Rockwell-Standard Opens Spring Division Plant in Ann Arbor

Separate Addition Organized To Manufacture Torsion Rods

Rockwell-Standard Corporation has opened a new highly-mechanized plant at 418 W. Washington St., Ann Arbor, for large volume production of torsion rods for the automotive industry.

Robert G. Wingerter, president of the company's Automotive Divisions, headquartered in Detroit, said the Ann Arbor operation has been equipped with special machinery designed and built by Rockwell engineers.

The new-type torsion rods are being used instead of springs to lift some passenger car rear decks and hoods.

William Marsh, general manager of the Rockwell-Standard spring plant in Chelsea, will also serve as general manager of the new Ann Arbor operation.

The opening of the new mechanical spring plant in Ann Arbor increases to six the number of Rockwell - Standard installations in the state of Michigan. A major supplier of automotive components, the company operates two plants in Detroit, one of them producing forgings and the other transmissions and axles. The Chelsea plant produces a full line of mechanical springs, precision springs, and clips.

A factory at Allegan manufactures universal joints and drive shafts. This facility is currently being expanded by 16,000 square feet for a re-equipped test area, new laboratories, offices and a plant cafeteria.

The company also maintains a completely equipped automotive research and development laboratory at Birmingham.

Other automotive components in the Rockwell-Standard line include torque converters, transfer cases, brakes, bumpers, seats, axles, transmissions, and air, hydraulic, and mechanical brakes.

In addition, the Industrial Products Divisions manufacture gas and liquid filters, grating and lighting standards.

The Aircraft Division, with headquarters at Bethany, Okla., builds the Aero Commander executive-type aircraft.

Schumm's To Be Shown On TV Show

Schumm's Restaurant, on Chelsea-Manchester Rd. just off I-94, is being featured on the Ron Gamble TV Show Tuesday, Aug. 4, at 7 p.m.

Each week the show, on Channel 4, features two places selected as "good places to visit" and presents pictures to illustrate their stories.

The Chelsea restaurant will share honors with a town in Ohio on Tuesday's show.

Pictures for the broadcast were taken at Schumm's last Friday. In addition to scenes of the restaurant, feature shots were included of the chef, 31-year-old John Bauer, as he was preparing pizza.

A native of Chelsea, Bauer began his cooking career while he was a student at Chelsea High school. Before joining the staff at Schumm's he was with Weber's Supper Club of Ann Arbor, the Regent at Jackson and the Elks Club at Ann Arbor.

The broadcast might mention also in passing that Bauer has his eye on eventual participation in the Olympics—he won running events in May at Boston and practices running every day, according to Fred Schumm, who operates the restaurant.

Schumm opened the newly-constructed restaurant at the present location Nov. 12, 1963. Until I-94 road relocation took place three years ago he had operated a restaurant on the former US-12 at Pierce Rd., west of Chelsea, for 10 years.

Unique construction style of the new restaurant will probably be included in Tuesday's TV presentation. The building is circular in shape; is topped with a tower which is visible for miles to the east and west on I-94; and is conveniently located near the expressway Chelsea exit ramp.

The location of the Chelsea site and Schumm's Restaurant will be pinpointed on brochures which are offered on the program.

Quentin Smith Joins Ranks Of U. S. Professional Golfers

Quentin Smith of 1293 Hawthorne, Ypsilanti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith of 238 Harrison St., Chelsea, who received acknowledgement of his entries in the Canadian Open and Western Open golf tournaments, was in Canada the past week-end for the qualifying rounds of the Canadian Open tournament which begins today. While he did not qualify for the Canadian event scheduled for July 30-Aug. 2, he will be on his way this week-end to attempt to qualify for the Western tournament in which the defending champion is Arnold Palmer.

The Canadian Open is being held at the Pinegrove Country club at St. Luc, Quebec, 20 miles south of Montreal.

The Western takes place at the Tam O'Shanter Country club at Niles, Ill., Aug. 6-9.

There are 40 money placings in the tournaments and Smith is one of 156 golf professionals who will be competing. First prize in the Western event is $100.00.

After 36 holes the field is cut from the original 156 entrants to the low 80 pros and ties and after 54 holes the field is again cut leaving only the low 60 pros and ties.

Smith, who has played golf since he was 12 years old, principally at the Inverness golf course at North Lake, is 22 years old today.

He became a professional early this spring while attempting to qualify for the recently-held U. S. Open Championship event.

He was the 1963 Chelsea Championship winner but because of his professional status, did not play in the event this year. He also played in the Michigan amateur events in 1963.

During the U. S. Open qualifying rounds at Pine Lake Country club at Orchard Lake this spring he shot 87 and 82, missing by eight strokes.

He holds a 38 average in the Chelsea League play and has shot a low of 68 on the Inverness course this year. He customarily shoots 70 to 75.

QUENTIN SMITH, 22 years old today, will be on his way to Niles, Ill., this week-end for qualifying events being held in preparation for the Western Open golf tournament scheduled for Aug. 6-9 at the Tam O'Shanter Country club. He is a veteran of 10 years of playing golf and attained professional status the past spring.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

One of the happiest and most satisfying reports I have been able to issue in the 18 months I have been Governor is Michigan's financial statements as of the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 1964.

After closing the books on the year's activities, I was able to report this good news:

Michigan ended the fiscal year with an actual surplus of $48.8 million.

This means that in two years' time, Michigan has gone from $105 million in debt to almost $50 million in the bank.

Two years ago, Michigan had a general fund deficit of 185.6 million. This was well known.

But we also had a hidden, unpublicized obligation that had to be paid. This was about $20 million that we owed to suppliers of liquor for our state-monopoly state-operated liquor business. Back in 1959, with payless paydays staring Michigan in the face, our public officials were looking everywhere for methods to pick up a few dollars to make ends meet as long as possible. One method they found was to delay payment for liquor supplies already received. This delayed payment provided millions of dollars in cash for immediate needs.

So instead of a pay-in-30 days system, which is the usual system for paying for state purchases, the liquor suppliers were told they had to wait for 90 days or even 120 days for payment for liquor supplies already purchased by the state and distributed through out state warehouses and retail liquor outlets. The liquor suppliers had no choice; the state just didn't pay its bills on time. This was an obligation of the state just as much as paying for food for hospital patients, or gasoline for cars, or anything else the state buys. But the liquor suppliers were told to wait.

Well, today, these payments to liquor dealers have been brought up to the normal 30-day period.

So, in addition to completely wiping out the well-known $85.6 million deficit, Michigan also has paid up a continuing and unpublicized $20 million obligation to liquor suppliers.

And in addition, we have built up an actual $48.8 million cash surplus.

That's what I call financial progress of the highest order.

In the meantime, of course, Michigan has not lagged in taking care of legitimate needs of people. Our budget for the current fiscal year provides needed increases for higher patient loads in hospitals, higher student loads, increases in cost of living, and in selected additional programs.

The primary reason our state treasury looks so healthy, of course, is the fact that Michigan's economy is booming. Our sales tax collections are higher than ever, and the yield of our other revenue sources is high.

More people are working than was the case a year ago, and when people work, they spend money and they pay taxes. Thus our healthy economy makes itself felt in how much money is on hand to run state government.

But that's not the whole story.

With more people working, fewer people need welfare assistance. Thus a booming economy reduces our welfare costs at all levels of government, and this is the case this year.

But of special significance is the care with which state government is being operated.

This administration has conducted a continuous but undramatic program of spending reform. We have watched carefully how every penny is spent, and have searched diligently for new and better ways of doing things. During the fiscal year just closed, an estimated $6 million was turned back to the general fund from various state agencies, largely due to our intensive efforts to provide public services more effectively and with the least cost possible. This is the kind of fiscal integrity that is welcome news to taxpayers.

Hare Urges New Plates on Annual Basis

Lansing — Secretary of State James M. Hare said he would ask the Michigan legislature to set up a program for annual license plates starting with 1966.

"It is obvious that Michigan's citizens want plates each year, and I'd like to give the public what it wants," Hare said.

He stated that this would mean scrapping the state's current system of issuing plates every third year and tabbing for two years.

"Our original plans called for issuing plates next year, 1965, issuing a sticker tab for two years, and then plating again in 1968," Hare said. "But our correspondence heavily favors annual plates . . . and we hope the legislature will implement such a program."

Hare said e expected help from both houses of the legislature to put through an annual plate program. Several members of the legislature said they would introduce legislation to provide annual plates duringt he next session of the legislature.

The tabbing system was initiated several years ago as an economy move. "Actually, I submit costs for both systems . . . annual plates and our plate-tab operations . . . in all my budget requests," Hare said, "because the latter is less expensive, the legislature has been more favorably disposed to this alternative."

Just how much more the annual plate program would cost has not been determined. "Perhaps we might utilize thinner guage metal and cut the cost somewhat," Hare said. "Cost of the raw metal is 6 cents for a set of metal tabs as against 22 cents for the metal to make the plates. Based on 4-million plates, this is close to three-quarters of a million dollars."

"Michigan will be using galvanized steel for its 1965 plates," Hare said, "and we have been guaranteed that these plates will hold up better than the 1962 plates did. But with annual plates, I'm sure we'll have no trouble at all."

Better Mental Care

Care of mentally ill patients in Michigan apparently will undergo some change in procedure, but will follow the current trend under the state's new mental health chief.

Dr. Robert A. Kimmich came from California to Michigan July 1 to serve as head of the large Mental Health Department.

One of his first observations was that much of the red tape involved in mental care should be eliminated. "I would like to see us minimize the number of persons and places a patient has to go to in order to receive care," he said.

The trend toward part time, close-to-home care facilities is one which should be continued, said Kimmich.

Michigan accentuated this trend within the last three years. Its aim is to provide care as close to home as possible and on a lay-care or out-patient basis wherever practical.

Establishment of community care facilities was enabled by legislative act last year. Prior to the official act, mental health experts touted community care centers as the answer to space demands in existing institutions.

One possibility for ever further localization of care for mental patients was hinted at by Kimmich shortly after his arrival in the state.

He said he hoped to develop a broader program of co-operation with general medical practitioners, social workers and others in a position to observe potential mental problems and suggest early treatment programs.

Beauty Treatment

The aging process which has been working on Michigan's Capitol building for 85 years is about to be stopped.

Some $200,000 was appropriated this year to clean the exterior of the sandstone building. It was white when built, but over the years has become a dirty, streaked gray-black.

Art-minded citizens have contended over the years that the aging process should be allowed to run its course unhindered, that the natural look should be preserved.

Others, many tourists among them, say the state's central government building should be more physically attractive.

A new coat of paint was applied to the dome on the building within the last few years, enhancing more the aged appearnace of the rest of the facade.

Some experts feared the effect of sand blasting on the soft Indiana sandstone structure, but state officials expect a new cleaning process to be used this summer will eliminate this risk.

By Fall almost 20 years of debate on the advisability of the project will be a moot point. There will be a new face on the building which will house so many new legislative faces at the beginning of the new year.

New Party

An unknown factor in the Fall elections nationally, reaction on both sides of the civil rights question, may have particular impact in Michigan.

Democrats usually count heavily on the Negro vote. The Freedom Now Party has nominated Negro candidates for several of the open offfices in an effort to marshal the Negro vote to these people.

Any major shift in the Negro vote is viewed by Democrats as a threat to the party's strength in marginal districts and tight statewide contests.

Republican Gov. George Romney has made litle public comment on the new party but made a major attempt in 1962 to win Negro votes in his campaign and will again be trying to capture a large segment of this population group to his side in this year's contest.

Organizers of the new minor party say their effort is a protest to both major parties for failure to give the recognition and representation due Negro voters in Michigan.

Impact of the new group will not be felt until after Nov. 3 but both parties are likely to be eyeing the Negro vote more closely this year because of formation of the Freedom Now Party.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where Congressman Olsen of Montana is trying to git a investigation about all this paper work that goes on amongst the departments of the Guvernment.

He give out some figgers that ought to stagger all the people of this country. Fer instant, he showed where Guvernment paper work cost the taxpayers $4 billion last year. Ever department in the Guvernment has to make out from 3 to 6 forms of everthing that is writ in Washington, from a letter to a request fer office pencils. It was now gitting to the place, he said, where the storage space fer these forms and paper work was taking up as much space as they was using to store surplus wheat. Farthermore, he reported, the cost fer storing this junk was running about neck and neck with the cost of storing wheat.

He told the Congress they was 500,000 Federal employees that didn't do nothing but collect, compile and store this paper work. He claimed the paper work disease was being forced on all kinds of private enterprise, from the country store to the large corporations. Fer instant, he presented a audit from Montgomery Ward & Company showing they had to file 496,000 forms with the Guvernment last year and it cost the company a quarter of a million dollars to handle it.

We was talking about these matters at the country store Saturday night and the feller that runs the store reported his brain had done give way just from keeping books and forms fer the state and Federal departments. He allowed as how this was the main reason he was planning to put in the supermarket plan where the customers could wait on theirselves. He claimed he didn't have time to serve his customers and do his paper work at the same time.

Eli Doolittle reported the feller that runs the feed and seed store had to quit chewing tobacco on account of them Guvernment forms. He said a feller couldn't chew tobacco without stopping onct in a while to spit and he claimed he was gitting behind with his forms on account of losing spitting time.

Clem Webster reminded the fellers July was here onct agin and it was time fer the annual raising of the debt limit ceremonies in the Congress. Clem said he was reading in the papers where they was going to have to hike it to $320 billion this time. Of course, reported Clem, this was just temporary. We never raise the limit permanent on account of the permanent limit was set at $275 billion 10 year ago and we just raise it temporary a few billion ever year. Clem said he had saw in the papers where we didn't go but $10 billion in the red this year. He figgered this was temporary and we would git to $12 billion next year.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

V-W Paces Foreign Car Sales Comback

Lansing — The foreign automobile is making a comeback in Michigan.

According to reports from the Secretary of State James M. Hare, six-month totals reveal that imports are at their highest mark since the peak year of 1960 when a total of 2,229 were registered by the Department of State's Title Division.

Half-year totals numbered 9,728, with more than two-thirds accounted for by the constantly popular German Volkswagen. The V-W's nearly 7,000 registrations mean that it was much more popular with Michigan motorists fancying foreign autos than the British Triumph, the French Renault, the British MG, the French Simca, the Italian Fiat, the German Opel, and others which constitute the foreign import market.

THE NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By GEORGE HAGEDORN

★ The Tax Cut and the Economic Trend . . .

The major statistical indicators are always watched closely. There has been a special interest in such information this year as observers try to detect the effects of the tax reduction enacted in February.

The Commerce Department has just released data on the gross national product, and its various components, for the second quarter of 1964. Since the reduction in withholding rates went into effect in March, the second quarter is the first period in which we would expect to see the impact of the tax change clearly recorded.

Growth Rate

But an inspection of these new figures leads to some curious results. The increase in the gross national product between the first and second quarter was substantial—about $9.7 billion on an annual rate basis. But the increase between the last quarter of 1963 and the first quarter of 1964 was just about the same—$9.8 billion dollars, the increase between the third and fourth quarters of 1963 was even greater—$11.8 billion.

Thus the actual enactment of the tax cut does not seem to have accelerated the rate of increase in total economic activity. Looking at the details of the figures, it is also difficult to see the direct impact of the tax cut.

It was expected, particularly by Administration spokesmen, that the primary effect of the release of additional purchasing power would be to stimulate consumer purchases. Actually, the increase in consumer spending between the first and second quarters of 1964 was somewhat less than the increase in the previous quarter.

Our experience since enactment of the tax cut is too short, and the figures just quoted are not precise enough, to permit drawing firm conclusions at this time. What this preliminary information does suggest is that the stimulation from the tax reduction proceeded along somewhat different lines than anticipated.

The expected upsurge in consumer demand has not yet materialized—at least not in the mechanical fashion predicted by Administration economists. But the economy is thriving, and business plans for capital expenditures indicate it will continue to grow for the rest of the year.

Aids Incentives

The record suggests that the stimulating effect of the tax reduction has operated chiefly through its impact on business incentives and business confidence. This conclusion is strengthened by the fact that we had exceptionally high rates of growth just before enactment of the tax cut and in anticipation of it.

It may seem that this is raising an irrelevant question — if tax reduction gives the economy a boost, why argue about the process through which this occurs? But, when the opportunity for future tax reduction arises, we will want to know how it should be divided as between cuts that give more purchasing power to consumers and those that release more incentive to producers.

TAKE NOTE, beginning canoeists. Here are five basic and simple strokes which can make the going easier for you. The J-stroke is used to turn the canoe toward the paddle side by forcing the stern in the opposite direction. Serving as its opposite is the draw stroke which "pulls" the canoe sideways by forcing the water underneath the keel. Useful in getting a boat closer to a dock, this is a repeated stroke made by dipping the paddle and pulling it toward the canoe in a short, straight motion. The bow stroke comes into play for power and control when a person is alone in a canoe. It provides front end weight and balance in high wind or waves. The sculling draw is a guiding stroke used to steady a canoe in rapid water or high waves. It is simply a squared off figure-eight. For cruising, the pitch stroke is performed by the man in the stern of the canoe. As he draws the paddle to the rear, he twists it slightly to force the water away from the stern. This holds the canoe on a straight course.

Canoeing Gaining Popularity With Lovers of Outdoors

Canoeing, as a form of outdoor enjoyment, stands today on the threshold of immense new popularity.

Michigan has dozens of streams meandering back and forth through some of the most beautiful country in the Midwest, and more and more people are discovering for the first time that canoeing these streams can provide more fun per dollar than many other sports combined.

You do not need to own a canoe to get into the happy paddling act. A widespread system of canoe liveries has developed in northern Michigan so that two persons may now pack food and bedrolls and head north for a weekend of canoeing at the total cost of $10 to $20.

They will be helped downstream by river currents, they will sweep around bends and see deer, ducks, and a dozen kinds of wildlife, they will enter a variety of new country, see it first-hand, and return home far richer for the experience.

If you are lucky enough to own a canoe, your only real problem is getting back to your car after a float trip of 10 or 20 miles or more downstream. However, many northern liveries also provide shuttle service at nominal cost whether you rent their canoe or not; or they will drive your car downstream and leave it for you to pick up when you arrive.

One way that small groups solve the problem is to use two cars, one to be parked downstream at the take-out point.

You will want to wear old clothing and women will appreciate the comfort of slacks or shorts; canoeing does require some bending, sitting, and kneeling. Also, wear an old pair of rubber-soled canvas shoes; you may get your feet wet and canvas dries quicker than leather.

Many people take up canoeing with no knowledge of the critter, and though inexperienced, they somehow manage to carry through. However, a canoe can be a little like a headstrong horse—if you don't snug in the reins, he will lead you.

Here, more or less in the order of their usefullness, are five basic and simple canoe strokes which can be learned by beginners to make the going easier for them.

1. The pitch stroke is used for cruising by the man in the stern of the canoe. As he draws the paddle to the rear, he twists it slightly to force the water outward, away from the stern. This holds the canoe on a straight course.

2. The J-stroke is used to turn the canoe toward the paddle side by forcing the stern in the opposite direction. This is merely an exaggeration of the pitch stroke, and the more you want the canoe to turn, the more definite and carried-out it should be.

3. The bow stroke comes into play for power and control when a person is alone in a canoe. It provides front end weight and balance in high wind or waves. It is not meant to be used when two people are in the canoe. In that case, the person in the bow lets the man in the stern do all the steering. The best help when in the bow is to just plain paddle.

4. The draw stroke is used to "pull" the canoe sideways by forcing the water underneath the keel. Useful in getting a boat closer to dock, this is a repeated stoke made by dipping the paddle and pulling it toward he canoe in a short, straight motion.

5. The sculling draw is a guiding stroke used to steady a canoe in rapid water or high waves. It is simply a squared off figure-eight.

One other statement should be added concerning all these strokes.

When paddling, many novices reach far out ahead, dip in, and draw back as far as possible before lifting out. In doing this, their paddles strike the water on the horizontal, push down on the water, then pull back, and finally, lift up out of the water.

This can be very tiring, and not very productive. It does no good to push the water downward at the start of the stroke, and it is hard work lifting water on the paddle at the end of the stroke.

The most efficient length of stroke is that which you can make easily while still keeping the paddle more or less vertical to the water.

Toledo, Ore. — Hiring a cowboy may be the answer to school district officials problem of a way to protect school property.

★ By Lee Smits ★

I have always been fond of the catfish-bullhead family. In their key to the fishes of the Great Lakes Region, Hubbs and Lagler reveal their affection for the tribe by departing from concise descriptions of species, as follows:

"All of the larger catfishes and bullheads are very fine food for humans. The flesh is white and firm. It is not necessary to skin the smaller catfishes before cooking them; skinning is a difficult task for the novice and has discouraged the use of catfish for food."

I am proud and happy to be able to instruct the novice on an easy way to skin catfish and bullheads. A big nail is driven through a piece of plank, an inch or two of nail projecting. Cut skin around fish, back of gills. Slam fish down on board, nail through throat. Peel off skin with pliers.

In early spring Hy Dahlka and I visit the Peterson Brothers' fishery at Monroe. They save a catfish or two for us, alive, straight out of cold Lake Erie. No skinning needed. Cut into steaks. We think catfish is more delectable than sturgeon.

Catfish are mostly found in waters directly connected with the Great Lakes. Bullheads — brown and black — flourish almost anywhere that there is quiet water, preferably with a muddy bottom.

In his "Fishes of Ontario," Dr. H. H. MacKay, of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, says that the brown bullhead was originally native to the Eastern seaboard and the Mississippi Valley but has been introduced in almost every part of the United States and in Canada as far north as the Sault.

Bullheads are highly responsible, co-operative, moral. Papa and mama bullhead work together, making a nest. Then both parents guard the eggs until, after eight or ten days, they hatch.

There might be from 5,000 to 10,000 infant bullheads, the size of toad tadpoles, swimming together in a dense school, one parent within them, the other a little distance away, ready to battle any enemy. (We've had two reliable reports of swimmers, bitten — or nipped —by catfish at the mouth of the Clinton River, near Mt. Clemens. Were the catfish hungry, or defending a brood?)

A bullhead's whiskers, by the way, are sense organs, used in searching out food.

Members of the catfish-bullhead family eat almost anything. Laundry soap has been recommended as bait. I've been told that catfish will assemble to feed on seeds and berries, falling into the water. For set-lines a preferred bait is leech. In the old days at the St. Clair Flats the natives had their kids wade in sluggish, muddy water to collect bloodsuckers. A beef liver, sunk in a weighted gunnysack, will attract swarms of leeches.

A pond-hole, however small, could become a rich source of bullheads. Bullheads are easy kept alive and transported. A mess of bullheads, released in the pond, would produce a maximum population of mature fish in the fourth year. Sections of tile, stuck into the bank at the bottom of the pond, would provide ideal nesting sites. It would be interesting to experiment with bullhead food. Ground table scraps, for example. Stale bread maybe.

There is a villain in the bullhead family, the madtom. There are several kinds of madtoms, miniature bullheads, that carry a sharp spine back of the front belly fin. The spine is venomous and can inflict a painful wound.

Brad F. Young men attending the convention also named 12 trustees. They are Frank Allen, Natrona County High school, Casper, Wyo.; Stephen L. Among the resolutions adopted on the final day of the convention—Key Club's largest—which saw some 2,100 youngsters from the U. S. and Canada in attendance, were a call for a universal driver education program, a pledge by the Key Clubbers to urged their parents to vote, and pledges for themselves to embark on individual programs or physical fitness; to combat the habit of smoking, and to work to carry out the newly-adopted theme for the school year "Inspire Individual Initiative."

In the achievement contest for clubs of 26 members or more, first place went to the Key Club of Baldwin county, Bay Minette, Ala.; second place was taken by the Key Club of Bartow High school, Bartow, Fla. Honorable mention winner was the Key Club of Gordon High school, Decatur, Ga.

In the competition among clubs of 25 members or less, first place went to the Key Club of Miami Beach High school, Miami Beach, Fla.; second place was taken by the Key Club of Mingo High school, Mingo Junction, O.; the Key Club of Demopolis High school, Demopolis, Ala., took an honorable mention.

The Key Club of Maine Township East High school, Park Ridge, Ill., won top honors for the best "single service project." The club operates a paper back book store serving 4,200 students and 300 faculty members. More than 2,000 titles are included. The Key Club of Warren High school, Downey Calif., took second place with their project to refurbish a "Gold Star Mother's Home" occupied by some 660 women whose sons—their sole source of support—were killed in World War II. There were three honorable mention winners in the single service competition; the Key Clubs of North Senior High school, Winston-Salem, N.C.; Washington High school, Bethel, Kans. and William Allen High school, Allentown, Pa.

Three high school seniors received scholarships during the Dallas convention: Hugh M. Potterfield of Ormond Beach, Fla., received a scholarship to Yale University; Donald B. Webster, San Bernardino, Calif., received a scholarship to Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., and John E. Woles, Corona, Calif., received a scholarship to Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia.

The young men voted to hold their 1965 convention in New York City from July 11-14.

DUNES COUNTRY—Centuries-old and ever-changing, this is Michigan's great land treasure, the Great Lakes dunes country. The south and east shores of Lake Michigan and the southeast shore of Lake Superior make up the main part of this fabled land, buttressed by scores of miles of sandy foothills. The dunes country means many things to many people. For some, it is a restful retreat from the worries of a workaday world. Others see it as a curious land filled with new secrets waiting to be explored. Still others thrill to its clean look, its vast complex of smells fresh to the taste. Wind-swept, sand-blasted, and sun-bleached, the dunes live a busy life. They breathe and move about endlessly, burying trees, houses—any obstacles. They have developed their own tough and capable botanical world; plant life that stands not only blistering desert temperatures, but also the deep-freeze of winter. Shore birds, rabbits, deer, and other wildlife call the dunes country home.

Michigan's Dunes Country Is Different World to Many

Lansing — The Great Lakes dunes country, fabled land of its own, unique in the world and bowling out across hundreds of miles of this state's shorelines, rolling, drifting, saucered out and blown cold in the winter, a surf-hammered slash of sand in summer—or as often a quiet, moody place, hushed and dead calm.

This is an inheritance Michigan must consider carefully in its long view of the future. The south and east shores of Lake Michigan and the southeast shore of Lake Superior, these are the main areas of this vast legacy, buttressed by scores of miles of sandy foothills.

Each person has his own feelings about this country whose dunes were pushed up through hundreds of centuries—built by glaciers scrubbing along over a particular rock type, by the weather that followed, by specific land elevations.

Some find the dunes country a simple purgative from the unrelated business of city or office. Its interplay of the sand and surf and sun drain such individuals of all city-smeared tastes and drench them with kaleidoscopes of natural impressions, enough to help them through the next bout with civilization.

For others, curiosity packs a powerful force. The dunes become a new, not simply a different, way of life. A whole study becomes necessary. Exploration goes on endlessly.

The shift of the sand itself asks close observation. The names of all new birds and plants and insects must be learned and catalogued and watched for habits.

With all else, there is the gentle smell of the dunes country. It isn't "fresh" air, as everyone claims, but rather a vast complex of smells fresh to the taste. Decaying seagrasses, the vague putrescence of long-dead fish windrowed on shore, the moist sweetness of washed and rotting driftwood, the age-old smell of water itself. The acrid dryness of sand.

These are in the air. And when there's wind, it's sun-baked and water-cooled, which again adds certain tangs.

The dunes, of course, live a busy life. They breathe and move about endlessly, burying trees, houses, any obstacle. They have developed their own tough and capable botanical system, again unique in the world; a system that starts with lean and simple grasses sprouting in the sand near shore, plant life that stands not only blistering desert temperatures, but also the deep-freeze of winter.

Other plants, less hardy, poke up in the shade of these grasses and themselves produce shade and more roots to hold water and behind these, over the crest of the shore slope, more grasses, shrubs, trees — a whole community of plants suddenly fighting for root-hold in the moving sands.

At night, the dunes become an African jungle or a Pacific isle. The moon blazes down with such intensity that state park campers and nomads down the beach have to shade their eyes to sleep. It builds stark shadows in the trees and turns the sand a gray-white, unlike any color seen during the day.

Mice, squirrels, raccoons, rabbits, deer, all come out in this moon-flooded wilderness to frolic and look for food and finally at dawn leave only a tangle of paw prints in the damp sand.

It's true, the dunes land, left by itself, would still be all these things a thousand years from now; the smell and sounds, all the past and all the future. But it can't be left by itself, of course.

Millions visit these shores annually, trickling along the barrens in thin excursions or bunched virtually by millions at a few state parks located in dune country.

It will be interesting to see what happens to Michigan's dunes country in the years to come. It will be interesting to see what is decided to best use this great land legacy.

Good Student, Fine Son Changes His Attitude

THE WEEK'S LETTER: My son is 16. Until the past school year he was an exceptional son and honor roll student, excelled in athletics and was an obedient, well-mannered son of whom we were very proud . . . and this we told him on many occasions. Two years ago, his grades dropped from A's and B's to C's, D's and F's. He no longer participates in school athletics. We almost, with his reluctant approval, entered him in a military school which has high academic requirements. He was rejected, either due to the fact his grades were insufficient, or he had just received a 3-day suspension for playing hooky (his first offense). We assign a few minor chores—cleaning his room, some yard work, emptying the garbage, and very little else, yet it takes constant nagging to accomplish even this. His use of the family car is limited, as we based use of it on his grades, which were very poor. He knew it in advance and apparently it wasn't worth the effort. To sum up the problem: our son does not want to accept responsibility of any kind, nor can he accept discipline. He feels his summer should be free of any obligations. It is his "vacation". We feel he has been on a 2-year vacation. What do you suggest?

OUR COMMENT: In the many letters this column receives, it becomes increasingly obvious that teenagers show resentment for authority and discipline in many ways. Some demand "freedoms" and privileges which they know a dutiful parent must deny. The "I don't care" attitude is a form of resentment on the part of the teenager who for some reason feels that "it just isn't worth the effort." Every teenager needs responsibility and discipline—mixed with a great amount of understanding and tolerance. Sometimes this combination takes care of any problem.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

TIPS for your TOP from

TODDY and FRAN

Suggesting a summer permanent might sound like a silly tip — "In this heat?" you may shudder. But look at it this way: once you have your permanent — along with an easy-to-care-for hairstyle — you'll find it saves you time in the long run — and you can "enjoy" the heat in the swimming pool or in front of the fan during the time you'd otherwise have to spend fussing with hard-to-manage hair. It takes only a short while initially and then you're all set for a surplus of carefree time. We're open evenings, you know, at

VFW Auxiliary Hears Reports on State Convention

Reports of the state VFW Auxiliary convention were given at Monday's meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4076 by the delegates who attended — Mrs. Mary Kniss and Mrs. Mac Packard. The convention was held in June at Muskegon.

They mentioned that the manager of the National VFW Home at Eaton Rapids — Ed. Plumer, was present with a five-year-old girl living at the Home and a boy who was a high school graduate and had lived at the Home for 14 years. The boy — Lynn Lewis — graduated with high honors, it was pointed out, and was presented by the VFW groups with a $500 scholarship for pre-medical study at Michigan State University.

The Chelsea delegates also mentioned that at the convention the VFW Auxiliary's past department president, Mrs. Bethel McDougall, presented to Richard Thomas of Detroit a cash gift of $1,041 for Children's Hospital of Detroit. The hospital had been designated by Mrs. McDougall as a special project during her year in office. The contribution was particularly requested to be used for the purchase of an isolette for premature babies to be marked with a gold plate signifying that the equipment was a gift from the VFW Auxiliary of Michigan and its president.

Business at Monday's meeting included voting a $10 contribution toward sending the son of a deceased veteran to the YMCA Camp near Jackson for one of the camp sessions.

A social meeting is scheduled for Monday evening, Aug. 10, at the Cavanaugh Lake home of Mrs. Howard Walz. The committee for that meeting includes Janet Fletcher, chairman, Mrs. Walz, Judy Boyer and Jo Eresten.

Home Ec Extension Council Members Vote To Change Name

East Lansing — Representatives of the 35,000-member Michigan Home Economics Extension Council voted this week to change the name of the organization to Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers.

The new name becomes effective Sept. 1, according to the newly-elected president, Mrs. Harold Fluharty, Rosebush.

MHEEC is composed of homemakers who belong to local home economics extension study groups throughout the state. The association was organized in 1937 to help support the educational home economics-family living programs of the Michigan State University Co-Operative Extension Service.

MHEEC held its annual meeting at MSU last week in conjunction with MSU's 37th annual Homemakers' Conference, "College Week for Women," an educational event that attracts nearly 1,000 homemakers to East Lansing each summer.

Extension Booklet May Help With Electrical Troubles

Are any of the following true of your home

1. You are not sure if you have the right size fuses in the electrical service entrance.

2. Fuses blow or circuit breakers trip often.

3. There are too few switches and outlets where you need them —you can never find a good place to plug in the hair dryer or vacuum cleaner!

4. Long cords are strung around your living room under furniture or rugs.

5. Your toaster, iron and other heating appliances warm up slowly.

6. Lights dim or flicker when the refrigerator motor or other appliances come on.

7. The TV picture shrinks or flutters when other appliances start to operate.

Trouble Signs

Each of these is a sign of electrical trouble in your home. If so much as one of these statements pertains to you, a new booklet called "Electricity in the Home —A Guide for Homemakers" may be of help to you.

The publication is put out by the Michigan State University Co-operative Extension Service and was preapred by Georgianne Baker, home management specialist, and Robert L. Maddex, agricultural engineering specialist.

It explains home electricity from beginning to end and even includes a glossary of electrical terms. The specialists tell how you can plan for electricity in a new home or improve it in your present home. And of course, they tell you how to change a fuse!

"Electricity in the Home" is free. You may get it at your local Co-operative Extension Service office, or write to Bulletin Office, 10 Agricultural Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing. Ask for CE 29.

Michigan Tornadoes

Michigan is included in the prime tornado area of the US, with peak tornado months being April, May and June. But rural defense specialists at Michigan State University point out that twisters may occur in any month from March through September. Technically, they say, tornadoes are not impossible in any month of the year.

COOL BARNS FOR COWS

Wilmington, O. — Thirty cows are living in air conditioned luxury while the remainder of the herd, probably very jealous, are living under normal conditions on the same farm.

This is to test whether the milk and butterfat production can be kept high through summer months.

Researchers at Ohio State University have found that dairy cows produce more milk when the temperature ranges from 30 to 75 degrees.

MISSION STUDY GROUP

The women's mission sutdy group of the Chelsea Baptist church, known as "God's Willing Workers," met at the church on Wilkinson St. Monday evening.

Mrs. Victor Winter presented the evening's devotional service and Mrs. Robert Schneider, vice-president, was in charge of the business session.

"prayer letters" from the church's Mrs. Schneider read several missionaries in various parts of the world, requesting special prayers.

A report was given by the committee in charge of purchasing numerous small kitchen furnishings for the church kitchen and the supplies were presented at the meeting.

Work during the evening included packing home-baked cookies, brought by the members, for shipment to the USO at Norfolk, Va.; also, starting to cut out baby clothing to be made and sent to a missionary couple—Mr. and Mrs. Duane Block in Arizona at a mission to the Navajo Indians; and completing the folding of cancer bandages. Mrs. Charles Heard was in charge of the work session.

Hostesses for Monday's meeting were Mrs. John Palmer and Mrs. Clarence Holliday.

SHRINKING SILHOUETTES

Shrinking Silhouettes chapter of the TOPS organization (Taking Off Pounds Sensibly) named Mrs. Werner Otto "Queen" at the July 22 meeting held at the home of Mrs. Clara Reinhardt. The title indicates that the member so designated has lost the most pounds since the previous meeting.

The meeting next week, Aug. 5, will be held at the home of Mrs. Otte.

Americanism: People in the country trying to get into the cities and, vice versa.

Jackson County Fair Opens Gates Sunday

Jackson county's 49th annual fair, a seven-day and night exhibition, will open Sunday, Aug. 2 at 8 p.m. It will be Veterans Day.

A military parade inside the grounds, a concert by the Great Lakes Naval Training Station band, judging of a beauty contest and an exhibition drill by Jackson's famous American Legion Zouaves will make up the program.

The evening attraction, starting at 8 o'clock, will be a two-hour thrill and stunt show by Dan Fleenor's Hurricane Hell Drivers, a recent attraction at the New York Word's Fair.

Grandstand entertainment during the week will be headed by three top stars. At 2:30 and 8 p.m. top billing will go to Mark Wilson, magician, with his "Magic Land of Allakazam."

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, Bobby Vinton, recording and TV star, will be the headliner.

Allan Sherman, comedian, folk singer and producer, famed for his "My Son" recordings, will be in the spotlight at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

ALLAN SHERMAN

Mary Kay and Her Band will supply the music Monday and Tuesday. It will be Joe Fingers Carr and a 15-piece orchestra the rest of the week.

Six supporting acts at each show will include the Fuller Brothers, young singers and instrumentalists; the Half Brothers, jugglers; Hal Sands Manhattan Rockets, 16 girls in precision dances; Candy Candino, a man of many voices; Lucho Navarro, whose speciality is sound effects, and Martez and Lucia, acrobatic dancers.

Fireworks will conclude each night show.

Of interest to many, especially senior citizens, will be an 1890 Main Street and an old-time country store in the agricultural building. Departmental displays there will incude farm produce, fruits, flowers, home economics items, county library, needlework, fine arts, apiary, gems and minerals, photography, antiques, hobby craft and county historic pieces.

The space agency will show a mannikin of Astronaut Gordon Cooper in full regalia and three-quarter scale models of the Gemini, Apollo and Lunar trajectories.

Representing the armed forces will be a Hound Dog missile and the Army's 90 millemeter gun-equipped tank weighing 52 tons, made at Chrysler's arsenal.

A children's barnyard will offer domestic animals in pens with their young, Mort Neff's Michigan wild animal exhibit, and a Chicken Midway with baby chicks as performers.

4-H and Future Farmer achievements are other principal fair features. Three new barns, one for poultry outside of which will be a duck pond, and a record number of many varieties of livestock are included as agrarian attractions.

Daily Little League baseball games, horse, pony, mule and tractor pulls, night dancing for teen-agers and square dancers, a midway with 20 rides, beds of blooming flowers throughout the grounds and all kinds of commercial displays are other features.

Children of school age will be admitted free on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Ample parking space inside the grounds.

GIRL BORROWS BABY

Nutley, N. J. — Five-year-old Elizabeth Lardier brought a baby home and would not tell where she had gotten the infant.

Police solved the mystery when they found an empty baby carriage about a block away.

Elizabeth explained: "I just wanted my mommy to have a baby."

The diary of the Reverend Nathan Bangs, a Methodist minister, states that when he crossed over to Detroit from Sandwich, Ontario in 1804, he found Detroit "a most abandoned place." After three visits which he found unprofitable, he "shook off the dust of his feet as a testimony against them and took his departure." But a Methodist group established Michigan's first permanent Protestant church at Dearborn in 1818.

Just A Minute . . .
By the Rev. James A. Craig

A radio advertisement is aimed at people who like to do mad things. The examples don't sound mad, just different than usual.

Thor Heyerdahl and five other men crossed the Pacific Ocean on a raft. That seems mad.

A young couple started from Circle, Alaska, and drove to the furthest tip of South America. They may seem mad.

A lone flier was the first to successfully cross the Atlantic. Some thought Lindbergh was mad.

An inventor experimented with kites, boats, airplanes, torpedos, sheep, and telephones. Some of Bell's neighbors thought him mad.

Each of these individuals was an explorer. Each sought to do or discover something or someplace not before done or known.

We don't explore much. When we do its where we think it is safe. We think our lives a bit dull.

Our routine is such that we fail to see the adventure around us. It really isn't hard to find. Some may think us mad but we will discover what they shall never know.

A young teacher found adventure. The movie version of her story featured a song, "Getting To Know You."

The greatest adventure in the world is the people. They're all around.

All we have to do is care.

Rev. ROBERT H. HARPER

FIRST WORLD WAR

ON JULY 28, 1914, the First World War began. The United States, at last drawn into "entangling alliances," was forced into the great conflict after repeated attacks upon American shipping.

When the American army arrived in France, General Pershing placed a wreath at the tomb of a noble friend of our people and his aide uttered the immortal words, "Lafayette, we are here." The words have gone into history, reminiscent of the great debt of our Country to the people of France for their aid to the Colonies in their Revolution and a pledge of American aid in the time of dire need of France and the other Allies.

These things are written, not to inform you but to remind you of the achievements of our doughboys in battle beyond the seas and to warn you that, in this time when wars and rumors of wars are noted around the world, our Country may be drawn into a Third World War.

If so, we look to the American Eagle and we see that while his head is turned toward the olive branch that he holds, he still clutches a sheaf of arrows, grim token of the fact that he will fight if he must.

SHOT BY OWN TRAP

San Francisco, Calif. — Lloyd A. Pacini, an unemployed plumber, carefully rigged a trip wire to a 32-caliber pistol, in his clothes closet, to catch the thief who had been stealing his clothes.

In a hurry to get his jacket, Pacini forgot the trap, opened the closet door, and was shot in the stomach by his own bobby trap.

Street Art Fair Grows Each Year

Street art fairs are very much a thing of the present and future in Michigan. The biggest art seller of them all is the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair which will be held this year from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. July 29, 30, 31 and to 6 p.m. Aug. 1.

The Ann Arbor annual fair is sponsored for the fifth year by the Chamber of Commerce, the South University Businessmen's Assoc., the University of Michigan and the Ann Arbor Art Association.

A non-profit affair, the Street Art Fair is unjuried; there is no commission charged. A fee of $6 per artist defrays operating costs and all selling artists must be registered with Mrs. Kate Edgerton, 571 Randolph, Northville. All registration is by mail, and all artists must be present with their work.

About 400 artists and art patrons work to put on the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. Last year art objects worth $20,000 were sold during four days. Only creative, imaginative works are displayed and the Street Art Fair committee reserves the right to refuse objects or media that it feels is not appropriate.

Each year some artists are invited to demonstrate their talents in print making, creative stitchery, ceramics, enamelling, portraiture, weaving, etc. Children's art classes and invited exhibits and displays are featured events designed to please all ages and interests.

Perhaps the main reasons street art fairs are gaining in popularity are the desire for increasing numbers of suburbanites to obtain something different in home decorating ideas and objects to characterize their homes in neighborhoods that have architectural conformity. Also, street fairs provide the opportunity for casually interested persons to view art. Persons who would not normally enter galleries or attend art exhibits can walk along Street displays and "soak up" the atmosphere and thereby enter an unfamiliar world. The next time the viewer is exposed to art objects he feels more familiar with them and with increased interest comes more careful observation, a sharp ening of taste and, exhibiting artists hope, a desire to own art.

If the latter theory is true, this year $4,000 worth of additional art objects will be purchased by the newly initiated at Ann Arbor's fifth annual Street Art Fair.

Traffic Death Toll Among Nation's Highest

Lansing — Michigan kept up its dismal showing in the national traffic picture through the first five months of 1964.

Secretary of State James M. Hare characterized Michigan's five-month record "pretty bad over-all and a true picture of our pell-mell rush toward the worst traffic record in the United States.

"We are third in road death percentage gain behind the small states of New Hampshire and Vermont from 1962 to 1964," Hare said. "This makes our state highest among the larger states."

The 1963-64 figures also place Michigan well within the top 10 states in fatality gains with a 28 percent hike during the year, Hare said. In total deaths on the highways, Michigan was third behind California and Texas during the first five months of this year.

During rainstorms, traffic often splatters mud on your windshield and headlights. Remember to keep your windshield wipers in good operating condition and to wipe off your headlights at frequent intervals.

INELIGIBLE

Memphis, Tenn. — The second grade rooms at Avon School were about to hold an election.

"Now, children," their teacher beamed, "we're going to do this in a democratic way."

Down fell the face and up shot the hand of Beasley Wellford. "Then I can't vote," he announced unhappily. "I'm a Republican."

New Type 'No Passing' Sign To Be Tested on State Roads

Lansing — The State Highway Department announced today that it will test a new "no passing" sign on two long sections of highway.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said the pennant-shaped signs, which are placed on the left side of the road, will be put up along 180 miles of US-12 between Ypsilanti and New Buffalo at the Michigan-Indiana state line and on 115 miles of M-32 between Alpena and Charlevoix.

The State Highway Department has been testing the new signs at spot locations throughout the state since 1961.

"We've received a number of favorable comments on the pennant-shaped 'No Passing' signs and we are continuing the experimental use of this sign in order to obtain additional public exposure," Mackie said. "Installation of these signs on US-12 and M-32 will provide an opportunity to study their effect on a continuous route."

Conventional "No Passing" signs are posted on the right side of state highways at the beginning of "no passing" zones. The zones also are marked by a yellow strip of paint that runs the entire length of the zone along the center of the highway.

Mackie said motorists traveling on US-12 and M-32 will be observed during the study and that some drivers will be asked for their comments on the new signs.

The existing "No Passing" signs on the right side of both highways will remain in place until the study is completed.

The pennant-shaped "no passing" signs are now being put up along M-32 and will be erected soon on the entire length of US-12.

The new yellow and black "no passing" signs, used extensively in Iowa, have been tested on highways in the Cadillac, Gaylord and Marshall areas.

Tourism is a $680 million annual business in Michigan. It brings nearly $50 million each year into the state treasury in taxes and license fees.

Merchants Improving in Each Game

The much improved Chelsea Merchants baseball team is starting to make its presence felt in the Ann Arbor Adult League.

Although still winless, the Merchants have developed good team spirit and are starting to play together. As a result of this improvement, they have caused trouble for their last three opponents.

On Tuesday, July 14, the Merchants tangled with the Ypsilanti Independents. The Independents, led by Michigan's great cage star, Cazzie Russell, are currently tied with Dexter for the league lead.

Chelsea managed to keep it very close until the final inning when Ypsi scored three runs to win, 5-0. For Chelsea, Oren Wireman, Alton Nixon and Al Schauer led the team at the plate. Cazzie Russell was held hitless by Chelsea hurler Bill Derman.

Boone & Darr was just about the Merchant's first victim on July 16. After defeating Chelsea easily in their first two contests, Boone & Darr just squeezed past in one extra frame, 8-6. Chelsea fought from a 4-2 deficit and with one out in the last inning held a 6-4 lead. However once again luck seemed to bypass the merchants and Boone & Darr tied it up before adding the winning tally in the eighth.

Ed Hansen carried the big stick for Chelsea, just missing a game-ending home run in the seventh inning. Terry Pokela pitched very well for Chelsea but failed to get fielding support in the clutch. Jim Knight also collected two RBI's in this slugfest.

Tuesday, July 21, the merchants just about knocked Dexter out of their league lead which they share with Ypsi. Sailing along with a 2-1 lead with two innings remaining, Chelsea pitcher Bill Derman had to leave the game with a sore muscle. This was particularly a bad blow for the Merchants because Derman had the Dexter team handcuffed with only two hits. Dexter went on to win, 4-2, with a three-run outburst in the last inning. Richie Wood, Oren Wireman and Alton Nixon all played good ball games, both fielding and at the plate.

From Mrs. Thomas P. Patterson, Galax, Virginia: "The other day I sent my steam-dry iron to be repaired and hunted up an almost forgotten electric iron to use. Although this substitute iron had five different settings, for five different temperatures, I felt abused having to use an iron that wouldn't steam—until I remembered 60 years ago.

"I remembered that I had to iron my ruffled, full-skirted, tucked, ruffled embroidered dresses with their corresponding three petticoats each with a flat or 'sad' iron. It was made of solid iron and heated on a wood-burning stove or on the hearth in front of a fire that had burned down to red coals.

"Each time I picked up the iron with a thick, padded cloth holder, I had to rub the face of the iron with a rag to clean off the soot and ashes and then rub it over with paraffin to make it iron smoothly. Since washables in those days were heavily starched, the face of the iron would soon be coated with starch and the iron had to be rubbed over a pile of salt to remove the starch.

"As the iron cooled, I would put it back on the stove or hearth to re-heat and pick up another iron to use. What a treat it would have been to have any old electric iron then. It would have seemed a miracle!"

Estimated 40 Million Women Seamstresses

An estimated 40 million women comprise the home sewing market in the United States, Michigan State University clothing specialists report. Generally, these women sew because they want to, not because they must. A March 1963 survey by the National Home Sewing Institute revealed that 75 percent or more of the women who sew belong to families with incomes higher than the national average. Women sew, the home economists say, because they enjoy the creative aspects of sewing.

Sun-Bits Brighten Space Travel Plans

PLASMA, the stuff of the sun and all other bright stars, has been created by machine at Columbus University. These "pieces of the sun," or plasmajets, created by a special generator, burn safely in the open air, creating temperatures above 20,000 degrees Fahrenheit. They are believed to have potentially the world's brightest sustained light source and may eventually provide the means of powering interplanetary space vehicles.

SCHOOL DROPOUTS reflect the failure of schools and teachers, not the pupils, say many educators. One expert recommends shifting from the acquisition of facts to teaching the child to become his best self, continuous programs for adults as well as children, better designed educational facilites for the lower economic and social groups in communities and greater recognition for able teachers . . .

MEN speak louder than women when making telephone calls and have a wider voice range, according to a recent study. A man's voice can jump four or more decibels depending on the type of call he is making, while a woman's voice doesn't vary much in volume no matter, whether the call is social or business.

SIGMUND FREUD'S theories on the subconscious mind aren't as revolutionary as some people think, say the Smithsonian Institution. In the 17th century the Huron and Iroquois Indians considered the dream as a subconscious expression of desire, and diagnosed and treated many maladies by dream interpretation . . .

SYNTHETIC AMMONIA, a combination of nitrogen and hydrogen, is produced under uncommon conditions because the two elements usually won't unite by themselves, according to Gindler Catalysts. In order to make synthetic ammonia, used in fertilizers and explosives, catalyst pellets must be introduced to aid the reaction of hydrogen and nitrogen at temperatures near 1,000 degrees and pressures up to 5,000 pounds per square inch.

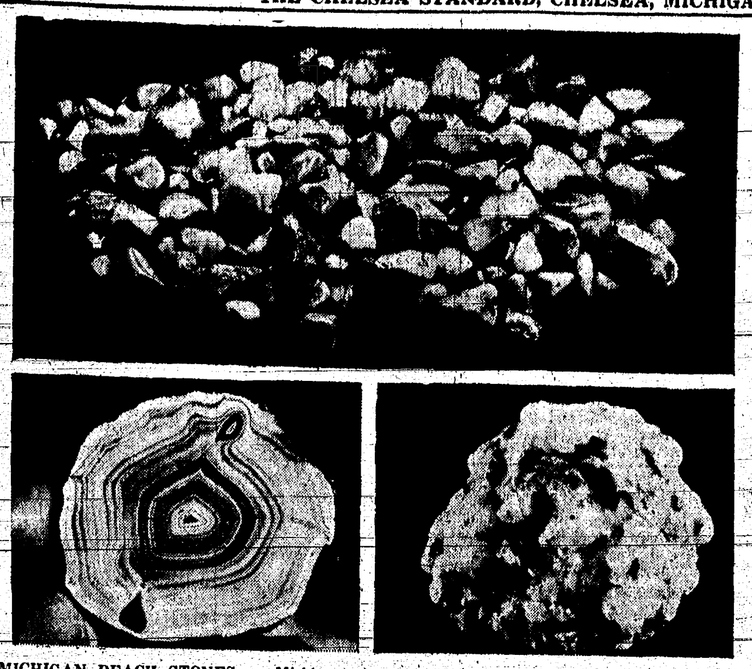
CONVICTS in Sing Sing prison may help save the lives of babies whose mothers suffer from an "RH" condition in which blood cells are destroyed by antibodies. A test group, all with Rh negative blood, was given injections of Rh positive blood. Later some of the prisoners were innoculated with special antibodies against the Rh factor. None in this group produced the antibodies that destroy Rh positive blood cells. It is hoped the injections can be used to keep Rh negative mothers from developing the dangerous antibodies during pregnancy . . . FATHERS of all-girl families have one consolation. According to the Department of Agriculture it costs only $8.80 per week to feed girls of 13 to 15 but $9.70 for boys of the same age. As they grow older, boys gobble $11.40 worth of groceries while girls' consumption remains steady at the same $8.80.

Missouri Post Card Refers to Town of Hell — Next Stop, Highwater

A postcard received Saturday from Dr. L. J. Paul "somewhere in Missouri," pictures a family coming upon a sign which says "You are now entering Hell" and "next stop Highwater." The caption on the card reads "Let's turn back while we have the chance," and Dr. Paul comments that "evidently this family hasn't heard of Hell, Mich." and asks if we in Michigan have a town of Highwater. (The latest Michigan highway map does not list such a town.)

The makers of the postcard evidently do not know there is a town by the name of "Hell" in Michigan—at least they did not include the name of the state to indicate where it was located.

When you get behind with your work, it seems difficult to imagine how you will get back on schedule.



MICHIGAN BEACH STONES — Michigan's Great Lakes shorelines are treasure-laden with a host of truly fascinating stones—not only hard-to-find agates (lower left), but also easy-to-find chert, jasper, granite (lower right), quartz, and basalt. Though more plentiful around Lake Superior, the common varieties may be found almost anywhere. No special training is needed for rock hunting. Just search for colors and patterns that suit your fancy. To help you get started, write to the Conservation Department's Publications Room in Lansing for a free copy of "Michigan Beach Stones." It features a two-page color spread showing many of the beautiful stones which await you on the state's beaches, especially along the Great Lakes. The folder also identifies and describes these collector's gems.

Check Livestock Health Before Heading for Fairs

Livestock farmers and youth with summertime desires to head for the county fair need to review the requirements governing exhibition of livestock, says Dr. Charles Reed, Michigan State University veterinary medicine specialist.

All species of livestock, the veterinarian points out, have certain requirements governing their exhibition.

Cattle must be identified by ear tag, tatoo or registration number. Official vaccinated animals under 30 months of age, native steers or calves under 12 months of age are not required to have a health certificate for show purposes. Reed also says Michigan cattle are not required to have a tuberculosis test in order to be exhibited at the fairs.

Horses, sheep and poultry must be free from all infectious and contagious diseases for exhibition at fairs.

All swine exhibited in Michigan must be identified by ear tag, tatoo or ear button and be accompanied by a certificate signed by a veterinarian stating the hog cholera and immunization status. Swine must be vaccinated at least 21 days before the opening of the show.

When you find a scenic view that makes you want to stop for a photograph during your motoring vacation, be sure to observe the common rules of safety. Pull completely off the road so you don't block traffic. Then you can take time to compose your shot in peace and provide a welcome break for your family as well.

A stroll along a crowded beach these days is enough to bring out the beast in one.

MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU

★ South American Memorandum . . .

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic — This is the beautiful Caribbean Island where in 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered America. It remains beautiful, but it is now a hungry land, where modern "explorers"—a Michigan farmer among them, have been searching for new ways to feed people.

Among delegates to a week-long session where farm leaders examined new farm methods and ideas, has been Walter Wightman of Fennville, Mich.

A fruit and livestock farmer, Wightman serves as president of the Michigan Farm Bureau. He was one of four delegates to this Alliance for Progress meeting representing the American Farm Bureau Feleration, and through it, the United States.

Wightman found the Republic to be a place where people appear to be either very rich, or very, very poor. Tractors are seen only on experimental farms. Livestock production is largely experimental, too. Some Hereford cattle are found, and a Brahma-Charolais cross is being attempted.

The backs, heads and hands of farm people are the chief agricultural "tools" with the cane slashed and loaded by hand onto bullock carts. Farms are either very large or very small. Largely it is a "banana" economy . . . bananas and sugar-cane, and that cane, and that cane product—demon rum.

The tiny nation has been torn by recent civil strife. Large numbers of Army officers are much in evidence. Evident, too, are the guarded gateways to officials' homes and the guarded conversations of the citizens.

Chief among the ideas examined by the delegates who gathered in Santo Domingo from 11 countries, was the possibility of some kind of land reform. Much of the land is now owned by government. The people have not developed a community spirit or learned to help themselves. Some method of returning the land to responsible individual ownership appears a "must," as does some form of farm credit program.

Wightman's conclusion after a few days is that the main problem is government ownership of "nearly everything."

"The people are smart, clean and pleasing — but I for one am not about to go there to live," he said.

A WINDY STORY

Sydney, Australia — The police sergeant at outback Wannaring, in the far west of New South Wales, was returning home from a distant center when the worst duststorm for 50 years hit him. He decided to sit the storm out and turned off the car motor. But the country there is so flat and the wind was so strong it blew him the last five miles home.

Dr. Judd, Gov. Romney To Speak at Meader Picnic

Dr. Walter H. Judd, former Republican Congressman from Minnesota who was a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination at San Francisco, will be a principal speaker at the George Meader Day picnic and ox roast Saturday, Aug. 1, at Delhi Park, between Dexter and Ann Arbor.

Also on the program as a speaker will be Governor George Romney and other state and national Republican leaders.

Other leaders who have indicated that they will attend include former U. S. Senator Homer Ferguson; Elly Peterson, Charlotte, vice-chairman of the Republican National committee; Mrs. Catherine Gibson, Monroe, former chairman of the national Republican committee; James O'Neill, member of the State Board of Education, and several Michigan Congressmen.

Dr. Judd was first elected to Congress in 1942 and served with distinction for 20 years. As a Congressman he authored the International Emergency Fund bill and the World Health Organization Bill. He played a decisive role in development of legislation for technical aid to the underdeveloped areas — the so-called Point 4 program—and gained recognition as the father of the U.S. Phillipine Mutual Security pact. He initiated proposals which predated the Vandenberg resolution to strengthen the United Nations through limitation of the veto. He was the original sponsor of programs to encourage unification of Europe and served as a delegate to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg, France, in 1951, and authored the legislation to create the Pacific Pact.

The George Meader Day affair is being sponsored by non-partisan groups formed in five counties. Lionel H. Berck, Ann Arbor, president of Seaway Associates, Inc., is general chairman.

"We are sponsoring this event to give the people of the Second Congressional District an opportunity to show their appreciation of the fine work that George Meader has done in the Congress during his 14 years in office," said Mr. Berck.

Chairman of county committees include: Lenawee county, Charles Figy, Morenci, former director of the State Department of Agriculture and chairman of the State Fair Board; Livingston county, Herbert F. Schott, Howell businessman; Monroe county, Brouwer, D. McIntyre, Monroe, president of Monroe Auto Euipment; Bernard E. Harkins, Ann Arbor business leader; and Edwin "Bud" Schrader, Plymouth.

Samhorn Releases Names of Campaign Committee Members

Al Samborn, candidate in the Republican primaries for state representative in the 51st district, today released the names of the four men and three women who are members of the vote-Samborn-to-Lansing committee.

They are Joseph Schnebelt, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Hurst, Mrs. Richard Austin, all of Dexter; Burley Hendricks, campaign manager, Chelsea; Luther Klager, Manchester; Robert Gustafson, Fowlerville; and Mrs. Elvira Vogel, Pleasant Lake.

Samborn said that committee members and other volunteers working with them represent only their individual interest and a willingness to work for his election.

The Ionia Free Fair is located on 155 acres of land on the banks of the Grand River and has the largest outdoor stage in Michigan at 10,660 square feet.

IT'S AN IDEA — HOME DECORATIONS

Bunk beds are a space saver for the average large family. You can buy bunk beds or you can build your own to fit the dimensions of any size room.

Accompanying illustration shows how a corner of any room can become a "bunk house"—to the delight of young "cowboys." Note that space above bunks, rather than being wasted, is devoted to cabinets—with plenty of storage room for clothing, cap pistols, toys, etc.

Building a "bunk house" is not too difficult a task for the average home handyman, and most suppliers of panel products even furnish detailed plans.

Morgan Horse Show Slated at Farm Council Grounds This Week

The twelfth annual Michigan All-Morgan Horse Show is to be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 1 and 2, at the Washtenaw County Farm Council grounds on Ann Arbor-Saline Rd. The show secretary is Marie Voss, 3675 E. Grand River, Howell.

There are to be 49 classes with over $125 stakes. Judge for the show will be Alfred Cox of Seekonk, Mass.

The Morgans are described as America's first established breed of horses, adapted to all kinds of terrain and climate and distinctive for their stamina and vigor, their personality and eagerness and natural way of moving. Morgans have been a registered breed since 1894 and the register begun at that time by Col. Joseph Battell of Middlebury, Vt., is now the property of the Morgan Horse Club, Inc.

This corporation now conducts the business of the registry.

Grade Morgans are very popular among those who cannot afford registered horses and many will be included in this week-end's All-Morgan Show.

KEPT HIS WORD

Miami, Fla.—"I'll be back," promised the angry suitor, Thomas Bishop, 36, as he marched out of the living room leaving a distressed damsel sitting there.

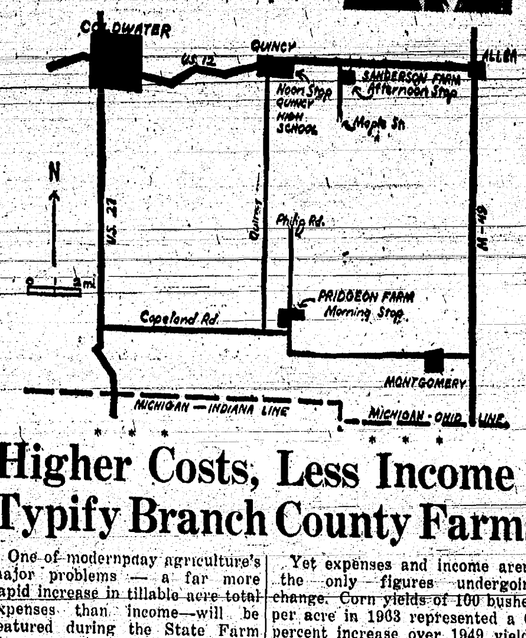
In the living room once again, Bishop said, "Told you I'd return."

Farm Management Tour August 5

Farmers contemplating a change won't want to miss seeing the two farms featured on the State Farm Management Tour sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University. Both Branch County farms have recently undergone major adjustments. The map (below) shows the location of the farms. Andrew Lampen, (right) president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Paul will speak at the noon program. The tour starts at 9:30 a.m. and ends about 3:30 p.m.



Higher Costs, Less Income Typify Branch County Farms

One of modern day agriculture's major problems — a far more rapid increase in tillable acre total expenses than income—will be featured during the State Farm Management Tour on Wednesday, Aug. 5.

The Dean Pridgeon farm near Montgomery—hosting this year's tour along with Leo Sanderson of Quincy—was also the site of the first State Farm Management Tour held in Branch county in 1949. Comparisons between the Pridgeon farm of 1949 and today reveal some highly interesting trends besides the conversion from dairying to pork production.

Gross income per tillable acre jumped 113 percent from 1949, but is completely overshadowed by a nearly-triple increase in total expenses per tillable acre. This trend, faced by nearly all Michigan farmers, makes it difficult to turn necessary costs into profits and forces many farms out of existence each year.

Yet expenses and income aren't the only figures undergoing change. Corn yields of 100 bushels per acre in 1963 represented a 64 percent increase over 1949 yields. Oat yield increased by 40 percent and wheat yields by 55 percent during the same period.

Although the Sanderson farm wasn't part of the 1949 Branch county tour, it has also been undergoing considerable change. One example is a totally new look since a fire two years ago forced development of a highly-mechanized low-cost loose housing system for 100 cows.

The Pridgeon farm will be toured at 9:30 a.m. with visitors moving to the Sanderson farm during the afternoon. A noon program, featuring Andrew Lampen, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Paul, will be held in the Quincy High school.

The entire program, beginning at 9:30 a.m., will be held at the high school in case of rain.

Mrs. John Mansfield Files For Register of Deeds Post

Mrs. Juanita M. Mansfield (Mrs. John Mansfield) became a Democratic candidate for Washtenaw County Register of Deeds by filing a bond last week.

Mrs. Mansfield was born in St. Louis, Mo. She is a graduate of Sumner High School, St. Louis, and attended the Diamond Business College in St. Louis. She is presently a housewife. She was formerly employed by the Willow Run Public Schools as a Child Accountant Clerk and for a time operated her own state-licensed day care home. Her husband, John Mansfield, works for the United States Government as an Operations Assistant for the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Mansfield is a member of the St. Alexis Catholic church in Willow Run as well as a member of the altar society of the church.

She was chairman of the 1964 March of Dimes campaign in Ypsilanti. She is a member of the NAACP. Mrs. Mansfield is the mother of three daughters, one of whom, Joyce, 11, is attending the University school in Ann Arbor. Jewel, 18, is a student at Western Michigan University. A third, Mrs. Judith Ann Goddman, is a graduate of University High school and Eastern Michigan University. She is a former teacher in the Highland Park public schools and is now in West Germany with her husband, teaching in one of the Army schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield live at 1309 Holmes Rd., Ypsilanti.

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Mansfield made the following statement: "I am deeply conscious of the importance of the office of Register of Deeds to the citizens of Washtenaw county, its functions in terms of recording the many transactions and documents concerning real and personal property which bring it into direct contact with practically every citizen who makes this area his or her home. If nominated and elected, I will draw on my training and experience to administer this office in a way in which the people of Washtenaw county may take pride, and to render maximum public service.

UCC Filings Net State Quarter of Million

Lansing — Filings under the Uniform Commercial Code by Michigan lending institutions netted the state nearly $250,000 in six short months. The Secretary of State's department reports that a larger percentage of its filings will revert to the registers of deeds in the counties starting Aug. 28 because of legislation passed during the recent legislative session.

There will be more than 5,000 domestic and agricultural exhibits at the 1964 Ionia Free Fair, and there are 134,287 square feet of floor area in the exhibit buildings.

Area Extension Group Members Attend Homemakers Conference

A total of 100 Washtenaw county Extension Study group members attended the all-day Homemakers Conference held Thursday at Michigan State University as part of the 17th annual observance of College Week for Women, held in co-operation with the Co-Operative Extension Service which this year observes its 50th anniversary.

The educational program offered during the week included a variety of classes which delegates and visitors were at liberty to attend.

Delegates from the Chelsea-Dexter area included Mrs. Carl Lesser, Mrs. LeRoy Feldkamp, Mrs. William R. Porter and Mrs. Arthur Weber. They attended classes which included the following: "Women's Role in Traffic Accident Prevention," "Introduction to Psychology," "Understanding Your Child's Mathematics," "Releasing Spiritual Resources for the Modern Family," "A Creative Approach to Home Decoration," and others.

High point of Thursday's Homemakers Conference program was the evening's talk by Mrs. George Romney, wife of Michigan's governor. She spoke in Trueblood Auditorium on the MSU campus following the scheduled banquet Thursday evening.

Mrs. Romney's topic, "Building Stronger Families," was presented in a manner which held the attention of audience in spite of the distraction of the unusually hot weather. Those from this area who were present said later that "a hush fell over the huge audience of women as Mrs. Romney began to speak . . . the frantic fanning with newspapers was forgotten as she talked earnestly, without notes," on the importance of homemakers.

Mrs. Romney unhesitatingly stated her conviction that women have an inspirational job to do and should take pride in the fact that "they are women." She interspersed her talk with quotations from the Bible and concluded by urging her listeners to "take up their duties as the moral leaders of their family and community, going to God for help and to His word for guidance."

Mrs. Earl Tison of Chelsea was in charge of registration for the women who went in two buses Thursday to spend the day at the conference.

She said those from the Dexter-Chelsea area who were in the group are Mrs. Arthur Stoll, Mrs. Melvin Leach, Mrs. Harold Widmayer, Mrs. Irene Proctor, Mrs. Roy Miller, Mrs. Jack Bradbury, Mrs. Clarence Reddeman, Mrs. Lewis Haselswardt, Mrs. LaVerne Coy, Mrs. Harold Sias, Mrs. Evelyn Breuninger, Mrs. Charles Powers, Mrs. Frank Mitchell and Mrs. Tison, herself.

Army Worms Found In Several Areas of County

Some small colonies of army worms have been found in Washtenaw county according to Don Johnson, county extension director. Farmers should be on the lookout for this insect especially in young second growth grasses.

The army worm is a caterpillar which crawls in large numbers from field to field devouring principally grasses and grain crops. Wheat, corn, oats, rye and grass forages are favored food plants.

The full-grown larvae is nearly naked, smooth striped caterpillar about one to one and one-half inches long when full grown. Its general color is green to brown and the stripes, one along each side and a broad one down the back are dark and often nearly black. The stripe along the back usually has a fine, light colored, broken line running down its center. The head is pale brown with a green tinge and mottled with dark brown.

There are usually three broods per year but seldom two successive outbreaks in any given locality.

For control two insecticides are cleared for crops used for all livestock feeds. Malathion or Sevin at the rate of 1 lb. actual per acre.

In 1963, Michigan's state forest campgrounds hosted almost 95,000 campers who spent an estimated $1,200,000 in the areas where they stayed.

So far, we have not heard a great outcry against the tax cut.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

Girl Can't Talk To Boys On Phone, Nor Go Steady

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am fourteen years old and am having trouble with my parents. They refuse to permit me to talk to boys on the phone or even go to the movies with them, nor go steady. My mother doesn't believe me when I say that some of my girlfriends are going to see a movie. If I do, mother buys the ticket and watches me until I get in the movie house. What can I do to make them trust and believe me? I will be fifteen in July."

OUR REPLY: Your problems will not cease when you turn fifteen. In fact, things won't "just change overnight" when you reach any particular age.

If you are wise, you will begin now to earn the confidence and trust of your parents. Begin by showing some appreciation for their efforts and interest, rather than objecting to the fact they want to know where you are going and who you are with all of the time. Your age is showing when you object to parental authority at fourteen!

Rather than consider your parents "mean" because they won't let you talk on the phone with boys, or have dates, or go steady, remember they are interested in your welfare and responsible for you. Accept their decisions. Discuss with them, as often as possible your future so far as talking on the phone and dating are concerned. Don't show resentment—but a willingness to cooperate and to follow the wishes of your parents.

Show your parents that you have an understanding of their problem and, chances are, you will find them more understanding of yours.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

SAME BIRTHDAY

Denver — Dad, Mother and baby were all born the same day of the same month.

Doctors said that this was very unusual. Statistics show that it could only happen once in 22,000,000 births.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Yoder and their first child were all born on May 16.

The beauty queen selection marks the finale of the Miss Michigan Pageant, held annually at the port city.

Winding up their activities Saturday, Aug. 1, are the Fowlerville Fair, Fowlerville; Barry County Fair, Hastings; Mecosta County Fair, Big Rapids, and the Iosco County Fair at Hale. The Jackson County Fair begins a week of activities Sunday, Aug. 2.

The Tin Can Tourists of the World—an organization of house trailerites—will be meeting in Traverse City. The event which began Monday, July 27, is scheduled to run through Aug. 10.

Concluding Saturday, Aug. 1 will be the Coast Guard Festival at Grand Haven, ending three days of festivities. The Michigan Steam Engine Rodeo at Hastings, will be held Friday, July 31, and Saturday, Aug. 1.

Continuing through the weekend is the annual Limestone City Festival at Rogers City, beginning Friday and ending Sunday, Aug. 2.

UNFAIR FARE

San Francisco, Calif. — Bell dancer Gaby Noble, 22, dressed in brief skirt, black stockings and low-cut neckline, got out of a cab from San Francisco.

"Wait here," she said as she walked into Municipal Court.

Three hours later, the cabbie wandered into Judge Charles Becker's courtroom and asked about his fare.

"Oh, her," said the bailiff. "She got 30 days for contempt and they took her away in the paddy wagon.

Credit Doctor With Saving Life at Lake

A University Hospital doctor was credited by sheriff's deputies Sunday with saving the life of a 44-year-old Ann Arbor man at Base Lake.

Officers said Dr. Gerald Lazarus applied mouth-to-mouth respiration to revive David B. Gaffney of 330 Gralake, Ann Arbor.

Deputies said Gaffney apparently suffered an attack or seizure moments after he and his son, Mark 13, intentionally overturned their 12-foot, fiber-glass sail boat near the U-M Sailing Club dock on Base Line Lake in Webster township. Officers said club members regularly tip their boats over to practice emergency measures.

After the Gaffneys had capsized their craft and both were in the water, the father shouted for help and then went under the water, deputies said. Mark immediately dove under the water, seized his father and pulled him to a dock.

There Dr. Lazarus and Dr. F. Wilson, also of University hospital alternated in giving mouth-to-mouth respiration. Sheriff's deputies and volunteer firemen from Dexter continued treatment until Gaffney was transported to U-M Hospital.

Chelsea Area Artists Exhibiting Works at Ann Arbor Street Fair

Local artists who are participating in the fifth annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, which began yesterday and continues through Saturday, are Mrs. Lee Ferguson (Sylvia), Mrs. Philip J. Eutscher and Peter Severn.

In the information submitted to The Standard for publication last week, Severn's name was incorrectly spelled.

Severn, a glass blower, is exhibiting some of his work; Mrs. Ferguson includes in her art work some of her enameled copper and other work, including silver jewelry and Mrs. Futscher will display lapidary work and faceting of precious and semi-precious stones and will also demonstrate mounting faceted stones in silver and gold.

The annual art exhibit is held in conjunction with Ann Arbor's Bargain Days and will extend from S. University Ave. to E. University Ave. to allow more display space for artists. From 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. (6 p.m. Aug. 1) artists will show creative works. Demonstrations in portraiture, ceramics, caricature, lapidary, enameling, jewlery, serigraphy, glass-blowing, spinning, wood sculpture, folk singing and guitar making have been scheduled daily.

It is said that the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair sells more art annually than any other street fair in Michigan.

We know of no one who got lost inside a church.

Tongue-Twisting

To the delight of millions of new readers, Sherlock Holmes has learned to say "Elementary, my dear Watson!"—in Arabic. And "To be or not to be" rolls out of the Gloomy Dane in Chuvash, a language of the Central Asian plains.

The translation of the Conan Doyle and Shakespeare works from their native English are two among 32,931 recorded in the newly published, 14th edition of "Index Translationum," produced by UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

As in previous years, the Bible is the most-translated work, having been published in 246 languages during 1961. In second place (185 translations) were Lenin's works.

Books classified as literature, account for over half (17,688) of works translated. The category is followed in order by law, social sciences and education (3410); history, geography and biography (2729); applied sciences (2590) and religion and theology (2181).

In recording the Conan Doyle and Shakespeare translations, UNESCO notes that "jumping from one language to another produces some rather surprising results."

Oscar Wilde, for instance, turns up in Georgian, the mother tongue of mountaineers in the Soviet Caucasus.

Furthermore, Spanish poet Federico Garcia Lorca is rendered into Czech, Edgar Allan Poe into Romanian and Emily Bronte into Japanese!

TWIN SISTERS ARE 100

Great Bend, Kans. — Possibly the oldest living twins in the United States, Mrs. Adelia Sandman Essmiller, who lives with a son, and Mrs. Amelia Sandman Bratberg of Holmen, Wis., recently celebrated their 100th birthday.

Although the sisters were not able to celebrate together they both enjoy good health except for slight sight and hearing failures. They last got together in 1955.

BIG BLOWOUT

Lydney, England — Residents were awakened in the early morning hours by a barrage of tires bursting as trucks rumbled along the highway.

Approximately a ton of nails strewn along the highway caused nearly 200 blowouts.

It took firemen, police and municipal squads nearly four hours to clear the road.

Police believe the keg of nails fell from a passing truck.
