Thirty-eight members attended the regular business meeting which followed the discussion. The members voted to have a party each month honoring members whose birthdays occur during the month.

The first birthday party will be Jan. 6. A birthday cake will be provided and honored guests will sit at a specially decorated table.

A social party will be held Jan. 19.

Dexter Team Wins Holiday Cage Tourney

Fine Second-Half Rebounding Effort Breaks Open Championship Game

The Dexter Dreadnaughts basted the Chelsea Bulldogs in the final game of the Chelsea Holiday Tournament Dec. 30 to carry home the winner's trophy.

Tomorrow evening the Bulldogs will have a chance to revenge the stinging 62-53 defeat when the two teams meet again at Chelsea as regular conference play resumes. Both teams are 1-1 in conference play.

Tuesday evening the Bulldogs will host the Manchester Dutchmen in a non-conference bout. Manchester has lost only once in five outings this season.

In other contests during the final day of tournament play, the Brighton Bulldogs triumphed, 70-60, over the Ypsilanti St. John Crusaders; the Milan Big Reds captured the consolation trophy when they trounced the Jackson St. Mary Celts, 76-60; and the Lincoln Trailblazers barely subdued the Stockbridge Panthers, 64-65.

Summaries of the final games follow.

Brighton Rout St. John

The much-feared potential power of the Brighton Bulldogs finally displayed itself in the one-sided contest with Ypsi. St. John, as the Bulldogs ran off to an early 18-0 first quarter lead and were never in trouble from then on.

The St. John Crusaders outscored Brighton in the second half, 43 to 35, as the Brighton coach, Bob Marks, substituted freely.

The victory was Brighton's first in the tourney while St. John lost three in a row.

Don Herbst led Brighton in scoring with 3 points, 10 of them in the first quarter. A smooth shooting sophomore, Greg Berklich, led St. John with 17 points, giving him a total of 58 points for the three games.

The meeting was opened by President Don Turner. Paul G. Schaible, Jr., first vice president, Clare M. Warren, second vice president, Paul F. Niehaus, secretary, John C. Bettinger, treasurer. The following directors were installed for two-year terms: John M. Fall, Gene Miller, William J. Rademacher, and Bruce Stubbs. Ralph Guenther, Eldon Heller, Clarence Pendley and Walter R. Zech were installed for one-year terms as directors.

Lincoln Squeaks By Stockbridge

Lincoln held off a late Stockbridge rally to win, 66-65, in the other "meaningless" game of the evening, as neither team had a chance for receiving a trophy. Despite the lack of any outside reward for winning, both teams showed much desire in obtaining a victory to add to their season's total.

Lincoln, obviously a smarting from the loss to Chelsea in the previous night's action rolled to 22-18 first quarter lead and were never headed. They were led by guard Jim Stanford's 21 points and hustling forward Steve Shunk's 11. Stanford accumulated 72 points for the tourney to lead all scorers.

Stockbridge forward Dave Mills also scored 21 for the evening, and fellow forward, Rob Sooy, added 18.

Lincoln's record now stands at 4 and 2, while Stockbridge is 3 and 4.

L. M. Benkert Dies Suddenly In Florida

Louis M. Benkert, 64, founder of Chelsea Manufacturing Corp., died suddenly on Dec. 31 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

His home was at 60 Brady Lane, Bloomfield Hills. Funeral services were Wednesday at the Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton Co., 820 E. Maple Ave., Birmingham, with burial at the White Chapel cemetery.

Although he had not lived in Chelsea, he was well-known to many residents as the founder and first president and treasurer of the Chelsea Manufacturing Corp. The company began production of sheet metal fabrications, truck assemblies and panel truck bodies on Aug. 2, 1950.

Announcement was made on Dec. 1, 1964, that the company had been sold and the name of the plant had been changed to Chelsea Manufacturing Corporation, Division of Asco, Inc. Benkert remained with the company as an individual exclusive sales representative and consultant.

He had previously been associated as a sales engineer with the Wetherill Manufacturing Corp. of Detroit and with the Progressive Welding Co. and International Harvester.

Benkert was born in Ohio on May 28, 1901. He was a member of the First Methodist church of Birmingham-Oakland Hills Country Club, the Society of Automotive Engineers, and the Society of Welding Engineers.

His wife, Elena, and his father, Louis Benkert of Kissimmee, Fla., survive.

Trio Charged With Beating Dexter Man

Three Livingston county residents will be arraigned in Municipal Court in Ann Arbor for the brutal beating of Freddie Henes at approximately 7 p.m. Dec. 30.

Dexter Police Chief Robert Taylor and Officer Robert Wisely were summoned to Main St. between LaRosa's and Sportsman's where the three men were beating Henes at approximately 7 p.m. Dec. 30.

Henes was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where a laceration of the upper lip took 20 stitches to close. Henes also had lacerations above both eyes and a black eye.

Chief Taylor stated they had to wait until Monday for warrants due to the holiday and that arrests were made the same afternoon.

Warrants for arrests were issued for Lawrence and Jack Bennett and Chris Campbell, all of Livingston county.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson have returned home from a trip to Florida where they took a plane to spend several days on Grand Bahama Island during the Christmas holidays.

Eight Other Chelseas Found Throughout U.S., Canada

Chelsea has endured eight floods, tornadoes, 40-below zero weather, and was incorporated under the laws of the Cherokee nation.

Baldernash? No, just different Chelseas.

Research by James F. Hoffmeyer, science teacher at Chelsea-Mich. Junior High school, turned up eight other Chelseas in seven states and one Canadian province.

Hoffmeyer became interested while studying in Oneonta, N.Y., one summer on a National Science Foundation grant. On an outing, he happened upon Chelsea, N.Y., and began pursuing other cities by the same name.

This fall, Hoffmeyer found a list of Chelseas in an atlas. He wrote to the various cities and received a great deal of information which will eventually be placed in the McKune Memorial Library.

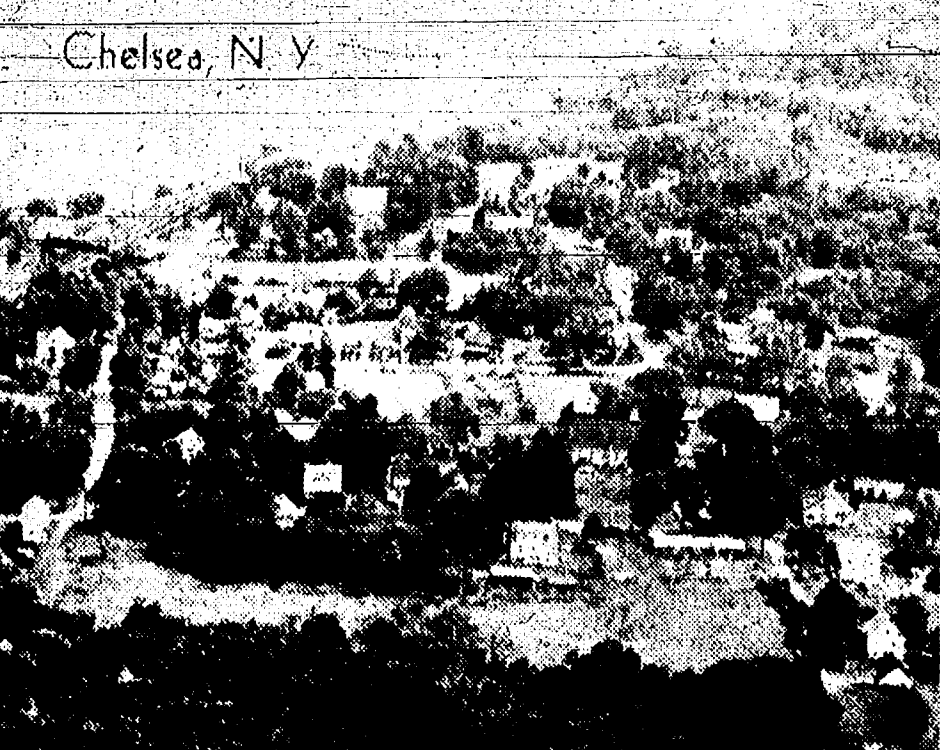

He discovered the smallest Chelsea, in Wisconsin, with only 125 residents and a school enrollment of 50. This Chelsea has no major industries and is 12 miles south of Medford, the nearest "large town," population 3,300.

In contrast, the oldest Chelsea in Massachusetts, Chelsea, Mich., is said to be a namesake listed in 1730 on the site of a trading post which had been started in 1624. Hoffmeyer discovered that Chelsea, Mass., has a population of 33,749 living in a 1.8 square mile area.

Bound on the east by Mill Creek and the Chelsea River, the city boundaries, composed of the Mystic River and the Chelsea River, separate Chelsea from Boston.

Hoffmeyer points out that Chelsea also has the distinction of being the lowest of the 10 feet above mean sea level.

Chelsea's coldest U.S. counterpart is in the lower third of Maine, where temperatures occasionally register 40 below zero, Hoffmeyer revealed. A suburban community of Augusta and Gardiner, this Chelsea claims a population "in excess of 2,000." Incidentally, persons writing to this Chelsea will find their mail routed through the Gardiner post office.

THIS IS CHELSEA: If Chelsea-ites don't recognize this view of Chelsea, it's because this Chelsea is located in New York state, one of eight cities in seven states and one Canadian province by that name unearthed by James F. Hoffmeyer, 146 Orchard.

The Kennebec River bounds the west and south side of the city. Incorporated in 1850, some of the first settlers were from Chelsea, England.

Hoffmeyer learned that at least three of the Chelseas—Maine, Oklahoma and Iowa—selected their appellation because of ties with England.

One of the founders of Chelsea, Okla., hailed from Chelsea, England, Hoffmeyer disclosed.

Incorporated under the laws of the Cherokee Nation, this city had a population of 2,104 in May, 1962. (1,541 live within the city limits. The Fireco Railroad came to this Chelsea in 1882, and the principal source of income since 1880 has been from oil wells. This counterpart is located on U.S. Highway 66 in northeastern Oklahoma and has a school enrollment of 642.

Called Otter Creek until it was renamed for the English Chelsea, Chelsea, Ia., is located on the Iowa river in central Iowa.

Disaster has plagued the city. Battered by at least two tornadoes, the town has been flooded eight times—in 1881, 1918, 1944, 1945, twice in 1947 and once in 1960. (The next major project for this city of 463 is to find a doctor.)

In 1952 a fire occurred in the Chelsea, Ia., Stop & Shop Grocery.

Notwithstanding these calamities, Hoffmeyer brought out that the Iowa Chelsea survived to celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1964.

A central Vermont village "snuggled in a valley between gently sloping mountains to the east, north and west" and with 18 miles of two ski areas also bears the name of Chelsea, Hoffmeyer learned. This Chelsea is a bustling city of 857 persons, located not far from the White River. Factories make chair stock and metal screws; a cream-

Civil Defense Unit Reports Busy Year

This is a report on Civil Defense for 1965 for Zone 6.

A complete Civil Defense Hospital Unit was received here in Chelsea from the United States Government and is now stored in the Municipal Building and several other buildings here in Chelsea.

A portable generator capable of producing 50 Watts was bought by the local Civil Defense and given to the Chelsea Fire Dept. to be used for emergency power when needed by the Chelsea Fire Dept. This unit replaces the generator that was used by the Fire Dept. in their previous fire barn. Two 25-inch lengths of hose were purchased by the Fire Dept. thru Civil Defense at a great savings in cost.

A complete new Radio Communications System was purchased through Civil Defense for the Chelsea Police Department at a saving of many hundreds of dollars.

A Deputy Civil Defense Director was appointed and confirmed by the Village Council (William Chandler) to work with the Civil Defense Director.

A monitor set for Emergency Communications was purchased by the local School Board for weather bulletins, storm warnings, etc. This was handled through the local Civil Defense Office.

Several local people have taken the general and advanced Red Cross First Aid Course under the help and assistance of the local Civil Defense Office.

A new communication system has been started and has been in operation for some time in this area consisting of 31 units working as an auxiliary under the direction of the local Civil Defense office. This communications system uses the Citizen's Radio Service.

Two portable Walkie Talkie Units were purchased through the Civil Defense Funds and given to the local Police Department for their use.

Two portable generators complete with lights, cords, etc., to be used for emergency lights are now available and are on a stand-by basis.

In case of power failure for this area the emergency communication center has auxiliary power to maintain communications equipment in case the emergency communication center is inoperative due to malfunctioning of equipment or tornado. A 2,500-watt generator has been installed and is tested weekly in another portion of Chelsea and is complete with radio equipment and operated periodically under test conditions. In case both of these units fail a 3,000-watt portable generator is installed, complete with radios and is located north of Chelsea tied in with our communications here in Chelsea. All of these units are tested weekly.

Several fallout shelters in private homes have been constructed and are stocked and ready for emergency use.

Understanding your HEALTH

By Albert E. Heustis, M.D. Director
 Michigan Department of Public Health

Diabetes is a disease that begins so slowly that its early signs are often missed by its victims—but this disease killed more than 2,000 Michigan folks last year.

Yet, diabetes is a condition that can be medically treated and controlled—once discovered, that is. The important thing is to find out if you have it, and to find out early enough so that treatment may be started to head off complications. This covered early and properly controlled diabetes can still allow a normal active life. But if neglected it can lead to wasting illness and premature death.

You sure you see the situation. Here is a disease for which medical science has a treatment and yet this help is not being employed by many of the folks who need it. According to reliable estimates, about one-half of the people suffering from diabetes don't know it.

Diabetes is a condition in which the individual's body cannot convert the sugars and starches he eats into fuel for his body cells. Instead, this sugar accumulates in his blood stream and in some cases spills over into the urine.

Symptoms of the disease may be very misleading. In many instances, mild cases show no warning signs at all. With more severe, untreated diabetes, there are three major danger signs—thirst, excessive urination and hunger. But as I have said many persons with the disease have no dramatic symptoms—some just don't feel well.

Fortunately, doctors now have several tests which can be used to diagnose even mild diabetes. This is one of the reasons why visiting your doctor on a periodic basis for a complete health checkup is so important.

While not designed as a substitute for this complete examination by your doctor, screening or disease-suspecting programs sponsored by health departments and diabetes associations are excellent, and very helpful in discovering the affliction and motivating those individuals to go to their doctors for diagnosis and treatment.

Elk Hunters Harvest 183 Big Animals

Lansing—Michigan's second modern-day elk hunt is history and into its records go the names of 183 successful sportsmen who hauled home about 35 tons of elk from the Pigeon River area of the northern Lower Peninsula.

The Dec. 31-2 season's total catch of nearly 300 hunters failed to match last year's high harvest of 299 animals, but they did better than the Conservation Department had predicted, they found. Their success ratio of about 62 percent was a respectable one even when measured against last season's pace-setting mark of 50 percent.

The pre-season kill predictions were based on information from western states with long experience in elk hunting.

Unlike a year ago when near-perfect hunting conditions prevailed, this season had little snow to help sportsmen and rains pelted the Pigeon River area during the week-end of the hunt.

This year's hunters, although not showing the same charged enthusiasm of those who took part in the 1964 history-making hunt, were generally happy about things except the weather.

One of the reasons for this was that most of the successful hunters saw good numbers of elk. The first 112 lucky ones checked through the Conservation Department's Pigeon River research station reported seeing 885 elk, or about eight animals each.

This compares closely with last season when the first 104 hunters with animals said they spotted 780 elk.

The pattern of this season's kill and the herd's distribution was quite different from last year, when elk were taken in fairly even numbers throughout the primary part of their 600-square-mile range, including the Pigeon River, Breckenridge, and Montmorency counties.

This year the elk take was hunched up in blocks of 10-12 square miles.

Season-long research work by the department shed more evidence that Michigan's elk herd is a healthy, growing one which has good reproduction.

Reflecting the same thing was the fact that while many hunters were trying to get older and bigger trophies, 92 percent of all 183 animals taken were less than six years old.

This means that a large segment of the elk population is made up of young animals and adds weight to the department's estimate that the herd's net production each year totals upwards of 450 animals. It also means that the herd can and should be hunted each year to keep these relatively short-lived animals from going down the drain, game men point out.

A comparison of this season's harvest and the estimated annual increase of the herd indicates that hunters did not scratch the surface of the animals' breeding population, according to the Department. As a result, game biologists say that the herd, estimated at 3,000-3,500 animals before the season, could be even larger next fall.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Big Problem

A unique solution to at least temporarily quell the farmers' cries over the U. S. Government farm program has been proposed in Washington which has particular significance for Michigan.

Originally proposed by U. S. Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the measure has been introduced in the House by Michigan's own Rep. John C. Mackie, who represents the Genesee-Lapeere District.

Farmers have for several years screamed that the government should get completely out of their business and stop paying people money not to grow certain crops.

"At first I thought we ought to get the government out, but I did a little studying when I got to Washington and decided that wasn't practical," says Mackie.

The first-term Congressman had a farm of his own in Holt, south of Lansing, during the years he served as Michigan's highway commissioner. He experienced a sharp run-in with the Federal government over a small amount of wheat acreage. He allowed it under after a series of protests.

So he knows well, and sympathizes with, the farmer's view of the farm program and policies.

Information gathered in Washington indicated to Mackie that McGovern had a sound idea. He received permission for the Senator to put the bill through the House.

Now known as the McGovern-Mackie bill, the proposal has been dubbed the World Food and Nutrition Act.

It proposes to solve the American farm surplus problem and the world's starvation problem by paying U. S. farmers for growing food for peace programs. The food would be bought from the farmers and sold, exchanged or donated to nations without adequate nutritional supplies.

Big trouble is things change too fast. Food scientists are already predicting a food shortage so severe by 1970 that millions of people will starve. This, despite all the food the U. S. can grow and export plus what others can produce.

George Borgstrom, internationally famous MSU food authority and author of a new book, "The Hungry Planet," writes that the population explosion makes it nearly impossible to keep up the present, inadequate level of food production. He urges an immediate and massive effort to be made to face up to this growing problem.

There is every indication that new legislation dealing with food for the world's hungry should be undertaken soon, but only after the best possible understanding of all the problems involved has been grasped.

Pressure will be on in 1966 for the legislature to provide funds to students who choose to attend private colleges in Michigan.

The arguments presented by officials of the 17 private schools, including church-related institutions, make it appear to be a case of six-of-one-and-half-a-dozen-of-the-other where taxes are concerned.

An association of these colleges contends, however, that its proposal for state grants would save millions of dollars in the rising cost of operating the state-supported colleges and universities.

A tuition grant plan prepared by the group would differ from the present state scholarship program in that the funds would be allotted without competition among the prospective students.

It would be based entirely on financial need of students wishing to attend private schools.

AGRICULTURE in Action

Happiest New Year

People know what they mean when they dream of a white Christmas, and in Michigan a white Christmas is more common than not! But what do different people mean when they dream of a happy New Year?

Farmers are apt to be dreaming and hoping for some of the same things that they sought in vain during 1965. With the Michigan legislature opening its 1966 session, another hope is born that action will be taken to relieve the tremendous pressure of property taxes on Michigan farmers.

Legislators sidetracked the issue of "tax reform" last year. Some took the distinctly limited view that since Michigan appeared not now in need of increased revenues, no tax reform was timely. So they tabled all action.

It would be a happier New Year in 1966, from the farmer's viewpoint, if some of the lawmakers would broaden their vision to see that tax reform needs to include a more equitable spreading of the tax load.

With Michigan farmers surrendering an average of 17 percent of their net incomes in taxes as compared to 3 percent to 4 percent for non-farm property owners, just a willingness to look at the tax facts would mean a brighter outlook to the people who till Michigan's soil.

It is unfortunate when the needs of people become entangled in the web of inter-party contention. It is more unfortunate if we reach a stage in government in which the only groups that can be heard are those to whom some party owes a political obligation through past elective support.

It would be a happy New Year if urban recognition should begin to take note that the food which graces the family table is a product of the farms of Michigan and that such an abundance of food cannot be provided for our growing population by a declining agriculture.

Farmers may be a small minority of our state population, but the products of the farms are found on the tables of 100 percent of our Michigan citizens.

HOSPITAL TIME

The average patient's hospital stay is about half as long today as it was 25 years ago. The average stay in 1935 was 14 days and today it is 7. Better medicines, new equipment, and improved treatment are credited with shortening the stay.

Some people make church work and attendance a part of their business or political effort.

Michigan State University nutrition experts say rice flour is one of the key ingredients in frozen desserts, gravies, and sauces. It is not available to homemakers, and is one of the key reasons commercial firms are able to produce frozen creamy desserts. The flour has a waxy base.

8 Other Chelseas . . .

ary and a lumber industry are also situated there.

The New York Central Railroad makes passenger service available three times a day in Chelsea (New York, that is). Located on the Hudson River, originally a shipping port whose main industry is a lumber company, this city of 600-800 boasts of a Yacht Club which is "one of the best on this body of water." This Chelsea is the one which sparked Hoffmeyer's interest in Chelsea-hunting.

The final Chelsea Hoffmeyer discovered is in Canada, eight miles west of Ottawa, Ontario. Major industries are hydroelectric and skiing. The population of 500 will soon be living in Gatineau National Park. The new park will surround and include Chelsea, which will be shown on the park map as "Old Chelsea" town within an area known as Chelsea.

Persons learning of other Chelseas are encouraged to contact Hoffmeyer. He said that there may be another Chelsea in South Dakota, but that no answer was received when he wrote to that city.

THE LETTER

To the Editor: The Chelsea Standard. I wish to express my appreciation of the splendid Christmas copy of The Chelsea Standard. The lovely business ads, the Christmas backgrounds, the most commendable. Also the item on Christmas cards, Christmas customs and evergreen being the favorite tree, plus the Christmas church services made the edition most welcome and desirable.

Respectfully, Rev. Matthew J. Batz, Methodist Home.

P.S. The color of the newspaper was very attractive and suitable for the season of Christmas.

THE COUNTRY PULPIT: The Incomparable Christ

HE came from the bosom of the Father to the bosom of a woman. He put on humanity that we might put on divinity. He became Son of Man that we might become sons of God.

He was born in a supernatural way, lived in poverty, reared in obscurity. Only once crossed the boundary of the land, in childhood. He had no wealth or influence, and no college education; yet the profoundest wisdom of men has never equalled His last discourses in John 13 to 17, and the sermon on the mount. "Never man spoke like this man."

His relatives were inconspicuous and unimportant. In infancy He startled a king; in boyhood He puzzled the doctors; even at twelve years of age proving He was far in advance of the theologians, for He was taught of God; in manhood He ruled the elements, so that He could defy the laws of gravitation by walking on the water, and quiet the raging sea. He healed the multitudes without medicine, and made no charge for His services.

He never wrote a book, yet not all the libraries of the country could hold the books that have been written about Him. He never wrote a song, yet He has furnished the theme or more songs than all song-writers combined. He never founded a college, yet all the schools together cannot boast of as many students as He has.

He never marshalled an army, drafted a soldier, nor fired a gun, yet no leader ever made more volunteers, who have under His orders made rebels stack arms or surrender without a shot being fired.

Great men have come and gone, yet He lives on. Herod could not kill Him, Satan could not seduce Him, Death could not destroy Him, the grave could not hold Him, and even demons obeyed Him. He fed the hungry multitudes with a boy's little lunch, broke up funerals, and gave back to life those that were dead.

He laid aside His purple robe for a peasant's gown. He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor. As to how poor? Ask Mary. Ask the Wise Men. He slept in another's manger; He cruised the lake in another's boat. He rode on a borrowed beast. He was buried in a rich man's tomb.

He conquered death, rose on the third day as He said He would, ascended into Heaven, is now at the right hand of the throne of God, and will one day come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory for His own born-again, blood-bought ones to be forever with Him according to promise after which He will judge the world in righteousness, when every knee shall bow to Him and every tongue shall confess His as Lord. His friends gladly, but His enemies seeking for a place to hide from His face. (Rev. 6:15).

The ever Perfect One - He is the Chief among ten thousand, the only One who can satisfy the soul and give everlasting LIFE to those who have it not.

HE IS ALTOGETHER LOVELY, and He wants to be YOUR Savior.

But He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed. Isaiah 53:5.

Mrs. David Philip Feldkamp

Jo Ann Wortley, David Feldkamp Speak Vows at Grass Lake Church

The Grass Lake Methodist church was the setting on Saturday, Jan. 6, at 2 p.m. for the marriage of Jo Ann Wortley and David Philip Feldkamp. The Rev. Archie Donigan, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Forrest Cook was the organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wortley of Grass Lake. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Feldkamp of Chelsea.

The floor-length bridal gown of clustered satin was fashioned with an organza sheer bodice with a scooped neckline. The bouffant skirt was swept back caught with organza ribbons. A train of seed pearls, tear drops and an organza rose held the shoulder-length illusion veil. The bride carried a cascade of shattered carnations centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Gordon Hubbard of Battle Creek was her sister's matron of honor. Misses Gail Ferguson and Joyce Hevenden of Jackson were bridesmaids. They were attired in floor-length gowns with bodices of gold brocade and skirts of pastel yellow crepe and wore matching velvet bows. They carried cascades of white carnations accented with gold leaves. Carolyn Hubbard, niece of the bride, who was the flower girl, wore a white silk organza and carried a miniature cascading bouquet. Michael Hubbard, a nephew, was ring bearer.

Gary Grossman was best man. Gary Koch and Jon Wortley, brother of the bride, acted as the groom's attendants.

The 30th wedding anniversary celebration was held at the First Baptist church in Tecumseh. The couple have lived in Tecumseh for 25 years.

George Schumm retired about a year ago as a sales representative for Crut Publications. He once worked for the City of Jackson. Arrangements for the celebration were made by the couple's seven children: George A., Jr., of Wayne, Frederick of Chelsea, Robert H. of St. Clemens, Albert A. of Birmingham, Mrs. Ralph and Goltz of Saline, Mrs. Robert Osborn of Tipton and Mrs. Elizabeth Wing of Tecumseh.

A reception was held in Wesley Hall following the ceremony. Mrs. Ralph Feldkamp of Jackson, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Waldo Ehms of Clinton, a cousin of the bride, cut the wedding cakes. Karen Osborne and Darlene Palmer assisted at the punch and coffee tables. Carol Wineland had charge of the guest book.

The rehearsal dinner was given Thursday evening by the bridegroom's parents at their home, 1224 Kernwood Rd.

Prenuptial parties were given by Mrs. Daryl Leonard and Mrs. Ralph Feldkamp of Jackson, Mrs. Wilbur Wineland of Grass Lake, and by co-workers of the Chelsea Milling office.

For traveling the bride chose a winter white ensemble and wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The newlyweds will reside at Indianapolis, Ind. while Pvt. Feldkamp is stationed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison for special training in business and finance.

Winans Jewelry Store

BY THOMAS E. O'HARA
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Association of Investment Clubs

Q. I am 55 and am thinking of my retirement. I would like to invest in mutual funds because all the reading I have done on the subject seems to show that this is the safest way. Do you agree? Also what could I expect a $20,000 investment in a mutual fund to return me in 10 years if it was not touched? I realize you can only guess, but your guess comes from experience.

A. Mutual funds are certainly something you should consider. Keep in mind, however, that different mutual funds—like different stocks—vary tremendously in their individual performance. Your library probably has Wiesenberger's book on mutual funds, or perhaps a copy of the Aug. 15, 1965 issue of Forbes Magazine which lists a large number of funds and tabulates their performance records. From these two sources you will note that, if you had been so fortunate as to have invested $10,000 in the best mutual fund 12 years ago, it would be worth more than $50,000 today. If, on the other hand, you had picked one of the poorer performing common stock funds, your $10,000 would be worth about $18,000. And if you had picked one of the less successful bonds and preferred stock funds, your $10,000 would now be worth less than $10,000.

You might consider dividing your $20,000 into more or less equal investments in several blue chip companies—such as General Motors, Detroit Edison, Consumers Power, Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Foods—$10,000 invested in these at their lows 10 years ago would now be worth $39,500 and you would have received dividends this year of $1,793. You might then consider taking the income you would receive in dividends and periodically reinvest it in a good mutual fund.

Whatever course you decide on, I would suggest that you discuss your plan with your banker before acting.

Q. I have read your column in my local newspaper and like it. I have a question regarding stock quotations. When a particular stock is shown as closing at plus or minus, is this the percent on each dollar of its value? For instance, if the figure under the "100's" column reads 93, the high is 14%, the low is 10%, the close is 13% and the change is -2%, does this mean that 9,300 shares were sold, that the high price for the day was $14.62 1/2, the low was $13.62 1/2, the close was $13.75 with a change of 37 1/2 cents loss?

A. Your interpretation is correct. The final stock quotation figure, in the column headed "change," refers to the difference between the closing price for that day and the closing price the previous day.

In most papers you will see the quotations given in decimal form, such as 14.5. In this case the decimal designates eighths rather than tenths. Thus a stock listed at $4.5 is selling at $4.62 1/2, not at $4.50 as you might think.

Have you a question about investing? Mr. O'Hara, editor of the monthly magazine, "Better Investing," and one of the nation's recognized authorities, will be glad to answer it. Write to T. E. O'Hara, National Association of Investment Clubs, Department S, Box 1056, Detroit, Mich. 48231, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

MEDICARE DEADLINE

The deadline for persons 65 and over to enroll in the voluntary medical insurance phase of the new Medicare program has been set for March 31. This insurance cost $3 a month and is designed to cover doctor bills and other medical expenses. Those who miss the deadline will have to wait two years to enroll.

MORE BASES TO CLOSE

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced another 149 military bases at home and abroad will be closed. McNamara said these bases are "surplus to our needs" and the cutbacks "will be completed without decreasing military effectiveness."

GETTING SET FOR SPEARING: Hoping to coax a pike or a muskie into spearing range, a fisherman dangles a decoy through his hole in ice. Knowing that the element of surprise is all important in this specialized brand of winter sport, he'll next follow up his fish-teasing tactics by lowering his spear slightly into the water. That way, his spear won't make a loud plunging sound to warn fish when it is sent streaking toward an underwater target. It's things like this that pays off since the spearing season opened Jan. 1 in Michigan's inland waters. Northern pike, muskellunge, and lake trout head the list of targets that may be taken through the ice during this season which continues on inland waters until the end of February. The stakes get even bigger in February when sturgeon are also open to spearing. Action on these long-lived lunkers will center on inland waters in the Choboygan and Indian River chain of lakes — Black, Burt, and Mullett.

Placement Test Slated Saturday

Washtenaw county residents interested in putting their skills to use in developing nations around the world are invited to take the Peace Corps placement test at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 8 at the Civil Service Room, U.S. Post Office, Downtown Station, 220 N. Main St., Ann Arbor.

The Peace Corps uses the placement test to determine how an applicant can best be utilized overseas. The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. (If test scores indicate a limited language-learning ability, for example, the Peace Corps tries to place the applicant in an English-speaking country.) The placement test requires no preparation and is non-competitive — an applicant can neither pass nor fail.

The placement test takes about an hour and a half. An optional achievement test for applicants who have studied French or Spanish requires another hour.

Joint Overseas Venture Planned By Gelman Firm

First move toward a joint manufacturing venture with a Swiss company was announced today by President Charles Gelman of the Gelman-Instrument Co.

Gelman and President D. Jaenchen of Camag Co. at Muttiez, Switzerland, have agreed that the two companies will supplement their clinical research product lines by distributing each others products. Camag is now the sole distributor in Switzerland and Germany for Gelman electrophoresis and chromatography analysis systems. Meanwhile, Gelman obtains exclusive distribution rights in the United States for the Swiss concern's electrophoresis and chromatography units.

Since its introduction three years ago, thousands of clinical laboratories have adopted the Gelman electrophoresis system. Gelman instant chromatography has been about as dramatic, with its first six months sales indicating it soon may surpass even sales of the electrophoresis system introduced earlier.

Camag chromatography units will considerably broaden the Gelman lines, making a complete range of systems available both here and in Europe. Camag electrophoresis supplements the system now famous in this nation's clinical laboratories with new diagnostic research approaches.

The actual joint manufacturing company will be established in either Switzerland or Germany sometime during 1966, according to Gelman.

MORE EXCISE TAX CUTS

Taxpayers are due more excise tax reductions in January. Automobiles will get their second cut since June and a 10 percent levy on telephone calls will be cut to three per cent. Tax on other commodities will also be dropped or reduced.

LIB ON LIVING COSTS

President Johnson has scheduled a meeting with key economic advisors to work out a Federal campaign against additional hikes in prices. The Labor Department has announced that living costs rose by two-tenths of one percent in October, a five year high.

Social Security Deduction Increases with New Year

The Social Security contribution deducted from workers' pay beginning in 1966 will be slightly higher than the contribution rate that had been scheduled to go into effect January 1, Robert A. Kehoe, Social Security district manager in Ann Arbor, announced today.

The Social Security contribution rate for employees and employers had been scheduled to rise from 3 1/2 percent, in effect 1963 through 1965, to 4 1/2 percent, beginning Jan. 1, 1966, Kehoe continued.

To help finance changes in the law, enacted last summer—including a program of hospital insurance for people 65 and over, a 7 percent increase in cash benefits, and other important improvements in the Social Security program, the contribution rate has been raised to 4 1/2 percent for 1966, instead of the previously scheduled 4 1/4 percent. Of the 4 1/2 percent contribution rate, 0.35 percent (95 cents) out of each $100 of taxable wages) goes to finance hospital insurance benefits.

In addition, the amount of annual earnings subject to the tax contribution and credit toward Social Security benefits is raised from $4,800 to $6,000.

Kehoe gave two examples of how the contribution rate change would affect workers. The worker earning $77 a week, or $4,000 a year, has been paying about $2.80 a week as his Social Security contribution. Beginning in January he will be paying 44 cents more per week — $2.97 for retirement, survivors, and disability insurance benefits, and 27 cents toward the paid-up hospital insurance he will have when he is 65 and retired.

Someone earning $127 a week, about $6,600 for the year, contributed $4.60 a week in Social Security contributions up until about the end of September, when his earnings reached the $4,800 maximum subject to the tax contribution. In 1966, this worker will pay $5.33 a week — $4.89 toward cash Social Security benefits and .44 cents a week toward hospital insurance protection at 65. This amount will be deducted from his pay for all 52 weeks of the year.

Self-employed people will be subject to the same earnings maximum as employees, Kehoe noted. Their 1966 contribution rate will be 6.15 percent, including 5.3 percent for Social Security and 0.35 percent for hospital insurance.

With $6,000 of annual earnings counting toward Social Security benefits beginning in 1966, it will be possible for workers retiring in future years to receive monthly benefits as high as $169 a month. The current maximum retirement benefit is $135.90 per month, based on average annual earnings of $4,800 a year. Maximum family benefits will rise in future years from the current $909.20 to a maximum of $1,058 monthly.

The law provides a series of gradual additional increases in the contribution rates until in 1987, when the employer and employee rates will be 5.65 percent, and the self-employed rate will be 7.8 percent.

Under Medicare, when the worker is 65, he and his wife will have paid-up hospital insurance to help pay costs of hospital and related care, Kehoe added. A separate medical insurance program is also available under the Medicare law to people 65 and over who choose to take it for a premium of $9 a month. The government pays an equal amount.

In the years since enactment of the original Social Security Act, in 1935, benefits have been added for the families of workers (wives, widows, children and aged dependent parents) and also for disabled workers and their families. In addition, benefits have been increased several times to keep pace with rising costs and levels of living. This year's benefit increase was accompanied by other changes in the program bringing benefits to over 1 million men, women and children not previously eligible for payments, and also by the new Medicare program, Kehoe said.

IMPROVED DIET Beginning with the New Year, the Agriculture Department has a plan for improving the diets of needy persons. More food will be donated to the needy through its direct distribution program operated by state and local welfare agencies. The food stamp plan will be extended to areas not now covered.

Patience is a virtue that seems to be on the wane these days.

Governor Commends Applied Dynamics On Dexter Expansion

Gov. George Romney recently wrote to William W. Wood, Jr., president of Applied Dynamics Inc., to express his delight in the recent expansion of the company at Dexter.

The company, which has its headquarters in Ann Arbor, recently opened a manufacturing plant in Dexter. The company manufactures analog computers used by scientists in solving dynamic analysis problems. The computers are primarily sold to universities, private research centers, and NASA.

The Dexter plant began production on Oct. 1, in the building located at 7800 Huron River Drive, formerly occupied by Burroughs and Strand Engineering. Approximately 100 people are employed in the Dexter plant.

In his letter, Governor Romney commented that the expansion of the growing economy of the Ann Arbor-Dexter area.

He added: "We are especially proud to have a major electronics firm—such as yours—enjoying the favorable economic environment which Michigan offers."

President Wood said that he was pleased with the response of Dexter-area people to the Applied Dynamics search for employees, and that Dexter should prove to be a good location for the plant.
