Washington Report by Congressman MARVIN L. ESCH

Congress is finally coming to grips with the severe problems posed by a creaky draft system which is riddled with inequities. I only regret it did not act two years ago when I am some of my colleagues pleaded with the House to make draft reform an urgent priority.

Under a change in the law now being considered the President will be able to establish a random system of selecting young men that will equalize the risks to each. The new approach also will make men eligible for the draft for only one year, either at age 19 or in the first year after college graduation, rather than the seven agonizing years under our present outmoded system.

Unfortunately, other changes I have advocated, such as national standards for deferments, are not being made.

As long as we have a draft system I will continue to fight for improvements but the real solution to the problem is the abolition of the entire system, a position I have long held. At the same time we need to move to an all-volunteer Army. This can be done, I believe, but we must be willing to provide adequate compensation and establish sound manpower policies if we are to draw and hold

Rehabilitation Needs Money

Though educational reform has been receiving a great deal of attention lately, there was hardly a ripple when a Department of Education report on Michigan's vocational rehabilitation program was made public.

The report includes an in-depth study of Michigan's program and a comparison of the program with those in other states.

It showed Michigan spends the equivalent of 35 cents per resident on its vocational rehabilitation programs. This ranks the state 45th among the 54 states and territories covered.

The report also showed Michigan is missing out on millions of federal dollars for rehabilitation programs because the legislature does not appropriate matching funds. During the current year alone, the report said, Michigan will lose $6.8 million in federal funds and it would only take $1.5 million in state money to attract the funds.

The report is the result of a three-year study begun after the planning grants for vocational rehabilitation in 1965.

The State Board of Education appointed the study board, which was headed by Don Galvin, director of vocational rehabilitation in the department.

More than 1,000 persons participated in the study before it was completed, representing every shade of the spectrum in the area of vocational rehabilitation.

The survey concluded that 230,000 Michigan residents are currently eligible for and could benefit from rehabilitation services of the department. Yet, it said, inadequate funding and personnel result in services to only 7,000 of these people.

The problem is made more acute by the fact an additional 45,000 persons reach employable age each year burdened with a residual limitation that began in childhood or suffer a chronic illness or injury.

"Among all the constraints and limitations under which the rehabilitation program operates, none are more serious than those resulting from insufficient funding," the report said.

"A substantial general state appropriation program would allow the department the freedom and flexibility to develop programs where they are needed rather than providing additional resources to already well endowed districts," it said.

"An estimate $28.6 million in federal funds has been authorized for release to the state of Michigan for vocational rehabilitation services in fiscal 1971," the report said. "A state appropriation of approximately $5.9 million would be enough to capture all available federal funds and would assure a total budget for vocational rehabilitation services of $28.5 million."

"If the Department of Education Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is expected to adequately serve the disabled and the disadvantaged, the program must be supported by the state and federal government in a manner commensurate with this objective," the report concluded.

Board Reacts

Most members of the State Board of Education have been working hard in recent weeks in an effort to kill the Governor's proposal to abolish the board.

The board started out in a bad spot, since the Governor was making that recommendation at the same time Ira Polley was being forced out of office as superintendent of public instruction.

On the footsteps of the Governor's request that the board be abolished came a statement from the board outlining 25 achievements it said were the result of its existence.

Several board members have been seen in Lansing talking to members of the legislature, trying to secure votes against the proposal.

One recent action came in the form of a board newsletter intended to show that the board members do things at meetings besides calling each other names. It is entitled "Education... Action" and summarizes actions taken by the board at its meetings.

The first newsletter came out after the Oct. 14-15 meeting at which Dr. John Porter was hired as acting superintendent of public instruction.

Accenting the "action" theme, the newsletter writers underline the verb in each sentence which tells that the board adopted something, approved something, accepted a report, agreed to something, etc.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Did you see that little item in the paper the other day where the mayor of Toledo had named a committee to study the city's parking and meeting place problems? The committee had to call off their first meeting cause they couldn't find a place to meet. One member said traffic was so bad until he couldn't find a place to double park.

Actual, Mister Editor, we ain't that crowded yet out here in the country, but we are getting a taste of city traffic. Used to, a feller could live by the side of the road and be a friend of man. Now all he gets at the side of the road is the squeal of tires on them fast cars and the roar of trucks as big as locomotives. The road by our place don't come from nowhere and it don't go nowhere, but we get woke up ever night by the beller of the string of trucks.

The feller that runs the country store told the fellers Saturday night that practical everthing he has in stock come on a truck, so it ain't no wonder to him the roads is full of 'em. He allowed stopping all the trucks would stop the country as cold as cutting off all the electricity. He said he didn't know where the country is headed, but it shore is going there on wheels.

Ed Doolittle allowed traffic is just another sign that the country is filling up fast. He has saw where ever minute of ever day a acre of land is covered by a building, a road or a parking lot. But still 70 percent of the people in this country live on one per cent of the land.

With people piling up 70 stories high in the cities, said Ed, the other 99 percent of the land will have to be junk yards and garbage dumps. They is 40 million junk cars that ain't in junk yards, and seven million is added to this collection ever year, Ed reported.

There's hope for the junk cars, Ed said. He had saw where this machine can chew up 1400 junk a day, and turn them back into useable steel. A few weeks ago, the feller was talking about the claim that garbage is a valuable natural resource. If we can get minerals and chemies from our garbage and steel from junk cars, we can use everthing over and over and save some room for people, was Ed's thinking.

But the way we're going now, allowed Ed, by the time we run out of standing room on earth it won't make much difference cause everybody will be under 20 feet of garbage. Land already is so scarce in Japan, Ed said, until they're burying people in 10-story buildings to save space. And just enuff room to keep somebody's jug of ashes over there costs $2,777.

It gives me the shakes, Mister Editor, to think what a shopping center parking lot would cost them prices.

Yours truly,

programs in the area. In October he chaired the first village level mental health symposium in Alaska. The symposium was developed with broad native community participation and included the first visit by a psychiatrist to the remote Eskimo village of Mekoryuk in the Bering Sea. The symposium was considered of great significance to Alaska and a prototype for future development in rural areas. Much of the program was placed on video tape for reproduction in television studios. It was the first time the natives had ever seen television cameras which in itself caused considerable interest.

Schneider serves on a number of local and state committees. He is chairman of the Bethel Receiving Home Administrative Committee. His new duties include supervision of programs in welfare, education, employment, housing, community and economic development. He has previous experience in working with American Indians and the disadvantaged in Wisconsin and Kentucky.

Schneider grew up in Chelsea. He returned to Chelsea to lay the ground work, develop, and serve as the first executive director of Spaulding for Children. The agency is now recognized for its dynamic adoption program. He also served as assistant administrator of the Chelsea Methodist Home, the first local person employed in a major administrative position at the Home.

Schneider is married and the father of four children. The family is enjoying new and exciting experiences in Bethel. Mrs. Schneider is director of the school lunch program which serves nearly 1,000 meals a day in one of the largest state graded schools in Alaska.

Governor Keith Miller of Alaska who recently visited the Bethel area said of Schneider "He is an outstanding social work administrator and does our state of Alaska credit for his innovative and far reaching programs."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By LOUIS BURGHARDT

Veteran's Day is naturally a day of nostalgia for those who knew the brunt of battle . . . Thoughts of infantry mobility, artillery range, paratroop landings, strategic targets missed or hit, front lines, trenches, fox holes, jungle trails, wounded and dead buddies—all these and other languishing thoughts persist.

For all of us, Veteran's Day causes us to think about—and honor—the millions who donned a uniform and served their country with pride and distinction. We think of those who faced enemy bullets and those who may yet have to face armed aggressors in an unpredictable future. We think of those who died in faraway lands—and those who may yet die in combat so that others may live in peace.

Veteran's Day is also a day of hope. A hope that some day boys of 19 will no longer have to fight the biggest fight of their lives—their fight to stay alive to reach an older age . . .

CHILDREN'S GREAT PROBLEM THE PALATINE TONSILS

This is the time of year when many a child's mouth exhibits large inflamed masses on either side of the throat. This is commonly referred to as tonsillitis.

Time was, when these were ripped out wholesale and no one felt quite "average" unless his were removed. Recent trends have been very conservative in regards to their removal. Especially since tonsillectomy tends to weaken one toward polio.

Chiropractic has been of great aid to many children with tonsil trouble and if decay has not progressed too far, their removal is not necessary.

MOST ORIGINAL in the Halloween party and parade sponsored Thursday evening by the Kiwanis club were Carla Pfizenmaier, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Pfizenmaier, 14415 Island Lake Rd., whose costume portrayed a table, set with plate, knife, fork, etc., and Don and Jon Oesterle, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Oesterle, 564 Chandler St., who wore prehistoric cave man costumes. Carla was awarded first prize and the Oesterle boys received the second- and third-place awards. Outfits of all three prizewinners were made by their mothers with the exception of the masks they wore.

$311 Collected For UNICEF

Halloween collections for UNICEF this fall showed a 50-percent increase over 1968. A total of $311.97 was given to children knocking on Chelsea doors, compared to $203 last year.

Mrs. Clare Warren, organizer of the drive, credits two reasons for the marked increase. First, the choice of a time for collecting different from regular Trick or Treat activities emphasized the UNICEF collection. Secondly, area residents were very generous this year. The amount collected per child was far more than previously.

The number of children participating did not noticeably increase. About 115 children and young people took part in the annual event Sunday, Oct. 26. After the door-to-door collecting, the Church Women United provided a treat for the group, planned by Mrs. Guy Barton.

Mrs. Jerald Beaumont was in charge of counting and Mrs. George Heydlauff arranged box distribution and publicity. The 1969 collection will be mailed to the U.S. Committee for UNICEF in New York for distribution throughout the world to children in need.

THE WEEK'S LETTER:
 "I am a girl, 13 years old, and the member of a large family. I don't guess you would consider my complaint a very important one, but it 'bugs' me. The children take turns doing chores, like dishes, for example, at our house. The problem is that my 15-year-old sister doesn't ever wash dishes. She is allergic to detergents and her hands break out in a rash. This means that my 11-year-old sister and I have to do more than our share of washing dishes. I know my sister has a problem with her hands, but it still doesn't seem fair."

OUR REPLY:
 I would assume that your sister has tried rubber gloves. If she hasn't suggest that your parents get a pair. If your sister is highly allergic, there are two alternatives. She should see a medical specialist to see if the problem can be diagnosed and corrected or you should try to talk your family into buying a dish washing machine. You are in a position to know whether or not your family can afford such an undertaking.

If you have a teen-age problem you want to have discussed or an observation to make, address your letter to "For and About Teen-Agers," Community and Suburban Press Service, in care of this newspaper.

MSU To Help in Farm Labor Problems

Personnel management is an area of concern that has been ignored or consciously shunned by most Michigan dairymen, believes Allen Shapley, Michigan State University extension dairy specialist. Dairyman do a good job managing a herd, a cropping program, or a business, but many can't cope adequately with labor problems, he points out. To aid farmers with their labor problems, he is developing a new personnel management handbook.

New Juvenile Court Center Open House Slated Sunday

Washtenaw county citizens will view their new $1,400,000 Juvenile Court Center at an open house at 2270 Platt Rd., will be shown to the public on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The event will symbolize the beginning of a new era in the 61-year history of Washtenaw county children's court, established by the 1908 Michigan Constitution within the jurisdiction of the Probate Court.

In 1908, juvenile cases were heard by Probate Judge Emory E. Leland in the old county courthouse on the corner of Huron and Main in Ann Arbor, where the present county courthouse now stands. Juvenile Court business was then handled by the Probate Court, forcing the juvenile division to move over to the second floor of the old Municipal Court in 1950, at a cost to the county of $100 per month rental.

Probate Judge Jay Payne, who took office in 1949, noted in his first annual report that 157 delinquency petitions, and 60 dependency and neglect petitions were heard, 75 adoptions were granted, and 19 youths were placed in detention. As there was no juvenile detention facility in 1949, children requiring detention were held in the basement of the County Infirmary, in circumstances resembling a jail, according to a League of Women Voters report of that time.

As Juvenile Court caseloads increased, so did the alarm of many county citizens at the inadequate facilities for handling children, as well as the lack of trained staff to assist the court. A campaign to create a juvenile detention facility, supported by a wide variety of county civic organizations and led by Judge Payne and Mrs. Ruth Dana, then chairman of the Probate Court and Juvenile Affairs Committee of the County Board of Supervisors, resulted in voter approval of construction of the first juvenile detention facility. Built on county farm property in 1956, at a cost of $110,000, this structure was designed to house a maximum of 12 youngsters; eight boys and four girls. (Currently, the home has held as many as 16 boys and seven girls, when circumstances have left the court with no alternative but to risk such overcrowding, according to Juvenile Detention Director Todd Woolery.)

The opening of the detention home was soon followed by grim events. Judge Payne died of a heart attack shortly after the new facility was opened. In March 1956, in the fall of the same year, a 14-year-old Ann Arbor boy hanged himself a few hours after he was placed in the home by Ann Arbor police. Investigations following the suicide pointed up the needs for more and better trained juvenile workers, for facilities for emotionally disturbed children and for emergency psychiatric services for court children.

to the Juvenile Court led by Mrs. Joselyn Van Tine focused its attention upon developing adequate information about juvenile court processes and future requirements. Project 74, a privately funded, three-year research program authorized by Judge John Conlin, forecast the need for a Juvenile Court Center, and engaged the broad support of Washtenaw County civic organizations for the $1,400,000 bond proposal, approved Nov. 8, 1966.

The new facility, occupying 41,000 square feet, brings together all the services of the juvenile court under the same roof for the first time in the 61-year history of the juvenile division of the Probate Court. The center is divided into two sections, one housing the court and the other housing the detention facility. Court spaces include offices for 33 professional staff members, courtroom, judge's chambers, director's office and conference room, a legal library, court referee's hearing room, staff room and stenopool. The detention section will house and feed 27 youngsters, and includes two classrooms and a home-economics laboratory, woodshop, arts and crafts room, and a large day area and recreation room. Separating the two sections of the center is an inter-denominational chapel.

The Juvenile Center was planned and designed by Davenport Associates of Grand Rapids in close co-operation with the Juvenile Court staff and Washtenaw County administration. It is modeled after the Kent County Juvenile Court.

Project 74 also forecast a national trend in its recommendations for tightening up legal safeguards protecting the rights of juveniles brought before the court. In December, 1966, the U. S. Supreme Court handed down a landmark decision in the case of Gerald Gault, who had been committed at the age of 16 to an Arizona state industrial school under procedures which the Supreme Court held unconstitutional.

Judge Francis O'Brien, who assumed the Juvenile Court bench in 1967 after a second Probate Judgeship was provided to meet the county's population growth, took issue with the opinion that the Gault decision would destroy the effectiveness of the children's courts by introducing legal adversary proceedings. Gault, Judge O'Brien stated, "simply means that before any governmental body interferes in the life of a citizen including a child, due process of law must be followed. The Gault decision will effect less than 10 percent of the cases, the contested ones. The court's real problem will lie in the acquiring of adequate facilities for disposition of the cases after adjudication."

Even as the new Juvenile Court Center opens, the search for facilities for adolescents continues. A newly formed non-profit corporation, Family Group Homes for Youth, Inc., is attempting to expand group boarding care from the two existing group homes which now house six boys and six girls who are capable of attending public schools. Group homes, the court has found, offer a better alternative to the placement of children in boarding schools out of the county or state when circumstances prevent the court from supervising children in their own homes. Thomas Fitzgerald, president of the new non-profit corporation, states that "we are looking at property suitable for small group living and for couples interested in managing such homes. By 1971 the corporation hopes to have six group homes in operation."

Court officials estimate that by the end of 1969, the court will process more than 1,100 complaints of delinquency. In addition, officials estimate that approximately 300 adoption proceedings will be held. Neglect cases, now supervised by the State Department of Social Services, are expected to exceed 100 by the end of 1969.

Dr. Papo Re-Elected To Membership in National GP Academy

Dr. Michael Papo, director of the Chelsea Medical Clinic, has been re-elected to active membership in the American Academy of General Practice, the national association of family doctors.

Re-election signifies that the physician has successfully completed 150 hours of accredited post-graduate medical study in the last three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership.

The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, is the only national medical group that requires members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education. The Academy, founded in 1947, and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., has been instrumental in the establishment of a new primary medical specialty in family practice. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future.

WHAT IS A PHARMACIST?

Your pharmacist is an expert on medicines. Formerly, he prepared, stored and compounded most of the medicines in the prescriptions written by the doctor. Although your pharmacist today does less compounding, he must know a great deal more about medicines and their ingredients. Your pharmacist must know how to combine medicines and their effects on the body. His knowledge assures the safety, accuracy and the purity of the prescriptions he dispenses. Your pharmacist is also your family friend. He is interested in your health and wants to help you protect it. We are proud when a family chooses us to be their personal pharmacy.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

PAINTING TIP
Before repainting a surface that has been enameled, be sure to cut the "gloss" of the old coating by sanding or applying an enamel undercoat. This will provide a better bond for your new enamel.

DRYING SUEDE LEATHER
Rain won't damage suede since it's made from animal skins. But when drying a suede garment, it's advisable to keep it away from direct heat which may stiffen the suede and produce changes in the finish.

There is no way to economize without doing without something.

Jackson Radio Play Broadcast Has Martians Hitting Chelsea

Martian spaceships landed in Chelsea Friday night and nearly caused a repeat of the 1938 riot in New York following a similar landing.

The Martian landing was reported by radio station WIBM in Jackson. Friday night and nearly caused a repeat of the 1938 riot in New York following a similar landing.

The original script was adopted from H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" and was aired Oct. 31, 1938 on Wells' "Mercury Theater" program in New York City.

In the WIBM version, Martians landed near midnight on the Willmuth farm in Chelsea. News alerts interrupted the regular rock music program of disc jockey Doug Blair to report as newsmen arrived on the scene. As in the original broadcast, the radio announcer was describing the Martians climbing out of the spaceship when his report to the studio went dead. WIBM newsmen soon reported that the "eyewitness" charred body had been identified in an Ann Arbor hospital.

The station reported that the National Guard from Ypsilanti had been called out to meet the invaders and were annihilated. A Professor Pierson, an astronomer from the University of Michigan, was called in to give his explanation of the events. As the radio station was destroyed, Pierson walked the empty streets of Detroit as the last human alive, describing how the Martians had finally been overcome by earthly bacteria after killing all earthlings.

By the time the WIBM program concluded at 1 a.m. for the regular news, more than 100 frightened listeners had phoned the radio station, along with several city police and sheriff's deputies who reported they were flooded with hundreds of calls.

The broadcast was not heard in Chelsea since WIBM does not operate on a high enough frequency. Mike Bradley, WIBM news director, who played Prof. Pierson in the play, said that relatives of Chelsea residents were calling them to warn them of the invasion.

During the 1938 broadcast, the highways leading out of New York City became crowded by residents fleeing the invaders. Several suicides were reported.

BROWNIES OF TROOP 169 grin happily as they await the start of their hayride Saturday. The hayride was the highlight of a day-long visit to Susan Heller's farm.

Brownies Enjoy Farm Outing

The last Saturday in October was one of those bright golden days just right for a trip to the farm. And that is exactly what Brownie Troop No. 169 did. The girls met at the Congregational church with their leader, Mrs. Jack Patrick, assistant leader, Mrs. William Ames, and Mrs. George Hill who helped with transportation.

An important project for the troop, when they arrived at Susan Heller's farm, was the planning of a "Kaper Chart" which would list the fire builders, water carriers and cooks. For many of the girls this was the first time they had actually gathered firewood and started a camp fire on their own. The leaders were pleased at the fine display of teamwork.

The highlight of the outing was a hayride in which old "Dobbin" was replaced by a patient, dependable tractor and an equally patient Mrs. Heller. The country scenery took on a new fascination as the girls noticed acorns beginning to sprout. Bursting milkweed pods were picked and blown into the air. Little Laurie Heller resembled a fuzzy white elf when the "snow" finally settled. A small rock in the path of the wagon became a huge boulder that nearly upset the cart. At least that's the way the girls tell it.

On returning to the farm the troop had a Halloween party complete with an apple-bobbing contest. As a final treat the girls made a concoction called "Some-mores" which is composed of grape juice, marshmallows, chocolate bars and melted marshmallows. As any Girl Scout will vouch, this is practically a staple on a camp-out.

A tired, well stuffed troop of Brownies returned home from a memorable trip to the farm.
