Remodeling of Bank Building May Start Soon

Area Contractors Asked To Meet Saturday, Study Revised Plans

The remodeling of the old Chelsea State Bank building will be one step further ahead Saturday at 9:30 a.m. when a meeting will be held at the building for all interested contractors to look over the building, new plans for remodeling, and questions to help them decide their bids for the job.

Area contractors are invited to meet Saturday at 9:30 a.m. to discuss the new plans for the renovation, which were all officially turned down by the County Board of Supervisors within the last few weeks.

bids ranged from $110,000 to $200,000 and were considered too for the budget allowed. Consequently, the original plans had to be reduced.

These plans have been completed, and were approved by Pat J. Conlin, District Court Judge Building and Grounds Committee, William Day, said new plans will provide for a ten facility that will meet with demands projected for it.

We have remodeled the same court system, created by the state legislature to comply with provisions in the 1963 Michigan Constitution, replaced the municipal judges, 26 justices, and two circuit court commissioners in the county.

There are five county district court judges. Two of the judges hear cases in the 15th district, Ann Arbor, with the remaining three, including Judge Conlin, hearing county cases.

All-Star Team Defeats Little League Champs

The champion team of the Little League was defeated by the league's All-Star team in the game Thursday evening at the high school.

Dana Corp. was defeated by the All-Stars by a score of 18 to 3. Dana was the first-place team throughout the season, and the All-Star team was made up of outstanding members of the other teams in the league.

In the T-ball games, Spaulding Chevrolet defeated Central Fibre, and Chelsea State Bank defeated the G. A. Sales team.

Recreation director, Paul Giever has requested that the coaches of the teams who have not handed in their uniforms please call Jim Wojciecki at 475-8070.

Football Team Practice Will Start Aug. 25

Chelsea High school's prospective gridiron team will begin practice on Aug. 25 at 8:14 a.m. in the balcony of the gym dressed in full battle gear.

Head coach, Philip Barcia announced that the Varsity team has a nine-game schedule with four home games and five away. The Junior Varsity team has eight games, four at home and four away. The Freshman team will play seven games and will be coached by James Tallman, a new coach-in-the-system.

Candidates for the team must have their physicals before the first practice. Cards for the physical may be picked up at the high school office or the doctor's office.

It is required that every athlete carry football insurance offered by the school. The cost of $2.75 covers everything that individual insurance does not cover.

The school will take mouthpiece impressions the first week of practice on Aug. 28. The players are charged $1 for these, but they are important and the school is providing the very best on the market.

Due to the bankruptcy of the renting service used in the past, the school has 60 pair of used shoes for sale to prospective players. They have all been reconditioned and are guaranteed for the season. Shoe fittings will be Saturday, Aug. 9 from 9 to 11 a.m. The shoes will be sold at the reduced price of $3 or $4.

Football equipment will be handed to past letter winners on Aug. 23 from 9 to 10 a.m. Sophomores will pick up their equipment the same day between 10-11

Washington Report
by Congressman
MARVIN L. ESCH

The future of our nation is determined, in large part, by the quality of leadership which our young people will be caught up in during the years ahead and by the quality of the environment which they will inherit. Our future is the future dependent on a large part on the quality of our educational system and whether we will tolerate further pollution and degradation of the environment.

There are many short-term problems which call out for solution but, in the long run, if we do not effectively address ourselves to these two areas, any progress made in other areas will be in vain.

There is no more important priority for the future of our nation than the education of our young people so that every child will have an opportunity to develop to the best of his ability in whatever field his talents lie and that he should be prepared by the school system to take a constructive part in society.

Education is one concern, however, I was therefore pleased to be appointed in the inadequate recommendations for federal educational assistance included in the budget. I believe it is shortsighted to cut back on those programs which are so vital to the development and education of our young people. It is particularly shortsighted, I believe, to cut such programs as vocational education, guidance, library facilities, and aid to disadvantaged children since these programs are specifically aimed at those who most desperately need extra assistance and help if they are to break out of the cycle of poverty and dependence on society.

I have therefore voted this week for the inclusion of additional funds in the federal budget for these vital functions. Every school day and every school child in the country will benefit from the additional funds included in the House measure.

However, all the education, all the medical advances, all the social and cultural development in one nation will not result in a satisfactory society if the environment has been destroyed by pollution.

Pacing Facts

If automaker writes Ralph Nader should show a feature in cars which could be connected with 21 percent of fatal accidents in the state, the public would be demanding that corrections be made.

But when figures show that 24 percent of highway deaths are connected with drunk-driving, there's very little public reaction. The public reacts no more when told that 72 percent of drivers involved in fatal accidents were drinking to some degree before the accident.

No more accurate description of the organized opposition in Michigan could be found than "intense, angry and determined."

The same bulletin described sex education programs as a "subversive monstrosity" and a "filthy communist plot."

It then asserts: "By far the most dangerous and disastrous step in this whole program to promote degeneracy is the present increasingly widespread efforts to introduce 'sex education' into our schools all the way from kindergarten through high school."

The pamphlet also said, "We do not believe that the current drive for sex education is even intended by its originators and promoters to provide a needed and beneficial service in the schools."

It is their sinister objective instead to create an unceasing and dangerous obsession with sex in the minds of our children."

The April bulletin says, "Already, from several parts of the country we have received reports of major victories in various efforts to keep sex education out of the schools and in the home where it belongs. And this is just beginning."

Sex education again pops up in the May issue of the bulletin. The society says the basis of all sex education programs are "communists who are determined to use an artificially stimulated prepossession of sex during school years as a means of destroying the character of a whole generation of American youth."

The bulletin concluded by saying that it expects membership of the real problems of traffic safety.

Birchers Involved

Those who doubt the involvement of the John Birch Society in the anti-sex education campaign whose effects now are being felt in Michigan need look no further than the group's own publications to satisfy their doubts.

Again and again this year, the group's bulletins have spoken of the need to combat sex education programs in any shape or form.

The drive is being spearheaded by groups calling themselves MOTOREDE committees. MOTOREDE stands for Movement to Restore Decency.

The January society bulletin said there is "one more urgent requirement for MOTOREDE committees besides merely organizing."

"That requirement is organized, nation-wide, intensive, angry and determined opposition to the now mushrooming program of so-called sex education in the public schools," it said.

The pamphlet also said, "We do not believe that the current drive for sex education is even intended by its originators and promoters to provide a needed and beneficial service in the schools."

It is their sinister objective instead to create an unceasing and dangerous obsession with sex in the minds of our children."

The April bulletin says, "Already, from several parts of the country we have received reports of major victories in various efforts to keep sex education out of the schools and in the home where it belongs. And this is just beginning."

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Clem Webster announced at the country store Saturday night that he won't be none surprised when scientists figure a way to take off gravity. Afar the tellers got the idea, the summer sun had poked Clem's brains, he went on to explain what he had on his mind.

Ever once in a while, Clem allowed he was waiting for President Nixon to start whipping the country back in shape, but so far all he can see is Mr. Nixon dodging new problem and passing new laws that give us more of the old problems. For instance, Clem said he had saw where Nixon was getting ready to unwrap his new welfare and housing programs. So far all that has been "unwrapped" is speeches about what terrible shape the Democrats left everything in.

Final Mister Editor, Ed Doubtless got the floor and demanded equal time. He started off by saying what Clem was talking about was changing people—not laws. The sad fact is, said Ed, people want everthing they can get and then some, and that includes them doctors that has got $100 million more in medical care than they saw, much less treated patients for. It includes them 17,000 farmers and ranchers too, Ed went on, that is getting $25,000 or more apiece a year for letting their land lay out.

They is somesum about people, Ed said, that when they git their head to the trough they don't want to fill eatting and they don't want to make room for nobody else.

The difference in farming and agriculture in this country, declared Ed, is that the little feller that works his land is farming and the big feller that git paid by the Government for not farming is in agriculture. Them as has gits, whether its $5 billion in farm payments or doctorred up Medicare claims, was Ed's words.

Personal, Mister Editor, I am agreed with Clem that about the only law they ain't changed is the one about the squeaking wheel gitting the grease.

Yours truly,

Uncle Lew.

North Central Association Team Evaluates Chelsea School Program

EDITOR'S NOTE: On Feb. 25, 26, 27, representatives of the Michigan NCA State Committee evaluated the educational program at Chelsea High School. The evaluations which appear in the following report by the visiting committee were made public at the request of the visitors—under the classification of special areas of the high school and partly on the findings produced by the committee.

Although in most cases the reports on each area of instruction represent the view of individual visitors, it might be noted that each visitor had the opportunity to present his more fundamental observations to the total committee at the conclusion of the visit.

6. An up-to-date definition of agriculture should be prepared for use by the teacher, administration, and Board of Education, with consultation by the State Vocational Agriculture office.

7. An up-to-date curriculum guide should be prepared and presented to the administration and Board of Education by the teacher.

8. The supervised farming (experience) program should include (required): productive projects or on-the-job training of all students involved in the program.

9. The large shop facility is not being used wisely. Ag. Mechanics should be offered as a separate course, possibly during the junior and senior years.

10. Inclusion of a nursery plot would add considerable interest to the program.

AGRICULTURE

Paul F. Burns,
Agriculture Teacher,
Tecumseh High School

The agriculture program includes courses in Applied Plant and Animal Science, Applied Soil Science and Agricultural Mechanics, Conservation-Forestry and Outdoor Recreation, Horticulture, Feeds-Animal Health and Nutrition.

Comments:

I would like to commend the agriculture teacher for his ability to improvise in the agriculture program and for carrying on, even though facilities are very limited.

Some strong points in the program are: 1) The agriculture instructor is well qualified. 2) Leadership training in the FFA is extensive. 3. Class demonstrations provide a helpful supplement to the program. 4) Both boys and girls are enrolled in the program. 5) Individual instruction was evident; many students' questions were answered.

Recommendations:

1. The physical facility is inadequate. Evidence of planning is not present here as in other class rooms.

2. Makeshift facilities, such as plywood sheets to shade the classroom, give a poor image.

3. The storage space is poorly planned.

4. Counter space, cupboard, chalkboards, bulletin boards, book shelves, magazine racks, and lab facilities are lacking.

Advantage. The separation also al-

vious. Students must go outside to get from class to class. They tend to do so without coats or wear coats to every class. Separation of classes into groups isolates teachers from other disciplines with no little communication between teachers. Lack of hallways means lack of locker storage space for students which necessitates a separate building for lockers, which, since it is unsupervised, could be a potential arsenal for student misbehavior.

ART

Jessie M. Hudson,
Plymouth High School

The village of Chelsea is an interesting one. Buildings seem to be of Civil War vintage; there are many charming old houses on the side streets, with the usual new ones in rather raw subdivisions. Industry is well established and is reported to be growing. The tax base seems stable and adequate for present needs. The surprise is that in what seems to be a conservative, agriculturally oriented (or at least surrounded) village, with roots in the last century, that this century is well represented in many of the public buildings. Churches on the way into town are built in exciting new architecture, while the older churches in town and the Methodist Home are of the conventional architecture typical of the early part of this century. The firehouse is very up-to-date and modern; the Municipal Building, while in an old building, has been covered over with a modern facade (not too successfully from an aesthetic point of view). The two sides to Chelsea might account for the biggest surprise of all, the extremely modern layout and planning of information and equipment of similar classes and instructors. The inclusion of office space in most buildings so that teachers have a place to plan and study is another

advantage. The separation also al-

vious. Students must go outside to get from class to class. They tend to do so without coats or wear coats to every class. Separation of classes into groups isolates teachers from other disciplines with no little communication between teachers. Lack of hallways means lack of locker storage space for students which necessitates a separate building for lockers, which, since it is un-

supervised, could be a potential arsenal for student misbehavior.

Wheat Field Catches Fire From Auto

Nearly an acre and a half of wheat was burned Saturday afternoon when an old automobile caught fire, and the flames spread to the field.

Everett Van Riper, 20412 Jerusalem, phoned the fire department at noon Saturday, to report that the old convertible car they use to run through the fields had caught fire, and he thought it might spread.

The fire department went out to his farm, and had the fire under control within 10 or 15 minutes. Fireman Arthur Paul attributed the fire to a collection of straw that had gathered in the manifold of the car, and began to flame because of the heat of the engine.

Senior Class

Will Enter Fair Float

Chelsea High school's senior class has decided to enter a float in the Chelsea Community Fair Parade, after nearly cancelling the idea due to lack of support.

Regina Hardy, chairman of the committee in charge of preparations for the float, announced last week that the float would be cancelled unless at least 20 members of the class attended the meeting held last Thursday.

Enough members attended to go ahead with their plans.

The float, which was to be built at Jane Oesterle's home on Sibley Rd., will be moved to a more convenient place down the road.

There will be a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at either the Oesterle home or the Trinkle farm on Sibley Rd.

For information about the meeting or the float project interested persons may call 475-8114 or 475-8513.

The class has a history of prize-winning floats, receiving a first place, second place, and honorable mention for their past three entries.

by M. L. Voss

A Blurred Image

Farmers have reason to become increasingly concerned about their "image." They recognize that for most people it may be hard to imagine the difference between that of the farmer-businessman and the traditional farmer named Hiram and twirling a ragged straw hat.

Both are far from the actual truth. Today's farmer is far removed from the country bumpkin (if indeed he ever existed) of yesterday. And, instead of agriculture being a monolithic super-business, it is made up of worried, working, family raising, debt-incurring individuals much the same as everyone else.

During the month of August, Farm Bureau Community Programs will closely examine the farmers' image—and farm publications programs and problems. In small meetings of about 20 couples held in farm homes, they will examine problem areas and possible answers—keeping in mind all the while that farmers represent less than six percent of the total U.S. population, and that his voice must be better amplified if he is going to be heard at all.

Areas of concern include such things as the national boycott of California table grapes—the public attitude toward pesticides—farmer-hunter relations, and the continuing need for agricultural education and research even at a time when food production and reserves are at substantial peak.

How many people who support AFL-CIO sponsored boy-boycott of California grapes really understand that the issue is not one of social concern for starving migrants (which do not exist) but instead is a nation-wide effort to unionize American farmers against their wishes.

Many people have been falsified into thinking that agriculture is a major source of pollution of air and stream when in fact exactly the opposite is true. Many similar hard questions much in the minds of Michigan's hard-working, thinking and what worried men-on-the-farm.

Farmers Urged to Get Receipts
for Stored Grain

Farmers who accept "delayed price certificates" instead of officially certifying the value of that grain stored at an elevator could easily lose the value of that grain storage, according to B. Dale Ball, director, Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Ball pointed out that farmers could insist on official warehouse receipts for any grain they store at an elevator, as required by state law.

Should an elevator fail or go bankrupt, farmers with official receipts will receive priority in getting claims while those holding delayed price certificates are protected, Ball said.

The Farm Products Storage Act provides that if an elevator fails, becomes insolvent, stocks on hand are to be used to satisfy warehouse receipts before any other claims are settled.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Please print the following in the hope that some other person might not be fooled as I was.

On July 19, a young man called our home, identified himself saying he was a friend of an ex-worker of mine, who had been recently dismissed as a teacher at Cassidy Lake. Since he seemed to know my friend, I agreed to meet with him.

I asked specifically if he represented The Argus and he said, "No, I am with The Michigan Daily."

I make this plain because much consideration has been given to our project and we had come to the decision that only "above board" measures must be used and that we must substantiate all statements we made.

Anxious that the truth be known concerning Cassidy Lake and situations which had arisen while I was employed there, I consented to an interview after he said he was one of the editors. Shocked at hearing of and seeing the "Splash" in The Argus, I therefore called The Michigan Daily (which I admit I should have done before) and discovered that he, at one time, contributed articles but was not on the staff.

Apparently posing for one paper while obtaining information for their Argus is common practice. If the printed inaccuracies are a classic example of their journalistic endeavors, I can understand why they must resort to an underground press. While much of what was printed in the article was true, how is the unsuspecting reader to know where the truth ends and their version begins.

While it is true the Department of Corrections has released articles containing inaccuracies, this is not a contest to see who can outdo whom with the biggest fabrication. Our prime objective is to make people aware that our prisons are not doing the job they say—to protect the public by aiding in the prevention of crime—because FBI statistics show over 50 percent of inmates released in 1968 had returned to crime within four years. We desire to help the imprisoned individuals re-direct their thinking toward a productive non-criminal life and can prove that in many instances, the tion with the Holy Scriptures. Philosophical speculation and tradition are endeavoring to undermine God's infallible word, but amid all the confusion, we with the Psalmist David can take our stand and say—"I wait for the Lord, my soul doth wait, and in His word do I hope"—(Psalms 130:5).

Yours in appreciation,
Matthew Bokmiller,
Detroit, Mich.

Editor, Chelsea Standard,
Gregory, Mich.

Dear Editor:

Thank you for the excellent informative article entitled "Donaldson's Bible Library Among Finest in Country" in the July 17 issue of The Chelsea Standard. I deeply appreciate the article especially in this Space-age when science is being placed in competition.

Every year it costs the state of Michigan millions of dollars just to pick up trash along our highway's and in our state parks.

You complain about soaring costs, yet you continue to throw paper, beer and pop cans, and a large amount of other trash out on our roads. It has always been bad, but now with the throw-away bottles it's terrible. Even our secluded nature trails are badly littered.

You just don't seem to realize that cleaning up this mess all comes back to you in the form of taxes.

Whatever happened to "America the Beautiful"?

Is it too much bother to have a litter bag in your car? Is it too much trouble to walk a few steps to a trash container?

Living in all this litter isn't fit for pigs, yet humans seem to fit in quite nicely.

Sincerely,
A Boy Scout.

The world's largest crucifix is located at the Indian River Catholic Shrine in northern Michigan. The redwood cross is 58 feet high, the bronze corpus is 31 feet high and weighs 6½ tons, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

Justin Morgan, a Vermont school teacher-farmer developed the Morgan horse in 1788 and the horse was a breeding rarity in that every foal was almost a perfect image of his sire.

Suggestions for improvement are these:

Expansion of department to include one more art room.

Expansion of staff to two and a half to three full-time teachers to work in tandem or as consultant to industrial arts and home economics in the area of design as enumerated above. If another room were provided, it could be planned for three-dimensional work such as ceramics, sculpture, jewelery making, architectural or automotive model building. The other room could then be more efficiently arranged for desk space suitable to two-dimensional or flat design, painting, drawing, and plan making. The employment of a second art teacher as full-time art instructor and a part-time instructor trained in the dual roles of art and home economics would make for full use of both present and additional facilities in both areas related to home economics such as weaving, stitching, and interior design as well as dress design. The home-planning section of the present building does not seem to be used to full capacity.

On the whole, Chelsea schools are to be congratulated on their vision in building with foresight and courage and in providing quality art education to the student body. With short-range improvements outlined above and especially with long-range improvements suggested, they could be outstanding in the area of art education.

BUSINESS EDUCATION—

Robert Lee,
Assistant Superintendent,
Brighton Area Schools

Chester High School's business education offerings consist of three semesters of typewriting and one year of bookkeeping, office practice, shorthand, and co-operative office training.

The extent and quality of the physical facilities which enable the business department to carry out an effective program are very good except for storage facilities which are rather limited.

The personal and professional qualifications of the two business teachers are excellent. It is evident that their lessons are well planned, that they use a variety of teaching methods, and that they are enthusiastic about their jobs.

Both vocational business education and general business education have been considered in the program. An adequate program for those students interested in general clerical work is provided.

Students who may be planning a career in one of the many fields related to art. These classes could then include History of Art either as a separate offering or as an integral part of the advanced art classes.

Specific suggestions for improvement of present facilities are these: Rearrangement of room to provide more desk space. Wallboard on cabinet doors to provide more display area within the room. Racks either under the worktable in the rear or over-present storage cabinets to provide storage for paintings in process. Wallboard or bulletin boards in each office and classroom for display of student art work in the rooms of those teachers or administrators who would welcome it. More display areas in the central hallway near areas of student concentration such as cafeteria and library for display of art work.

The office between the art department and the home economics department could be more efficiently laid out. A coat rack extending from the wall a short distance would allow wall space for cabinet or shelves for storage and would create a marker or room divider between the two areas, as well as a place for coats.

With the growing universality and practicality of typewriting, every student should be encouraged to take a course at sometime in his school experience. If typewriting is to be made practical than handwriting, sufficient skill analysis should be made to determine whether one semester in junior or senior high, as presently offered for personal use, is sufficient to develop enough skill so the student will actually use the typewriter as an instrument of communication.

It was evident from the well-prepared classes in bookkeeping that Chelsea students are developing an appreciation for the importance of accurate record-keeping and reporting as well as familiarity with the terms of business which are difficult to understand fully without some knowledge of bookkeeping theory. Since our economic system is based on business transactions it is commendable that the students seem to be getting a good understanding of our economic system.

ENGLISH—

Hattie Marie Spiteri,
English Teacher,
Hillsdale High School

All students at Chelsea High School take English since four years of this subject are required for graduation. From the curriculum listing, it would appear that only four English classes—one for each grade—were available to students. Some diversity is provided, however, by homogeneous grouping in all grades. Counselors place students in bright, average, or slow classes. In the tenth grade, students take a semester of speech in lieu of English. These courses are taught by six teachers, all of whom have strong college majors in English. Two of the teachers have master's degrees.

Commendable features:

1. The administration is to be commended for assigning English classes, almost without exception, to teachers majoring in this discipline.

2. In nearly every class it was apparent that the teacher had established rapport with the students, an "easy" relationship making for sincere exchange of ideas.

3. There was significant evidence of student participation in planning and executing the class work, making for involvement and therefore more lasting learning.

4. The sizes of classes were quite manageable.

5. There was considerable emphasis on novels, both as individualized outside reading and as the basis for in-class, in-depth discussion.

6. The three levels of instruction in each grade ARE diversified, the low track having no analogy to the traditional one.

The modern language department offers only French but does offer a three-year program at the high school level. This year the department has extended the program downward to the sixth and seventh grades. If the students continue from this level through the high school, they should have a considerable proficiency by the time they graduate.

Commendable features:

1. For a school of this size, it is remarkable that three years of Latin are still offered. If the enrollment of 85 in Latin I has an attrition rate of only 10, down to 25, for the second year, this is good; and to have 12 continuing to the third year is exceptional, since this is the first year it has been offered.

2. The audio-lingual approach is employed in the modern language extensively with very adequate equipment. The use of just earphones (not booths) makes the room usable for class work and lectures as well, rather than just lab used only part time.

3. Both teachers have a speaking competency, having spent a semester at a French university.

4. Channelling of students into the foreign-language department must be adequate to have so many electing a foreign language. The superintendent of schools is dedicated to the proposition that every student should be required to take at least a year of a foreign language as an exposure course, whether he passes it or not. Credit in it would not be a graduation requirement. There would have to be two levels—one for those expecting to continue and one for those who would be taking just the one year. He is also interested in adding Spanish and German—Spanish because of the influx of Spanish-speaking people into the community around, and German because the ethnic background of the community is German. He would also like to see an exchange program developed for some of the advanced students to spend a semester or a year abroad.

5. The staff is young and dedicated, with an enthusiasm which inspires the students.

Recommendations for improvement:

1. The addition of Spanish and German to the curriculum would give a broader selection to the students.

2. Each language sequence should be continued through the twelfth grade if the student is going to continue in college, so that he will not lose his proficiency.

3. Visual aids should be collected in the department as well as supplementary books—maps of Africa's travels, Jason's trials, etc.—French Language newspapers and magazines. Teachers should not need to bring their personal libraries to supplement the regular class library.

4. Closed storage space should be available for materials when they are not being used. Also, glassed-in cases would display class projects to better advantage. Teachers could also use files for the tests and drill materials.

SCIENCE—

Cameron Carter,
HOWELL HIGH SCHOOL

Commendable features of the program:

A continuous science program is being provided for the students at Chelsea High School. Students have an opportunity to take courses in the biological and physical sciences in Grades 9 through 12. Courses being offered are General Biology, Biology I, Biology II, Earth Sciences, Chemistry and Physics. The students of Chelsea High School are fortunate for having a science staff which is both competent and enthusiastic in the area in which they teach. They are very interested in overcoming the problems which they are aware of through self-evaluation of the curriculum. There is a very good relationship between staff and students. The staff is very helpful and willing to help students in achieving their educational goals.

The class size in the science department is very good. The students are able to spend more time under these conditions.

Recommendations for improvement:

1. There should be a wide choice of courses for the slow learner and more gifted students.

2. More equipment and supplementary material are needed further pursue the educational objectives of the science department.

3. More storage space is needed for all laboratories. In conjunction with storage space, preparation or roomwork is needed in each lab area.

4. The biology labs are lacking in water and gas facilities. Facilities are needed to facilitate the present program.

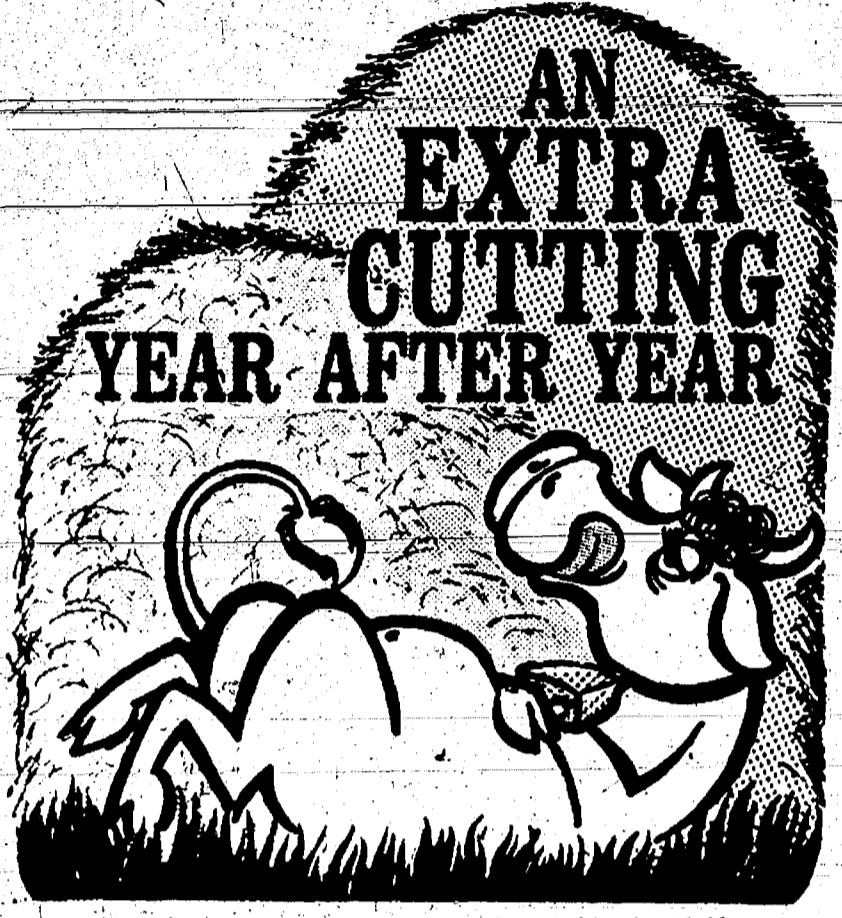

5. There is a need for a green house based upon the type of projects students are doing.

6. More preparation time is needed by all staff members in science department for laboratory preparation, care of equipment, inventory of equipment.

7. The administration should develop ways and means so that curriculum guides could be opened for all courses in the program. Also, a communication system should be developed by the administration and staff to develop a coordinated K-12 science program.
