Four Seek Election to Two School Posts in Monday Election

annual election of the Chel- School District will be held day, June 8, at the Junior school gymnasium on East The polls will be open from until 8 p.m.

properly-registered voters of school district are eligible to their choice of two of the candidates who seek election bers of the Board of Edu- for the four-year term end- June 30, 1968.

are two new candidates— G. Koch and Donald M. Ir- and two incumbents, Robert ter and Robert K. Taylor terms expire June 30, 1964.

ert G. Koch was born in May 27, 1930, and has lived in the Chelsea area. ome is at 12255 Scio Church He has been employed at er Proving Ground the past rs and also operates a farm. m 1952 until 1954 he served U. S. Army and was with the U.S. Corps of Engineers in Korea for most of that period.

Married and the father of two children, he is a member of St. John's United Church of Christ at Rogers Corners and a past member of the church board. He is also a member of American Legion Post No. 557 of Dexter.

For the past four years Koch has been a member of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department Marine Patrol and is also a member of the Chelsea Auxiliary Police.

For the past two years his wife has been president of the Chelsea Elementary PTA.

In announcing his candidacy, Koch stated that if elected he "would see that for every taxpayer's dollar spent a full dollar's value be received in return"; also, that he "will endeavor to represent all of the people all of the time."

Donald M. Irwin, the other new candidate, graduated from Chelsea High school in 1951 and has farmed in Sharon township since then. He is married and has a son and daughter in college; one daughter who is a teacher, and another daughter who is married.

Irwin emphasized that he has always been interested in seeing that young people get the best and most education possible.

In his statement explaining why he agreed to become a candidate he said, "I have been in business in this area all of my life, attended Chelsea public schools and sent my four children there. I am very much interested in good education. Having met and solved problems as a board member of Sharon township for many years I feel qualified to serve as a member of this Board of Education."

Irwin mentioned, too, that since rural and village population in the district is about equally divided, the rural population should be equally represented and equally willing to accept responsibility for working with the School Board. He stressed that the word "with" is important if a school board member is to contribute constructive effort for the promotion of good education for every school age child in the entire district.

Robert G. Foster, seeking re-election to the School Board, when asked for a statement about his candidacy, explained his views as follows:

"Education being so vital to the future of our children and the world, one cannot help but feel concerned. If by time and effort I can continue to be a part in aiding that education, I would be grateful.

"The paramount issue today as always is the tax dollar. Believe me when I say your present Board of Education weighs heavily any and all expenditures as rightfully they should.

Central Fibre Products Plant Is Purchased By Avis Industrial Corp.

No Change Contemplated in Personnel or Present Operations

Announcement was made yesterday by Donald Bacon, president of Central Fibre Products, Inc., that the plant has been purchased by the Avis Industrial Corp., whose principal offices are at Madison Heights.

Bacon hastened to add, however, that no changes in personnel or operating methods are contemplated at Central Fibre. This assurance on the part of the new owners, Bacon said, largely influenced his decision to agree to selling the business to them.

Bacon said, in answer to questions as to the reason for selling the business, that he wished in his lifetime to provide first of all, for the future of his employees, and to see to it, himself, that the plant that has been his lifetime career, would be in the hands of capable people, as well. He said "no trust company could be expected to take the interest in the welfare of the firm and its employees" that he does, himself.

Before making public the announcement of the change of ownership which became effective June 1, Bacon called the employees together and made his position clear. Many had heard rumors that the plant was to be sold and they were concerned for their jobs.

Avis Industrial Corp., specializing in metal work for the automotive and electrical industry, has assets of approximately $12,000,000. Total sales for the year 1963 were nearly double that amount, according to Bacon's announcement. He says he feels the Chelsea plant will continue to grow and be an increasingly valuable asset to the community which is "home" to him.

Other industries owned by the Avis Corporation include Hurd Metal Products, at Adrian; Hurd Lock & Manufacturing Co., Greeneville, Tenn.; Mackworth G. Rees Co. of Detroit, manufacturers of electrical controls; Keystone Manufacturing Co., Warren, Mich., specializing in electrical installations; James Steel and Tube Co., makers of welded steel tubing at Madison Heights, adjacent to the corporate office.

Also owned by the corporation are the Melling Forging Co. of Lansing; Production Cold Forming Co. at Madison Heights; Calcon Manufacturing Co., wire and wire products producers, Washington, Pa., and Columbia Metal Products Co. of New York City, makers of electrical installation products.

The Central Fibre Products Company was founded on Aug. 6, 1920. The organizational meeting was held in the offices of the William Bacon Holmes Lumber Co. The late Howard Holmes was elected president, Jabez Bacon, vice-president and Donald H. Bacon, secretary-treasurer. The company was formed to manufacture paper cord.

Donald H. Bacon assumed the active management of the company with Ben Bacon as shop manager.

The first headquarters of the plant was known as the "Green Barn," a building that still stands on the north side of the New York Central track near the present Chelsea Lumber Co. The Fibre Company employed three men, Garnett Weir, Allyn Knercher and Leonard Witherell. Weir is still an employee of the company.

Within six months after its inception the financial difficulties encountered in 1921 virtually exhausted the slender resources of the young organization, and "only the strenuous, friendly and generous support of its president, Howard Holmes, prevented disaster," Bacon said. Due almost entirely to Holmes' efforts, but not until about 1923, did the company begin to emerge from the financial quicksands into which it had been forced by the national situation of the year in which Central Fibre Products was founded.

In 1924, the company made its first major move, occupying the stone building on N. Main St., now known as the Frigid Products building. Central Fibre Products remained there for approximately 12 years. In 1936 what was known as the "Saw Tooth Building" on N. Main St. was purchased, the company being forced to move into a larger plant because of the increased flow of its products to the automotive industry.

The history and growth of Central Fibre Products has been the history of the career of Donald H. Bacon. For that reason a brief account of his life and activities

St. Barnabas Church Plans Anniversary

St. Barnabas Episcopal church will observe its 10th anniversary at a special service on St. Barnabas Day, Thursday, June 11. A service of Evening Prayer, beginning at 8 p.m., will be followed by a social hour and refreshments.

A special invitation is being extended by all members of the parish to Chelsea area people to attend the anniversary service.

The Rev. Colin Campbell, of St. Clare Episcopal church of Ann Arbor, and dean of the Huron Valley Convocation, will deliver the anniversary sermon.

All former vicars who have served the church and all former members are particularly invited to be present.

When the congregation was founded here 10 years ago through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart R. Booker and Herbert C. Crandell, lay reader, there were a total of 20 members; now there are approximately 200 persons affiliated with the parish.

The Rt. Rev. Richard S. Emrich, bishop of the Diocese of Michigan, directed the activities pertinent to founding of the church.

Mr. Crandell is now assistant rector at St. Paul's Episcopal church in Flint.

Other vicars who have served St. Barnabas church are the Rev. John L. Lee, now rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church in Detroit; the Rev. Richard Cockrell, assistant rector at St. Andrew's church, Ann Arbor; the Rev. Allan Reed who is serving as chaplain at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, Mass.; and the present vicar, the Rev. John R. Smucker.

St. Barnabas parish will hold open house at the church on Old US-12 all day Thursday, June 11, and all interested persons of the community are invited to attend the open house and the evening service.

St. Mary's School Will Graduate 21 At Sunday Mass

Twenty-one eighth-graders will graduate Sunday at the 8 a.m. Mass at St. Mary's Catholic church. The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski will speak to the graduates, all of whom have completed their eighth grade studies and will enter Chelsea High school in the fall.

Sheriff's Posse Participating In MD Pony Express Ride

The Sheriff's Posse will be one of 22 groups affiliated with the Michigan Sheriff's Posse Association who will participate in the second annual Pony Express Ride across the State Saturday, June 13.

The program is designed to stimulate public participation in the fight against muscular dystrophy. Individuals wishing to give financial support to the muscular dystrophy campaign, and at the same time receive or mail a letter by pony express, may do so by addressing a large envelope to "Muscular Dystrophy," Grand Rapids. In this large envelope should be a donation to MD plus a stamped envelope addressed either to themselves or to a friend. Contributions to MD will also be accepted at county sheriff offices.

Chelsea-Dexter area men in the Sheriff's Posse include Merle Sibley, Carroll Ordway, Harvey and Marvin Fischer and Thomas Franklin.

Others in the 11-man posse in the county are Francis Grady of Ypsilanti; Gerald Canter, Herman Coval and Robert Todd, of Ann Arbor; Leonard Spiegelberg of Manchester; and Arthur Yarger of South Lyon.

In this area the letters may either be mailed to the Grand Rapids address or they may be left with Harvey Fischer or Carroll Ordway until before 7 a.m. Saturday, June 13.

On Saturday, June 13 riders will start from Grand Haven and Port Huron with the letters persons have sent in. The addressed envelopes will be stamped by the Posse Association, "Pony Express" and will be carried on the trip across the state. The riders involved in the event will travel one mile each and will transfer their mail packet to the next rider. Those starting from Grand Haven will follow the route of M-57 as closely as possible to old US-27 in south Gratiot County and will then travel north to Alma. Those starting at Port Huron will follow M-21 to M-15, then north to M-57 and west to old US-27 where they will then travel north to Alma where a colorful celebration is planned.

Riders along the approximate 240 mile route to be covered will "van" their horses after their part of the ride is completed and will journey to Alma for the program. The final contingent of the Posse is expected to arrive at the fairgrounds about 3:30 p.m. There will be a colorful parade, including bands and participants, through the Alma business district beginning at 5 p.m. The Alma Jaycees will offer a chicken barbeque to all comers at the fairgrounds starting at 6:30 p.m.

An exciting open class horse show is scheduled for 7 p.m. Four horse clubs, composed of 4-H members in Gratiot County, will also participate. During the intermission a 1,000 pound steer will be given away. There will also be a big square dance beginning at 8 p.m. and pony rides for the youngsters throughout the day.

Horses and riders will be permitted to stay at the fairgrounds Saturday night and the Alma Jaycees will prepare a hardy breakfast which will be served beginning at 6:30 a.m. Sunday morning. Following the breakfast there will be an interdenominational church service on the fairgrounds.

'New Farm' Wheat Allotment Request Due Before July 1

Applications for 1965 "new farm" wheat acreage allotments must be filed at the Washtenaw ASCS County Office before July 1. The ASCS county office is accepting wheat allotment applications for certain farms.

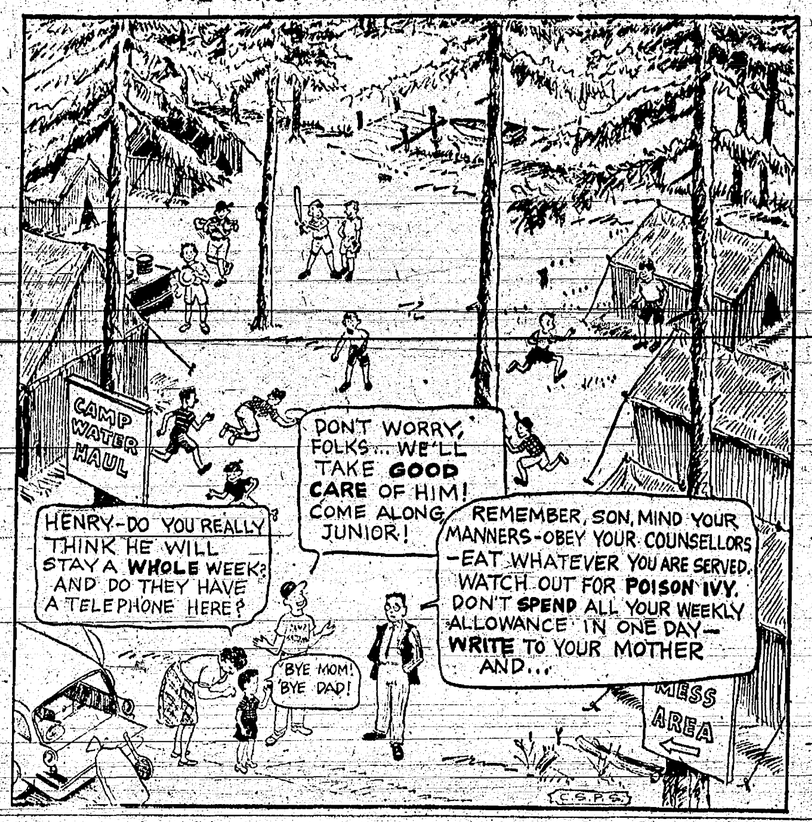

A producer who intends to seed wheat for 1965 on a farm for which a 1965 wheat acreage allotment has not been established, and who desires to be considered for an allotment for the 1965 wheat crop, must make application for an allotment according to Max M. Kalmbach, chairman of the Washtenaw Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Application forms are available at the county office for use in filing requests for an allotment. The producer must apply in writing prior to July 1, 1964.

Death Prediction

Predictions of a full year's activity, whether it be park use, auto sales or employment rates, are usually made on a conservative basis.

The current prediction for Michigan in a vital area is startling at best, even if it is a conservative guess.

Secretary of State James M. Hare is predicting on the basis of the current high rates that about 2,500 persons will die on Michigan highways this year.

A toll this high would be about one-third increase over the nearly 1,900 persons listed as traffic fatalities last year, which also was a boost from the previous year.

Many forces are still at work attempting to determine ways to cut down the mounting road death toll. Plans and campaigns to date have seemed to have little effect, unfortunately.

Safety belt sales, vehicle inspection, driver training, law enforcement, public education and research methods are all under study now by various groups.

It still appears that individual concern will provide the key for reducing the daily slaughter on Michigan's rural roads and rambling freeways.

Bigger-Better

Commendations go to thousands for the outstanding success of the May 17-23 Michigan Week.

In every facet of local and state activity, there could be seen official recognition of the annual observance.

Success was also noted on a large scale in bringing Michigan Week to the spotlight nationally through the special "Michigan Day" at the New York World's Fair.

Planned by a committee headed by restaurateur Win Shuler with assistance of Ralph Swan of Michigan's Economic Expansion Department, and Wes Baker, an S.S. Kresge executive, the Fair Day activities prompted many to note the wonders of Michigan.

The success of the 1964 Michigan Week is past and No. 12 is already in the works. One of the last chairman's newsletters to Michigan Week organizers called attention to the 1965 observance, May 16-22.

In the interim, statewide, regional and county chairmen will be named. By mid-Fall work will be progressing in every area to make the 1965 event an even bigger one.

A new promotion of the state will be taking to the roads July 1.

A notable part of Michigan Week this year was the announcement by the State Historical Commission of the use of a new vehicle known as the "Historymobile."

In co-operation with 11 businesses and 14 museums throughout the state, the Commission will take the Historymobile first to the Detroit Freedom Festival.

The Historymobile will carry to all Michigan residents the story of our state, from prehistoric days, through the French and British eras, the beginnings of American rule, territorial days, migration activities, to achievement of statehood and development of Michigan into its present greatness.

Study Study Methods

The increasing size of Michigan's colleges and universities in the next five or ten years is of concern to parents, educators and lawmakers.

The increasing demand for a college education in the employment market poses a dilemma which has not yet been met. The degree is a requirement for many jobs, but the task of educating at the college level grows more difficult and costly each year.

Michigan State University officials have started the first of several likely studies to set a blueprint for guidance in meeting this dilemma.

Objective of this study is to permit MSU to educate an ever-growing number of increasingly able students with higher quality education at little or no increase in cost per student.

A new unit within the MSU president's office, is working full-time on research and implementation of a University Educational Development Program.

A faculty committee which recommended the study stated its case this way: "We believe that it is the obligation of a state university to provide higher educational opportunities for every deserving student."

Increased quality and quantity in several educational areas will be needed to fulfill this commitment, the group said. These areas included the faculty, library support, student aid, research opportunities, student responsibility, efficiency in business operations and off-campus educational opportunities.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where one of them Guvornment agencies called the National Parks Service has announced it was time for another census of the trees on them 18 acres at the White House. They say they ain't took a census on these items since 1956 and they was a chanct some of the trees had died or blowed down.

For instant, they reported it was rumored that a oak tree planted by Teddy Roosevelt had blowed down in 1957 and if this was true, it was important to git it took off the map of White House trees.

Farthermore, it was announced by a feller named Irvin Williams, that was listed in the papers as "Chief White House Horticulturisist," that they would also take the customary census of all shrubs on them 18 acres. He perdicted they could git the census took in about 9 month and hoped to finish it by the end of the year.

They ain't no doubt about it, Mister Editor, Guvornment is big in this country and gitting bigger ever day. I wouldn't be suprised none, unless they git a roll call vote on it, to see the Congress set up somepum like the National Beer Can Commission to take a annual census of the empty beer cans along Federal highways. It would give work to about 2,000 people and wouldn't cost more'n $1 million a year.

Even things in the military was gitting big and way out. I was reading in the papers where Senator Stephen Young made a investigation and found we got 14 Generals in Vietnam, one General fer ever 1,000 men. When I was in the Army in the first World War we had a Captain fer ever 300 men and a Major fer ever 1,200 soldiers and we was gitting along fine. I have wrote to my Congressman and ask him if our trouble in Vietnam wasn't having too many Generals, I'm expecting to git a letter referring me to the Chief of Staff.

And speaking of writing to my Congressman, I mailed it without no Zip number on it. I was reading in the papers where a Post Office official named Keating let it slip that they ain't got no machines yet fer handling mail by the Zip. In fact, he allowed as how the machines wasn't invented yet and they was hoping to git 'em invented by 1966. The reporter that let the cat out of the bag was a feller named David Braaten on a Washington paper, and when the Postmaster General got hold of it he was in a bad spot. He allowed as how the 2-year Zip publicity campaign was a "necessary educational process." In case you was already "educated" in this matter, Mister Editor, you can skip the Zip till 1966.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

"I REMEMBER" BY The Old Timers

From Lewis Stillner, Rainwil W. Va.: Yes, I remember, too, am a Virginian by birth, born a one-room log house just like my neighbors of that day. The were no cook stoves or P bellied coal heating stoves in homes or schoolhouses. All co ing and heating was done w a wood-burning fireplace. M of the roads were creek beds like another Old Timer said cently, I woke up many mo ings with a good heavy blan of snow on my bed.

Our nearest doctor was miles away. When I was 12 ye old, my folks moved to Kentu where things weren't much ferent — another county full one room log houses and horse farms, where men got al with less than $10 worth of to and no better roads, and as away from a doctor—but man I got most of my educat from there was the best sch teacher I ever knew anyth about.

I was a grown man befor saw my first piece of linole floor, in Charleston, W. Va. I remember the two sewing chines that I first saw, one Kentucky and one in Virgini think they were the first either county.

ON DORMITORY VISITS

Moscow—Russia's Young Communist League is angry over a Moscow University edict forbidding dormitory "fraternization" between boy and girl students. The students expressed their resentment in a youth magazine and declared the no-visits rule was "insulting," and asked if they were no longer "trusted."

Salt production centers in Detroit where one of the world's most modern salt mine, producing approximately one million tons, annually, is beneath the city.

AUTOMOBILE GIFT—Sisters of St. Louis School for Exceptional Boys were very happily surprised one day a week ago when a 1963 model car in excellent condition was presented to them as a gift from Mrs. Albina Agosti of Manchester. One of the nuns is already learning to drive, having obtained a learner's permit at once. Because of her Italian ancestry, Mrs. Agosti has been particularly interested in the work at St. Louis school, a mission project of priests and nuns from Italy trained to work with boys who are "slow learners." In the photo, from left, are Sisters Angeleta, and Ulderica, Mrs. Agosti and Sisters Elena and Benedetta. Sister Elena is the Mother Superior and Sister Ulderica is the new student driver.

Democrats Like Lodge Too . . . in Saigon

Henry Cabot Lodge recently gave the impression to high Administrative officials that he intends to remain in South Vietnam at least until June and probably longer, until it is clear whether he can win the Republican nomination for President. The Administration is delighted with this news from Saigon. It appreciates Lodge's contributions to the war against Communist guerrillas.

KNUCKLE DOWN . . . Heavyweight contenders Eddie Machen, left, and Floyd Patterson, former champ, have signed to meet in Sweden, July 5th, in a suggested "elimination tournament" to decide who gets the next crack at champ Cassius Clay.

is pertinent here. After graduating from Chelsea High school in 1914 and from the University of Michigan in 1920, he began his business career selling life insurance in Detroit. He was forced for several years to use his insurance earnings entirely in financing, promoting and developing the Fibre Company.

By 1930, the business under his direction had grown to such an extent that a plant was opened in Detroit to produce additional products for the automotive industry.

Even before this, Bacon had begun to exhibit his intense interest in other people struggling to get ahead, as he was, in the business world. Thus, the Detroit plant was managed by such persons. Before it was moved to Chelsea in 1941, the employees numbered about 70 people. By this time the results of Pearl Harbor had begun to affect the business greatly and it required reorganization and expansion.

Among Bacon's interests in other enterprises, one of them by 1940 had begun to emerge as of great potential value. This was an enterprise that manufactured power take-offs, principally for trucks. The equipment and personnel for this venture was developed and set up in Chelsea. This is only one of several other enterprises that Bacon has instituted and then "spun off" from Central Fibre, largely due to his unflagging interest in the industrial development of the Village of Chelsea. Always, his primary aim has been to serve the best interests of his employees and community.

The factory employees are now organized as a unit of Local No. 437, UAW-CIO, which is an amalgamated local of Union employees of Chelsea.

Due largely to Bacon's strenuous efforts and generosity, the power take-off business under the management of Robert Wagner and the financial direction of Edwin W. Eaton., became a separate firm, moving into its own building under the name of Chelsea Products, Inc., the Fibre Company reverting to its principal business of manufacturing automotive products. Chelsea Products is now a division of the Dana Corp.

More recently, Bacon has interested himself in helping another business get started — Outdoor Fibre Products, manufacturing the Paradome, a folding camping "home away from home" which won the Michigan "Product of the Year" award during Michigan Week, 1963. The new company operates its business in quarters at Central Fibre Products.

The original Fibre plant at the present location was almost completely destroyed by fire at the end of March, 1947, but within six months the plant was rebuilt and production was back to normal. Bacon credits "the excellent cooperation of its employees" with the phenomenal comeback after the disastrous fire.

There were then approximately 100 men and women employed, and the officers were Donald H. Bacon, president; Harold A. Jones, vice-president and general manager; Richard H. Ringe, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Edith Hoffman, assistant secretary.

School Board Candidates

"I would again remind the electors that all Board members are also taxpayers and therefore when spending your money they are also spending theirs.

"Having, during my term in office, recieved some abuse for new or increased expenditures of our money, I wish to state that if your Board of Education, whom you elected, did not continually strive to better existing teaching staff, curriculum, maintain and provide adequate buildings and generally work for the betterment of our school system, then I would say that Board was remiss in its duties.

"Many issues arise during a term in office. In voting an any issue I deeply believe that a Board member should have the courage of his convictions and vote accordingly. He should not vote to please, or satisfy some pressure group, but should consider the entire shcool district.

"I am proud of the Chelsea schools, I have great respect for its administrators and teachers. I am grateful that an earlier Board of Education had the courage to build such fine school facilities which we now enjoy. I realize none of this could be if the public did not vote favorably on School Board requests for money. I feel it quite satisfying to be a school supporter. I hope you will join me."

Foster is the owner of Foster's Men's Wear since 1946. He was born in Chelsea, has always lived here and graduated from Chelsea High School in 1931.

His two daughters attended Chelsea schools, the youngest entering high school in the fall.

He served in the U. S. Army from 1942 until 1945 and was overseas for two years of that time.

Before moving to his present home at 140 Clardale Ct., which is in Lima township, he had served as Sylvan township clerk for seven years, resigning when he moved outside of the township.

His affiliations include membership in the Methodist church, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kiwanis club, Chamber of Commerce and the Chelsea Community Chest and Chelsea Community Fair boards of directors.

Robert K. Taylor, who was appointed to serve on the School Board six months ago to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Stuart R. Booker who moved out of the state, is seeking election to a four-year term.

Taylor is assistant general manager at Federal Screw Works. He is a native of Michigan and has lived in Chelsea since 1955.

Asked for a statement about his interest in becoming an elected member of the School Board he made the following statement.

"I have had the privilege of serving as a trustee on the Chelsea School District Board of Education about six month, having been appointed to fill an unexpired term of a resigned member. This opportunity has provided some measure of insight into the current operation of the system, as well as the long range problems confronting the Board. I am very much interested and feel competent to contribute to the welfare of the District by serving a full four-year term.

"I feel there is a course of action for the Board to follow to best serve the interests of all individuals involved: The taxpayers, the children, the teachers, the administration and the future of our community, and, indeed, nation. I believe no special group should prevail; that we are obligated to provide the best possible education for our youth at the lowest feasible cost.

"I believe all aspects of our current program are equally important, but that an expansion of the academic curriculum is highly desirable. At the same time, I thoroughly believe in the operation of our system on the basis of strict financial controls and intend to see that for each dollar spent a dollar's worth is received."

Taylor, whose four children range in age from four to 15 years, lives at 345 Washington St.

He attended Port Huron Junior College and the Detroit College of Law. He is a member of St. Barnabas Episcopal church, Olive Lodge No. 156, F&AM, Chelsea Rod and Gun club, Chelsea Chamber of Commerce and the Chelsea Community Chest's board of directors.

To be eligible to vote in Monday's school election citizens must be registered with the township clerk in the township in which they reside.

It is easier to sit back and criticize the do-gooders than to do some good.

TAX REVENUE UP

Federal tax revenue rose $1.5 billion in the first three months of 1964 even though the tax cut was in effect part of that time. Government sources indicate that the figures support other statistical evidence that points to a still strong, still expanding economy.

Michigan Indians Were First To Practice Conservation

Lansing — There are more misconceptions about the life and culture of Michigan Indians than about any other group in the history of the state. Some people visualize the Indian as a treacherous savage, capable of unimaginable deeds of cruelty, even against friends. Usually accept the stereotype of the noble red man" of James Fenimore Cooper's Leatherstocking Tales or the romantic hero of Longfellow's epic poem, "Hiawatha."

In both cases, the warlike character of the Indian is emphasized; and the distinct impression is given that most of his time and energies were spent in planning and executing raids against his enemies. Actually, the warrior caste of Michigan Indians formed only a small minority of the population, and even then was seldom on the warpath.

The most reliable information about the Indian's life and customs is found in the writings of the explorers, missionaries, soldiers and fur-traders who came to Michigan during the 17th and 18th Centuries. Although narratives of these early adventurers describe warlike feats, scalp dances and other dramatic events, they show also that the greatest challenge facing the Indians was securing an adequate food supply.

Even after the introduction of firearms the Indians still often died of starvation. It is perhaps because of this hardship that they became more aware of the conservation of wildlife resources than any other group in the state's history. All Indian tribes of Michigan relied for their daily food upon agriculture, fishing, hunting and the products of the forests.

The Potawatomi, one of the three major Algonquian-speaking tribes of the state, depended more upon cultivated crops than the Ottawa or Chippewa. The excellent corn land which the Potawatomi occupied in the southern part of Michigan, stretching from Detroit to Lake Michigan, was largely responsible.

The Chippewa or Ojibwa, who lived mainly in the Upper Peninsula, relied almost exclusively upon hunting and fishing for their livelihood. The third major tribe of Michigan, the Ottawa, who lived in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula, depended upon agriculture as well as hunting and fishing.

The main crops cultivated by Michigan Indian were corn, squash, beans, a "kind of melon," and tobacco. Within a village, each family cultivated a plot of land which it received by mutual consent of the tribesmen or by assignment from a chief. It was never considered private property but was held in common. The crops, too, were shared by the whole village.

Much of Michigan's soil was unsuited for corn or other agricultural products; moreover, even when the soil was fertile, the yield was never high. One authority maintained that the average corn yield per acre was only 15 bushels. When the land became sterile, the Indians moved their villages to more productive areas.

For Indians living in many sections of the state, wild rice was more important than cultivated crops. The plant grew in abundance in the shallow mud-bottomed lakes and the sluggish rivers and streams of the state. Southwestern Michigan and Lake St. Clair were productive wild rice areas as well as shallows of the Grand, Huron, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph, Muskegon, Manistee and Raisin rivers. The most extensive fields of wild rice in the state were found in Menominee county in the Upper Peninsula.

Tribes fought wars over the use of these rich fields and the provision for their use by Indians was written into treaties. Indeed, the name of the county and the Indian tribe, "Menominee," means in Algonquian "wild rice people."

Maple sugar was another important source of the Indian's food supply, particularly after the introduction of iron kettles by the white men.

But, cultivated crops and wild rice provided only a part of the Michigan Indian's supply, and by necessity was supplemented heavily by fish and wild game. Hunting parties went out in the summer and the winter, and frequently traveled more than 100 miles from their villages to secure game for their people.

Indians did not hunt the same area every year. They alternated their sites so as to guarantee a continuous supply of game. According to one writer, a band of Ottawa hunted the Glen Lake area every three years and the Saginaw River Valley region every other year. There is evidence also that hunting grounds were assigned to families by village chiefs, in order to avoid depleting the wildlife of one particular area.

Game shot by hunters was shared by the whole village and not just the immediate family of hunter. The famous French adventurer, Antoine Cadillac, observed that when a hunter returned to his village with game, those persons present upon his arrival were permitted to take all of the meat, sometimes without leaving any for the hunter.

Deer, bear, moose, elk, buffalo, beaver, rabbits, squirrels, wildfowl and a host of small game were hunted and trapped by Michigan's redmen. Bows and arrows, snares and deadfalls were their weapons for many years, but by 1700 firearms came into use among most of the tribes.

Although the typical hunting party consisted of 10-12 Indians, sometimes the whole village participated. The explorer, Samuel Champlain, described such a hunt in which a whole band of Indians formed a long line in the woods from one bend in a river to another. They marched noisily toward the river, driving the animals before them. Bows and arrows dispatched the animals that tried to break through the line and the remainder were killed by Indians waiting in canoes.

Champlain described another unique device used by a group of Indians to capture deer. A triangular enclosure, closed on two sides, was made "of great wooden stakes eight or nine feet in length, joined close together and the length of each side was nearly 1,500 paces." At the extremity of the triangle there was a narrow passageway, partly concealed by branches, leading into a small enclosure.

Shortly after daybreak, Champlain observed, the Indians went into the woods some distance and formed a line, "eighty paces apart" and commenced to walk slowly toward the enclosure. They struck sticks together, driving the deer toward the trap. Wolf calls by the Indians hastened the flight of the terrified deer into the small enclosure where they were easily killed.

The beaver was of prime importance to the Indian even before the white fur trader put a high price on his head. His heavy fur, which was in prime condition in the winter, was valued for clothing; and the animal's meat, especially his front paws and tail, was considered a delicacy.

Michigan Indians employed various devices to capture the beaver. Traps were used extensively; and often the Indians tapped the beaver's dam, catching the animals when the water dropped. Nets, stretched near the entrance of the beaver lodge, also proved effective. In the winter, holes were cut in the ice and nets placed in the runway from the lodge. As the lodge was torn apart, the fleeing beavers were caught in the nets and clubbed to death.

The hunting of beaver illustrated an extremely important aspect of Indian life—his regard for the conservation of wildlife. The Indians never killed a whole colony of beaver in a particular lake or pond; they always left enough to insure a future supply.

By Lee Smits

Pickerel bite best, they used to say, when lilacs are in bloom. However, the most pickerel ever I saw caught in a hurry was in deer season, in the Upper Peninsula, with snow on the ground.

If a contest were held to determine the most popular all-around fish species in the Great Lakes region, it is likely the walleye, pickerel, pike-perch would win. It is also called Johnny Dore, in Quebec and, oddly enough, along the Michigan-Wisconsin border. Years ago I heard the walleye called a new light in Kentucky.

In his excellent book, "Fishes of Ontario," Dr. H. H. MacKay, of Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, describes the range of the walleye as extending along the Atlantic Coast from New Brunswick to Virginia; westward through the Great Lakes region, the Upper Mississippi Valley, northward to the MacKenzie River and the Hudson Bay drainage.

Dr. MacKay says that the only time that walleyes are backward about grabbing bait or lure is while they are spawning, in April or May.

Other walleye facts from Dr. MacKay:

They are a wandering fish. A walleye tagged on the Thames River, flowing into Lake St. Clair on the Canadian side, showed up in Saginaw Bay, 175 water miles away.

A walleye deposits, on the average, 26,000 eggs for each pound of weight. A three-and-a-half pound female would produce as many as 110,000 eggs and an eight or nine pounder — called a sow by commercial fishermen — would help the species survive by contributing as much as a quart of spawn, about 120,000 eggs.

A walleye that tops 10 pounds is likely to have a permanent career, mounted, varnished and hanging on the wall, although official walleye records run close to 25 pounds. One that weighed 23 pounds, nine ounces was netted by Ontario fish biologists in the Parry Sound district in 1950.

Probably deep-trolling accounts for the best catches of walleyes between Lake Erie and Lake Huron; wire, a heavy sinker, a spinner with worm or minnow for flavoring is the standard rig.

Chugging seems to have died out pretty much. I believe the Indians invented chugging, done with a bright metal rod about six inches long, with a gang-hook on the lower end kept moving up and down with a hand line.

There is an ancient Latin saying that a matter of taste should not be disputed. I reluctantly accept this truth as applied to the practice of whittling walleye, perch or any other fresh water fish into filets. It seems to me that something of the savory quality of the fish is lost in the process.

Fishing with Jim Essery, the dean of Ontario guides, on Lake Kabinagagami out of Pine Portage Camps, I either eat walleye filet, or clean and cook my own fish. Jim Essery, well into the eighties, pays not the slightest attention to my protests. I am partial to boiled — or poached—northern pike. I dress a pike, get the salted water boiling, and just then Jim hands me a dish of walleye filets, fried potatoes, homemade bread, a mug of tea, and I have to give my pike to the gulls or tote it to the firetower for the ranger's dog team.

Studies of the walleye in Ontario have shown what biologists have strongly suspected for some time; that, in general, the rearing and planting of fish doesn't pay.

Says Dr. MacKay: "In recent years, studies of the planting of walleye fry, failed to show that it was making any significant contribution in maintaining walleye fishing."

"Trout," the magazine of Trout Unlimited, reports on a fantastic trout stream, less than three miles long, within 30 miles of New York City. An article by Walt Kehm says that infant wild brown trout were found in the Amawalk about two years ago. The State Conservation Department quit stocking the stream, which connects two New York City water supply reservoirs, thus insuring unpolluted water, and controlled flow so that a normal stream width of 20 or 30 feet is maintained.

It took some time for organized sportsmen to accept scientific data, obtained by electronic census-taking of the Amawalk. Fishermen were also somewhat embarrassed to learn that most of them lacked what it needed to take Amawalk trout. The catch per fisherman — as determined by the Westchester Conservation Council's creel census — was 0.0143 trout. It took, on the average, 18.1 hours of fishing per trout! With close to 4,000 wild brown trout per mile of stream.

Mr. Smits' column is presented through the courtesy of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. Mr. Smits will be pleased to answer any questions sent in.

Council Briefs

At the Village Council meeting Tuesday evening the Rev. R.A.J. Livingston, pastor of the Congregational church, gave the opening invocation.

Robert Jacobs, representing the Chelsea Junior Chamber of Commerce, requested use of the former fire station space in the Municipal Building for the storage and sale of articles for their annual rummage sale. His request was approved permitting the designated use of the space from July 4 until July 12.

Lengthy discussion was held with Frank Adams and Jud Bacon, representatives of Consumers Power Co. regarding the possible purchase of company equipment and possible renewal of the company's sales contract with the Village; however, as was the case in protracted discussions of the past several meetings, no official action resulted.

Motion approved for the following job classifications to be listed as part-time work as pertaining to Social Security coverage:

Any job with less than 600 hours normal work time per year, such as parks maintenance, building inspector, part time Public Works, Police and Light and Water Departments services; also part-time sewage treatment and Municipal Building maintenance work.

Motion made and approved for a "Let Freedom Ring" proclamation.

Approval voted to authorize payment of $8,000 as partial payment to the Thompson-McCully firm for 1964 street excavation work.

Two-hour parking restriction signs approved in the parking lot immediately behind the business places on W. Middle and N. Main streets. This ruling does not apply to the parking area immediately east of the Chelsea Milling Co. on N. Main St.

Authorization voted to pay a total of $70 to the American Legion for the Village's share of the cost of grave decoration for Memorial Day for the years 1963 and 1964 ($35 for each year).

Village Council meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of the month on the second floor of the Municipal Building. All interested citizens are welcome to attend.

WHITE PINE, TREE OF LEGEND—This is Michigan's official state tree, the white pine. It has long stood as a symbol of the state's forest heritage. It was the backbone of the lumber industry for a quarter of a century prior to 1900 when Michigan led the nation in lumber output. It helped to build the Midwest and played a big hand in Michigan's early development. While white pine will never again reach its former heights in the lumbering world, it will continue to be a valuable part of Michigan's forests. Today, white pine is found mostly in the upper peninsula and the north half of the lower peninsula where it figures prominently in reforestation work. Two small stands of virgin pine are preserved at Interlochen and Hartwick Pines state parks. At maturity, the tree attains a height of 80 to 120 feet with a diameter of from three to four feet. The bark of young white pine is smooth and dark greenish-brown; on older trees it is gray and deeply grooved. The needles occur in clusters of five. They are pale blue-green, fine and soft. Mature cones occur in dropping clusters near the tops of the trees. They are narrow and tapering with rather loose flexible scales.

Michigan's White Pine Tree Is Symbol of Forest Heritage

Lansing—Symbol of Michigan's forest heritage; backbone of Michigan's lumber industry which led the nation in output from 1870 to 1890; wellspring of the Midwest early development; valuable now but of today's forests in this state.

This is Michigan's official state tree, the white pine.

At one time, Michigan's white pine stands were the greatest the world had ever seen. In the last half of the 1800's an enormous demand for cheap building material echoed throughout the rapidly expanding Midwest.

Rugged loggers answered this call and from Michigan's rich pine stands they produced the now legendary lumbering era, a colorful period filled with romance and glory, and tragedy. This was Paul Bunyan's heyday and white pine was his tree.

From the white pine harvest was hewn the great financial, commercial, and industrial rise of this state.

While white pine will never again reach its former heights in the lumbering world, it remains an important part of Michigan's forests. It figures prominently in public and private reforestation work in the state.

Today, white pine is found mostly in the Upper Peninsula and the northern half of the lower peninsula, although it occurs as far south as Allegan, Eaton, and St. Clair counties and can be successfully planted even in the most southern counties.

White pine grows in nearly pure stands or mixed with red (Norway) pine, or with hardwoods and hemlock. It is best adapted to moist, sandy loam soils but will grow on a variety of sites from swamp to dry sand.

At maturity, it towers 80 to 120 feet above the ground with a diameter of from three to four feet. Under forest conditions, mature pines have narrow crowns; when grown in the open, crowns are symmetical and broad. Tops of tall, exposed white pines are often bent away from the direction of the prevailing winds and flattened on the windward side.

The bark of young white pine is smooth and dark greenish-brown; on older trees it is gray and deeply grooved. Needles occur in clusters of five. They are three to five inches long, pale blue-green, and are fine and soft compared with needles of the other two native Michigan pines, the red and jack pine. Mature white pine cones occur in drooping clusters near the tops of the trees. They are narrow and tapering, with rather loose flexible scales, opening in September of the second year.

White pine wood is creamy white to reddish-brown, soft, straight-grained, and uniform in texture. Lumber, sash, millwork, paneling, interior finish, and boxes are principal products of white pine in this state.

Michigan's present volume of white pine is estimated to be nearly 300 million cubic feet, including 1.2 billion board feet of saw timber, plus nearly 1.3 million cords of smaller material. Two-thirds of the sawtimber is in the Upper Peninsula, particularly in the western part, where the large volume exists as old-growth trees mixed in hardwood forests.

In the lower peninsula, two small stands of virgin pine are preserved at Interlochen and Hartwick Pines state parks.

Today's annual cut of white pine is approximately 3.5 million cubic feet of wood, mostly sawlogs which total almost 20 million board feet. This is four percent of the total board foot production in the state. It contrasts sharply with the white pine cut in 1889, when 3.5 billion board feet was harvested, representing 65 percent of the total timber cut in the state that year.

JOHNSON'S HEALTH

In answer to a query concerning the President's health, the White House issued a statement that despite the whirlwind pace he has been keeping, President Johnson's heart is apparently still doing fine. There are indications the President knows how to mix rest and relaxation with his fast-stepping work day.

RUSSIAN A-SUBS

A United States source estimates the Russians may be building atomic powered submarines at the rate of seven to ten a year. This appears to about match the American production schedule. Russia, however, has given no indication of a termination date for her atomic submarine program.

Birds' Toenails Designed To Aid Survival

Like people, all birds and animals have toenails. These toenails, called hoofs, claws, or talons, are used differently by animals and birds to help them live their own ways.

So states an article for children in the Conservation Department's magazine, "Michigan Conservation." It continues:

If you look at animals, you see that many of them have big, strong toenails. Deer, horses, and cows have very heavy toenails that are thick and almost as hard as stone. Their toenails are known as "hoofs."

All animals that have hoofs eat only grass or tree leaves or other kinds of plants. None of them eat meat. And not one of them can climb a tree.

Perhaps this is because hoofs can't help a horse or deer catch hold of another animal to eat its meat. Or perhaps hoofs are just right for running away from meat-eating animals, or for standing up to eat tree leaves. Nobody really knows why. But one thing about hoofs; they are no good for climbing trees.

Have you ever seen a cat and dog fight each other? The cat strikes out with its claws, but the dog tries to bite. Why doesn't the dog try to claw the cat instead of biting? Why doesn't the cat try to bite first, instead of clawing at the dog?

Cats have learned to keep their claws sharp to help them catch food or to fight dogs. Their teeth aren't big enough to do all the work. But dogs have much bigger teeth and they use these teeth for catching food or for fighting. Each animal uses its best fighting tool.

What about birds? Some, like those that sit in trees, have long curved toenails called "talons." Others, such as those that run along the ground, have dull toenails. Why?

Birds that sit in trees need sharp talons to hold the branch or tree limb. Running along the rough ground causes the talons on other birds to become dull. Some birds, like hawks and owls, have talons that are even longer, sharper, and more curved than other birds. These talons help them catch mice and rats.

Where did toenails and hoofs and claws and talons come from anyway? And why doesn't it hurt to cut off the tip ends of your toenails?

All claws, toenails, and hoofs are really a sort of hard, dead skin. They aren't really the same as dead skin, but almost. Dead skin doesn't have any feeling in it and that's why it doesn't hurt to cut off the tip ends of your toenails.

No one really knows when toenails began to grow on animals, but once they started, the animals began to use their nails for fighting or digging or for holding on to tree limbs. More and more, these toenails helped each animal to live the way it wanted to live.

Horses and deer and some other animals stand right up on their toenails when they walk. That way they can run fast and the hard ground doesn't hurt their feet. Other animals, like wolves and coyotes and foxes and just plain house dogs have short, dull toenails. Mostly, dogs use their nails for digging holes.

Cats use their claws in a very special way for catching their food, and it works like this:

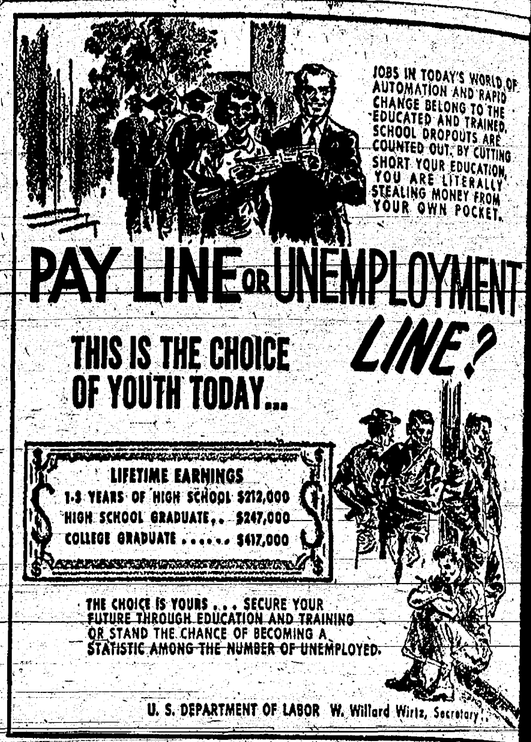

Lions and tigers and leopards are all called cats, and they all have the same kind of claws that little house cats have. They keep their claws in special little holders made of skin. These little holders are called "sheaths" and they are placed right on top of the cat's toes.

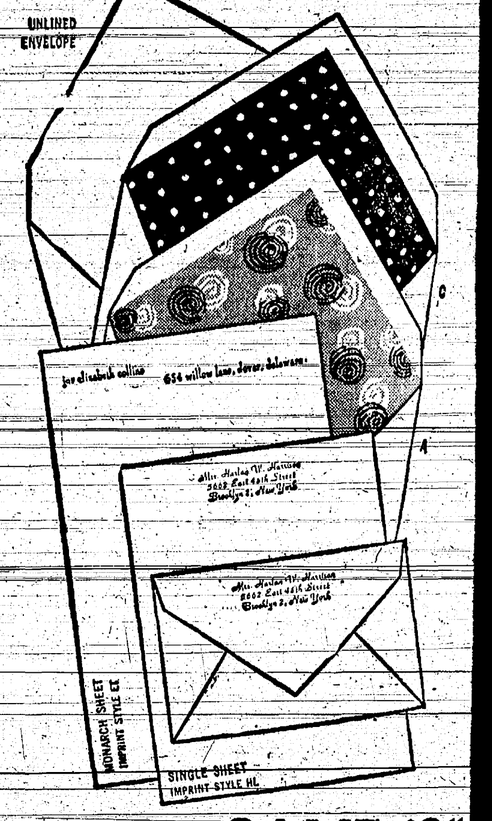

Cats keep their claws in the sheaths and that way the points don't get dull from walking on rough ground. But the important thing is, when cats want to, they can push these claws right out of their holders like sharp little hooks.

They use these sharp hooks to catch mice or birds or other animals, or to climb trees so they can get away from their enemies.

RUSS ROCKETS & CUBA

It is believed that the Soviet Union may have pulled its ground-to-air rockets from Cuba, which would deprive Fidel Castro of the means to shoot American spy planes from the skies over Cuba. If this is true, it would help explain Castro's May day assertion that Cuba is alone in her dispute with the United States.

St. Barnabas Church Women Help Plan For 10th Anniversary

St. Barnabas Episcopal Church Women, at their May 28 meeting, heard announcements regarding the 10th anniversary observance of St. Barnabas church, scheduled for Thursday, June 11. The anniversary service, scheduled for 8 p.m. will be followed by a social hour.

At the ECW meeting Thursday, the program in charge of Mrs. Fred Meyers was a continuation of the year's study "Personalities of the Old Testament." The chapter entitled "Solomon" was reviewed.

During the business session Mrs. Meyers reported on a panel discussion May 4 at the Methodist church in which she participated. Topic of the discussion was "Church Union" and Mrs. Meyers said she presented some of the views and thinking of the Protestant Episcopal Church as her contribution to the program.

It was announced that the annual Diocesan Adult Conference at Cranbrook will be held June 15-18, the theme to be "Christ, Conflict and the Christian."

Also announced was a United Church Women's silver tea to be held at the Ben Donaldson home at Cavanaugh Lake, June 19.

Further discussion of plans for the 10th anniversary of the church revealed that Robert Boham is the general chairman in charge of arrangements and Mrs. Robert Foster and Mrs. Lewis Davis will be in charge of refreshments.

At the close of Thursday's meeting refreshments were served by the evening's hostess, Mrs. David Atkinson.

Mrs. Robert Kielwasser is to be the hostess for the next meeting June 25, to be held at the church.

Open House Reception Will Honor F. Proctors On 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Proctor will be honored Sunday afternoon at open house in observance of their silver wedding anniversary. The open house will take place at their home, 17660 Washburn Rd., with members of their family as hosts and hostesses.

Their family, includes Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harris of Grass Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Proctor of Sylvan Rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hewlett of Pinckney.

The Proctors have six grandchildren.

Open House Event To Honor Retiring Teacher Sisters

Mrs. Herbert Rank (Inez) of 14980 Old US-12, West, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Bidwell (Myrtle) both are retiring from teaching at the close of the present school year and will be honored Sunday at an open house at the George A. Long school at Grass Lake. The open house, scheduled from two until five o'clock, is being sponsored by the Grass Lake PTA assisted by the school's room mothers and Mrs. Bidwell's fourth grade girls.

All present and former pupils of both teachers are invited to be present.

Both have taught the past 17 years in the Grass Lake schools—Mrs. Rank currently teaching second graders and Mrs. Bidwell, fourth and fifth graders.

Both are graduates of Chelsea High school and of Eastern Michigan University.

Mrs. Rank has taught a total of almost 39 years in area schools, several in the immediate vicinity of Chelsea before rural districts were consolidated as the Chelsea School District.

After teaching one year at the Balmer school, west of Chelsea, she taught at the former Freer school, Jewett-Stone, Sylvan Center, Savage and Parker rural schools before going to the Grass Lake school.

Mrs. Bidwell's teaching career, encompassing a total of 48 consecutive years, centered entirely in the Jackson county area. For the 17 years immediately prior to her work at Grass Lake, she taught at Liberty Mills.

Daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Young, they have another sister, Irene, now Mrs. John Hamp of Nashville, who also is a teacher, and Mrs. Rank's son, Donald, is principal of Allen school at Plymouth.

Ladies' Day Winners Named At Inverness

The annual ladies' day at Inverness Country club at North Lake was held Thursday, hostesses for the day being Mrs. Alden Cook and Mrs. Robert Dirlam of North Lake.

A prize was given to Mrs. Max Dettling for attaining the nearest approach to the pin on the number nine green.

Class A low net winner was Mrs. Gus Schreer and Mrs. Julius Eder and Mrs. Edmond Bracht took low putts honors in the same class.

In Class B, Mrs. Clarence Cox, Mrs. David Doig and Mrs. Arlene Howe tied for honors in low net while Mrs. Max Frisinger turned in low putts.

Mrs. David Longworth was low net winner in Class C and Mrs. Robert Adams was the low putts winner in the same class.

Mrs. Bracht and Mrs. Doig were bridge winners.

AGRICULTURAL ENTREPRENEURS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bohman were hosts for the May 21 meeting of Agricultural Entrepreneurs Farm Bureau. The meeting was held at their home with Keith Bradbury presiding. Eleven families responded to roll call and there were two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ediet.

Election of officers is to take place at the June meeting, it was announced. On the nominating committee are Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Coy and Mr. and Mrs. Bohman.

Following the business session a discussion was held on the topic, "Farm Bureau's Accent on Youth."

The customary social hour include euchre and the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting is scheduled for June 18 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reddeman.

Ren Hutzels Return To Visit Scenes of European Invasion

Mr. and Mrs. Ren Hutzel left Monday from Metropolitan Airport, Detroit, for the first stage of a 17-day tour of Europe arranged especially for American and Canadian veterans who served in Europe during World War II.

The tour is a special observance of the 20th anniversary of D-Day, June 6, 1944. The gigantic invasion which eventually liberated Europe and was launched on that day in Normandy, included 4,000 vessels, 11,000 planes and 126,000 soldiers. The number of soldiers increased steadily until one million men and great quantities of supplies were ashore at that point.

Former Michigan Governor John B. Swainson was among the passengers on the jet airliner on which the Hutzels crossed the Atlantic Ocean.

The Hutzels' first stop is Paris. With that as their starting point they will visit the Normandy Beach, Brussels, Luxembourg, Frankfurt, Munich, Innsbruck, Lucerne, Bern and Digon before returning to Paris for a full day on June 16 and the return trip by jet on June 17.

TROOP 98—

The girls of Troop 98 at their meeting, Wednesday, May 27, discussed their second camp-out. It was decided that it would be from June 23-25. This camp-out will be held at Green Lake. The girls are to meet at Veterans Park at 9 a.m. and then hike to Green Lake. Girls are reminded to look up the hiker badge and have an idea of it. Thursday they will return to Veterans Park at 4 p.m. The girls' belongings will be transported to Green Lake by car.

There will be a special meeting Friday, June 19 at 1:30 for the girls at Pierce Park, the following meetings will be scheduled later.

The meeting was closed by Indian-style taps.

James V. Doll

Chelsea Native Dies Suddenly in New Jersey

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Wednesday (yesterday) at the Staffan Funeral Home for James V. Doll, 56, a native of Chelsea who died suddenly Friday at Fort Lee, N. J. The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski officiated and burial followed at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Doll was born on Aug. 22, 1907, in Chelsea. He was the son of William H. and Anna M. Beissel Doll.

He was graduated from Ann Arbor High school in 1924 and in 1928 from the University of Michigan where he majored in dramatics.

He was an assistant in theatre activities to the late Valentine B. Windt, specializing in scenery and costuming at Ann Arbor.

He later was an assistant director of the Federal Theater in Detroit.

During World War II, Mr. Doll operated the University Grill in Ann Arbor.

In 1948, he moved to Fort Lee where he became associated with Nichols Decorators, an interior decorating firm.

Survivors are three brothers, Louis W. of Bay City, Maurice F. of Ypsilanti, and J. Edward of Ann Arbor. Also surviving are three nephews.

Michigan has the second longest shoreline of any state in the nation—3,288 miles. This includes 1,056 miles of island shore.

Capt. Stanley Toney Escapes Uninjured as Jet Bomber Burns

News reports from Lincoln, Neb., yesterday afternoon stated that Capt. Stanley Toney, son of Mrs. Lewis Haselschwerdt, 8840 S. Steinbach Rd., was one of a three-man B-47 jet bomber crew who escaped injury yesterday morning when the plane burned on take-off at Lincoln Air Force Base.

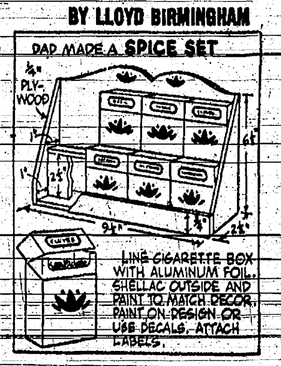

According to the news release, the plane was preparing to takeoff for a mission at 2:42 a.m. when a small explosion shook the No. 3 engine as the plane was taxiing down the runway. The plane was destroyed by the fire.

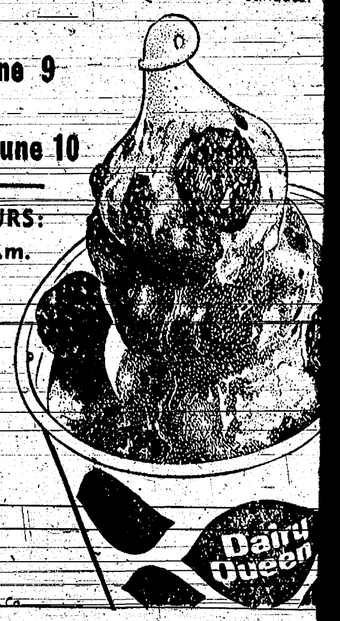

The other crewmen were the aircraft commander, Capt. LeRoy McMath of Ohio, and Capt. Thomas O. Package of Pennsylvania, the navigator.

Toney was the co-pilot.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By GEORGE HAGEDORN

Stormy, or Generally Fair?

Last week we discussed in this column the question of when the next business downturn will be. But more important than when is the question of "how bad" will it be a minor temporary readjustment or are we in for a major setback that could last us for a prolonged period? This writer recently listened to a discussion of the business outlook by a group of top-flight industrial economists. He began to wish he had taken up some easy field of study, like higher mathematics, instead of economics with all its doubts and complexities.

The views of this group, and of other knowledgeable people whose opinions have appeared recently in print, range from extreme optimism to extreme pessimism. We will try here to summarize briefly these two extremes, recognizing that no one individual would agree that either description does justice to his own opinions.

Divergent Views

The extreme pessimists believe that disaster lies ahead because we have been relying on excessive expansion of credit to sustain prosperity. We have had an inflation in recent years, although it hasn't expressed itself in rising commodity prices. The situation, according to proponents of this view, begins to look ominously like 1929. Credit expansion can't go on forever at this rate, and when it starts reversing itself the process will be like a snowball rolling downhill. It is not clear when the reversal will occur, but the longer it is delayed the worse it will be.

At the opposite pole, there is a school of extreme optimists who believe that we will have, between now and 1975, the greatest business boom in history. Population growth and family formation will be rapid and ample money and credit will be provided for meeting the resulting needs. The new emphasis in federal fiscal policy on tax cuts, rather than spending increases, will buoy up business confidence. The economy has grown up to the productive capacity created in the 1950's and there will be a new boom in capital spending. Although setbacks may occur from time to time they will be brief and mild.

This column's own view? We would not place ourselves at either end of this spectrum, but not at the exact center either. Say halfway between the center and the optimistic view. The economy will grow in the next ten years at somewhere around the historical rate, which isn't bad when you think of it. Recessions will occur from time to time, but they will be distressing rather than disastrous.

Of course, major mistakes in national policy would upset this relatively rosy forecast, as even the most optimistic economists recognize. But the mistakes we have made so far in the post-war period, serious though they have been, have not as yet made disaster inevitable.

One other caveat: even if we have economic growth which looks good in all other respects it will not be easy to get unemployment much below its present rate of 5.4 per cent. But this is the subject of a future column.

Three Learn Setting Fires Not Profitable

A scheme to earn some extra pocket money by setting a fire and then helping to fight it boomeranged into a costly lesson for three Michigan men, the Conservation Department reports.

Paying nearly $250 in fines and court costs for touching off a 107-acre blaze in Clare county were Harry M. Sanderson of Portland, Ronald J. Sagi of Middleton, and Dallas M. Sanford of Harrison. Sanderson is serving a 60-day sentence in the Clare county jail for his part in the ill-conceived plan.

Also, instead of collecting money for their fire suppression work as they hoped, each of the men has been ordered to pay for the labor costs of local volunteers who pitched in to control the fire.

Actually the threesome started a pair of fires in the same general area on April 25. The first fire, which burned about two acres in Missaukee county, was set to keep conservation workers busy while the men were getting "a good one" going in Houghton Lake state forest of Clare county.

Aside from their money-making reason, the offenders reportedly ignited the Clare county fire because they thought it would improve deer habitat.

Corn Cribs Losing

Corn cribs are losing out on farms that have a 6,000 bushel or up yearly corn crop. Michigan State University researchers have found that corn cribs are more costly storage spaces in terms of loss of corn than concrete stave or glass-lined silos.

CHELSEA VILLAGE COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

May 19, 1964
Council Room

Regular Session.

The meeting was called to order by Pres. Haselschwardt at 8:00 p.m.

Invocation by the Rev. Harold S. Bilotta of the Assembly of God Church.

Trustees present: Bollinger, Burg, Chapman, Crouch, Weber and Wood.

The minutes of the Regular session of April 21, 1964, and the Special Session of May 5, 1964 were read and approved.

A letter was submitted by Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. Spees of 520 Lane Street, requesting a variance to construct a garage to within three feet of the property line of Mr. and Mrs. James Kalishek of 518 Lane St. A letter stating no objection to this variance was submitted by Mr. and Mrs. Kalishek.

Motion by Chapman, supported by Weber, to approve the variance as requested by Mr. and Mrs. Spees. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

A letter was received from the Michigan Department of Health granting permission for the construction of basements under certain homes in the Sorensen Subdivision, subject to restrictions imposed by the village. Residents of the area were present, and were informed that details for permits should be worked out within a few days.

A discussion was held with Mr. Ketih Boylan, representing some home owners adjacent to the Junior High School. Mr. Boylan voiced objections to the burning of rubbish and garbage in the open incinerator located on the school playgrounds. Daily burning of rubbish presents a smoke and odor problem. Trustee Burg was instructed to ask the police department to investigate.

A discussion was held with Jud Bacon, Attorney for Consumers Power Co. regarding the proposed purchase of Consumers Power equipment, and the possible renewal of the sales contract between Consumers Power Co. and the Village of Chelsea. No official action was taken at this time.

A discussion was held regarding the problem of an open ditch located just north of Letts Creek. Residents of the area have voiced complaints against use of this open ditch, and have requested the council to contact the County Health Department.

Complaints were also voiced against the contamination of Letts Creek from the storm drain located on the north bank of the creek. Chemicals are being dumped into the storm sewer system from some source. Trustee Wood was instructed to investigate.

Motion by Bollinger, and supported by Weber, to authorize the transfer of $10,500.00 from the Chelsea Electric and Water Department to the General Fund for the purchase of the new fire truck. This money is to be paid back to the Chelsea Elec. & Water Dept. as received from the different townships and the village for their proportionate share of the cost of the truck.

The 1964 Street Program was discussed. Construction of the culvert to replace the bridge on McKinley Street is scheduled to begin approximately June 15, 1964. Completion of the digging for the 1964 street program is scheduled for May 26, 1964.

A request was received from Stop and Shop Super Market, Inc., for dropping stockholders John C. Rucker, Jr. and William J. Rucker, leaving Joseph A. Rucker as sole stockholder on the 1963 SDM licensed business located at 14901 Old US-12, Chelsea.

Motion by Wood, supported by Bollinger, that the request from Stop and Shop Supermarket, Inc., for dropping stockholders, John C. Rucker, Jr., William J. Rucker, elaving Joseph A. Rucker as sole stockholder on 1963-1964 SDM license be considered for approval. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

Motion by Chapman, supported by Crouch, to authorize and direct the clerk to issue checks in payment of bills as submitted. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried. General Fund, $25,707.63; Parking Meter Fund $632.95.

Motion by Burg, supported by Chapman, to adjourn the meeting. Roll call: Yeas all. Motion carried.

Meeting adjourned.

Approved: June 2, 1964.

Howard Haselschwardt,
President

George Winans, Clerk.

Well done... GRADS

To you, graduates of 1964, we extend our heartiest congratulations and most sincere wishes for a happy, successful future. You may be justly proud of your scholastic achievements, and we join with all your friends and neighbors in saluting you.

Bass, Bratwurst, Boats Encourage Week-End Trips

Lansing — June beckons weekend travelers with a variety of activities the week-end of June 6-7, according to the Calendar of Events of the Michigan Tourist Council.

Fishermen will be interested in the International Bass Festival at Muncelona which marks the opening of the Michigan black bass season. The event continues through Sunday, June 7.

For those with a cultural bent, an outdoor, Clothesline Art Show will be held in Kalamazoo, Saturday, June 6, at Bronson Park.

The customs of old Germany and that nation's fine food specialties will be featured at Frankenmuth for the week beginning Sunday, June 7, at that community's annual Bavarian Festival.

Also included in the Council's Calendar of Events is the Raisin River Canoe Race, Sunday, June 7. Competing canoeists begin at Blissfield, racing down the river to the finish line at Petersburg.

Copies of the Michigan Calendar of Events are available from the Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing 48926.

PRISONER KEEPS WORD

Detroit—A prisoner, Joseph Van Dosen, reached the top of a barbed-wire fence surrounding the Detroit House of Correction when a guard fired a warning shot. The 19-year-old prisoner told the guard to stop shooting and he would come down. Van Dosen came down as promised—but on the wrong side of the fence.

Dogs Still Permitted At State Parks But Must Be on Leash

Dog owners may still take their pets with them when they visit state parks in Michigan this summer.

Conservation Department officials make the reminder to clear up confusion over a proposal to place state parks off limits to dogs during the May 1-Sept. 30 season.

Action has been tabled on the suggested dog ban while the Department polls state park visitors this year to get their views on the subject.

As in the past, dogs are not permitted in bathing beach areas of state parks. Elsewhere in these parks, their owners must keep them under personal control on leashes which are not longer than six feet.

More than 108,000 farms employing more than 206,000 farm workers are found throughout Michigan today.

Michael Scholtens Receives Naval Academy Appointment

Michael Jon Scholtens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Scholtens of 175 E. Summit St., has received notification of his appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. He was selected on a competitive basis from several area nominees whose names had been submitted by Neil Staebler, congressman-at-large.

A member of the 1964 graduating class at Chelsea High school, Scholtens has been an honor student, his scholastic average being 3.87 out of a possible 4.00 for his high school record.

His activities and affiliations at Chelsea High school include the following: band, three years; Russian club as a sophomore and junior; vice-president of the sophomore class; president of the junior class; annual staff as a junior and senior; sports editor, senior year; varsity baseball, junior year; National Honor Society, junior and senior year and president of the Chelsea chapter his senior year; Quill and Scroll, his junior and senior year; and a member of the Student Council during his senior year.

Before coming to Chelsea he had been president of his freshman class at Ionia.

He is currently serving as vice-president of Chelsea Interchurch Youth Group and has been active in Boy Scouts having attained Eagle rank with one bronze palm.

The Naval Academy appointee had been offered a Regents-Alumni engineering scholarship to the University of Michigan and a Distinguished Alumni engineering scholarship to Michigan State University, both of which he relinguished in favor of the Naval Academy appointment.

Scholtens is to report at Annapolis on June 30. He will attend the Academy four years and then serve as an officer in the United States Navy for a period of five years.

Rustens Transfer Membership to Ann Arbor Church

Notice was received by the First Congregational church of Chelsea that their former minister, the Rev. Phillip Rusten, Mrs. Rusten, and their daughter, Edith were received into membership in the First Unitarian church of Ann Arbor. The letter of transfer was sent at their request some time ago by the clerk of the local church, Mrs. Lura Geddes.

By transferring into another church than a United Church of Christ he automatically has removed his name from the Ann Arbor-Jackson Association listing of ministers, since membership in one of the local churches making up the association of churches is necessary. He may be listed again if he decides at a future date to join some local United Church of Christ in the area.

He is teaching in a junior high school in Ann Arbor and his wife is teaching in an elementary school near where they live at 114 Eighth St. They feel more at home now after a year and a half in Ann Arbor, more at home in community, school, and church. He reports that summer plans are indefinite beyond a two-week camping trip with Eric.

Interesting Facts About Michigan

Geologists have estimated that under Michigan, the nation's No. 1 salt producer, still lies a salt deposit of 71 trillion tons.

Three of America's billion-dollar industrial corporations and 16 of its 100-million-dollar businesses are headquartered in Michigan.

Your church is still open every Sunday, if you hadn't noticed.

Just A Minute . . .

By the Rev. James A. Craig

Shoplifters have disguised some products so they pay far less then their value for them. A news item reported that lobster Cantonese, at $1.75, was in a macaroni and cheese wrapper marked 38 cents.

Now the processor uses different sized boxes so the switch can't be made. The store manager discovered you can't always tell the contents by the label.

St. Paul knew this a long time ago. We are still discovering it. He wrote to one of the churches that "we have this treasure in earthern vessles."

The surprise seems to be that most of us are content to be macaroni-and-cheese. The commoner we are the better we like it. Perhaps we are a bit afraid of being unusual, like lobster Cantonese.

Sure, Paul was right about the treasure in common jars. But we seem more concerned with the wrapping than with the treasure.

It may be that we don't want people to know. It may be we're not sure ourselves about the Christian faith.

The value of the treasure you have may be appraised any Sunday at church. Not only that, but there you can also discover how its worth might be increased.

Personal Notes

Sherry Frisinger badly sprained her ankle while finishing the term at college. The Doctor said that it would have healed faster if it had been broken, so she is hobbling around at home now. Somehow she was able to help out her church by officiating at the organ Sunday, but it was reported that between hymns her foot was up on a nearby chair.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Paul entertained last evening (Wednesday) at a chicken barbecue at their home in honor of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Paul, who were observing their 40th wedding anniversary. Guests at the event included cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Staebler of Ann Arbor, who were married 48 years ago June 3, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Parker, also of Ann Arbor.

Men Needed For Church Softball Team

There are openings for both men and boys, but there seems to be enough interest on the part of high school youth in a "for fun" church softball league that the men will have to get enough out to have a team without the help of the boys.

A week ago Wednesday when the first church-league practice was held, the new large softball provided by St. Paul's church was used. It was discovered that someone who is good with a baseball is good with the big one too. But the whole point in moving away from regular hard-ball is to put more emphasis on fun and less on a pitcher's duel.

Ann Arbor sporting enthusiasts say that the large ball really does even up the sport whore many levels of ability may enjoy the game.

One church league reported on at a recent church conference is already discouraged after one go-round because one church has such a good softball pitcher that after just one game it is obvious that they won't lose a game until the pitcher gets sick.

The report from Ann Arbor where the large ball is used is that it really works in making it a game for those who want to get away from the high-pressure of "practically professional" ball playing. "Everyone hits, and the best players are used in the outfield." This can be accomplished in three stages. Most relaxed is the 16-inch ball with the slow-pitch rule. A bit less relaxed is the large ball without the slow-pitch rule enforced. The next stage is to have the regulation 12-inch softball, but insist on the slow-pitch. One advantage of the larger ball is that gloves are not necessary, if one's hands are a bit tough.

Men, and boys are urged to come out again next Wednesday with a team from each church (10 to 20) and be ready to play some shortened games and have some fun. The only cost will be for the ball, which will be provided by the "home" team.

Pilgrim Fellowship Installs Officers At Sunday Service

Officers of the Pilgrim Fellowship of the Congregational church were installed at the Sunday morning worship service at the church with the Rev. R.A.J. Livingston officiating.

Officers are Tom Sharrard, president; Ralph Johnson, vice-president; Arlys Wiseman, worship chairman; Roger Frisinger, service chairman; Ed. Windell, recreation chairman; and Judy Wiseman, secretary-treasurer.

A coffee hour following the worship service, in charge of Mrs. Warren Spaulding, honored the young people of the Congregational church who are members of the Chelsea High school 1964 graduating class. They are John Barkley, Ana Bozas, Hartmut Henning, Cheryl Lehmann, Judy Livingston, Nancy Luick, Victor Parks, James Perry, David Runciman, Douglas Sprague, James Swanson, Laura Weir, Cheryl Werner, David Winans, Beverly Windell and Richard Reed.

The Seventh Day Adventists established their national headquarters in Battle Creek, Michigan, in 1855, and this city is still the headquarters for that faith.

There are usually two sides to an argument; which is worth remembering these days.

WHAT COLOR IS GOD'S SKIN?

An address given in Atlanta, Georgia, by PETER HOWARD, author, playwright, political analyst, who is in charge of the world program of Moral Re-Armament.

One hundred years ago and more, President Lincoln signed his proclamation of emancipation. It was a revolutionary aim. Today our aim is more revolutionary and more far-reaching in fulfillment. It is a revolution for every red-blooded American. And I must remind you that every American's blood is red.

Some people are afraid of the word "revolution". No man of faith should be. "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven." If that phrase becomes no longer a pious drone but a passionate commitment, it is more revolutionary than the filthy paraphernalia of Fascism or anything Karl Marx concocted.

I and my friends have just been marching with Rajmohan Gandhi, grandson of the Mahatma, in the heat and dust of India. He has led a peaceful march 4,000 miles in protest against the corruption, hatred, impurity and caste prejudice that is weakening his land.

Gandhi says not everyone who praises his grandfather lives the Mahatma's spirit. He tells the Indians it is exploitation to call on Gandhi's name unless you possess the power to change human nature and turn enemies into friends.

In new patterns of power unfolding across every continent, revolution to change the aim and character of humanity is blazing. Let us ensure that blaze creates more light and less heat. At a time when it is God's will and man's desiring for everybody—black, brown, white, yellow and red—to walk with head upheld in dignity, equality and peace, selfishness alone breaks homes, divides races, multiplies hate, bedevils the hope of a moral maturity to match the technological and industrial opportunity of our times.

Supposing America, with her Negro and Latin American and Caucasian and Indian minorities were able to proclaim in honesty to the listening earth, "Come and see how all men everywhere are meant to live. We need you all in our bid to change world history. In this essential task, black men, white men, all men are needed. Here in this land we live like sons and daughters of the God who created all men equal, planting in each human heart the knowledge of right and wrong that makes man different from a beast."

Africa, emerging into freedom, would leap with joy and clasp hands across the ocean. Asia would turn her eyes to the West. Latin America would forget the flirtation of Fidel Castro and follow the advances of her comrade in the North. Peking and Moscow would cease to glare, yellow to red eyeball, at each other as they realized their plan to take over Mr. U.S.A. was outmoded.

This brings me to a question no man can answer.

"The different races in America are her strength and glory. They are an asset no other country possesses."

What color is God's skin? In fifty years half the earth's population will be Chinese. The South African government seems to think Chinese are black. Contrariwise, because South Africa does much trade with Japan, the same government says Japanese are white.

Laws are essential. I believe legislation must often march ahead of the growth in man's character that makes much legislation unnecessary. But laws—though in South Africa they change the color of a human skin—cannot by themselves alter the character of a human heart.

On the day President Kennedy was assassinated, I talked with two Negroes. They agreed a civil rights bill with teeth would probably pass Congress. Then one said, "Whatever laws pass Congress, I can never trust a white man. It is in my bones to hate them all." Unless you've been a white man, you don't know what it means to have that said to you.

I told those Negroes how I, an ordinary Englishman, had made the experiment of listening to the voice of God, the inner voice that speaks to each human heart. I saw it was the selfishness, arrogance and pride of men like myself which had caused untold suffering and injustice.

When I spoke to the Mau Mau, detained in the Athi River Camp in Kenya, they covered their faces. They would not look at a white man. My first words were, "I was born white. I could not help it, could I?" They began to look at me. It began to slide upon their understanding it was as immature and ignorant to hate a man because he was born white, as to hate him because he was born black, brilliant, foolish, ugly, beautiful, big, small, Jew or Arab. When I had finished, their leaders said, "If we had dreamed white men could think as we heard you speak today, there would have been no Mau Mau in Kenya."

Some of these former Mau Mau leaders have become my friends. They saw white men change. They learned that black men, too, could change. They changed. They now are fighting with people of all races to bring God's revolution to Africa. They understand that violence, sometimes regarded as a good servant, can swiftly become a bad master, and that history never long remains on the side of hate. Hate knows no color bar. Neither does love. Heart power is America's strength. Hate power is her weakness.

The two Negroes said to me, "Do you think education and environment can change human nature?" I long for every man, woman and child to have the best education and environment civilization can provide, but neither environment nor education changed me. God did.

God made men in different colors. A white man's world—in the sense that a white man because of the color of his skin, is closer to God than his neighbor—affronts the will of the Almighty and the conscience of humanity. So does a black man's world. So does a world of yellow or red domination. We need a world where all men walk the earth with the dignity of brotherhood that should be normal to all who accept the fatherhood of God.

The Negro is neither worse nor better than his neighbor. The same is true of the white man. We all have our loftier side, and our more debased.

America will set the continents free when she experiences lasting freedom—freedom from the immaturity of hate, the underdevelopment of selfishness, and the infantility of impurity and dirt. We exploit our wife or somebody else's wife, our neighbor, our business rival, and scream out against exploitation.

We white men are prone to tell everybody else what to do. But we are too proud to listen to the voice of God and, in obedience, learn what to do ourselves. We preach unity and call ourselves the United Kingdom or the United States. We transfer idealism to the United Nations but we remain, behind the doors of homes, offices, churches, deeply divided by jealousy, ambition, greed or prejudice. I pray the black man does not fall into the white man's ways in this regard.

Today, the long-awaited tide of history flows toward the non-white races. That tide will lift burdens of centuries and wipe out bloodstains in the sands of time. Be sure it elevates all humanity. You cannot expect every Negro, any more than every white man, to be a genius of ability, a paragon of virtue, a miracle of grace. But I hope, pray and expect that the Negro people of the United States will have the wisdom and human greatness to avoid mistakes that men like myself have made.

The black man's chance is surely coming. What will he do with it? I do not say, "Be patient." I say, "Be passionate for something far bigger than color. Be passionate for an answer big enough to include everybody, powerful enough to change everybody, fundamental enough to satisfy the longings for bread, work and the hope of a new world that lies in the heart of the earth's teeming millions."

Segregation yesterday. Confrontation today. Transformation tomorrow. Let the hands of the black man stretch out above the heads of governments and nationalities to welcome all people ready with them to remake the modern world.

Unless we accept a world aim, we may be lost in narrow disputations. It is difficult, if not impossible, for others to place confidence in a system of democracy that preaches inalienable rights of the individual with its lips but robs men of their rights with its customs. Yet, nothing would suit the enemies of freedom more than to see this country tear itself apart, preoccupying itself with internal strife, while dictatorship takes over the world. Some demagogues, white and black, inside and outside America, desire to push the problem for the sake of personal power instead of curing it for the sake of all people.

It remains my belief that crossless Christians do more to camouflage the reality of Christ's revolution from humanity than any Communist or Fascist.

There are sincere men who have no faith in God. To them it can be said, "Accept the challenge of living the way you would wish to see your neighbor live. Absolute moral standards of honesty, purity, unselfishness and love are a yardstick by which all men can measure their conduct. If you have a standard, it must be absolute. Otherwise, it is no standard. And those four standards may prove a ladder that leads a man toward faith

My faith is in modern America. I believe Americans will arise with a character that convicts, captivates and changes nations. I believe those who have suffered most will show the greatest passion and compassion for long-suffering humanity. I believe those who have been victims of the worst discrimination will be the first to heal the hates and fears of others because they themselves are free from fear and hate. I am convinced men and women who for generations have drunk the water of tears and eaten the bread of bitterness will give living water and the bread of life to millions, trembling, longing, hoping, waiting, praying, for the new type of man and the new type of society that will lead the world into lasting justice, liberty and peace.

Those who have passed through the fires of persecution can hold forth one hand to persecutors and persecuted alike, and with the other uplift a flame of freedom to illuminate the earth.

Former Chelsea Girl Returns For Visit on 90th Birthday

Miss Mary Louise Shaw of 106 N. Adams, Ypsilanti, who was born in Chelsea, May 31, 1874, celebrated her 90th birthday Sunday by visiting Chelsea and stopping at the Methodist church. She had served as organist for the Methodist congregation in the former church, built in 1859 and destroyed by fire on Jan. 8, 1899. She said she returned home each week-end after entering Ypsilanti State Normal College (Now Eastern Michigan University) where she majored in music, in order to play at church services.

She was the daughter of Dr. Thomas Shaw, a country doctor.

As she recollects, the family lived in the home at 126 E. Middle St., now the Freeman Huston home.

She spoke of the manufacture of Welch cars here in 1903. She later worked for the Ford Motor Co. until she was 70 years old.

Miss Shaw inspected the Methodist church's educational unit and visited with the pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. James Craig.

Later she called at the home of an old friend, Mrs. Alice Roedel.

She also visited Oak Grove cemetery, picking out many familiar names on the headstones. Her parents, Dr. Thomas and M. Adella Hooker Shaw, are buried there.

Miss Shaw had planned to get on the bus and come to Chelsea by herself in observance of her 90th birthday; however, at the last moment she was nervous about making the trip alone so she asked friends to bring her.

She is a member of First Methodist church of Ypsilanti and recalled that she joined the Chelsea Methodist church when she was 13 years old.

Know YOUR MICHIGAN LAW

by Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

(This is a public service article explaining in general terms a provison of Michigan law.)

Complaints received by my office indicate that all too often consumers are victimized by contracts they do not understand. Naturally, most consumers have a limited knowledge of the techniques used in drafting a formal contract. Perhaps for this reason they feel that they are at fault if the contract they are asked to sign is not clear to them. Nothing could be further from the truth.

After all, any seller of goods or services wants the consumer to buy. It is the seller's obligation to present the prospective purchaser with a contract he can read and understand. It is not the buyer's obligation to be able to understand the sales contract. Indeed, to understand many of the contracts forwarded to my office would tax the ability of the finest lawyer.

If a proposed contract involves a larger sum, it, of course, should be discussed with your lawyer. But even contracts for smaller amounts which you do not feel are important enough to take up with an attorney should not be signed if they are not fully understood. And do not rely on what the salesman says the contract means. His opinion will not help you in a law suit based on the contract.

Don't sign what you don't understand.

BIKE RIDE TO FAIR

Houston, Tex. — A 68-year-old man, Paul R. Kepner is going to the World's Fair by bicycle. Kepner plans to arrive June 6, if he keeps his schedule. The former college professor plans to travel about 100 miles a day. He said he is riding the bike to the fair because he likes exercise and is "slightly wild" about biking.

There are always some fair maidens who create much ado over nothing in the way of social flimflam.

School Budget Hearing Slated Tuesday, June 16

A public hearing on the Chelsea School District 1964-65 budget will be held in the cafeteria of the high school at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 16.

A copy of the 1964-65 budget is available for public inspection at the office of the superintendent of schools at the high school.

The regular June meeting of the Board of Education will follow immediately after the closing of the hearing.

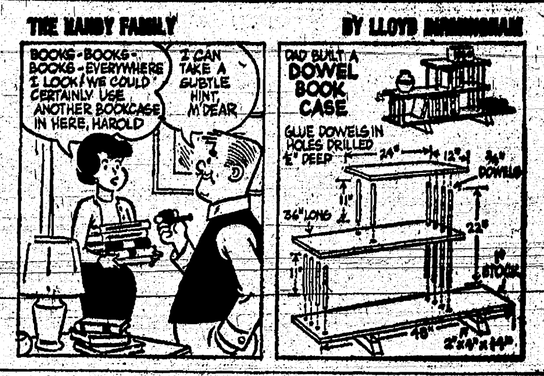

Michigan school districts under provisions of a new public act of the Second Extra Session, 1963 Legislature, are now required to hold public hearings on their proposed budgets.

Given immediate effect in late December, the act, P.A. No. 43, provides that all local units of government must hold public hearings on their budgets prior to final adoption and that notice of the hearing shall be posted in a newspaper of general circulation within the area at least six days prior to the hearing. The notice must include the time and place of the hearing, and also state the place where a copy of the budget is available for public inspection.

"Local unit" is identified in the act as a county, township, city, village, authority or school district empowered by the constitution or by law to prepare budgets of estimated expenditures and revenues."

The act further provides that units which submit budgets to a county tax allocation board shall hold the hearing after its tax allocation has been fixed by the board; that changes made in a budget by the governing body subsequent to the hearing will not affect the validity of the budget; and that local units which provide for a public hearing before adoption of their budgets either in pursuance of charter provision or law shall hold a public hearing in accordance with the provision of charter or law which shall be deemed to be in a manner prescribed by law.

To Enjoy But Not For Picking

Every spring and summer, one of nature's most spectacular acts is the unveiling of wildflowers in all their living beauty. Sadly, however, each year also sees some plants losing ground to the pressures of a sprawling population. Among these are the rare species shown here. Protected by law in an effort to keep them from fading completely out of the Michigan picture are the birdfoot violet, flowering dogwood, trillium, and showy lady's slipper. Although there is no regulation against it, the wild columbine, jack-in-the-pulpit, and trout lily should not be picked because of their scarcity in many parts of the state. There are many other wildflowers which are protected and/or in short supply. Strong public support is urged to preserve them and their shrinking habitat. To learn more about plants which need your help, write to the Conservation Department's Publications Room in Lansing for free copies of "Living Beauty." A color movie of the same title may be borrowed without charge from the Department's film loan service in Lansing.

Christmas Tree Pruning Demonstration Slated June 11 Near Belleville

Christmas tree plantation owners must soon begin the annual job of shearing and shaping the pine trees in their plantations if they expect to finally produce acceptable specimen trees for sale. A demonstration will again be held in the Belleville area to show growers how this shearing job should be done.

On Thursday, June 11 at 6:30 p.m., growers will meet at the home and plantation of George Boughan, 15851 Martinsville Rd., Belleville. Ed Kidd, Wayne county extension agent in agriculture, and Vic Horvath, district forester, will be in charge of the meeting. Various methods of shearing and shaping will be shown, and insect control measures will be discussed. An aircraft crop duster will demonstrate.

The Boughan plantation is located about a mile south and a mile east of Belleville, on the east side of Martinsville Rd., about one-fourth mile south of Hull Rd. All persons interested in the growing of Christmas trees are invited to the demonstration.

As a general rule, in life, one gets about what one pays for.

Michigan Traffic Toll Totals 18 for Holiday Week-End

Eighteen Memorial week-end deaths brought Michigan's May traffic toll to 145, which was four fewer than 149 in the same month a year ago, a decrease of three percent, according to State Police provisional figures.

But although the provisional figures list May as the second month in a row to show a reduction compared to the same months a year earlier, delayed death reports are expected to increase the total.

The 788 deaths for the first five months of the year are 165, or 27 percent more than 617 in the same period of 1963 and 14 or two percent more than the previous high mark of 768 for that period in 1937.

May averages were 128 for the five years of 1959-63, 130 for the 10 years of 1954-63, and 122 for the 31 years since record keeping began in 1933. High for the month was 193 in 1941 while the low of 49 was in a war year, 1944.

The holiday toll of 18 was for the 54 hours from 6 p.m. Friday, May 29, to midnight Sunday, May 31. For the period beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday, of 78 hours, which the National Safety Council used as its basis for the toll, there were 21 deaths in the state.

Michigan's gigantic agricultural industry stretching from the Upper Peninsula to the Ohio-Indiana border produces more than 52 important food crops.

Crop Damage by Deer Herd Widespread Through Area

"Gentlemen:

"I am a fruit grower in Livingston county, and I have tried everything to keep the deer out of my orchard. This year alone the deer have caused me a loss of fruit in the amount of $12,000, also a damage to the trees I can't estimate. Other fruit growers in this area are suffering a comparable loss.

"The deer population has exploded in this area. There are now close to 1,000 deer which means 2,000 or more next year. This herd has got to be controlled. I am asking that you open a doe season here. The buck killing is not controlling this herd. My back is to the wall in this situation and survival is the only remaining choice. I would like to hear from you before legal action is taken on my part. I am going to fight this thing through."

signed,
An Orchardist

This was a letter received recently by the Conservation Department. The orchard the fruit grower is talking about is a scant 40 miles from Detroit City Hall, and he is not exaggerating his loss nor his situation. The only point on which he was mistaken was his estimate of the number of deer in his area. He probably guessed too low.

Here's another letter:

"Dear Sir:

"Last fall we did not get all of our corn picked. This spring there was scarcely any left in this 17 acres. Some people figure about $500 damage was done here by the deer herd. Now we are on Social Security and our income does not go all the way and so we raised this corn for our feeder pigs, to help out our income. Now this deer herd has eaten up my livelihood. I think that the State should be responsible as long as they are taking the fee from the sportsman. When the farmer's animal gets out he is held liable for damage and the State should be no exception.

Signed,
A Farmer

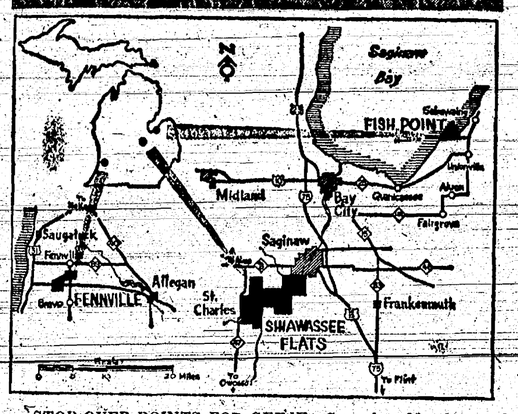

These letters to the Conservation Department are not unusual either in tone or content, and they are rapidly growing in number. About 10 percent of the 100,000 farms in southern Michigan report some damage by deer. This damage was estimated to total more than $300,000 in 1962.

Since 1954, traffic in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula has increased 27 percent, while car-deer collisions have increased 316 percent.

These and other examples point to one clear, inescapable fact: Michigan has a new deer problem on its hands. The problem in northern Michigan for the last 15 years has been one of danger to the herd itself, through deer starvation and depletion of range foods. The problem in southern Michigan, on the other hand, is one of danger to human life and property. Authorities agree that Michigan is going to have to come up with some answers soon, because the trouble is getting worse—fast!

The southern herd has increased steadily from a few thousand animals in the early '40's to approximately 45,000-50,000 this year. At

STOP-OVER POINTS FOR GEESE—Come late March, sounds of honking geese herald another flight of northward migrations at these three spots in southern Michigan... Fennville state game area, Shiawassee Flats wildlife management area, and Fish Point wildlife area. Through early April, thousands of the big birds will touch down at these areas to rest and feed, offering sightseers a great outdoor eyeful. Refreshed and refueled, most of the honkers will have taken off again by mid-April, flying high, wide and handsome to their favorite nesting places in northern Michigan and the Hudson Bay region of Canada. Before they leave, why not take your family to one of these areas to enjoy this colorful springtime spectacular? It's free for the looking.

Paul Niehaus Honored By Church Choir

Present and former choir members of St. Paul's United Church of Christ honored Paul F. Niehaus at a dinner Wednesday evening in recognition of his 50 years of affiliation with the choir. As he relinquishes his position as choir director he has completed almost 50 years in that position. He has missed very few church services through the years and Howard Fletcher, acting as master of ceremonies, said all present and past members of the choir join in thanking him on behalf of themselves and the congregation of St. Paul's church he has served so faithfully.

Among the 33 persons present, most of them from the Chelsea-Ann Arbor area, were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Adam of Dearborn.

Also present were Miss Amanda Koch, an invalid the past two years, who was a member of St. Paul's choir almost as long as Niehaus.

The dinner, held at Schumm's Restaurant, also served as an observance of the birthdays of Mr. and Mrs. Niehaus which occur on the same day, May 24. Mrs. Niehaus was presented with a corsage of yellow roses and Mr. Niehaus, as a gift from present and former choir members, was presented with a casting rod and reel.

Various members of the group spoke briefly in reminiscent vein, remarking that in his early years in the choir, Niehaus came in from the country home of his parents, driving a horse and buggy, for choir practice during the week and services on Sunday.

Niehaus, himself, mentioned activities of the choir during the years and in conclusion, expressed his thanks and appreciation for the gift presented to him and for the dinner party in his honor.

Letters were read from two former members of the choir who were unable to attend Wednesday's dinner — Fred Bareis who is in Florida, and Mrs. Alwina Lambert Sargeant of Jackson.

College Students Working in Office Of Congr. Meader

Karen Dietz of Dexter and Nancy Lamb of Monroe, sophomores at Kalamazoo College, have been working in the Washington office of Rep. George Meader (R-Mich.), according to a telegram from Meader.

The girls are employed under the "work semester program" of the college, designed to bring about further interest on the part of the students in the operations of the federal government.

Meader also announced the employment of two college students on his staff for the summer vacation period—Arthur Collingsworth of Tecumseh, a junior at U-M, and Ted Riecker of Ann Arbor, a second-year law student at U-M. "Among other activities," Meader said, the students will "supervise a public opinion survey of residents of the Second Congressional District that Meader is planning to undertake with volunteer help to ascertain the prevailing public opinion on national issues of importance."

Final Allocation Settled Monday By County Tax Board

Final tax allocation made by the County Tax Allocation Board at a meeting Monday affirm the preliminary division of 9.12 mills to the Chelsea School District and 1.8 mills to the county with the remaining one mill of the 15-mill limitation going to Sylvan townships as previously granted.

Dexter Community School's allocation is now 9.25 mills; Manchester, 9.59 mills; and Washtenaw County Intermediate School District remains at the preliminary figure of .08 mills.

Dexter townships final allocation is .87 mills; Lima, .87; and Manchester township, .53 mill.

Manchester School Districts allocation was changed from 9.0 to 9.59 mills.

According to reports of the meeting of the Tax Allocation Board, seven votes were taken before a final decision was reached.

Efforts had been made by some of the members of the Tax Allocation Board to reduce the county's millage to 4.692 mills and increase, accordingly, the school districts millage (an increase of .108 mill.) Each unit has fine days to appeal its allocation to the State Tax Commission.

Typing, Art, Archery Will Be Offered

The Chelsea Area Recreation Commission announces the following information relative to special summer classes.

Mrs. Sandra Scoville will be the instructor for a class in beginning typing for anyone interested. She is the typing teacher at the Junior and Senior High school. The the class m tetil ebl willi 2odd classes will be for anyone of junior high school age or older and the class will be limited to 20 members or less; will begin Tuesday, June 16, and continue for seven weeks; will be held in the Chelsea High school typing room and classes will be held each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. The fee for the course is $10.

Jack Curl, the art teacher at Chelsea High school, will be the instructor for an art class for young people and adults. The class will be held in the high school art room and will be limited to 15 members; will be held each Wednesday from 7 until 9 p.m. beginning June 24 and continuing for six weeks; and the fee will be $3.50.

Archery instruction will be given by Tom Kopec, a Junior High school teacher, Monday evenings beginning at 6:30 p.m. and continuing until dark. A maximum of 20 people will be accepted for the class which will be held at the Chelsea High school football field.

Those who take the class must provide their own equipment.

The six-week course of instruction will require a fee of $3.50.

Registration and payment of fees must be made to Alan Conklin, recreation director, in the office of the Junior High school from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. on June 8, 9 or 10. Due to the size restrictions on these classes, persons will be entered into classes in the order in which they register. It is emphasized that no registrations will be accepted before 9 a.m. Monday, June 8.

Final details on golf lessons will appear in next week's issue of The Standard; however, tentatively-planned classes in bait and fly casting, conversational French and conversational Russian will not be offered this summer because of a lack of interest shown by the pre-registration survey conducted last week.
