CAP Progressing in Project To Provide New, Larger Plant

Mrs. Venita Dickerson—CAP Founder and Director

A factory addition is not a customary Christmas present for a lady. In this case, however, the lady herself is most unique.

Mrs. Venita Dickerson, 46, could make headlines for just her activities as founder, president and general manager of CAP, Inc. — a firm which employs only the handicapped. There are two additional factors involved. All her operations are conducted from a wheelchair and her formal schooling stopped in the fifth grade.

CAP, Inc., a non-profit organization, was started in 1960. Since then it has outgrown three buildings. The present site, at 25 Enterprise Dr. (an apt. address), will be retained for the new 16,400 square-foot plant which a group of dedicated community leaders are helping her realize. The new building will permit the present work force of around 50, to be increased to some 150 persons.

Chelsen can take pride in the part it has played in CAP's growth. Firms like Rockwell-Standard provide some of the jobs for which Mrs. Dickerson has contracted. Prominent people and organizations in Chelsen and Dexter are helping her raise the needed $200,000 for the new plant.

Two Chelsen residents are included among her employees. Susan Lounsbury is a capable, representative young lady who meets the public, answers the telephone and helps with the payroll. Except for the hand which was crippled by cerebral palsy, there is no indication that she's unlike thousands of other post young girls working in offices across the country. Susan, a graduate of Chelsen High School in 1963, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Lounsbury of Waters Rd.

One of the supervisors at CAP is George Slane of W. Middle St. George's capacity for work is limited by his inactive left hand which was the result of cerebral hemorrhage at the age of five days. In addition to his supervisory duties, George works on the sleeve and rod job which the firm assembles for Rockwell-Standard.

Most of the work is conducted at long tables in a large, airy room. One hears a little laughing. Here and there a conversation breaks out, somebody smiles.

As one visitor recently stated, "It's like a club. This place provides an opportunity for a little socializing as well as work. They seem to be having fun in addition to the security of a daily job."

The opportunity to work is a new experience to many at CAP and it stems from Mrs. Dickerson's inability to stay put though confined to a wheelchair.

Venita Dickerson was born in Owensboro, Ky., the youngest of 19 children. She was raised in Houston and Louisville. In 1940, she came to Ann Arbor. During World War II, she was a foreman at the Willow Run Bomber plant. At 22, she had charge of 127 employees in an electronics firm which is now part of the Burroughs Laboratories. She tried other things.

Susan Lounsbury—CAP Office Receptionist

George Slane—CAP Supervisor

For a time, she was production supervisor of a firm producing precision parts, later was employed by King-Seely. When the car crash which was to leave her confined to a wheelchair for the rest of her life occurred in 1958, she was salesman and food consultant for a frozen food concern.

The return to activity was gradual. Her two sons of a brief first marriage, were then in their teens, her husband worked as a milkman. It took grit and courage beyond the ordinary. Mrs. Dickerson had it. She learned to move in her wheelchair, accepted the limitations imposed by it and began developing an idea which today has resulted in a new concept in manufacturing — adapting a job to a person. Her first venture was modestly successful. She decided that if she could do it, others could. CAP's steady growth has proven her right. Today, the self-discipline she worked out helps her train others. And the training has been applied to many who "once thought a productive life was an impossibility."

Where does Mrs. Dickerson get her work force? From the veterans hospitals in the area, through agencies and through the applications from paraplegics, the sightless, the mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed. The requests keep pouring in. There's a back file of several hundred. This is why the urgency for a larger plant.

There's no doubt that today's plans will be a substantial reality tomorrow. Through newspaper features, appearances on radio and television, talks before civic groups, even business classes at the University of Michigan, Mrs. Dickerson has drawn upon the resources of hundreds of people. The list keeps growing. It includes heads of industries, civic leaders, educators and many private persons.

There is a volunteer corps of fund-raisers. The donations have started rolling in. Some run into four figures, others are modest sums.

The expansion in work contracts is commensurate. Last week, Mrs. Dickerson received a new, substantial contract from the Ford Motor Co. There'll be others, for Mrs. Dickerson is amazingly adept at estimating a job to a fraction of the cost which makes possible a profit for the industry offering it.

It is this ability to size up a job which proves the amazing talent of a woman who by today's standards would be numbered among the educationally

NEW LIBRARIAN NAMED: Mrs. Albert J. Sannes, at right, is the new chief librarian at McKune Memorial Library. She will assume her duties there Sept. 1, according to an announcement by Mrs. Frederick Wagner, Library Board president. She succeeds Mrs. Francis Wojciechowski (shown here with her) who resigned, effective Aug. 15, after 10 years of work at the library.

New Librarian Named

Mrs. Albert Sannes (Doris) has been appointed chief librarian at McKune Memorial Library. The appointment is effective Sept. 1. Mrs. Sannes replaces Mrs. Francis Wojciechowski who has been with the library the past 10 years, the last six years as chief librarian.

She had announced her resignation in the spring in order to give the Library Board time to select her successor, setting Aug. 15 as the effective date of her resignation.

The Library Board, accepting her resignation "with regret," presented Mrs. Wojciechowski with a gift in appreciation for her efforts on behalf of the Library.

Mrs. Sannes has had five years of experience in all departments of the Ann Arbor Public Library and served on the Pineckey Library Board for four years before moving to Chelsen two years ago.

Mrs. Sannes has had many contacts in Chelsen while living in Ann Arbor and Pineckey — her husband is general foreman in charge of roads and grounds maintenance at Chrysler Proving Ground the past 14 years.

Mrs. Sannes also was employed in the University of Michigan business offices and at the University's International Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Sannes, who live at 623 Arthur St., have three children, Laurie, Kathy and Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. James Beal and family, of Saline, were Sunday evening supper guests of Mrs. Beal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Kalmbach. The Beal's son, Freddie, remained to spend the week with his grandparents.

Eight Floats Entered for Fair Parade

George W. Atkinson, Community Fair parade chairman, says he already has registrations for eight floats to be entered in the parade scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 4.

Atkinson asks that any organization or group planning a float contact him at once at GR 9-6851 if the float is not included in the list.

Those listed are Kiwanis Club, Freshmen Class, Boy Scouts Troop 425, Sophomore Class, American Legion, Chelsen Fire Department, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Sinclair Gas Station.

Each float is eligible to enter a queen candidate.

Mrs. David Rowe who is chairman in charge of the Community Fair Queen project, sponsored by the Jaycees Auxiliary has set Aug. 24 as the deadline date for registrations.

She asks that she be given the name of queen candidates as soon as possible by calling her at 475-8065.

Palmer Site Selected For Proposed New Junior High School

Swim Pool On Separate School Ballot

A new issue was introduced by the Board of Education Tuesday night—a second question now to go on the Sept. 13 ballot is a swimming pool, at an estimated cost of $325,000.

"The community as a whole will benefit more from a swimming pool than from a gymnasium," Board Member Don Alber declared in support of the move. The question was originally brought up by President Luther Kusterer, at the request of "a number of groups of people in the district."

Total cost of constructing the two school building additions and the new junior high school was set at an estimated $2,300,000 by Architect Charles Starbuck. Of this amount, the South Elementary School addition of six rooms, library, lavatories and a corridor totaling 8,000 square feet, will cost an estimated $135,000. The 13,377 square foot eight-room high school school addition cost was pegged at $245,000 and the new 97,000 square foot junior high to total $1,980,000 when $50,000 for land and site development costs of up to $100,000 were added in.

It is expected that the additions to both the elementary and the high schools will be in use by next fall (1966), with construction beginning on the high school in October or November of this year and on the elementary addition by January. The junior high could probably be started in January or February, according to the architect, and would likely be in use by the opening of the 1967-68 school year.

Central Location, Easy Access Cited As Factors in Unanimous Decision

The Board of Education voted unanimously Tuesday evening to locate the proposed new junior high school on the Palmer property east of Madison St.

The central location of the property and the availability of the land at a cost the Board felt the district could afford were the deciding factors in their selection.

The property is within reasonable walking distance of the pupils for whom transportation is not provided by the school district.

There are accesses to the property from Madison St. and Freer Rd., and utilities are available. Sewer lifts and sewer extensions to the village sewer lines would be required at a cost of from $8,000 to $20,000.

Ten sites were examined and evaluated by the Site Selection Committee appointed by the Board of Education. The recommendations of this committee were studied and evaluated by the Board and visits were made to each of the sites.

The Board obtained options on two of the sites and soil test borings were authorized.

A comparison of the 10 sites was made on the basis of the following factors:

- (1) Recommendations of the Site Selection Committee.
- (2) Access to the property.
- (3) Availability of the land at a firm price.
- (4) Cost per acre of land.
- (5) Cost for sewer lifts and relocation of power lines.
- (6) Availability of water and sewer service.
- (7) Central location of property.
- (8) Walking distance of pupils to school.
- (9) Soil test boring results.

The result of the comparison was the unanimous selection by the Board of Education of the Palmer property for the location of the junior high school.

TOWNSHIP TREASURER: Announcement was made this week that Mrs. Charles Hoppe, widow of Max Hoppe, has been appointed Sylvan township treasurer to serve the unexpired term of Mrs. Letha Beaghe, who resigned because of illness. Mrs. Beaghe was township treasurer the past eight years and was re-elected last fall. She has been hospitalized twice recently. Mrs. Hoppe's home is at 18250 Kilmer Rd., however, during the fall and winter she lives at the Methodist Home where she has been employed as a licensed practical nurse the past year. For two years prior to that she was similarly employed at Mercy Hospital in Jackson following her graduation as a licensed practical nurse in 1962. A son, Lee, and his family are now living in her home on Kilmer Rd. Mrs. Hoppe's appointment by the Sylvan Township Board became effective last Saturday.

State Representative

Thomas G. Sharpe

Election Laws and Political Organizations

Among the unprecedented number of bills considered by the 1965 Michigan Legislature to date were bills dealing with elections, political parties, and political organizations. A goodly number of bills were introduced in the area of election laws, and many of them are now in the hands of political organizations for their review.

One of the bills, which would require a return to the "spoils" system for state employees, and major changes in political parties, either failed to receive sufficient votes for passage or were vetoed upon reaching the governor's desk. On the other hand, there were many bills which received bipartisan support which represent significant changes in the area of elections. Among the laws which did pass were:

—Allow Michigan voters who are away from the state and fail to vote in time to vote in their presidential elections in their new homes by Michigan absentee ballot; also allow voters who are away from the state just prior to a general election to cast their ballots by mail.

—Provide standard petition form and simplify some of the petition requirements and to provide that petition circulators must have their signatures notarized.

—Permit absentee voter ballots to be issued to voters who are unable to get absentee ballots before deadline before an emergency.

—Require political candidates to file in lieu of nominating petitions to file at least 72 hours before the petition filing deadline.

—Amend the drain code to provide for a four-year term for drain commissioners.

—Set April 10 of this year as starting date for terms of township officers elected last November, except justices of the peace who take office July 4.

—Provide for printing names of candidates for township offices on state election ballot.

—Provide that in all townships, candidates for township offices will be nominated at primary elections rather than by caucus, as is done in about half of the townships.

—Require serial numbers of ballots used in sealing voting machines, ballot boxes, and ballot certificates in all poll books.

—Allow third class school districts to recharter their biennial election on the same date as city village elections in 1966 and 1967.

—Extend terms of present third class school board members which are in 1965, 1967 and 1969 until successors are elected in 1968 and 1970 respectively.

—Authorize use of new automatic voting devices by cities and villages in local elections, for experimental purposes, before the legislature prepares detailed legislation covering new-type voting machines.

—Provide election details and specify terms of office for Detroit common pleas court judges in candidates shall now file with the city clerk rather than the secretary of state. If nominating petitions are used, signatures of not less than one-half of one percent nor more than 2 percent of the number of registered voters are required.

—Validate dual membership on intermediate and local boards of education. Measure covers those who continue to hold office either by election, re-election, or appointment until such office becomes vacant under the law.

—Correct confusion over lengths of current terms of county auditors. Terms are extended through December 31 of even years, with auditors then to be elected in the same manner as other partisan county officers.

—Speed up vote tabulations on election day by providing for separate counting of absentee voter ballots—starting before the polls close.

—Require paper ballots to be placed in sealed bags before storage in ballot boxes after counting.

—Reduce minimum number of signatures on nominating petitions for school board candidates in registration school districts from 50 to 20.

—Specify election dates for additional circuit judgeships approved this year.

—Outline election procedures for two or more adjoining school districts to form a community college district jointly.

TODAY'S INVESTOR

BY THOMAS E. O'HARA
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Association of Investment Clubs

Q. I have two children, a boy 8, and a girl, 8. I would like to make relatively safe investments to provide a college education for each of them. I have about $50 a month I feel I can devote toward this. Do you recommend the all-eggs-in-one-basket approach, or, for safety's sake, would you advise me to put at least a part of this $50 into a savings account?

A. With 8 to 10 years in which to accumulate the funds for your children's college education, I recommend a three-way approach to building the required capital. I suggest you put one-third of your monthly savings into a savings account, one-third into convertible preferred stock of a good-grade corporation, and one-third into a common stock of a good growth company. Your broker or banker should be able to guide you in making these selections.

Q. Can an investment club hold its stock in its own name, or must a broker keep it?

A. There are three ways an investment club may hold its stock, and which of the three it chooses will probably depend on the combined wishes of the club and its broker. This is so because from the standpoint of efficiency, brokers usually prefer to have all of the clubs with which they do business hold their stocks the same way.

The method of stock holding growing fastest in popularity with investment clubs is for the security to be registered directly in the name of the club itself, as a partnership. Widespread standardization of club partnership agreements and operating procedures brought about by the National Association of Investment Clubs, has enabled stock transfer agents to classify most clubs as true partnerships and accorded them the advantage of this simpler, direct method of stock registration.

The second most popular method of stock holding is for the security to be registered in the name of the club's broker and held by him for the account of the club.

The third method is to register club-owned securities in the names of two of its members as "joint tenants with rights of survivorship and not as tenants in common." This is probably the least-used of the three methods, but is still perfectly good procedure.

Q. When I open an account with a broker, am I restricted to dealing only with him?

A. No. You may, if you want to, open an account with every broker in town. However, you're likely to get better service by giving all your business to one broker than by splitting it among several. A broker is like any other businessman; the more he gets to know about you and your investment needs, the better job he can do for you.

ASCS Program Offers Help With Farmland Grass

Most of us take grass for granted, but we'd be in bad shape without it. Karl Dolatzky, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said this week.

"If we didn't have grass, we'd not only lose our topsoil and with it the fertility of our fields—but we'd have no fish in our streams. The silt clogging streams from run-off would soon kill all life in the rivers, streams, and farm ponds. For the same reason, our reservoirs would soon be full of silt and we'd be short of drinking water and water for household and industrial uses."

"You know the ASCS helps farmers get a good start of grass on farmland that has been in crops," he said. "We also have a practice in the Agricultural Conservation Program that helps farmers improve stands of grass they already have."

Under the 1965 ACP developed locally for this county, the ASC committee may approve cost share assistance of $10 an acre for initial establishments of grass.

Usually this represents about 50 percent of the total cost. The remaining cost is paid by the farmer himself.

Chairman Dolatzky pointed out that grass is just as important today as it was when the ACP was first started.

LET'S GO! MICHIGAN STATE FAIR AUG. 27-SEPT. 6 DETROIT

THE LANSING REPORT FROM senator GIL BURSLEY

Michigan's State Scholarship Fund, which it was my privilege to sponsor last year, is now entering its second season with a program tripled by the legislature.

Scholarships are for tuition only up to a maximum of $800 or actual tuition, whichever is less. Students may select the Michigan college of their own choice.

For a legislator it is very gratifying to receive letters from able and needy students who win grants. Recently I also met in person a charming young lady who had won an award and was headed for Siena Heights College on a day I was conducting Senate District Session in Blissfield.

For 1965-66 a total of 15,067 students took tests to win awards under this program. 9,847 were adjudged qualified. 2,832 scholarship winners have so far been announced. 785 high schools participated with 609 having at least one winner. Four-fifths of the students elect to go to a public college or university although only three-fifths of the money goes to these schools due to the higher tuition rates of private colleges.

Washtenaw county had 300 students participate with 229 qualified and about 50 thus far receiving awards. Lenawee county had 85 students taking tests and has about 35 receiving awards.

The University of Michigan was first choice of most students with 800 winners. Eastern Michigan had 32. Thus far Adrian has only 8 and Siena Heights 9. The Lenawee institutions also have about 20 second-year award winners back from last year.

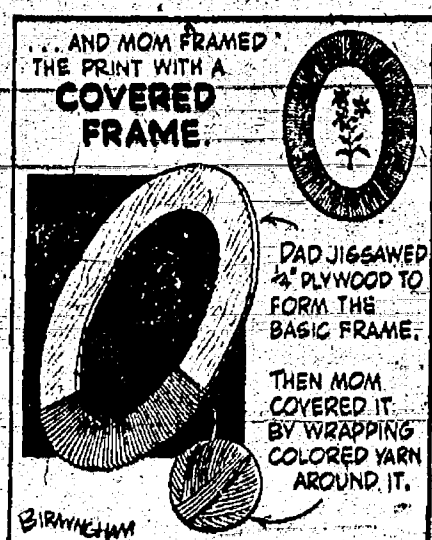

The State Scholarship Fund is administered by the Michigan Higher Education Assistance Authority which also handles a loan program to students. Average loans at Adrian College are $785; at Eastern Michigan $642 and at the University of Michigan $830. Siena Heights has available unused loan funds.

There are also federal loan funds available to students on which I would be happy to answer inquiries.

New Legislation May Help Farmers Hit By Disasters

Farmers afflicted by natural disasters may be aided by new legislation, the Michigan ASC state committee chairman announced.

Crop insurance on participating farms which were not planted to corn, barley, grain sorghum, or wheat because of flood, tornado, or other natural disaster may be affected, he said.

Any farmer who signed an application to participate in either the 1965 grain or wheat program is eligible. Farmers not signed to participate are excluded.

The benefit, Light said, is that the new legislation states that acreage not planted due to disasters will be considered as planted acreage and may be eligible for price support or certificate payments. The recent legislation provides for relief, provided the acreage is not later planted to price support crop for 1965 harvest.

Information and application blanks are available at local ASCS county offices, Light said.

Postage Stamp Spending Now Tops $100 Million

Ann Arbor—Postage stamps, one of the world's fastest-growing hobbies and businesses—accounts for the spending of more than $100 million a year.

University of Michigan business economist Ross J. Wilhelm says stamp collecting is not only a popular hobby but an important source of revenue for some countries.

In a radio program, "Business Review," produced by the U-M Broadcasting Service WUOM and WYGR, Associate Professor Wilhelm points out that the number of collectors has jumped from a few million a few years ago to over 25 million today. The amount spent by collectors now totals more than $100 million a year.

The greatest increase in collectors is in Europe, where incomes have risen very sharply over the past 10 years.

"For the first time since World War II, European collectors have been buying large quantities of stamps and collections in America, reversing the westward flow of stamps. The great upward shift in demand also has brought about sharp price increases in addition to increases in the supplies of stamps."

These increases come from three sources, Wilhelm notes: new issues by governments, the placing on the market of collections that were not previously for sale at lower prices, and the number of forgeries and faked stamps.

"The greatest increases recently have been in new issues and in forgeries," he says. "Most forgeries are skillfully done today, and involve upgrading low value stamps to higher value categories rather than actually printing fake stamps. While experts often can detect forgeries, it is very difficult for the average amateur to do so. The detection techniques include the use of ultraviolet light as well as microscopic examination and the use of various chemicals."

Some amateurs collect forgeries, Prof. Wilhelm says. However, since it is a violation of Federal law to possess fake stamps, most tend to be close-mouthed about this. "Since they are supposed to be turned over to the Treasury Department when detected, this makes amateurs reluctant to admit they have collections of forgeries."

Postage stamps can be an important source of revenue for small countries like Monaco, St. Helena and Tristan de Cunha. Many, such as Ghana, have been producing large quantities of stamps especially for collectors. Since collectors often base their collections on topical issues it is not unusual for countries to produce stamps on a particular topic just to appeal to collectors, Wilhelm points out.

"The most important topic in recent years has been the late President Kennedy, and many issues have featured him. Topics range from Shakespeare to sports, animals and almost any category you can name." Countries that are producing stamps for collectors but have only remote connections with the subject will still produce a stamp. Shakespeare, for instance, has been the subject for countries ranging from the Cayman Islands to East Germany.

"There even are some governments in exile in that issue and sell stamps to collectors—such as the Royal Bulgarian Government, residing in Spain. There are some 4,000 new stamp issues each

Constables Association States Goals

This article is to better acquaint readers with the office of constable and to enlighten you as to their activities.

The office of constable is not only one of the oldest police offices in the world, but also one of the oldest in this state. The Michigan Constables Association hopes to elevate it back to the position where they feel it rightfully and lawfully belongs, so they may be of better service to their communities.

A constable is a peace officer as well as a police officer, and may carry a sidearm without a permit. Some constable duties are to enforce the Uniform Traffic Code in his own township; serve processes from the courts or other governmental agencies, county-wide, and make arrests state-wide, without a warrant wherever a crime is committed in his presence.

Monthly meetings of the Association are held in room 117-A in the County Building on the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. and all constables are urged to attend.

The Association has a training period every month, a separate business meeting every month and two seminars: one at Michigan State University in East Lansing and one in Grand Rapids, or Traverse City. Instructors have included Sheriff Douglas Harvey, Lt. Edward Lemon and troopers from the Ypsilanti State Police Post; professors from Michigan State University; teachers from the State Police Training School; Federal Narcotics agents; and various judges and attorneys.

The Michigan Constables Association has a training program similar to State Police training with graduates receiving certificates upon completion. This course is scheduled to start in late September and will continue for approximately 11 months.

There are approximately 60 constables in Washtenaw county (not all active). Any additional information, requests or questions may be directed to Lyle L. Moore, secretary, 12804 Sharon Hollow Rd., Manchester.

AUTOMATION AND SCHOOLS

Just as the Industrial Revolution shook the world during the 19th century, automation is creating a crisis today. While the standard of living for many of us is going up and up, large segments of chronic unemployment are also being created. These unemployed—the victims of automation—are largely those whose jobs have been taken over by machines or who have no marketable skill in today's technically-oriented world.

The burden of educating and retraining these workers is falling heavily on our schools. In many schools, special programs are being developed for those youths who need saleable job skills immediately after high school graduation.

In these communities there is a growing awareness of the need for continuing education and retraining.

Workers must keep up with developments in their own field and they must know of advancements in other areas which will eventually affect their jobs. In these days of rapid change, a man may have to be retrained for several jobs during his lifetime. As his skills become outmoded, there must be an agency available to train him in a new skill.

Our advancing technology is also going to mean shorter working hours and increased leisure time. We will have to learn to use this extra time wisely and the schools may again be called on to prepare us for these changes.
