Lindauer Granted Good Citizen Award

Christine (Tina) Lindauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lindauer, 200 E. Elmer Rd., received a Good Citizen Award presented by the Sarah Caswell Apple Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution last week.

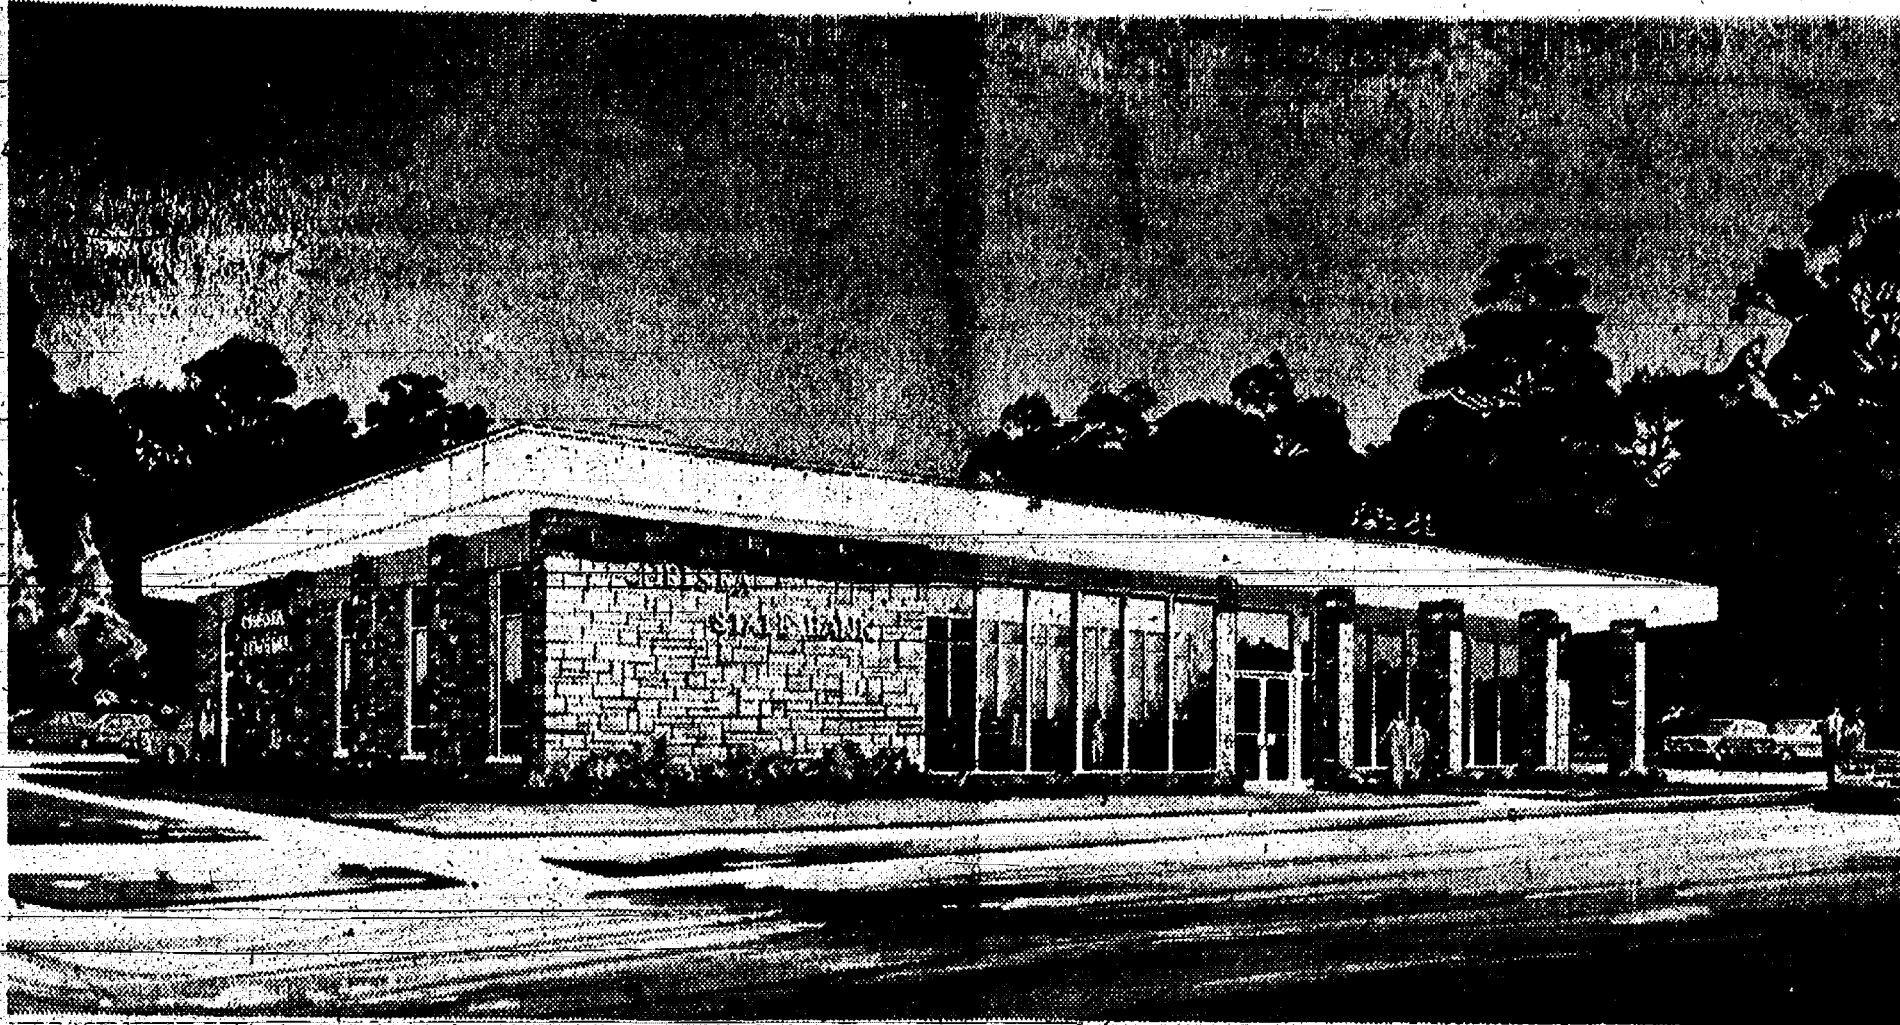

Awards were presented to eight Chelsea county high school students in a ceremony Thursday evening at the Woman's City Club in Arbor.

Since 1935, the DAR has made an annual award to one high school senior girl from each of the area public schools. The girls are selected by fellow students and teachers on the basis of leadership, service, dependability and citizenship.

Miss Lindauer received a certificate of award and a DAR Good Citizen's pin. She is now eligible to compete in a state contest held in March. State winners will be entered in national competition in Washington, D.C. April. The national Good Citizen Award winner will receive a $100 scholarship.

Tina is editor of the Chelsea Standard.

CHELSEA STATE BANK will build the new quarters sketched above on the site cleared at the corner of Orchard and S. Main streets. Construction is expected to start early this spring and completion of the building is scheduled for later this year. The one-story bank will have exterior walls of split-faced stone and dark brick with wide areas of insulated glass. A wide overhang around all four sides will be faced with Georgia marble. Parking for 35 cars will be provided on the site, and the plan includes two drive-in windows.

Bank Reveals Building Plans

A new home for the Chelsea State Bank will be constructed this year on cleared lots at the corner of Orchard and S. Main streets, one block south of the present bank building.

Excavation and construction are scheduled to begin this spring and completion of the new facility by late 1967 is anticipated.

An architect's sketch and details of the proposed building were released this week by Paul E. Mann, bank president. Mann said that bids on construction of the new bank will be opened in about three weeks, and that after a builder has been chosen, firm figures on cost of the facility would be available.

Contemporary architectural style, on-site parking and two drive-in windows are prominent features of the proposal.

The one-story building will measure 60x64. Extensive use will be made of basement space.

The exterior walls and free-standing columns are a combination of split-faced stone and dark brick, with wide areas of insulated glass forming part of the exterior walls. An overhang around all sides of the building is faced with white Georgia marble.

The interior features a large lobby, nine teller windows, three private offices, a conference room and an enlarged working area. A lounge and lunchroom for employees are located in the basement.

Financially functional aspects of the proposal are a modern safe-deposit vault, a night depository and a large fire-proof storage space.

Most of the site will be black-topped to provide access to the drive-in windows and parking space for 35 cars.

The building was designed by Erwin L. Broeckner, AIA, of Battle Creek.

In announcing the building plans Mann said: "The continued increase in business in all phases of banking operations and the expanding growth of our community resulted in plans to build a new facility to adequately service the financial needs of the community."

He added that the new bank building was an expression of faith in the future of Chelsea, and particularly of the downtown area.

Chelsea State Bank purchased land for the new site early in 1966 and planning for the new building has been underway for some time, Mann said. The site had formerly been occupied by three homes and a service station.

After construction is begun, roughly six to eight months will be needed to complete the new bank.

Recreation for Teens Cited as Greatest Need

Community Survey Also Emphasizes Better Public Transportation Need

This town needs recreational facilities for teens, a swimming pool and a community center. This town needs better public transportation—both within the community and between here and other towns. It is difficult to buy or rent a home in Chelsea, particularly when "reasonable price" is a factor. Chelsea needs more restaurants or better restaurants. The opinions of Chelsea residents about their town have been recorded and tabulated by Chelsea Jaycees during the past three months, and the suggestions for improvement most often listed by residents appear above.

The report of the Jaycees Community Survey was presented to the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce Tuesday noon at the Chamber's monthly luncheon meeting. Community Survey project chairman for the Jaycees, Tony Bowen, presented the report. He was assisted by his co-chairman, Don Proctor.

"We would like to see some worthwhile projects as a result of this study," Bowen said. "We were most interested in the suggestions offered for improvement of the community."

He explained that the survey involved two questionnaires, one distributed by the national Jaycee organization and one prepared from questions submitted by the Village Planning Commission and the Village Council.

Four hundred of the forms were distributed in the village, Bowen said, and 150 were completed and returned to the Jaycees.

"We were a little disappointed in the response some of our residents showed," Bowen said. Most of the completed forms were filled out through interviews by the 23 Jaycees working on the project, he explained, noting that sample mailings of forms had yielded very poor results.

"It seems," Bowen said, "that the best way to find out what a man thinks is still to sit down in his living room and ask him."

In presenting the survey report, Bowen emphasized the suggestions for improvement and the listed dislikes of village residents. The Jaycee report categorized the suggestions and dislikes.

Of the 150 questionnaires returned, 30 expressed a need for teenage recreation or a youth center in Chelsea.

A swimming pool, a community center and more recreational opportunities or playgrounds for children were mentioned as suggestions in several forms. The addition of more parks, particularly on the west side of town, was suggested.

Needs cited in the shopping and business category were for more or better restaurants, or a drive-in, an additional hotel or motel, a bakery, a wider selection of merchandise in stores and a shopping center. Several questionnaires suggested that the appearance of the downtown area be improved, and one resident suggested that Main St. be replaced by a mall planted in grass.

Closer control of speeding cars and loose dogs were suggestions in the law enforcement category.

Twenty-four of the returned questionnaires listed a need for public transportation, both within the village and to other towns. This seems to be a particular problem for older residents, Bowen noted.

Other improvements in village services suggested by residents were municipal soft water service, improved sewage system, better storm sewers, improved water drainage on S. Main St. and changes in the garbage collection system, so that cans would not be lost or damaged and residents would not have to carry cans to the curb. A need for Edison service in the village was listed.

Several specific suggestions were offered for improvement of streets and sidewalks. In general several persons saw the railroad crossing as a traffic obstacle and said there is a need for more downtown parking.

Lack of adequate housing was a complaint on 23 of the forms returned.

A housing code and improvements in planning and zoning were listed as needs.

Several complaints and dislikes involved administration of schools, truck activity, particularly on the west side of Wilkinson St., the N. Main-trailer park and the number of taverns in town.

Some community members expressed a feeling that Chelsea was too conservative, with control by older groups and families or that the community was unfriendly to newcomers. A welcome wagon or newcomers' club were suggested cures for this problem.

Some residents suggested establishment of a memorial in Chelsea Park, with a history of Chelsea. Benches in the downtown area were also suggested.

Shopping and entertainment were the reasons residents listed (Continued on page five)

Community Chest Pays All Agencies 80% of Allocation

At its Feb. 15 meeting the Chelsea Community Chest Board established a committee to handle a "pleasant problem—distributing money collected in excess of the already budgeted amount."

Goal for the fall funds campaign was set at $19,875. It is now anticipated that total collections will be approximately $23,000.

Dr. Bruce Stubbs, Community Chest president, presided at the regular meeting last Wednesday. $16,000 cash on hand was reported in the treasury, and it was therefore moved to pay 80 percent of all budgeted allocations to member agencies. Checks will go out in the near future.

Standing committees for the coming year were appointed at the meeting. The six standing committees are the executive, budget, finance, nominations, public relations and campaign committees.

Chief Palmer Grateful for Co-operation

Chelsea Police Chief John Palmer formally submitted his resignation to the Village Council Tuesday night.

Palmer said that because his decision to leave the Chelsea Police Department had been announced at the time Officer Clyde Myers resigned from the Department, a misconception had arisen that a disagreement with the Council was responsible for both resignations.

Palmer explained to the Council that in order for the village to offer him the working hours he would have in his new job as director of Civil Defense for Washtenaw county, the village would have to support a six-man police force. For the last several months Chelsea's police force has had three men, and Palmer has worked seven days a week.

Palmer said that he realized it would be impossible for the village to support a department of this size without substantially raising the village taxes.

In his letter of resignation, Chief Palmer recommended that Officer Earl Willis, who has been with the Chelsea Police Department for six years, be given serious consideration for the post of Police Chief. Palmer said that he thought it was important that the Police department have someone in charge who knew the problems of the community and the troublemakers who come from outside the community.

Before leaving the council chambers Chief Palmer thanked members of the Village Council for their help and co-operation during the years he has been Chief.

Don Baldwin, village president, expressed the deep regret of the Council in accepting Palmer's resignation and said that the Council and the village appreciated the fine job Palmer had done as police chief.

Palmer will leave the Chelsea Police Department March 15 to assume his new position with the county.

The Chelsea seventh and eighth graders who received the 1 ratings and the groups in which they played follow:

ASSEMBLY LINE COMPLETED: One of the first steps in a complex and lengthy moving process was taken last week when Spicer power take-off units were first assembled at Dana Corporation's new plant off Sibley Rd. This assembly line was moved from the firm's Toledo operations. At a later date the Spicer assembly line will be moved to the older Chelsea plant where it will be integrated with the Chelsea power take-off assembly. Plans are to eventually use the new plant for manufacturing and the older location for assembling, a company spokesman said. Tom Fairhurst, left, general manager of the Local Power-Take-Off Division, and Robert Wagner, sales and engineering manager, examine the completed power take-off unit. Paul Riemer, right, an assembler, is testing the power take-offs. The move into the new plant began at the end of January and is expected to continue until at least late April.

St. Mary's School Begins Three-Year Self-Evaluation

Sister John Edna, principal of Saint Mary's school, has announced the beginning of a three-year evaluation program for the school. The study is being carried out in all elementary schools of the Detroit archdiocese.

"We are evaluating our school because we need to know just where we stand so improvements can be made," she said in announcing the study.

"We are here to meet the physical, emotional, intellectual, moral and spiritual needs and interests (Continued on page three)

OUTDOORS with GORDIE

by GORDON CHARLES

Birth control can be a subject of violent argument. We intend to discuss it here, anyhow. Let somebody get his knuckles up too far, too quick, we might point out that our remarks will be confined to bluegills. Yeah, bluegills. Fish.

Several years ago a friend of ours, Bill Sizemore, wrote a humorous article called "Why Is a Bluegill So Many?" In this article he indicated that there are just too darned many bluegills in almost every piece of water and wondered how come the fishermen had to be so damned little.

Well, Bill and a lot of other fishermen may have reason to stand up and cheer in the very near future because a major warm water breakthrough appears to be close at hand. And it's going to happen right here in Michigan.

Would you believe, ladies, full of nothing but big bluegills? Read on.

At the University of Michigan a young graduate student named Gerald Erickson is working toward his doctor's degree on the subject of economical birth control for bluegills. It works with them it works with extended to other species. Of that is what I

We talked recently with Dr. Frank Hooper at the School of Natural Resources in Ann Arbor. He was highly enthusiastic over the possibilities of Erickson's research which has about another year to go.

The project involves large numbers of midsize bluegills in large ponds. The fish, when under beams of ultra-violet or radioactive cobalt, by being exposed in this way for a very short time, the fish are sterilized but are unchanged in other ways. They will remain perfectly safe to eat, once caught.

This means that if successful, these little bluegills can be stocked in ponds and lakes which have previously been chemically treated to remove all other fish life. Without competition, the little bluegills will grow to whopper size in record time. And best of all, they won't be spawning millions of other little bluegills that would eventually compete with them for food. In short, these whoppers will have nothing but big fish.

Eager to give credit where due, Dr. Hooper says the idea for this bluegill fisherman's paradise originated three years ago with biologist Stan Lixens. At the time Stan was district fish supervisor at Traverse City before Conservation Department reorganization saw fit to wipe out that headquarters.

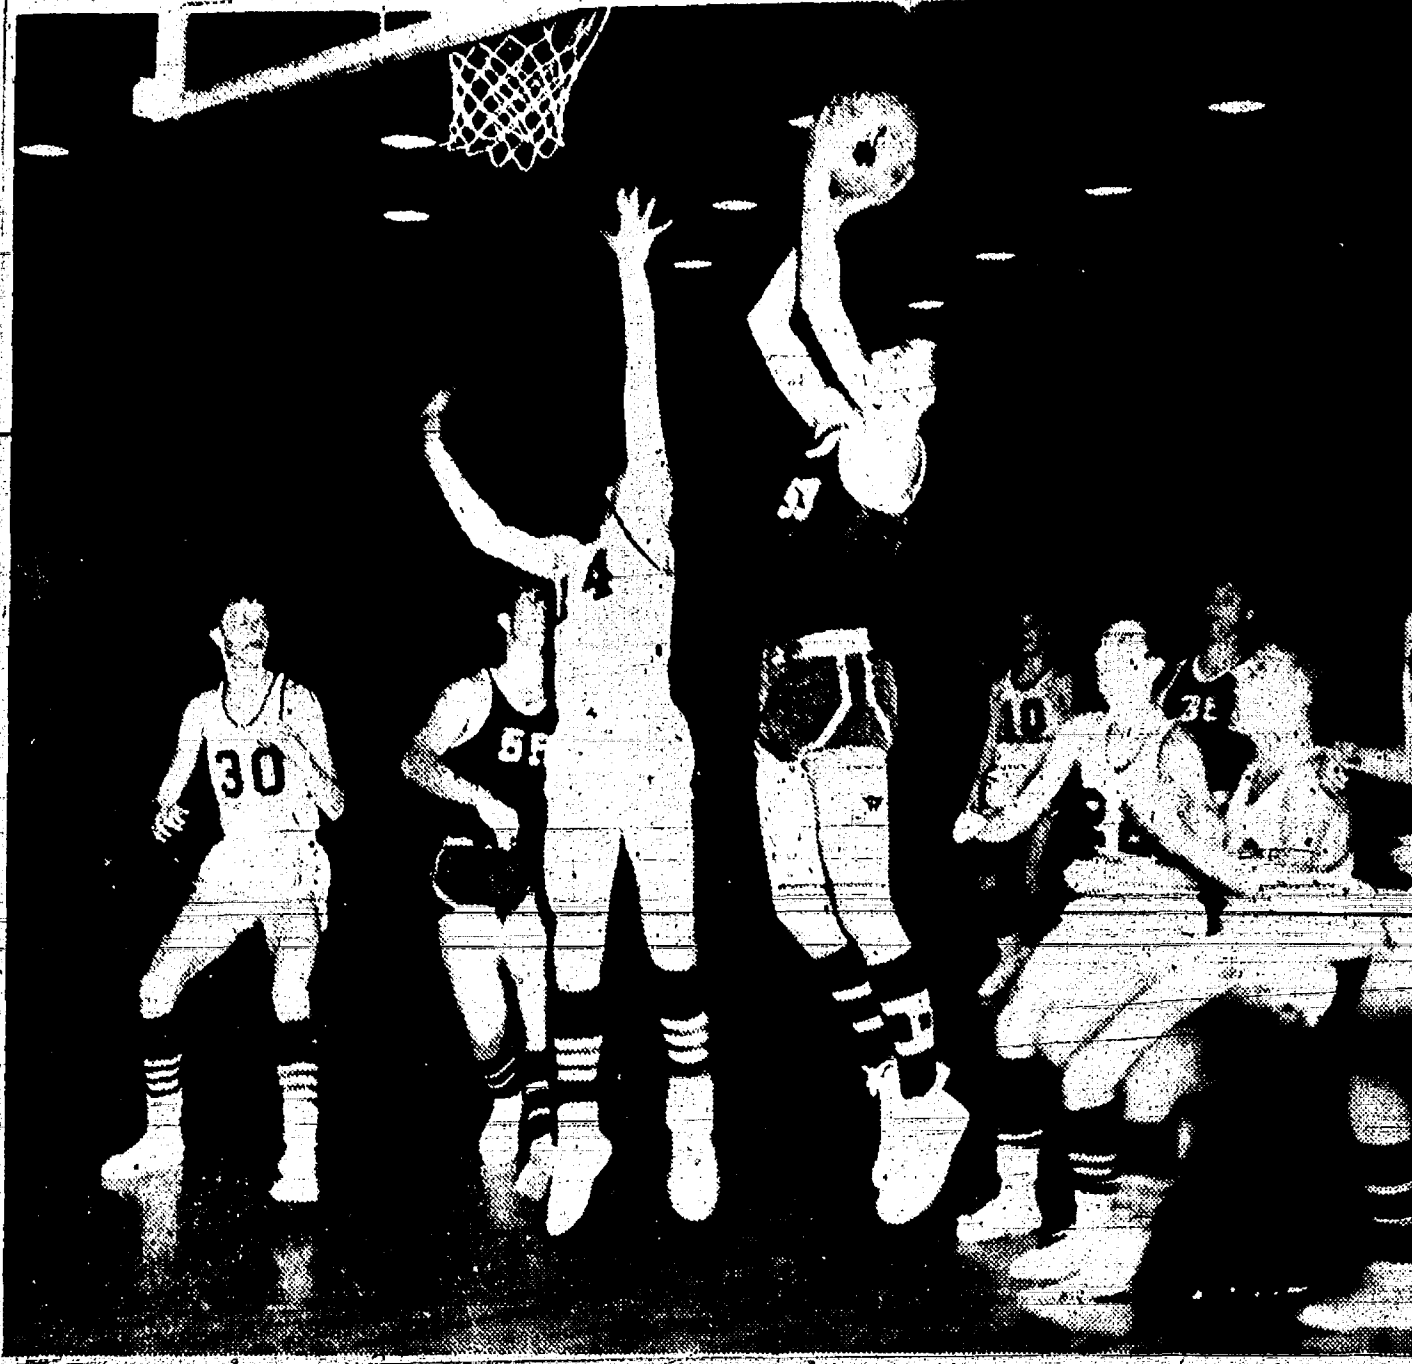

Lixens discussed his idea of sterilizing warm water fish with radioactivity at great length with Dr. Hooper. Soon after, for an enthusiasm, Dr. Hooper and a trip to Oak Ridge, Tenn. to look into the possibilities, and found the idea feasible. That's when Gerald Erickson entered the picture and research began at the University.

If fishermen are excited over this impending warm water breakthrough, they have good reason to be. It can really add up to some of the most spectacular fishing ever imagined.

Cagers Try Real Hard But Still Drop Two

The Chelsea Bulldogs had another tough weekend on the basketball court, losing to Lincoln Friday night 19-17, and coming out on the short end of a scrappy game with Vandercook Lake Saturday, 22-21.

The Vandercook Lake game was the last home game of the season. Chelsea's final game of the regular season will be at Saline Friday, Feb. 24.

Last Friday night the Lincoln Bulldogs hosted the Bulldogs. A fast-breaking Lincoln squad ran up 25 points in the quarter to a low-moving Chelsea. Six and then the Bulldogs protested to deal out a humiliating defeat to the Bulldogs.

Guard Steve Stullart scored 17 of a total of 27 points in that first quarter, mostly on lay-ups at the end of a fast-break.

The stunned Bulldogs, playing their first game since early in the season in a man-to-man defense, could not cope with the speed of the fast-break attack.

Three after time the Lincoln Bulldogs would cut the ball off the hands and shoot it down the length of the court to the waiting hands of Shugart. Inexperience at the guard position hampered the Bulldogs from making the early passes. Unfamiliarity with the fast-break just broke used by the Lincoln contributed to the Chelsea loss.

The Bulldogs said they were not from the show. Let Michigan come.

If you believe that weather is influenced by Mr. Groundhog and his shadow, well... you will still admit that it is not a real sure thing. Mr. Groundhog is not always right.

Even scientific weather forecasting includes such phrases as "if this develops" or "if there is no change." Mother Nature is sometimes unpredictable.

You can be fairly certain about some things, however. You can generally accept a reputation for reliability.

some individual has earned recognition as "reliable" you can put some trust in their credibility. The same is true of a company or a business. Confidence is earned on the basis of performance.

Understanding your HEALTH

By Albert E. Heustle, M.D., Director Michigan Department of Public Health

A recent outbreak of infectious hepatitis at one of our state universities dramatized the fact that this disease can spread rapidly once it gets a chance to get started.

Now, of course, the best thing to do is to take preventive measures before the disease gains a foothold in your system—and thus save yourself from the real discomfort that can follow. Prevention is relatively simple: if you use municipal water it involves merely observing a few standard principles of personal hygiene. It is important to wash your hands thoroughly after each toilet use, and always use your own towel. It is also necessary to wash your hands thoroughly before eating or preparing food. It's just that simple.

However, if you live in an area served by private wells and septic tanks, then there may be the possibility of septic tank wastes contaminating the wells. If they have not been constructed properly. Consult your local health department if you have any questions about your water supply or waste disposal system. The emphasis on washing is required because infectious hepatitis is caused by a tiny virus that leaves the body with the bowel material and gets back into the system through the mouth. The virus then grows in the intestines from two to six weeks, and then strikes. Frequently, the symptoms include a splitting headache, high fever, extreme fatigue and aching severe depression. After a few days, jaundice may develop with the skin and the whites of the eyes turning a sickly yellow.

Here, at the state health department laboratories, a substance known as gamma globulin is produced that can be helpful in preventing severe infection before it really takes control. Give shortly after exposure, it reduces the severity of the infection and prevents jaundice.

Infectious hepatitis is fatal, but the damage it inflicts may be proportional to the length of time the disease is in the system before treatment is begun. Particularly, if the individual remains active. It is extremely important that any one suspecting that he has the disease see his family doctor immediately. Treatment is more effective the sooner it is begun. The greater the damage, the more severe and lasting the damage.

Complete recovery from infectious hepatitis can be a drawn-out process. The disease runs its course in six weeks, but the convalescent period may require six months in some cases. A year or more. During this period it is extremely important that the patient follow his doctor's instructions because of the possibility of a relapse or a greatly prolonged period of recovery.

The life and beauty of a parchment lamp shade can be lengthened with a thin coat of shellac. First, carefully clean the shades with a damp cloth and allow them to dry thoroughly. Next, simply apply a thin coat of clear shellac, to insure the lasting beauty of these important additions to your decor.
If you eat a sweet roll or doughnut at your daily coffee break you may gain a pound every 25 days if your body doesn't use the extra calories but stores them as fat. In a year's time, you could gain 14 pounds.

D. Schneider Will Speak At St. Paul's

Douglas Schneider, a Chelsea native who is now an agricultural missionary of the United Church of Christ serving in India in one of the areas hardest hit by the current famine, will speak at St. Paul United Church of Christ, 14000 Old US-12, East, at a family potluck supper on Saturday, Feb. 25, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

On Sunday, Feb. 26 Schneider will occupy the pulpit at St. Paul church with the pastor, the Rev. Warner H. Siebert, acting as liturgist.

Schneider is a former member of the St. Paul congregation. He is the son of Lewis and Evelyn Schneider, 219 Railroad St.

Schneider, who is in the States for a year's furlough, went to Bhawappatna, Orissa, in 1961 to develop an agricultural extension program. But in the months previous to his departure this spring, he reports, he was spending most of his time organizing relief projects for the area. Some 60 percent of the population is in dire need, and many come to the church for relief.

He employed needy farmers in minor irrigation projects, in well digging, roadbuilding and in helping to distribute relief. Workers are paid in wheat sent out from the United States by Church World Service, interdenominational Protestant relief agency.

During his years in India, Schneider has emphasized keeping and poultry and goat raising. He also has managed four primary schools to prepare children for further education in an area where 80 percent of the people can neither read nor write.

A 1968 graduate of Michigan State University with a BS degree, Schneider also studied two years at Eden Theological Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo. He is a graduate of Chelsea High school.

He is spending his furlough year studying agriculture at the Graduate School of MSU.

Mrs. Schneider, the former Karen Deazar, is a medical technologist with a BS degree from MSU in 1967. The Schneiders have three children.

South School Studies Prehistoric Animals

Sylvester Wojcicki, elementary schools principal, reports that prehistoric animals have been stalking the corridors of South school.

When he investigated last week he found that Mrs. Peggy Andrews and Mrs. Stephanie Eord's first grade classes have been learning about dinosaurs.

The first graders made clay dinosaurs and pictures to decorate the school hall showcase. Mrs. Ford's class made dinosaur cloth pictures and Mrs. Andrews' class made dinosaur books.

At the end of their study, both classes visited the Museum on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor on Friday, Feb. 3.

Income Tax Help

Available in Booklet

Offered to Taxpayers

Detroit: "Your Federal Income Tax," a 100-page booklet on Federal taxes, is now available at internal Revenue Service offices throughout Michigan, according to

A.M. Stoepler, District Director of Internal Revenue.

The booklet covers in detail the Federal income tax laws as they apply to individuals. It contains many examples to illustrate application of the laws to actual situations.

Stoepler said the material is especially helpful to Michigan taxpayers who have unusual tax situations, or for those faced with a new tax problem for the first time.

Check lists of taxable and non-taxable income, and of allowable and non-allowable deductions are included. A detailed index helps pinpoint answers to tax problems.

A special feature in the booklet is the sample filled-in tax return,

Form 1040, keyed to pages in the booklet where explanations can be found for the entries on the return.

The booklet may also be obtained from the Superintendent of

Documents, U. S. Government

Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

REPORT from LANSING

State Representative

Thomas G. Sharpe

Interview with Harry Golden
To Highlight TV Program

East Lansing — Dr. Erle Berne, psychiatrist and author of the best-selling book, "Games People Play," appears in the "Spectrum" spotlight in the first of a two-part presentation, Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 7 p.m. and Wednesday, March 1, at 11:30 a.m.

An interview with Dr. Berne provides an in-depth description of his controversial psychoanalytic theory, "transactional analysis," based on the assumption that each individual has three ego states—child, parent and adult. Transactional analysis, Dr. Berne explains, analyzes human problems by focusing on the interaction of these states within the individual and with other persons.

Dr. Berne also describes in detail the "game" concept of human interaction for which he has gained fame. Films show one of his most important innovations—open staff meetings where physicians discuss their patients while the patients are present.

Other WMSB highlights include:

HARRY GOLDEN—The "Creative Person" explores "The World of Harry Golden," editor-publisher of the "Carolina Israelite" and author of "For a Plain," "Only in America," "Enjoy, Enjoy" and a biography of Carl Sandburg. Golden discusses his career, his literary achievements and his philosophies on life. Sunday, Feb. 26, at 1:30 p.m. and Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 11:30 a.m.

Noted for his wit and humor, Golden revisits his boyhood home on New York's Lower East Side and discusses his famous "Golden Vertical Negro Plan," an answer to those opposing Negroes and whites "seated together" at school.

Golden's plan simply proposes that school systems remove their seats, eliminating seating problems altogether.

MUSIC—Joseph Evans, professor of piano at MSU, is guest on "Recital Hall," Sunday, Feb. 26, at 1:30 p.m. His program consists of the Sonata in D Minor, Opus 31, No. 2, by Ludwig van Beethoven; Mazurka, Opus 30, No. 3, by Frederic Chopin; and "La Campanella," by Paganini-Liszt-Busoni.

Conductor William Steinberg, music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony, leads the 1966 Congress of Strings Orchestra on "Congress of Strings 1966," the first program in a series recorded on the MSU campus this past summer.

The orchestra, consisting of 10 young string players from throughout the U. S. and Canada, performs the Concerto Grosso in D Minor, Opus 6, No. 16, by Handel.

SPORTS—WMSB sports editor Jim Adams and associate sports editor Terry Braverman take an over-all look at the upcoming Big Ten championships in wrestling, gymnastics, track, fencing and swimming on "Spartan Sportlife," Monday, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. Special emphasis is given to the swimming event, which is to be held at Michigan State.

An interview with Detroit Tiger pitcher Earl Wilson, and a preview of the MSU-Ohio State basketball game to be played Monday, Feb. 27, highlight the sports broadcast.

ISRAELI—"N.E.T. Journal" presents a probing documentary on the emergent land of Israel on "After the Miracle," Sunday, Feb. 26, at 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday, March 1, at 12 noon.

What has happened to this nation in the 18 years since its inception is the subject of the documentary, which concentrates on five major areas of Israeli life: defense, religion, integration, development and the Arab minority.

Filed by the Australian Broadcasting Commission, life in Israel is crystallized through interviews examining the attitudes and goals of Israel's young people.

DRAMA—"Knife in the Water," winner of the International Film Critics Award at the 1962 Venice Film Festival, has its American television premiere on "N.E.T. Playhouse," Sunday, Feb. 26, at 11 p.m.

An essay in tension, Roman Polanski's film concerns an attractive trio thrown together on a chance encounter, which turns a Sunday yachting cruise into a psychological crisis.

Playing the two men in the story, one older and successful, the other a rebellious young student, are Leon Niemczyk and Zygmunt Malanowicz, both professional actors. Jolanta Umecka plays the part of the cool and self-possessed woman.

'Who Knows' Answers—1. The highest mountain in Africa. 2. In 105 A.D. 3. Stated. 4. Approximately $2,000,000. 5. $310,007,087,795 (subject to revision). 6. President Cleveland. 7. President Lincoln. 8. Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr. 9. Feb. 20, 1962. 10. Jan. 3, 1959.

GOING UP—Recent price increases for wood, some metals and other materials forecast higher prices for finished goods for home use—such as equipment and furniture.

Coyote Killed in Marshall Rd. Area

In the past two years, 60 head of lambs belonging to Edwin Egeler of 7160 Marshall Rd. have died at the whim of a restless, roaming mother coyote, seeking to feed her pups.

Safety Tip—The early hours of the morning and the last hours of a long drive are the most perilous for the lone driver, State Highway Commission accident statistics show. If you are tempted to test your endurance on a long drive in order to get there sooner, remind yourself that this could result in not getting there at all.

PROPOSED EXCISE TAX CUT—President Johnson has indicated that excise taxes on telephones and automobiles will be cut as scheduled April 1, 1968. The proposal is to cut excise taxes on telephones from 10 percent to 1 percent and on automobiles from 7 percent to 2 percent.

Egeler watched her from afar, but was unable to get within shooting range. One by one he caught four of her young, one only four months old weighing 19½ pounds.

Last week, while delving into wood with his brother Erwin, they spotted the animal once again, crossing Marshall Rd. Quickly they called Art Miller to bring his two black and tan dogs, the aid of Richard Miller and Jerry Smith.

DOCTORS TO BE DRAFTED—For the first time, beginning in July, doctors of osteopathy will be included in the Pentagon callup of more than 2,000 doctors. Selective Service will draft 2,118 doctors of medicine and 111 osteopaths.

Don Wert, Tiger third baseman, had played 261 straight games when forced out of the lineup by illness in June, 1966.

Tracking through the swamps, Egeler aimed and shot at the coyote, wounding it. A few minutes later, Richard Miller shot again, killing the beast, which weighed in at 45 pounds.

4-H Horse Club—Members preparing for state contest.

4-H horse club members for the past two weeks have been busy sharpening their vocabulary of horse terms. Learning the parts of a horse and the descriptive terminology is one small but important phase of horse judging.

All of this activity is in preparation for the annual Black and White Show and Horse Judging contest, April 1, at Michigan State University. Mrs. Alice Gougeon has been giving leadership to this activity with the assistance of the 4-H club horse project leaders.

Judging workouts are scheduled each Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Rural Activities Center on Ann Arbor-Saline Rd. Interested 4-H horse members are welcome to participate.
