Neither team has been defeated to date, both will be trying their best to continue their record.

Adding special interest to the game, which is Chelsea's first night game, is the fact that Chelsea Coach Terry Pokela formerly of Dexter and this is his first basketball game between his former players and those of his former school.

Dexter's record to date includes following victories—Stockbridge, Dec. 3, with a score of 65-55; Saline, Dec. 6, 55-53; and St. Louis, Dec. 13, 73-52. Chelsea won at Onsted, 83-70; Dec. 3; at Ypsilanti, Dec. 6, 86-45; and at Stockbridge, Dec. 14-42.

The return engagement at Dexter is scheduled for Feb. 7.

With her in the photo is Sister Ann Seraphim, principal of St. Mary's school. The 12-year-old girl was selected as the recipient of the encyclopedias for herself and the school on the basis of a card she had filled out several months ago; all students at the school filled out similar cards, which had been distributed by Sister Ann Seraphim, to whom they were sent by the publishing firm.

Council Briefs

The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, gave the opening invocation at the Dec. 17 meeting of the Chelsea Village Council, held in the Council room of the Municipal Building. President Robert Daniels and all members of the Council were present.

President Daniels presented Elwyn Beach, Civil Defense director, who, in turn, introduced Robert Schron who had tendered his resignation as area Civil Defense radio operator. Schron was given a certificate of commendation received from the Washtenaw County Civil Defense chairman and signed by Ervin Frederick, chairman of the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors. Village President Daniels, on behalf of himself and the Council, expressed appreciation for Schron's service to the community and regret that he found it necessary to resign.

Marion Longworth succeeds Schron as area radio operator and director of emergency communication.

Further discussion pertaining to the proposed agreement with Consumers Power Co. relative to the utilities in the annexed area of the village at the south. No official action was taken.

Motion approved to authorize Trustee Paul Bollinger to proceed with the purchase of a new salt spreader for the Department of Public Works at a cost less than $600.

New fire contracts with nearby townships were also the subject of discussion. The contracts are now being signed by the townships, those already received by the Council including Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon, Shandon, Freedom, and Waterloo. The new contracts provide an equitable basis for payment of fire calls, establishing rates based on actual time spent at fires and for maintenance of fire trucks, labor, etc.

The new contracts also establish funds from all townships and the Village of Chelsea to be set aside each year for purchase of new equipment.

Immediate goal is providing for a special need—a small four-wheel drive vehicle to be used primarily for grass fires.

Following discussion, Trustee Larry Chapman was assigned to investigate possibilities for proposed shelters at village skating rinks—at Veterans Memorial Park and a proposed skating area in the vicinity of South Elementary school.

At the conclusion of the Council meeting, President Daniels and the trustees went on record with an expression of gratification that the Chelsea Theatre is being reopened by newcomers to the area—George Keast and Harold Schmitz of South Lyon—welcoming them to the community and wishing them success.

Village Council meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of each month in the Council room on the second floor of the Municipal Building. All interested citizens are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Carl Lentz, who has been a patient at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, last two weeks expects to undergo surgery this week. She is in room 5019.

Drive More Carefully on Winter's Slippery Highways

The shortest days of 1963 are now with us with the shortest of all occurring Sunday, Dec. 22. For a week or two on either side of the winter solstice the days vary but little from the shortest.

This is also the time of year when highway accidents are at their peak, since night driving has always been more dangerous than daytime driving. It is also a holiday season which adds to the accident probabilities.

When the weather bureau predicts cold weather with snow and hazardous driving conditions, drivers should be a little more careful, and drive a little slower, especially when traffic is heavy which it usually is during the holiday season.

Let's all resolve to make this a safe holiday season. Start out early enough on these shorter days to reach your destination on time without rushing and you will have a much better chance of arriving safely.

President Johnson Appeals For Unity, Co-Operation

President Lyndon Johnson's recent speeches since becoming our Chief Executive, show clearly the former Senate majority leader is aiming at the same goal for the nation he worked for with such success in the U. S. Senate.

His goal is national unity, brotherhood, a government with the capacity to act and function effectively. Curiously enough, as a Texan, he might be able to bring about greater unity than has heretofore been possible.

No one believes Lyndon Johnson is the puppet of the major labor unions. Nor do they believe he is the puppet of big business, nor of Southern conservatives. In him, millions of Americans may find a common middle ground. The months ahead will, of course, tell us more.

But his first speeches are encouraging. He appeals to all Americans for unity and progress and co-operation. It is not an unreasonable appeal.

We believe possibly the nation is in a responsive mood to Johnson's philosophy and approach at this particular time after the bitter shock of assassination. Generally speaking, his philosophy on many issues has been termed moderate. And yet on others he is known as a liberal. On all he seems to want to do the bidding of the vast majority and he seems to be seeking to alienate none and to heal the wounds of division and sectionalism as much as he is able.

These are honorable goals for the future of our new president and our democratic republic. We hope he is successful in accomplishing them.

Assassination Aftermath

The almost unbelievable assassination of President Kennedy hit Michigan as it did each of the other states, much like a sharp blow from an axe.

A flurry of controversy erupted immediately over whether the major universities should continue plans to play football games; political meetings were cancelled within hours of the Nov. 22 disaster; and people in every city wondered if this really did happen.

For many it took several days for the reality to begin to sink in. Each had to consider how this event would affect his life.

In Lansing and the home towns of Michigan's elected officials the question of effect loomed larger than to most individuals. No partisan expressed this on the surface, but it was apparent the wheels of political thought were turning fast, attempting to get a kaleidoscopic view of the impact.

Immediately four "non-partisan" events honoring public officials were cancelled, to be scheduled after the official period of mourning is completed. Each event was to honor a partisan officeholder but was to be attended by members of both parties.

Though non-partisan in support, such tribute dinners often are a starting point for a campaign.

A few Democrats broke the unwritten party rule of no campaigning or public decision announcements.

More than one Michigan Democrat came forth within a few days after the President's death with statements regarding their interest in the 1964 gubernatorial race.

Political expediency induces thoughts and decisions which do not meet the eye, so it is impossible to judge the wisdom of the pronouncements by some politicians about their future plans. Oddly enough, however, the violations of the unwritten party rule came from persons who have very closely followed the party line in the past.

Just as the real effect of the assassination probably will not be known for some time, the wisdom of these decisions by some Michigan politicians await future judgment.

Winter Hazard
 Danger: Thin Ice. This is a warning which soon will be on many of Michigan's lakes, streams and ponds, but there will be no sign of places where there will be no sign.

The warning should be firmly implanted in the minds of all, and particularly children who are usually more venturesome when winter spreads white across the land.

At least one dozen persons drowned last year when they fell through ice in Michigan, state police reports show. The previous year winter water accidents claimed 13 lives.

Commissioner Joseph A. Childs warns that the greatest danger occurs fairly early and again late in the winter. Both periods are those of transition from one season to another.

State Police advise ice should be several inches thick on deep bodies of water to assure safety. Special precautions should be taken at private ponds or flooded areas where children might slide or skate. Rescue devices should be handy at all times.

Warnings are not limited to children, however. Ice fishermen or persons who decide to "short-cut" by driving their cars across frozen lakes should be very familiar with the depth of the water and the thickness of the ice. Ice is frequently "worn" thin by underwater currents or breakthroughs may occur from surface pressure cracks, Childs notes.

Mayor's List Grows
 Barring a major change, one day in the 1964 Michigan Week observance will be the biggest ever.

During the 11-year history of the event, each general chairman has attempted to improve on the activities of the previous year.

There were 492 communities represented in the annual drawing for the 1964 Mayor Exchange of Michigan Week. During the 1963 event there were slightly over 400 local chief executives taking part.

There is always some attrition between the drawing and the event but the number participating in 1964 is likely to set a new record.

The University of Michigan was the first university in the nation to offer instruction in journalism in 1890.

EISENHOWER AND GOP
 The political upheaval caused by the assassination of President Kennedy may project former President Eisenhower actively into the search for a 1964 Presidential nominee.

Although Eisenhower has claimed any desire to become king-maker, the former President recognizes that the Republican situation has changed so rapidly that to invite efforts to get the kind of moderate candidate he believes can win.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where some feller from the Institute of Science is predicting this country was arriving at the "Computer Age." He allows as how in another 10 year just about everything will be handled by them think-machines.

He was claiming the day might come when a jury could feed the evidence into one end of a think-machine and the proper verdict would come out the other.

That will be the day, Mister Editor, when judges will either have to temper justice with a heap of mercy or we'll run plum out of jail space.

The older I get the more I believe about half the problems in life requires common sense to solve. And them science fellers won't never come no closer to putting common sense in a think-machine than they'll come to creating a tree in my backyard.

I recollect once when I was a boy my Pa was explaining common sense. He told the story about the farmer that died and left 17 mules to his 3 sons. One half went to the oldest son, a third to the second son, and a ninth to the youngest. The feller settling the estate borrowed another mule from a neighbor and made it 18 mules. Then he gave 9 to the oldest boy, 6 to the next and 2 to the youngest. This come to 17 mules and he returned the one he borrowed. My Pa allowed as how that was common sense versus book sense. I wonder how a "think-machine" would've handled that one.

Then they was this item from some feller in the Department of Commerce saying installment buying was the "life-blood of our national economy." He claimed millions of dollars' worth of goods is sold ever day that folks don't need and wouldn't buy if we didn't have the installment plan. I will have to go along with him on that one. Just the other week I saw this piece in the papers were a feller in Hamilton, Canada, was doing a rushing business selling horses for $4 down and $4 a week. He said a heap of his customers didn't need no horse but they was buying on account of the terms was right.

But the biggest shocker of the week come from that English feller visiting the United Nations. He allowed as how the United States ought to ask more from Europe. I would have to vote for that policy 100 per cent. It might not do any good to ask but it shore wouldn't do no harm to try. We couldn't git no less from them. And in this connection, I see in the papers where grocery stores in London was bragging that they was now selling "Biscuits made in Britain." I'm glad to know where some of our dough has been going over there. Since it's got to go, I'd just as soon see 'em use it for biscuits as for building ships to trade with the Chinese. Reg,
 Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew

Name Wanted for

Michigan's Newest

Historical Publication

Lansing — Michigan's newest historical publication needs a name. Published bimonthly by the Historical Society of Michigan the booklet merely carries the name HSM Bulletin awaiting imaginative suggestions from society members and the public at large. The executive committee of the society will choose a permanent name for the publication by Jan. 15.

The format of the new publication is intended to keep those interested in their Michigan heritage informed of Michigan's historical present as well as its past. A feature article in the first issue of December tells the story of young James Strang destined to become "King James," leader of a group of Mormons on Michigan's Beaver Island in the mid 19th century. Features on Michigan's historical present include programs and plans of the state and local historical agencies affiliated with the Historical Society of Michigan. Michigan winners of the coveted American Association for State and Local History awards are also announced in this first issue.

Suggestions for a name and inquiries about the new publication should be sent to the Historical Society of Michigan, Lansing.

Ann Arbor Bank Opens Second Branch This Year

Monday, Dec. 16, marked the opening of Ann Arbor Bank's second new branch building this year, an event unprecedented in local banking history. Opening week will feature free gifts and, for the week only, hours until 8 o'clock every day. The new facility replaces a converted mobile home which has been providing the bank's services at the corner of Plymouth Rd. and Huron Park way since April.

The new Plymouth Rd. building encloses about 5,000 square feet on two levels and provides six inside teller windows and two drive-in windows. A parking lot with space for 40 cars, and the drive-in windows, may be approached by drives from both Plymouth Rd. and Huron Parkway. In addition to normal banking and loan services, the building is equipped with safety deposit boxes and night deposit facilities.

Bank president Joseph B. Foster said in announcing the opening, "Ann Arbor Bank now provides full bank services to the rapidly growing business, university, and quartz composition accented with Italian polished marble aggregate panels in a dark brown. The lobby and office area received a novel and interesting indirect lighting effect in a vaulted-type translucent ceiling of a new design.

The drive-in windows provide the first island-type drive-in service in this area, with each drive-in residential northern section of Ann Arbor. We look for this to be a growth stimulus for the area, as well as an important step into our future as Washtenaw County's largest financial institution." The bank now provides full bank services, including safe deposit boxes, from seven locations in Ann Arbor, Dexter and Whitmore Lake.

Architects Colvin, Robinson, Wright & Associates described the exterior of the modern building as being finished with beige precast panels of an aggregate in window having a separate line. This provides more efficient drive-in service than has heretofore been available locally. The windows are designed so that tellers have a full view of all the traffic. Provision has been made for additional service islands as the need develops.

General contractor for the building was the Henry deKoning Construction Company of Ann Arbor. Building costs exceeded $150,000. Landscape architecture for the grounds was by Charles Cares of the University of Michigan.

The branch will be managed by William M. Howard, who has been manager at the temporary facility on the site. A large revolving time and temperature sign marks the corner location of the branch, which is just across Plymouth Road from the Parke, Davis Ann Arbor Research Laboratory and directly in front of the Bromley Subdivision.

Feathered Tourists

The seasonal comings and goings of birds are generally taken for granted as being commonplace events. However, much remains unknown or just partially understood about the whys and wherefores of bird migration. Why, for example, does the ruby-throated hummingbird (above, right) journey from the far-off south to spend the summer months in northern climes? What triggers his departures? And how does he find his way? The same can be asked about hundreds of other feathered tourists such as nighthawks (above, left) which migrate to South America for the winter, and the Pacific Golden Plover (right) which somehow stay on course over long stretches of water to reach their destinations. One of the "whys" of migration is to find room for living. Also, the farther north birds go, the longer their summer days, and the more time they have for gathering food. Most species migrate "by the calendar" rather than by the weather. Apparently, the length of day is the timing factor which synchronizes their movements with the calendar. Recent experiments bear out the theory that migrants get their sense of direction by following the most obvious guides—the sun by day and the stars by night.

Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Migration of Birds Is Mystery That Puzzles Man's Imagination

Lansing — No doubt about it, birds migrate. At any rate, many of them do.

Most people know that birds go south in the fall and come back in the spring. This isn't altogether true, but it's a good start. The truth about bird migration is a vast amount of known facts, and a good deal that remains clouded, unknown, or only guessed at.

Take, for example, the ruby-throated hummingbird which travels from the far-off south to spend the summer months in northern climes. The chemistry by which he converts tiny insects and droplets of nectar into energy to make this long journey is a miracle enough. But this does not answer such questions as: Why does he do it? What triggers his departures? And how does he find his way?

The first of these is easiest to explain. Because so many species of hummingbird live in the tropics, it's advantageous for the ruby-throated to travel to the eastern United States and southern Canada to do its nesting.

Here there is no competition from other hummers. Through migration this tiny bird achieves what the Germans call "Lebensraum"—room for living. Furthermore, the farther north it goes, the longer its summer days. When Mrs. Ruby-throat has two youngsters in her thimble-sized nest, that bonus of daylight gives her more time to gather food for them.

About a quarter of all bird species that are seen in Michigan go south of the Mexican border in winter, a number of them well into South America. Many species, like the hummingbird, are wide-ranging and may be found from the northern United States through Mexico and Central America, perhaps including the West Indies and northern South America in their wintering grounds.

On the other hand, some three dozen that go south for the cold season rarely go beyond the Gulf States.

Bird banding by government agencies, research institutions, and individuals has provided definite information about the movements of birds. It has proved the distances and general routes birds may travel, has shown that a particular bird of a far-traveling species may return to the very same nesting tree it used the year before, and has demonstrated also that some members of a species may be migratory while others live their entire lives on a small area (blue jays and song sparrows, for example).

Scientists and laymen alike have speculated for many years as to how birds manage to find their way on their migrations, often over long stretches of water. For instance, the Pacific golden plover that winters in the Hawaiian Islands were probably hatched in the Aleutian Islands of Alaska about 2000 miles away. To nest they must return to Alaska in the spring.

How are these and other birds able to stay on course to reach their destinations? A "sense of direction" is often mentioned in attempting to explain this. A hypothesis was that birds are capable of perceiving the earth's magnetic field as the means of finding their way. However, experiments have not come up with sound evidence that a bird is any more aware of magnetic force than man is.

A more modern hypothesis supposes that birds are sensitive to the "Coriolis force," a difference in gravitational effect upon a moving object, depending on the direction of its movement compared to the rotation of the earth. The great difficulty is the extremely fine degree of sensitivity required, far beyond any that we know of, plus the disturbing changes in the effective pull of earth's gravity caused by the ups and downs dictated by air currents.

Recent experiments cast further doubt on the magnetism and Coriolis force theories, indicating that migrants find their way by following the sun by day and the stars by night.

Most birds migrate "by the calendar" rather than by the weather. Apparently, the length of day is the timing factor which synchro-

AGRICULTURE IN ACTION

by M. L. Voss

Salute to Farmers

American farmers in 1963 have again demonstrated that they are the most efficient producers in the world.

With the harvest season nearing its end, crop production is estimated to be 10 percent above the 1957-59 average and nearly 2 percent above the record level of last year.

This record production has been attained on the second smallest acreage since the beginning of record keeping in 1900.

The 1963 production record was achieved through the exceedingly high yields per acre made possible through the application of improved technology. Much credit is due to those in the field of research who have discovered new and better ways to produce food, but farmers deserve an equal share of recognition for the outstanding job they have done in applying the findings of the research laboratories to the field.

It also should be noted that the basis of America's phenomenal agricultural industry is rooted in the family farm. In 1959, the latest year on which figures are available, farms employing less than 1.5 man-years of hired labor accounted for 95.7 percent of all farms and for 70.1 percent of all marketings.

As the result of the efficiency of the family farm, the American consumer enjoys the best food bargain in the world. In the U.S., consumers spend about 20 percent of their take-home pay for food, as compared with 26 percent 15 years ago for the most nutritious, abundant and varied supply of food in the world. Russians spend about 60 percent of their take-home pay for a limited and meager supply of food offering little consumer choice.

But the farmer does more than produce bargain food. He is a major contributor to the general economy through his annual purchase of some $28 billion for goods and services used in his production. And he is an important person in purchasing consumer nizes their movements with the calendar. Unfavorable weather may slow the progress of migration. By and large, however, migration is a surprisingly regular and orderly phenomenon from year to year.

Thus, we are quite right to judge the progress of the seasons by the comings and goings of the feathered tourists.

Christmas Card Postage Same Today As in 1847

"People sending Christmas cards today at the five-cent first class rate pay the same to mail Christmas greetings as Americans did all over a century ago," Postmaster Carl J. Mayer noted today.

Research shows that in 1847 the Post Office Department issued first stamps, including a nickel stamp for the basic prepaid letter rate. Postmaster Mayer said.

"And of course, in those days a nickel could buy a meal where it can't even buy a cup of coffee today," Mayer pointed out.

Address Label Lost So Insured Parcel Returned

An insured parcel mailed at the Chelsea Post Office Dec. 9 (Insurance receipt No. 650) has been returned to Chelsea because the address sticker was lost before the package reached its destination. The person holding the insurance receipt of that number should contact the Post Office at once.

Postmaster Carl Mayer said some stickers are evidently of poor quality and those who mail packages should also write the address directly on the package to forestall the situation which has arisen with the package returned here. He pointed out, however, that both the sticker and the extra address must appear on only the top of the package on insured mail.

Since 1932, the postal executive served, "while living costs for American families have skyrocketed considerably more than the cost of mailing first-class letters has only increased by two cents or two-thirds."

The Postmaster's comments were made in connection with a recommendation to Chelsea residents to use the first-class five-cent Christmas stamp on their Christmas cards. The stamp portrays the National Christmas Tree on the "Eastern Ellipse" in the Nation's Capital. The stamp is available at the local post office.

The five-cent rate permits forwarding or return of the letter where necessary, allows the use of a handwritten message on the card—adding a personal touch—and also provides speedier handling and faster delivery, particularly for cards going out-of-town.

"In recent years, people have been buying better and more expensive greeting cards—and it seems a shame, when only four-cent third class postage is paid and the addressee has moved that we normally cannot even forward the card," Mayer commented. "It is a poor economy to try to save a few pennies and lose several dollars worth of cards in the bargain."

Reports from the greeting card industry indicate it is not uncommon for an average family to send more than 100 cards during the holiday season.

Christmas stamps, of course, are useable for postage at any time. Postmaster Mayer emphasized.

Emmet Potato Yields Best in State Trials

The Emmet potato is Michigan's highest yielding variety, according to results from overstate potato variety trials just completed.

The Emmet variety placed first in production on mineral soils and was second on organic soils in State University's Department of Crop Science. The Katahdin variety had the best yields on organic soils.

Second to Emmet on organic soils was the LaRouge potato, the only redskinned variety in the test. While yields were good, the tubers weren't as well shaped and their skin color wasn't as good as other redskinned varieties such as Norland and Excel.

Here's how the yield leaders fared in the overstate potato trials which were conducted on mineral soils in Bay, Presque Isle, Houghton, Missaukee, Montcalm, Antrim and Delta counties: Emmet, an average of 331 cwt. of No. 1 potatoes per acre; LaRouge, 330 cwt.; and Katahdin, 288 cwt.

On organic soils in Allegan, Clinton and Shiawassee counties, the leading varieties yielded as follows:

Katahdin, an average of 284 cwt. of No. 1 potatoes per acre; Emmet, 266 cwt.; and LaRouge, 260 cwt.

Richard W. Chase, MSU crop scientist, who tabulated the results in the overstate trials, pointed out that yield wasn't the only consideration in making these tests. He also checked for quality and specific gravity—a measurement of the total solids in a potato.

The Arenac variety ranked highest in specific gravity on both mineral and organic soils, he pointed out. "It has been a consistent leader in this area, even though its yields ranked only fifth and seventh, respectively, on mineral and organic soils."

Another good measurement of a variety's value, according to Chase, might be its total solids. That figure takes into consideration both yield and specific gravity.

"When we did this, we found that Arenac ranked third behind Emmet and LaRouge on the mineral soils," Chase said.

He pointed out that frosts in June of last year cut down yields on organic soils by shortening the growing season. This affected the maturity of the potatoes and, therefore, their specific gravity.

"Moisture availability, variety differences, and type of soil can affect both quality and potato yield," reported Chase. "Dry weather affected yields in plot locations and produced a high percentage of small, B-sized tubers."

Generally speaking, the over-all appearance of the potatoes was quite good this past year, Chase concluded.

Youth Group Decorates Huge Tree

The big tree created an impossible problem for the group with a regular home-sized tree stand. The young people realized that if they could get the huge trunk into the stand, that the weight would crush the metal legs and that the legs would not be wide enough to balance such a tree anyway.

Finally they found a kindergarten table in the furnace room, secured the trunk in its center, and tied it with guyropes to each leg. Although a bit unorthodox, the stand is stable and attractive in its sheet covering, and the angel on the tip of the tree is very close to the ceiling of the church's social room.

The tree was brought to the church by the Powers family after being cut at the Family Christmas Tree Hunt Sunday afternoon. The Pilgrim Fellowship (High School Church Youth Group) appointed Cindy Hepburn to organize them in the decoration of the tree. She had the lights, balls, tinsel, and the too-small stand and five young people ready to go before the regular Sunday night meeting. Tall stepladders and tall boys helped place the lights and streamers in just the right place.

The process was interrupted for the regular meeting. Barry Visel had the brief worship service first. This was followed by the discussion of the topic "Youth Needs in Chelsea" led by Don Dickelman. Don had prepared for the topic by interviewing Mr. Conklin, director of the Chelsea Recreation Commission; Mrs. Willard head of a church group interested in helping with recreation; and Village President Robert Daniels. The animated discussion soon went from recreation to the tensions felt between the youth in town who enjoy and co-operate with the programs for them in school, church, and commercial establishments, and the youth in town who seem to be dissatisfied and disgruntled not only with the programs and fun available, but who seem to want to make it hard for the others to participate. It was decided to devote the next meeting to continuing with this latter topic.

During the business meeting, Bev Wendell, president, announced appointments to work and usher in the Christmas program next Sunday. A Christmas tour of Chelsea was mentioned, and an Easter tour of Detroit, but no definite plans made.

Christmas morning, a service will be held at 8 a.m. in the Methodist Home chapel and this will be followed by a distribution of gifts to the residents.

Cub Scout Pack 125 Holds Christmas Party

Cub Scout Pack 125 held the December meeting Thursday, Dec. 12, in the gym of the Chelsea Junior High school.

The meeting opened with a flag ceremony by Den 4, of which Mrs. Yvonne Jones is den mother.

In the absence of Cubmaster Malcolm Novess, Assistant Cubmaster Daniel Foytik had charge of the meeting. He read a letter of thanks from the Methodist Home for Thanksgiving favors that the boys had made and presented to the Home for the members to enjoy.

Den 3, of which Mrs. Georgia Collins is den mother, presented a skit, "An Old Fashioned Christmas."

The Cub Scouts decorated a Christmas tree and took it to the Colonial Manor Nursing Home. Foytik led the group in singing Christmas songs and then Santa visited the party and talked to all the children present and gave candy to each one.

The meeting closed with Den 4 retiring the flags.

On Tuesday, Dec. 17, the Chelsea JV basketball team traveled to Jackson to play the Jackson High school sophomores. Chelsea won the game by a score of 52-27. Leading by a slim margin of 9-7 at the end of the first quarter, the Little Bulldogs outscored their opponents, 23 to 6, in the second period to increase their lead to 32 to 13 at the end of the first half. The third period ended with Chelsea ahead, 45-19.

Tom Steele led the Chelsea scoring with 16 points, followed by Dave Clark with 9, Owen Wireman and Gary Houle with 8 each, and Toby Johnson with 6. Dennis Goodall was high point man for Jackson with 11.

The Little Bulldogs are now 3-1 for the season, ending their pre-Christmas schedule at home against Dexter JV's Friday night. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. M. L. Dietle is a patient at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, and underwent surgery there last Friday. She is in room 7053.

Freshmen Cagers Defeat Dexter, Lose to Leslie

In two hard-fought games last week, the Chelsea High school freshmen basketball team split a pair of decisions.

In the season's opener, the Freshmen Bulldogs defeated the Dexter Freshmen with a surge of six points in the final minute and a half. With two minutes remaining in the final period Dexter held a one point advantage, but some fine defensive play turned the tide with three quick baskets.

Scoring was as follows: Dan Susnjor was high with 17, Don Salyer 9, Tom Kern 9, Bill Harvey 6, Phil Eckhardt 6, Eric Ratzdorfer 5, Paul Lancaster 4, and Jim Henry 3. High man for Dexter was Tom Andrew with 11.

In a high-scoring contest played at Leslie on Wednesday, the Freshmen were defeated by a score of 77 to 73. In a fine balanced scoring effort Dan Susnjor was high with 17, Paul Lancaster 14, Don Salyer 13, Bill Harvey 10, Tom Kern 7, Jim Henry 5, Eric Ratzdorfer 5, and Phil Eckhardt 2. High scorer for Leslie was Long with 22 points.

Girl Scout Leaders Meet

At a regular meeting of the Chelsea Girl Scout Neighborhood Association, held Monday evening at the Junior High school gymnasium, a series of reports was given and announcements made related to activities of Chelsea Girl Scouts during recent weeks.

Community service projects by Girl Scout troops, as reported, include the making of 250 socks for patients at the VA Hospital, decorating a tree in the Post Office lobby, and making 10 centerpieces for tables at the Methodist Home.

Announcement was made that all Girl Scouts and Brownies are to participate in caroling in front of the Post Office from 7 until 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20.

Also announced was a Girl Scouts World Day of Prayer to be held at Ann Arbor in February and Chelsea groups were advised to begin making plans to attend.

A new brochure is being distributed to Girl Scout leaders pertaining to accepted standards and policies of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council on the subject of camping.

A request was entered for cadet and senior Girl Scouts to assist with assembling Girl Scout leaders notebooks in the regional office at Ypsilanti on Dec. 30. Approximately 2,000 of the notebooks are to be prepared.

Mrs. Wilber Worden, Girl Scout Neighborhood chairman, presided at the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Girl Scout/Troop 98.

There's A Reason Eggs Look Different

Eggs just don't look the way they used to—and it's all due to the yolk.

"Egg yolks used to be darker colored," according to Dr. Charles Sheppard, poultry specialist at Michigan State University. "Today, the yolks are lighter and more uniformly colored."

The reason: Commercial laying hens are being housed under confined conditions and fed specialized menus in our "space-age" society. The color of the yolk is almost entirely dependent on what the hen eats.

Sheppard points out that most chickens used to roam the "wide open spaces" such as fields and barnyards. But this is all changed today.

The person who talks all the time will have a lot of time to listen to himself, undisturbed.

The Positive Content of Free Enterprise

During the past three decades efforts of those devoted to enterprise have been concentrated mainly on resisting encroachments by government on the freedom of the marketplace. Given the tidal waves of the time, it has been necessary to devote a large amount of energy to this purpose. Side by side with the development of technology during the past two centuries has been a development of institutions for putting it to work in the service of free human beings. An illustration is the evolution of the modern private corporation as a means of organizing voluntary economic activity. It is hard to see how great industrial growth of this country could have occurred without such an institutional development.

Another important contributor to economic growth historically has been the development of the law of contracts. Free individuals cannot do business with each other unless there is respect for, and enforcement of, the mutual obligations to which they freely bind themselves.

The great complex of financial institutions in this country is also a factor essential to the success of free enterprise. Their function is to act as intermediary between the saver and the enterpriser who has need for capital.

There is no reason for us to assume that this process of institutional development, which gives the positive content to free enterprise, is finished and complete. There is as much room here for further development as there is in the field of technology. For just one illustration—which cannot be more than mentioned here—we are still groping to define the ground rules for the creation of money.

Much of the social inventiveness of our era has been misdirected toward objectives which are in conflict with, rather than in support of, individual freedom. Then, as a result, the energies of those who are equipped to make a constructive contribution to the efficient functioning of free private enterprise have instead been diverted into opposing innovations which are inconsistent with it.

Water Safety Course Slated By Red Cross

The annual Red Cross Water Safety Instructor Training program will get underway Tuesday, Jan. 7 at Tappan Junior High School, 2261 East Stadium Blvd., Ann Arbor, at 7:30 p.m.

This special training program is open to any individual in the county who holds a current Red Cross Senior Life Saving Certificate and will be at least 18 years of age by the 1st of May, 1967, said Gerald Greenlick, the Red Cross volunteer instructor-trainer who will be the aquatic director.

Candidates for the instructor rating are expected to attend each of the 18-week sessions which meet every Tuesday evening from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., according to Greenlick. Registration for this course may be made by contacting the Red Cross Operations Center at 662-5546 before Jan. 3. As usual, there is no charge for this agency service. When the class limit is reached, registration will close.

"For this 18-week course," Greenlick continued, "the students should bring along with them the first night: pencils and paper as well as their suits, towels, and Senior Life Saving Certificates."

"Anyone expecting to have a summer job teaching swimming," Greenlick reminded, "should note that this course is the only one to be given before summer."

The meetings and the Christmas party were held in the Girl Scout quarters in rooms above Schmidt's store.

Great Lakes Trout Making Comeback Against Lamprey

Latest studies give United States and Canadian conservation agencies another solid vote of confidence behind their joint efforts to whip the sea lamprey and rebuild lake trout populations in the upper Great Lakes.

Good survival and growth is continuing in the Great Lakes.

trout in Lake Superior as the result of lamprey control and fish plantings in recent years, according to reports made during the December meeting of the Great Lakes Fishery Commission in Ottawa, Ontario. Also, catches of adult sea lamprey remained relatively low in 26 streams along the south shore of Lake Superior where electrical barriers are in operation.

Although up somewhat from 1962, this year's lamprey take is still 70 percent below the average catch of these voracious predators during the 1957-61 period.

Barrier operations and commercial catches underline the combined effectiveness of lamprey control and fish plantings in Lake Michigan. Through September of this year, commercial operations had taken 26,000 pounds of lake trout in these waters, their highest total since 1949. A year ago, they had netted only 325 pounds from Lake Michigan.

Lamprey catches declined 55 percent from last year in two of three Lake Michigan streams where barriers are in use. The reduction was recorded in the Bark and Sturgeon rivers which were chemically treated. In the untreated Cedar river, there was a 42-percent jump in the number of lampreys captured.

Lake trout studies show a drop in the number of lamprey-scarred fish caught in Lake Superior. Too, they reveal a continued improvement in the average size of lake trout which has increased from 2.5 to 3.4 pounds during the last five years.

The Bureau of Commercial Fisheries reported that lake trout 28-32 inches long were more abundant this year than those in the 25-28 inch group made smaller rains. Fewer fish were available from 1962 to grow into the 21-24 inch category this year. Lake trout less than 21 inches long were more numerous in 1963, virtually all of them being hatchery fish.

As expected, hatchery-reared fish again accounted for a larger percent of lake trout catches in Michigan's Superior waters. East of the Keweenaw Peninsula, hatchery fish made up almost 55 percent of the legal catch through last September, as compared to only 1.2 percent in 1959. Among the undersized fish, the hatchery figure climbed from less than three percent in 1959 to 94 percent this fall.

In Wisconsin waters, there also has been a marked increase in the abundance of juvenile lake trout in Superior, due almost entirely to large plantings of hatchery fish.

Fisheries officials are particularly encouraged by signs of lake trout spawning in most areas along the Michigan shore of Superior from Grand Marais westward. This fall's spawning run was the largest since 1958 in Wisconsin's waters, and there is good reason to expect that next year will see another large increase of

Vo-Ag Students Completing Records of Farm Programs

Forty-three students of Vocational Agriculture are busy completing records of their farming programs which is a very essential part of their agriculture training. Each boy develops some type of project or activity from which he can learn through experience. These projects are supervised by both parents and the teacher of Vocational Agriculture.

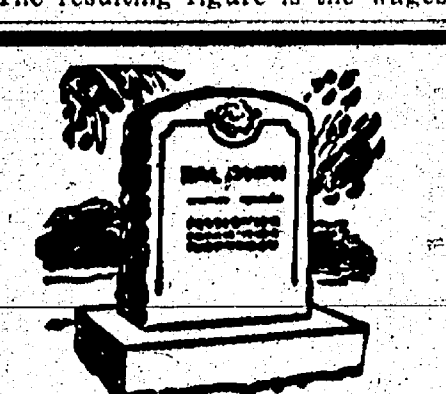

The primary aim of the boy's farming program is to lead toward establishment in farming or to give the type of background and training necessary in jobs related to farming. Toward the end of the calendar year, these project records are summarized and recorded.

Several boys from Chelsea will be applying for advanced degrees as a result of their excellent programs developed and their leadership shown. Boys applying and hoping to receive the State Farmer Degree are Ken Bollinger, Jerry Bristle, David Hargrave, Lynn Harvey, Ed Keezer, Carl Loeffler and Jim Schiller. The State Farmer Degree is the highest degree given on the state level and may be given to only two percent of the total state membership, this means about 220 each year. Twenty-one young men have received this honor so far at Chelsea. They are, by year received: '41, N. H. Miles; '45, Dean Schweinfurth; '46, Charles Sullivan; '47, Donald Barth and George Merkel; '48, Robert Bauer and Paul Bollinger; '49, Keith Bradbury; '52, Kenneth Proctor, Jr.; '53, Norman Feldkamp and Robert Heller; '54, Lloyd Gray; '56, Kenneth Haist; '57, David Wolfgang; '58, Jim Gray; '59, Earl Heller and Douglas Stark; '61, Charles Koenig; '62, Richard Haist, Richard Harvey and Malcolm Reinhardt.

Malcolm Reinhardt, from the local chapter, will be applying for the highest award in the FFA, that of the American Farmer Degree. This degree may only be given to one-half of one percent of the membership; therefore, only 11 receive this award in Michigan. If Malcolm succeeds, he will be the first from Chelsea to receive this high award.

In any degree advancement in the FFA, a student must show outstanding farming program, leadership, and scholarship.

Farmers may find out what their labor and management was worth on the farm last year by deducting from the gross income all cash operating expenses, depreciation, labor other than operator and five percent interest on total investment in farm business according to Michigan State University agricultural economists. The resulting figure is the wages.

New Method Told To Cook French Fries

East Lansing — If, in these days of low-fat diets, your family is still insisting on French fried potatoes, you might try the "cold-start" method of preparing them. It's not lower in fat, Michigan State University home economists are quick to point out. But it is a quicker and safer method of cooking.

Instead of putting the potato strips into hot grease, you lay them in a single layer in a large, cold skillet. Pour just enough cooking oil to cover the strips. Turn on the heat to medium high or set an electric skillet to 350-375 degrees. Stir occasionally to keep potatoes separated. Cook 15 to 20 minutes, depending upon the brownness desired. Drain the potatoes on paper towels before serving.

The method works for frozen French fries, too, and they take only 10 minutes of cooking time.

Dr. Portia Morris, foods and nutrition specialist with the MSU Co-operative Extension Service, point out that research on this method is limited to potatoes. So far, there is no published research indicating that it can be used successfully with other foods. She notes that the "cold-start" method cuts down on the dangerous bubbling and splashing of deep frying. From start to finish, it takes less time to prepare French fries the "cold-start" way than by the ordinary deep fat fry method. Mrs. Morris also says that the method can be economical. You need only enough fat to cover the potatoes. You don't need to "float" them as you do with the deep fry method.

Older people who spend their time criticizing younger people might do more good reforming the older people.

Bulletin Offers Tip on Choosing Clothes Dryer

If you're planning to buy an automatic clothes dryer for Christmas, it will pay you to shop the field.

That is the idea behind "Choosing and Using Your Automatic Clothes Dryer," a new bulletin published by the Co-operative Extension Service at Michigan State University.

Georgianne Baker, author and extension specialist in home management, at MSU, says a dryer should last you 10 years or more. "Start by deciding on a price range that will fit your budget," Miss Baker says, "and remember to include installation costs."

Miss Baker explains the difference between electric and gas models and points out the features of different drying systems.

She also provides information on the monthly cost of operation. You may obtain the bulletin from your county extension office, write to the Bulletin Office, 10 Agricultural Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing. Ask for Extension Bulletin E-380, "Choosing and Using Your Automatic Clothes Dryer." It's free.

About $2,000,000 is spent to screen each newly-developed insecticide that reaches the market for use, a Michigan State University extensionist said. Only about one of each 2,000 developed reaches the market.

If you want to lose a friend, lend him a few dollars.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

I don't know of any subject on which there is more universal agreement among Americans today than the importance of quality education.

We may have been slow to recognize just how important it is, but we as a people are determined now that we will develop the finest educational system within our power.

As a people, we are coming to demand more and more of education. We know that education may be the means of our very survival. And we know without doubt that the demands of the new future will be even greater. Whether we call it the Space Age or the Atomic Age or the Science Age, or some other kind of age, what we are entering today is the age of the educated and trained intellect.

More than anything else, we are going to need all the brainpower and all the intellect and talent that we as a nation can produce.

Of course, there are some citizens who show nothing but apathy toward the quality of education and the improvement of the schools. But there is another side of the coin—the intense interest which many people display and the energy they devote to improving schools.

This concern represents the best hope for the future of public education in Michigan. While our system of public schools is far above the national average in terms of financial support, I believe that we must work fervently to broaden this base of public concern—to make more and more citizens actively interested in the quality of education which their children are receiving.

I want to make it clear that the defeat of fiscal reform will not alter my commitment to improve the financial support of Michigan's school system, and the key to this improvement is a revision of the formula by which state aid is allocated to local school districts.

I know that people involved directly in school affairs, as well as the general public, are tiring of patience with our hop-skip-and-jump formula for returning a portion of the sales tax to the schools. So far, we in Michigan have been unable to agree on a set of principles which define state financial obligation to schools in relation to local obligations.

What we have is a formula which everyone admits is inequitable. We have districts which easily support a quality educational program plus many expensive frills, and we have districts which struggle along in a perpetual state of financial crisis.

As the inevitable pressure for more dollars increases, the state spends too many dollars in the rich districts, and too few dollars in the struggling districts.

To correct this imbalance, I have asked for a complete study of the problem from a recognized expert in the field—Charles Brake, former Wayne county superintendent of schools.

From his study, I will prepare recommendations for the regular session of the legislature opening next month, so that the inequities of the formula may be corrected next year.

I believe there are many people in Michigan who do not realize the extent of state aid to the schools.

During the fiscal year 1961-62, total public school operating expenses in Michigan were $651,289,175. Of that figure, $347,788,419, or 53.4 percent, came from local tax sources; $290,474,972, or 44.6 percent, was in the form of state aid. The balance came from other sources, mostly from the federal school-lunch program.

Rustic Sign Production Underway To Mark Recreational Facilities

Assembly-line operations have been started by the Conservation Department to turn out some 3,000 rustic signs which will be posted on state lands to identify land management projects, parks and other recreational facilities, and points of interest.

The new signs are being produced by inmate labor at the Department's tree nursery near Brighton. Plans call for launching another sign-making project at the Porcupine Mountains conservation-corrections camp shortly after the first of 1964.

All of the informational and directional panels are uniformly styled and painted under a new program to standardize Department signs. Each one features a dark brown background and routed ivory-colored letters to make it more distinct and visible to passersby than the present assortment of signs.

Mechanical cherry harvesters have slashed costs of picking from $80 to $20 per ton. A five man crew can now harvest as many cherries as 80 hand laborers.

Accident Prevention Is Part Of Smart Holiday Planning

We're getting around to that time of December when the most envied man or woman in town is the one who can say, "I've finished all my Christmas shopping, and all my holiday preparations are complete."

But don't get exasperated with your efficient friends, Chief of Police Robert Taylor advises. Instead, give credit where credit is due, and then, in a friendly way, of course, maybe check up on them just a little bit by asking a few questions like:

Have you remembered the fact that accident prevention is a part of holiday planning? When you shopped did you remember seat belts for each member of the family? Reinforced tire chains for bad going? New windshield wiper blades to prevent smeared vision? Have you neglected that car tune-up and safety-check you intended to get a long time ago?

Have you "winterized" your driving habits? Do you always slow down on slippery streets? If you plan to entertain, have you planned it so that your guests may drive home wide awake and sober?

If your friend has included all such items as the above in his Christmas and New Year preparations, there's not much to do about it but admit he's a real winner—and make him your good example.

What all this amounts to is that Chief Taylor and his department wish everyone in Dexter the merriest of Christmas holidays; and something in their past experience makes them very practical about it.

1964 Park Permits Are Now on Sale

Recreationists can now buy 1964 annual vehicle permits to get ready for the upcoming winter sports season at state parks, the Conservation Department reports.

The new annual permits are on sale at some 1,000 hunting and fishing license dealers and at all state parks in Michigan. They will be honored by parks personnel throughout the remainder of this month, as well as in 1964. Each permit costs $2, same as before, when purchased at a state park. An additional 15-cent fee is charged by license dealers to cover handling costs.

GOOD MEMORY

Riverton, Wyo. — It had been 5 years since Don Snow flipped a silver dollar, and it landed on top of a sign in front of a store he was passing.

He remembered this recently when passing the store, borrowed a ladder from nearby, climbed to the top of the sign and found his silver dollar.

Steel Firm Exec Named to State Conservation Board

Robert C. McLaughlin, vice president of McLaughlin Steel Corp., Detroit, this week was named to Michigan's Conservation Commission by Governor Romney. He succeeds Clarence J. Mesmer, Ann Arbor, whose six-year term expired last April.

McLaughlin is a former deputy director of the Conservation Department. In recent months, he served as chairman of Governor Romney's 21-man investigation committee which made a full study of the Department's operations and organizational structure. He brings to the Commission 14 years of Department experience, having held several field conservation office posts during his career. He served as assistant chief of the Department's education division for six years, and as deputy director from December, 1947, to January, 1950. McLaughlin also was executive secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council for one year.

It's hard to achieve success in keeping so-called friends from being jealous, at the same time.

ON CAPITOL HILL

By Congressman George Meader

On the bright, crisp afternoon of Nov. 26, I stood below the Custis-Lee Mansion on the hill in Arlington Cemetery and looked toward the Lincoln Memorial across the bridge, waiting for the cortege to appear. I thought — this cannot be real; it must be a horrible dream, in this land of the free, the true and the brave — alert to defend itself — this British episode is impossible.

What venom, zeal, efficiency and planning struck down with a little bullet not only an intelligent, able, personable young American but, at the same time, degraded the highest office in the world — the presidency of the United States. A devoted, Marxist-refused Soviet citizenship because his fanaticism would be more useful in American than in Russia, where there are already sufficient Communists — pulled the trigger on a $12.78 mail-ordered rifle with telescopic sight — three times and cut down this young man and this nation — and seriously wounded the chief executive of a proud and independent state.

Why? Who? Was this the individual act of a Marxist madman?

Possibly we will never know the complete truth — even though state and federal law enforcement agencies, congressional committees and a Presidential Commission, to be headed by Supreme Court Justice Warren, are investigating. The character of the affair — so incongruous — so insensate — so incomprehensible, evil and malevolent — has rocked and shocked the American people and the American mind.

Check Car Before Start Of Long Trip

Lansing — The Christmas holiday season is a time of year when millions of Americans make long auto trips.
If you're planning such a trip this year, here are some safe driving reminders that apply especially to long journeys.
First, be especially alert and cautious during that first 50 miles. The Michigan State Highway Department reports an unusual proportion of accidents occur within the first 90 minutes of a trip.
Apparently drivers are excited, in a hurry and haven't gotten used to the feel of their car with its extra load of baggage.
When possible, choose the safest routes for your trip. Freeways are four or five times safer than heavily traveled conventional highways.
If you're heading east, there's a similar blind period 45 minutes after sunrise.
And of course any driver setting out on a long trip should be sure his car is in top mechanical condition. Long, hard driving will bring out mechanical flaws quicker than short trips around town.
Pay special attention to your tires. Proper inflation means that you'll get better wear out of them, and it also means that your car will handle properly in an emergency.
These things, plus your usual safe-driving precautions, will help make that Christmas trip more pleasant, and much safer.

BULLDOG SPORTLIGHT

When the Chelsea Bulldogs meet the Dexter basketball team this year, the chances are that it will be a sell-out crowd. Not only because of the high rating that these two teams have in the Washtenaw Conference, but because of the strong rivalry that has been building up between these teams, with the interest be so great.
When these teams met back in 1925, Chelsea outscored the Dreadnaughts, 39-22.
Between 1925 and 1929, Chelsea won eight consecutive games from Dexter without a loss.
Probably to the delight of Dexter, these two teams didn't play again until the district tournament of 1938, when Chelsea again won, 33-17. However, when the Chelsea-Dexter series resumed in the 1942-43 season, Dexter swept both games from the Bulldogs. From that time on things have been a little more even.
Since 1943 Chelsea has a perfect record in the district tournament. The average investment of 56 best feeding farms keeping mail-in account records during 1962 through the Michigan Co-operative Extension Service was $144,000. These 56 farmers earned an average of 7.9 percent on their investment.
These things, plus your usual safe-driving precautions, will help make that Christmas trip more pleasant, and much safer.

Sending Christmas Cards?

Etiquette Is Very Important

One of the most enjoyable things about the Christmas season is contacting friends and relatives with Christmas cards. These tips of "etiquette" for Christmas card mailing will help make it easier on you, and even give you a pleasure for those on the receiving end of the line.

1. When your name is not imprinted on engraved, always sign your complete name. It is proper for husband-and-wife cards to be signed "Jane and John Doe," or "Mr. and Mrs. John Doe." "The

You can provide a great service to the post office by remembering to mail timely, accurate addresses; use zone apartment, box, route and box numbers; include return address; and tie all cards for local distribution with addresses face up and the same on all cards for "out-of-town" or "out-of-state."

And don't forget your zip code in your return address as well as the out-going address. In Boston the zip code is 02120, while in Chicago it is 60611.

courtesy and good taste to use form of name preferred by addressee. The same is true of diacritics.

When sending cards to the Reverend, always write "The Reverend," instead of simply "Reverend Doe." However, the correct form for Protestant ministers with a doctor of divinity degree is "The Reverend Dr. Doe" or "The Reverend Dr. D.D." Initials of a specific order or rank should be added to the names of Catholic priests and also addressed as "The Reverend Doe."

More than three billion Christmas cards will be mailed this season, according to greeting card companies.

For fast, friendly, dependable service plus top-quality fuel oil... for less, just make your heating headquarters here. You'll be mighty glad you did.

Jaycees Plan To Sponsor Dale Carnegie Course Here

The world-famous Dale Carnegie course is coming to Chelsea under the sponsorship of the Chelsea Junior Chamber of Commerce. The class will be held under the auspices of Chelsea Area Recreation Commission.

"We believe that the Chelsea Jaycees' sponsorship of this adult education program is a genuine community service," Lyle Chriswell, president of the club, says. "Businessmen, professional men, sales people, housewives, club women, office personnel—every adult will benefit from this training. It will build a new enthusiasm, develop confidence, create a new understanding among the citizens of our town."

Chriswell added that Jaycees in other areas report that the classes have had an important influence on human relations in their communities.

State Police Plan Intensive Road Patrols

Making extra effort to help curb Michigan's mounting traffic toll, the State Police will operate special 30-hour road patrols during the Christmas and New Year holiday periods. Commissioner Joseph A. Child reports that twenty-two persons died in accidents during the Christmas holiday period last year while another 20 were victims over New Year's.

For the five years of 1958 to 1962, deaths averaged one every three hours and 12 minutes for the Christmas period and one every four hours and 30 minutes for New Year's.

Assisting the State Police will be 106 National Guard members who will serve either as second men on traffic patrol or on point control.

The patrols will provide maximum coverage from 3 to 9 p.m. each day of the holiday periods when traffic is expected to be heaviest. Emphasis will be on state trunklines and primary county roads having high accident experience and heavy traffic volume.

Where available State Police detectives will take desk assignments to relieve uniform men for patrol services. The patrols will be in service from noon Tuesday, Dec. 21, until midnight Dec. 25, and from noon Tuesday, Dec. 31, to midnight Jan. 1. The Guardsmen will serve from 1 to 11 p.m. on the day before Christmas and for the New Year period during the hours which State Police district and post commanders decide are best for coping with traffic problems locally.

PLANNED PATTERN

Interstate and U. S. highway route numbers are arranged in a planned pattern. Odd numbered routes run north and south while even number are east and west.

Only 40 Years Ago Groesbeck Elected on Promise To 'Get Michigan Out of Mud'

Lansing—Motorists who use the 9,200 miles of highways in Michigan may find it hard to believe today that only 40 years ago Alex J. Groesbeck won the governorship with a campaign to "get Michigan out of the mud."

But that was the slogan that helped elect Groesbeck to office for three terms in the state whose automobile production put the rest of the world on wheels.

A little-known aspect is that prison convicts helped in the road building immediately after being elected, Groesbeck pushed through a $50 million bond issue to pay for new highways. And that caused problems.

Highway Department records show that the state had plenty of money to build roads, but so few had been built until then that there weren't enough contractors to fill the expanded needs.

That led the state to use convicts as roadbuilders.

Frank F. Rogers, State Highway Commissioner in 1924, reports that prisoner laborers built M-10 in Genesee county, M-16 in Oakland county, M-14 in Clinton county and a federal aid project between Galesburg and Camp Custer.

Reported Rogers:

"Of the 600 prison road workers out, 21 escaped. Four of these voluntarily returned, 11 others have been recaptured and six remain at large."

"Of the 660 men used during the summer but 36 had to be returned to prison. Twelve of them were physically unable to stand the work and the other 24 went back for some infraction of the camp rules."

Today, use of prison labor is out of the question, according to C. B. Laird, Highway Department's Chief Construction Engineer and a 38-year veteran of state service. For one reason, there are not enough prisoners in the state to meet the need for road-builders.

During the peak of the building season this year, Laird estimated, some 10,000 men were at work on construction while another 8,300 were used for maintenance. Yet, Michigan's prison system has only about 8,400 inmates now.

Use of convict labor was discontinued in August, 1930, early in the depression. Unemployed workers had protested that the convicts were filling jobs that otherwise would have been theirs.

Each convict was paid $1.25 a day for his efforts and the state paid the same amount to feed and clothe him. With incidental expenses, the state was paying $3 a day for a man's labor. That was about what it would have cost to hire a regular laborer. However, as Rogers pointed out, the saving to the state resulted more from the hard and efficient work done by the men than the saving in dollars and cents through their use.

Before prisoners were used, Rogers said, there were more than 600 idle men in the prisons, and now there are only the incarcerated.

Prisoners also operated a state-owned cement plant near Chelsea because Groesbeck was convinced that cement plant owners were gouging the state with too high prices.

Today, federal standards prohibit the use of convicts for building any highway paid for with federal funds. Furthermore, labor unions would protest such use, Laird said.

As Michigan prepares to open another 75 miles of freeway within a month, it is interesting to see what Rogers proposed in the year 1924.

"It may be possible to use 800 prisoners and with them build nearly 100 miles of paved roads."

"It is expected they will be used to close a 10-mile gap on M-10 in Oakland county; complete the Grand River road, M-16, Lansing to Detroit in Oakland, Livingston and Ingham counties, about 40 miles; also to build the remainder of the Monroe-Toledo road, 19.1 miles which will be the new M-10 across Monroe county."

Cuban Refugee Family Moves to Milan Job

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Portillo and daughter who have been living in Chelsea the past several months, moved last week to 122 E. Main St. in Milan. Portillo has begun work at the foundry there.

The Portillos, who were refugees from Cuba, were brought to Chelsea through the efforts of the Christian Family Movement group who sponsored them for the required period before they could become self-supporting.

It is much easier to get in debt than to get out of it—remember that.
