STRANGE LIGHTS: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunawill saw these strange lights in the sky on Baker Rd., near Nuttle Tool & Die, between 12 and 1 a.m. Monday morning, March 28. The instantaneous photo was taken by Hunawill, who said the lights were moving all the time. The lights were observed for "five or 10 minutes at the most," according to Hunawill, who added that each time he has seen a group of white lights, such as this group, one of the objects has always had three red lights. In looking at the photo, Dr. William B. Bidelman, University of Michigan professor of astronomy, said that if the brighter lights had been on the bottom of the photo, rather than in a vertical pattern as shown, and as Officer Hunawill says he saw them, the bright lights then might possibly have been on the ground and the photographer would have seen "light pillars," or reflections of ground lights, in the sky. Under a magnifying glass, some of the bright objects appear to have dark rings around them, which Dr. Bidelman said "could be branches of trees." If in fact the lights were in the sky and not reflections, Dr. Bidelman says he sees no obvious interpretation of the picture.

Korean Stay Described for Kiwanis Club

Howard L. Canfield of the Detroit Edison Co., spoke to the Chelsea Kiwanis Club Monday evening at their dinner meeting. His topic was "Our Two and One-Half Year Assignment in Korea."

Canfield, a nephew of the late Howard Canfield of Chelsea, recently returned from Korea after completing an assignment there with the Agency for International Development (AID) of the U.S. State Department.

Before leaving the United States in November, 1962, he was Detroit Edison's Oakland Division Manager with his office in Pontiac. He was given a leave of absence by Detroit Edison in order to accept his assignment as Chief of the Utilities Division of the U. S. Operations Mission in Korea.

The climate, natural beauty and friendliness of the people of Korea were three things which awed him, Canfield said. He described the political situation by saying that South Korea has only signed an armistice with Red China and is technically still at war.

He said 81 percent of the coun-

In October, members of the National Honor Society took preliminary scholastic aptitude tests. The scores, along with the grades, rank in class, service records of the students and need determine who will receive the scholarships.

David, who plans to enter Michigan State University at East Lansing next fall, has also been named a semi-finalist in the 1965-66 Merit Scholarship competition.

Cancer Society Opens Local Mail Campaign for Funds

Chelsea area residents will find letters in their mailboxes today and tomorrow requesting support for the 1966 Cancer Crusade.

The 2,100 letters stuffed by the Chelsea Senior Citizens, are part of a nation-wide appeal which will reach citizens in all states. More than two million volunteers are involved in the American Cancer Society campaign to conquer cancer. April has been designated Cancer Control Month.

The national organization fights cancer through a balanced program of research, education and service. A fundamental policy of the Society is the decision of its Board of Directors to terminate its activities when the control of cancer is finally established.

The theme of the crusade, "Fight Cancer With a Checkup and a Check," urges all adult Americans to have a medical checkup annually, no matter how well a person feels, to learn Cancer's Seven Danger Signals and to go to a doctor immediately if one of them last longer than two weeks, and to support financially the campaign against cancer.

In 1963, the total income of the American Cancer Society was $40,760,066. During the same year, 272 times as much was spent in the United States on alcoholic beverages, 199 times as much on tobacco products, 31 times as much on admission to motion pictures, 15 times as much on pari-mutuel net receipts and seven times as much on admission to spectator sports.

Almost $37 million came from the public in 1965, giving the Society a total of more than $45 million from all sources. The society also received income from bequests and legacies, in which the Society becomes beneficiary of willed funds.

Of the total, approximately 35 percent is spent on research, 15 percent on public health education, nine percent on professional education and training, 12 percent on patient services, six percent on community services, four percent on public information, one percent on field studies and reorganization, eight percent on administrative and general and 10 percent on fund raising.

The great majority of cancers originate on the surface of some tissues such as the skin, the inner surface of the uterus, the lining of the mouth, stomach, intestines, bladder, or a bronchial tube, or the lining of a duct in the breast, prostate gland or elsewhere.

Such cancers typically grow into a mass, confined to the source of origin, but later penetrate beyond the surface and "invade" the underlying tissues. After invading, some of the cancer cells eventually become detached and are carried through the lymph channels or blood vessels to other parts of the body. This stage of the disease is known as "regional involvement." If left untreated, the cancer cells eventually spread throughout the body. Death is almost inevitable, though not necessarily quick.

When cancer is localized, it can usually be cured by removing the cancer cells from the patients' body by surgery or radiation therapy. Regional cancers can often be cured by the same means, but once the cancer cells have spread throughout the body, the cells can almost never be removed.

Chairman of the Chelsea drive is Mrs. Henry Karner, 110 Cavanaugh Lake. April 18-23 has been designated "Cancer Week" in Chelsea.

Ground Broken for School Additions

The ground for the new six-room addition on the South Elementary school was broken Friday.

Included in the annex will be a library, a small reading room and classrooms. The addition is being added to the south wing of the present structure.

The same construction company, Goodrich and Hazen of Adrian, also started the earthmoving and rough grading for the High school annex foundation.

A 10-classroom wing, which will include a special education room, a language laboratory and two commercial arts rooms, is being constructed on the north side of the present building between the administration building and the street.

School officials are hopeful that the annexes will be completed by next fall.

UFO Reports Persist In Spite of All Recent 'Official' Explanations

Dexter Police Officer Robert Hunawill Releases First Photos of Strange Aerial Phenomena Sighted

Stars, spaceships or saucers? The question mark remains following nearly three weeks of sightings of Unidentified Flying Objects (UFO's) throughout the area. (A UFO is defined as any aerial object which the observer is unable to identify.)

An investigation by the Air Force expert on unidentified objects, Dr. J. Allen Hynek, brought forth the explanation that two of the sightings over marshes were "swamp gas." His explanation brought forth a storm of controversy.

Marsh or swamp gas is produced by rotting vegetation. Dr. Hynek explained that this gas can be trapped by ice and winter conditions and may be released in some quantity when a spring thaw occurs. No heat is felt and the lights do not burn or char the ground; they can appear for hours at a time and sometimes for a whole night; generally there is no smell and usually no sound, except the popping of little explosions, he said. Sometimes the lights are on the ground and sometimes floating above it."

Numerous recent reports of UFO's have not occurred near swamp areas, however, and Dr. Hynek made no attempt to explain those sightings.

Skeptics Become Believers

Many local skeptics have changed their opinions when they have themselves sighted UFO's.

Dexter Village Clerk Harry Peters said he has taken a lot of teasing since his experience Sunday evening. Fortunately, Peters has three other witnesses who confirm his story.

Peters, Mr. and Mrs. William (Gordie) Keogh and Dean Hudson all watched an object Sunday night through a pair of binoculars.

They sighted a large bright object about 200 feet in the sky south of North Territorial Rd., between Webster Church Rd. and Jennings Rd., at approximately 9:15 p.m.

"At first we thought it was a meteorite," Peters said, but five minutes later it appeared to be standing still at a height of about 200, 250 feet," he added.

Then, Mrs. Keogh said, "That thing must be back." She said that she and her husband had seen the same sort of light last Thursday night and had also noticed something similar a year before.

Peters described the light as a "steady white light, not on and off or pulsating as others had described." After hovering for several minutes, it came straight down toward the earth, he said, and went below the tree level not more than 500 yards away.

The light hovered behind the trees long enough for all four viewers to look at it twice through binoculars, Peters said.

The very bright light continued, Peters added, but on the right side three flashing orange-red lights, blinking in a series "like a theater marquee," appeared and on the opposite side three "blue, green or aqua" lights, also blinking in a series, appeared.

Peters estimated the red and green lights to be 18-20 feet apart.

The lights hovered below the tree level, then moved from right to left, then rose above the tree level and did the same thing. This process was repeated several times before the lights rose in the air and disappeared.

The observers also watched an airplane to the south through the binoculars and said the lights on the plane "definitely had a different pattern."

The strange lights appeared over farmland, the quartet said, and although there is a lake in the vicinity, there is no swamp in that area.

"We don't know what we saw," Peters said. "Because of the darkness we couldn't see any definite shape or form but I do think some mass was behind the lights. It definitely wasn't a reflection or swamp gas."

"I've been getting a lot of kidding," Peters said, "but if our description will help clear up this mystery, go ahead and print it."

Other reports have flooded into the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office.

National Action Requested

U. S. Representative Weston E. Vivian (D-Second Congressional District), a physicist and an engineer, commented that turbine high-lift helicopters with a shape similar to that seen on the Frank Mannor farm near Dexter are now in use, as are "vertical life aircraft" which rotates either its engine or wings to lift off the ground. The armed services are also testing "flying platforms" or ducted fan lifters which rise on a column of air, Vivian added. Last week Congressman Vivian requested a statement or explanation from the Defense Department.

U. S. Representative Gerald R. Ford (R-Fifth Congressional District) later proposed that a Congressional committee investigate the UFO's. He says that the Air Force investigations have brushed it all aside as the result of delusions or "have come up with nothing conclusive."

Dr. William P. Bidelman, University of Michigan astronomer, offered the opinion that Congress find something tangible to investigate before they launch an investigation.

The United States Congress has been reluctant to investigate the UFO's. If an investigation is launched, Congress will appear to give credence to the idea that there is more to the UFO sightings than mistaken sighting of natural or man-made objects. To refuse to investigate opens Congress to the charge that the Government knows what the UFO's are but is covering up.

Congressman Ford suggested the investigations be launched by the House Armed Services or the Science and Astronautics Committee. Spokesmen for both committees have been reported as expressing reluctance to undertake an investigation.

On Tuesday, Congressman Lucien N. Nedzi (D-Fourteenth District) was reported to have joined Congressman Ford in his quest for a Congressional investigation.

Nationally syndicated columnist Roscoe Drummond called Monday for a probe of the "flying saucers" by a "Warren-type commission" and quoted the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena, a private group headed by a retired Naval Academy Marine Corps pilot, as listing some 8,000 reports during the past 10 years, of which 1,500 seem "pretty substantial and unexplained." The Air Force has received 10,147 reports and states that 646 are unexplained.

Another nationally syndicated columnist, Sydney Harris, commented tongue-in-cheek, that "Any truly intelligent beings from another galaxy would not touch us with a ten-light-year pole. We are quite capable of attacking and destroying ourselves without their help."

Dr. Bidelman Comments

Many bright stars are visible this time of year, according to one astronomer, and some of these may be mistaken for UFO's.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

Last week I vetoed Enrolled House Bill 2241. My opposition to this measure and its method of so-called improvement of our Veterans' Homestead Tax Exemption program is on the record. This administration vetoed the same bill last fall and I have expressed my self on its approach many times since then.

There is no disagreement that improvement on a system that is offering tax relief to veterans and widows of veterans. However, to base such improvement on a system that is already inequitable in its approach is to merely compound those inequities. This is not improvement. This is making a faulty system worse.

If there is a reason for veterans' tax relief, and I believe there is, then our method of extending such relief should recognize these essentials:

—First, differences in the need for tax relief based upon the degree of disability suffered by a person while in the service of his country should be recognized.

There are some 62,000 veterans currently receiving tax relief, a majority of whom have some degree of disability. These disabilities range from a relatively minor injury to multiple amputees. Is an amputee in greater need of tax relief than those who suffered less? I believe so. Yet neither our existing program nor this bill recognizes that fact.

—Second, Widows of non-disabled veterans are not entitled to the same level of relief as disabled veterans and their widows, as the current program and this bill advocate. This approach is totally indefensible.

—There is further cause for concern in this area in light of the program of homestead tax relief for senior citizen home-owners adopted last year. This bill would give more relief to widows of non-disabled veterans than our senior citizens receive, and would obviously result in a plea for equity on the part of senior citizens at a multi-million dollar cost to the state. There is good reason to provide that widows of non-disabled veterans and senior citizens receive comparable treatment, but [illegible] disabled veterans and their widows.

To put this legislation into effect would be a disservice to disabled veterans and their widows and families, as well as to the general public which has reason to expect reasonable care in the use of their tax dollars. Political relief has been permitted to [illegible] sound tax relief, and the result is an unacceptable program.

Yet it is not too late to realize sound improvement this year. This administration has developed a special program that would meet the criteria I have outlined beginning in 1967 and in the meantime improve the general level of relief for veterans and widows at a rate consistent with other tax relief programs. I hope that we can get to such a [illegible].

Same Fight

Four short years from now a vicious circle will begin again unless some alteration is made in the 1963 State Constitution.

In the past two years it has been undeniably shown that eight partisans, evenly divided, cannot objectively divide the state into legislative districts as dictated by the Constitution.

Now that the apportionment problem has twice produced deadlock and been in the courts more than once, it is easy to look back and say the Constitutional Convention delegates should have known better.

Provision was made for the two major parties to designate their own members to the Apportionment Commission. No one could blame them for selecting faithful party followers.

Wording the Constitution permitted each four-member group to propose a plan. The other group almost automatically challenged the validity of its opposition.

Former Governor Wilber M. Brucker, Republican appointee to the commission, defined the situation: "We originate from opposite political faiths and we come here hoping by some miracle we can agree. It's impossible."

The first apportionment commission did generally agree on one thing: that its formation process held a fatal defect.

Brucker and other members of the commission indicated some elected state official with power to break the inevitable tie should be named commission chairman.

This might swing apportionment to favor one party or the other, but Brucker and other commissioners said the ninth member, who would be directly responsible to the voters, would be more likely to take an objective view of legislative redistricting.

Boost Justified?

A ballot box fringe benefit, the ability to raise one's own pay, is back in the spotlight in the Michigan legislature.

Last year the House gave a 56-49 vote of approval to a $5,000 annual salary increase. The boost was stopped in the Senate largely because of strong opposing sentiment voiced in constituents' letters and local newspaper columns.

Gov. George Romney's promise to veto any legislative pay raise also stifled further consideration of the boost then. It was decided instead to appoint a citizens committee to study the matter.

Methods of lawmaking, time spent and many other factors were considered by the citizens group headed by University of Michigan Professor James K. Pollock and State AFL-CIO chief August Scholle. Now their work is done.

It came as a surprise to some that the committee should say that perhaps the legislature wasn't too far off the value mark in 1965 when the $5,000 raise proposal passed through one house.

A boost of this size would put Michigan lawmakers far above the pay scales in most other states, with a $15,000 base pay plus $2,500, in expenses.

Some other states also provide funds, over and above salary levels, for legislators to maintain local district offices. There have been overtones here that a serious request for home office funds will be made soon.

Major boosts in the legislative pension plan have been proposed as well.

There's A Way

Youths who have sufficient desire for a college education and the necessary ability should encounter little difficulty getting it.

This is essentially what Michigan State University President John A. Hannah has told thousands of Michigan residents. It's quite likely the same is true at other institutions as well.

Hannah has said every Michigan resident attending MSU will be guaranteed help in obtaining all the financial aid he can show he needs.

Willingness to disclose family financial status, work during vacations and possibly in the school year, and loans are three keys to Hannah's aid-for-all program.

A key factor in the MSU chief's announcement is found in the fact that the University has had no appreciable increase in scholarship funds of previous years.

Additional money has become available under a new federal law, but Hannah's announcement generally indicates the opportunity for widespread financial aid has existed for some time.

Students need only look for assistance and, in some cases, be willing to gamble against future earning power being enhanced by a learn-now-pay-later plan.

You have a right to your own life if you have the courage to live it.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I was reading in my Farm Journal where they has picked the All-American vegetables fer 1965. This piece said the Gold Nugget squash and the Butter King lettuce won top honors in the All-American contest.

It's a fine thing fer farmers and ranchers that they was forever coming out with seeds that was stronger and better. The Farm Journal said you could git seed that was about ready to do everthing except harvest itself. We got seeds that resist diseases, that grow in wet or dry, rich or pore land. The feller writing this piece in the Farm Journal said the labertory experts has got to the place they can fit the seed to the job.

I brung this matter up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle allowed as how our experts has done about everthing except improve the human race. Ed reported he had saw where one serial company had come out with corn flakes with dried up strawberries right in the box and all you had to do was add a little milk and the strawberries come back fresh like they was off the vine. Ed said we got stringless string beans, watermelons and oranges without seeds, but up to now they ain't found nothing fer his roomatism. He was of the opinion that, until they can pour a little milk over some of us old dried up humans and stir us back 50 year, they was working on the wrong project first.

Zeke Grubb was a little more optermistic about the matter. He said we now got mechanical hearts, was trading eyes and kidneys around, and afore long people would be like cars. You could go down to the parts store, said Zeke, and git replacements fer what was ailing you.

Bug Hookum perdicted he wouldn't be here when this happened, but he figgered when we got people on this production line it would be a heap better if we just had two or three models so's it would be easier to git the parts.

Clem Webster was agreed with Zeke, said the time was coming when fellers our age would be antiques. And he allowed as how he didn't like to talk about it but us old antiques was the only ones that didn't git more valuable with age. It was a odd thing, said Clem, that a feller could buy a bed and sleep in it fer 50 year and sell it fer a antique fer 10 times what it cost. Then he had to spend the money to stay alive on account of he was too old and wore out to work fer a living. He was of the opinion, Ed Doolittle not to the contrary, that the Great Society got here just in time.

Like the man said, Mister Editor, I don't know nothing and git that all mixed up, but when I got home from that session Saturday night I couldn't decide whether it was better to be a 50 year old bedstid or a member of the Great Society.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Washtenaw Site in Final 6 Choices for Accelerator Lab

U. S. Representative Wes Vivian said last week that he believes that the Northfield township site which has been proposed as a location for the Atomic Energy Commission's giant new proton accelerator lab has an excellent chance of becoming the ultimate selection of the Commission.

The 3,000-acre site, lying north of Ann Arbor, in Washtenaw county, was announced last week as one of six final recommendations out of a total of 140 locations, in more than 40 states, which had been proposed a year ago.

"A year ago I predicted that the Washtenaw county proposal would rank among the top 10 in the country. That judment," Vivian said, "has now been upheld. The Northfield site, one of two originall ysubmitted by Michigan, has been named as one of the six finalists."

The other five sites recommended to the Atomic Energy Commission by the Site Selection Committee of the National Academy of Sciences, for final decision, are in: Madison, Wis.; Illinois, near O'Hare Field; Brookhaven, on Long Island, (already the location of an AEC facility); Denver; and a site near Sacramento, Calif. One of these locations is expected to be picked by the Commission, before the end of this year. The Commission will then go before the Joint Committee, of the U. S. Congress, on Atomic Energy, to request planning and engineering funds.

"Michigan's chances are excellent. And the gain for our state would be great, should this laboratory come to the Northfield township site," Representative Vivian concluded.

Reactions to 'Parable' Film Reported as 'Widely Varying'

At the Chelsea Minister's Fellowship meeting Tuesday at St. Barnabas Episcopal church on Old US-12 the ministers discussed the reactions of the 200 to 225 adults and youth present for the Sunday night showing of the controversial movie, "The Parable."

Despite the reports of confused and negative reactions, the general impression seemed to be that people must have gotten a charge out of it since the discussion was extensive and many reported the discussion still going on the next day. One report was of a couple who thought it wasn't of much value but who talked about it for two hours afterwards. The Rev. Warner Siebert conducted the adult discussion at the Methodist church.

The separate youth discussion was downstairs after viewing the color movie and there seemed to be general agreement that the examples of thoughtful service, of willing self-sacrifice for those in need were inspiring and dramatic . . . . the disagreement and the discussion was over the meaning of the last episode which impressed at least one person as like an expressionistic painting which can mean many things to many people. Duane Schroen and the Rev. Robert Livingston led the discussion among the 60 or more youth.

The re-run of the show, was very helpful in understanding what others saw as the one main message of this modern parable. The movie was originally shown to thousands at the Protestant pavillion at the Yew York World's Fair.

The ministers also discussed the youth morality might be strengthened through church, home, community and school and appointed the Rev. James Craig and the Rev. Siebert to make preliminary plans for implementing needed action. The scheduling of church youth programs, the regulating of student clothing and hair-length, the censoring of the student newspaper, and other school-related questions, were touched on.

President of the Chelsea Minister's Fellowship, the Rev. John Smucker, announced the arrangement for a booth at the Chelsea community Fair and appointed the Rev. Livingston to begin to gather possible plans for its use, with the suggested theme being "Co-operative Christianity in Chelsea."

Co-operative Vacation Church school plans are still possible among one or two churches, with one making no more effort to hold one, with another planning its own and with two churches still in the discussion stage.

Thanks were expressed to Supt. of Schools Charles Cameron for accepting the invitation to the breakfast meeting. The next meeting is planned for Tuesday, April 19 at 8 a.m.

Honors Won In Forensics Competition

Ten Chelsea students participated in the district spring forensic contest at Western High school in Parma, March 24.

Emerging with first and second place judgments which will allow them to compete in the regional contest April 13 in Battle Creek were the team of Ron Watkins, Carlyn Schwieger and Donna Cotterman, who won a first place in the multiple reading category, and Judy Wiseman, who won second in original oratory.

Other contestants were Terry Keezer, who delivered a declamation entitled "The Right Decision." Terry is a sophomore.

Miss Wiseman, a senior, presented "Who Will Call the Tune?" an original oration. Janet Travis, a junior, also presented an original oration entitled "Why Should We Help Southeast Asia?"

An elimination series of interpretive readings was presented by Roger Frisinger, a junior who read "The Mountain Whippoorwill" by Stephen Vincent Benet, a cutting from "The Longest Day" by Cornelius Ryan and a selection from "The Spoon River Anthology" by Edgar Lee Masters.

Marrianne Edwards, a senior, presented a cutting from "Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell and "A Litany for Dictatorship" by Stephen Vincent Benet in the same division.

Jeff Hitchingham, a junior, presented a humorous interpretive reading entitled "Barefoot Boy With Cheek" by Max Schumann, and Duane Schroen, a senior, presented a Thurber selection entitled "I Went to Sullivant."

Two new categories were added to the competition this year-radio speaking and multiple reading.

In the radio speaking category, contestants were given 30 minutes to study a radio tickertape sheet before delivering a five-minute commentary. Tom McGaw, a junior, placed third in the district competition in this division and Bruce Spencer, a junior, was disqualified for exceeding the time limit.

The multiple reading, 'Quite Early One Morning" by Dylan Thomas, was an interpretive dramatic presentation which did not include acting. The first place was won by Ron Watkins, and Carlyn Schwieger, both juniors, and Donna Cotterman, a senior.

Mrs. Gwen LaGoe, speech teacher and forensics coach, said she was pleased with the showing made by the Chelsea students. Out of 10, seven went into the last round of the division in which they were entered.

The competition is an extracurricular activity but students in speech classes are required to be active in speech activities or dramatic productions throughout the year.

Local competitors were selected after competition at Chelsea High school on March 8. The winners of the local competition presented an assembly before the Chelsea High school student body on March 23.

Chelsea orators will compete this Saturday at an invitational meet in Battle Creek. Any winners at the invitational meet will be qualified to go directly to the state competition. Winners in the regional competition will also be qualified to enter the state contests.

THINK!

Structural change (of muscles, bones, nerves) precedes changes of functions in the body!

Altered function and — later tissue degeneration is DISEASE! Chiropractic NORMALIZES STRUCTURE, CORRECTS THE CAUSE OF DISEASE.

DR. GEORGE N. KOFFEMAN

BACKACHE, SCIATIC NEURITIS AND INTERVERTEBRAL DISKS

TO MY KNOWLEDGE NO PROFESSION spends more time on the study of the spinal column and its adjacent tissue than the Chiropractic profession. The modern day Chiropractor must spend four years standard course and six on specializing. There is not a day of study goes by but some phase of the spinal study is made along with diagnosis and all the other subjects except drugs and surgery necessary for one to become a Dr. and treat the sick.

I feel that in as much as the Chiropractic profession has been working on the spine and its adjacent tissues for over 50 years with results and research that no one profession is better qualified to care for Backache, Sciatic Neuritis, and intervertebral disks than the Chiropractic profession.

BACKACHE CAN TAKE PLACE anywhere along the spinal column. Misplaced vertebrae in the neck can cause headache, vertigo (dizziness), ringing in the ears, etc., because not only does the vertebrae pinch the nerve in this region, but the artery that feeds the brain goes through the bone structure of these vertebrae. Naturally, when the artery is kinked it does not deliver the proper amount of blood causing the above troubles. Still neck and pains in the arms and hands are caused by over-irritability of these nerves.

WE HAVE PAINS IN THE SHOULDER and rib area clear down to where the ribs leave off and around the ribs in front caused by misplaced vertebrae or the adjacent tissue. This is the big reason for bad posture.

YOU CAN NOT HAVE A DISPLACEMENT of the vertebrae without a change of protrusion of the intervertebral disk between the vertebrae. The disks make up a full quarter of the total length of the spinal column. It may be said that the majority of Trumatic (injuries) conditions resulting in subluxation or misplacement of spinal functions are primarily due to involvement of the intervertebral disk and a slipping of the vertebrae on their articular facets. X-rays have proved this to me through years of practice. It seems that God in his plan of life has provided handles for the Chiropractor to replace these misplaced vertebrae. They are the two transverse processes and the spinus process. The Chiropractor being specially trained to correctly use these handles, as it were, can with very little pain (if any) replace the vertebrae to their correct position and normal function.

I have often heard the remark: I don't see why one treatment won't correct the condition, which seems logical. Here are the reasons why this usually cannot be done: The first reason is that it took time for this condition to progress to where it caused the trouble. That is the disk being a gelatin-like material and about as thick as chewing gum, becomes wedge-shaped and the ligaments on the thin side of the wedge become shortened. The law of physics is that an object will go in the path of least resistance. In other words, down hill. So when the vertebrae is put back it tends to go back down hill because the short ligaments pull on it on the short side and the protruded disk pushes it out on the other side. So it takes time to re-adjust the vertebrae to normal.

SCIATIC NEURITIS AND INTERBERBETRAL disk troubles are nearly always the same thing. The pain first starts in the lower back and if Chiropractic treatments are not started immediately the inflamation set up by the irritability on the nerve spreads down over the hip and into the sciatic nerve causing great pain and immobility. I have seen it get so bad that it spreads into the bowels causing constipation in people who never were bothered before.

SO IF YOU ARE HAVING BACK PAINS you had better come to Chiropractic before it gets really serious.

High Grain Feeding Does Not Guarantee Extra Milk Production

Feeding high levels of grain to lactating dairy cows "does not necessarily guarantee high milk production," reports L. D. Brown, Michigan State University dairy scientist.

Dr. Brown emphasizes that cows must have the "genetic potential" to respond to high energy feeding."

But if an animal has this potential, warns Brown, she should not be "short changed" at feeding time.

New Tax Withholding Schedule May Reduce Liability for Many

Detroit — A. M. Stoepler, Detroit District Director of Internal Revenue Service, today advised employees who file declarations of estimated tax that the new tax withholding system may eliminate the need to file an estimate for 1966. For those who still must file, the estimated tax payment required may be reduced.

Estimated tax declarations are generally required to be filed only when the estimated tax liability for the year exceeds income tax withheld by $40 or more.

The new graduated withholding rates, signed into law on March 15, range from 14 to 30 percent in separate rate schedules, for single persons and married persons.

Stoepler said the new rates apply to all paychecks received on or after May 1, 1966. This means that tax will have been withheld at the old rates for the first four months of this year and will be withheld at the new rates for the balance of 1966.

Single employees who earn more than $5,000 a year and married persons who earn over $10,000 will be particularly affected by the change in rates.

These are employees who normally would not have enough tax withheld under the old rates to cover their tax liability at the end of the year. Under the new system, tax withheld will be more in line with their tax liability.

Document 5642, a fact sheet explaining the new withholding system, will be helpful in figuring estimated tax, the IRS said. The fact sheet will be furnished in bulk to employers by early April. They will in turn distribute them to their empolyees. The fact sheet will also be available at IRS offices at that time.

The fact sheet contains tables which show the amount of tax withheld on wages up to $260 a week, under both the old and new withholding systems. It shows, for example, that a married man with a wife and two children who earns $200 a week would have an additional withholding of $2.40.

IRS suggested that those who have already filed estimates for 1966 and want to amend them should wait and make the change when the June 15 installment is due. The reverse side of the bill for the June 15 installment may be used to amend the estimate.

RT. REV. C. KILMER MYERS

Episcopal Bishop To Confirm Class At St. Barnabas

The Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, second Suffragan Bishop in the Diocese of Michigan, will confirm six aspirants Tuesday, April 5, in special services at 8 p.m. at St. Barnabas Episcopal church.

Confirmands are Louis, Arline, James and Vicki DeLoy, Sherry Navin and Michael Willard.

In May, 1964, the Rt. Rev. Myers became the 12th Bishop in the history of the Episcopal Church to be consecrated for the Diocese of Michigan.

A graduate of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., and the Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., the Rt. Rev. Myers taught church history at Berkeley and did graduate work at Yale. He served in the U. S. Naval Reserve on active duty as chaplain aboard a Navy cruiser in the Atlantic and Mediterranean Theatres of War. In 1946 he joined the faculty of the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal church in New York City.

He served with the Associate Mission of Grace church, Jersey City, on the staff of Trinity Parish, and as director of the Urban Training Center for Christian Mission in Chicago.

Boy Scouts Help Alert Persons Eligible For Medicare Program

Boy Scouts Troops throughout Washtenaw county are giving final impetus to the stepped-up campaign to secure the ebnefits of Medicare for all eligible people prior to the March 31 deadline according to Clarence Doud, Council Scout Executive.

Request for the aid of the Boy Scout Troops was made direct to Doud recently by Mrs. Daniel S. Ling of Ann Arbor, Project Supervisor for "Operation-Medicare" in Washtenaw county.

Many thousands of printed messages concerning Medicare and the importance of the March 31 deadline have now been distributed by the Scouts in most Washtenaw communities.

Many people have not realized that failure to apply by March 31 may result in not getting another chance until October, 1967, according to Robert A. Kehoe, Ann Arbor, director of the Department of Social Security Administratton in Washtenaw county. He told Doud today that the kind of help received from the Boy Scouts of America was invaluable in getting the word to the people who had not previously acted in this matter.

UFO Controversy . . .

Dr. Bidelman commented that Jupiter is visible in the early evening at this time of year and appears very bright. Sirius, the brightest star, may be seen fairly low in the sky in the early evening and often appears to change colors. Venus rises early in the morning, he said, and is a very bright star.

Reflections of cloud layers frequently appear in the sky, he added, as do mirages, in which objects on the ground appear to be in the sky.

A great variety of phenomena have been observed, he said, and there is a tendency to try to explain all the phenomena as being the same thing.

He mentioned that the eastern part of the night sky is much lighter than the western part of the sky because of reflected lights from Detroit, and that this may mislead some observers.

A very real question as to whether intelligent life does exist on other planets is being debated by scientists and astronomers today, Dr. Bidelman said. Very possibly some life does exist in another solar system, but most astronomers and scientists in general do not believe anything reported thus far can be explained only in terms of flying saucers, he added.

"It's like trying to prove the existence or non-existence of ghosts," Dr. Bidelman said. "Some people believe in them but can't prove their existence and others do not believe in them but cannot prove that they absolutely do not exist."

Jeane Dixon, well-known Washington, D.C. prophetess who achieved national fame when she predicted in 1952 that President John F. Kennedy would be assassinated, has said that she has received no "atmospheric vibrations" that the Michigan UFO's are extraterrestial.

One group with the difficult task of collecting tangible information on UFO's is the United States Air Force.

Project Blue Book

The Air Force started Project Blue Book in 1948 to determine whether UFO's pose a threat to the security of the United States and whether they exhibit any unique scientific information or advanced technology which could contribute to scientific or technical research.

Project Blue Book's firm conclusions to date are that 1) no UFO reported, investigated and evaluated by the Air Force has ever given any indication of threat to the national security, 2) no evidence submitted to or discovered by the Air Force of sightings categorized as unidentified represent any technological developments or principles beyond the range of present-day scientific knowledge and 3) no evidence indicates unidentified sightings are extraterrestial vehicles.

Anyone who feels he possesses any evidence of extraterrestial vehicles operating within the earth's near space envelope is invited to submit his evidence to: Project Blue Book Information Office, SAFOI, Washington, D.C. 20330.

In a pamphlet describing Project Blue Book, the following statement appears:

"The Air Force does not seek to limit discussion on such reports and does not withhold or censor any information pertaining to this unclassified program."

In 1965, only 16 objects were unidentified out of a total 886 sighted. Of the remaining 870, 245 were astronomical, 210 were aircraft, 36 were balloons, 85 reports contained insufficient data, 126 were classified as "other," 152 were satellites, and 17 were still pending.

Astronomical cases include solar images, moon, sun, reflected moonlight, parhelia (mock suns or bright spots often tinged with color, at the altitude of the sun), meteors, bright stars and planets, comet ikeya-seki, fireballs, auroral streamers and other celestial bodies. The pamphlet explains that when observed through haze, light fog, moving clouds or other obscurations or unusual conditions, the planets, including Venus, Jupiter and Mars, have been reported as UFO's. Steller mirages are also commonly reported as UFO's.

Included in the "other" category were hoaxes, hallucinations, unreliable reports and psychological causes, missiles and rockets, reflections, flares and fireworks, mirages and inversions, search and ground lights, clouds and contrails, chaff, birds, physical specimens, radar analysis, photo analysis, satellite decay and miscellaneous.

Included in the miscellaneous data are tracer bullets, misinterpretation of conventional objects, metal balls, developer smear, anomalous propagation, kites, electronic counter measures, debris in wind, no image on film, poor photo process, free falling object, false targets, weather returns, emulsion flaws, plastic bags, man on ground, lightning, chemical trails, research rocket and missile launch activity.

Satellites and aircraft account for a major source of UFO reports, according to Project Blue Book. During adverse weather, aircraft can have appearances ranging from disc to rocket shapes due to the reflection of the sun on their bright surfaces when observed at high altitudes. Vapor or condensation trails from jet aircraft also occasionally reflect sunlight.

Balloons, including weather, rawinsondes, radiosondes, and the large research balloons which have diameters up to 300 feet, often carry running lights which cause an unusual appearance when observed. Reflection of the sun on balloons at dawn and sunset sometimes produces strange effects and large balloons can move at speeds of more than 100 miles per hour in high altitude jet windstreams. They sometimes appear to be flattened on top, at other times, they appear to be saucer-shaped and to have lights mounted inside the bag itself due to the sun's rays reflecting through the material of the balloon.

Early Trout Season Opens in Designated Northern Streams

Lansing — April 2 stands out on Michigan's sporting calendar as the opener of another special spring season on rainbow and brown trout in waters designated by the Conservation Department.

Listed for early hook and line fishing are nearly 80 northern inland waters, the Great Lakes, Lake St. Clair, and the St. Clair, Detroit and St. Marys rivers (not including the Soo Rapids).

As in the past, a regular fishing license and trout stamp are needed to take part in the season which, as nearly as possible, is timed with the peak period for spawning runs of migratory rainbows (steelheads) from the Great Lakes.

Latest field reports of the Conservation Department reveal that upstream migrations of these fish have already started in Lake Michigan tributaries, triggered by unseasonably mild weather. The early steelhead runs are said to be the best in a number of years, according to the Department.

Brown trout also provide some angling opportunities at this time of the year to gain their billing under the special season. Brook trout remain protected until the state's regular trout opener, April 30.

There are intelligent people who resent any ideas that sneak up on them.

Voc Ed Funds Allocated to Four County Schools

Lansing — The Michigan Department of Education today allocated $1.2 million to 159 school districts and colleges and universities for purchase of equipment used in vocational education programs.

Included in the allocations are $4,289 for Ann Arbor, $1,520 for Saline, $6,676 for Ypsilanti and $9,128 for Ypsilanti (Willow Run).

Acting State Supt. of Public Instruction Alexander J. Kloster said this year's equipment allocation is about $950,000 less than it was a year ago.

Reason for the reduction, Kloster said, was because more money was approved for construction of new vocational education facilities. Construction funds allocated earlier totaled $5 million compared to $1.9 million last year.

Kloster said the Department is distributing a total of $10.6 million in state and federal vocational education funds this year compared to $7.3 million last year.

In addition to construction and equipment funds, the Department has allocated $4.4 million for teacher salaries to schools conducting vocational programs.

The equipment allocation—all federal funds—must be matched on a 50-50 basis by the schools.

Congregational Group Has Exciting Kite-Flying Session

With the wind making the ordinary kites fly in tight little circles it took unusual kites to fly successfully last Sunday at the Congregational church's Kite Fly.

Bruce Parks' three-foot brown paper kite, with its unpronounceable Indian name, was first in the air, flew about half a mile high and was the last down.

The wise pilots of ordinary kites or those built for gentle breezes tried them out on a short string and then put them back in the cars. Unfortunately one of the Hepburn's kites got caught in the top of the only tall tree around and even the nylon string couldn't bring it down.

Dodging the swirling kites which didn't seem to have enough tail was exciting enough, but it became almost a life and death race when the Rev. Robert A. J. Livingston "helped" the Jacobs' family by making a tail for their kite with available materials. The paper plate wasn't bad, the piece of newspaper helped some, the piece of bark made it have a little bit of control, but the flattened beer can on the end made it a swinging and pursuing demon which had to be captured and de-horned.

A commercial kite contributed by Mr. Emballegon flew for a little bit and then with a puff of wind would dive-bomb the area, seeming to aim for the person who had helped launch it a bit before . . . and sending the helpers and observers loudly running for safety.

The group-made kite, a French War Kite, was engineered by the Rev. Livingston with six-foot sticks, and then was built at the church on Sunday afternoon before the group went out to the state-owned land on Waterloo Rd., just east of M-52. The sticks were sawed out for the project by Martin Steinbach at Finkbeiner Lumber on Saturday and the string was tied and the paper pasted by the youth and adults present. The red and white tissue paper kite was designed for the very light breeze that the day exhibited at noon and so the crowd was eager to see what would happen in the brisk wind on the hill-top. First they found they had to break one stick to get it into the station wagon. The Andrew Dysons and the Lyman Adamses watched from their warm car as it was launched. The nylon string burned the hand, and it flew with an almost perpendicular string 150 feet straight over the group flying it. A little bit higher and suddenly there was a loud "pop" when one of the tissue-paper panels shattered. Two more broke, but still it flew.

Richard Reed, whose idea started the kite-making-flying session, built a blue paper kite with six-foot sticks, cut by Frank Reed with Brian Dyson's help, found the gale too much for its sticks. Hurried supports were added, but then the wind blew holes in the paper. Finally when there were at least four huge holes in it it was able to fly because most of the wind whistled right through.

Many want to do it again and some have plans for two kites; one for hurricanes and one for zephyrs. There are some who think the Rev. Livingston's Tetrahedral kite idea won't fly whichever kind of breeze is available.

Americans Spend More on Clothes Despite Price Rise

Americans spent more than $33 billion on clothing and shoes in 1964. And expenditures are expected to increase in the future.

The figures are based on a series of personal expenditures from the Department of Commerce. The 1964 figures were the highest in the history of the series, which started in 1929.

The figures was seven percent above the 1962-63 figures and four percent above the previous all-time peak in 1943 and 1946.

"Part of the increased purchase of clothing is a result of rising incomes, and part of it is related to the increasing proportion of the population being in the younger age group," explained a Michigan State University clothing specialist.

Jean Schubel, specialist with MSU's Co-operative Extension Service, added, "The proportion of 15- to 24-year-olds was up from 31 percent of the total population in 1956 and 1957 to 15.3 percent in 1964. It's expected to increase to 17 to 17.5 percent by 1970." This increase in the number of young people in the population should increase clothing purchases still further, since young people buy most of the clothes.

The price level for apparel rose 1.2 percent from September, 1964, to September, 1965. The big increases were in men's boy's apparel. According to t reports, prices of men's suits rise five to ten percent more the next fall season.

TO WED: Mr. and Mrs. Geo Goodell of 18083 English Manchester, announce the gagement of their daugh Linda Kay, to James R. H mann, son of Mr. and Douglas Kennedy of 6379 M Manchester. Both are 1961 gr uates of Manchester H school. Miss Goodell is emplo at the University of Michi in Ann Arbor. Hartmann, a s dent at Michigan State Univ sity in East Lansing, is son of the former Irene Wahl spring wedding is planned.

Susanne Lofquist, D. Atkinson Wed Friday at Methodist Church

Susanne N. Lofquist became the bride of Donald G. Atkinson Friday evening in a 7:30 canlelight ceremony at the First Methodist church. The Rev. James Craig performed the nuptial ceremony, which was witnessed by 150 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arley R. Lofquist of 9597 Half Moon Lake Rd., Pinckney. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. George W. Atkinson of 333 Madison St., Chelsea, and the late Mr. Atkinson.

Baskets of yellow and white gladioli decorated the sanctuary. "Wedding Prayer" by Fern Dunlap was sung by Keith Drayton of Brighton.

The bridal gown of floor-length cloud white delustered satin had been made by the bride's mother. The gown was styled with a trailing chapel train of the same fabric, bell-shaped skirt, natural waistline, accented with lace appliques. The bodice had long sleeves, pointed at the wrist, a round neckline, and was completely covered with lace. The illusion veil was attached to a chiffon flower cluster headpiece and accented with seed pearl leaves. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white carnations attached to a white Bible.

The maid of honor, Miss Mollsse Thomas of Rockford, Ill., and three bridesmaids—Mrs. Ronald Warren of East Lansing, Mrs. Richard Snyder of [illegible], and Mrs. Roy Wentz of Chelsea, preceded the bride down the aisle. All wore attired in turquoise satin, sleeveless, floor-length gowns styled with natural waistlines, slightly gathered at the sides and belted with a bow in front. The bodices of the gowns were styled with bateau necklines. The attendants carried cascading arrangements of white carnations, with blue streamers flowing from the maid of honor's bouquet and white streamers decorating the other bouquets.

A niece of the bridegroom, Miss Lisa Pridgeon of Kokomo, Ind., served as flower girl. She also wore a turquoise gown and carried a basket of flowers.

Anthony Roy, of Detroit, a cousin of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Michael Keller of Albany, Ga., was the best man at the wedding and Kenneth Lofquist, brother of the bride, Ronald Warren of East Lansing, and Fredrick W. Wenk of Ann Arbor seated the guests.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lofquist selected a mint green wool crepe dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

A pink two-piece knit suit with black accessories was worn by Mrs. Atkinson. Her corsage was of red sweetheart roses.

The reception followed at the Inverness Country Club. Patricia Dougherty of Brighton and Mrs. Edwin Rice cut the wedding cake while Miss Laura Reddeman poured coffee. Miss Ilene Locker of Detroit attended the guest book.

After a week-end trip to Lake Michigan, the couple will be at home in East Lansing, where both are seniors at Michigan State University. For traveling, Mrs. Atkinson selected a floral mint green three-piece suit of a silk and linen fabric and wore patent accessories.

The bride attended Olivet College and is presently majoring in elementary education at Michigan State. Her husband is majoring in industrial management. Both are 1962 graduates of Chelsea High school.

ENGAGED: Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Schaujes are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Gayle Jean, to Gordon Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Carpenter of Chelsea. Both Miss Schaules and her fiance attended Jackson Junior College and are 1964 graduates of Chelsea High school. Miss Schaules is now employed by Rockwell-Standard and Carpenter is employed by the Chelsea Post Office. An October wedding is planned.

Every extra pig farrowed and saved in a litter means $5 in profit before the pig is even a day old. Michigan State University specialists estimate the farmer already has that much invested in time, feed, housing and equipment for brood sows.

Overflow Crowd Attends Nursery School Smorgasbord, Style Show

An overflow crowd appeared Saturday for the "March Madness" smorgasbord luncheon and style show benefit for the Chelsea Co-operative Nursery.

Net receipts totalling approximately $400 will be used for repairs, taxes, improvements, supplies, equipment, maintenance and teacher's salary at the school. The nursery is located on the Chelsea-Dexter Rd. in a one-room brick school built in 1916.

The "March Madness" theme was borrowed from "Alice in Wonderland,' a fantasy written a century ago by Lewis Carroll.

Greeting the 216 guests at the door was Kathy Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, dressed as the March Hare. Kathy is the sister of a nursery school student.

Luncheon tables were decorated with Mad Hatter tophats filled with flowers, made by Mrs. A. A. Phillips of Dexter. Cherry tarts surrounded the centerpieces. Other decorations made by Mrs. Phillips included drawings of the Cheshire Cat and the Queen of Hearts.

Committee chairmen for the roast beef and salad smorgasbord luncheon were Mrs. Earl Tison of Chelsea and Mrs. Patrick McLeod of Dexter.

Music from "Alice in Wonderland" and songs appropriate to the costumes modeled were provided by Mrs. John Willertz of Dexter.

Mrs. Paul G. Schaible, Jr., of Chelsea, commentator for the fashion show, was introduced by Mrs. Vincent Burg, II, board chairman of the Chelsea Co-operative Nursery. Mrs. Schaible wrote her own commentary and introduced the models, who appeared before scenery from the stage production of "Alice in Wonderland." The stage sets were on loan from the Ann Arbor Little Theater.

Children modeling clothing were guided through wonderland by Alice, portrayed by Cheryl Trinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trinkle, Chelsea, and the March Hare, portrayed by Miss Taylor.

Clothing and accessories were provided by the Dancer's Department Stores, which has branches in Stockbridge, Chelsea and Dexter. Among the guests at the show were Mrs. Rob Dancer of Stockbridge, wife of the owner of the Dancer's stores, John Nichols, women's fashion buyer for the stores, and Duane Ford, children's buyer for the chain.

A mystery lady dressed as a "femme fatale" almost stole the show as she slinked through the scenery in a low-cut bathing suit, sunglasses, floppy hat and chiffon scarf, carrying a long cigarette holder.

Mrs. J. B. Dunn of Chelsea is the general chairman of money-making projects for the nursery.

Other committee chairmen working on the event included Mrs. R. W. Stark of Dexter, fashion committee; Mrs. Robert Jacobs of Chelsea, tickets; and Mrs. Thomas Donkin of Chelsea, publicity.

Family Life Forum Series Starts April 5

A series of free public lectures designed to prepare married couples for family life will begin April 5 at the Ann Arbor Community Center. The series will continue each Tuesday evening in April, beginning at 8 p.m.

Guest lecturers will include professors of obstetrics and gynecology from the University of Michigan Medical School and the author of "Husband-Coached Childbirth." All lecturers are medical doctors.

Dr. John R. G. Gosling, former dean of the University of Michigan Medical School and author with Dr. S. J. Behrman of "Fundamentals of Gynecology," will present the April 5 lecture entitled "Preparation for Parenthood." He will discuss changes that occur in the relationship between husband and wife on the arrival of a baby, including emotional and physical demands during pregnancy and following birth.

"Preparation for Childbirth" will be the focus for the April 12 lecture by Dr. Jan Schneider, an instructor at the University's Medical School. The history of prenatal care and significant advances as well as important preventive aspects will be covered in this lecture.

The third lecture will focus on "Preparation for Pregnancy," including understanding reproduction and the determinants of normal sex role behavior in western civilization. Dr. Colin Campbell, an assisatnt professor at the University of Michigan Medical School, will present the third lecture on April 19.

The final lecture on April 26, will be on the importance of husband preparation and support for a comfortable pregnancy and birth. Dr. Robert A. Bradley will give the lecture entitled "Preparation for Supportive Role." Dr. Bradley is associated with the Porter Memorial Hospital in Denver, Colo., and the author of "Husband-Coached Childbirth." A film, a CBS documentary from "This Hour Has 7 Days," on husband-coached natural childbirth will be shown. Birth scenes showing Dr. Bradley delivering a first baby in Porter Memorial Hospital in Denver are included.

The lecture series was arranged by the Family Life Forum, which seeks to promote understanding of all phases of family life, especially as it is affected by the arrival of new members, and thus to strengthen family unity.

According to Mrs. Ted Beals, chairman of the forum, the group is offered for the expression of different schools of thought among obstetricians and as an opportunity for the free exchange of ideas on the many aspects of maternity as a family experience. The Family Life Forum advocates no particular point of view, she added.

There will be a question period at the end of each lecture, followed by refreshments.

Questions & Answers

After a time, fat used for frying does not seem to brown food well, even though it has been properly strained and kept under refrigeration. What has happened to it?

Fat can be used for frying for just so long. It will not last forever. It loses its ability to brown properly after a time and is considered to be "fried out." It should be discarded.

Truth-in-Lending Bill Introduced By Rep. Vivian

U. S. Representative Weston E. Vivian announced today that he has submitted a "truth-in-lending" bill in the House today, as companion legislation to the "truth-in-packaging" legislation he submitted on March 17. Vivian's bill is the same as that being sponsored by U. S. Senator Paul Douglas, of Illinois.

The proposed law would require merchants and loan dealers to disclose information such as the total cash price of the article or service being sold, and all service and financing charges, expressed in total dollars and cents and as a simple annual interest rate.

"How many people are aware," Vivian asked, "that the innocent words, for example, of 'four dollars per hundred per year' in a finance contract demand about twice as much in interest charges as financing the same purchase for the same period of time at four percent annual interest on the unpaid balance? How many of us are able to compute the interest which we are paying, when the seller simply tells us the down payment and monthly charges, often neglecting to tell us even the cash purchase price? Some, perhaps many, consumers, of course, will not take the trouble to compare financing opportunities even if given the necessary information. But many others would, if the information is clearly stated. And, as with the truth-in-packaging legislation, no responsible retailer or loan agent will object to providing the information—only those whose operations are based on deception.

"All that the legislation proposed will require is that those who deal with the public provide full information on the charges associated with time payments. If consumers then decide that they want to pay interest charges which presently often run as high as 50 percent per year or more, they are free to do so. But they ought to know what they are paying, so that they can compare proffered charges with other available means of financing," Vivian said.

Vivian noted that President Johnson had sent a special message to the Congress, on March 21, urging action this year on truth-in-packaging and truth-in-lending legislation, both of which Vivian has introduced.

"Hundreds of paid lobbyists buzz about Washington and the State Capitols, on behalf of special interests, but only a handful speak for the consumer organizations. I am delighted that the President has thrown the full weight of his office into this fight on behalf of the consumer," Vivian concluded.

3½ Million Vehicles Licensed in Michigan

Lansing — Michigan counted more than 3½ million vehicles registered during the rush period which ended Feb. 28, in a sale that was described by Secretary of State James M. Hare as "remarkably smooth with few major complaints or problems."

Reflecting the "rush" period was revenue received through March 8 when a total of 3,501,330 vehicles had been registered. This was an increase of $48,000 over the same date a year ago.

Hare said that his offices reported sales during the final days as "going smoothly for the most part." Some lines were reported.

The Secretary of State said it would be some time before he would have a complete tabulation on the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund and how many uninsured drivers there are in Michigan.

Hare estimates that there are possibly 150,000, but the exact number must wait for a final count.

Buying goods on credit is much easier than paying for the goods.

MMPA Officials Look Ahead

Two top officials of the Michigan Milk Producers Association expect more changes in the milk market and a need for continued MMPA attention to marketing-bargaining functions in the near future.

Glenn Lake, president, and Jack Barnes, general manager, discussed the future as part of a look at the past—MMPA's observance of its 50th anniversary of service to Michigan dairy farmers.

Firm predictions, they noted, are next to impossible in an ever-changing business like milk marketing.

But there are obvious trends toward somewhat reduced milk production in the immediate future; slightly higher sales of milk for bottling; fewer and bigger dairies to buy milk and fewer and bigger farms producing it; continued rising costs to farmers; a continued role played by government in milk marketing, and a greater need among farmers for the collective bargaining-marketing and other services of MMPA.

"We don't have a crystal ball, but there are some developments and trends we expect for 1966 in our Michigan markets," Barnes said.

"There will probably be less milk produced for the market in 1966—possibly by 3 or 4 percent. This trend has certainly been apparent in the last three or four months, with milk production down considerably from last year.

"We hope for and expect somewhat higher sales of milk for bottling purposes—perhaps by about 2 percent. Increased sales can be expected because of an expected continuation of the high rate of economic activity. There should be generally good consumer incomes and favorable attitudes toward milk," Barnes said.

"Because of the downward trend in milk production and the upward trend in sales, prices paid to farmers should be above 1965 levels. We would expect part of this trend to be higher prices paid for milk that is processed into dairy products.

"Because MMPA plants are standby facilities used to provide markets for member milk only when there is no 'outside' demand for it, and to provide bargaining strength to the Association, we would expect the volume of milk through these plants to be down slightly in 1966," Barnes said.

He noted that giant chains of retail grocery stores will probably continue to grow in size and influence.

Lake said this growth of chain store influence and big dairy handling of milk—making farmer bargaining with buyers even more important than it has been in the past only constitutes part of the challenge MMPA and other farmer cooperatives will face in the immediate future.

"Several trends will improve prices, but there is certainly no reason to believe that dairies will be any easier to bargain with than they have been in the past," Lake said.

"The prices farmers receive for milk will contiue to be just what their bargaining strength can command," he said. "Anyone can look at MMPA's record and see where we have never demanded unrealistically high prices for milk, and yet, the record also shows that MMPA has bargained higher premiums and held them longer than any other milk marketing cooperative in the United States.

"Some segments of our economy, notably organized labor, have obtained laws to help them build and maintain their strength. The closed or union shop, in those states which permit it, makes the bargaining job much easier.

"MMPA has been able to establish and maintain its bargaining record purely on the strength of its services to members and its worth to them," Lake said. "Furthermore, our democratic processes of electing leaders and acting only in line with the will of the majority has been maintained through some pretty rough times over the last 50 years."

Noting that MMPA has been involved in its share of controversy because "any organization worthy of its salt will be controversial," Lake said that just in the past 25 or so years "a dozen organizations, with self-appointed leaders, have cranked up and launched programs flavored with sweet promises of higher prices."

These groups were openly out to wreck MMPA, but "all failed because they were built on the quicksand of undeliverable promises," he said.

"If we are controversial it is because we have dared to move out with programs which protect members in the market, increase our milk checks and preserve the MMPA," Lake said.

Because governments are getting bigger, particularly the federal government, and the number of farmers is declining, more attention than ever will have to be paid to the executive and legislative branches of government to make them aware of the needs, and problems of dairy farmers, Lake said.

"As recently as this January we received a demonstration of how federal government manipulation in the butter market can lower, immediately and drastically, the income farmers receive," he said. "Deliberate federal action pushed butter prices down to minimum support levels in November and December of last year, and the clear and direct results was four cents per hundredweight less on Michigan farmers' milk checks for January.

"We know there are more consumers who vote than there are farmers who vote, but if there are shortages in the food and dairy products produced by American farmers, neither this country nor the nations which receive assistance from us can get by.

"Farmers are not going to continue to produce adequate food supplies for both domestic and foreign use if prices are squeezed down to unjustifiably low levels," Lake said.

"MMPA has the ability and the willingness to make this clear—to government or anybody else—in the same effective way we have been perofrming marketing-bargaining services for 50 years."

Rep. Marvin Esch Will Seek Seat In U. S. Congress

State Representative Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) today announced his candidacy for Congress in the 2nd District of Michigan.

Esch, in his second year in the House, formerly was an Associate Professor of Speech at Wayne State University and a Lecturer in the University of Michigan Wayne State University Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations. For the past five years he has also served in the U. S. State Department Agency for International Development Communications Seminars, and for state and national civil service executive development programs. He also serves as Consultant to Management to several industrial and utility firms.

Esch, 38, is believed to be the only Ph. D. to ever serve in the legislature. His AB degree is in Political Science, while graduate degrees are in Speech and Education, with emphasis in debate, conference work, and group dynamics, all from the University of Michigan. He is married and they have three children.

Esch has had a short but brilliant political career, capped by being named the most promising House Republican freshman by the Capitol pressmen.

He has carried minority leadership roles in major labor legislation, and holds the distinction of being the only Republican to hold the chairmanship of a House Sub-Committee (Colleges and University Finance Sub-Committee).

Esch has worked closely with the Governor's office, serving on a highly effective group composed of House and Senate leadership and Governor's staff known as the House-Senate Republican Program Committee - whose job it is to move the Governor's program through the legislature in spite of overwhelming odds.

Esch has held office in numerous professional and honor societies, and is active in church work as an elder and a lay preacher.

He served in both Maritime Service and the U. S. Army.

Esch completed his requirements at the University of Michigan for both his AB and MA in just 3½ years, while at the same time working nights on the assembly line at the old Kaiser Motor Car Co. at Willow Run. He explained he had only limited funds and "needed to accelerate a bit." He went on to obtain his PhD and served on the staff of the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

Grass Lake Man Found Guilty In Deer Charge Trial

Vaughn Simon, 28, of Grass Lake was found guilty in a trial Thursday, March 24 in Jackson of possession of deer taken during closed season. The trial was held before Judge David McGarvey.

Conservation officers from Jackson and Washtenaw counties siezed a large quantity of venison along with four deer hearts and five deer livers on March 8. On March 10, with a search warrant, officers recovered bones of three deer from the yard of the defendant.

After being found guilty, Judge McGarvey sentenced the defendant to a fine and costs of $75 or 15 days in the county jail and revoked his deer hunting privileges for a period of one year.

Tax Refunds May Be Late if Filed Incomplete

Detroit — Thousands of Michigan taxpayers had their federal tax refunds held up last year because they forgot to send in certain statements required to complete their 1040's.

District Director A. M. Stoepler said the statement forgotten most often was the one needed to claim the sick pay exclusion. Form 2440 is available for this statement. Others frequently omittted were statements on From 3468 for Investment Credit and on Form 1116 for the Foreign Tax Credit.

Special forms are available for certain deductions, credits and exclusions claimed on Form 1040 Stoepler said. These forms are noted on Form 1040 and explained in the instruction booklet.

Stoepler said that when a required statement is forgotten, instead of a refund being issued immediately, the taxpayer has to be contacted, told of the missing statement and asked to supply it. Until it has been received from the taxpayer IRS cannot process the refund, Stoepler said.

To avoid delay in the processing of returns and refunds—Stoepler asked taxpayers to check their returns to see whether they are complete before they mail them in. Besides seeing whether the return has all the required statements attached, Stoepler said the following items should be reviewed:

1. Is the tax account number correctly listed (this is the Social Security number)?
2. Are all W-2 forms enclosed?
3. Is the return signed (both husband and wife on joint returns)?
4. Are all exemptions included?

SUNDAY'S SERMON

APRIL

April brings a season of contrast. It is spring. If the weather may be unpredictable on a day-to-day basis, we are assured that winter has had its turn and are cheered by the welcome song of the bird and the equally welcome sight of new life a borning in the fields and forests.

It is easy to feel young at heart. We must resist the urge to become footloose and fancy free. We could leave our cares and responsibilites and contemplate the ramblings of a brook as it courses the meadows, flowing endlessly to the sea.

In this season of new-life, surrounded by the wonders of nature's beauty coming forth in a burst of color and greenery, our thoughts eventually must turn to the higher meaning and the higher purpose of our own existence.

Spring can be for us a time of spiritual re-birth. We have but to turn our thoughts and our steps to the church by the side of the road. There now is being told the story of the example of the life of Christ upon earth. In this lesson of dedication and sacrifice we may rekindle a strong spirit of faith and purpose.

Verse Drama Offered Public Sunday Evening At Methodist Church

An interpretive reading of "The Seven Words from the Cross" will be presented Sunday evening, Palm Sunday, at 8 p.m. at the First Methodist church. The reading takes its theme from the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

The dramatic presentation, composed by R. H. Ward, is open to the public and area residents are invited to attend.

Presenting the verse drama will be the Rev. Calvin Rice of the Willis Methodist church in Willis. He is a doctoral candidate in speech drama at the University of Michigan and has appeared in many student dramatic productions at the University and with the Ann Arbor Civic Theater.

A brief worship service will be presented prior to the reading.

Eight Counties Served By State Licensing

Lansing — Eight Michigan counties are now being served in whole or in part by state driver licensing examining stations manned by employees of the Michigan Department of State.

The newest station was set up recently in Washtenaw county just outside Ann Arbor at 3520 Washtenaw Ave., and will serve upwards of 40,000 licensees in that county.

According to Secretary of State James M. Hare, Washtenaw joined Roscommon, Delta, Alger, and Jackson counties in being completely serviced by state examiners, and Muskegon, Macomb and Wayne counties which have one or more state examining stations.

Kalamazoo county will bring the total to nine counties when it is converted sometime in April, Hare said.

To understand another's problems approach them from his circumstances, not yours.

THE COUNTRY PULPIT:

A Fable

Once upon a time there was a wise King, who dearly loved his people. But the people mumbled among themselves, "Our King is not only the kindest, he is also the softest." As time passed, they became rebellious and actually mocked the king, and they taught others to do likewise.

Now the saddened King, knowing that a government cannot be operated without principles, sent his militia and arraigned his people before the court. And all the people were found guilty and sentenced to lashing.

At this point the King's Son, the Prince, a man of peace, came and offered to suffer punishment in the place of these guilty, because he dearly loved the people. Now the King did not necessarily approve of this proposal, but still he loved his people as he loved his Son. He thought to himself, "Rather than let my Son be a goat, shall I not call off the whole affair, overlook the evil deeds of my people and begin anew? But, if I do this, how can my government stand seeing it functions with no enforcement of my laws? Also, my people will turn on me again!"

So the Prince was lifted up and lashed in public view as a common criminal in the stead of the guilty. The people were grateful with tears for the blood being let, knowing that their own lives were involved in the spilling of this precious blood. They were deeply sorrowful for their rebellion, seeing the price that was being paid for their past enmity, and they loved the Prince.

But there was a certain group who still professed innocence, and claimed they had no need of the cheap, Royal show in the messy, foolish, unnecessary shedding of blood under the whiplash for their good. So at the later appeal in high court, they were further proved guilty, and must therefore now endure their own punishment, because they had scorned the ransom which had been paid by the Prince of Peace. This they suffered, and are now suffering, with much crying and gnashing of teeth.

THE KING:

For GOD so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. (John 3:16)

THE PRINCE:

Looking unto JESUS the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God. (Hebrews 12:2)

THE REJECTORS:

For THEY being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God. (Romans 10:3) HE that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. (John 3:36)

THE ACCEPTORS:

Christ hath redeemed US from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us. (Galatians 3:13) But as many as received Him, to THEM gave he power to become the sons of God. (John 1:12)

THE MORAL:

For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. (I Corinthians 1:18)

Just A Minute . . .

By the Rev. James A. Craig

Palm Sunday. That's the day when people cheered a man who they thought had the answers to their political problems.

If he did, they were different answers than people wanted.

They knew what was needed. A strong leader. One that could win a war against Rome and its legions. One that would give them peace and prosperity on their terms.

No responsibility.

Just rid of trouble and free as birds.

A battle, a war, a victory, and they would have peace.

We still fight wars in the name of peace. We are still seekers after the elusive dream. We are still convinced that the enemy will soon be defeated.

But the wars have brought no peace—only more wars. Wars to make worlds safe for democracy. Wars to preserve freedom from a dictator. Wars to contain communism. Wars to teach warriors the futility of war.

We still cheer the one who we think will win for us.

We failed to learn what a solitary rider on Palm Sunday lived and taught and died for.

Peace can only be won by peaceful means.

No other.

That's when the cheering stopped.

REPORT from LANSING

State Representative

Thomas G. Sharpe

Current Capitol craze — the name of the game is "Extensions and Exemptions."

It's played like this: First, the legislature passes a law regulating an item of social or economic concern. This action then receives wide acclaim, verbal accolades and election votes from its special interest supporters. The next move, with this group satisfied, turns legislative attention to those who are "hurt" by the new regulations and—always keeping in mind this is an election year—the effective date of the new measure is "extended" or specific groups are "exempted" from the law.

This weird situation is comparable to a person buying a fine new set of dentures and then proceeding to pull out the individual teeth one by one. In some cases, too many teeth were in the set from the beginning.

These procedures would make anyone wonder whether the measures was necessary or proper in the first place. Were the initial passage and subsequent changes merely schemes for partisan gain? Has there been a sincere change of heart by those who would not listen when the discrepancies were pointed out at the time of passage of legislation? When, if ever, do we reach the end of the road and who will be left to pay?

The legislature is currently playing the "extension and exemption" game on three issues—Workmen's Compensation coverage of agricultural workers; minimum wage for certain piecework employees; licensing and bonding of construction contractors.

Farmers were included in the Workmen's Compensation Act passed last session, the main purpose of which was to raise benefits for those already covered by the law. This year, the legislature is about to place a one year moratorium on the effective date for agricultural workers because it is apparent that farmers cannot obtain the needed insurance at reasonable rates. This is a prime example of legislation which should not have been enacted until a schedule of rates was equitably established.

It is doubtful if the majority of farmers will be able to afford the $8.00 per hundred next year any more than they can this. As a comparison, the heavy construction industry pays a rate of only $5.00 or $6.00 per hundred dollars.

The Minimum Wage Act of 1964 remains in considerable difficulty as it pertains to the coverage of piecework employees such as fruit and vegetable pickers. So, this year the legislature is once more "temporarily" exempting this group until a proper study of the situation can be completed - a study which should have been conducted before the law was passed.

Last year, a measure requiring licensing and bonding of building, maintenance and alteration contractors, such as carpenters, plumbers, painters, bricklayers, and others, right out of business with a resultant increase in building costs to the consumer. Again, we play the "extension" game and delay the effective date so that it does not fall in this election year.

The need to play the "extension and exemption" game results from the hasty, last-minute consideration of important measures forced upon us last year and again this session because the majority party delays our getting down to serious work. On a few occasions, we must play the game because of unintentional oversights.

Regardless of reasons - this year's legislature is spending a great deal of time granting extensions and exemptions and no one knows who, if anyone, is winning the game. You can well imagine th fun in store when the game begins in the taxation field.

AID FOR ADDICTS

Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D.,N.Y.) has proposed that $22,500,000 in grants and loans be made available to states, cities and private groups for treatment of drug addicts. The loan would be used for treatment and buildings.

New MSU Veterinary Clinic Open House Slated Saturday

East Lansing — Michigan State University's new $4.7 million Veterinary Clinic will hold its first public open house Saturday, April , in connection with the annual "Vetavisit" sponsored by the veterinary students.

Exhibits depicting the many facets of veterinary practice today will be on display, but the feature attraction will be the new building itself.

The building is probably the largest, most modern veterinary clinic and research center anywhere in the world.

The clinic does for veterinary medicine what large university medical centers do for human medicine.

Like a medical center, it takes patients from the immediate area and also difficult cases from practitioners throughout Michigan and some neighboring states. But while it stands as a model of exemplary care, it is primarily a training ground for veterinary students and a research laboratory for the veterinary staff.

The new clinic has five wards and five surgical areas for large animal patients. For small-animal practice, the clinic has eight wards, four rooms for major surgery, a large room with six tables for minor surgery and an isolation ward.

Joint facilities for both large and small animals include X-ray laboratories for examination and treatment, clinical pathology and microbiology laboratories and a separate building for conducting postmortem examinations.

The new clinic gives the staff of the MSU College of Veterinary Medicine the space and facilities for more effective teaching.

"For example, we have 10 small-animal examination rooms," notes Dr. Wade Brinker, chairman of the Department of Veterinary Medicine and Surgery. "We had just two when we were in Giltner Hall. We can now work with smaller units of students; and students in smaller units are more apt to talk and ask questions."

The building is research oriented. In addition to the clinical wards, there are eight small-animal and five large-animal wards for research. These and other facilities will serve the human medicine staff, as well as veterinary researchers.

Most of the basement is being used for a large-scale project on canine leukemia sponosred by a National Institutes of Health contract. Construction of the clinic's research facility was aided by a grant of $738,000 from the NIH.

American Colonists Gave Up 11 Days To Correct Calendar

East Lansing — American colonists lost 11 days from their calendar to keep Easter in the spring and give us the calendar we use today.

This is one of the stories retold in the newest public program, "Easter and the Calendar," now offered at Michigan State University's Abrams Planetarium.

It is presented at 8 p.m. each Friday, 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturdays, and 2:30 and 4 p.m. Sundays, through Easter, April 10.

Our calendar resulted from efforts nearly 400 years ago by a commission called by Pope Gregory XIII. To insure that Easter would always fall near the beginning of spring, the leap year rule had to be changed to allow 97 instead of 100 leap years every four centuries.

The plan wasn't adopted in England and the colonies until 1752. That year Englishmen and colonists dropped 11 days from their calendar, with the result that Sept. 2 was followed by Sept. 14.

Deer Management Bulletin Offered at Extension Office

Michigan land owners interested in managing their land for white-tailed deer will find sound advice in a Michigan State University Co-operative Extension Service Bulletin.

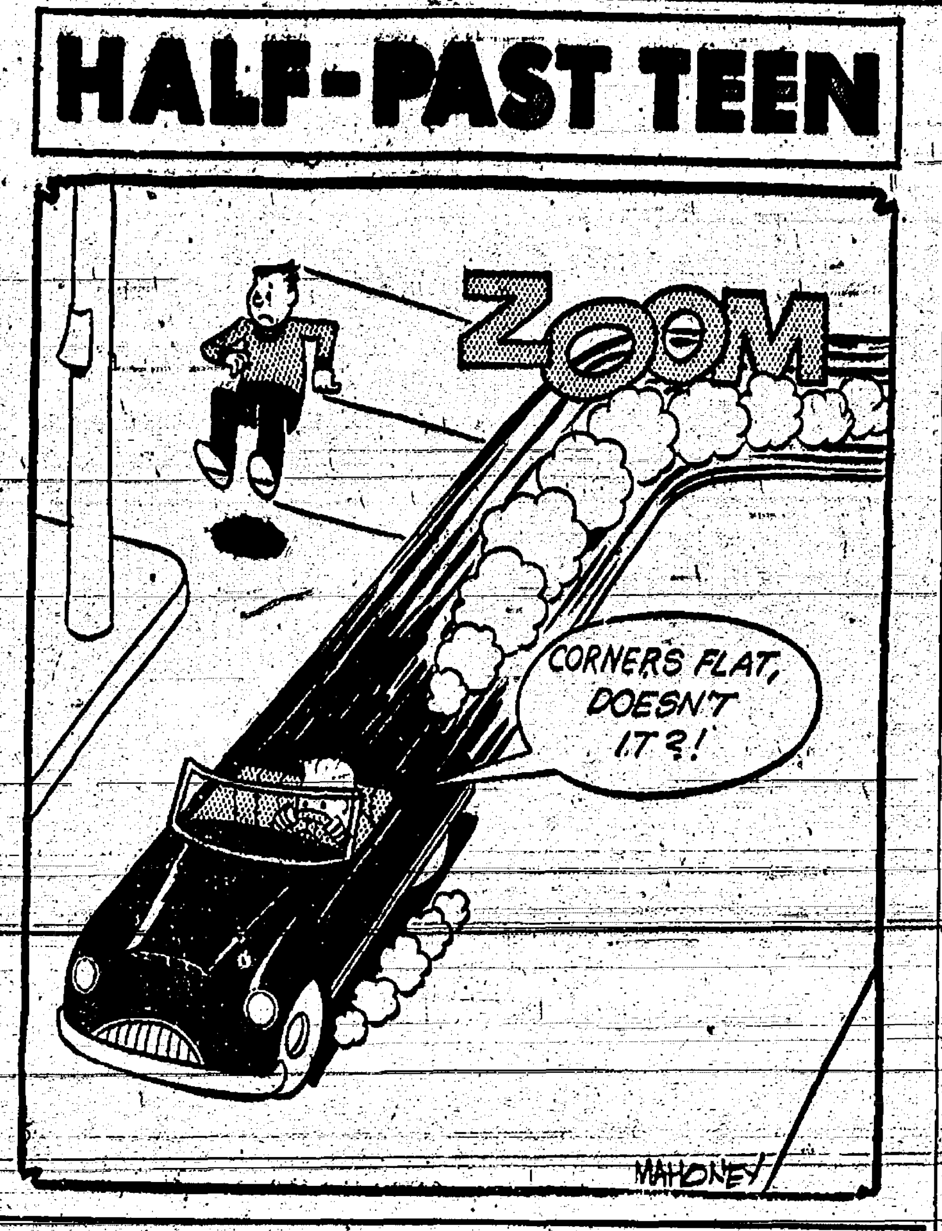
"Deer Management on Private Lands" is a publication for people who own land in "deer country" either as individuals or as members of clubs. Prepared by Charles Shick, MSU Extension Wildlife Specialist, the bulletin cautions that there is no simple managment formula which applies to all land.

Shick says deer management is complex, requiring understanding of the interrelationships of animals and the land on which they live. Plans for deer management should provide for present and future needs. They should be economically sound and consider other valuable natural resources such as timber, soil and water.

The bulletin contains information on the biology of deer. Before a successful management plan can be developed, something must be known about the kind of foods normally preferred by deer, Shick points out.

In discussing habitat for deer, the bulletin gives details on such important aspects as deer carrying capacity, habitat depletion, over-browsing and habitat restoration. Many factors affecting deer management are discussed in detail.

Copies may be obtained from local County Extension Offices, or by writing the Bulletin Office, Agricultural Hall, Michigan State University.



Chelsea Challenged To Repeat With Michigan Product of the Year

In 1963 Chelsea won state and national recognition through the selection of one of its products as Michigan's Product of the Year. The product, the Paradome Portable Camping House of Outdoor Fibre Products, was selected above all other entries in the entire State.

In connection with this program Joseph A. Frisinger said, "Chelsea is a dynamic village with a great past and an unlimited future. As Michigan Week Awards Chairman for Washtenaw county I would like to challenge Chelsea to once again produce Michigan's Product of the Year."

This year there will be both Product and Agriculture Awards. The deadline for cities in the Washtenaw county contest is April 11. No enterprise in this area is too small or too large to compete for honors in the annual Michigan Week Product-of-the-Year and Agricultural Development-of-the-year awards program.

The product competition is open to companies and business enterprises with manufacturing facilities in Michigan.

The entry must be a consumer product made in Michigan. A consumer product is defined as any product made available for sale to the general public, either as individuals or business firms, through normal distribution channels.

It can be either an end product or an accessory that is itself sold to the general public. The product must be a realtively new product with a record of outstanding development recently. It should represent present or potential gain to the economic welfare of this community or area. A product entered in any previous year is eligible for resubmission.

Anyone who knows of a local product that should be entered in the county contest because it would be worthy of carrying the county's colors in the regional contest which follows is urged to contact the Chelsea Michigan Week Chairman, George A. Staffan, 511 Cavanaugh Lake.

Eligible for the agricultural award are farmers, agricultural and horticultural associations, food processors, and other individuals or groups located in Michigan who are engaged in the growing, developing, processing or marketing of agricultural, horticultural or animal products. State and federal agenices, colleges and universities are not eligible.

An agricultural entry can be a product, a process, or a marketing, production or research program significant to Michigan agriculture or to farming in this area of the state. It must have originated in or have been developed in Michigan and should be relatively new, with a record of recent success.

Anyone who has in mind some good entry for the county agricultural-development-of-the-year contest should also contact Staffan.

Insurance Rate Hike Reflects State's Recent Bad Safety Pattern

Lansing — The substantial increase in automotive insurance rates announced by the Automobile Club of Michigan recently was described by Secretary of State James M. Hare as "merely a barometer of the trend."

Hare predicted other companies would follow suit.

"Insurance rate increases tend to follow the traffic safety pattern of the state," Hare said. "Our inability to hold down deaths, injuries, and accidents in Michigan continue to be reflected in rising premiums."

He said there was a single answer to the insurance rate problem—cut death and injury tolls.

"This can be done, but only if we employ the same methods used in the states that have better safety records."

He cited periodic motor vehicle inspection, implied consent law governing drinking drivers, improvement in driver licensing procedures and a method of controlling Michigan's "accident-prone" driver as four of the "most needed" programs.

Bad Drivers Often Have Criminal Records

Lansing — About 50 percent of the "chronically irresponsible drivers who have been called in for re-examination of their driving records under the Michigan point system "have impressive criminal records."

Secretary of State James M. Hare has noted that between July 1, 1965, and January 1, 1966, the Michigan Department of State called in nearly 3,500 chronic violators who had already been called in two or three times under the point system.

Of this group, 1,745 had "substantial" criminal records in the state police files, Hare said.

"Records seem to be much the same—vagrancy, disturbing the peace, disorderly conduct, defrauding an innkeeper, failure to pay alimony. This seems to indicate the correlation between the irresponsible driver and the socially maladjusted person."

April 15 Deadline Nears for Signing in ASCS Programs

Friday, April 15, is the last day growers may file applications to take part in the 1966 Feed Grain and Voluntary Wheat Programs, the Washtenaw ASCS office announced. Signing up is the first step in qualifying for any of the program benefits, including price support.

Farmers who sign-up and then carry out provisions of the 1966 voluntary wheat program will be able to get domestic marketing certificates in addition to price-support loans and purchases for their wheat crop. On the "domestic" part of the projected production, the support available through loans and certificates will be at 100 percent of parity as of the beginning of the marketing year—July 1, 1966. (Feb. 4, 1966 wheat parity was $2.53 per bushel).

In view of the famine conditions which have developed in various parts of the world, the 1966 wheat program has been amended and it no longer offers spring wheat growers payments on additional voluntary diversion below allotments.

While the payments will still be available for winter wheat growers who have already planted crops with the provision in mind, these growers are encouraged wherever possible not to reduce their acreage below the farm allotment during the present sign-up period. Instead, such wheat farmers who are also eligible as feed grain producers are encouraged to participate fully in the feed grain program. Feed grain stocks continue to be more than sufficient.

Under the Feed Grain Program only those who sign to participate will qualify for price-support loans, purchases, and payments. The participating grower also earns a diversion payment for diverting part of his feed grain base to a conserving use; the payments do not apply to the first 20 percent diversion except on farms with small bases. The price-support payments may be earned on the projected production from an acreage up to 50 percent of the total feed grain base for the farm by planting one or more of the feed grains, corn, grain sorghums, or barley, or by planting soybeans in lieu of a feed grain.

The Department of Agriculture officials are stressing the continued need for full participation in the 1966 feed grain program. Feed grain stocks remain more than sufficient.

Through March 23, 635 growers in the county had signed to divert 12,685 acres for payment under the 1966 feed grain program. As of the same date 647 growers had signed to divert 3,763 acres for payment under the wheat program.

ASCS office urges farmers who are interested in taking part in this year's feed grain and wheat programs to call at the ASCS county office as soon as possible since there are only 15 working days left before the sign-up deadline.

The office is open Monday thru Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Extra hours, for your convenience are: Saturday, April 2—9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Monday, April 4—8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, April 9—9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; week of April 11 through 15—8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Change Urged In Commercial Plate Deadline

Lansing — A legislative proposal to push up the deadline for commercial license plates has gained the endorsement of Secretary of State James M. Hare.

The amendment to the state's vehicle code would advance the deadline for buying commercial license plates one month from the last day in February to Jan. 31 of each year.

Hare said this would "do a great deal to lighten the load that our branch offices face during the February rush period with the deadline of passenger plates.

The measure, introduced by Rep. E. D. O'Brien, Detroit Democrat, is sponsored by a bi-partisan group and has support in both parties.

O'Brien's bill would put commercial plates on sale a month earlier on Oct. 1 instead of Nov. 1, while passenger plates would continue to be sold from Nov. 1 through the last day of February of the next year, both on a four-month sales cycle.

Hare said that about a half-million commercial plates would be sold this year.

One third of all plates . . . about 1½ million . . . are sold in February, Hare siad. This represents about half of the three million which are sold during the four-month sales period. The remaining 1½-plus million are sold during the other eight months of the year.

The Hi-Light

Edited by Students of the Chelsea High School Journalism Club

The new addition to Chelsea High school is to be completed by Sept. 1, 1966. The addition will contain 10 classrooms: two for commercial education, bookkeeping, typing, etc; one language lab; one special education room; and six regular classrooms. The new building will cover an area of approximately 13,377 square feet and will cost an estimated $255,105. This estimate does not include architectural fees, etc.

There are no new classes planned for the new addition at the present time. But two additional teachers are expected to join the Chelsea High faculty: one shop teacher and one commercial arts teacher.

No marked reduction in the number of pupils per class will be evident. There are now about 25 students per class.

However, there is a hint that a strike might develop. The masons are said to be asking for a $1.00 per hour pay hike. For this reason and others, the deadline might not be met.

FRESHMEN

The freshman class is now in the process of planning the annual Freshman-Sophomore dance. The date is April 1 and refreshments will be served. There will also be live musical entertainment. The time will be from 8 until 11 p.m. with upper-classmen being admitted after 9:30. Price for the dance is 35 cents for freshmen and sophomores and 50 cents for upper classmen.

Science Fair Winners Told

Ann Arbor—For the first time in the eight year history of the Southeastern Michigan Science Fair, the top senior prizes for both boy and girl have been won by high school freshmen.

The top boy winner was Robert Early, a 14-year-old ninth grader at Forsythe Junior High school in Ann Arbor. Top girl winner was Jody Kingston, of West Junior High school in Ypsilanti, who is also a 14-year-old ninth grader. Placing second in the senior boy division was John Westman, 18, Dexter High school, who won first place in the biology division.

For their work, each won a $175 scholarship and an expenses-aid trip to the International Science Fair, to be held this year in Dallas, Tex., May 11-14, a gold medal and ribbon.

Early's projete was an air-operated "orbit simulator," while Miss Kingston won for her effort entitled "United States Rocks and Minerals."

They received their awards at the Awards Luncheon at the Michigan Union March 26 from E. Elmer Sivacek, vice-president and general manager of King-Seeley Division, and 1966 Science Fair Director.

In the Junior Fair Experiments Division, Barbara Moore of Tappan Junior High school, Ann Arbor, took the top girl award, and Paul Hoagbin of West Junior High school, Ypsilanti, won the top boys' award.

Sivacek presented top prizes in the Junior Fair Models and Collections Division to Jane Weeks, also of Tappan Junior High school and to Pete Kingston, West Junior High school, Ypsilanti, brother of Jody Kingston.

Jody Kingston won the same award as her brother in the 1964 Science Fair. Senior Jane Kingston, 17, Jody's sister, and last year's top girl winner in the Senior Division, took second place in the Senior Division this year. John Westman, 18, Dexter High school senior, took boys' Senior Division second place. Each received $150 scholarships, ribbons and medals.

More than 40 judges from nearby schools, universities and industry deliberated up to eight hours each to select the winners. The Fair is supported by contributions from area business and industry, and is sponsored by the Ann Arbor Exchange Club, Ann Arbor News and the University. It closed March 27 at 4:30 p.m.

Chelsea Junior High students entered these projects: "Development of a Chicken Embryo," Holly Powers; "The Gasoline Engine," Jim Wencel; "Ants," Pat Young; and "The Properties and Functions of the Working Parts of a Crystal Radio," Bruce Parks. Parks is an eighth grade student; all the others are in the seventh grade.

JC Cagers Win District Title

The Chelsea Jaycees emerged the victors Saturday, March 26, in the District 5 Jaycee Basketball Tournament in Howell.

The single game elimination tournament included teams from Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Howell, Lansing, Pinckney, Saline and Ypsilanti.

Chelsea took an early 8-0 lead in the first game against Dexter and controlled the ball for the rest of the game, ending up on the winning side of the 50-34 score.

Gaining an early lead in the second game, the Chelsea cagers dominated the play against Ypsilanti. Ypsilanti was hindered with foul trouble from the beginning to the end of the game Terry Pokela played with a sprained ankle, received late in the Dexter game, but gave his best board performance and contributed 14 points. Balanced scoring was the Chelsea secret for success, with Jack Patrick tossing in 20 points, George Staffan and Don Joseph both turning 16 points and Fred Mills adding 10.

Pinckney snatched an 8-2 lead in the championship game, but accurate shooting by Jack Patrick gave the Chelsea delegation a 13-8 first quarter edge. Patrick led all scorers with 34 points and Don Neff contributed his best performance with 12 points. Vern Otto, who was well guarded all three games, was unable to score but played an outstanding defensive game. Chelsea went on the defeat Pinckney, 75-44.

The three game average for the Chelsea men follows: Jack Patrick, 23; Don Joseph, 12; George Staffan, 9; Terry Pokela, 8; Fred Mills and Don Neff, 5 each; Stan Dyer, 3.

State Classroom Shortage Should End in Four Years

Lansing—A new school was built every three days in Michigan during 1965.

These new schools, plus more than 350 additions and remodelings, provided nearly 4,000 new elementary and high school classrooms.

"This marks the third consecutive year that this level of school building has been maintained," State Board of Education President Thomas J. Brennan said.

"If school construction continues at its present pace, our classroom shortage should be reduced to nearly zero within four years. Indications are that a record 5,000 new classrooms may be built this year."

Brennan said about 2,400 classrooms are needed each year just to meet yearly enrollment increases that have been averaging between 50,000 and 60,000 students in recent years. In addition, about 4,000 classrooms should be replaced because they are outmoded, unsanitary or unsafe.

"In most areas of the state, the picture is very promising," Brennan said. "More than half of all Michigan school children are now housed in classrooms built during the last 10 years.

"The critical classroom shortages are generally in the rapidly-growing metropolitan areas where population shifts have resulted in soaring enrollments in some school districts. It will take a massive construction effort in these areas to solve school housing shortages.

"Barring a serious economic downtown or large population increase, we should meet most of our statewide classroom needs by 1970."

The Michigan Department of Education's annual school construction report shows that 120 new public and non-public schools were built during 1965. They include 71 public elementary schools, private grade schools, 10 public high schools and eight non-public schools.
