who join in the belief that in today's confused world, others, often wrongly blame American for their troubles, both real and fancied. Funds for the project are contributed by private firms and individuals who seek improved international understanding through improved communications.

For 11 days, from Dec. 21 through Jan. 1, the students far out on pre-arranged visits to farms and factories. They hear talks by community leaders and observe free enterprise system in action. Each student spends the afternoon of Dec. 24 in the home of his host family. Many arrive wearing native dress. They join in family meals and religious observances. Christmas Eve they are expected to attend church services together.

They do more than observe and receive. Each is asked to take part in the information flow. They tell of their homes, their families and customs. Many bring pictures and small gifts to exchange.

Later they will become hosts themselves at a "sponsor's dinner" followed by a period of amateur entertainment in a display of talent, games and stunts unique to their background.

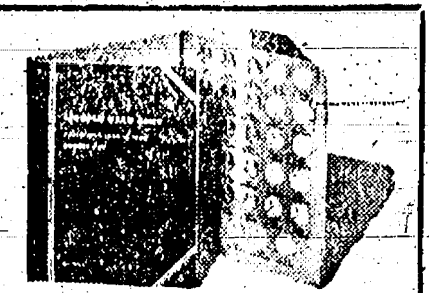

Throughout the entire "adventure" flows the true spirit of Christmas.

How better could one observe it than by sharing it with others in sacred memory of the birth of one who shared His gift?

MSU Reports Needing $101 Million in 10 Years

For Science Research

East Lansing — The "tremendous explosion" surrounding scientific research accounts for a Michigan State University estimate that it will need $101,285,000 for scientific buildings and equipment during the next 10 years.

The estimate was made by the MSU Office of Research Development in reply to a survey being conducted by the National Science Foundation.

"This is not a formal budget request," said Dr. Milton B. Mueller, vice-president for research development at MSU. "It is an honest statement of needs reflecting the tremendous explosion surrounding scientific research."

It includes needs in life, agricultural, social physical and engineering sciences from 1963 through 1972.

An eight-ounce can equals one cup; a number three equals four cups and a number ten, has 13 cupsful.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By RALPH ROBEY

Mid-Year Budget Review Issued

Each year in January the President of the United States submits a Budget Message to the Congress for the fiscal year which begins on July 1. After Congress adjourns the Budget Message is put out what is known as a "mid-year review." This can be done while the Congress is in session because no one then can be sure what legislation may be enacted which will affect the budget outlook. This time the mid-year review is relatively late because the Congress stayed in session so long, and there were the usual charges that it was being deliberately delayed for political reasons. Such charges are without foundation. The revised figures were put together as quickly as possible, and issued immediately.

In the President's Budget Message last January it was forecast that in fiscal 1963—which is the current year—total government expenditures would be $92.5 billion and total revenues would be $83 billion, which meant a surplus of $9 billion. It has long been known that the spending would be higher than this and the revenues lower. Some time ago, in fact, Administration sources indicated that we would have about a $6 billion deficit. Congressional authorities predicted that the deficit would be some $8 billion. The mid-year review put the deficit at $7.3 billion.

Now it is customary for there to be a substantial difference between the Budget Message and the mid-year review, but this time the change is unusually large. As always there are three broad developments which account for the changed outlook:

First, a rise of expenditures. But the rise this time is not in military and related activities. In fact these estimated outlays are down slightly from the forecast of last January. In contrast, the spending by civilian agencies shows a growth of $1.3 billion. The net result is that total expenditures are now forecast at $93.7 billion.

Second, a decline of revenues. These are now estimated at $85.9 billion. The drop here is $1.8 billion in individual income taxes, and $5.3 billion in corporation income taxes. These downward revisions are based upon new estimates of personal income and corporation profits. The former is now predicted as $7 billion lower than it was last January, and corporation profits are now put at $5.8 billion less than the estimate in the Budget Message. It will be recalled, too, that the total value of all goods and services, or gross national product, was forecast last January as $570 billion for the year. It is now predicted at $554 billion.

Third, the action of the Congress. This, of course, can cut both ways. By voting more appropriations than the Administration requests, the spending estimates must be raised; by refusing to vote new taxes, or by failing to accept the proposed effective date for tax changes, revenue forecasts must be changed. Both of these possibilities happened in the last session of the Congress.

None the less, the major factor in bringing about the changed budget outlook was simply that the over-optimism of the Administration last January on the business trend is not being realized. There is another deficit ahead of us in the next fiscal year. How large it will be is an open question.

Yet the Administration continues to insist that there is no danger of inflation. The reasoning is that, with unused plant capacity and surplus labor, there is no chance of prices rising. For a brief time this may be true. But the over-riding fact is that companies either have to raise prices or go bankrupt. Under those circumstances it is inevitable that at least an effort will be made to lift prices.

Grading of apples is based on the degree of color and maturity, freedom from blemishes, cleanliness and regularity of shape. It has nothing to do with the cooking quality or flavor of the apples.

Independent Truckers Should Change Price Systems, Says Professor

East Lansing — Independent trucking firms will have to change their pricing systems if they want to survive, says a Michigan State University professor of marketing and transportation.

Dr. Mossman says trucking firms frequently charge one customer less than another to avoid making a return trip empty or only partly loaded, or alter charges when business is bad. The customers who pay more than their share for service, he says, tend to look for cheaper transportation, often by their own or chartered trucks.

FRENCH SEEK NUCLEAR SUB

France is negotiating with the United States to buy a nuclear-powered submarine, according to informed sources.

Con-Con Report

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one to a series about the proposed new Michigan Constitution. Additional articles will appear in subsequent weeks.

In at least three instances the proposed new Michigan constitution recognizes the growing power of executive and administrative agencies in state government and provides safeguards for the people against unreasonable enforcement of their regulations.

A section of the Declaration of Rights includes new language which reads: "The right of all individuals, firms, corporations and voluntary associations to fair and just treatment in the course of legislative and executive investigations and hearings shall not be infringed."

This declaration was interpreted by the convention to impose upon the executive department, the legislature and the courts the task of developing fair rules of procedure appropriate to investigations and to guarantee fair and just treatment in such matters.

A new section in the Legislative Article permits the legislature to set up a joint committee to act between sessions and to suspend until the end of the next regular legislative session any rule or regulation.

ulation of an administrative agency promulgated when the legislature is not in regular session.

In the interest of individual rights, the section provides a legislative check on the rule-making authority of administrative agencies during periods when legislators are not in session.

Another new section relating to decisions of administrative agencies is made a part of the Judicial Article. It declares: "All final decisions, findings, rulings and orders of any administrative officer or agency . . . which are judicial or quasi-judicial and affect private rights or licenses, shall be subject to direct review by the courts . . ."

The section continues: "This review shall include, as a minimum, the determination whether such final decisions . . . are authorized by law; and, in cases in which a hearing is required, whether the same are supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record."

In proposing this section the convention recognized the increased significance assumed by administrative law in the legal system of the state. A majority of delegates were of the opinion that opportunity for judicial review should be provided for those affected by the decisions of administrative officers or agencies.

Excepted from the mandate contained in the section are findings of fact in workmen's compensation proceedings and appeals of certain decisions of agencies dealing with administration of property tax laws.

Findings in workmen's compensation cases would be conclusive in the absence of fraud, unless otherwise provided by law.

Similarly, findings of state agencies and local boards having to do with property tax matters excepted in the absence of error of law or the adoption of wrong principles.

District President Makes Inspection of VFW Auxiliary

Mrs. Naomi Pahl, district president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who made an inspection visit Monday evening to the Chelsea Auxiliary, commended the group for the "excellent condition of all chairmen's notebooks and officers' records."

Mrs. Pahl also called Chelsea's floor work "good" in spite of the fact that their hall space is somewhat smaller than average, and expressed herself well pleased with the manner in which the meeting was conducted in accordance with parliamentary procedure rules.

During the business session the Auxiliary voted a contribution of $5 for a needy family's Christmas and $10 for a party for patients at Ypsilanti State Hospital.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Alda Juergens, president of Chelsea's VFW Auxiliary, 4076 Mrs. Eulalie Packard, Mrs. Gertrude Waryoda.

Mrs. Pahl, who is a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Jackson's Post No. 823 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was accompanied on her visit here by two other members of the Auxiliary, Mrs. M. Adler and Mrs. C. Stocking.

Monday's meeting was held in the Knights of Columbus Hall. The next meeting, Monday, Dec. 10, will be a combined business session and Christmas party for members; the committee named for the affair includes Mrs. Eulalie Packard, chairman, and Mrs. Iza Carty, Mrs. Norma Seyfried and Mrs. Ottila Guenther.

Advice Offered Housewives on Buying Poultry
The forthcoming holiday season is a peak marketing time for poultry of all kinds and the Michigan Department of Agriculture's food and standards section urges consumers to consider several factors in buying birds.

One of these is the declaration of net weight in prepackaged poultry. Michigan law requires the true net weight as well as the name and address of the packer be declared on the package.

The purchaser of poultry, or any other commodity sold by weight, is entitled to 16 ounces to the pound with absolutely no allowance for shrinkage or packaging or wrapping materials.

Also consider price per pound and size of bird needed to yield the desired number of servings. Usually the larger bird, the lower the price per pound.

Then there is the matter of inspection. A shield may show in the principal label with the letters USDA, Grade A, B, or C. This means a government inspector has examined the bird and identified it as A, B, or C quality.

Poultry also may bear a marking, "Inspected for Wholesomeness." This means the bird was healthy and was examined before and after slaughter which was under approved sanitary conditions. This inspection is required on all poultry shipped across state lines, but is not necessary on poultry produced or sold within the state where produced.

Teen-Age Fair Set for '63 State Fair

The Michigan State Fair will feature a Teen-age Fair as part of the 1963 State Fair, Aug. 23 through Sept. 2 in Detroit.

"This will be a fair within the fair," operated by private individuals as a concession which would include exhibits and entertainment beamed at teen-agers," explained General Manager Walter A. Goodman.

The Teen-age Fair will occupy an area approximately 500 feet by 500 feet along the State Fair Avenue extending to Woodward Ave. Featured will be fashion and beauty reviews, popular riding artists, custom and dream car shows, sports displays and scientific and educational exhibits of special interest to teen-agers.

Teen-age Fair Inc., first produced on the West Coast last year, was highly recommended as an attraction by the Los Angeles County Fair Association and the Western Association of Fairs.

The Authority, upon recommendation of Chairman Joseph H. Kurka, Jr., also voted to abolish admission to its Coliseum programs thus completing the move for free admission to all State Fair sponsored entertainment. The Grandstand program has been free for a number of years along with the Music Shell and other musical programs on the grounds.

An expansion of the highly successful Music Everywhere at the Fair policy is slated for the 1963 Fair. Last year bands played from morning to late evening for the entire ten-day run in many locations on the grounds in an open air series of free concerts.

NAVY AND CIGARETTES
The Navy indicated it may follow the Air Force's lead in refusing to allow cigarette manufacturers to present gift cigarettes to men in its hospitals.

The surgeon general of the Air Force recently declined offers for free distribution of cigarettes in Air Force hospitals "because of the recent evidence which suggests further relation between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, other pulmonary diseases and with certain cardiovascular diseases."

Conference Set On Dutch Elm Disease Problems

A Dutch elm disease conference to be attended by municipal foresters, arborists, spray contractors and others will be held Dec. 12 at Kellogg Center in East Lansing. The purpose will be to evaluate past Dutch elm programs and discuss possible improvements.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture and Michigan State University are co-sponsors of the one-day session.

The morning program is slated to begin at 9:30 a.m. Chairman will be Dean Lovitt, assistant chief of the Department's plant industry division. In charge of the afternoon program will be Forrest Strong, professor emeritus of the University's botany department.

In the past year 97 municipalities in the state operated spraying and sanitation programs for control of Dutch elm disease which is fatal to all types of elms.

C. A. Boyer, Plant Industry chief of the state department, will discuss participation by his agency in Dutch elm disease control programs. This will be followed by a panel discussion on the community responsibility in control, local legislation and spray programs. There also will be discussions on spray equipment and systemic insecticides in Dutch elm control.

Justin Leonard, assistant deputy director in the Michigan Conservation department, will discuss pesticides, problems, beetles versus birds. He will be followed by Dr. Gordon Guyer, Michigan State University entomology department chairman, who will discuss "Pesticides, their image and their safety."

VICE-PRESIDENT'S GUARDS
Congress has sent to President Kennedy a bill providing full-time Secret Service protection for the Vice President.

The measure would also authorize protection for vice presidents-elect and for a former President after he leaves office if he asked for it.

The cost for providing this protection for the Vice President has been estimated at over $100,000 a year.

April Fools' Day became a custom in France after the new calendar was adopted by King Charles IX about 1564. It did not become common in England until the 1700's.

The Hi-Light

Edited by Students of the Chelsea High School Journalism Club

FUTURE TEACHERS CLUB

Virginia LeVan, Rayna Smith and Carol McCalla were selected from the Future Teachers club to attend the Southeastern Michigan Special Education Day. In the morning they, along with Mr. Simon and Mr. Celley, visited the University of Michigan Hospital. First there was a meeting which was attended by two or three representatives from each school in the area. At this meeting, a man spoke to them concerning the teaching of special education. They then toured the hospital's neuro-psychiatric ward and visited with the children. In the afternoon, they attended Eastern Michigan University and toured Rackham Hall. They were given a chance to visit the hard of hearing, the children with defective speech, the orthopedically handicapped, and the mentally retarded. The children were very friendly and helped the girls tour the building. They all agreed that they had a very educational trip and would encourage everyone to try and make it next year.

SOCIOLOGY CLASS

The sociology class had the honor of having Mr. Kiran Shankar from the University of Michigan attend the morning class to demonstrate one form of the Hindu religion, Yoga. Before he began the physical demonstration, he explained the various stages that one must go through before the stage in which Yoga is practiced is actually reached. In approximately eight stages of the Hindu religion, Yoga is the third. In practicing Yoga, one must have complete control over his mind, control over muscles is simple (to the Yoga). Mr. Shankar demonstrated approximately 50 different poses for the class. Because of a shortage of time, Mr. Shankar moved very rapidly through these poses but he explained to the class that they are to be held for at least an hour. Anyone who saw the demonstration remarked that they could not hold some of the poses for one minute let alone an hour.

The class felt that very much was gained by Mr. Shankar's visit as it cleared up many common misbeliefs concerning Yoga.

BAND

The Chelsea High School Band has just completed a very successful marching season which terminated with the sale of band tags on Oct. 27. They have also completed their annual candy bar and fruit cake sale and attended the Thanksgiving game of the Detroit Lions versus the Green Bay Packers. They are now occupied with the preparations for the upcoming concert.

In the fruit cake and candy bar sale both the junior high and high school band organizations participated. A special prize of a luscious round milk chocolate bar goes to the high salesman in each of the groups.

In preparation for the concert, the band is engaged in sight-reading various compositions for use in the Christmas concert to be presented on Dec. 17. Tryouts will also soon be the order of the day with the opening of concert season. Another future goal is the district band festival where bands compete for ratings from qualified judges.

Cafeteria Menu

Chelsea High school cafeteria menus for next week are as follows:

Dec. 3 — Hamburger on bun, spinach or sauerkraut, fruit cocktail.

Dec. 4 — Spaghetti & cheese, green beans, applesauce.

Dec. 5 — Roast pork sandwich with gravy, harvard beets, pudding.

Dec. 6 — Chop suey with rice, whole kernel corn, fruit Jell-O.

Dec. 7 — Tuna noodle, peas, apple pie.

All menus include milk and one form of bread. Changes may be made without notice if necessitated by conditions beyond the cafeteria director's control.

GIRL SCOUTS

TROOP 58 — Girl Scouts of Troop 58 at their meeting — the Thursday before Thanksgiving, cleaned their meeting room in the basement of the home of their leader, Mrs. Eva Elkins, and then had refreshments. Friday, Nov. 23, the girls went to Ann Arbor High school to see the performance, "Simon Big Ears," an Ann Arbor Junior Theater production. Jackie Bailey, scribe.

TROOP 48 — At this meeting Mrs. Eisenbeiser collected $1 for registration and 60 cents for insurance.

Janet Hafner gave a report on planning board. There will be a joint decoration of the Post Office by the three older troops in Chelsea. All Brownies and Girl Scouts will sing at the Post Office and then go to sing to shut-ins. Afterwards we will go to Mrs. Worden's for hot chocolate. The date is not yet set.

We discussed having two meetings a month, every other week. On the other two weeks we will be helping an Intermediate or Brownie troop. Next week Sue Eisenbeiser will assign each girl a troop to help.

Sue Eisenbeiser is giving us program aide training. This will save on transportation and help us with the troop which we will help. Suzy Clark, scribe.

Area Youth Enrolled In MSU Short Course

Michigan State University's list of officers of the Short Course Council includes the names of two Chelsea young men — Charles Koenn and Paul Frisinger.

Frisinger, who lives at the Armstrong dormitory is vice-president of the Council while Koenn is vice-president of the third floor.

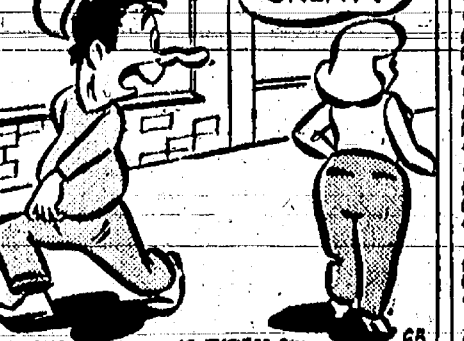

The Council president is Stuart Sackett and the secretary-treasurer is John Peeples.

Koenn and Frisinger are Chelsea High school graduates. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koenn and Mr. and Mrs. George Frisinger.

Nearly 80 percent of all corn produced in Michigan is artificially dried. Driers are a profitable investment if certain precautions are taken, say Michigan State University agricultural engineers.
