Bulldogs Fall To U. High in Close Contest

Loss Drops Team Into Tie with Dexter For Second Place

The Chelsea Bulldogs lost their first Washtenaw Conference game of the school year last Friday, when University High squeezed out a 41-40 victory on their home court.

The loss dropped Chelsea into a second-place tie with Dexter who also has a 3-1 record, while U. High has taken over sole possession of first place with a 4-0 conference record.

In the first period of play U. High moved into a 12-8 lead as the Bulldogs were able to hit on only four of their 18 field goal attempts.

During the second quarter things got even tougher on Chelsea when they were outrebounded 15 to 9 and could find the hoop on but two of their 11 attempts from the floor.

The statistics for the first half of play was far below the Bulldog averages as they hit on only 20 percent of their field goal attempts, missed seven of seven free throws and were out-rebounded 26 to 21.

In the third quarter the Bulldogs improved slightly and outpointed the Cubs, 10-9, as they reduced their 22-12 half time deficit to 31-22 and out-rebounded U. High by an 11-5 margin.

The fourth period was a wild affair with the Bulldogs nearly equalling their output in the first three periods, as they outscored the Cubs, 18-10, and won the battle of the boards, 8-3.

With 55 seconds to play Gordon Carpenter put Chelsea in front for the first time in the game, 38-37, on a foul shot. Just seconds later Don Joseph scored on a fast break to boost the Chelsea lead to 40-37, only to have U. High's Carl Freeman come right back with a basket to cut the margin to one point with only 25 seconds remaining. John Jones then stole

New Chevrolet Stolen Wednesday From Spauldings

A new Chevrolet Impala four-door hardtop car, which had been delivered by haulaway truck two days earlier and parked in the north lot at Spaulding Chevrolet Sales on North Main St., was discovered missing when the garage was opened at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Chelsea Chief of Police John Palmer who was notified, sent out a bulletin at once to the Sheriff's Department and to State Police. Friday night the car was located, well hidden behind a vacant farm house near Stockbridge. It was evidently drive directly to the spot since the speedometer had registered just 14 miles.

The car had been stripped of its tires, wheels, battery and other accessories, the loss amounts to approximately $400.

Jiffy Mixers Set Records In 115-19 Win

The Chelsea Jiffy Mixers defeated the Ann Arbor JC's Wednesday, Jan. 9, by the unbelieveable score of 115-19. The game was the first of a doubleheader played in th Dexter gym.

In the second contest Pinckney bested Dexter in a very close contest. Pinckney now leads the league with a 2-0 record.

The "Mixers" game was one in which the Mixers could do little wrong and Ann Arbor could do little right. Ann Arbor made the mistake of trying to play a "running" game with Chelsea; as a result they trailed 34-2 at the end of the first quarter. By half-time the "Mixers" increased their lead to 61-7. Ann Arbor came back with 10 points in the third stanza but were still down, 84-17, at the end of that period. In the final quarter the Chelsea team tightened their defense and kept their offense rolling as they compiled the final score of 115-19.

The 115 points and the point spread of 96 points established new records in the two-year-old Dexter League.

Members of the Chelsea Jiffy Mix team are: Jack Patrick, Bob White, Glenn Weir, Loren Keezer, Frank Fredericks, Bob DeFant, Bruce Hoffman, Odis Richardson, Homer and Alton Nixon and Matt and Denny Murphy.

Two Fined In Pheasant Hunting Case

Conservation Officer Donley Boyer, reporting on Monday's trial of two men charged with hunting violations, said the two—Arthur Davidson, 51, of Wyandotte, and his son, William, 31, of Ecorse—were found guilty of shooting pheasants out of season.

Arthur Davidson was ordered to pay fine and court costs of $50 while William Davidson was told he must pay fine and costs amounting to $17.30 when they appeared in Municipal Court, Ann Arbor, before Acting Municipal Court Judge Chandler A. Rogers, who is Sylvan township justice of the peace.

The Davidsons were arrested Dec. 27 by Conservation Officer Boyer after a farmer reported he had seen them shoot a pheasant on West Liberty Rd., in Scio township.

The elder Davidson was charged with possession of a pheasant out-of season while his son was charged with killing and possession of a pheasant out-of-season.

They were cited by Boyer after feathers and blood were found in an area where the two men had been hunting on Dec. 16. The father and son maintained they had shot and killed a rabbit but the conservation officer cited them for pheasant-shooting. They pleaded not guilty and the case was set for trial Monday.

Boyer had requested analysis of samples of frozen blood found at the scene of the arrests and Dr. L. Dale Fay of East Lansing, attached to the Michigan Conservation Department, testified at the Village Council Adopts Ordinance To Control 'Disorderly Persons'

Code Lists Actions Considered As Violations, Provides Penalties

The Chelsea Village Council, at its regular meeting Tuesday evening, adopted an ordinance "regulating the public peace as relates to disorderly persons." The ordinance, known as Ordinance No. 64, clearly defines the conduct which is considered disorderly and also provides for penalties against violators.

The complete ordinance, which becomes effective in 20 days from the date of its adoption, states that violators will be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and "shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $100.00 or by imprisonment for a term not to exceed 90 days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the Court."

Prohibited in the ordinance are 15 separate and distinct actions which constitute disorderly conduct.

These include noisy, boisterous or insulting action; being a masher, windowpeeper or prowler; loitering or loafing about the streets or in public places; using indecent, immoral, profane or blasphemous language in public; being in a state of intoxication under the influence of alcoholic beverages or narcotics; and collecting, standing in crowds or remain loitering on sidewalks, streets, or any public place so as to hinder or impede the passage of pedestrians or vehicles.

Other actions included as disorderly conduct are flirting, annoying, molesting or any offensive advances, begging, throwing snowballs or other objects at persons or automobiles, etc.

The provisions about loitering or loafing about the streets or other public place and about wilfully breaking, injuring or defacing any portion of any building should prove a deterrent for those persons who have in the past done extensive damage to the walls of public restrooms in the Municipal Building and to park properties.

The ordinance is to be strictly enforced as soon as it goes into effect at the end of the 20-day period following its adoption.

New Postage Rates Create No Difficulty

Chelsea's Post Office has encountered very little trouble in changing over to the increased postage rate which has been in effect the past 10 days.

Postmaster Carl Mayer said yesterday that "very few" pieces of mail have come in with insufficient postage; however, there is still a misunderstanding on the part of some patrons as to what constitutes first and second class mail.

Second class mail, which may be sent unsealed for four-cent postage, automatically becomes first class mail requiring five-cent postage if any handwriting of any kind, other than signature, is included. For instance, printed "thank you" notes with only the signature written by hand are mailable in unsealed envelopes at the second-class four-cent rate; however, if anything else whatever is handwritten, first class postage of five cents is required whether the envelope is sealed or left unsealed.

Postmaster Mayer said this confusion about first and second-class mail has always been a problem and has no relation to the increase in rate.

Greeting cards—Christmas, get-well, sympathy, birthday, etc. — are included in the category requiring first class postage (five cents), even though unsealed, when anything other than the sender's signature is handwritten.

The Post Office Department recommends that these cards be sent first class with sealed envelopes, since they may then be forwarded or returned to the sender if undeliverable. Second class mail, if undeliverable, is destroyed, in accordance with regulations governing second class postage rates.

For changes in rates on bulk mailing, patrons may contact the Post Office to obtain the proper information.

Parcel Post rates were not affected in the increases which went into effect Jan. 7; air mail letters however, were raised from seven cents to eight cents for domestic rates while foreign air mail letter postage remained unchanged.

Sylvan Steer Dies Sunday Of Rabies

A steer which died Sunday on the Erwin Trinkle farm, 8872 Sibley Rd., was found to have had rabies, County Health Department Veterinarian George Bowler said yesterday.

The finding was made by the State Health Department in Lansing, which examined the animal's head which had been sent by the local veterinarian.

Charles W. Trinkle of 9081 Trinkle Rd., a brother of the animal's owner, who had handled the animal when it first appeared sick, was advised to undergo the Pasteur treatment for rabies.

Dr. Bowler said the source of the infection cannot be determined positively, but it probably originated in wildlife, such as foxes, raccoons or skunks."

He said no other animals on the farm are involved and that all the farm dogs have been vaccinated.

He cautioned the domestic infection can largely be prevented if all dogs are vaccinated.

Too Many Teachers Leave Profession Each Year for Other Employment

It is an established fact that good teachers quit their profession at an alarming rate. It is estimated that more than 10,000 of them will voluntarily leave their profession this year.

This is a national tragedy, for we are in a period now when our schools are crowded and when good teachers are sorely needed—and will be needed even more in future years.

Why are they quitting their chosen profession in such great numbers?

There are many reasons, of course. Pay is not high enough in some cases. But there are other reasons just as important—and in some of these progress may be made much more easily.

School boards are sometimes more concerned with dollars than with studies or principals are sometimes too insecure to be free in doing what they know is best for their school, or parents become so impossible that teaching is made miserable, or the children themselves have less than the minimum amount of needed discipline.

All of us need to examine our attitude and that of those around us regarding teachers, their working conditions, opportunities and future.

Sometimes we forget tat those who are molding and educating our children today hold the future in their hands, the future of our children, our country and perhaps the world. It is a profession which all of us should show an interest in, respect and work to make more attractive so that it will attract the best and most dedicated individuals.

There's ominous handwriting on the wall for white collar workers in industry, according the Wall Street Journal, whose staff reporter cites specific examples of cutbacks by four large manufacturers totalling more than 10,000 office workers, while no less than 200 others are studying white collar competence as they earlier studied production line efficiency. Over the past 15 years, this reporter states, the production force has dropped seven percent—while the office force has increased 65 percent. And with shrinking profits, a thinning of the latter ranks is inevitable. We have observed on our own though that salesmen were not among the casualties to date.

Big Land Deal

Odd as it may sound the State Highway Department is one of the state's biggest real estate "dealers".

Deputy Highway Commissioner Frederick E. Tripp reports the department has sold more than $3.7 million in excess land during the past three years.

Spending millions to buy land on which to build new highways, the department attempts to sell parcels unused when construction is complete. The parcels may be part of a package needed during construction but are no longer needed when this phase of work is done.

During the last three years, Tripp said 1,180 parcels of excess land were sold with money returning into the construction fund. About $3 million of the sale proceeds came from sales at public auctions, which returned the properties to local tax rolls.

The remainder of the land was sold to the Conservation Department, counties, or municipalities for public use. State agencies and local government units get first bids on the excess land, which they can purchase at the appraised price.

In public auction, the highest bidder takes the property, but the appraised vlaue is the minimum bid that can be submitted.

Smooth Start

The opening of the 1963 legislature, marked by victories in both houses for the so-called moderate Republicans, augers well for Gov. George Romney.

In the Senate, new majority caucus leader Stanley Thayer of Ann Arbor, has indicated his Republican group will be solidly behind the Governor's programs.

Even Sen. John P. (Joe) Smeekens, Coldwater Republican considered the leader of the conservative GOP members, says he expects smooth sailing for Romney's efforts.

With Smeekens' support, the roadblocks met by Democratic programs in previous years apparently would be almost invisible.

The House poses possibly a greater challenge this year for the new Governor. It has not been tested recently to show the breakdown in Republican ranks between the moderates and conservatives.

The House leadership appears strongly behind the GOP chief executive, but a number of previously considered conservatives still hold key committee positions.

It appears at the start of the session, however, that any holdouts from the old school in the House could well be convinced by their Senate colleagues that the Grand Old Party must stick together if they are to survive future elections.

Little is likely to be done in the early months of the session.

With the prospect of Lynn Bartlett dropping out of the race for Superintendent of Public Instruction, Republicans will be hard pressed to name a well-known candidate.

Bartlett's possible retirement from public office could provide the GOP with the inroad they need into the State Administrative Board. Romney would like at least one member of his party with him on the now all-Democratic board.

The April 1 balloting on the proposed constitution also will call for considerable campaigning by the Governor and the legislators. With a number of new legislature members former delegates to the Constitutional Convention, Romney undoubtedly will ask for help from them in the campaign.

Good and Better

During the last six months of 1962, Michigan's Economic Development Department noted strong evidences of progress, supporting a prediction made last year by the department's research chief.

At that time Dr. Paul A. Herbert forecast the year 1962 would be one of economic progress. A year-end report by the department showed some 3.6 million square feet of vacant industrial plant space was put back to use. Some 2.4 million square feet of this was returned to use during the last half of the year.

Now Herbert predicts that the state will show additional improvement this year.

"The mild recession for the United States forecast last year by some economists for the latter part of 1962 did not occur in Michigan," he said. "Other experts held the viewpoint that a drop in business would certainly come early in 1963. This also is not likely to happen in Michigan."

Herbert noted, however, that whatever happens nationally after mid-year will probably also take place here. "If there is a decline, it will not be as serious here as in some states that compete with Michigan."

Herbert warned, however, even greater progress than is expected must take place before Michigan's unemployment problem is eliminated. Another good year is expected to bring the state's unemployment rate closer to the national average, though.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

My old lady served notice on me bfficial this morning that she aims to attend the next session at the country store and put the fellers straight on the facts of life.

All this come up on account of me telling her about another big problem that is facing the new Congress.

I was reading the papers where the Guvernment bought a whole business block in Washington in 1960 and tore down all the buildings on it, fer a total cost of $6 million. It was figgered at the time that Sam Rayburn had plans for some sort of Guvernment building on the lot.

Well, now that Mr. Sam is dead, none of them Congressmen can recollect exactly what Mr. Sam had in mind and a big debate is going on amongst them now about how to fill up the vacant block.

According to the papers, the Congress has about decided to build a Memorial to President Madison on it, with a big underground warehouse fer storing important records. The best price they been quoted by contractors up to now on this building is $39 million.

Congressman Scott of Pennsylvania is claiming this plan has got two bad features. First off, he says, the Lincoln Memorial didn't cost but $3 million and it wouldn't be fair to ole Abe to spend $39 million on somepun fer Madison. In the second place, he allows as how it wouldn't be long till they got to looking fer expensive blocks to tear down fer a Memorial to Andrew Jackson or somebody. He says it might start a trend that would tear down the whole city of Washington and set the public debt back another 50 year. He claims it is the history of the Congress to go whole hog or nothing in such matters.

And I figgre it wouldn't be more'n a year till they moved them records out of the storage space and put surplus crops in it. I have wrote to my Congressman advising it would be better to sew this block down in lespedeza and put it in the Soil Bank. I'm expecting to git a 2-page reply thanking me fer my fine suggestion and advising that when the new Madison Memorial is dedicated I'll git a invitation. But my old lady says waste in big Guvernment is like fleas on a dog, the bigger the dog the more the fleas. This is a fact of life, she claims, that the fellers at the country store has got to live with—and she aims to tell 'em so.

I just hope, Mister Editor, that her and Zeke Grubb's preacher don't git there the same night. If they do, one of 'em is going in orbit.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew

Thursday, Jan. 17, 1929—

When President F. E. Storms called the Chelsea Kiwanis club to order Monday evening, he used for the first time a beautifully made golden bell, 13 inches high and eight inches across the bottom; the bell is a gift from Sylvan, Lyndon, Lima and Industrial Three-In-One 4-H clubs "in appreciation of the interest shown in 4-H clubs." Kiwanians sponsored the clubs in 1927 and 1928.

"Aaron Slick From Punkin Crick," a rural comedy in three acts, will be presented this evening at the public school auditorium. THE LETTERBOX

Dear Chelsea People:

Do you read a daily newspaper? If you do, that paper has been delivered to your home by a boy of between 10 and 15 years of age.

People don't seem to realize just how much work and worry there is in the job of a carrier salesman. First, most boys must buy their papers a week in advance. In order to do this they must have all of their collecting done by Saturday night. If one person doesn't pay, the carrier must pay for the paper out of his own pocket. How would you feel, if you knew that because you told your paperboy to come back next week that he had to go without some of his profit to pay for the papers he left at your house.

If it's only one customer who holds out his money for an extra week, it doesn't matter so much, but if 15 or 20 hold out the carrier may not have enough money to pay for his papers, much less have, some to spend for himself.

In this case the carrier doesn't make enough moeny and naturally gets lax and doesn't try as hard to give good service. Everyone wants good service so why not pay your carrier on time and give him a little incentive.

Yours truly,
Ex-Paper Boy

Job Outlook for '63 Reported To Be Good

East Lansing—Michigan's 1963 job outlook is good, says Dr. Roger L. Bowlby, assistant professor of economics at Michigan State University.

Michigan is no longer a problem state in terms of unemployment, he says in the December issue of Michigan Economic Record, published by the MSU Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

He said that Michigan unemployment has been steadily dropping and may now be below the national average.

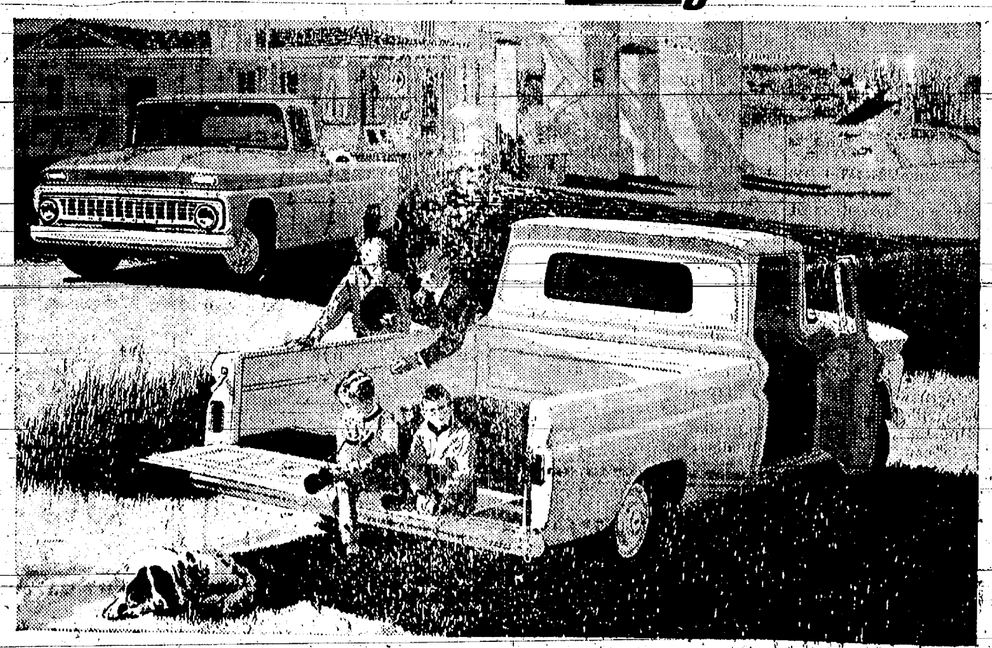
CHEVROLET...the Quality truck!



WALK AROUND IT. SEE THE DIFFERENCES.

Start at the rear of this Fleetside pickup. Grab the tailgate and pull hard. No give. Two wedge latches keep it tight. Now unfasten them and let down the gate. Jump up and down on it. Does it sag? Notice how the chains are wrapped in rubber so they won't rattle or mar paint.

Now look at the lower side panels. Two walls. You might dent the inside one but it won't show through. The floor will never rust. It's select wood, not metal.

Now please sit in the cab a minute. Comfortable? It also is double walled and the roof is insulated. Let's start 'er up and look for a washboard road. Chevrolet coil-spring suspensions fight road shock better than other types, good for the truck, load and the driver.

There are other things. But you can see why this is a truck that does a job without a lot of pampering. It's built right. Which is why it's usually worth more at trade-in. When would you like us to deliver it?

Council Briefs

At the Village Council meeting Tuesday evening, Jan. 15, a motion was made and approved to pass the so-called disorderly conduct ordinance. (The ordinance is published elsewhere in this issue of The Standard.)

Discussion held with Howard Holmes regarding possibility of providing an access route across the village's Winters parking lot on West Middle St. No official action was taken except to refer the matter for investigation by the Council.

Motion approved to authorize the transfer of $10,000 from the Electric and Water Department to the General Fund.

Motion approved to employ the firm of Icerman, Johnson and Hoffman of Ann Arbor to audit the Village and the Electric Light and Water Department books.

Zone VI Civil Defense Director Elwyn Beach reported at the meeting, stating that 60 people have been registered and issued identification cards showing stations and duties being assigned them for participation in any possible disaster situation.

His report also stated that Boy Scouts of Troops 76 and 25 will distribute Civil Defense literature to all homes in Chelsea while conducting their annual March of Dimes peanut sale Saturday, Jan. 19. The Council and Civil Defense organization went on record with a vote of thanks to Boy Scouts and their leaders for their community service.

Specifications and estimates have been furnished the Village Council regarding construction of a central control center for Civil Defense and disaster control activities. C. D. Director Beach has met with Lyndon township's director Norman Bauer to discuss plans, personnel, equipment and other related subjects of basic regulations for Civil Defense plans for this area.

The Council authorized payment of $25 for expenses incurred for mileage and materials devoted to Civil Defense.

Beach concluded his report by stating he will speak on Civil Defense at the Elementary PTA meeting Wednesday, Jan. 23, 8 p.m., at North Elementary school.

Council approved motions as follows: to increase the salary of Police Chief John Palmer $250 per year; to increase the salary of Police Sergeant Carl Koch $120 per year; set the salary of Police Officer Earl Willis at $5,200 per year; set the yearly uniform allowance at $150; and set an hourly rate of $2.10 per hour, after 44 hours, as overtime rate for the Police Department.

Approval voted for motion to authorize purchase of 61 rebuilt replacement mechanisms for village parking meters.

Village Council meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of the month in the Village Council room on the second floor of the Municipal Building. Citizens are welcome to attend. Meetings begin at 8 p.m.

START RIGHT—Thinking about zipping down a snowy slope on a pair of skis for the first time this season? If so, here are a few suggestions to help you off to a smooth, safe start. Get into shape before starting to ski by doing exercises at home that will strengthen foot, ankle, leg and hip muscles. Learn the fundamentals of this swisher sport from a qualified ski instructor or experienced skier. Seek their competent advice about selecting equipment. Always use safety release bindings and an Arlberg safety strap (top left photo) while skiing. Dress warmly; when your legs, feet and ankles are warm, they function better and are less prone to accidents. As a novice, avoid skiing on crowded slopes. Don't be a hot-rod on skis. Always smooth over holes made in the snow when you fall.

Michigan's Ski Areas Offer Slopes from Gentle to Steep

Lansing — Skiing can be a real wintertime picnic.

It takes some money, some know-how, and some precautions to have a beginner's enjoyment with this swisher sport, but skiing should not be overlooked as a fun possibility by either young or not-too-old, cautious or hellbent.

Giving it a first try is a very natural possibility here, too, because Michigan now has literally scores of ski areas whose prices and slopes both run from gentle to steep. A beginner can thus go as far as his money and energy permits, or he can remain a happy snow-covered novice by very little application of either.

Skis, boots, poles, and clothing are all items of considerable expense, and the novice should avoid buying anything until he tries the sport. Thus, one should rent equipment for the first go-around.

Nearly all ski shops have rental equipment, and that includes shops located at ski areas, plus the bigger sporting goods stores in cities and town. If you become a member of a club—and this is a good inexpensive way to get acquainted with the sport—then the club may have a rental-purchase agreement with a local ski shop, so rental costs may apply against later equipment purchases.

The most important item for beginners is a proper pair of boot. If your feet chill easily, plan to wear two pair of socks, a light pair underneath and a warmer pair on top. When wearing these, the boots should fit tightly enough so your heel can't slide up and down inside. Many better types of boots are equipped with pads which hold the boot snugly against the vertical Achilles tendon just back of the ankle bone.

The biggest problem in choice of skis is deciding the length you need. The length will depend on your height, leg length, and weight. A six-foot tall man who is fairly heavy will probably want a ski somewhat longer than seven feet. A six-foot man who is lighter in weight may feel more comfortable in the shorter seven-foot ski.

Don't trust the old rule-of-thumb that your skis should reach in length to the heel of your hand when your arm is stretched above your head. Remember, the shorter the ski, the slower and more controllable it is; longer skis, meanwhile, are faster but more difficult to control.

With this in mind, a beginner will probably find it safer and more fun to choose a shorter length ski.

Bindings on skis vary widely in quality and price. The best are those which have safety releases both at toe and heel. In addition, a safety strap, commonly called an "Arlberg Strap" should be attached from your boot to the ski binding. Its purpose is to prevent a ski from scooting off downhill after you fall.

Pole length varies, too, with the individual. With the point of the pole stuck in snow, and the basket part flat on the top of the snow, the pole should at least reach your elbow. It can be longer than this, but should not be shorter.

So far as wax for skis is concerned, there is very little reason for novice skiers to use any wax at all, unless planning to ski on very damp, sticky snow.

Clothing should be close fitting. If you don't care to invest in a pair of standard ski pants until you are sure you plan to stick with the sport, then use any pair of long warm pants. Socks should be pulled up inside pants, pants should be tucked down in boots, and boots should be laced up tight. This keeps the snow out and feet comfortable.

So far as other clothing goes, don't wear long dangling scarves or ties or anything that's liable to get entangled in a rope tow.

So much for equipment. Actual skiing instruction starts at home and requires some regular exercises to strengthen leg, knee, and ankle muscles. Flat-footed knee bends three times a day will soon let you know there are muscles down there which haven't been used for a long time. Twisting the whole body far right and then back far left while holding the feet parallel and flat on the floor is another good exercise.

Sometime during this first two weeks of exercises, you should begin dry land work with a qualified ski instructor, or an experienced skier. These people will tell you how to fall, how to stop, how to turn, what to expect when you first head down that first gentle slope, how to get up after falling, and how to keep your feet parallel. These are all basic and fairly simple procedures which should be learned by dry land practice before strapping on that new pair of barrel staves.

Most ski areas have instructors and regular classes for beginners. These classes should be nominal in price, and if arrangements are made through a local ski club, they may cost nothing or be handled through the club membership fee.

The rope tow, incidentally, is a tricky gadget and no novice should tackle it without first having been told clearly how to it works, how to catch hold of it, and how to let go.

Two Directors Named At Meeting of Soil Conservation District

Washtenaw Soil Conservation District held their annual meeting in the County Building on Jan. 8. A large crowd was present to hear the annual report and to elect two new directors.

Orin Girbach, 325 Benis Rd., Saline, and Maynard Leach, 10285 Sharon Hollow Rd., Manchester were elected to fill the expired terms of office held by Luther Schaible and Raymond Girbach.

Following the business meeting, Neil Nixon and Albert Gall gave an illustrated talk on Russian agriculture. Nixon and Gall traveled in Russia and Germany this past summer, as farmer representatives from this area, through the People-to-People program.

Refreshments followed the program.

CAR TOO SMALL

Tucson, Ariz. — A small car almost caused the bride to be late to her wedding. When Kay Ann Miller tried to get in a small car to go to her wedding she discovered there was not room for her flowing wedding gown.

The florist offered the use of his panel truck and bride, gown and train arrived intact for the wedding.

Open House Set by Special Ed. Center

Dr. Warren Ketcham, professor of education, special education, and co-ordinator of physiological services of the University of Michigan, will be the principal speaker at a formal program from 3:30 until 4:30 p.m. Sunday during an open house at the Sullivan School Special Education Center, 5225 Jackson Rd.

A new class room addition and auxiliary rooms which were added late last year are now in use and will be dedicated.

The open house from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. is being sponsored by the Washtenaw Chapter of the Michigan Association for Retarded Children.

This is the first year that Sullivan Special Education Center has been used exclusively for retarded children. The center was moved from the location on Dhu Varren Rd., used by the Ann Arbor School Association for six years. Last year three classes were held in two rooms and there was a waiting list of prospective pupils.

The new location provides sufficient space for two pre-school classes and one senior group to hold classes from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m., the same as the two classes for trainable retarded children, sponsored by the Washtenaw county Board of Education; the two classes are using the Sullivan Special Education Center facilities, their teachers being Miss Barbara Sturm and Miss Carol Niemela.

The nursery class teacher is Mrs. Ann Eliasson and the senior class has Mrs. Kay Thompson as teacher. The director of Sullivan Center is Mrs. Anna Lou Pickett.

From 38 pupils at the Dhu Varren Rd. school, enrollment at the new facility has increased to 64; a waiting list already has been started.

These classes are supported by the United Fund; parents of the children enrolled with the Washtenaw chapter of the MARC; school tuition; and assistance from civic groups. This center is believed to be the only one in Michigan, serving mentally retarded children trainable retarded classes and the parent operated program are in the same location.

All people of the county are invited to attend the open house and see a modern special education center in action serving the entire county.

The formal program period from 3:30 until 4:30 p.m., will be under the direction of Glenn Ohlson, president of the Washtenaw Association for Retarded Children (WARC), and director for special education of Ann Arbor public schools.

Representatives will be present from the county boards of education, University Hospital, Neuropsychiatric Institute (NPI), Michigan Association for Retarded Children, and from research organizations related to the field of mental retardation.

Michigan was the first state in the nation to pass the halfway mark in construction of its Interstate freeway system. By the end of 1962, nearly 60 percent of the state's 1,080-mile Interstate System will be open to traffic.

BATHIE STUART

Bathie Stuart Returns with Travel Film

Miss Bathie Stuart, who was born and educated in New Zealand, appears here for the second time when she presents her travelogue, "Away to the South Seas," Saturday evening at Chelsea High school auditorium in the 1962-63 Kiwanis travelogue series. The program, which is scheduled for 8 p.m., is also known by the topic, "Polynesia—Garden of Eden."

Miss Stuart majored in music, piano, voice and elocution to complete her studies at St. Mary Philomena's convent at Dunedin, New Zealand; these studies have proved to be of exceptional value in her travelogue presentations in which she includes native songs and dances.

Her exceptionally effective speaking voice has also been put to use in a number of television appearances.

In last year's travelogue, Miss Stuart showed pictures of New Zealand, her homeland; the remarkable folklore of Polynesia have had the deepest fascination for her since childhood and the Maori Polyneisians of her native country gave her the name "Princess Kotuku which means "White Heron," a bird seldom seen.

Miss Stuart explains that "Polynesia" is a Greek word meaning "many islands"; thus her presentation includes stories and pictures of French Oceania, British and American Samoa, Cook Islands and exotic Tonga—the fabulous and romantic coral islands that have been a source of interest for painters and writers for many generations.

During Miss Stuart's commentary she introduces and interprets the tribal songs and ceremonial sea chantys which are the ancient heritage of these "Vikings of the Pacific," whose ancestors were the first colonists of the Islands. All the lure of the idyllic tropical isles of the South Seas is brought in an enchanting manner to the screen by the magic of speech, authentic music and color photography, according to previews of the travelogue program.

Remaining programs in the series are Don Cooper's "Yukon" on Feb. 2 and Stan Midgley's "Colorado—Today and Yesterday," on April 1.

It's high time to develop highway manners when driving an automobile.

U-M Religious Center Director Is Guest Speaker

The Rev. Paul R. Dotson, director of the Ecumenical Campus Center at the University of Michigan, was the guest speaker at the Jan. 9 meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church. The center is sponsored by the Protestant Foundation for International Students.

The Rev. Dotson, on the basis of his residence at various times in other countries, gave his address from the viewpoint of "a foreign student."

He related many humorous incidents showing the attitude of some Americans toward the foreign students here. He explained that the average American seems to forget that these students are as much impressed with their own countries as Americans are with the United States and do not share the opinion that Americans are "the favored people."

The Rev. Dotson hastened to point out, however, that the foreign students are "very appreciative of all the kind things done for them." He mentioned particularly the holiday vacation entertaining done by Chelsea area people when nine University students spent a week here as guests in a number of homes and special opportunities were provided by area churches for the students to meet members of the congregations.

The Rev. Dotson was introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Louis Burghardt.

The meeting was preceded by a pot-luck dinner at 6:30 p.m. with members of the executive board as hostesses.

The tables were attractively decorated with artificial fruit and flowers. The group sang the table grace and also sang hymns, with Mrs. Oscar Lindauer as piano accompanist.

Following the program period a short business session was held during which the president, Mrs. LeRoy Satterthwaite, announced the names of officers and department chairmen for the year. She listed them as follows: Mrs. David Strieter, vice-president; Mrs. Henry Karner, secretary; Mrs. John Pierson, treasurer; Mrs. Wilbert Grieb and Mrs. Ray Altenberndt, Christian stewardship and spiritual life chairmen.

The list continues with Mrs. Richard Schmidt and Mrs. William Osborne, Christian service and social action chairmen; Mrs. Louis Burghardt and Mrs. David Strieter, Christian education chairmen; and Mrs. Alma Meserva, missionary education chairman.

New committee appointees are Mrs. Walter Beutler, altar flowers; Mrs. Emma Seitz, United Church Herald; and Mrs. Addie Fitzmier, publicity.

Other business included voting to accept the recommendation of the executive board that the Guild help with the church get-together to be held Sunday, Feb. 17.

Final Date Near To Apply for Grain Price Support Loans

Farmers expecting to apply for price support loans on their 1962 crops wheat, oats, barley, rye, dry edible beans, soybeans, flaxseed or grain sorghums should do so by Jan. 20 according to Carolyn Stump, office manager of the Washtenaw county ASC Committee.

The final date for approval of loans and purchase agreements is Jan. 31, however, in the case of farm-stored loans, a minimum of two weeks is required for inspection of storage structures and the grain by loan inspectors and the obtaining of a sample of the grain to be forwarded to a grain grading laboratory before the loan documents can be completed.

If the storage structure and the grain are found to be acceptable, the producer will be given an opportunity to complete the loan.

The loan and chattel mortgage must be signed and on file in the county ASCS office by Jan. 31, 1963.

Price support may be obtained by the producers of the above commodities through purchase agreements by applying to the county ASCS office on or before Jan. 31. Purchase agreements differ from loans in that the producer receives no funds unless or until he delivers the commodity to the Commodity Credit Corporation after the maturity date for the loan program. These maturity dates vary, depending on the crop, from one to four months after the final availability date of Jan. 31.

March of Dimes Progress Reviewed For Altar Society

Mrs. Maynard Poertner, Mrs. Stanley Montange and Mrs. Charles Stapish were introduced as new members at the January meeting of St. Mary's Altar Society, held at St. Mary's school Wednesday of the past week.

The program was a presentation of color slides and a talk by Leroy Cappaert, Washtenaw county March of Dimes chairman of the speakers bureau committee. Introduced by the Chelsea March of Dimes chairman, Mrs. Wallace Wood, the speaker told of the work being done to rehabilitate polio victims, making useful citizens of many who might otherwise be totally incapacitated.

The slides he showed were in the nature of a progress report of his own daughter who was stricken with polio six years ago when she was two years old. He included pictures of equipment which is constantly being modernized for greater efficiency in helping patients overcome effects of polio. He said the National Foundation has succeeded in changing the thought of people leading them to recognize polio as "a respectable disease" rather than one to be spoken of in whispers.

Miss Nina Greening announced that the annual dinner of Catholic Social Services of Washtenaw county will be held Feb. 13, at 6:30 p.m. at the Michigan Union, Ann Arbor. Those who plan to attend may contact her for tickets.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski spoke to the group regarding participation in the Mass, specifically by giving the latin responses aloud. This is in keeping with the wish of the Pope that people take a more active part in the Mass. Father Maliszewski suggested that Altar Society members set aside 15 or 20 minutes at each of their meetings, particularly during the Lenten season, to devote to reviewing the Latin responses.

Mrs. George Merkel and Mrs. Arthur Paul were named as the February altar committee; a discussion related to altar flowers was held; and altar boys' cassocks were also the subject of planning. It was suggested that each altar boy be asked to accept responsibility for keeping his own cassock clean and in presentable condition.

Members were reminded that the March meeting is the date when contributions of articles of clothing are to be collected. Each one is asked to bring at least one article of clothing—it must be new clothing for this project—for the clothing drive known as the Pope's Storehouse.

Needed is clothing for infants and for children ages one to 12 years old.

New Classes Start at Co-Op Nursery

Chelsea Co-operative Nursery started its second semester Tuesday, Jan. 15. On that day the three-year-olds welcomed a new Dexter member, Jimmy Starkweather. Unlike some new members Jimmy knows all about nursery school; his brother Bobby attended the three-year-old class last year and is now in the four-year-old class.

The Nursery is held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the former Beach rural school—halfway between Chelsea and Dexter. Mrs. Raymond Schauer is the regular teacher. In addition, each mother helps about once a month. Car pools for the morning and afternoon sessions drive from both Chelsea and Dexter, so that most of the mothers only drive about once every two weeks.

The morning session for three- and young four-year-olds has several openings. There is one opening in the afternoon session (four- and young five-year-olds).

Information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Ray Steinbach, GR 9-5581. Mrs. Steinbach also will be accepting registrations for next year's classes (1963-1964).

Tentative date for euchre party is Feb. 16, at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Date of regular meetings of the association was changed—meetings are to be held the first Tuesday of each month.

The next regular meeting is to take place at St. Mary school Tuesday evening, Feb. 5.

Scout Week Will Mark Scouting's 53rd Anniversary

The 800 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers of the Iroquois District of the Portage Trails Council, Boy Scouts of America, will observe the 53rd anniversary of the Scouting movement during Scout Week, Feb. 13, with the theme, "Strengthen America . . . Be Prepared, Be Fit."

They will join nearly 5,200,000 other Scouts and leaders in every part of the nation in rededicating themselves to the Scout Oath on Friday, Feb. 8, the actual birthday of the movement in America.

Scout Week will be observed nationally by more than 180,000 Scouting units in every city and town and in thousands of villages and hamlets as well including the 20 in the Iroquois district.

"This year the Scout Week observance will be conducted at the unit level," says Max Kenyon of Dexter, district Scout commissioner. "In this way we believe a boy's membership in the movement is more meaningful and colorful to him. We also like to have every member invite another boy of his own age to attend the Scout Week meeting so that he may share the excitement of the program."

The district's seven Cub Scout packs with 450 members will each conduct a "Blue and Gold Open House," a "pot-luck dinner" with prospective members and their parents as guests. Newly-qualified Cub Scouts will be inducted. A skit, "How Scouting Began," will be put on by most packs.

Parents' night meetings will be held by nearly all of the eight Boy Scout troops. Displays of Scout hobbies will be shown, and those who have progressed in rank will be honored at formal courts of honor. Emergency preparedness skills will be demonstrated by patrols, and patrol stunts, songs, and games will precede a closing ceremony.

Explorers from the five Explorer units will address boy and adult groups at high school assemblies, service clubs, church groups, PTA and Boy Scout troops. They will collect pledge cards indicating interest in joining an Explorer unit, helping to form a new unit, or offering to serve as a consultant in a specialized field. Prospective Explorers will be invited to a Valentine's day party.

★ 'Invalid' Unemployment Comparisons

Shortly before the election, Secretary of Labor Wirtz issued a statement on employment and unemployment. It was widely criticized at the time as an attempt to influence the approaching vote. This was not true in so far as timing was concerned, because it had been announced at the beginning of the year on just which dates the new data would be released. But it is now known that the comparison of the October figures with those of January, 1961, were, to use the Secretary's own adjective, "invalid."

The invalidity arose because the Secretary failed to use seasonally adjusted data, and there is a significant seasonal factor between January and October. The upshot was that the Secretary's comparison was much more favorable than it would have been had he used seasonally corrected figures.

As a long-time member of the Business Research Advisory Council to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, we necessarily are quite familiar with the manner in which the unemployment and employment statistics are developed. The raw figures are collected by the Census Bureau on the basis of a scientifically selected sample of families. These figures are then passed to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which processes them for the actual release. We believe the definition of unemployment is too broad—it is the most liberal in use in any major country—but we are confident that the bureau is absolutely honest in the processing of the figures. It perhaps should also be repeated that neither the bureau nor the Department of Labor determines the definition. That is done by a committee composed of many representatives, and before a change is made it is checked with private economists.

Until the Kennedy administration took office the release not only was prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, but also issued by the bureau. That no longer is the case. The actual issuance is now handled by others, and it may be that this was the reason for the unfortunate statement of the Secretary.

Why was it an unfortunate statement?

First, the unemployment figures have been under severe attack by outsiders for years. This got so bad that the President appointed a special committee of private experts to study the problem and give him a report. This report was issued a few months ago, and while it made a long list of recommendations for improving the methods used in handling the figures, it gave the Bureau of Labor Statistics an absolutely clean bill of health in so far as honesty and integrity are concerned.

Second, it would have been hard to find two months when the normal seasonal variations are greater. On employment the difference was from 4,500,000, which is the figure used by Secretary Wirtz, to 1,224,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis. On unemployment the Secretary's statement was that there had been a decline of 2,000,000 since January 1961. The seasonally adjusted figures reveal a drop of only 784,000.

Third, if the American public ever decides that the Administration is using its statistics for political purposes, it will destroy the present confidence in the integrity of government figures. This is not to say that such misuse has not happened in the past. But we do mean to say that every misuse—not matter how great the temptation — is serious beyond words, and must be guarded aginst at any cost.

On the basis that Secretary Wirtz himself selected the word "invalid" in describing the comparisons he had made, we assume that he did not fully realize the error he was making when he issued the release. We also assume that those responsible for the error have been adequately bawled out. And we cannot bring ourselves to believe that another such error will be permitted to occur.

Colleges Should Be Free, U. of M. Professor States

Ann Arbor—Tax funds should be employed to support free public education at the college level for all who qualify, Merritt Chambers, University of Michigan visiting professor of higher education asserts.

"Some people argue that more of the cost of operating colleges and universities should be charged to the student," says Chambers.

"We are told that scholarships can be provided for superior students who are unable to pay their own way; that students and their families should borrow heavily to pay for college expenses; and that a student will not properly appreciate his chance for education unless he has to pay for it."

Says Chambers, "This is an attempt to stop the clock and turn it backward. Scholarships never have been sufficient, and never can be unless they are provided from tax funds on an enormous scale.

"Scholarships involve an odious 'means test' and other invasion of privacy which many spirited persons will have nothing of.

"If instituted on a really large scale, they would entail a vast amount of bureaucratic administration whose cost would be much better spent for public educational facilities open to all qualified persons."

In Chambers' view, the idea of loans to students on a large scale is unpalatable because it involves so many unacceptable side-effects. "First of all, it is cruelly discriminatory against young women.

"Second, it corrupts the aim of education by forcing the student to have uppermost in his mind the necessity of 'making a fast buck' and paying off his debt as quickly as possible after leaving college.

"It pushes him away from the modestly paid service professions in which he may have a real interest, and preoccupies his mind with a choice of occupation which he thinks will pay the most in the shortest time, without much regard to his obligation to the public."

Chambers's remarks are from his new book, "Chance and Choice in Higher Education."

Fishing Regulations Booklet Available

Lansing—Free copies of Michigan's special fishing regulations for 1963 are now available through the Conservation Department's Publications Room in Lansing or any of its district field offices.

The regulations, too lengthy to be included in the fish law digest, mostly pertain to liberalizations. Numbering 21 separate regulations in all, the majority of these involve waters open to various types of specialized fishing.

Of current interest to many fishermen are regulations listing waters from which rainbow trout may be taken through the ice by hook and line during January and February; winterkill lakes open to year-round hook and line angling for fish of any kind or size; and trout lakes and streams where spearing through the ice is permitted.

Because supplies are limited, fishermen are asked to make single-copy requests for only those regulations which cover their special interests.

MSU Offering Assistant Positions for Returning Peace Corpsmen

East Lansing—Michigan State University is offering 20—and perhaps more—graduate assistantships to returning Peace Corpsmen, with bachelor's degrees.

"These are highly qualified people with high motivation and many of them want to return to school," explains Dr. Ralph H. Smuckler, associate dean of International Programs at MSU.

"We think they should be encouraged to come here because this University has a wide range of foreign studies and a large international program which has given many faculty members experience overseas."

Graduate assistants earn stipends of $2,000 to $2,200 a year, by teaching or doing research on a half-time basis.

Dr. Smuckler adds, "Also, we think it will benefit MSU to have these students with their additional maturity and understanding of world affairs mixing with other graduate students."

Caledonia Farmer Elected Farm Bureau Services Head

Elton R. Smith, dairy and poultry farmer from Caledonia, was named president of the enlarged Farm Bureau Services board of directors at the December organization meeting of the board.

At its annual meeting in November the board had been expanded from 9 to 13 members, in recognition of the increased activities and enlarged program resulting from the addition of the Michigan Elevator Exchange as a division of Services. An anticipated volume of business, totaling near the $45 million figure, is one expected result.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Smith as operated the same farm for 28 years and has been active in many phases of agriculture. Currently he serves on the board of directors of the Michigan Farm Bureau, and as president of Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co.

Elected to the executive committee, along with Smith were Alfred Roberts, Pigeon, vice-president; and Eugene Roberts, Lake City, third member. Alfred Roberts is manager of the Pigeon Farmers Co-operative Elevator. Eugene Roberts operates an extnsive poultry farm in Missaukee county.

Also approved were appointments of Leon Monroe, Lansing, as treasurer; G. F. Griswold, and Clyde Trout as assistant treasurers and Maynard D. Brownlee as secretary-manager.

Other Board members are: John Converse of Union City; Marten Garn of Charlotte; Walter Harger, of Stanwood; Clayton Healey of East Jordan; James Heuvelhorst, of Hudsonville; Ward Hodge, of Snover; Max Hood, of Paw Paw; Dean Pridgeon, of Montgomery; Allen Rush, of Lake Orion; and Lloyd Shenkel of Wheeler. Size Farm Bureau Services' board increased from 9 to 13 members to give representation to the membership of the recently acquired Michigan Elevator Exchange.

Michigan's IFYE Delegates Chosen

Five Michigan State University students are among six Michigan 4-H'ers chosen as International Farm Youth Exchange delegates.

The delegates will spend six months living and working with farm families all over the globe. IFYE is based on the premise that shared experience and customs are the surest roads to world understanding. Its success has much to do with stimulating the Peace Corps idea.

The five MSU students are as follows:

Alice Bonomo, a senior from Vandalia in Cass county. Alice hopes to teach Spanish in American schools. She would also like to teach English abroad as a foreign language upon completing her stint as an IFYE delegate.

Thomas Thorburn, Mason junior, is majoring in animal husbandry. Tom went on an Ingham county 4-H goodwill tour to Mexico last December.

Lynn Munson of Ithaca, a senior majoring in agricultural education. He first became interested in the IFYE program in 1958 when his parents hosted a delegate from Costa Rica on their Gratiot county farm.

Tarry Edington, Grand Ledge junior, also majoring in agricultural education. He hopes to get a job in the Foreign Agricultural Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Jack Morse, Bellevue junior, hopes to teach the physical sciences in high school.

Thorburn and Morse also would like to join the Peace Corps for two years upon completion of their terms as IFYE delegates.

Charlotte Webster, Hillsdale, a senior at Western Michigan University is the sixth delegate selected for the program.

Farmers' Week Program Designed To Help Teenagers in Career Choice

East Lansing—If you are the parent of a teenager and you are concerned about your child's future, you will have a special interest in attending a program set for Farmers' Week at Michigan State University, Feb. 28-Jan. 1.

"Expanding Horizons for Youth" is the title of a twin program offered first on Tuesday, Jan. 29 and repeated on Thursday, Jan. 31. Both begin at 10 a.m. in the University Auditorium.

Dr. Stanley J. Idzerda, director of the MSU Honors College, handles the first meeting.

Dr. Evelyn Duvall, Chicago family life consultant and author of "When You Marry" and "Facts of Life and Love for Teenagers," takes over on Thursday's session.

These programs are planned for a teenage audience but are also designed to help parents understand the problems their youngsters have in choosing careers.

"Young people today face different career choices than did their parents," explains Georgianne Baker, chairman of Farmers' Week Home Economics-Family Living Programs and a member of the committee for the youth sessions. It is estimated that only one out of 10 farm boys will be able to enter farming as a career. Girls are likely to combine two careers homemaking and employment outside the home."

She also points out that a recent survey of Michigan high school students named "career selection" as their number one concern.

Following each general session of "Expanding Horizons for Youth," the audience may choose from 17 career areas to be discussed. Included are: agricultural industry; art; communications; farming; home economics in business and industry; medical technology and veterinary medicine; liberal arts and pre-professional training; nursing; physical education and recreation; public and government service to agriculture; natural resources and conservation; science and research; secretarial administration; social work and teaching.

The career program is sponsored jointly by the MSU College of Home Economics and College of Agriculture. Further information about Farmers' Week may be obtained from your county extension office.

Lives of Six Men Tell Edison Story As 60th Birthday of Firm Is Reached

Jan. 17 is Detroit Edison's 60th anniversary.

The year of the company's corporate birth—1903—saw many significant events. For example:

—The first automobile trip across the United States was accomplished. Coast-to-coast time—69 days.

—Henry Ford, erstwhile chief engineer for Detroit Edison's corporate parent, the Edison Illuminating Co., formed the Ford Motor Co.

—President Theodore Roosevelt concluded agreements with Colombia permitting the United States to undertake the building of the Panama Canal.

—Wilbur and Orville Wright made the first successful airplane flights in an aircraft of their own design which they patented the same year.

Such was the eventful setting for Detroit Edison's corporate debut. The story of the company viewed in many aspects. One of those appears in the lives of six men—six leaders of the company during its first 60 years. One of them, Alex Dow, headed the business for nearly three of these six decades.

Charles Wetmore

In 1903 Alex Dow was manager of Detroit Edison. He was also an uncommonly astute reader of future implications in the events of the day. For the benefit of Charles Wetmore, first president of the new corporation, and for others influential in the business Dow drew a most promising picture and followed through with bold proposals.

"A new power plant for a new company," was his emphatic recommendation. President Wetmore, a native of Marquette, Mich., a Harvard graduate and a financial expert, went along with his manager's bid for immediate expansion. Plans were launched for the company's first large-scale generating plant, located on a riverside site in the village of Delray.

Story of Expansion

This was the beginning of a growth that more than fulfilled all of Alex Dow's great expectations.

In those days Detroit Edison was employing 200 people to serve 22,000 customers in a 25-square-mile area which is now central Detroit. Four small power plants were able to meet a maximum demand of about 5,000 kilowatts. The company had 135 stockholders and total assets amounted to $7,500,000.

Now, 60 years later, Edison people number 9,500 serving nearly 1,300,000 customers throughout a 7,600 - square - mile Southeastern Michigan territory. Six big power plants have an agregate capability of 4,000,000 kilowatts. The company is owned by 106,000 stockholders and total investment is close to 1.3 billions of dollars.

Alex Dow

Alex Dow succeeded Charles Wetmore as president of Detroit Edison in 1912. Meanwhile, the company had been moving steadily into a large metropolitan area, a circling ring of cities, villages and townships beyond Detroit limits.

In 1900, Edison had bought a privately owned electrical system called the Grosse Pointe Co., and extended central service in that area.

By 1905, the movement to the east included Hamtramck, Highland Park, and the towns of Fairview and Woodmere — now long gone from the map.

To the south, expansion was less rapid. Monroe became an interesting possibility but it was not until 1917 that the local municipal plant was offered for sale. Then Detroit Edison bought it and integrated it with the central system.

Port Huron, too, was subject to early negotiations but the existing municipal utility plant, including a gas-works, did not come into the Edison system until 1919.

Westward expansion of the Edison Company began with negotiations for the purchase of the Washtenaw Light and Power Co., which served the small communities of Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor. Acquisition of this small system in 1905 was the beginning of a series of additions—all hydro-electric properties. These extended from Barton Pond west of Ann Arbor along the Huron River east and south to French Landing, in the Romulus - Belleville neighborhood. The development called for several hydro-electric plants, the last of which went into operation at French Landing in 1925.

During the earlier years of Dow's presidency, the territory served by the company grew to include an area ranging from the St. Clair River on the East to near Lansing. Later, in 1935, acquisition of the Michigan Electric Power Co., extended the system to include the Thumb from Port Huron northward. This completed the southeastern Michigan service area as it stands today.

Dow, having kept his company strong in meeting power demands of the automotive industrial revolution and World War I, had having brought it securely through the Great Depression of the 1930's retired in 1940.

Alfred Marshall

Alfred C. Marshall, general manager of Detroit Edison, became president that year. He fell heir to heavy responsibilities imposed by World War II. These included meeting extremely heavy industrial power demands as well as coping with power equipment priority problems. He retired in 1944.

James Parker

James W. Parker, vice-president and general manager, was elected as Detroit Edison's next president. As a nationally-known authority in the electrical engineering field, he was particularly well qualified to deal with the still-critical wartime situation.

When the war ended, Parker was convinced that a general economic pessimism which pervaded Detroit and the nation was without foundation. In action reminiscent of his predecessor, Alex Dow, he proposed and launched expansion projects without which the booming post-war and Korean conflict demands could never have been met.

Prentiss Brown

Also in 1944, former U. S. Senator Prentiss M. Brown came to Detroit Edison in the newly-created position of chairman of the board of directors. Senator Brown, a distinguished lawyer and former chief of the U. S. Office of Price Administration, applied his experience to the company's problems of expansion financing, business policy, and civic and governmental relations. He retired in 1954.

Walker Cisler

Walker L. Cisler, president of Detroit Edison since 1951, was elected to that office upon Parker's retirement. As an Eisenhower staff officer in World War II, Cisler gained international reputation for his leadership in restoring shattered power facilities. Since that time, he has been active throughout the Free World in U. S. Government efforts to establish or improve overseas power systems as a measure of economic aid to friendly nations abroad.

During his tenure as Detroit Edison's chief executive officer, he has guided the company in a program which doubled power production and distribution facilities within a ten-year period.

Under Cisler's administration, the Edison story is still unfolding. Long-range plans reach as far as 20 years ahead. Larger generators, transmission lines of twice the present maximum voltage, and the probable utilization of atomic-electric power plants are among the factors of a future in which Detroit Edison looks forward to another 60 years of service in Southeastern Michigan.

Senator Philip A. Hart's REPORT from WASHINGTON

Filibuster Tactics Should Be Retired . . .

From time to time, we have all read recurring news items about some frantic householder who couldn't report his house afire because a neighbor refused to relinquish the party line.

I have always felt a special sympathy for the unfortunate householder, a feeling of kinship born from the sure knowledge that here is one more citizen with a minimum of patience for the filibuster.

Since the 1840's the filibuster has been a reliable device for a minority to block the will of the majority. During the nation's youth, it was a weapon against a wide range of issues. More recently its principal target has been civil rights legislation.

From the beginning, its defenders have argued that any attempt to curb a Senator's right to talk a measure to death—even if it took a month—was an affront to free speech and open debate.

A hundred years ago, this argument may have had some merit.

In those days, national affairs were dampened by poor communications and leisurely pace of events. So even if an issue did ignite, it tended to burn slowly and Congress could afford to sit by the phone for an hour without serious danger of the structure crumbling into ashes.

But this is no longer true. Problems arise swiftly and require action as well as discussion. In 1963, the filibuster should be a retired relic of the 19th Century, like the snuff boxes on the Senate floor.

As the 88th Congress opens, a serious attempt will be made to accomplish this. Assistant Majority Leader Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn), Senator Joseph S. Clark (D-Penn), and I are proposing a rules change allowing debate to be cut off by a majority of the membership of the Senate—fifty-one.

Presently, a two-thirds vote of those present and voting is required so that, in effect, only one-third (plus one) of the Senators voting can block legislation.

Our proposal will not be a gag rule. It will work this way:

Sixteen Senators must join in a motion for cloture (the end of debate). No vote will be taken on this motion until after another full two weeks of debate. Then, if there is a majority vote for cloture at the end of that period, each Senator will be allowed one additional hour of discussion before the legislation being debated is called for a final vote.

Doubtless, the measure will be hotly opposed by the small band of Southern Democrats and conservative Republicans who regard the filibuster as a valuable weapon.

Soil Conservation Annual Meeting Set for Jan. 18-19

Michigan's Soil Conservation Districts will mark 25 years of service in helping to protect the state's natural resources at their annual meeting Jan. 18-19.

About 200 district directors from 80 soil conservation districts throughout the state are expected to participate in the event at Michigan State University's Kellogg Center.

Soil conservation districts organized in Ottawa and Muskegon counties in 1938 for the purpose of controlling wind erosion were among the first formed in the nation, according to Russell G. Hill, conservation specialist of the Co-operative Extension Service at MSU.

Feature speaker for the association's annual banquet on Jan. 18 will be Dr. Georg Borgstrom of MSU's Department of Food Science. Borgstrom, a native of Sweden, is an international authority on world food supplies.

Clair Guess, program adviser for the National Assn. of Soil Conservation districts, Washington, D.C., will appear on the noon luncheon program.

Hill, also executive secretary of the State Soil Conservation Committee, notes that the organization's activities today include some 30 different conservation programs.

CHELSEA telephone lines

By NICK PRAKKEN, Manager

IF YOUR CLUB, SCHOOL, church or civic group is planning a program, the new Bell System film, "TELSTAR," could be just what your Program Chairman is looking for. This 27-minute film, in color, is a dramatic on-the-scene story of the development, launching, and history-making performance of the world's first active communications satellite. Narrated by Alexander Scourby, the film is available on loan, without charge, from our business office.

WE "THINK SMALL." The Telstar satellite, only 34½ inches in diameter, contains 15,000 components. Size was certainly important in designing it. When it comes to our regular telephone equipment, we look for ways to make parts and components smaller, too. It takes a lot of equipment to make your telephone work . . . a single call can involve thousands of electrical switches. Since buildings are needed to house this equipment, savings in space mean savings in money. Making equipment smaller requires less material, and that saves money too. This "miniaturization" is just one of the many ways we strive to do things better and more efficiently, so you get more for your telephone dollar.

WHEN AN ILL WIND BLOWS the smart woman goes—shopping by phone! Sensible? Couldn't be more so! Shopping by phone is the cozy, quick way to run all over town—right from your easy chair. So don't let blustery winds blow away your shopping plans. Settle back and shop by phone. Just check your newspaper or the Yellow Pages for what you want or where to buy it. Give the dial a few flicks . . . and it's yours! Shopping by phone is fast . . . easy . . . fun. Why not try it soon?

Highway Dept. Radio Network Now Operating

Lansing—State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie officially put the State Highway Department's new two-way radio network into operation recently.

Mackie made the first radio call to Peter DeCamp, Senior Engineer of the Kalamazoo District, who was in the field checking driving conditions.

The new radio system now connects Lansing with about 300 Highway Department vehicles in southwestern Michigan, which are equipped with radio sending and receiving sets.

Nine steel radio towers were erected last summer in the Kalamazoo and Jackson districts to relay messages from control points at Lansing, Jackson and Kalamazoo.

By next summer, the Highway Department plans to complete 35 other towers throughout the state and install radios in about 250 other vehicles to complete the state-wide two-way radio network.

ON FILIBUSTERS

Seantor Case, (R., N.J.), said President Kennedy could assure a change in the Senate's filibuster rule if he would support a bi-partisan move toward that goal. Case, a liberal Republican will make an effort to get a vote on changing the requirement for an affirmative vote of two-thirds of those voting to cut off debate.

It is believed Senate Democratic Leader Mansfield of Montana, and Republican Leader Dirksen, of Illinois, may back a motion that would permit three-fifths of those voting to limit debate.

SENIOR NEWS

On the Jan. 9 the Senior class had a class meeting. At this meeting, the prizes from the magazine sale were given out. The person that got the most subscriptions had his choice of receiving either a blanket, a transistor radio, a camera, a watch, or a table-top radio. The next four were to receive the remaining items. A name was drawn out of a box that contained the names of the class members that sold $40 worth of magazines. The name would be in once if you sold $40 worth, twice if you sold $80 worth, etc. The name drawn was Tim Carlensis. He also received his choice of the gifts mentioned above.

Also at the meeting, we decided that Chris Tarasow, our secretary, was to write a note to each teacher in the high school asking them if they would be available to accompany us on our senior trip if they should be selected.

A letter was read that we received from the Seniorama Trip Club Co. It stated that everything was in order and that we were to send in $5 per person to pre-register. It was decided that this money be taken out of the treasury.

One of the class advisors commented on the fact that there was not much co-operation in helping with the clean-up of the senior stand during tournament games.

FUTURE TEACHERS CLUB

The future teachers club met during the noon-hour on Friday, Jan. 11 of January. Mr. Sanborn made a list of where and what time the members wanted to student teach. The members are free to teach at either of the elementary schools or at the Junior High. High school cadet teaching is available through special request on behalf of the student. The cadet teaching will begin next semester.

It was reported that $13 was made on the bake sale that was held in Dec. The co-operation for the bake-sale was quite low. It is hoped that it will get better as the semester draws to a close.

The advisor has made arrangements with the Ypsilanti State Hospital for a visit. The class will go on Feb. 18. They will be touring the school facilities mostly.

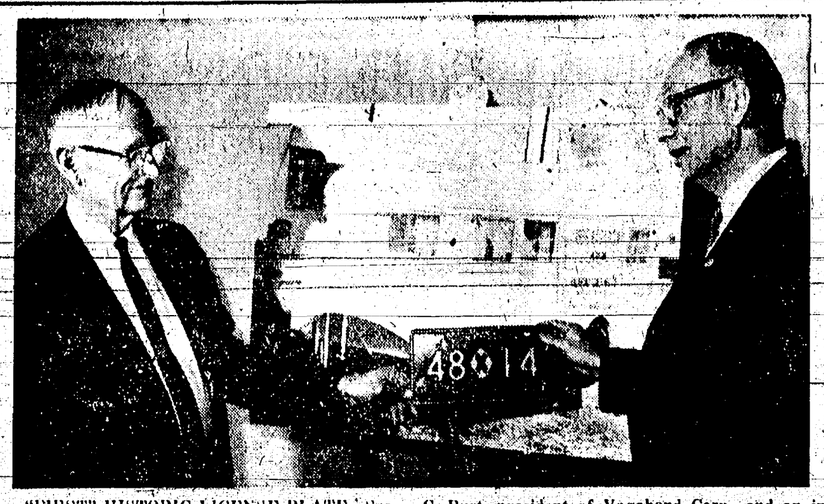
SOCIOLOGY CLASS

Mrs. Sharp's sociology class took the day of Jan. 9 off and went on an excursion to Ypsilanti State Mental Hospital. A total of 21 students plus Mr. Celley and Mrs. Sharp attended. The class stayed all day. In the morning there was a very informative guided tour of the wards in the hospital and in the afternoon there was a lecture telling some statistics about the hospital itself. The students were given a chance to ask questions that they might have concerning the hospital. It was reported that the students had a very interesting and informative day.

ANNUAL STAFF

Annual staff has been very busy working on the lay-out of the Barker. They have already passed their deadline, but they are trying to get it finished up. The club members have just about completed the sayings that accompany the Seniors and Teachers pictures.

Never try to get too much for your money; you usually wind up with less than you pay for.



"FIRST" HISTORIC LICENSE PLATE—Secretary of State James M. Hare (right) awards Michigan's first "Historic Vehicle" license plate ever issued for a mobile home to this 1936 Vagabond travel trailer manufactured in New Hudson. Fred C. Burt, president of Vagabond Corp., and an industry pioneer, accepts the plate. In Michigan a vehicle must be 25 or more years old to qualify for the "Historic Vehicle" plate. Previously only motor vehicles had been awarded these plates.

State Police Report Points to New High in Traffic Injuries

An estimated all-time high traffic record of 107,500 injured and 231,500 accidents in Michigan in 1962, a projected road death toll of 1,575, a one percent increase over 1961, establishment of a round-the-clock expressway patrol, merger of the state office of civil defense with the State Police, and a new "trooper of the year" award were major developments in the annual summary of State Police activities reported by Commissioner Joseph A. Childs.

The projected record highs in injured and accidents were increases of 15 and 16 percent, respectively, over 93,350 and 199,073 in 1961.

Also projected were estimated three percent gains in mileage to 32.8 billion and in registered motor vehicles to 3,498,758 and a two percent rise in licensed drivers to 4,205,245.

The Michigan office of civil defense was merged Aug. 1 with the State Police by executive order. Commissioner Childs also became director of the agency and named Capt. Richard L. Nicolen as deputy director.

Trp. Hubert C. Rosema, of the Rockford post, became the first winner of the new "trooper of the year" award donated by Dr. Carl A. Gerstacker, Midland, chairman of the board of the Dow Chemical Co. The award is given for outstanding community service.

Patrol mileage for the year was more than 14 million out of a department total of more than 23 million. Other patrol activity included verbal warnings to motorists, 332,477; cars assisted, 88,755; cars investiaged, 140,743; property inspections, 156,300; and liquor inspections, 35,695.

At year's end, the 24-hour expressway patrol inaugurated by the State Police July 1 was covering about 823 miles of Michigan's 1,000-plus miles of interstate and high type limited access trunklines.

Rural school bus accidents in 1961 numbered 496 and resulted in deaths of two children and injury to 347 persons. Compared with 1960, there were one less death and 62 fewer accidents while injuries were up one.

The fire marshal division reported that Michigan had 65,191 fires in 1961 which claimed 235 lives and did an estimated damage of $45,549,436. The deaths included 168 adults and 67 children but no firemen. Compared with 1960, there was one fewer death but 4,155 more fires and property damage increased $4.5 million.

Provisional water accident figures for the year showed 235 persons drowned and 195 were injured in 455 mishaps, compared with 262 deaths and 231 injured in 560 accidents in 1961.

The department's enlisted strength was 1,112 at the beginning of the year and 1,110 at the close. Fifty-two officers were promoted and 20 retired. One active and three retired officers died.

One award for bravery during the year went to Cpl. Frank P. Lyon, of the Bad Axe post. Eleven other officers earned citations for meritorious service.

Days Longer But Weather Isn't Warmer

Ann Arbor—You may have noticed the longer hours of sunshine lately, but don't expect warmer weather yet, advises University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

The old saying, "As the days lengthen, the cold strengthens," is particularly appropriate during this month. The rate of earth's heating has not yet overtaken its rate of cooling. It will in early February.

Since the winter solstice (Dec. 22, 1962) the days are growing longer until, by the end of January, there will have been about 50 minutes increase over the short days of December, explains the Michigan astronomer.

"The lengthening of the days will be decidedly more noticeable in the evening with the later setting of the sun than in its earlier rising in the morning.

This is because at this time of the year the sun is moving along its yearly path fastest, delaying its rising and setting as timed by our clocks," Professor Losh notes. Out standard time clocks are always ahead of the sun, but at this time of year they are furthest ahead, hence the later setting of the sun.

One who depends on the truth can do without an extraordinary memory.

Farm Credit Team Urges Avoiding Short Term Loans

Michigan farmers borrowing the most money tend to do business with the largest number of lenders.

A survey of the 1961 borrowing habits of commercial Michigan family farms showed they tended to obtain a number of small loans rather than one or two large ones, according to John Brake, agricultural economist at Michigan State University.

Brake, and Mike Wirth, another MSU economist analyzed credit information from 103 members of the Farm Credit Panel. These farmers were asked in January of 1961 to keep sepcial credit records in addition to their regular mail-in-account project records.

Brake points out that many lender-borrower relationships need to be improved. "It is not good business for either when the farmer spreads his loans among three or more lenders," he says.

"Perhaps there is a need for more lenders to offer farmers a 'line of credit' so that farmers will not need to feel apologetic about getting additional loans from the same source. Farmers need a lender who will stick by them when the going is rough."

Farmers participating in the panel averaged $17,921 of debt at the start of 1961. By the end of the year, this had increased another $3,567. More than 90 percent of all farmers in the study had some debt during the year.

Three out of every four farmers borrowed money during the year. This was an increase of 15 percent compared with a study completed in 1958. Most loans went for purchases of buildings, land, machinery and breeding stock. Less important loans were for refinancing and renewing loans.

About 40 percent of the farmers increased their debt during the year.

A small percentage of farmers borrowed most of the capital. Ten percent received one-half of the money loaned. "Loans to this top 10 percent averated nearly $50,000," Brake noted.

At the same time, the lowest 10 percent of the borrowers received less than 1 percent of the credit. Their total loans averaged only $520.

Roughly two-thirds of the loans made during 1961 for capital investments were repayable in less than two years. About one-half were payable within one year.

Brake advises both farmers and lenders not to overempahsize short term debts—especially those for capital investment. "With heavy, short-term commitment, a bad year can put serious strain on a farmer's situation," he concludes.

Of course you're a little bit smarter than the others around you, but why spoil their pink cloud by telling them about it?

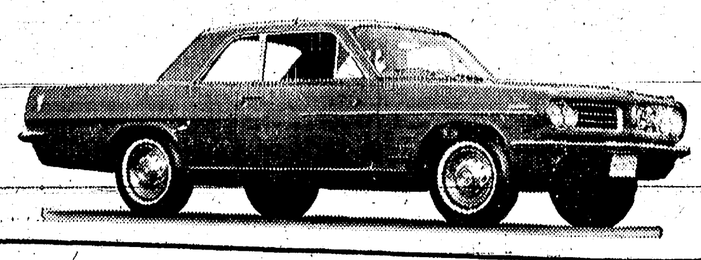
If Wide-Track is as hot as Pontiac says, why don't they put it in their Tempest?

They just did.



We can take a hint. When people are as happy with something as Pontiac owners are with Wide-Track, we're willing—nay, eager—to let everybody else in on it. That's why Tempest has a Wide-Track of its own this year. It's why you get to choose between a lively 4 and a 326-cu. in. V-8*, too. We aim to please—and if we do say so, we're pretty accurate. *Optional at extra cost.

Now there are two kinds of Wide-Track cars . . . Pontiac and Tempest
