Two Earn Eagle Scout Awards

Thomas Scholtens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Scholtens, and Donald Dickelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dickelman, received Boy Scouting's highest award—Eagle Scout rank—at a Court of Honor of Troop 425, held Monday evening at the Congregational church.

Assisting with the presentation of the Eagle awards, was Philip Rusten of Ann Arbor, former pastor of the Chelsea Congregational church who was formerly active in Scouting in Chelsea.

Ronald Watkins was the recipient of a surprise award—the Scout of the Year award—which he will retain for the current year. The award will be presented next year to the Scout chosen by the troop committee for the honor.

Guests at the Court of Honor included Mrs. William Windle, wife of the District IV Scout executive, and the Windles' son; also Clarence Doud, Portage Trails Council Scout executive, of Ann Arbor; Archie Adams, an Ann Arbor Scoutmaster; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rusten and family, of Ann Arbor; Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Beach, and the Rev. and Mrs. R.A.J. Livingston and daughter, Judy.

Troop committee members and parents of the two Eagle Scouts formed the committee in charge of preparations for the awards ceremony and the pot-luck supper which preceded it.

Table decorations were large cardboard replicas of the Eagle badge and place cards at the speakers' table were smaller replicas of the badge.

At the dinner the invocation was given by the Rev. Paul M. Schnake.

The after-dinner program opened with the customary flag ceremony and an investiture during which Bruce Haas became a new Tenderfoot Scout.

A 100 percent Boys' Life award was presented to the troop for having the magazine in the homes of all Scouts in the troop.

Awards were also announced and presented to winners of a recent "bike rodeo" for Boy Scouts. John A. Potts won the individual single Scout first-place award.

First-place patrol award went to Falcon Patrol Scouts Larry Blackwell, assistant patrol leader, and Ted O'Neill, Ronald Erskine and Lesley Leggett.

Rubbish Pick-Up Day Set Monday

Monday, May 4, is Chelsea's annual spring rubbish pick-up day—the day when any amount and any kind of rubbish which can be handled by pick-up crews will be collected if placed at the curb.

It is important to get the rubbish at the curb early in the morning — a good idea is to put it out the night before, it has been pointed out.

Chelsea Public Works Department crews and the villages general rubbish contractor, William Terns, will co-operate in the rubbish collection.

For this pick-up only, residents may put out any discards which are not ordinarily eligible for pick-up under the village contract with Terns.

If quantities are of such amounts that the pick-up cannot be completed in one day, the project will be completed on Tuesday, May 4.

Exchange of Mayors With Elk Rapids

Word was received yesterday that Chelsea will exchange mayors with Elk Rapids on Mayors' Exchange Day, May 18.

Lake Linden, originally paired with Chelsea for the annual Michigan Week observance, had sent regrets last week, stating they would not be participating in the Mayors' Exchange.

Information received yesterday states that the Elk Rapids mayor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Babcock and another couple, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bratschi, will spend the day in Chelsea while Chelsea's village president, Howard Haselschwardt, with Mrs. Haselschwardt and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Burg, II, will go to Elk Rapids for the day.

Until word was received yesterday, Chelsea village officials were in doubt as to what form of observance of Mayors' Exchange Day would be planned here after the Lake Linden-Chelsea exchange was canceled.

The Elk Rapids mayor is the owner and publisher of the Elk Rapids weekly newspaper, The Progress.

Claire Rowe Retires from Assistant Postmaster Post

Claire Rowe concluded almost 44 years of employment with the Chelsea Post Office Friday evening as he began his retirement. He began as a clerk in the office on May 15, 1920, when the Post Office was located in the building at 119 S. Main St., now occupied by the Chelsea Restaurant.

At that time Chauncey Hummel was postmaster; there were four rural mail delivery routes with most carriers still using the horse-and-buggy method of travel; and residents of the village came to the Post Office to pick up their mail.

Now there are only two rural mail routes and the rural carriers travel by automobile. Parts of the former four routes have been added to routes going out of Dexter, Grass Lake, Manchester and Ann Arbor.

In his early days with the Post Office, all mail was dispatched and received by train and all trains were met by a postal employee pushing a hand cart to carry the pouches. Mail arriving on trains not scheduled to stop here were thrown off; pouches to be dispatched were "snatched" from a special mail hook as the train sped through town.

Now all mail arrives and leaves Chelsea by truck.

Before moving to the present Post Office building in 1937, the Post Office quarters had been located for some years in the building on the southwest corner of Main and Middle Sts.

Rowe worked, successively, under Postmasters O. T. Hoover, H. D. Witherell and Carl Mayer, as well as Acting Postmasters Kent Walworth and Paul F. Niehaus. He has been assistant postmaster since 1930, two years before city delivery was inaugurated in Chelsea.

The only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rowe, he moved to the home at 240 Washington St. in 1929.

His hobbies have long been fishing and golf, in which he has been exceptionally proficient.

He said he plans to devote more time to these hobbies and he also has "lots to do" around his home—things he has not had time for while he was working.

Rowe graduated from Chelsea High school in 1917 and attended Western State University at Kalamazoo before entering military service in 1918. He had been enrolled in the Student Army Training Corps and was in active service for a short time before World War I ended. He worked for a short time at Hoover Ball & Bearing Co. and for the Highway Department before beginning his career with the Post Office in 1920.

Mrs. Alice Roedel Still Active at 96

Mrs. Alice Roedel, who observed her 96th birthday Thursday, April 16, has been a Chelsea resident since she came to live with relatives before she was 16 years old and attended school here. She has lived on Harrison St. for 75 years, first in a house across the street from her present home at 235 Harrison St.

Mrs. Roedel, a widow since 1907, did dressmaking until a few years ago and has never needed to wear glasses. Now her hobbies are working in her yard during the spring and summer and reading in the winter. She cares for her own home and the past week was out raking her lawn.

She attends services at the Methodist church, of which she has been a member for many years, but is no longer active in the women's groups of the church. She does, however, retain her membership in the Cytherean, a group which celebrated its 50th anniversary several years ago.

She and Mrs. Florence Howlett, a Chelsea school teacher for many years, have been lifelong friends. Mrs. Howlett, who will be 97 years old on June 18, has been an invalid the past four years and is a patient at Colonial Manor Nursing Home.

Mrs. Roedel's husband Frederick William Roedel, died in 1907.

Her family inlcudes a daughter, Mrs. George Walworth (Rena) who, with her husband, lives next door to Mrs. Roedel; a son, Max D. Roedel, of Grass Lake Rd.; three grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Another son, Dr. Don F. Roedel, a Detroit dentist, died in 1959.

Mrs. Roedel was born near Bridgewater, in Manchester township and has lived in Washtenaw county all her life.

Seventh Grade Band Wins Top State Honors

Gain Unanimous Decision By Four Festival Judges

Chelsea's seventh grade band received a unanimous Division I rating in Saturday's state Junior High Band Festival at Plymouth.

Four judges were in full accord in their decision to give the Chelsea band a Division I rating and were lavish in their comments, not only for the excellent performance of the band, but for the conductor, Karl Woodson, as well.

Elizabeth Green of the University of Michigan, one of the judges, described the Chelsea group as "a nice, clean-sounding band under an excellent director . . . fine rhythm, fine intonation, nice stage presence," also "careful attention, on the part of the conductor, to individual efficiency in the players."

Miss Green continued by complimenting "a trio of three young drummers who glued their eyes on their conductor and tried really to be musicianly."

Another of the judges, Larry Teal of the U. of M. and Wayne State University, said "the full band sound was excellent" and "the playing showed the effects of good training."

The third judge, W. D. Fitch, of Eastern Michigan University, was "impressed by good posture, position and intonation" and concluded by remarking that the performance was "a fine job of conducting—not overdone—releases accurate—fine control of dynamics."

Another of Fitch's comments was, "It is unusual for a young band to make such a careful dis-

Hootenanny Set Saturday By Choir

The Chelsea High School choir will present another Hootenanny this Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The response to last November's Hootenanny was so overwhelming that the most popular acts have been invited to participate again in this week's show. Appearing will be those "cultural hillbillies," The Huron River Ramblers, who brought the house down last time —Leslie Fish, a specialist in audience participation, plus three acts from Chelsea, The Riders Three, composed of Tom Sharrard, Dennis Stoffer and Scott Smith; The Willows, Audrey Hayes and Marianne Edwards, and Vic Parks, the Vagabond Minstrel. Emcee for the program will be Mike Schrader, a senior in high school and a member of the bass section of the high school choir.

Tickets may be purchased from any high school choir member or at the door.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

Many readers may already be aware of some of the things the state is proposing to do for the mentally retarded, but I am sure many of them do not realize what all of these programs add up to.

In terms of its scope, of its size, and of its departure from past approaches to the problem, the program for the mentally retarded which is now under consideration by the legislature is the most extensive in the history of the state.

The size of this program is fully justified by the size of the problem. As of now, more than 1,800 patients are waiting for admission to state facilities for the retarded.

Although hospital space for the retarded has expanded in past years, it has not expanded fast enough to keep pace with the demand for service.

If Michigan is to meet the challenge of serving its retarded children, the challenge must be approached on several fronts. The program I have presented to the legislature accomplishes this.

First, I have asked the legislature to appropriate $269,000 to finance eight outpatient clinics at each of the eight hospitals now caring for the retarded. These clinics will provide diagnostic and evaluation services for the retarded and their families.

Secondly, I have proposed the establishment of a network of field workers operating in communities throughout the state. Their primary function would be to provide immediate emergency service to all newly identified cases of mental retardation.

Third, I have recommended establishment of a network of day care centers to provide training to severely retarded patients at the community level. This would provide a workable alternative to sending children into permanent exile from their families.

Fourth, I recommended that we move toward the establishment of a series of community mental retardation centers located in the larger urban centers. These would provide a program of intensive diagnostic services and short-term in-patient treatment aimed at the correction of immediate physical or intellectual deficits.

Already approved by the Senate are projects totaling $4,020,000 which will add 920 beds for the care of the retarded. They include a 200-bed toddlers' unit at Mt. Pleasant, two toddlers' units, an outpatient wing, habilitation unit, a building for the blind, a laboratory building and other units at the Plymouth Home and Training School.

In addition, the House has increased from $12 to $14.5 million the amount of state aid which can be earmarked for special education. The impact of this increase will be very great when you add to that sum the matching funds which will be made available for these programs.

Altogether, these programs represent the largest amount of money ever recommended for the care of the mentally retarded.

But beyond that, they comprise a bold departure from the "out-of-sight, out-of-mind" philosophy which has dominated the care of the mentally retarded for years.

Senior Citizen Get Together Planned May 20

May is Senior Citizens Month by proclamation of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Governor George Romney and many mayors of Michigan cities. In addition to calling upon the community to give special recognition to their older citizens, the Seniors themselves are planning a variety of special events for the month.

For Michigan, the most noticeable of these will be 10 regional get-togethers sponsored by the Public Agency section of the Recreation Association of Michigan. This will be the 10th year the RAM has planned these meetings.

The five counties — Hillsdale, Jackson, Lenawee, Monroe and Washtenaw — will comprise one region and this year's get-together will take place in Jackson, Wednesday, May 20 in the National Guard Armory from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Seniors will come by bus and cars from many cities and towns in the five counties.

Lunch will be served at noon followed by a brief, intersting program; then dancing and cards.

An award will be presented to each group present. There will be special prizes for the oldest man, the oldest woman, and the couple married the longest, who are present.

All Senior Citizens (60 and over) in this area are invited.

Anyone wishing more information may contact the Jackson Senior Citizens Center, 743 W. Michigan Ave. Jackson or telephone ST 4-9175, ext. 29.

ANTI-POVERTY PLAN

President Johnson's antipoverty program is on its uncertain journey through the legislative mill.

Democratic reaction generally was favorable to the $962,500,000 program aimed primarily at assistance to poorly young Americans.

Republican reaction generally voiced that the program looked a lot like a political maneuver.

Don't Keep It Under Your Hat

This is the season when the ladies bring out new hats and spring finery. And, when one shopper discovers what she considers some real bargains, she usually tells her friends about it.

Perhaps this is why you see so many of your friends when you shop local stores. Word gets around. One person tells another, and so on. When you stop to think about it, it makes sense. Local stores can offer merchandise equal to that to be found anywhere, usually at a better price.

If, for one reason or another, you have gotten out of the habit of shopping local stores first, take our advice and visit these friendly people. You should find some bargains you'd like to tell your friends about.

THE THRILL OF CAMPING OUT

★ MICHIGAN MIRROR ★

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Beer Beardown

Despite general agreement among legislators during the past two years that increases in the beer tax have been unfair, a reduction in that tax must be sought again next year.

Bankruptcy proceedings of one brewery, largely blamed on the 430 percent tax increase since 1962, seemed to have little effect on the deliberations.

Hopes were high this year when five Senators succeeded in getting a tax reduction proposal through their chamber. These hopes were quashed quickly when the proposal to cut the beer tax by $7 million a year was killed by a House committee.

Just a few short years ago the per barrel tax on beer was $1.25. Then came Michigan's cash crisis and beer was one of the industries to be included in the temporary "nuisance tax" package enacted to raise money quickly.

In the so-called temporary package, the beer levy was doubled to $2.50 per barrel. This rate was reimposed practically before the temporary levy expired.

Then in 1962 there was a new need for revenue and beer again came under scrutiny. By changing the tax base from the barrel to the 12-ounce bottle, the legislature imposed the large jump in the levy. The equivalent of the new bottle tax was $6.61 per barrel.

It was this increase that really brought the brewers to their feet and is blamed for the bankruptcy of one company.

A valiant struggle led by the Michigan Brewers Association to get the tax lowered again, now that the state anticipates a return to surplus, has gained only sympathy as time ran out in this legislative session.

The brewers' fight to get the reduction is getting like the axiom, "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it."

Books and Service

Libraries serve their intended function as best as can be done with funds available, according to State Librarian Genevieve M. Casey. The limitations, however, are considerable.

A survey taken by the State Library in Lansing showed about one-eighth of Michigan's citizens use library facilities every week.

About 70 percent of this one million people are students with required reading for school and an active interest in the world about them. Others include a good number of business men and women, housewives, retirees and unemployed workers.

Information sought through libraries is available in about 75 percent of the cases, the study showed.

Financial problems of the individual library systems were largely responsible for the failure to supply information or materials in the other 25 percent of the cases, said Miss Casey.

"About 260,000 patrons every week are unable to get the books, pictures, films, phonographs and tape recordings they request because many of our libraries cannot afford first-rate collections and the necessary related services," she said.

Spread Scholarships

Allocation of a proposed student scholarship program would be a new kind of political plum if House of Representatives approval is given to a Senate-passed measure.

The program, however, has widespread support from educators. It is seen as a start toward a long-awaited goal.

The proposal by Sen. William G. Milliken, R-Traverse City, called for nearly $1.2 million in state scholarships originally but this was trimmed by Senate budget-writers to $500,000 during the first year of the program.

Providing more than 600 scholarships of up to $800 each for Michigan high school graduates, the plan would provide that three grants would be earmarked for each of the legislative districts and the other 190 or so scholarships would be awarded on a state-wide competitive basis.

Despite the regional earmarking of some of the scholarship funds in this way, educators hoped this would be the start of a much larger program to help needy students obtain a college education.

Private college administrators favored the scholarship plan particularly because they said the state support to public institutions now, in effect, provides financial help to students at the state schools. The scholarship program, they felt, would spread the state support around among more students.

Three years ago the Michigan Higher Education Assistance Authority was created with the responsibility of administering a state student aid program. No funds were allocated for scholarships, however, so the Authority turned to private sources.

The Authority has been granting scholarships to students for more than a year now, at both private and state schools.

Approval of the proposed $500,000 state scholarship program would considerably broaden the activities of the Authority since it probably will continue to allocate funds now under its jurisdiction as well as the new state monies.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night come out strong agin this plan for "streamlining" the Congress. It looks from the papers like the folks back home is complaining on account of them Congressmen ain't gittin nothing done but yap more and more about less and less.

Ed Doolittle had some figgers he had took from a newspaper on what has happened since the last time things was reformed in the Congress in 1946. First off, this reform Act of 1946 said the Congress should adjourn by July 31 ever year except in time of war. According to this piece Ed was showing the fellers, they ain't adjourned but twict in them 17 year by July 31 and that was in 1952 and 1956 when we was electing a President and they had to git back home and do some politicking.

Furthermore, the 1946 Act reduced the committees in the Senate from 35 to 15, and in the House from 48 to 19. After 17 year of reform we now got 106 committees in the Senate and 152 in the House.

But the main reason we can't stand no more streamlining of the Congress, allowed Ed, was on account of the costs. In 1946 when we got our last streamlining job it was costing $22 million a year to operate the Congress, and the figgers for the phiscal year ending July 1, 1965, is $179 million, a increase of 800 per cent in 17 year.

All the fellers was agreed that one more streamlining job on the Congress and the cost would git in orbit. It was also noted by Clem Webster that them Congressmen might not even git adjourned in time for the presidential election and the voters would be had handicapped without their advice in these matters.

It might be a public service, Mister Editor, if you'd write a editorial warning the voters to keep quiet as a mouse on this matter and not push it.

Next to not streamlining the Congress, the fellers was of the opinion that the next most pressing domestic problem was how to keep the husbands in this country from running off and leaving their wives. Zeke Grubb had a item from the U. S. Tracer Company reporting that 75,000 husbands took off from home in 1963 and ain't been heard about since.

This item said more and more husbands has been disappearing ever year since 1950 and that it had reached a all-time high last year. They just pack up their clothes when the old lady is gone and take off fer good.

All the fellers was afeared that unless we can put the stopper in this jug, grass widows would git to be as big a problem in America as the Congress.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

PROCLAMATION

LAW DAY U.S.A.
May 1, 1964

It is especially fitting at this time that each of us, as citizens of this great nation, should reaffirm our faith in the rule of law and in the supremacy of government by laws rather than men.

The Congress of the United States, and the President by official proclamation, have designated May 1 as Law Day USA. The basic aims of Law Day are to foster increased respect for law, for independent courts which uphold the law, and for a deeper awareness of the benefits and responsibilities of citizenship.

Liberty and equality for the individual are what distinguish our system of government from communism, under which millions of people today live in fear and tyranny. No better time could be chosen to call public attention to our great heritage of individual liberty under law.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Howard Haselschwardt, president of the Village of Chelsea, do hereby proclaim Friday, May 1, 1964, as Law Day U.S.A. in the Village of Chelsea and call upon all citizens, organizations, and schools to recognize this special day with suitable programs, ceremonies and educational activities.

Dated at the Village of Chelsea, this 25th day of April, 1961.

Howard Haselschwardt
President, Village of Chelsea

JCC Auxiliary Elects New Officer Slate

The Jaycee Auxiliary held a "Come as you are" meeting, Tuesday, April 21 at the home of Mrs. Dan Maroney. Mrs. Duane Layher was co-hostess for the evening.

Mrs. George Ellenwood reported that Mrs. Huelsberg, of the Manchester Special Education classes at Pleasant Lake, thanked the Auxiliary for their donations of records. They are used both as entertainment and learning devices for her elementary age girls.

Eight members attended the Spring District meeting in Saline on March 23. Dr. Ahmed Kafi, of Ypsilanti State Hospital, spoke about emotionally disturbed children. During the past year, most of the more than 100 auxiliaries in the state have supported the State Auxiliary Service project, MAEDC (Michigan Association for Emotionally Children), and as young mothers were interested in such a topic for family reasons, also. State president Doris Borhman of Berrien Springs, spoke on the value to an individual and her own club in running for a State Auxiliary office. Mrs. Ric Creswell of Tecumseh was elected state vice-president of the new District No. 3, which is to include Adrian, Blissfield, Chelsea, Clinton, Saline, and Tecumseh. On July 1 she will succeed Mrs. Maroney, who has been the state vice-president for the past year.

Mrs. Ron Branham reported that eight Auxiliary members and seven Jaycees boiled, dyed, packed and stored the 150 dozen eggs used in the Jaycees Easter Egg Hunt, March 28.

A new project to begin next month is the "Goof Jar." Each member will contribute a written idea to the jar, and one will be drawn each month. For each "goof idea" there is a fine of 10 cents. It may be something like, "Each member who forgot to kiss her husband before she came to meeting, must pay a fine."

Three members of the Milan Auxiliary were guests for the evening. They brought the District Visiting Trophy to the Chelsea Auxiliary. The trophy, presented by Mrs. Maroney to the district, has completed its first round of visiting throughout the district.

The annual election was held at the close of the meeting. Those elected are president, Mrs. Don Bush; vice-president, Mrs. Silas Hopkins; secretary, Mrs. David Rowe; treasurer, Mrs. Ken Norris; directors, Mrs. Ron Branham and Mrs. Elton Guenther.

The next meeting will be held May 19 at the home of Mrs. Gene Shoemaker. At 7 pm. there will be a smorgasbord supper before the business meeting.

May Fellowship Day Planned By Church Women

May Fellowship Day, an observance sponsored by United Church Women on a national basis, will be observed by United Church Women of the Chelsea area at a service scheduled for 1:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday). The united service will take place at North Lake Methodist church.

The committee has arranged to provide babysitting during the meeting.

Theme for the May Fellowship Day Program is "Freedom of Residence and Job Opportunity."

There are to be two speakers — Mrs. Frederick Romley of the Presbyterian church of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Robin Barlow, also of Ann Arbor, who is an Episcopalian.

Both women are active in the Conference on Religion and Race, an inter-faith group of Protestants, Jews and Catholics.

All Chelsea area church women are invited to attend.

Committee members in charge of arrangements for May Fellowship Day are Mrs. Henry Karner, Mrs. Herman Ashley, Mrs. Austin Artz, Mrs. Walter Wolfgang, Mrs. Judson Goltra and Mrs. Ben Donaldson.

Tea will be served following the program.

NEW LOOK . . . Pert Elaine Wachowicz looks through the newest thing in high-vacuum windows, which are capable of withstanding temperatures up to 842 degrees F and will enable scientists to observe space tests.

Class of 53 Young People Make First Communion

First Communion services for 25 girls and 28 boys, which took place at the 8 a.m. Mass Sunday at St. Mary's Catholic church were attended by an exceptionally large number of people. Included, in addition to the regular parish members, were relatives and friends of the honored young people.

Selected to serve the Mass were boys whose sisters or brothers were members of the First Communion class — they included James Juergens, David Orlowski, James Boylan and Daniel Schnaidt.

Philip Musolf and John Merkel escorted the First Communion class into the sanctuary and James Boylan carried the cross to lead the procession.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski officiated at the impressive First Communion service.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vicary and Mrs. Annabelle Woolley were Sunday afternoon callers of the former's cousin, Mrs. Ada Harkness and son, Howard, of Munith.

Scholarship Loans...

will be made by a committee which is to include the Senior High school principal, the High school guidance counselor and two directors of the Foundation. Careful consideration is to be given as to need, scholastic achievement, family circumstances, leadership potential, and most important of all, individual initiative.

In the discussion that followed it was mentioned by David Rowe that "the way in which this fund is to be managed does not limit its benefits to the "all A scholar" but actually to members of the community who have the ability and the desire to further their education."

According to Neil Culley the most important contribution this fund has to offer our young people is the fact that these monies are not intended to pay the cost of an education but rather to make up the extra help that an individual may need to combine with a scholarship they may have already been awarded, with what financial support their parents may be able to give, with earnings of their own, saved for their advanced education, or a combination thereof.

It was pointed out by Dr. Fisher that part of the purpose for which this fund was founded had to do with the "acquisition of a trade or profession" and this opened up a broad field wherein this loan fund could be used even though no type of scholarship is available; for instance, correspondence schools, barber college, various trade schools, specialized short courses, business or office courses, practical nursing, or even for the purchase of special equipment necessary for "on-the-job" training.

The committee meeting was adjourned with a suggestion by Richard Harvey that further details be worked out at the next regular meeting of the Foundation's Board of Directors at which time a current report of the actual money now available is to be presented by the finance committee.

The first essential in the security of a worker is to be able to work.

LUXURY PLANES

Senator Proxmire, (D., Wis.), has stated that the Federal Aviation Agency is "maintaining a luxury fleet of planes at taxpayer expenses." According to the Senator, there is a fleet of some 129 planes, including one with interior decorating.

"If FAA personel need to travel they can use commercial flights," Proxmire said.

You can't always tell what some people think by hearing what they say.

Grass Fires Still Plague Fire Dept.

In spite of a drenching rain early last week, grass fires continued to crop up, resulting in many runs for Chelsea firemen. None of the fires, however, was as serious as those of the previous week when large areas were burned over.

Listed as the grass fires extinguished by Chelsea firemen the past week are the following:

Tuesday, April 21 — State land west of Chelsea, along Loveland Rd., 10:20 a.m.

Thursday, April 23 — Joseph Czapla farm (marsh) on Rank Rd., 11:10 a.m.

New York Central Railroad tracks, along Chelsea-Dexter Rd., east of Chelsea, 3:48 p.m.

New York Central Railroad tracks along Garvey Rd., west of Chelsea, 4 p.m.

Friday, April 24 — New York Central Railroad tracks east of Chelsea, 11:50 a.m.

Saturday, April 25 — Delbert Reiniche property, Glazier Rd., 11:06 a.m.

Henry Walter farm and state land (marsh) 12:28 noon.

New York Central Railroad tracks east of Chelsea to Martin Merkel farm, 5:25 p.m.

St. Louis school farm (marsh) on Old US-12, west of Chelsea, 8:45 p.m.

Rains Tuesday and yesterday have offered some relief and as the grass becomes greener and begins to grow, the danger of fires is lessened.

Limited Postal Service Changes To Start May 10

Limited adjustments in some postal services ordered in Washington March 10 by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski to save $12.7 million will begin to take effect in Chelsea and other cities May 4, Postmaster Carl J. Mayer said today.

Service changes planned locally include the following, Mayer said:

(1.) Parcel Post Deliveries: The normal delivery of parcel post will not be affected. Six-day service shall be continued on all rural routes.

(2.) Window Services: Only one consolidated stamp and parcel post window will be opened from 8:00 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays. All registry and COD services will be available at this window. Domestic and international money orders will not be issued. There will be no service changes during week days, and you are urged to transact as much of your postal business as possible during these days.

(3) Money Orders: Domestic and international money orders will not be issued. Rural carriers will not accept money order applications on Saturdays.

The Postmaster emphasized that no essential major services are affected under the orders. For example, there will be no change in special delivery and except for money orders, no change in rural delivery on Saturdays. Letters and other first-class mail will be handled with the same priority as ever.

The economy step, Postmaster Mayer explained, is in line with President Johnson's programs under which the recent income tax cut was provided.

There is some good in every individual, which usually can be cultivated.

W. Herring Will Head Grade PTA

Dr. Ray E. Kehoe, associate director of the Bureau of School Services at the University of Michigan and a lecturer in the University's School of Education, speaking at the April 22 meeting of the Elementary PTA, commended Chelsea elementary schools for their fine libraries.

Speaking generally of all elementary schools, he made construction suggestion for improvements of their entire programs, stressing that most elementary schools lack sufficient physical education, music and art instruction. He recommended that more time be allotted for these areas of study.

His message to parents of elementary school children was that they should "speak out" for good educational programs.

In his discussion of trends in elementary school curriculum planning, he raised the question of the possibility of eventual consideration of standards leading to approval for accreditation as high schools have been for many years.

Dr. Kehoe was formerly a member of the Michigan North Central State Commission for high school accreditation.

During a discussion which followed his talk someone posed the question, "How can Chelsea elementary schools have these full-time physical education, instrumental music, art, etc., programs?" It was at first stated that a one-mill levy would provide for these additions to the curriculum; however, a later estimate set the necessary levy at only one-half mill to provide for the additional cost for full-time instruction in these areas for all elementary school children in Chelsea.

At the business session of the meeting officers were elected for the coming year. Named were William Herring, president; Robert Benedict, vice-president; Mrs. Benjamin Bower, secretary; and Mrs. Russell Gardner, treasurer.

The outgoing president is Mrs. Robert Koch.

Mrs. Herbert Hinz gave a detailed report of the Elementary PTA Fair held April 10 and a committee was named to meet with school board members to make a decision on use of the proceeds which amounted to approximately $500.

Rebekahs Hear Detailed Report on District Meeting

A detailed report of the meeting of the Rebekah 12th District, held April 15 at Martha Lodge, Jackson, was given at the Chelsea Rebekah Lodge meeting Tuesday evening, (April 21, by Mrs. Russell Altstaetter and Mrs. Mac Packard. They explained that the Rebekah Assembly of Michigan president, Mrs. Naomi Wright, of Alma, was a special guest.

Chelsea Lodge had been assigned to demonstrate the proper procedure for balloting. Participating in the demonstration were the chairman, Mrs. Packard, with her staff—Mrs. Ruth Perkins, Mrs. Jo Hochrein, Mrs. Viola Slane, Mrs. Altstaetter, Mrs. Mary Weinmann, Mrs. Flossie Lake, Mrs. Elsie Hinz, Mrs. Anna McDonald and the Chelsea lodge's noble grand, Mrs. Ann Yoell.

Mrs. Yoell was also on the courtesy committee at the district meeting.

It was announced that the 12th District visitation program will begin in May with Chelsea named as the first lodge to be visited. The visitation here is scheduled for May 5 at the IOOF Hall.

Twelfth District lodges included are those at Springport, Parma, Vandercook Lake, Hanover, Brooklyn, two in Jackson and the Chelsea lodge.

The Springport lodge has been assigned the responsibility for providing entertainment at the May 5 visitation.

Business at Tuesday's meeting included making final plans for the lodge's rummage sale to be held May 2 at Sylvan Town Hall. Chairman of the rummage sale is Mrs. Elwood Keezer.

It was also arranged to have a family pot-luck supper Tuesday, May 12, in observance of Mothers' Day. Entertainment is being planned.

The committee for the affair includes Mrs. Weinmann, Mrs. Packard, Mrs. Altstaetter, Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Hazel Dvorak.

It was also voted at the meeting to sponsor a boy to attend camp this summer at Big Star Lake, near Baldwin.

Petty honors appeal to small craniums.

SCOUT LEADER CAMP-OUT: Men in the above with another half dozen or so, spent the past week-end camping under canvas at Camp Newkirk, cooking their own meals and practicing skills—firebuilding, axemanship, hiking, compass work, etc.—as leadership training for work with Boy Scouts. The camp-out was the climax of training sessions held Wednesday evenings during the preceding seven weeks. Instructors for the seven-week course were Wendell Young of Dexter, training chairman of Iroquois District of the Portage Trails Boy Scout Council, assisted by area Scoutmasters as well as the Iroquois District Boy Scout executive, William Windle. Shown at the grill in the photo are Harry Bates and Bill Marz, Troop 428 committeemen of Dexter. Kneeling, from left, are Ray Kimble, Troop 428 committeeman; Troop 428 Scoutmaster Robert Lambert who was Scoutmaster of the training course; Troop 425 Scoutmaster Ralph Frisch who acted as assistant Scoutmaster for the training sessions; and John Potts, Troop 425 committee chairman. Standing, left to right, are Dr. Henry Schoch of Troop 11, Ann Arbor; Robert Dillon, chairman of the leadership training committee of Ann Arbor; Windle and Young. Don Posey of Milan (not shown in photo) was also an instructor for the seven-week training course.

14 Adult District Scouters Complete Training Session

"Sneakiest snakes in the grass" —these were the Bushmasters—one of the two patrols of adult scouters who camped out beside the green banks of the Huron River at Camp Newkirk last week-end. The balance of the scouters termed themselves the "Bearpaws."

Men from Dexter, Chelsea, Milan and Ann Arbor participated in the week-end campout which climaxed a seven-week training session in Iroquois District (District IV) of Portage Trails Council, BSA.

Pitching their tents from 5:30 p.m. Friday, the men began a full week-end of outdoor crafts, hiking, cooking, etc. They worked in patrols, showing a commendable amount of patrol spirit, according to the members of the district training staff who conducted the training exercise.

Classroom sessions began at 7:30 Friday evening. Axeman-ship, proper method of assembling and carrying a pack, trail sanitation and use of the compass were among the many topics covered by instructors.

The seven-week course included Wednesday evening instruction classes each week at Camp Newkirk with Camp Ranger Cy Welch building a welcome campfire for each get-together. Participants in the training are adult scouters who work with their respective troops in their own communities. Some of these are unit leaders; many are new to scouting but have taken the time to attend the training sessions so that they may assist the unit leaders.

At the Saturday night campfire, 11 certificates were awarded the scouters who successfully completed the training requirements.

Robert Lambert, Scoutmaster during the training event, and Wendell Young, senior patrol leader for the seven weeks, awarded the certificates. Representing the Portage Trails Council during the course and at the outdoor week-end was District IV Scout Executive, Bill Windle of Chelsea.

COTTON-WHEAT SUBSIDY

The House passed a cotton-wheat subsidy bill and sent it directly to President Johnson. It followed an earlier approval of a food stamp program for needy families. It was a double victory for Johnson and his leadership in the House. Both bills passed in the face of strong Republican opposition and parliamentary maneuvering.

AGRICULTURE in ACTION .....

MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU

★ Farmers Overruled

Farm wishes were ignored when Congress passed the new wheat-cotton bill at the insistence of President Johnson and Agricultural Secretary Freeman. The fact that the bill contained the same controversial wheat "certificate" plan which farmers turned down in nation-wide referendum last year, seemed not to concern them or Congress in the least.

Not in an election season, when the great vote hunt grows hot.

Also ignored are long-range depressive effects on farm markets, and the fact that no farm program ever devised by government has brought the farmer out of the "income woods."

But possibly most interesting of all, was President Johnson's invitation to two labor leaders to witness his signing of the bill into law.

The President introduced George Meany, one of these present, as "The very able and outstanding statesman who heads up the presidency of the AFL-CIO,"—along with Andrew Biemiller, executive secretary of the same organization.

Why, farmers might wonder, were labor leaders included in the farm bill signing session? The obvious reason was to demonstrate to organized labor that the President of the United States had made good in securing adoption of farm legislation based on a "cheap food" policy financed by government subsidies and payments.

Some politicians feel that these hand-outs, along with special rural poverty payments now proposed, will "keep farmers down on the farm," something which Meany greatly desires. He, along with UAW President Walter Reuther have been conducting a long-time campaign to tie farmers to "family sized" farms, whether economical or not, and hence keep them out of the city labor market.

And President Johnson made sure that the labor leaders knew what they owed him as he said, "This cotton-wheat bill will protect thousands of jobs in small communities and in big cities."

What he didn't add was that it would also protect the jobs of thousands of government payrollers needed to administer the program.

Farm Prices Expected To Edge Upward

The latest short-term outlook on Michigan's agricultural prices has just been compiled by John N. Ferris, agricultural economist at Michigan State University.

Milk—Nationally, cow numbers have decreased steadily since 1954, dropping 3 percent in 1963. Milk production, however, has increased.

The Jan. 1, 1964 Michigan scene showed 687,000 head of dairy cows. This was a decline of 14,000 head under last year and the biggest drop since 1960 when numbers also decreased by 14,000 head.

The Michigan Milk Producers Associated negotiated for a straight $4.07 for Class I milk in the southern Michigan market area. This will be effective to January, 1965 with seasonal variations in base prices small.

Cattle — Lowest prices since early in 1957 were reported in February when a falling market incurred too many overweight cattle. Choice steers in Detroit dropped to $22.00-$22.75 in the third week of the month.

Based on the weight breakdown of cattle on feed on Jan. 1, marketing of fed cattle should ease up along in March. This should improve prices, but cattle held beyond desirable market weights could easily blot out any price increase. Choice steers are expected to move up to around $25 in the spring.

Cattle numbers, as was expected, are increasing steadily. Beef cow numbers have risen by 6 percent over the Jan. 1, 1963 figure, while beef calves were up 5 percent.

Expansion in steer and heifer slaughter stock is estimated at about 5 percent per year through 1966. If such an increase develops, prices will likely head downward in 1965 and 1966.

HOGS—A 5 percent decline in the number of hogs on farms during 1963 is reported by USDA officials. This supports earlier forecasts that producers were taking corrective action by cutting back spring farrowings.

LAMBS—Prices for late February choice lambs at Detroit were at $22. March outlook shows prices to be firm to higher. With stock sheep numbers down 5 percent nationally, prices in the late spring and summer should average a little above last year.

EGGS—The approaching Easter season calls for prices to firm up slightly, but creep down to the low 30's in the spring.

Egg production is likely to exceed the 1963 level at least through next fall. However, most of the increase over 1963 is expected to occur in the first half of the year.

After midyear, the size of the nation's laying flock and the volume of egg production will depend largely on the number of egg-type chicks hatched in the January-June period.

In January of 1964, the nation's laying flock contained 37 million hens and pullets of laying age, about the same as a year earlier. However, there was a 1 percent increase over January, 1963 in potential layers.

DRY BEANS—Foreign markets for our growing bean production look good, says the USDA. France and Yugoslavia are the leading importers in Europe.

Prices rose slightly in February with a dime increase on navies, a 25-cent increase on dark reds to $7.75, a 25-cent increase on yellow-eyes to $5.50 and cranberries at $10, was reported on February 20.

CORN—Corn remained steady at $1.03 in the central Michi area. Short term predictions cate summer prices to be ab the $1.10 mark, but not as as a year ago.

SMOKY BEAR appears at the Fire Index sign in front of the Fire Hall in Dexter to emphasize the importance of checking before burning to see whether it's safe. The day Smoky and Conservation Officer Don Boyer posed was one of the few days this month when the index said "safe." Fire index numbers run from 1 to 50 representing various conditions from "safe" to "extremely dangerous." The index number is changed daily according to notification from the Ann Arbor Fire Departments report on conditions.

WILDLIFE HOMEMAKER—Few, if any, animals have a better winning way with other wildlife than does the beaver. When this big, flat-tailed rodent builds a dam along a stream, he makes more than a home for himself. He creates a whole new community for wildlife, also much to the favor of sportsmen, nature study enthusiasts, and others. Fishermen have learned that trout hole up in beaver ponds on cold-water streams. Audubonists know that dead, flooded timber in beaver ponds is often home to the great blue heron, tree swallows, woodpeckers, and other birds. These ponds also rate high as duck factories. Tucked away in the forests, they are most popular among black ducks. Muskrats, mink, otter, and weasels take a liking to beaver ponds, as the pelt-seeking trapper knows. Under state permits, some people use these ponds to collect such things as giant water beetles, turtles, and frog eggs which they sell to biological supply houses.

Beaver Pond Usually Basis For Entire Wildlife Society

The beaver pond is sometimes thought of simply as being just a home for the beaver, but there is a lot more to it than meets the eye at first glance, according to the Conservation Department.

Michigan's Chippewa Indians, who named the beaver Ahmik, knew well enough that this big flat-tailed rodent built more than a dam when he made his home along a stream. His dam and its flood created a whole wildlife society, a big plus for hunting and fishing.

First visits to beaver ponds cause people to marvel at the dams these big rodents can build, the houses they live in, the trees they cut. But should a trout splash on the pond surface or a duck flush from the flooded timber, visitors often fail to credit the beaver for the presence of other wildlife.

This is not so of trout fishermen. They long ago learned to search out these ponds on cold-water streams where trout like to hole up.

Audubonists have learned that dead, flooded timber in beaver ponds often offers the opportunity to see and study the great blue heron, the black-crowned night heron, tree swallows, woodpeckers, and other birds. Fur trappers know these ponds will yield pelts other than beaver as they make sets for muskrats, mink, otters, weasels, or foxes which frequently travel along pond ice in the winter.

Some people use the beaver pond as a factory for a small industry. Under state permits, they collect and sell giant water beetles, frog eggs, dragon fly larvae, tiny freshwater shrimp, turtles, and even some of the plants that grow there.

One of the biggest values of beaver ponds is that they produce ducks. This is especially important now because of drought conditions during recent years in the major duck nesting and feeding grounds of this country and Canada.

Ducks that live primarily in forest areas—on beaver ponds, small streams, and rivers—have suffered considerably less than dwellers of the open prairie.

The black duck is Number One among these forest dwellers and he is also high on the list of waterfowl hunters. Michigan is not only a producer, but a heavy user of black ducks.

Maybe it doesn't make any difference whether we call it a beaver pond, a trout pond, a duck pond, or whatever, so long as it's there. For certainly, to see only the beaver or the trout or the duck is to see only the most obvious side of this complicated, intensively developed and tightly integrated capsule of wildlife society.

SCIENCE TOPICS

STATUS often influences a person's reaction to illness. A University of Wisconsin study indicates that upper economic class people are more likely to seek treatment than persons of low income. Age and position at home or on the job are important factors in a man's decision to see a doctor—one whose pay is docked if he takes the day off for a medical examination is less likely to do so than a person who has the time and money available.

RESEARCH on "Cyclorphan," a non-addictive pain-killing drug 40 times as powerful as morphine, looks promising, scientists at the University of Rochester report. The compound, synthesized at the University and tested on animals for the past three years, is called "morphine antagonist" because it reverses most of the physiological actions produced by morphine. The pain-relieving characteristics of chemical compounds are separated from addictive characteristics, and physiological actions such as slowed rate of respiration are reversed.

SOPHISTICATED SMOKERS in New York may set a new trend as a result of the cancer scare. Senator Philip A. Hart's REPORT from WASHINGTON

★ The Case for Disclosure

The Senate hearings into Bobby Baker's complex financial affairs were held just across from my office and for several weeks the hall was crowded with cameras and reporters.

Emerging witnesses each had their moment under the television lights and the interviews rumbled through the corridors like restless thunderclouds seeking a place to drop their burden.

Earlier, a Congressman was found to have a financial interest in a firm he had helped in government negotiations. And, some years ago, there was the case of the Senator who had to explain how he had drawn income from his law firm back home—a firm that represented railroads in government dealings.

What all these men were undergoing, of course, was disclosure of income—but the disclosure was being made in a strikingly awkward and painful manner.

Is there any way of avoiding these unfortunate situations? It seems to me, that a system of regular income disclosure would be a considerable help. Certainly, it would give every office holder a powerful incentive to avoid business dealings that might trouble the voting public.

What would disclosure do? It would give the public a record of all the office-holder's outside interests and income.

The voters could then match this information with the man's record, check it against their estimate of his integrity and, mark their decision at the polling booth.

If a member of Congress accepts money for a speech, the public should know how big the fee was and who did the hiring.

If he owns stocks or has business interests, the public should know what companies are involved and how much they pay.

If he maintains a law practice, the public show know the clients and the compensation.

If he writes magazine articles for a fee, the public should know what group controls the magazine and how big the check was.

If he accepts contributions to make television and radio reports to constituents, or for any purposes, the public should know who the contributors were and how much they sent.

Disclosure seems to me a simple solution to a very complex problem. It's unfortunate but politics—let's face it—is an increasingly expensive business. We cannot expect capable men to run for office if they must sterilize all their transactions. But we can take steps to keep all transactions innocent.

Why not set up an enforced system where members of Congress, top staff people and high-level appointed officials each year declare all sources of income?

Congressmen already require disclosure by newly appointed administration officials. Why not for themselves?

A bill has been introduced to do just that. At the moment it is lying dormant while the Senate remains strangely becalmed in the windy confines of the filibuster but I am hopeful that soon the Rules Committee — having digested the Bobby Baker experience—will decide that disclosure is the answer.

I am a co-sponsor of the bill along with Senators Neuberger (D.Ore.), Case (R-N.J.), Clark (D-Pa.) and Javits (R-N.Y.). All of us, as one measure of our support, have made the first of our yearly declarations.

Public confidence in Congress has not hit any all-time high in recent months. Disclosure would be an effective way to reverse the tide. Washing always tends to be cleaner if it is slated to be hung in public. And forthrightness — like the kitchen cleaner whose name I have forgotten — is cleaner than dirt.

JOHNSON ON BRAZIL

President Johnson sent his "warmest good wishes" to the new President of Brazil and described as constitutional his ascent to power. The message had the effect of clearly establishing United States recognition of the new regime less than 24 hours after Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli took office.

SILVER DOLLARS GO WEST

Millions of silver dollars were shipped to Western gambling centers recently according to Treasury officials. It was believed the coin was cornered by collectors and dealers who were looking for Morgan silver dollars—a type named after its designer and minted in the 1880s and 1890's.

Jaycees, Auxiliary Install Officers

Chelsea Jaycees and their Auxiliary held their fourth annual joint installation and dinner Saturday evening, April 25.

Members met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Maroney and proceeded to the Hotel Hayes in Jackson for a turkey dinner.

After dinner, Jaycee President Lyle Chriswell introduced the Auxiliary president, Mrs. Gene Shoemaker and she introduced the officers who had worked with her during the past year; then read her annual report. In it she praised the co-operation with the Jaycees and all the Auxiliary members who helped make her year so successful.

Mrs. John Arft and Mrs. David Rowe were called forward and presented with membership pins. They and Mrs. Don Coppernoll, who was unable to attend, have joined the Auxiliary since January.

During the ceremony which followed, Mrs. Shoemaker installed Mrs. Don Bush as the new president and presented her with the gavel and her pin of office. Also installed were Mrs. Silas Hopkins, vice-president; Mrs. David Rowe, secretary; Mrs. Ken Norris, treasurer; and Mrs. Ron Barnham and Mrs. Elton Buenther, directors.

Mrs. Bush presented Mrs. Shoemaker with a gift and her past president's pin from the Auxiliary. Both were presented with corsages from the Auxiliary.

Following the Auxiliary ceremonies, Chriswell also introduced his officers and thanked them. He announced that during the year Art Stoll and Dan Maroney had been the first two winners of the new local award called the "99-Day Wonder Award." They were judged to be the members who had been the greatest asset to their club during separate three-month periods.

Spark Plug winners for the year numbered eleven of the Jaycees. The Top Spark Plug winner was Richard "Bud" Ringe. He also was the SPOKE winner. SPOKE contestants must be new Jaycees. Winners are chosen by their activities during their first 12 months of membership. The Chelsea Jaycees have had only two other SPOKE winners since they were organized in 1954. One of these is the new president, Ed Akin, and the other was Dick Saloner, who moved from the Chelsea area two years ago.

The "outstanding chairman of the year" was Dan Maroney, who was the chairman of the very successful Dexter Jaycee extension. This was the second year he has won this award. Last year he was also presented with a set of Jaycee glasses as chairman of the first Seat Belt Clinic.

Chriswell chose Art Stoll, outgoing secretary, as the president's Key Man—the man who was of the most assistance to him during the past year. Stoll was presented with an engraved lighter.

Following the awards presentation, Chriswell installed Ed Akin as president; Stoll as first vice-president; Ringe as second vice-president; Don Bush as secretary; John Arft as treasurer; and Mike Sweet, Ken Noble and Ron Branham as directors. Akin presented Chriswell with his past president's pin to close the evening's ceremonies.

Forty-four people attended the evenings fun planned by Jim Warmingham, Mrs. Ron Branham, Mrs. Dan Maroney, and Mrs. David Rowe.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By GEORGE HAGEDORN

Economic Forecasting Plays Big Role . . .

Economic forecasting is risky . . . an inescapable part of . . . life. Every major busi- . . . ision is based on a fore- . . . formal or informal, con- . . . or subconscious.

. . . economic forecaster, un- . . . weather prophet for ex- . . . has to face the fact that . . . predictions may have an . . . on the outcome he is pre- . . . George Cline Smith, sen- . . . ior partner of MacKay-Shield Economics, Inc., summarizes this situation in what he calls the "law of forecast feedback." He states the law as follows: "Every economic forecast, if it is widely enough known and believed, tends to influence the course of the predicted events—and in an unpredictable manner."

It is easy to think of economic forecasts which help to make themselves come true. Suppose an economist with a wide reputation for successful forecasts lets it be known that he expects a rise in the price of widgets. People who need widgets will rush to buy up a stock of them, thereby bringing about the price rise which had been predicted.

But you can think of the opposite kind of feedback—effect, where forecasts tend to be self-defeating. Suppose a company economist, after analyzing market trends, predicts a downtrend in his company's sales. On being informed of this the sales manager mobilizes an extraordinary selling effort and gets an increase in his advertising budget—and the net result is an increase rather than a drop in sales.

The company economist has been proved wrong. The odd thing is that if he had kept his forecast a secret from the sales manager he might have turned out to be right. By doing his job he has set forces in motion that reveal his own fallibility. Pity the poor economist!

Two things are to be specifically noted in Mr. Smith's statement of his law. First, the feedback effect occurs only if the forecast is "known and believed." Second, it occurs "in an unpredictable manner."

This may give us pause when we observe that at the present moment the most widely known and (apparently) accepted forecasts anticipate booming business through 1964.

But this column had better end here, lest our own remarks have a feedback effect on business trends—in an unpredictable manner.

Detroit Freeways Spark Renewal in Downtown Area

Lansing — Detroit's growing freeway system, which at first was looked upon as a "mixed blessing" by some, has instead "sparked a resurgence in commercial construction downtown," a leading engineering news magazine reported recently.

Engineering News-Record said that construction of new freeways "undoubtedly contributed to the growing success" of Detroit's urban redevelopment program.

"Many of the 200 annual additions to the industrial complex of the city involve new plants adjacent to the freeway system," the magazine said. "Civic officials therefore look on the highways as a benefit."

The magazine said Detroit officials were concerned when freeway construction removed many revenue - producing properties from the city's tax rolls.

"Although the (highway) program also eliminated some slum areas, the city, already short of income, saw property tax revenues plummet," the magazine said.

"But as sections, then entire lengths, of the 29 miles of freeway system within the city limits were opened to traffic, officials took heart as companies started to build on sites near the freeways."

In the Defense Department report, pilot error and "material failure" were listed as the chief causes in more than 2,000 major military aircraft during this period.

Mrs. J. C. Huston Named To Head County Hospital Auxiliary for '64

Mrs. J. C. Huston of Dexter was elected president of the Washtenaw County Hospital Auxiliary at the annual meeting held at the hospital on Wednesday, April 15.

Also named were Miss Edna Hedrick of Ypsilanti, vice-president; Mrs. Lillian Shetterly, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Eldredge, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Alice Mulcahey, secretary; and Mrs. G. E. Elshout, corresponding secretary. The latter four are of Ann Arbor.

To be announced later are the new Executive Board members.

More than 70 members of the Auxiliary attended the annual meeting and officers were gratified with the interest shown.

This year, instead of a speaker and reports from each member of the Board, the people who work with the patients, retraining damaged muscles, teaching new ways of self-help, demonstrated the tools and methods they use in rehabilitation of seemingly helpless cases. Two patients, who have been lifted from complete helplessness, were wheeled in to show the advancement each had made during the year. The Sheltered Work Shop is another means of training and the achievements were amply illustrated by the products and tools exhibited.

For greater comfort for both patients and nurses, the new stretcher that may be adjusted to the height of the beds, making easy transfer from one to the other, was provided by the Auxiliary. Also new geriatric chairs with large trays which serve as work or eating space or for restraining those who wander or a place to snatch a nap when a pillow is placed upon it, were bought on a trail basis. These chairs and similar trays to be attached to wheel chairs are proving very useful and comfortable so that more will be ordered in the near future. The stretcher, the chairs, the ingenious tools invented to help patients in dressing themselves and many more interesting items were demonstrated during this meeting.

A report of the meeting states that the beautiful tea table, the and "goodies," the fun of visiting with enthusiastic members, the deep satisfaction in knowing a good job is being done, the accolade bestoed on the Auxiliary when Mr. Reynolds was quoted as saying "We couldn't get along without the Auxiliary"—all of these things made the annual meeting of 1964 a most delightful day.

Volunteers are still needed for many areas of the work. The Cart Service needs one or two more dependable aides, the calling on patients in Foster Homes needs to be followed up in the Whitmore Lake and Portage Lake areas. A wonderful job is being done in the Foster Homes of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Milan, Chelsea and all other towns by the committee on Boarding Homes. Recruits are needed, however, for these Lake homes.

Additional volunteers are needed, too, in the Sheltered Work Shop, for birthday parties, auto rides and in friendly visiting. Anyone interested may contact any of the Auxiliary's officers for information.

The next regular meeting of the club is to be held Tuesday, May 12, at the home of Mrs. Donald Mshar.

Roll call held at Tuesday's meeting had a surprise question as the topic—whether the family ironing was completed. All who failed to answer in the affirmative were fined 10 cents.

A baked goods sale was the special feature of the meeting and game prizes —a coffee cake and sweet rolls—went to Mrs. William Chandler and Mrs. Bussler, respectively.

One of the guests at Tuesday's meeting was Mrs. Roger Hoffer, a former member of the club.

Guest speakers were Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace. He is currently a university student and she is a teacher in the Grass Lake school system. They told of their experience in training for the Peace Corps in which they had intended to serve; however, because of failure to meet the rigid physical standards at a final examination after they had completed the required two years of special training, Mr. Wallace was disqualified and the couple remained at home.

The club plans a "hobo breakfast" at Pierce Park for next Thursday, May 7, from 9 until 11 a.m.

The club's annual spring dinner is planned for May 12 at Schuler's, in Jackson.

Selection of the club's president is to be made later.

President Johnson was told to expect Congress to cut at least $800 million to $1 billion from his $3.4 billion foreign-aid request. The warning came from Representative Otto E. Passman, (D., La.), chairman of the House Foreign Aid Appropriations subcommittee. Representative Passman, the chief Congressional opponent of foreign aid, annually makes cuts in the program.

Add Spring Color

This is the time of year when every woman needs a bit of color in her life. She has been wearing heavy clothes, during the winter and most of these clothes have been black, brown or gray. When spring arrives and the trees and flowers begin to show color, my lady simply has to have an outfit that is attune with the gaiety and freshness of nature. A wonderful choice is that of a pastel colored linen suit with a soft blouse, tied in a bow at the neckline.

St. Paul's Young People 'Find' New Church Site in 'Bike Hike'

Marking the first time that any official activity was held at the site on Old US-12 where St. Paul's United Church of Christ is planning to build a new church, 19 members of the Junior Youth Fellowship met there Sunday afternoon—the site was the destination of a mystery "bike hike," which started at St. Paul's church hall.

Five stops were arranged for the group—the first at Lloyd's Dairy Bar where Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Schneider treated the entire party to refreshments.

At each stop directions were given for the next one until the group reached the new church site where they ate their sack lunch, had a songfest and explored the area.

Adults who met the group as they arrived at the site and distributed "cokes" are Mrs. Lloyd Schneider, Mrs. George Knickerbocker, Mrs. M. L. Dietle, Mrs. William Joseph and the Rev. Paul M. Schnake.

Know Your Michigan Law

by Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

(This is a public service article, explaining in general terms a provision of Michigan law.)

You may have seen detective stories on television where a reference is made to a "writ." The story generally concerns a gangster who is continually frustrating the police by being released on a "writ."

These programs, of course, are not to be taken too seriously. The authors are mainly concerned with presenting interesting and entertaining stories, and they usually end with the "good guys" winning. In real life we all know the situation is not this simple. Communists an arrest by the police in countries controlled by them may very well mean that the person arrested will never be seen or heard of again. This cannot happen in this country and the "writ" mentioned in these detective stories is one of the important reasons why it cannot happen. It is correctly known as a writ of habeas corpus and is often referred to as the "Great Writ of Liberty." It truly deserves this title.

The writ of habeas corpus guarantees to every person, regardless of why he may have been arrested or taken into custody, an absolute right to be taken before a Judge, where the police or the person holding the person must show a lawful reason for depriving the person of his liberty. If the police or whoever is holding the person cannot show that they have lawfully detained the person, the Court orders the person released.

Under Michigan law anyone who believes that a person is being unlawfully held by the police may apply to a Judge for a writ of habeas corpus.

DODD ON CUBA

Senator Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.) has asked "open and increasing assistance" to Cuban freedom fighters. In a prepared speech, Dodd predicted that in the not too distant future Cuba "will be the scene of another revolt against communist . bestiality." He stated that when the pent-up wrath of the Cuban people explodes, our action or inaction may make the difference between victory or defeat.

THE LETTERBOX

April 20, 1964

To The Editor:

Praise where praise is due — rather appreciation for the many worthwhile, helpful projects sponsored by our service clubs—not only Kiwanis but also the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Thanks is due the Methodist church for being the Kiwanian host these many years. The service club takes the best of the lodges minus exclusiveness, the best of business minus cut-throat methods, the best of politics minus mud-slinging, and the best of the churches minus bigotry.

Sincerely,

Just A Minute . . .

By the Rev. James A. Craig

The furnace just kicked on again. Some mornings it feels very good. You get the feeling that even when Spring has come Summer is very far behind.

Two men down on Main St. were wondering when Spring might come. One suggested that it would be nice if "God would turn up the thermostat."

A thermostat is a marvelous gadget. We set it according to our whim or wish. When set it does what it was made to do, nothing more.

The "thermostat approach" is popular living. The moral standards of a club, gang, or village set the social climate. What is "right" or "wrong" are determined according to what the club, gang or village likes or doesn't like.

Tolerance is another setting. As a thermostat it determines that we hold no opinions beyond an acceptable point. It keeps us from getting overheated. It's not a present fashion to have strongly held convictions. We don't want to be caught being or saying something unpopular.

It's all right to go to church. And it's all right not to. People don't give it much thought either way. You can set your religious thermostat where you please. Can't you?

Nobody really cares. Does He? Prayer: Let thy son be the measure of my life, O Lord. Amen.

Church is one place you can always get something for nothing.

Expansion Planned For I-94 Freeway

The State Highway Department is making a survey on I-94 in Berrian county in the first step toward expansion of the freeway from four to six lanes.

The freeway is scheduled to be expanded from four to six lanes in 1966, from New Buffalo to I-196 northeast of Benton Harbor, a distance of more than 33 miles.

Cost of the project is estimated at $8 million.

Twice As Fast

Detroit motorists get to their destinations twice as fast by using Motor City freeways.

State Highway commissioner John C. Mackie said a comparison of speeds on freeways and arterial streets showed the speed on freeways at any given time of the day is about twice that on the Motor City's major arterial streets.

Unselfishness is a rare virtue, not to be expected too often.

Another service project completed last week by the group was the construction of a three-section portable stage for use by 4-H groups and others at the Rural Activities Center. The committee which constructed the stage included Richard Wheeler, Dexter; Simon Girbach, Saline; and Ralph Diuble, Ann Arbor.

Kiwanians Are Methodist Home Guests

William Windle was program chairman for the April 27 meeting of the Kiwanis club which took place at the Methodist Home at the invitation of the Rev. E. J. Weiss, the Home administrator.

The program centered on Canada and its history. In honor of two residents of the Home who were born in Canada — George Sheppard and Sherman Ross — Kiwanians sang Canadian songs during the period set aside for group singing.

Guests at the meeting included the Rev. LeRoy Lord, a former administrator of the Home, and George Waller and G. A. Ziegler, former Kiwanians. All three now reside at the Home.

Also guests were Mrs. E. J. Weiss, Mrs. John M. Fall and W. Scott Westerman; Walter Henne, James Bancroft and Paul Roeder, of Ann Arbor Eastern Kiwanis club; and Chelsea Key club members, Carl Loeffler and David Adams.

Robert Barlow concluded the program with a question and answer period on subjects pertaining to Canada.

President Wallace Wood announced that six Kiwanians were planning to attend a divisional training meeting at Plymouth Tuesday afternoon and evening and Robert Barlow added that six Chelsea Kiwanians were to attend the U.S.-Canada goodwill meeting last night at Windsor, Ont.

Kiwanians were taken on a tour of the new wing at the Home at the close of the meeting.

Sixth Division Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor Walter Gemperline will be in Chelsea Monday, May 4, to make his official visit to the Chelsea Kiwanis club. The meeting will be held in the social center of the Methodist church.

Parents Urged To Warn Children Against Molesters

Because child molesting increases sharply in warm weather months, parents are strongly urged by Sgt. Matt Hrebec, commander of the Jackson State Police post, to warn their youngsters of the possible dangers in contacts with strangers who offer gifts of candy or money and want them to go for rides or walks.

Sergeant Hrebec advised parents to report all molesting incidents to police with as many details as possible. This helps officers to take action necessary to apprehend offenders and to prevent reoccurrence.

He pointed out that names of minors involved and their parents are not used by the press, radio and TV except in emergencies of abduction and murder. Reluctance in reporting thwarts police action and also hides the true total of these incidents.

Last year the State Police investigated 520 sex offense complaints, which include child molestation.

As in other years complaints were most numerous in summer. August was high with 64, July next with 62 and June third with 51. May and October had 50 each while April and September each had 47. The other five months had totals under 40.

Sergeant Hrebec suggested that parents instruct their children to follow these rules:

1. Don't go for rides or walks with strangers and avoid being tempted to do so by candy or money gifts from them.

2. Have companions with you when you play outdoors and if possible when going to and from school, on shopping errands, or to the movies, fairs and carnivals. Avoid playing in isolated areas and vacant buildings.

3. Don't loiter in or near public rest rooms as these can be danger spots.

4. Report to your parents, police or teacher anyone who tries to get you to break these rules or when you have any question concerning your safety.

Sergeant Hrebec added that children can help curb molestation incidents by remembering features about suspected or actual molesters, such as approximate height, weight, age, color of eyes, skin and hair and unusual things such as a mustache, tattoos, jewlery, scars and physical defects. If there is a car involved, details about it also should be memorized or marked down somehow.

He pointed out that anyone investigated because his presence near children arouses suspicions should not be offended if he has proper explanation for his activity.

Always Follow Recommendations In Using Fertilizer

Apply commercial fertilizers according to recommendations whether it be on the front lawn in the city or on a farm in the country.

This is the advice of Director G. S. McIntyre of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. The Departments Laboratory Division has charge of the registration of all commercial fertilizers sold in the state. Last year there were about 1,600 fertilizer products from 250 companies registered.

Tests are run in the laboratory to make sure the material meets the formula declared on the container.

Michigan annually uses about 720,000 tons of commercial fertilizer, worth an estimated $43 million.

Fertilizers properly used are a boon to growing vegetations of all kinds; fertilizers improperly used can cause damage and be a waste of money. Recommendations on use are important.

There is no one formula of fertilizer that is ideal for every soil or every crop. Farmers usually depend on a soil analysis to determine the proper fertilizer formula for a certain soil or crop. Gardeners and lawn enthusiasts usually gain advice on fertilizers through books, bulletins, magazines, county extension offices, their suppliers of garden needs among commercial fertilizer companies.

A universal trade practice is to show the formula of a fertilizer on the container or package. This is required by law in Michigan. This formula is expressed in percentage of content of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash.

A marking of 10-6-4 on a bag of commercial fertilizer means the product contains 10 percent nitrogen, 6 percent phosphoric acid and 4 percent potash.
