Area organizations are asked to submit the name of the girl they chosen to represent their organization in the 1972 Chelsea Fair Queen contest no later than this Saturday, Aug. 12. Candidates may be registered by either Mrs. Judy Eubanks, 2382, or Mrs. Carol Flintoft, 332720. Queen candidates submit their own names if sary.

The Fair Queen committee has also reported that it needs convertibles. Approximately 4 to 6 are needed for Tuesday, Aug. 22, to drive the Queen candidates in the Kiddle parade, and to and from the pageant. Anyone who knows of or has a convertible that could be made available for the entire evening is asked to contact Jane Mann at 475-1208.

The Queen Pageant for 1972 got a late start this year, but Mrs. Eubanks, chairman of the committee, reports that it is shaping up and looks like it will be the best ever.

CHS Band Leaves Sunday For Camp

One hundred fifty-five students, five staff, 10 chaperones, and a nurse depart Sunday, Aug. 13 from Chelsea High school for the 8th annual Band Camp, which will be held at Camp Maplehurst at Kewadin, near Traverse City. The group will return Saturday, Aug. 19 to the high school at approximately 9 p.m.

Buses at the school start loading supplies and gear at 6:30 a.m., and the loading process will be completed by 7:15 a.m. A non-denominational protestant church service will be held in the high school auditorium at 7:30 a.m. The caravan will leave promptly at 8 a.m.

Faculty and staff for the camp include Warren Mayer, director; Ronald Harris, director; Steve Weldon, woodwind instructor; Leonard Remy, low brass instructor; and Jim Galvic, percussion instructor.

Chaperones for the camp are Mr. and Mrs. Carrol Buck, camp director, Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, Mr. and Mrs. James Schardien, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winans, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schroen, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Pierson. Camp nurse will be Mrs. Hubert Spencer, RN.

"The week will be a combination of work and fun aimed at preparing for the events which lie ahead," says Mayer.

While at camp, the students will rehearse and march, and have time for individual practice sessions and such recreation activities as swimming, boating, football, tennis, tetherball, and paddleboats. The cost of Band Camp per student is $47. Chelsea Band Boosters pays half the cost, $23.50, and the student pays the difference. If a student is unable to pay his half of the cost arrangements are made. "No one is left out from camp because of money," reports Mayer.

Another requirement for the cooking merit badge is to cook seven meals in the field.

According to unofficial returns, Owings had garnered a total of 6,604 votes across the county, followed by Carl Koch with 2,126, and William Stander of Dexter with 1,300 votes.

Washington Report by Congressman MARVIN L. ESCH

Only a few of the bills which are considered by the Congress each week make the headlines, since not all are of broad national interest. Yet the Congress each week considers a broad variety of measures, each of which is of great importance to certain groups or certain areas of the country; rather than discuss any one of these measures in detail, I would like to briefly cover the bills which the Congress had before it this week.

On Monday the Congress considered five bills—including one which will provide old out-dated bery ships to the States. These ships will be sunk off shore in an effort to create artificial reefs. Recent experiments have proved that the rusting hulks of ships underwater make an excellent feeding ground for fish and greatly increase both the commercial and sport fishing potentials of an area. That day we also considered bills to increase mortgage insurance on certain types of high-powered ships, such hydrofoils; a bill to allow the printing of the proceedings of the Italian American War Veterans annual meeting; and two bills to expand the national Depository Library System, which contains all documents published by the federal government.

On Tuesday, the House considered legislation to create a program to fight Cooley's Anemia, an incurable disease similar to Sickle Cell Anemia which affects primarily people from the Mediteranean area. We also considered a special commission to accelerate basic research into Multiple Sclerosis.

On Wednesday, the House had before it final action on the Department of the Interior appropriations, a final conference Committee report on the extension of the Office of Economic Opportunity and a bill establishing new rules and regulations regarding coastal zone management—which would increase the power of the government to protect our nation's coastal areas and preserve the ecology there.

On Thursday and Friday the House had before it Appropriations for the Department of Housing and Urban Development and for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It should be noted that all three appropriations bills this week come more than a month after the fiscal year already started. If also had before it legislation to create a Council on International Economic Policy, and to extend the Export Administration. In light of the serious international monetary situation this legislation could be vitally important to the nation's economy.

In short, the House of Representatives covered a broad range this week—from disease and libraries to ecology and international monetary affairs. There was little there to make the headlines—but a great deal that will have an effect on the future of the nation.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows at the country store was in fine form Saturday night. There was Ed Doolittle with his usual batch of clippings for the rag, and there was Zeke, grubby happy to be amongst us after a few days in the hospital. Zeke said he had been out of touch while he was laid up, and he was ready to be filled in.

Actual, allowed Zeke, it weren't that he hadn't seen plenty of folks. It was that he had been pestered with so many in the hospital till he hadn't had time to keep up with the papers. When he makes up his list for shipment to Siberia, said Zeke, to and verify them that hang around hospitals will lead all the rest. He said he was in a room with a big NO VISITORS sign on the door for two days, and that sign was like waving a red flag at a bull. Zeke said perfect strangers come wandering in to look at him and blow cigar smoke in his face. One bunch of kin spilled over from the room next to his and brought their television with them, went on Zeke.

It's hard enough, allowed Zeke, to lay there felling miserable without having people kicking you're bed and turning over the trays of stuff the nurses say you got to take to get better. Any person except a close relative that ignores that sign on a hospital room door ought to be shipped to a place a heap hotter than Siberia, was Zeke's words.

Ed Doolittle broke in to say he recollected the time he broke his foot and Zeke come to see him at home. Ed said, he was setting peaceful when Zeke raved back in a rocking chair on his cast and broke his cast and the foot in two more places. Ed said visitors can be trouble anywhere, but he was agreed with Zeke that fer the money a feller pays a hospital a little peace and quiet ain't too much to ask.

Turning to his clippings, Ed reported where he had saw where a sternest bootlegged postage stamps to the moon that they figured to peddle to collectors fer enough to send all their younguns thru college. Ed said he figured that jest goes to show that everybody is playing the angles, but at least stamps had better luck than a heap of them on mail we try to send from one town to another. And the next day, Ed said he saw where this football player was trying to sell his book of plays to another team, so they ain't much we can put our trust in anymore. Ed said all he thought all them players sold on the side was razor blades.

Final, Ed noted where the Russians were trying prohibition, so it looks like they is going to catch up with us in that kind of progress. The idea of getting shipped to Siberia must be driving the Russians to drink, allowed Ed, so we better rework our Siberia list over here.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Responsiveness Shown

A common complaint heard in public life these days is that government is no longer responsive to the needs of the citizen.

It has become so big, the argument goes, that it just can't look out after the individual any more.

There is a good deal of validity to this statement, of course. As bureaucracies grow larger, the tendency to pass the buck and cover one's own tracks becomes more pronounced.

But every now and then a few examples come forth to show all is not lost.

On the higher scale, there is the practice undertaken by Gov. William G. Milliken a few months back to telephone every now and then a few of the people who write him letters.

The Governor made governmental responsiveness one of his programs, and the phone calls are part of the effort.

But the less dramatic, broader scale happening is probably more important in the long run, since it is on the broader levels of communication that most people come in contact with their government.

That makes an effort which will be undertaken next week (Aug. 15-19) at the Upper Peninsula State Fair noteworthy.

Public health nurses from the Delta-Menominee Health Department and state health department staff will be operating a free mobile immunization clinic.

Every fair visitor will be able, if he or she wants, to get free immunizations against lockjaw, diphtheria, measles, polio and whooping cough.

The director of the Delta-Menominee Health Department, Dr. Mary Cretnens, will be in charge of the unit.

She says it will "serve adults as well as children, especially inasmuch as so many adults have never had the booster shots needed to keep up protection against lockjaw and diphtheria."

State Public Health Director Maurice S. Reizen was quick to praise the project as a "commendable demonstration of imaginative public health."

And often in the past we have tended to insist on limiting ourselves to traditional approaches in the delivery of health services," he said.

The project can be important in saving lives, and will probably receive little publicity. It is a perfect example of how public employees who want to do more than pass the buck and merely conserve their own little bailiwick can help government into something that really serves the people, not just figures out ways to antagonize them.

Communists Comeback

In addition to such traditional parties as the Democrats and Republicans, Michigan voters will see a party listed on their November ballots that may startle a few of them.

It's the Communist Party of Michigan.

The party qualified for a spot on the ballot by filing more than 23,000 signatures with the Secretary of State's office. That's 9,000 more than they needed to gain a spot.

Their presidential candidate is their perennial national leader—Gus Hall. The vice-presidential candidate is Jarvis Tyner.

It's not difficult to braise meat or to "prepare a pot-roast." Important steps include browning the meat thoroughly so it remains brown while cooking in moisture. Avoid using too much liquid. One-fourth to one-half cup is usually the rule. Then, make sure there's a tight cover as well as low temperature for the whole cooking time.

Any homemaker who has at one time overcooked a piece of meat knows it's difficult to slice. Overcooked meats do not slice. They just seem to fall apart in shreds. For a roast, it's easy to chart doneness with a roast meat thermometer. After cooking to the degree desired, let the roast "rest" to become firm enough for slicing. That takes about 20 minutes.

Traffic Flow Map Published For S.E. Michigan

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has published a traffic flow map indicating the 24-hour traffic counts on all major roads in Southeast Michigan in 1970.

Potential uses of this mapped data included site location analysis of businesses dependent upon large traffic flow for successful sales volumes, or for study by traffic and safety officials in helping to determine the location of traffic control equipment or analysis of high-accident-rate areas. Gary Krause, SEMCOG Manager of Transportation and Land Use Planning, said:

"The information contained in the traffic flow map is part of the Council's ongoing monitoring of traffic growth trends and the development of plans for future highway and transit facilities in Southeast Michigan."

Development of the traffic flow map was the result of efforts by the Council's Office of Transportation Planning in co-operation with the Michigan Department of State Highways, the seven county road commissions in Southeast Michigan, and many local governments in the region.

This map is approximately 48" x 50" and is available to the public at $5.00 per map. It may be obtained by contacting the Council's Information Services Office, 810 Book Building, Detroit.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By LOUIS BURGHARDT

Sport fans admire and often hero-worship good athletes. They are imaged as men among men in a man's world. When they return to their locker room with bone sagging weariness, sweaty bodies and soggy socks, physical competitive confrontation is over. Usually dejected in defeat, smiling and some times hilariously happy in victory, their moods vary. Fans and spectators often share their mood.

The late Grantland Rice, prominent sports writer, mingled with and knew all the well muscled sports celebrities of his time. He was admired and respected by all who knew him. Perhaps his greatest contribution to sports journalism were his words, "When the One Great Scorer comes... To mark against your name... He writes, not that you won or lost... But how you played the game."

We think his words apply to ALL of us, in or out of sports. As usual, your comment pro or con on this thought (or any thought) you read here is welcome, warmly appreciated... BURGHARDT FUNERAL HOME, 214 East Middle St., Chelsea, Mich. Phone 475-4141.

Kensington Metropolitan Park near Milford is more than just one of southeastern Michigan's most popular playgrounds, it also has a carpenter shop, warehouse and garage for vehicle and equipment maintenance.

CONSUMERS CORNER

FDA Keeping Tabs

The Food and Drug Administration's new system for reporting consumer product injuries is now in effect nationwide. The system National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS), was initiated by the FDA's Bureau of Product Safety to collect injury data by computer from hospital emergency rooms around the country. Only about a fifth of the hospital emergency rooms in the nation are included, or about 120 statistically selected hospitals participating.

Before NEISS, the nation had no systematic data-collection system for product-related injuries. Now, through NEISS, the Federal Government can learn not only how many persons are injured or killed in product-related accidents but also which products are responsible.

With the information provided by NEISS, the FDA can alert manufacturers how they can make products safe. The injury data has already proved valuable in the FDA's work on the hazards of bicycles, lawn mowers, glass doors,

136 Deaths Reported In Water Accidents Since Start of 1972

Michigan had 136 deaths and 125 persons injured in 316 water accidents reported for the first seven months of the year, according to the State Police water safety unit.

These were decreases of seven in deaths, 39 in injuries, and 26 in accidents compared with the same period last year.

Of the accidents, 124 involved fatalities, 106 involved injuries, and 86 were property damage only. The deaths included 61 swimmers or waders, 30 resulting from various falls into water, 17 boat passengers, 11 boat operators, seven attempting rescues, three divers, and seven miscellaneous.

Eleven of the victims were under five years of age. Seven drownings occurred in swimming pools and 19 occurred while fishing.

Pointing out that the May-September span is the worst period of the year for deaths and injuries in water accidents, the State Police re-emphasized the continuing need for caution and care in all water activities in this higher hazard time.

Girl Scout Activities Helped With Community Chest Funds

Editor's Note: This article is second of a series of articles describing the functions and services to Chelsea by Community Chest member agencies.

What encourages girls, to explore new ideas, learn new skills, have fun, and give service to others? These descriptive words can easily be matched with the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., a n organization founded by Juliette Gordon Low in 1912.

Girls and women of the 1912 era were far more restricted than they are now. The idea that girls might learn how to take care of themselves out in the woods was a bit shocking to a lot of people of that time. But the 12 girls who formed the first troop in Savannah, Ga., showed that they were capable of doing all sorts of things. Girl Scouts have continued to prove that they are very capable of handling various projects, broadening the field to civic and urban affairs.

Chelsea has eight Girl Scout troops, with a new Junior troop to be formed in the fall. 193 girls are active in Girl Scouts, and 42 adults volunteer their time and talents to aid them in achieving the goals of scouting. Service to community and other human beings has a special meaning for Girl Scouts. Chelsea scouts are no exception. Here is an idea of some of the service projects that scouts participated in last year:

Cadette scouts helped serve for South Elementary school's open house and art show last spring.

The troops are involved in many activities with the Chelsea United Methodist Home. Troop 98 brought cookies and sang. Troop 145 presented the women with an egg tree at Easter. Troop 82 made a large horn of plenty and presented it to the women at the Home along with over 200 hot plates which they handed out, and Troop 889 took gifts to the Home at Easter. Junior troop 58 made beanbag toys and took them to Sullivan school. Brownie troop 169 made favors for the Community Hospital and also made and delivered May baskets to shut-ins.

All troops participated in the Community Clean-Up for Keep America Beautiful Day, which was suggested by the Girl Scout Council.

Other community projects included all girls marching in their individual troops for the Memorial Day Parade. Brownie troop 84 toured the Chelsea Police Station for the Police Day.

The girls are presently involved in several arts and crafts classes. They will be selling their finished products at the Chelsea Community Fair. Each troop is also getting together to bake cookies for the Fair. One group is also at work on a display for the Fair booth, and all of the girls are scheduled to work in the Fair booth at some time.

In exploring new ideas, and learning new skills, the Girl Scouts have worked on projects to satisfy their desire to learn. Junior Troop 689 completed a six-week course in first aid offered by the Red Cross. Most of the girls now have their First Aid cards. Brownie Troop 247 visited the Kellogg plant in Battle Creek.

visited the Planetarium in Ann Arbor, and Troop 84 also visited LithoCrafters in Dexter.

The Junior and Cadette troops worked on Girl Scout merit badges during the year. Many of the girls earned up to 15 badges each requiring work and study.

Some of the fun-time activities that the Girl Scouts have done the past year include: an ice show in Ann Arbor; sledding parties; hay rides, caroling, horseback riding, swimming at the YWCA, a trip to Cedar Point, and cook-outs.

The lure of nature is strong. The girls camp for learning, fun, and adventure. Cadette Troop 98 has camped at Island Lake in Chelsea and attended the area encampment at Camp Linden early this summer. Junior Troop 82 has camped at Green Lake and at the Frontier Camps. At Sugar Loaf Lake, Junior Troop 689 has attended Green Lake and the Frontier Camps at Sugar Loaf Lake, and Troop 58, also a junior troop, attended the area encampment at Camp Linden.

Several girls from Chelsea have attended established camp at Camp Linden this summer, some on scholarships provided by the Girl Scout Council.

One of the primary goals set for next year's troop is for more service and community project opportunities for the girls.

Brownies are seven and eight years old and in the 2nd and 3rd grades. In their troops they have the chance to be discoverers, helpers, and are able to make new friends.

Junior Girl Scouts, aged 9, 10, and 11 years, are in the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades. They explore new activities revolving around their expanding skills and interests.

Cadette Girl Scouts do intensive work on proficiency badges and challenges—real-life situations that test the girls' abilities to use the knowledge and understanding they have gained of social dependability, emergency preparedness, active citizenship, and the Girl Scout promise.

Methodists Plan Church Breakfast

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the First United Methodist church will sponsor an Ice Cream Social Saturday, Aug. 12 from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Methodist Home.

Purpose of the social is to replace money used for church camp scholarships.

Items on the menu include barbecues, hot (chili) dogs, cake, ice cream, and beverages.

Thodeson Family Attending Church Conferences

The Rev. and Mrs. Thodeson and daughter, Loreen, are planning to attend the Lutheran Charismatic Conference in Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 8-12. Following that conference they will attend the Council on Spiritual Life Aug. 14-16, also in Minneapolis, Minn.

Men and women from many of the major denominations who find common ground will be brought together by the Charismatic Conference.

The Council on Spiritual Life is also open to all faiths but is sponsored by the Assemblies of God, Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. George Moore of Ann Arbor will serve the First Assembly of God of Chelsea church as guest minister in the absence of the pastor.

Although retired, the Rev. Moore is very active. During his full-time ministry he founded the Assembly of God churches of Plymouth, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, and Saline.

The Rev. Moore will be ministering in the First Assembly of God Sunday, Aug. 13, both in the 11 a.m. and the 7 p.m. services.

CHS Marching Band Will Join in Fair Activities

Chelsea High school Marching Band, in step and in tune after a week-long session at Camp Maplehurst at Kewadin, will begin its fall events with participation in Chelsea Community Fair activities.

The band will be featured in a post-game show at Western Michigan University's Band Day, Saturday, Sept. 30 at Kalamazoo.

The band will perform for five home games: Sept. 15 against Maccom, Sept. 22 against Dexter, Oct. 6 against Lincoln, Oct. 13 against Novi, and Oct. 27 against South Lyon.

GROWING CITIES!

Urban metropolitan areas in the United States are expanding at a rate of 1,000 square miles a year, equivalent to adding a new Boston or Washington, D. C., annually.

Crooked Lake Assn. Holds Sunday Picnic

Sylvan Crooked Lake Association held a pot-luck picnic Sunday, Aug. 6 at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Michelfelder, 192 Shoreview Dr., Crooked Lake.

President John C. Pierson officiated at the general meeting which followed the picnic. Approximately 40 members were present.

It was discovered inadvertently that the association members were helping the Michelfelders celebrate their 39th wedding anniversary. The next meeting of the organization will be held in late September.

Two Accidents Happen Monday At Same Time

Chelsea police were faced with an unusual dilemma Monday, Aug. 7. They were required to be in two different places at the same time as two accidents occurred almost simultaneously.

Police Chief George Meranuck and Officer Gerald Shaw were called to the intersection of M-52 and Old US-12 at 3:20 p.m. Leslie Eisenbeiser, of 20618 Island Lake Rd., was cited for making an improper left turn in front of a car driven by Ronald D. Haab of 521 S. Main St.

Five minutes later, the officers were summoned to an accident at the intersection of Old US-12 and Wilkinson St.

Judith Ann Collins, of 643 W. Middle St., was crossing Old US-12 from Gene Dr. to Wilkinson St. in a "S"-type maneuver. She failed to see the auto driven by Michael J. Spence of 128 E. Summit St., and was hit in the rear by his '67 vehicle. After contact was made, Spence's auto lost its brakes and traveled approximately 300 ft. to Lane St.

No enforcement action was taken, although Mrs. Collins received a hazardous action for failing to yield the right-of-way.

AGRICULTURE
IN ACTION

By Carl P. Ketner

Michigan Farm Bureau

Many farmers are living in a state of apprehension these days, wondering what is going to happen to them next.

Each time the Price Commission and the Cost of Living Council start talking about rising food prices, farmers expect the worst. During the last week of June, there were a couple of scares. First, President Nixon removed quotas on meat imports for the rest of this year for the stated purpose of increasing the supply and holding down prices.

The second scare came when the President issued another executive order extending price controls to fruits and vegetables, eggs and seafoods after the first sale. No controls were put on the farm price of these commodities.

The Administration stated that it issued this order more to restrict mark-up and profit margins for middlemen and supermarkets in the food industry.

Livestock and other farm products have been under this type of control since the beginning of Phase II. Egg producers, who have been suffering from drastically low prices for two years, are puzzled as to why their product was included in the new order.

There is also some concern that the controls over fresh produce at the distributor level could work their way back to the farm level, as wholesale buyers might put increasing price pressure on farmers.

Americans now spend only 15.6 percent of their after-tax income on food, which is the lowest percentage in the world, according to the U.S.D.A. This is down from 20 percent in 1960.

Why then the price control gimmick? It's an election year and consumers outnumber farmers. Apparently neither the Administration or Congress is willing to face up the real cause of inflation and spending.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMER

From Mrs. Marian Stephens, Texas City, Tex.: I remember the ice man and his horse-drawn ice wagon. He started his rounds in the early morning and continued until the afternoon. We always put a card in the front window that indicated the number of pounds to be delivered. He would use an ice pick to chip off the amount and use large steel tongs to hoist the ice onto a piece of leather. He would carry the ice in the piece of leather, draped over his shoulder, to the ice box. The ice box always had a pan underneath it to catch the water from the melting ice. Emptying the pan before it overflowed was always a challenge and a chore. We also used to place a cake of ice in a large pan in front of a table fan to cool the air. The neighborhood children delighted in jumping on back of the ice wagon and asking for chips of ice to melt in their mouth or to rub across their faces and necks to cool off. A piece of ice, wrapped in a handkerchief and held to the face, was a delightful summertime experience. Many times I remember shedding my shoes to walk in the puddles of ice water streaming to the curb from the ice wagon.

Michiganians Meet in Alaska

Editor's Note: Our fourth letter from Don Turner is dated July 24th, and is postmarked Moose Pass, Alaska. It reads as follows:

Dear Readers:

In my last report I included Whitehorse, the capital city of the Yukon, and Dawson City, the former capital.

I arrived at Fairbanks, Ala., June 30th and spent the 4th of July there. I found some changes in the area since I was there last. The airport has been enlarged, and Captain Brinkley's Stern Wheeler River Boat is larger.

Captain Jim Brinkley runs excursions to an Indian village on the Tanana River. He couldn't keep up with the board of tourists that demanded his services, so he put on a new and larger boat. Yes, there is at least triple the amount of tourists here in Alaska than there were in 1966 when I first came this way. I looked up old friends at Fairbanks, and made a few more.

My friend, Don Pierson, owner and operator of the Ester City Resort, which includes the Malemute Saloon, is still packing in the tourists. The Malemute Saloon, mentioned in the famous poem Robert Service's poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," has become a legend in many parts of the north.

Ester City is some 15 miles west of Fairbanks, where the Malemute Saloon is located. It was a booming place during the area's goldrush days.

To further describe this famous tourist attraction, it is just a tumbledown building with the sign on the false front, with bat wing doors. When one steps through those doors, you can't believe what you see after your eyes become accustomed to the darkness. Sawdust is ankle-deep on the floor, the tables are just huge wooden rolls that power line cable is wound on, and the seats are a mixture of chairs, huge blocks of wood benches, and what-have-you.

Dust covers everything, which is left purposely to create the atmosphere intended for the place. The bartenders dress in garb worn at the turn of the century by men of that profession.

Just before closing time at Malemute, Don Pierson, the owner who sports a large bush beard, puts out all the lights in the place, and with only the light of a miner's lamp illuminating his face, recites the famous poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," dramatizing every word, leading up to the words of the shooting, which makes chills run up and down one's spine. All present become steeped in the drama of the past. After the light is put on, nearly everyone buys another round, and then go to their rooms or camps, talking for days of their experiences at the Ester City Resort.

A new road has just been opened, running from Fairbanks to Mt. McKinley Park, and on to connect with Anchorage. This has put a lot of pressure on the park facilities, due to the hundreds of tourists that are going there now. The national park people had to close the park to vehicle travel, except for those that make reservations to stay at the campgrounds in the park. But this can accommodate only a small percentage of the people coming here.

There is a concession of shuttle buses operating every day, taking as many people as possible into the park, but the four buses are loaded to capacity each trip and can't keep up with the demand of people that want to see the top of the continent.

Mt. McKinley, the tallest mountain in North America with a height of 20,320 feet, is quite a sight to see, and is seldom free of cloud cover, as it makes its own weather. I was fortunate to see it three days in succession without a cloud, an unusual event, according to the park ranger with whom I talked.

I heard of special photographer's pass that was being issued for the purpose of photographing wild life in the park. I applied and got a pass to drive the road, but couldn't stay at the campgrounds. It made a long day to travel 87 miles in and 87 miles out over that narrow winding road, but I did see and photograph quite a number of animals and birds.

One morning while having coffee at the Mt. McKinley Park Hotel, I was confronted by a fellow who said, "I should know you." I couldn't place him, but he said, "I'm from Michigan." I replied, "Likewise." He is from Stockbridge, John Dvorack, who runs a garage in that city. He was making his second trip to Alaska, flying his own plane. He was accompanied by five other fellows and another plane, and I am sorry to say that I lost their addresses.

One of the fellows is from Tecumseh, and the others were from Clark Lake and vicinity. Maybe somebody reading this article can identify them. This is just one of those instances where I was recognized and I made a few new acquaintances. John Dvorack's acquaintances were having a good time taking Alaska. I would have liked to have stayed longer in the park, but traffic and other plans made me move on.

MALEMUTE SALOON: The bartenders pose in front of the false front of the Malemute Saloon in Ester City, Alaska. Turner reports that the main attraction of the saloon is the nightly telling of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," which tingles the spines of all who hear it.

BARTENDERS AT MALEMUTE SALOON: These bartenders dress in garb similar to that worn by men of the profession long ago. They are holding a sign and hand-carved chain fashioned by a miner from a survey stake. The saloon is located near Fairbanks, Alaska.

FELLOW MICHIGANIANS: Don Turner met up with these men from Michigan while at McKinley Park Hotel. Turner misplaced their names, but John Dvorack is from Stockbridge, and the man in the striped shirt is from Tecumseh. The others are from Clark Lake and vicinity. Dvorack and his companions flew up to Alaska, and Turner reports that they were enjoying their stay.

WHAT A CATCH: Turner reports that one bigger than this 61-pound king salmon got away. He and Glenn Brigg landed this fish near the village of Ninilchik. He tells the secret of landing the big ones: a heavy tackle and a lot of skill and luck.

RUSSIAN VILLAGE CHURCH: Russians founded the village of Ninilchik in the 1880's. The Orthodox church stands as a reminder that just a little over 100 years ago Alaska belonged to Russia.

I drove to Anchorage, the largest city in Alaska, and looked up Dean Fowler and family. Dean is the son of Jack and Dorothy Fowler, and has lived in the Anchorage area for a number of years. Dean told me that Jack and Dorothy and his grandparents were enroute there, and were due any day. We had quite a get-together when they arrived.

Jack, Dorothy, Dorothy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pettibone, and Dean Fowler, Dean's oldest son from a previous marriage, all drove up the Alaska Highway in a large motor home.

The Pettibones, both in their eighties, were enjoying every mile of the trip. A word of phrase should go out to Jack and Dorothy for bringing them along.

Dean guided us on a two-day fishing trip which took us north of Palmer in the Matanuska Valley. Our luck was not too great, but Jack lost two nice rainbow trout, and Dean had his tackle broken a number of times by the huge king salmon that were spawning in the streams we fished.

The streams were closed to salmon fishing, but rainbow and Dolly Varden trout were quite plentiful, if you could entice them to bite. Although the delicious repast cooked up by Dorothy and Mrs. Pettibone didn't consist of fresh fish, it was real good. Thanks again to the Fowler family for their hospitality.

Leaving the Fowlers at Anchorage, I came on down the Kenai Peninsula to visit my friends Glenn and Lee Brogg, at the small settlement of Cahoe. Glenn promptly took me fishing at a small village named Ninilchik. The village was founded by the Russians in the early 1800's.

The Russian Orthodox church stands on a high hill overlooking the settlement and the Cook Inlet. On the beach near this small Russian village, my friend Glenn and I landed a 61-pound king salmon. It was quite a tussle, and a larger one got away.

Now that I have had my fill of king salmon steak, I will be running along - looking for more material to write about.

Your wandering reporter,
Don Turner.

Herbicides (weed control chemicals) are not practical in most home gardening situations. There are several reasons for this, one being economical - material is needed in such small quantities compared to the area to be treated. Another reason is that some vegetables may be sensitive to certain types of herbicides. Mulching is perhaps the easiest and most practical way to control weeds in the home garden.

Here's a delicious home-made biscuit mix: Sift together 8 cups sifted flour with 1/2 cup baking powder and 4 teaspoons salt. Cut in lard (1 cup for soft wheat flour or 1 1/2 for hard wheat flour), until mixture has a fine, even crumb. Cover it tightly and it will store in the refrigerator for about a month.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER:

I am a 16 year-old girl and I live in a small town. The problem is with my best friend (although she doesn't consider it one). She is also 16 years old, but I think she has the wrong outlook about life. She is the only child of one of the town's wealthiest merchants and she has everything she could want. Her problem is everything bores her. Her family travels every summer to a different part of the world and she naturally goes along. When she gets back, she tells us how boring Japan or Italy or where ever she traveled was. And I don't think she is putting us on. She is really bored. I have never seen her get enthusiastic about anything or anyplace in the 8 years I've known her. I think she's a really great kid and she's a great friend, but I think she may never become "un"-bored. What can I do to help her appreciate things more and not be so bored?

OUR REPLY: This is a rough situation to answer, because there could be so many reasons for her boredom. You say you're sure she's not just putting you on, but perhaps this is one way she can have people focus attention to her. After all, it's surely difficult to find someone who was bored while traveling half-way around the world. You've got to admit that would be interesting. Another reason could be her personality. You said she's a great friend, so she can't be that bored with everything, or she'd be bored with your friendship. She may just be the type of person who really appreciates things and enjoys different activities but doesn't talk about them. Here is one thing you could do - come right out and ask her why she seems so bored. She may not be bored at all. If that's the case, tell her she gives the impression that she is always bored and that you don't like it. Maybe keeping your friendship will make her change and become "un"-bored.

If you have a teen-age problem you want to have discussed or an observation to make, address your letter to "For and About Teenagers," Community and Suburban Press Service, in care of this newspaper.

Michigan Apples, Cherries, Pears Plentiful This Year

Unlike some fruits which suffered severe weather damage, Michigan apples, cherries, and pears will be abundant this season, says Donald Ricks, Michigan State University agricultural economist.

Michigan farmers are harvesting large crops of both sweet and tart cherries, he reports. Most of Michigan's cherry crop is harvested in July, but the fruit is available until mid-August from northern farms.

Although the pear crop in western states is small this year, Michigan's supply is plentiful, the economist says. Buy Michigan pears from late August through September.

Apriots and plums shipped here from other states are plentiful this season. In fact, the U.S. Department of Agriculture includes plums on its July plentiful food list. But Michigan plums will be scarce.

ask the GOVERNOR

by William G. Milliken

Question: I read that you sometimes make calls to citizens at night from your home. Do you just call people who favor your programs?

Answer: No. I also call people who by their critical letters to me indicate they don't fully understand my positions on major issues. I've been making these calls for several months now. I think it's very important to break down the barriers that some people feel exist between bureaucracy and the public. Personal contacts can help. Sometimes I call to get more information. For example, I have called several people who wrote to complain about rowdiness at state parks. But with 600 to 800 letters coming to my office a day, it obviously is not possible to call everyone.

Question: Now that the legislature is gone for the summer, what is your reaction to its performance thus far? Did they accomplish your priorities?

Answer: I have often said that I believe the policies of increased economic expansion and environmental preservation and protection are not mutually exclusive. The legislature demonstrated a strong commitment to both of these by enacting many of my priority bills in these areas during the first half of the session this year. Support was doubled for current state economic expansion activities, including more funds to industry to our state and to promote the sale of Michigan products abroad.

Additionally, several vital steps toward the preservation of our environment were accomplished, among them passage of the wilderness bill and a strong air pollution control summer.

The legislature met deadlines for the 1972-73 budget, enacted a presidential primary, passed a uniform construction code and made provisions for placing an improved Vietnam Veterans Benefit Program on the November ballot.

Much of my priority legislation for the session has now been passed and some of it has been positioned for final action. All in all, I have been pleased with legislative performance thus far in 1972.

Question: I understand that Michigan Governors have a residence on Mackinac Island that is provided for summer use. Could you give me some of the history behind that house and tell me how often you are able to use it?

Answer: The Governor's summer residence on Mackinac Island was purchased by the State of Michigan in 1945 for the sum of $15,000, a cost identical to the original 1908 construction price. A rehabilitation program in the spring and early summer of 1945 resulted in the readying of the house for use by then Governor Harry F. Kelly. Since that time, the house has been open each summer for use by the Governor and has been the site of numerous conferences. My wife and I do not have the opportunity to stay at the Mackinac Island residence as often as we would like, but we have had the chance to visit it a few times in the past several summers, whether it be for a speech somewhere on the island, a week-end staff meeting, or rest and relaxation in one of Michigan's most charming and beautiful settings.

Question: Now that we are going to have a state lottery, is it still necessary that you continue to seek a method of financing schools other than property taxes? Why can't the money the state makes from the lottery be used to pay for education in Michigan?

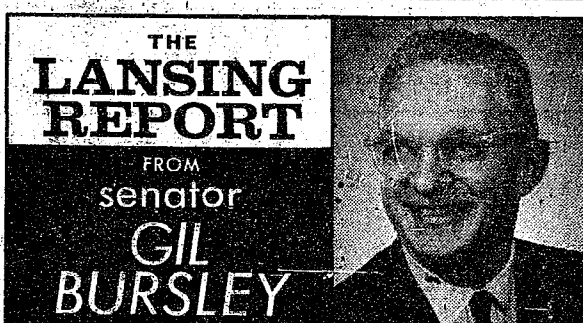

Answer: During 1970-71, public education for grades kindergarten through 12 cost approximately $2.3 billion in Michigan. Preliminary estimates from my budget office indicate, based on experience in New Jersey with its lottery, that Michigan's lottery will provide an additional $40 to $60 million annually to the state's treasury. A comparison of these figures shows that even if all the money from the state's lottery were applied to education, we would still fall more than $2 billion short of financing all education in our state.

The Shrine of the Snowshoe Priest is one of Michigan's newest attractions. This magnificent 35-foot copper-sculpted statue of Bishop Frederic Baraga stands on a cloud of brass with a silver overlay, supported by five laminated wood beams rising from concrete tepees representing the Bishop's five missions. Located between L'Anse and Baraga in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the shrine rises 60 feet above Red Rock Bluffs, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

THE TOWER OF HISTORY is a tower of history. This handsome edifice, originally dedicated as The Shrine of the Missionaries, soars nearly 200 feet above Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan and vicinity, providing a panoramic view of the entire area, including the Soo Locks, the International Bridge, and Sault Ste. Marie, Canada. An additional feature this year is the conversion of the lobby into a small theatre, shown above, which provides a dramatic presentation of the history of the Soo area from which the missionaries and explorers launched the white man's original penetrations of the Midwest more than 300 years ago.

School Financing Reform The MEA Ballot Proposal

(First in a four-part series)

Now that the petition drive, spearheaded by the Michigan Education Association and actively supported by Governor William G. Milliken and numerous other groups and individuals, has gained the required number of signatures, it appears certain that at least two questions related to property-tax reduction and school-financing reform will be placed before the voters at the coming November general election.

One question would, if approved, simply eliminate the existing constitutional prohibition against a graduated income tax. The state (or any of its subdivisions, should the Legislature enact enabling statutes) would then have the option of imposing such a tax or continuing its flat-rate form of levy.

The other, and much more complex, ballot question would make some basic and far-reaching changes in our existing system of supporting the operation of our public schools. The proposal would require, in fact, to turn almost totally away from property taxes for the financing of K-12 education.

Specifically, this suggested constitutional change would:

1. Eliminate existing locally levied property taxes for school-operating purposes. (Such taxes currently average 26 mills.)

2. Reduce the existing 50-mill constitutional limit, accordingly, by 24 mills to a new 26-mill limit, to be allocated in the following manner:

For counties—Up to 8 mills. (Exact method of levying would require implementation by legislation, but would probably be by action of governing board.)

For townships—Up to 1½ mills. (Legislative implementation similarly required.)

For counties and townships, by a vote of the people; up to an additional 6 mills.

For educational "enrichment" above state-provided level, by a vote of the people, up to 6 mills. (The proposed new constitutional language would require that optional millage be "equalized," so that local school districts would receive an equal state-guaranteed yield for each mill levied.)

For vocational, compensatory and special education programs, and for intermediate districts, up to 4½ mills. (This millage would also have to be "equalized" in the manner described above and would, in addition, have to be supplemented with additional state funds according to local need, variations in cost, etc.) Total — 26 mills.

3. Millage levied by cities, villages, charter counties, charter townships, charter authorities, or for debt requirement by any governmental unit (including bonding for building schools) would continue to be excluded from constitutional limitation, as would millage levied by community college districts.

New Taxes Needed

It must be stressed that this constitutional amendment will NOT in itself, impose any new taxes to replace the revenue sources it eliminates.

If the language of the ballot proposal becomes part of the Michigan Constitution, the December of 1972 property tax payment will be the last such payment to provide major operating support for our schools. An average 26 mills of property tax will be lost as school revenue. If we estimate the 1972-73 statewide SEV to be $47,500,000,000, this lost revenue will be some $1,235,000,000.

The 1973 legislature will be directed, by the revised Constitution, to "establish a program of general state taxation" to support local school districts and "assure equal and quality educational opportunity."

This would appear to require, as a minimum, that new or increased taxes be imposed that are at least equivalent in yield to those lost to K-12 education.

Accordingly, if it is deemed desirable to preserve the present ratio or balance that exists between taxes imposed on individuals and those imposed upon business, the 1973 Legislature will have to find replacement revenue sources for about $670,000,000 of property tax relief granted individual homeowners, and about $565,000,000 in property tax relief granted business.

Most discussion of replacement taxes on individuals has centered on the state income tax, since no other revenue source would appear to have the needed potential. The flat-rate tax could be increased by about 2.5 percent, from 3.9 percent to 6.2 percent, to bring in the minimum revenue required; or, if the voters approve deletion of the constitutional prohibition, a graduated income tax equivalent in yield to a 6.2 percent flat-rate levy could be enacted.

Most discussion of replacement taxes on business has centered on the so-called "value-added" tax—a levy applied on the difference between the cost of the goods or raw materials a firm purchases for processing or sale and the price of its finished product. Depending on the exemptions provided, a value-added tax of from 2 percent to 2½ percent would be needed to bring in the minimum revenue required. Conceivably, a lower rate value-added tax could be combined with an increase in the corporate state income tax.

However, a third alternative discussed on occasion—the levying of a state-wide property tax on business—will no longer be a possibility. This option, offered in earlier proposals for constitutional change made by both Governor Milliken and the Michigan Democratic Party, would not be permitted under the language of the MEA ballot proposal.

New Distribution Plan Needed

The evolving, perfecting and enactment of a massive "program of general state taxation" will be but one part of the complex task confronting the 1973 Michigan Legislature.

The 1972-73 school year, for which a state school aid bill was recently passed into law, will be the last fiscal year in which state-collected funds can be allocated to local districts through the traditional "deductible-millage" formula method. For 1973-74, the 1973 Legislature will be charged by the Constitution with enacting:

1. A new method of distributing funds for the support of elementary and secondary public school districts to assure equal and quality educational opportunity for all students.

2. A method of distributing supplementary funds for intermediate school districts, vocational education, special education, and compensatory education purposes.

3. A new method of "equalizing" the revenue realized from whatever portion of the optional 6 mills, permitted under the MEA ballot proposal, that any local school district may choose to impose.

4. A determination as to which level of government—the local district, the intermediate district, or the state itself—shall be permitted to levy what portion of the 4½ mills allocated for intermediate districts, vocational education, special education and compensatory education; and a provision for "equalizing" the revenue realized from whatever portion intermediate and local districts may be permitted to levy.

Several plans have been proposed and promoted, over the last four years, which the Legislature could consider in carrying out the various facets of this potential constitutional mandate. These plans will be reviewed in subsequent reports. Quite possibly, features from two or more plans could be combined in eventual school-financing reform legislation. But it must be stressed again that neither MEA ballot proposal, if adopted by the voters, will do more than reduce property taxes and provide broad, generalized guidelines for Legislative action and implementation.

Both the size and nature of replacement taxes to support education, and the methods by which state-collected revenues are allocated to local and intermediate school districts, will have to be discussed, debated and determined by the 1973 Michigan Legislature.

Public Access Hunting Program Will Be Tried

Washtenaw county was selected as a pilot county for a public access program allowing the farmers to open their farms and ponds for hunting and fishing on a bid basis.

Public fishing is available on the Richard Dunlap farm in Webster township, the Helen VanDyke farm in Salem township, and the Northfield Acres Farm in Northfield township.

There are 16 farms available for public hunting in Washtenaw county for 1972. These farms are located in the following townships: Lyndon, Webster, Northfield, Lima, Sharon, Freedom, Pittsfield, Manchester, Bridgewater, Saline and York.

A complete list of these public access farms is available in the Washtenaw County ASCS Office, 6101 Jackson Rd., Ann Arbor 48103.

Thought For Food

There are many cuts of meat suited to outdoor cooking and summer menus. Any meat cuts suitable for broiling, pan-frying, or roasting can be successfully cooked over the coals. Low to moderate temperatures should be used for cooking meat outdoors. Coals should glow rather than flame. The amount of heat and the cooking rate can be controlled by adjusting the distance of the rotisserie or grill from the coals.

Each American eats about 60 pounds of fresh potatoes yearly. Vanilla is still the favorite ice cream in this country.

Census Data Shows Relation Between Education, Income

The high correlation between income and schooling can be seen in figures for neighborhoods (tracts) in the Ann Arbor metropolitan area in a 1970 census report just issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

The report shows, for example, that in Census Tract 13.02, which lies mainly outside southwest Ann Arbor, where the population has achieved a relatively high level of education (for those 25-or-older: 16.4 median school years completed), average family income in 1969 was $23,214.

In Tract 25.01, a neighborhood in southwestern Ypsilanti, where the median number of school years completed was only 9.5 years, average family income in 1969 was $7,283.

For the area as a whole, the median number of school years completed was 12.6 and the average family income for 1969 was $12,284.

Differences between the two tracts in figures for the median value of owner-occupied dwellings and the median contract rents paid also appear in the report. For Tract 13.02, the median value of all owner-occupied homes was $48,800 and median contract rent paid was $135 monthly. Figures for Tract 25.01 were $17,100 and $70.

In Tract 13.02 virtually none of the 273 year-round housing units counted lacked any basic plumbing facilities—a flush toilet and bathtub or shower for the exclusive use of the household, or hot and cold piped water, the census showed. In Tract 25.01, the total lacking one or more of these facilities was 19 of the 559 year-round units.

The report, Census Tracts: Ann Arbor, Michigan: 1970, PHC(1)-11 may be obtained for 70 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, or from any Dept. of Commerce field office.

Additional information about this census report may be obtained from Don E. Hubbard, Washenaw County Metropolitan Planning Commission, 306 County Building, Ann Arbor.

The per capita consumption of red meats (beef, veal, pork, and lamb) reached a record of 192 pounds in 1971, up nearly 40 percent in 20 years. Nearly all of the net increases resulted from a sharp rise in beef consumption.

Community Fair Has 2 Horse Shows

What's a fair without a horse show? The Chelsea Community Fair will feature two this year: one for horses stabled in the fairgrounds barn, Wednesday, Aug. 23 at 1 p.m., and the other, an open event, Saturday, Aug. 26, at 9 a.m. Both shows will be at the fairgrounds arena and trophies will be awarded for all events.

Horse show officials expect the barn to be filled to capacity with approximately 80 horses from all over, but mostly from Chelsea. The barn was made ready Saturday, July 27 with the generous volunteer help of 25 youths who moved 10 yards of gravel in two hours. Mrs. Jean Botsford reports, "They just swarmed in with shovels and wheelbarrows, and had the job done in no time."

The show for the barn horses will feature various halter classes, horsemanship classes, showmanship classes, and other categories.

The Saturday show, open to all, will feature halter classes, pleasure classes, and speed events. Judge for Wednesday's event will be Joe Bailey of Otego. Saturday's judge will be Joe Wilcox of Romulus.

Officials will be holding various training classes for people in the barn during the Fair, and hope to sponsor a couple of events that everyone can enter, with trophies as prizes.
