United Way Campaign Nearing Goal

The 1979 campaign for Chelsea United Way is almost complete. More mail returns from rural contributors are expected, as is a report on the gifts and pledges of a major industrial plant.

Otherwise, the job is done, and Dale Schumann, campaign chairman, expects the total to be close to $36,400. "This is about $4,800 short of our campaign goal," Schumann said, "but we know that we have worked just as enthusiastically in '79 as any year in our history."

"Most of the shortfall has been in the intake from major employers and employees in plants that supply the automobile industry. In view of layoffs and work uncertainties, we think Chelsea industry, companies and workers alike, showed great spirit in contributing nearly $18,000."

Residential giving was about equal with 1978 under the leadership of Cindy Colvin. When the remaining envelopes come in from rural donors, Else Heller and her team expect their mail campaign to exceed 1978 and perhaps set a new rural record.

Carol Flintoft headed the successful drive for contributions from professional people, and contributions from light industry, solicited under the leadership of Tom Vaillencourt and Art Stoll, were substantially higher than last year.

The faculty and staff of the Chelsea schools lead all major groups of givers with a 97 percent increase over 1978. Sam Vogel headed the campaign in the schools.

Will Connelly, president of Chelsea United Way, stated: "Reaching 88 percent of our goal in 1979 was an outstanding effort by our campaign workers and an equally outstanding act of giving on the part of the community. The human service agencies that look to us for support will be well taken care of."

Manchester Teacher Strike Is Settled

Manchester School District teachers ended a 19-day strike late Monday evening, Nov. 26, after prodding from Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Patrick J. Conlin brought about a late-evening tentative settlement.

According to Manchester School Superintendent Eugene Thompson, the administration went into Circuit Court Monday morning before Judge Conlin, intending to ask for an injunction to order the teachers back to work. Instead, Conlin directed the teachers and the board to continue to bargain.

The sides were close to a settlement by 4:30 p.m., Thompson reported, and Conlin gave them another half-hour before he asked to see the agreement.

The judge then called all board members and teachers into court, Thompson said, and told them that he thought it was a fair settlement. If either side failed to accept it, however, Conlin said he would then hold a hearing on the problem.

Teachers ratified the contract at about 9:30 p.m. Monday and returned to the classrooms Tuesday morning. Classes for students resumed Wednesday.

Manchester's Board of Education is expected to ratify at their next regular meeting, Dec. 17, although an earlier meeting is possible. Thompson declined to disclose any particulars of the pact pending board ratification.

Principal issues in the teacher walk-out were salary increases and health insurance details.

According to Superintendent Thompson, Easter vacation will be abbreviated this school year, giving the students only Good Friday and Easter Monday off. Classes will end for Manchester students on June 18.

Novice Debate Team Place in 2nd Division

Chelsea High school's novice debaters ended their league season Monday, Nov. 26, at Jackson.

Debaters in the open division finished with a 15-9 record, good enough for second place in the division behind first place Homer, 19-5.

Participating in the open division during the season have been Chris Kvarnberg, Celeste Arbogast, Paul Anderson, Sara Ullman, Mary Anderson, Kathy Waldyke, Sara Leisinger and Alicia Noah.

Novice division debaters finished with an over-all 13-10 record for third place behind Parkside and Parkside II. Competing in this division have been Molly Bacon, Mary Anderson, Michelle Clark, Laura Hines, Sheri Duffy, Mary Markle, Mike Ward, Kelly Hense, Paul Brehob, Dave Colley, Katie Ullman, Amy Unterbrink and Teresa Degener.

Acting as judges during the season were Drew Sprague, Theresa Merkel, Dave Waldyke, Sara Merkel, Brian Koepele and Jennice Hoffman.

The group will participate in the State Novice Preliminaries on Dec. 8.

STATE QUALIFIERS: A number of Chelsea swimmers qualified during the regular season to participate in the state meets. Traveling to that competition will be, left to right, Shannon Springer, Laurie Vorta, Teresa Degener, Sara Borders, Kristin Thomas, and, in the pool, Lisa Radke and Anita Powell. Assistant Coach Dave Johnson is at right.

Cagers Ready For Shot at League Title

Three returning starters and three additional returning players from last year's Chelsea High school varsity basketball squad will be the cornerstone of a team that Coach Robin Raymond thinks may win the conference title this year.

"The main objective of any season is to win the league championship," Raymond explained. "This year, for the first time in my three years here, we have a legitimate shot."

If Raymond's philosophy of "the better the competition you play, the better you get" rings true, the Bulldogs should improve with each game. This year's non-conference schedule includes some of the toughest teams in the area: Brighton, Howell, Lumen Christi, Tecumseh, Pinckney and 1978-79 state semi-finalist Willow Run.

"This year we play six teams rated in the top ten in the state the last two years," Raymond pointed out. "This year we can play with the better schools in the state of Michigan. That doesn't mean we're going to beat the better teams, but we can play with them."

Most important to the team, however, is the league title and there Saline is the squad to beat. In 6'8" John Kendzicky, the Hornets have a legitimate college prospect that makes them a hard team to beat. Nevertheless, Raymond is confident that Chelsea will make a good showing.

Leading the Bulldogs this year are three returning starters: Captain John Dunn, 5'10" senior guard, Don Schrotenboer 6'7" senior center and Jeff Dils, 5'10" junior guard.

Three other returning members of last year's squad are Mike Killelea, 6'3" forward, Brad Knickerbocker, 5'10" forward, and Karl Albrecht, 6'5" forward-center.

A problem for Coach Raymond this year was locating a sufficient number of forwards for the team. He had three centers and three guards returning, and decided to convert Killelea and Knickerbocker to forwards. "The key to our season depends on how well they convert," Raymond said: "Your forward position is where offensive power comes from."

Rounding out the team are five players from last year's junior varsity: Sean Peterson, 5'8" guard; Jeff Price, 5'10" guard; Jon Riemenschneider, 6'2" forward; Chris Tobin, 6'4" forward; and Mark Steinaway, 6'1" forward. The team's 12th man is Dan McGill, a 5'11" guard who played JV ball two years ago, but sat out last season.

Chelsea, Raymond pointed out, is a team-oriented, rather than an individual-oriented, squad. "We would like eight or nine players to score between 12 and 15 points a game," he explained. "Each player helps the others out."

The Bulldogs are a fast-break team that plays a consistent man-to-man defense. Raymond is adamant in stressing this defense over the more common zone.

"Good man-to-man teams don't have bad nights," he declared. "If you can shoot from the outside consistently, if you're having a hot shooting night, you're going to beat a zone team."

Raymond is glad to see his cagers going up against teams like Jackson Northwest and Willow Run this year, because it will give them a chance to experience "city," as opposed to "country" basketball.

City teams, explained Raymond, run fast, shoot flashy and entertain the crowd. They generally have a large pool of talent to draw from and win games more on the strength of team talent than good coaching. "Country" teams, on the other hand, play a slower game, run fancier patterns and generally work the ball around the court until they get the best shot. The schools tend to be smaller and coaching makes much more difference to the team.

Area Residents Demand Changes at Cassidy Lake

Cassidy Lake Technical School. Those four inflammatory words brought angry tones and loud disagreement among residents of Lyndon Township Tuesday night, Nov. 20, but failed to bring a real measure of satisfaction or relief to anyone.

The setting was a meeting of the Lyndon Township Board, attended by some 75 residents anxious to discuss recent disturbing crimes committed by walkaways from Cassidy Lake. Two escaped inmates have recently been charged with violent crimes—murder and rape.

Present to address the concerns of the crowd were Cassidy Lake Superintendent Joseph Weinberg, State Representative Mary Keith Ballantine (R-23rd District), Rudy Stalberg of the Southeast Regional Administration for Corrections and Linwood Noah of the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Tom Minick also put in an appearance and made a brief statement on the situation from the police point of view.

A regular business meeting was held, following which the Lyndon Township Board opened the floor to comments from concerned residents. A torrent of angry words and personal experiences filled the next hour, as resident after resident presented arguments for drastic changes at the school.

Tom Hodgson, park naturalist at Waterloo Recreation Area, where a woman recently reported being raped by a Cassidy Lake escapee, presented the concerns of many people present regarding safety and property crimes.

"People are here to discuss not only violent crimes," said Hodgson, "but property crimes as well. Burglary, car theft, breaking and entering, vandalism of autos passing by, and verbal abuse from inmates are all on the increase."

Most people don't object to the facility in the community, Hodgson continued, but residents do want to feel safe. He called for a perimeter fence, armed guards and prison uniforms as possible measures to cut down on escapes.

"I'm not after anybody's head," asserted Hodgson, who admitted the limitations of the superintendent and the facility. However, he cited the problem of positively identifying inmates as one that could be corrected by uniforms.

"You have no way of telling who these people are," he complained. "They can walk into a store, produce ID and buy booze."

Hodgson hinted at legal action, such as an injunction or restraining order, and concluded with his hope that such action by the community will not be necessary.

Trina Bentley Erskine, raised at the Jewish camp near Cassidy Lake, concurred with Hodgson. "These are not isolated incidences. I grew up near there and I've seen it time and time and time again over 20 years. It has gotten worse."

In a story drawing general murmurs of assent, a woman who identified herself only as Mrs. Miller told of the boldness of inmates who have walked away.

"Two of them came up to the door and said they had to get back to Cassidy Lake for head count, and could my husband drive them back because they

Corrections J.O.L.T. Program To Continue

The State Corrections Commission has reinstated the controversial JOLT (Juvenile Offenders Learn Truth) program for at least another six months.

The program, introducing juvenile offenders to the state penal system, is designed to "shock" youngsters into the reality of real prison life and that is not where they want to end up.

The commission had suspended the program earlier this year and was urged to totally scrap it by Department of Corrections officials, who said their study indicated the program did not serve as an effective deterrent.

Prison inmates and members of the House Corrections Committee, however, implored the commission to restore the program with some modifications.

The commission, in restarting the program, ordered the department to use outside researchers to make the evaluation after an additional six months.

The projects will be suspended during the evaluation period.

The JOLT program will include adjudicated teens from the four original participating counties of Wayne, Jackson, Washtenaw and Oakland.

The commission said each county may participate only when it can assure follow-up services will be provided. Individual county programs will begin when that county is ready to proceed.

Inmates who run the program at the Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson told a House committee that their aim was to deter crime by impressing upon the juveniles that prison is not where they want to spend any of their life.

The corrections commission noted in the revived program, no juvenile can be verbally intimidated or abused and that parents or legal guardians must accompany the juveniles through the entire process, including a discussion session.

Juveniles will have to be at least 15 years old to participate.

Voluntary Quits May Become Ineligible for Benefits

One sore point between majority Democrats and minority Republicans which has held up unemployment compensation reform has been persons receiving benefits if they voluntarily quit the job.

For the first time, the issue has gotten some majority support with the introduction of legislation in the Senate.

Saying they hope it will spur resolution of the entire voluntary quits issue, Senators Kerry Kammer (D-Pontiac) and Doug Ross (D-Oak Park) proposed that small businesses be relieved of the cost of insurance for unemployment benefits for workers who leave voluntarily.

The proposal would relieve small businesses (those with no more than 150 employees) of about $10 million in unemployment insurance costs per year, with the cost being shifted to larger employers.

Ross said such a shift would give big business an incentive to deal with the whole question of voluntary quits.

He said the long term intent of the legislation is to eliminate entirely the category of voluntary quits from the unemployment benefit system.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission estimates 1978 costs to businesses for voluntary quits was $14 million, covering some 148,538 workers.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The feller was lamenting the forgotten Thanksgiving Saturday night at the country store. Zeke Grubb said it looks to him like we are going to run right past Thanksgiving in a rush to finish up Christmas shopping. Zeke was of a mind that both holidays deserve places of honor, and that of all people in the world we ought to keep a time set aside for giving thanks.

Zeke said it must be that Santa Claus travels slower ever year. Use to, he said, Santa took off from the North Pole the week before Christmas and he made his rounds in plenty of time. Now he's wearing himself out working all these Christmas parades two weeks before Thanksgiving. Zeke carried on until the feller that runs the store took a little silver tree he had on the counter back to the storeroom. Bug Hookum said he couldn't speak for Santa Claus, but he knowed fer a fact that his old lady has been sewing nights since Labor Day, making little stuffed animals fer Christmas gifts for her church circle. If she don't let up the first of the week, he said, and git her cooking and baking organized, he'll know he's a victim of the forgotten Thanksgiving.

Actual, declared Ed Doolittle, we can't wait much longer to do our Christmas mailing. Ed said he had saw recent where the British Post Office finished that 1,900 mile Pony Express race over the original trail from St. Joseph to Sacramento in just 39 days, and he allowed that the best the U. S. Postal Service is doing ain't all that much better. Between the uncertain mail and his old lady staying on the telephone, Ed said about the only means of communication he's got is these weekly sessions at the store. Ed allowed he never had been impressed with men that claim they can rip telephone books in half with their bare hands. He said his old lady can tie up 500 mile of telephone wire with her chin, watch the soap operas and stir up a four layer cake all at the same time without breaking a sweat.

General speaking, Mister Editor, the fellers were in a good mood and looking forward to all the feasting and homecoming of Thanksgiving. Clem Webster said he was grateful for the little dab of money he had left over at the end of his month, but he was getting powerful concerned about his bank's appetite. Not long back, Clem said, the bank give him checks and took care of everything as long as he didn't spend more than he had. The other day, Clem told the fellers, his bank send word that he would have to keep at least $600 in his account at all times to keep from paying extra fer checks and any other service. Clem said he knows the banks has got to make money to stay in business, but it seems to him that having his money to make money ought to count fer somepun.

Personal, Mister Editor, I see life's little fringe benefits being whittled away fast. No more free aprons with a couple of pounds of nails, no more free maps at the service station, not even a book of matches with a can of pipe tobacco. The last time I was in a McDonalds, they even had the ketchup and mustard hid under the counter. They probable charge extra fer it by now.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Real Estate

By PAUL FRISINGER

REALTOR

NEARLY IDEAL INVESTMENT

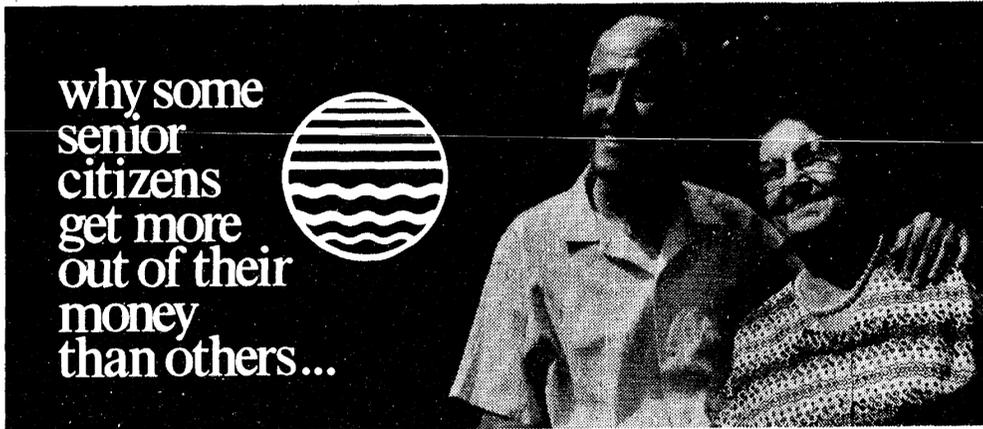

Historically speaking, real estate as a tangible or real asset, has been nearly the ideal investment. During periods of inflation, real estate's value has increased at a faster pace than the general price rise. By the same token, in times of depression real estate has maintained a higher value than most assets as declining prices set in.

When we combine the growth forces of real estate with the advantages of leverage (using large amounts of other people's money) and then add the incomparable tax benefits — we can readily understand why more millionaires are made in real estate than in any other endeavor. As W. C. Fields said: "Show me a millionaire and I'll show you a rich man."

Recently, the FHA completed a survey that revealed what real estate investors have known for a long time: land values are constantly rising and have been for many years. The figures released by FHA showed that, in the 20-year period studied, the average price of raw land increased 40 times its original costs.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at FRISINGER REALTY CO., 935 S. Main St., Chelsea. Phone: 475-8681; evenings 475-2621. We're here to help!

Modern Mothers Child Study Club held its annual Home-made Item Auction Nov. 13. The event was the club's most successful, with more than 50 guests and a large variety of crafts.

Crafts included Christmas decorations and tree ornaments, hand-appliqued pillows and potholders, wreaths, dolls, stained glass, baked goods and much more.

The auction was planned by the Finance Committee which includes Kay Farley, Jan Grenier, Sharon Hodgson, Liz Prentiss and Chairman Pat Whitesall. Auctioneers were Lenore Mattoff, Lou Rohrkemper and Gloria Greenleaf.

A decision will be made by the club to determine how the proceeds from the auction will be used. Some organizations Modern Mothers have contributed to in the past are Spaulding for Children, the Waterloo Interpretative Center, McKune Library, Scholarship Fund, Honors Banquet and the Cancer Foundation.

The club, once again, has its well-known cookbook "Recipes you always wanted - but were afraid to ask for" for sale.

The Recipe Book was first published in 1973 and reprinted several times because of demand. Anyone who would like a book may contact Sharon Hodgson at 475-2792 or other club members.

Jaycee Auxiliary Busy With Holiday Activities

Tuesday, Nov. 20, the Chelsea Jaycee Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting at the home of hostess Ginny Wheaton. Kathy Sprawka was co-hostess. Special guest was Debbie Baker, state chairman of project report forms.

Auxiliary members have spent an extremely busy month. President Carol Smith, Past-President Sandy Meyer, Treasurer Kathy Sprawka and State Chaplain Alberta Colby attended the State Meeting in Kalamazoo. They submitted a poster, designed by Nan Rowe, for state competition, and a wreath made by five members for a state bazaar.

Chelsea received a Care Award and an M&M award for the "Mile of Money for MD" project held in August.

The president walked for Mankind and received a certificate and donations. Seven members attended Fall District in Ann Arbor and learned how to make ribbon Christmas ornaments as well as receiving the travel trophy. Several members also attended the monthly Jaycee meeting in Ypsilanti and surprised them by wearing nightwear fashions.

The Auxiliary purchased nine pairs of shoes for St. Louis School students who needed gym shoes to participate in indoor sports. Dancer's in Chelsea sold them at discount prices and the boys were surprised and grateful.

Members are looking forward to the Christmas dance Dec. 4, hosting a district meeting Jan. 17, bowling tournaments in March and assisting the Jaycees with the Blood Drive and Lunch with Santa.

Next meeting is a joint dinner-dance with the Jaycees featuring a catered prime rib dinner. Auxiliary members are going Christmas shopping Dec. 1 in Detroit.

Jaycees hold their first meeting the first Tuesday of each month. Anyone interested should contact President Robert Meyer. Jaycee wives are welcome to join the auxiliary and join in the fun.

Two new members were elected into membership. Mrs. Nina Wahl and Mrs. Hazel Dittmar will be taken to Martha No. 2 Lodge in Jackson for the Rebekah Initiatory Degree on Dec. 6.

Projects going on for the Lodge include cutlery sales with Chairman Jo Hochrein, the country store items, under Mrs. Evie Hale, and the upcoming Bake Sale on Dec. 14, with Mrs. Nina Lehmann as general chairman.

Mrs. Velma Wolfe and Mrs. Lottie Alexander were reported to be improving. Each was hospitalized.

Birthdays for November were celebrated by Mrs. Luella Weinberg, Joyce Dietle, Clarice Keizer and Mabel Neal.

Those on the committee for November were Mrs. Evie Hale, Olla Voelm, Eulahlee Packard and Flora Weber.

Members are urged to respond to the above projects. Meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday evening, while other families were preparing for their Thanksgiving festivities, our family had the opportunity to share an evening with Chelsea's Drew Sprague, as a member of the McDonald's All-American High School Band, performing at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

For millions of high school bandmen across the country, selection to the band has become one of the highest honors a high school musician can receive. The McDonald's All-American High School Band consists of two high school students from each state. This year, 3,500 outstanding students were nominated by their band directors. Members of the 102-piece ensemble were chosen on the basis of musical honors, achievements and experience, by a panel of notable experts, including their conductor, Paul Lavalle.

As we all sat, mesmerized by the sounds of "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Mississippi Suite," "Bugler's Holiday," "Gateway," by Earth, Wind and Fire and, of course, "Nobody Can Do It Like McDonald's Can," we couldn't help but feel very proud of Drew and his representation of the Chelsea band system.

As the guest conductor, Lionel Hampton, renowned jazz artist, began to groove on "I Got That Funky Feelin'," the audience was treated to an impromptu "jam session" right there in the middle of the concert.

Those musicians will never forget that night! Neither will we. The Mattoff family.

Cassidy Lake Security . . .

Others expressed skepticism at the reasons given for two recent inmate deaths, reported as caused by exhaustion and drowning. "Are we being told the truth?" demanded a member of the audience.

One dissenting voice was heard from the back of the room, that of Millie Warner, who works with the inmates on a regular basis.

On a tape recording of letters addressed from inmates to the Lyndon gathering, Warner expressed her hope that residents would realize that all at Cassidy Lake aren't walkaways and urged the gathering to abandon their ideas of armed guards and a fence. "These boys are human beings, not animals," Warner said.

Openly scornful of such sentiments, many members of the hot, tightly packed crowd began to ask for answers from officials present.

"You deserve a crack at me," said Cassidy Lake Superintendent Weinberg as he rose to face the group. "I'm the guy you want. Anything that's happened out there, it's my fault. I agree with a lot of what's said. I'm also here to give facts. No more propaganda."

According to Weinberg, escapes per year run from 70 to 90. He agreed that if 250 inmates are there at any one time, the escapes would make up one-third of the total population. However, he pointed out that the yearly population is actually closer to 800 different men, and therefore the percentage of inmates who walk away is closer to eight or nine percent.

Weinberg pointed to a proposed 80-man building which would eliminate some of the prison cabins spread over a 100 acre area. Such a facility would, Weinberg promised, reduce the school area to 50 acres, a much more manageable size.

"These kinds of meetings are going to get me resources," insisted Weinberg. "Give me some cops, give me some communications equipment."

More guards and the already-ordered communications equipment, Weinberg believes, will go a long way towards solving the current problems. Many in the crowd ridiculed this notion, neckling Weinberg from the moment he rose to speak.

"I can control the lake better with seven officers," he continued, "if I have $25,000 worth of communications equipment."

What about uniforms, some crowd members insisted, but Weinberg never directly commented on that suggestion. He told the crowd that escapees are apprehended in one to three days, often on the same day. They are then taken to Jackson State Prison, prosecuted for escape and sent to a medium or maximum security institution if found guilty.

"Two-thirds of these kids are the kids next door," Weinberg insisted.

"They're not the kids from next door to us," retorted Trina Erskine. "They're not from our neighborhoods, they're from a different kind of society."

Weinberg attempted to explain why inmates "bush" from Cassidy Lake, even when they know the consequences of such action.

"They're very emotional," stressed the superintendent. "They react differently to pressures than, say, older men in the camp program." Ninety percent of the Cassidy Lake inmates are between the ages of 17 and 20, according to Weinberg.

In the rush of questions constantly barraging him, Weinberg never directly addressed the issue of a fence or putting uniforms on guards, although

Police Officers Vote Down Proposed Union

In an election held Monday, Nov. 19, five Chelsea police officers voted unanimously not to affiliate with the Fraternal Order of Police, a policemen's bargaining unit.

According to Police Chief Robert Aeillo, only the full-time officers were eligible to cast ballots. Officers had earlier petitioned to hold the election.

Dialogue With School Superintendent Set For Next Thursday

Wednesday, Dec. 5, students will not be in session in Chelsea public schools. Middle and high school teachers will be involved in a professional development workshop, while elementary teachers will be holding parent-teacher conferences.

several audience members put these questions directly.

As the evening wore on, small group discussions began to form in the hall, many ignoring Weinberg's attempts at answers. The board called order in the small room and gave the floor to Sheriff Tom Minick, who had arrived minutes earlier.

"We must establish accountability and establish what kind of criminal is there," said Minick. "We know the community wants to know what kind of people are there, how many walk away and what can be done."

Rep. Ballantine read a letter from the chairman of the Corrections Committee of the state house, in which concern was expressed for the safety of the community. She promised to report back to the committee, of which she is a member, on this issue, but informed citizens that the corrections budget was cut this year and funds are not readily available.

Write to members of the appropriations committees for action, Ballantine urged. The names and addresses of these members appear in a separate article in today's Standard.

The meeting was recessed briefly, but many people poured out into the parking lot, having had their say and realizing that it doesn't solve any problems in itself.

For the people committed to action on Cassidy Lake, this long meeting was only the first step, and a fairly small one, in a long process of change.

Where To Write For Help With Cassidy Lake

According to Representative Mary Keith Ballantine (R-23rd District), one of the best ways for local citizens to express concern about the situation at Cassidy Lake Technical School is to write state legislators on two particular appropriations subcommittees.

To express a desire for alternative types of housing at the school, residents should contact the following members of the Capital Outlay House Appropriations Subcommittee. All addresses include: Capital Building, Lansing, 48909.

Rep. Russell Hellman, Room 13; Rep. James E. O'Neill, Jr., Room 14-A; Rep. Gary M. Owen, Room 10; Rep. Richard A. Young, Room 19; Rep. William L. Jowett, Room 220; and Rep. Ralph Ostling, Room T-8 Annex.

To communicate feelings regarding more guards for the Cassidy Lake facility, citizens may address the following members of the Corrections House Appropriation Subcommittee:

Rep. David Hollister, Room 498; Rep. Russell Hellman, Room 13; Rep. Morris W. Hood, Room 112; Rep. David L. Campbell, Room 220½; and Rep. Ralph Ostling, Room T-8 Annex.

WOODROW COLE retired recently from Dana Corp. after 30 years of service. Cole began his employment with the local facility in 1948 and held various jobs throughout the plant. His last assignment was as a sub-assembler. He was presented with a Bible from Ray Turner, chairman of the plant union committee and a Dana blue blazer from company officials.

Robert L. Smith, Jr., Completes Navy Basic Enlisted Course

Navy Seaman Apprentice Robert L. Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of 11484 Hieber Rd., Manchester, has completed the Basic Enlisted Course at the Naval Submarine School, Groton, Conn.

During the six-week course, he was introduced to the basic theory, construction and operation of nuclear-powered and diesel submarines. In preparation for his first assignment, he studied shipboard organization, damage control, and submarine safety and escape procedures.

He is a 1977 graduate of Manchester high school.

Announcing Modernization & Expansion of DRIVE-UP WINDOW SERVICES

Chelsea State Bank is pleased to announce the expansion of the Drive-Up Window facilities at the Main Office from the current two windows to four windows, each with a separate lane. This improvement, together with the new Branch Office of this bank, presently under construction at the corner of S. Main St. and Old US-12, will increase our ability to serve our customers with greater speed and efficiency.

During the construction period the Drive-Up Window service will be limited to one window. This inconvenience should not last more than a few weeks, and during this time more tellers will be on duty in the lobby.

We appreciate your patience and co-operation during this construction period.

Test Results Told for 'Christmas Carol' Set For Dec. 15

In the past, the state has required all fourth and seventh graders to be tested in the areas of reading and mathematics. This is the first year the state required all schools to administer the tenth grade test as well, although Chelsea students participated in the tenth grade testing last year on a voluntary basis. The test results are used in two ways: individually and district-wide.

The individual student's scores are analyzed by the teacher and a specific plan is designed to help each student improve. On a district-wide basis, better instructional programs through curriculum revision in the areas of reading and math can be designed for different buildings.

At the fourth, seventh, and tenth grade levels, more than 80 percent of Chelsea students answered the questions correctly. On broad skill areas, Chelsea ranged from 64.6 percent to 95.2 percent of our students knowing the material and achieving passing scores.

In all schools, Chelsea students appear to be within either the stable or improving classification. Specifically, the reports indicate a higher percentage of pupil attainment in reading at all three grade levels. In mathematics, Chelsea scores were either better or about the same as last year at the fourth and tenth grade level, but tended to drop somewhat at the seventh grade. Individual student's results are being sent home for all fourth, seventh, and tenth grade students. Parents are encouraged to contact their child's mathematics and/or reading teacher for further information or help for their children. Specific questions concerning the test itself should be directed to Susan Carter at the high school, 475-9131, Ext. 42.

Saturday, Dec. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Chelsea High school auditorium, area residents will be given the opportunity to see "A Christmas Carol," presented by the high school Drama Class. It is to be a family-type production, in which grouchy old Scrooge is visited by four spirits who... well, that would spoil all the surprises! Tickets for "A Christmas Carol" will be available at Chelsea Drug Store beginning Nov. 28 at a cost of $2.50 each. Money raised from ticket sales will go to cover production costs. ASK THE GOVERNOR

by William G. Millham

Question: With winter just around the corner, I was wondering if the state will be participating in any programs to assist senior citizens with home heating costs?

Governor: Michigan recently became the first state to participate in a new co-operative federal-state program to assist senior citizens with energy problems.

Under the program, 15 federal VISTA volunteers will be placed in state Area Agencies on Aging to work on senior citizen energy problems. The VISTA volunteers will seek out locally available state and federal grants and loans to improve the energy efficiency of senior citizens' homes, assist in determining what energy improvements are cost effective, work with local businesses to arrange discounts for senior citizens who buy energy conservation materials and carry out a variety of other activities organized by the local aging agencies.

The program will be operated jointly by the state Energy Administration and the Office of Services to the Aging.

The Energy Administration will provide energy conservation training for the VISTA volunteers. Members of the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program (RSVP) and other local volunteers also will participate in the service project.

In addition, I have asked the legislature to continue funding the state's home heating assistance program for Michigan's low-income families and senior citizens. Legislation continuing the program is under consideration.

Low-income and senior citizens also may seek assistance in paying home heating costs from their county Department of Social Services or through Community Action Program agencies.

Question: What is the "snow train"?

Governor: The state will be assisting in testing a "snow train" for skiers and snowmobilers between Cadillac and Owosso Jan. 4-6. The excursion will be promoted as the Michigan Snow Train and will feature a week-end of entertainment including a band.

It is our hope that through initiatives such as this one, we will rekindle interest in resort passenger runs and show people that riding trains can be a fun experience as well as an energy-saving one.

Cadillac Winter Promotions, Inc., a non-profit organization formed by Cadillac area business leaders, will be the official sponsor of the event, with assistance from the Michigan Travel Bureau, the Michigan Office of the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, the Michigan Bureau of Urban and Public Transportation, the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce and others.

Five passenger coaches, a club car and a flat car to carry snowmobiles have been secured by the Michigan Interstate Railway Co., the former Ann Arbor Railroad, which will operate the train. The train will depart Owosso at 1 p.m., Friday, Jan. 4, and return by 9:30 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 6.

More information about the trip may be obtained from the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce, 200 Lake St., Cadillac 49601, 616-775-8776.

Question: I am concerned about the consistent loss of farm land to urban development. What is being done about it?

Governor: Under the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act, owners of active agricultural lands can enter into development rights agreements with the state for 10 years or longer. That agreement ensures that the land will remain in a particular use. In return, the landowner receives income or property tax benefits.

For the 1978 tax year, participants in the program received an average $2,400 income tax credit against their tax liability or refund from the state.

Just a few weeks ago I signed an agreement which enrolls the one-millionth acre of active Michigan farm land under the preservation act. I am pleased that this program is being used by the agricultural community in Michigan and that landowners throughout the state are concerned enough with the retention of vital agricultural lands to enroll in the program voluntarily.

Through this act we not only are protecting agricultural lands, but we also are finding that there are thousands of landowners who are willing to make a commitment to all Michigan residents that agriculture will remain an integral part of our state.

Future generations, farmers and non-farmers alike, will benefit from the preservation of active farm land which might have gone into other, more intensive uses.

House Activities

By Mary Keith Ballantine
23rd District Representative
A welfare reform bill designed to save Michigan taxpayers over $500,000 a year was introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives last week by my Republican colleague, State Representative Gary Randall of Elwell.

The measure would reduce from six months to one month the amount of time welfare recipients could receive public assistance from the state after they move out of Michigan. The present six-month limit is aimed at giving individuals who move out of the state an opportunity to apply for, and begin receiving, assistance from another state.

I believe that this process can be accomplished in one month. As a result, we would have a substantial amount of the money we now pay to welfare recipients who move out of the state.

The legislation will help to eliminate welfare money going to individuals who are using funds to supplement their incomes.

The bill has already received the support of the Department of Social Services Director, Dr. John Dempsey, who called it "an appropriate and sensible approach to tightening the welfare system in the state."

I am hopeful that this legislation will help to eliminate reports of individuals vacationing in southern states during the winter months while continuing to receive public assistance from the state.

Another hole in the present law allows welfare recipients who join the military to collect assistance from the state and have the checks transferred to his or her military residence for an indefinite period of time.

The chairman of the committee sure to study the measure—Social Services and Youth—said he supports the Randall-sponsored legislation.

According to a Department of Social Services estimate, the bill would save taxpayers about $500,000 a year.

Severance Tax Increase: Unnecessary for Home Heating Help

One of the best executed "con" jobs in this year's sitting of the Michigan house was pulled off last week by the House majority leadership.

The issue was whether the tax on oil and natural gas which passes through Michigan should be increased. The justification for the increased tax used by the sponsor, State Representative Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, was that it was needed to pay for Michigan's home heating assistance program.

That program helps senior citizens and low income families pay for heating their homes during the winter. No one argues that aid is needed for this purpose, especially in view of the tremendously increased oil prices already being faced by homeowners as the temperatures dive steadily lower.

What was at issue is whether Michigan taxes should be raised to pay for the program, especially when it became increasingly clear that the federal government would fund its own program.

This issue was on the House calendar for most of last week. Even though the House Leadership was informed that a joint House-Senate conference committee of the U. S. Congress in Washington was working towards agreement on a home heating assistance program, they insisted on pushing the increased tax through on the public excuse the tax is needed to fund the home heating assistance program.

The excuse is a sham. Just as the House was surrendering the bill, the Conference Committee in Washington announced an agreement.

Therefore, if you accept the reasoning of House Speaker Bobby D. Crim, D-Davison, the $33 million the increased severance tax will raise plus the $88 million from the federal government equals $121 million for home heating assistance programs.

That's okay, you might say, the senior citizens and low income families need it.

The problem is that the greatest amount of money ever estimated for this program's needs is $40 million.

That leaves about $81 million in extra revenue. It is perhaps one of those "coincidental" things that just seem to happen around Lansing—some cynics might even call the home heating assistance program a good cover—that Governor Milliken has ordered budget cutbacks of $100 million because of falling revenues.

No matter whose math one uses if you subtract $81 million from $100 million, it leaves $19 million. It's a lot easier to cut out $19 million from a state budget of over $4 billion than $100 million and there is the clue for the genuine reason for the tax increase.

You see, the tax increase approved by the House will not be used for those needy senior citizens and low income families that majority leadership cried about last week and about whom you heard of choices between eating and keeping warm. No, their needs are guaranteed by action in Congress and by a vow taken to provide such aid by no less than the Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, Thomas O. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Massachusetts.

The severance tax increase may eventually be used to prevent cuts in other pet programs of Bullard, Crim and others in the House power structure after they all "discover" the federal home heating assistance program the $88 million will more than provide for Michigan's needy.

And that, my friends, is the story of the great Lansing con job of 1979.

The severance tax increase, full with anti-Big oil pontifications by its sponsors even though consumers will eventually pay for it in higher prices, now goes to the Senate for debate and, most likely, approval, and then it lands on the Governor's desk.

Stay tuned.

Workers' Comp Task Force Moves Off Center

For several weeks, progress on workers' compensation reform has been bogged down in a task force which refused to budge from its position that cost of living increases must be agreed upon before any other matters on the reform agenda could be taken up.

However last week, the Democratic Chairman of the panel agreed to put COLA, the stickiest issue under consideration, aside in order to begin discussion on other points.

Michigan's workers' comp system clearly demands change. It overburdens employers to the extent that the state's image as a place to do business is badly damaged, and it short-changes disabled workers so that they are receiving less in benefits than they would if they were injured in other states.

Before the Governor's task force became deadlocked on the COLA issue, it agreed to increase the maximum benefit level by 50 percent in order to help workers who are disabled in the future. This move will increase employers' cost by 18 percent.

Yet employers were not assured of any corresponding savings, and were understandably anxious about anything as potentially costly as COLA.

The task force will begin to consider a Republican proposal to provide retroactive cost of living increases for those disabled three or more years ago and coordination of benefits.

Certainly a major concern must be for those disabled workers who haven't received a benefit increase in three years or more. They are the ones who are suffering.

But at the same time, we believe that if we are to achieve any success on workers' comp we must have balanced reform.

Five House Republicans issued a special task force report in the spring clearly stating that issues benefitting employers must be paired off with those benefitting labor. That is the real key if we hope to get anywhere. Business and labor interests must be flexible, too.

The fact that the Governor's task force is off dead center is good news for Michigan businesses and disabled working men and women who would otherwise be condemned to suffer under the continuing defects of the system.

Allison Hovater on Evangel College Volleyball Team

Allison Hovater of Chelsea, a freshman at Evangel College in Springfield, Mo., was a member of the college volleyball team that recently took fifth place in the state of Missouri tournaments.

Hovater, as a freshman, saw limited action for the Lady Crusaders of Evangel College in 1979, but did play in three games and performed well.

Over-all, Evangel finished with an 18-18-1 record. In tournament play, the team amassed a 9-9-1 mark.

"I feel this is the best team we've ever had," declared Coach Sandra Sorbo.

HAPPY HOUSE: Chelsea Jaycette Nan Rowe fashioned this three-dimensional poster of wood and metal and recently entered it in the state Jaycee Auxiliary poster contest. Theme of the contest is Jaycee Auxiliary Week, which will be celebrated in Michigan early next year.

Jaycee Auxiliary Enters Poster in State Contest

Chelsea's Jaycee Auxiliary has recently entered a poster in a Michigan Jaycee Auxiliary contest in honor of Jaycette Week in February.

The unique poster, built and designed by Nan Rowe, features a house of balsa wood. The doors actually open with miniature knobs and hinges. Figures are hand-painted plastic and a garden is fashioned of straw flowers. Rowe made the shingles with sandpaper and used wood carving tools to carve shutters and insignia.

Theme of the upcoming week,

Jaycettes Building a Better Tomorrow, prompted Rowe to have the house doors open on a rainbow with the slogan, "A Better Tomorrow Together," this year's Chelsea Jaycette slogan.

The poster, which took nine weeks of Rowe's time to construct, will be judged and winners announced in January at the Winter Board meeting.

"Even if we don't win and award, it was fun to do," said Rowe.

CUB SCOUTS ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE SALE

Once again this year, Chelsea's Cub Scouts will hold their annual Christmas Tree Sale.

Because of construction for a new Chelsea State Bank facility, the location for selling trees has been moved to the vacant lot next to McDonald's.

Sales will begin Saturday, December 1st and continue through December 24th, unless all of the trees are sold earlier. Hours will be:

- 5 p.m.-9 p.m. Weekdays
- 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturdays
- 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Sundays

This annual event is the Cub Scouts' major fund raising project.

Your continued support is needed to help keep Chelsea's Cub Scout program going.

It is advised to come early to make a selection from the quality Spruce and Scotch Pines being offered.

Ann Arbor Trust Co. Opens Another Office

Opening of its third branch office in the past year, significant increases in total assets, deposits and loans were highlights of Ann Arbor Trust Co. operations during the quarter ending Sept. 30.

George H. Cress, president, noted that his firm's recently opened branch office on S. State St., Ann Arbor, brings a substantial added dimension to Ann Arbor Trust's service capability in the Ann Arbor Area.

"We are now able to deliver full service banking to large numbers of individuals, families, business and commercial elements in the southeast, south, and southwest sections of our community," he said. The Trust Company previously opened branches in Chelsea and Brighton.

"This has been an ambitious program and we are pleased to have completed it without any erosion to the current year's earnings. We look forward to the impact of these facilities in the years to come," Cress pointed out in his quarterly message to Ann Arbor Trust Co. shareholders.

Total assets of the Bank as of Sept. 30, 1979, stood at $84,548,557, as opposed to $75,901,166 on Sept. 30, 1978, an increase of 11.4 percent. The corresponding deposits data was $177,141,465 and $69,584,650, or an increase of 10.8 percent, Cress reported.

Chelsea Firemen Douse Minor House Blaze

Chelsea firemen were summoned to the scene of a minor house fire at about 8:30 p.m., Tuesday evening, Nov. 27.

According to Chelsea Fire Department Secretary Dave Longworth, firefighters were called to the home of Mrs. Gene Schifle, 17720 North Territorial Rd., where a furnace pipe had caused the garage ceiling and rafter studs to ignite.

Firemen doused the flames and only minor damage was reported.

Lank's Trolley Clanked And Clanged

One hundred and forty-seven years ago Lank O'Dell began his first day on a new job. In fact, even the occupation was brand new. Lank was America's first streetcar driver. On Nov. 14, 1832, the "John Mason," our first horse-drawn streetcar, started its route on Fourth Ave. in New York City. For 12½ cents passengers could ride from Prince to 14th in style, pulled by two horses handled by O'Dell.

U. S. House Votes Against Regulations For Funeral Industry

In a key test of how Congress regards federal regulation, the funeral industry and small business is a clear winner.
Last Wednesday the House voted 223-147 to keep the Federal Trade Commission from issuing its proposed regulation over the funeral industry.

Rep. Martin A. Russo, D. Ill., said "The American people want less intervention in their daily lives and less of a federal burden on the backs of small business, which most of the funeral industry is."
He also criticized the FTC for anti-industry bias and questioned procedures used by the agency.

Donald Cole of Burghardt-Cole Chelsea Funeral Chapel stated that he was "pleased with the action taken by the House and that the consumer is the real winner as more regulations end up costing the consumer more. Funeral Directors are already highly regulated by state laws and there was just no need for the further government controls," Cole added.

Area Witnesses To Attend Convention

Chelsea's Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses has recently announced that it will attend a week-end Bible convention, Dec. 1-2. It will take place at their Assembly Hall in Holt.

"This program is designed to educate the Witnesses with knowledge and understanding of God's will," related Vaughan McCoy, the congregation's presiding minister. "It is also designed to stimulate all to faithful work and endurance in the house-to-house evangelizing work."

McCoy also noted that 1979 is the 100th anniversary year of the Watchtower magazine, the principal Bible study aid advocated by the Witnesses. Its value will be stressed at the assembly.

Twelve other congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses will also be at the seminar, making for an expected attendance of approximately 1,500 persons.

The Bible - The Light from Heaven

Teaches about vain worship. The example of Cain is set forth in (Genesis 4:3-5). It is possible to worship in vain. (Matthew 15:8, 9). The Bible says, "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain by which he obtained witness that he was righteous..." (Hebrews 11:4), leaving it implied that Cain's sacrifice was not of faith. Faith comes by hearing the word of God. (Romans 10:17), but opinion is what one thinks. The New Testament Church "sang and made melody in their heart." (Ephesians 5:19). They gave into the contribution on the first day of the week. (I Corinthians 16:1, 2). The first day of the week they met together to break bread or eat the Lords Supper. (Acts 20:7). They prayed in their services and studied God's word. (Acts 2:42). Jesus stated in John 4:24, "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." In verse 23 we read, "... for the Father seeketh such to worship him."

Cropland Erosion Reduced Sharply

Erosion on Michigan's 9.5 million acres of cropland is one-third less than it was 10 years ago, and half the national average cropland erosion rate. Arthur H. Cratty, State Conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service in East Lansing, revealed the above when he released the preliminary results of the 1977 erosion inventory. The erosion inventory is the first part of the National Resources Inventories being made by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service over a three-year period.

According to the study, Michigan cropland is losing an average of 2.3 tons of soil from every acre of cropland each year. The 1967 Conservation Needs Inventory indicated erosion was taking place on Michigan cropland at 3.8 tons per acre per year. The decline demonstrated the effectiveness of soil conservation programs and the desire by farmers to keep the land in place and our lakes clean.

"A decline in the average erosion rate doesn't mean that we don't have serious erosion in Michigan," Cratty said. "The average erosion rate is only six-tenths of a ton per acre per year on level land, but average erosion rates on rolling and steep hilly land are 5.1 and 8.7 tons per acre per year. Some fields are eroding much faster than these averages. The high, moderate and low erosion rates and extent of each were considered when arriving at the averages," Cratty added.

"What the study means," Cratty emphasized, "is that Michigan's food producing soil resources are being maintained better than 10 years ago and Michigan's many lakes and streams are not being filled with mud as rapidly as before." He went on to note that at many isolated locations erosion is far greater than can be tolerated.

Cratty credited the approach used by Michigan's Soil Conservation Districts for the reduction in soil erosion on cropland. For the past five years Michigan Soil Conservation Districts have concentrated efforts on critical erosion problem areas. "They have been working on 'the worse first' in their attack on soil erosion that depletes the land and fills streams with mud," Cratty said. The erosion inventory also revealed that Michigan's Agriculture has lost nearly 16 percent of its land to other uses and that over half of the remaining cropland, private forest land, and most of the state's pasture land needs treatment to reduce erosion or improve its capacity to produce food and fiber.

Land used for crop production fell from 11.3 million acres in 1967 to 9.5 million acres in 1977. The quality of land used for crop production declined also, more hilly and less flat land is used to grow crops. Land in other uses such as urban developments and transportation facilities increased during the same period. Over half of the remaining cropland is considered prime farm land.

Much of the state's sloping and hilly land needs protection from erosion. Some of the sloping and hilly land and a significant amount of the state's level or nearly level land need drainage, irrigation or practices to improve soil structure.

Data collected by Soil Conservation Service field employees at 4,782 sample points randomly located throughout Michigan will be used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Michigan's soil conservation districts to guide soil and water conservation programming and planning. Phase II of the National Resource Inventories, a study of erosion in gullies, along roads, in streams and on construction sites, will be completed this year. The last phase of National Resource Inventories to be completed in 1980 is an evaluation of the amount of sediment being delivered to major rivers.

Cropland Erosion Reduced Sharply

Erosion on Michigan's 9.5 million acres of cropland is one-third less than it was 10 years ago, and half the national average cropland erosion rate. The last phase of National Resource Inventories to be completed in 1980 is an evaluation of the amount of sediment being delivered to major rivers.

The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is made up of 600 leading organizations and individuals in the United States, all involved in the rehabilitation and employment of handicapped people.

The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped furnishes a common meeting ground for government and private employers, unions, professionals, and handicapped people themselves to solve problems.

Resource Inventories, a study of erosion in gullies, along roads, in streams and on construction sites, will be completed this year. The last phase of National Resource Inventories to be completed in 1980 is an evaluation of the amount of sediment being delivered to major rivers.

According to the study, Michigan cropland is losing an average of 2.3 tons of soil from every acre of cropland each year. The 1967 Conservation Needs Inventory indicated erosion was taking place on Michigan cropland at 3.8 tons per acre per year. The decline demonstrated the effectiveness of soil conservation programs and the desire by farmers to keep the land in place and our lakes clean.

"A decline in the average erosion rate doesn't mean that we don't have serious erosion in Michigan," Cratty said. "The average erosion rate is only six-tenths of a ton per acre per year on level land, but average erosion rates on rolling and steep hilly land are 5.1 and 8.7 tons per acre per year. Some fields are eroding much faster than these averages. The high, moderate and low erosion rates and extent of each were considered when arriving at the averages," Cratty added.

"What the study means," Cratty emphasized, "is that Michigan's food producing soil resources are being maintained better than 10 years ago and Michigan's many lakes and streams are not being filled with mud as rapidly as before." He went on to note that at many isolated locations erosion is far greater than can be tolerated.

Cratty credited the approach used by Michigan's Soil Conservation Districts for the reduction in soil erosion on cropland. For the past five years Michigan Soil Conservation Districts have concentrated efforts on critical erosion problem areas. "They have been working on 'the worse first' in their attack on soil erosion that depletes the land and fills streams with mud," Cratty said.

The erosion inventory also revealed that Michigan's Agriculture has lost nearly 16 percent of its land to other uses and that over half of the remaining cropland, private forest land, and most of the state's pasture land needs treatment to reduce erosion or improve its capacity to produce food and fiber.

Land used for crop production fell from 11.3 million acres in 1967 to 9.5 million acres in 1977. The quality of land used for crop production declined also, more hilly and less flat land is used to grow crops. Land in other uses such as urban developments and transportation facilities increased during the same period. Over half of the remaining cropland is considered prime farm land.

Much of the state's sloping and hilly land needs protection from erosion. Some of the sloping and hilly land and a significant amount of the state's level or nearly level land need drainage, irrigation or practices to improve soil structure.

Data collected by Soil Conservation Service field employees at 4,782 sample points randomly located throughout Michigan will be used by the Soil Conservation Service, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Michigan's soil conservation districts to guide soil and water conservation programming and planning. Now Hear This! Hearing Aid at Police Station

Chelsea Police report that they have been holding a hearing aid in their office for a week now, and no one has yet claimed it. Anyone who knows of someone who has recently lost a hearing aid, should contact Chelsea police. Chief Robert Aeillo said that the owner may call or come in to the police station and describe the object to claim it.

Watch for the Grand Opening announcement

There's nobody like your new baby

Of course, there isn't. But will your baby always be "someone special?"

A great deal depends on how well you safeguard your child's future — making sure there will always be funds for higher education, for example.

There's where I come in. I can show you how to safeguard your child's future through a carefully planned Metropolitan Life insurance program. Don't you owe it to the adult you want your child to be?

Possible Iranian Embargo Okayed

The nation's largest farm organization, long opposed to the use of food as a political weapon, said Nov. 14 that it would not oppose an embargo of food shipments to Iran if national security is involved.

"We must not succumb to the blackmail tactics of Iranian militants," Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said as he pledged the federation's support to President Carter's use of "any necessary economic and moral sanctions, including full embargo of food commodities if needed" against Iran.

Normally, farm and ranch people strongly oppose embargoes or moratoriums on agricultural exports, Grant said.

"But these are not normal times," the farm leader said. "The Iranian invasion of the U.S. Embassy and holding of U.S. citizens as hostages, under threat of death, must not be tolerated."

Deer Hunters Again Eligible For Patch

Deer hunters can once again receive their "Successful Deer Hunter" patches at a number of Department of Natural Resources field offices across the state, the DNR reports.

Hunters must bring in their deer in order to be awarded a patch.

DNR wildlife biologists check each deer's age and obtain other biological information that will help with future management of Michigan's deer herd.

Last year more than 20,000 patches were awarded to successful hunters.

Hunters should report to one of the following DNR field offices for their deer check and patch:

—Upper Peninsula: Baraga, Wakefield, Calumet, Crystal Falls, Norway, Stephenson, Felch school office, Felch fire office, Marquette, Gwinn, Escanaba, Newberry, Soo, Naubinway, Thompson and Cusino.

—Northern Lower Peninsula: Gaylord, Atlanta, Alpena, Boyne City, Cheboygan, Indian River, Millersburg, Cadillac, Traverse City, Baldwin, Platte River, Mio, West Branch, Lincoln, Kalkaska, Porter Ranch, Houghton Lake, Grayling, Rifle River, Tawas Point, Roscommon, Gladwin, Standish, Sanford, Harrison, Paris, Evart.

—Southern Lower Peninsula: Grand Rapids, Flat River, Muskegon, Gratiot-Saginaw State Game Area, Crane Pond State Game Area, Wolf Lake, Jackson, Pontiac Lake, Pointe Mouille, Imlay City, Caro.

Those stations will be open during regular working hours and many will be open on week-ends and after 5 p.m. Hunters should call first if they plan to stop in late or on a week-end.

Then the Feathers Flew

While the tradition of Thanksgiving is traced back to the Pilgrims, it wasn't until Abraham Lincoln asked Americans to officially celebrate the last Thursday in November as a day of general thanksgiving. Nov. 28, 1863, then, became the first formal Thanksgiving. On Dec. 26, 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt approved a joint Congressional resolution designating the fourth Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day. Turkey and the trimmings have followed. During the November Cornucopia of Cooking Weekends at Greenfield Village, Dearborn, visitors can visit several historic houses and observe various foods from game birds to pies being prepared in the classic manner.

Cong. Seeks Opinion From Auto Dealer

The U.S. government's proposed guaranteed loan to help bail out the Chrysler Corporation has engendered much debate as to whether the government should establish a precedent of aiding ailing corporations.

Naturally, legislators are wrestling with the question more intently than anyone, and at least one local congressman is seeking opinions from local residents.

U.S. Representative Bob Carr (D-6th District) recently wrote to Lloyd Bridges, president of Lloyd Bridges Chevrolet, asking his feelings on the proposed loan.

"Knowing what you know," wrote Carr, "if you were in my position, would you support federal loan guarantees to Chrysler in the amount of $1.5 billion, to be matched by new private money to Chrysler in the same amount?"

Bridges replied in the affirmative to Rep. Carr, citing three major reasons for his support.

"We think it is important to keep domestic competition in the auto industry," answered Bridges. "We think it is important to support our own people instead of our foreign friends. We have already set precedent with governmental assistance in the automotive industry with AMC and other major industries like the airlines, farming, etc."

Bridges, however, concluded his letter by warning of too much governmental interference in the running of the industry. "We the people and/or the government should not get in the automobile business because we are guarantors," he warned. "Let the people and the politicians run the government and let free enterprise do its thing."

Team members have been preparing for their Dec. 7 opener at Brighton since last basketball season ended. During the summer, some players participated in 23 scrimmage games against some of the best teams "within 50 miles of here."

The summer team met Ann Arbor Huron and Pioneer, Jackson High and Jackson Parkside, and finished third of 16 teams in a tournament at Adrian.

For Raymond, the year-round activity is important. "You don't see a lot of improvement during the season," he explained. "That comes in the off-season."

Chelsea opens its home season Tuesday, Dec. 11 against Jackson County Western.

"We're an improved team from two years ago," concluded Raymond. "Our program goals is to be rated in the top five in Class B year in and year out."

FOR A HEALTHIER WORLD

During the first half of this century, public health officials in thousands of American towns and counties were charged by law with certain responsibilities that were impossible to fulfill. Health and code officials were legally required to approve or disapprove designated kinds of equipment which, because of their widespread use, could seriously affect the public health. Included were such things as food service equipment used in public eating places, schools and hospitals, filtration equipment in swimming pools and devices used in water wells, just to name a few. Regulatory officials were also required to make firm judgments about the health benefits or health dangers of new products they had never seen before.

Any day in the week a health or code official could be expected to evaluate the environmental acceptability of any of a hundred products—and make such decisions with no accredited standards, no professional guidelines and no performance tests by scientific laboratories. In self defense, many officials established arbitrary standards of their own, or avoided problems by saying "No" to products that were new.

The manufacturers of products requiring regulatory approval were also in despair. There was no way to mass produce a given product to fit a crazy quilt of demands where the health people in County A insisted on porcelain surfaces while County B required stainless steel, or City C demanded a maximum performance temperature of 200° while City D was adamant about 183°.

Users and consumers of health related equipment also had their concerns. There was no forum for their voices to be heard and no way of reaching consensus. The Army, for example, might have different requirements for an item of kitchen equipment from the Navy, and the Marines might differ from them both.

This, then, was the situation toward the end of World War II. And this was the hour when a public health official from Ohio came to Ann Arbor with a plan to end all the chaos and confusion. He proposed a non profit foundation that would bring health officials, manufacturers and consumer representatives together where they could share their expertise, resolve their differences and develop national standards for health related products.

The man with the idea was Walter F. Snyder who had served for ten years as director of environmental health in Toledo. Returning to the U of M School of Public Health where he had once been a graduate student, Snyder won the support of Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, dean of the school, and Dr. Nathan Sinai, a distinguished member of the faculty. With him, Snyder brought statements of endorsement for such a foundation from nationally prominent health officials, and assurances of financial help from groups of concerned manufacturers.

On November 27, 1944, the National Sanitation Foundation was incorporated not for profit with Dr. Vaughan as president and Dr. Sinai as vice president. Walter Snyder was executive director, a position in which he served until his death in 1965. The foundation's first offices were in the School of Public Health and included all-important laboratory privileges.

Since its beginning 35 years ago, NSF has developed 43 standards for health related products including food service equipment, plastic pipe, swimming pool filtration equipment, biohazard cabinetry, refuse bags and containers, pitless well adapters, hospital cabinets, marine sanitation equipment and onsite wastewater treatment systems.

Facts worth knowing about NSF include these:

- NSF standards are national standards which may be adopted by any health jurisdiction anywhere.
- NSF standards are voluntary. They are not imposed on citizens from high and remote levels of government. They are jointly developed by peer groups of public health officials, manufacturers and consumer representatives. Once promulgated, these NSF standards are voluntarily adopted by jurisdictions at all levels of government, by manufacturers and by purchasers of equipment.
- The NSF seal or logo on a health related product means that the product fulfills the requirements of an NSF standard. The presence of "NSF" on a product brings virtually automatic acceptance in thousands of U.S. and foreign health jurisdictions.

NSF's mission is a healthier world and this is the first week of our 36th year.
