ONE HUNDRED-TWELFTH YEAR—No. 4

CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1981

18 Pages This Week

A PRIME EXAMPLE OF COURAGE, Reuben Lesser, Sr. is an inspiration to us all. At the age of 80, he remains fairly active in farming and attributes his successful adjustment to his way of life to his good wife, Esther. Despite his loss of limbs, Lesser explains kiddingly that his adjustment was in part due to "a strong back and a weak mind." Here he sits aboard his garden tractor enroute to his barn behind his farmhouse on Chelsea-Manchester Rd.

AN INSPIRATION TO ALL:

Reuben Lesser, A Story of Determination, Good Will

Reuben Lesser was born June 4, 1900. He has been a Chelsea area resident his entire life. His is a story of determination, of will power, of, in his words, "a good wife."

Reuben Lesser and Esther Koengeter were married June 4, 1924; they moved to their present residence on Chelsea-Manchester Rd. in 1925 and purchased the farm in 1928. Of all the original residents on that stretch of road, only the Lessers and Joe Merkel, Sr. remain.

Their farm, originally comprising 130 acres is now 45 acres in size. The Lessers sold much of their property to Chrysler Corp. for the construction of the Proving Grounds.

Nevertheless, at their farm, the couple had two children, a son Reuben, Jr. and a daughter Virginia. The Lessers' son, Reuben still lives in Chelsea; their daughter, Virginia, Hall, lives in Oscoda.

Reuben Lesser, a spritely 80-year-old man, has been a general farmer all his life. And so his story goes. In 1955, he lost an arm in a corn picker; in 1978 and 1980, he lost his legs to poor circulation. He has fingers missing from his other hand. Still, he is a beaming, friendly, wise man with a marvelous sense of humor.

How can a person go through so much and maintain composure? Isn't it a typical reaction to feel bitter, to become nasty?

According to Lesser, who rides a garden tractor to get him

"where he wants to go" on the farm, though his losses were a shock, "it was will power and determination as well as a strong, happy relationship with his wife, that helped him through his bad times."

Reuben Lesser is far from one's typical mental picture of a person who has gone through amputative surgery. Prior to the loss of his second leg, he continued to farm regularly. Now, farming is an occasional occurrence. Still, last week, Reuben Lesser raked hay with his son on at least two occasions.

His determination and literal zest for living are inspirational to those of us who know him. Though a fairly shy man, his story is unique, his life is an amazing story of courage.

Since he lost his legs, Reuben Lesser has been volunteering some of his time at Chelsea Community Hospital, with the encouragement of Dr. van Reese, talking to other persons who have recently undergone or will soon undergo amputative surgery. He offers them encouragement, using his life as an example of the full potential that one can live up to. Though he's unable to gauge whether or not his conversations are successful, he is still pleased to have had the opportunity to speak with others who will go through similar traumas.

Last March, Esther Lesser had a stroke and has been a resident of the Saline Evangelical Home ever since. Her husband visits her every day, driving his dark blue car equipped with hand controls. He brings with him words of encouragement similar to those she brought to him during his times of trouble. He's anxious to have her home again.

Reuben Lesser has seen the good times and the bad times. He and his wife weathered the Depression, maintaining their farm while so many others sold out. His life is the epitome of success, so much more rich than that of the typical human being.

ROBERT H. THORNTON, JR.

Robert Thornton, Jr., To Head Hospital Board

Robert H. Thornton, Jr., has been elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Chelsea Community Hospital.

Thornton succeeds James Daniels, who has been Chairman of the Chelsea Community Hospital Board of Trustees since 1978.

He is a realtor with offices in Ann Arbor and Chelsea and is a director of the National Association of Realtors, Secretary of the Michigan Association of Realtors and a past President of the Ann Arbor Board of Realtors. Mr. Thornton is active in civic affairs in Chelsea, Ann Arbor and Jackson. He has lived in Chelsea since 1967 and is married to Alice Thornton. They have seven children.

Also elected to the Board of Trustees was Leonard Wolln, MD, chief of the medical staff at the hospital.

St. Louis School Sponsoring Bloodmobile

St. Louis School for Exceptional Boys will sponsor a community bloodmobile, Wednesday, July 15 between the hours of 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. to help alleviate the crucial need for blood.

Persons interested in participating in this blood-collecting endeavor are asked to call Brother Dean Fazekas at St. Louis School, 475-8430.

He was instrumental in the formation of the Chelsea Community Fair and, at one time, served as its president. He had been a member of the Sylvan Township Board from the mid-Thirties to the late-Seventies. His son has since taken a seat on the board.

Reuben Lesser has become a legend in his own time, a fabulous man with a fine outlook, a true pillar of courage.

ipation in the three classes—stock, modified and super modified—event. There is seating for 3,000 spectators at a cost of $2 each.

An old-fashioned ice cream social begins at 5 p.m. under the leadership of American Legion past commander Lena Behnke and commander Vern Salsburg.

All this leads up to the piece de resistance, the annual fireworks display beginning at dusk and featuring a total of $2,400 worth of colorful lights and ear-piercing sounds. Don Doll is this year's fireworks chairman, in charge of fireworks made possible by donations from the Chelsea Kiwanis Club, the American Legion, Chelsea Milling Co., the Four Wheel Drive Pullers Assoc., and BookCrafters.

All Real Property In Lima Township To Be Appraised

The Stover Appraisal Co., based in Holt, has signed a contract with the Lima Township Board to make a complete, up-to-date appraisal of all real property in Lima township. Company employees are expected to be in the area from Wednesday, July 1 through Wednesday, Dec. 31, measuring and gathering the needed information necessary to complete the re-assessment. The last complete appraisal was performed in 1971 by the Mierson Appraisal Co.

Lima Township Supervisor Leila Bauer advises all residents to take caution before letting anyone into their homes. Informing all township residents, Bauer has explained that the appraisers with the Stover Appraisal Co. will have with them as identification a yellow booklet entitled "Assessment for Lima Township" written by Leila Bauer, in an attempt to answer some, if not all questions regarding this re-assessment. Appraising personnel will be from out of the area and known to no one. Each resident will be handed a booklet by the appraising personnel prior to the re-appraisal of their property. For the residents that are not at home, an attempt will be made to leave the booklet in their door.

In addition, the company's personnel will have a letter of identification signed by Frank Stover who will also notify the local police department as to the make, model and license numbers of the vehicles being used by his staff.

"Today one cannot be too careful," explains Mrs. Bauer, "and we have taken every precaution so as not to cause anyone concern." Should anyone have any additional questions, please contact Supervisor Leila Bauer at 475-8385 Monday through Thursday between the hours of 8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. or on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

A number of pertinent factors should be taken into account. First, household furnishings and other personal belongings will not be assessed. In Michigan, only land and buildings are taxable; normal household goods are exempt from property taxes.

This re-assessment will not automatically increase one's taxes. Only those properties which are not presently assessed equally with all others or are not presently paying their fair share of the tax burden will pay more taxes.

The need for the re-assessment is based on inequities existing in the present out of date assessment. Depreciation differences and economic condition factors compared to like properties must be re-evaluated. Still, this does not mean that all of the assessments are too low. In fact, some of them appear to be too high. But, with this re-assessment, many residents' taxes will be lower; some will be paying more.

Appraising personnel will undertake each and every building in Lima township; each will receive a complete interior and exterior inspection and will be measured. All of the gathered data will be recorded on a property record card. Questions regarding, for example, home age, improvements made and price of recently purchased property will

Legislature Working Toward Individual And Business Tax Cut
 Whether it be to fulfill the mandate of the people from the past elections or to make some political mileage, the Michigan Legislature is beginning to give some serious thought to both tax cuts for individuals and businesses.

It seems that every member of the legislature has his or her own idea of how to best serve the people and Michigan businesses to make the state a better place to live and work.

The point is, however, that the mood is getting stronger and some type of tax cuts should become reality before the end of the current session—December, 1982.

Both the Senate Democrats and House Republicans have taken a caucus position to support a proposal developed within the caucuses.

House Republicans endorsed the basics of a tax cut plan that would deal with property taxes and the single business tax, cutting state revenues by $560 million.

Called the 20-20-10 plan, it would cut property taxes by 20 percent, increase the property tax portion of the renters circuit breaker from 17 to 20 percent and cut the single business tax revenues by 10 percent.

The Senate Democratic plan calls for a 35 percent cut in school operating taxes, a senior citizen exemption for school taxes, tax credit to senior citizen renters, millage rollbacks to offset assessment increases and increased single business tax credits for small and new businesses.

The total plan would cost $1.2 billion over the next three years.

All the proposals could be enacted legislatively and there would be no lost revenues to local governments as they all proposed the state reimburse the locals for any lost revenues.

The Senate has approved an amendment to the single business tax act to provide a larger credit for businesses grossing under $6 million per year and new businesses for the first three years they operate in the state.

The bill would provide up to a $25 million tax cut per year on such businesses by computing their business tax liability on profits rather than on payroll.

Meanwhile, the House Democratic Leadership is moving on a proposal "front loading" the property tax circuit breaker which would give taxpayers a reduction on their annual property tax bills rather than receive them at the end of the year through an adjustment to their income tax liability.

Under the bill, beginning in 1982, credit forms would go to property owners before payment of summer or winter taxes.

The credit forms would state how much tax credit the homeowner is entitled to based upon prior year credits and the homeowner would present the form to the local treasurer and only pay the excess.

The state would then reimburse the local government for the reduced tax bill.

If the homeowner is entitled to a larger credit, he would then file for an additional credit with his or her state income tax form.

The bill also grants an expanded circuit breaker to people earning less than $10,000 and persons earning less than $5,000 a year would not be responsible for any property taxes whatsoever.

Currently, the circuit breaker returns 60 percent of all property taxes paid over 3.5 percent of a person's income.

With the various proposals kicking around the legislature and members of the legislature jumping to the beat of the voters' tax-cut drum, it's only a matter of time before a proposal clears both houses and is sent to the governor for signature.
 How fast and how much remains to be seen.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers was kicking around first one thing and then the other Saturday night at the country store, and when the talk come around to Independence Day Bug Hookum natural mentioned his old lady. He said he was just as independent as she wanted him to be, and if they was any doubt we could ask her. Bug said she kept him running so hard all week between the garden and the yard he was giving some thought to calling rent-a-husband. He had saw where two young fellers in Dallas has started a service called Husbands by the Hour.

According to the piece Bug read, both are recent divorced and all they want to do is chores around the house. They will wash windows, fix screens and take out garbage at a regular rate, Bug said, but they already had to much nagging. After he went fishing two mornings last week without permission, Bug said he could of used one fer working and the other fer listening.

Josh Clodhopper don't offer much at the sessions, Mister Editor, but he spoke up to say it's a good thing menfolk have a base fer comparison. Josh recalled the feller that was ask how his ailing wife was, and he said "compared to what?" Josh said his old lady don't nag at all. The last time she got real crossways with him over somepun, he said, she didn't say nothing. She didn't say nothing fer two solid weeks.

Speaking of comparing, Clem Webster said we could be glad we don't live in Malaysia. He had saw where courts there are putting wives in jail with husbands. They have cleared up drunk driving altogether by sentencing men to cells with their old ladies, and they're working this plan on other crimes. Can you imagine the noise wimen make when they git locked up fer somepun their men done, Clem said. Course, Clem went on, some men never do figger where they went wrong. Fer instant, he had saw where a 75-year-old man in Milwaukee is suing his 30-year-old bride of one day fer annulment on the grounds of misrepresenting herself. He claims she said she would like living in Milwaukee, but she left fer Los Angeles the morning after their wedding night and she won't come back.

But, Clem declared, all is not gloom in the world. He had saw where this country church in the mountains of North Georgia was announcing that a 110-year-old preacher was coming to lead a revival, and they felt special blessed, because his schedule is full fer the next two year. Clem said you got to feel good about a church with faith strong enuff to book a 110-year-old preacher two year ahead, but you wonder why that church needs reviving.

If that ain't enough good news, Clem went on, he hears that President Reagan is planning to spend all of August at his California ranch as far from Washington as he can git. Congress will take off most of a month getting ready for and getting over Labor Day, and the whole Government of France allus shuts down in August. We're in fer a safer than usual summer, Clem said, and if more Governments catch on to this vacation schedule we might even have a few weeks of peace in our time.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

All Real Property In Lima Township To Be Appraised

 be asked, thereby enabling the interviewer to make an accurate appraisal.
 If a home is being built and only partially completed at the time of the assessment, a percentage of completion will be established and will be used to determine the assessment for that year only.
 Farm lands will be valued according to actual land use. Soil types will be recorded and homes will be assessed as compared to all other township residences. Outbuildings will also be measured and depreciated to their fullest.
 Despite this one-to-one interaction with the assessor, he or she is a field person only, unable to discuss the appraisal with the resident. Instead, after gathering all necessary information, the actual appraisal will be made by a trained specialist employed by Stover Appraisal Co.
 If, at the time of arrival, the appraiser is not allowed to enter a residence, a notation will be entered on the record card and the property will be appraised from the exterior observation only.

 Following the appraisal, Lima township residents will be notified by first class mail following tax day, Dec. 31. If the property owner believes that there are any discrepancies in the appraisal, an informal hearing may be scheduled to discuss any questions having arisen. All conferences will be privately held.
 If, after this informal review, the property owner is still not satisfied with the new assessment, testimony can be given to the formal Board of Review and request can be made to the Board to make their determination as to whether the assessment is fair or not. If the Board of Review upholds the new assessment and the property owner remains dissatisfied, an appeal can be made to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.
 Lima Township Supervisor

Lella Bauer extends her appreciation to the residents of Lima township for their cooperation with the personnel of the Stover Appraisal Co. and sees the re-assessment as positive for two reasons. First, it will allow the township to have a complete, up-to-date file on all real property as required by the State Tax Commission and, secondly, the re-assessment will serve as a tool for substantiating and justifying to the Equalization Department of Washtenaw county that Lima township is assessed at 50 percent in an attempt to keep from receiving any additional tax increases. As a final goal, Supervisor Lella Bauer sees the re-assessment as achieving equity for all taxpayers.
 These new assessments will go into effect as of Dec. 31 and are payable by March 1, 1982.

Radio Relay Field Day Tests Skills

During a 24-hour period, from 2 p.m. Saturday, June 27 to 2 p.m. Sunday, June 28, members of the Chelsea Communications Club participated in the 45th Annual American Radio Relay League Field Day emergency preparedness test.
 Over this week-end, thousands of amateur radio operators (hams) in the U.S. and Canada set up their stations in the open using only emergency power and portable antennas. They contact as many operators as possible in the 24-hour period. These tests are designed to help hams refine operating skills necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable.
 The operation site for the Chelsea Communications Club this year was Park Lyndon, located one and one-half miles east of M-52 on North Territorial Rd. Members of the club were on hand to answer questions regarding equipment, procedures and the public service role that amateur radio plays in the community.
 Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society of both American and Canadian amateur radio operators. Its headquarters are in Newington, Conn.

ABWA Chapter Announces Chelsea Scholarship Winner

Twenty Chelsea Charter Chapter members of the American Business Women's Association and three guests met at Pierce Park for their monthly meeting Tuesday, June 23. This meeting also marked the fifth anniversary of the chapter.
 After a picnic supper, the business meeting was conducted by President Shirley Schneider. Shirley Case and Jan Hegadorn were installed as new members.
 President Schneider read communications from Hilary R. Buf-ton, founder of ABWA, and Fran Mills, president of Region V, congratulating the Chapter on its fifth anniversary.
 Betty Koch, chairman of the Education Committee, announced that Diane Marie Luick is the recipient of a $600 grant from the Steve Buf-ton Memorial Scholarship Education Fund. Diane is a student at Michigan State University.

The invocation was given by Lois Emert and the benediction by Barbel Atkins.
 At the close of the meeting, the birthday cake, baked by Lena Behnke, was cut and enjoyed by the members.
 Guests at the meeting included Jean Walter, Judy Durgin and Bonnie Augustine.
 Katie Chapman was presented a charm for perfect attendance.
 Door prizes were won by Barbel Atkins, Carole Spike, Shirley Porter, Micky Quackenbush, Judy Durgin, Kathleen Brooks, Shirley Case and Katie Chapman.

Driver Ticketed for Striking Parked Car

Sunday morning, June 21, at approximately 3 a.m., a property damage accident was reported on Wilkinson St. near Wellington.
 According to police reports, a car driven by Timothy Dean Bareis, 20, of 306 Grant St., was traveling northbound on Wilkinson St. when it rear-ended a legally parked car belonging to Arthur Klemes of 507 Wilkinson.
 Witnesses informed Chelsea police that the car left the scene of the accident, traveling south on Wilkinson. Bareis' car was stopped by Officer Richard Foster as it headed westbound on Old US-12. Bareis was taken to Chelsea Medical Center for treatment and cited for reckless driving.

Area Real Estate Sales Show Increase

Real estate activity by the Ann Arbor Board of Realtors is ahead of last year, in spite of a drop in volume for May as compared to April.
 More than $10,800,000 in real property was conveyed in May, including $9,744,400 in single family residences. The remainder consisted of $537,400 vacant land, $390,000 farm and $204,800 income property.
 The total in April was $12,000,000, the main difference as compared to May being in income property in which there was $1,475,800 sold in April.
 With the end of May, the total in closings was $45,538,132, compared to $43,459,204 for the same five months last year.
 May sales were 134 residences, 11 land, three income and one farm. The average price of residences for May was $61,550, with the average price for the year to date at $66,000. These averages compare to $65,800 for May a year ago and $67,600 for the first five months last year.
 As has been the case for many months because of high interest rates, land contracts continue their dominance over all forms of financing. Of the 149 May sales, 88 were by land contract, 31 conventional financing, 22 assumption of existing mortgages, six cash and two FHA or VA. April figures were very similar.

 Fred Moncrieff, board president, said that although there has been some national speculation of a drop in interest rates, there is no evidence locally.
 "The Adjustable Mortgage Loans announced a few days ago by Great Lakes Federal and First Federal of Detroit—and soon to be revealed by Standard Federal—are too new to evaluate. In some cases, assumptions may not be feasible because of a three-year balloon payment placed on such financing by Great Lakes," he said.
 Further clouding the outlook for the near future in real estate activity, he indicated, is the due-on-sale controversy now being fought at the state legislative level. The outcome, no matter what it is, will have a significant affect on buying and selling. Possible enforcement of due-on-sale clauses in mortgages by some lenders severely restricts land contract sales.

Midget League Has Five Teams

This summer brings new players, new coaches and new fun to the Chelsea girls softball program. The Midget League of 8-, 9- and 10-year-olds will host five teams:

Team No. 1, the Blue Belles, is coached by Terry Losey. Team No. 2, coached by Jim Ghent, is the Bumble Bees. Veteran coach Margo Koenn returns with Team No. 3, the Peppermint Patties. Also returning from last year is coach Joe Rossi, leading Team No. 4, the Red Barons, while newcomer Lynda Longe is coaching Team No. 5, the Jellybeans.

Bumble Bees 9, Peppermint Patties 9

The opening game of the season, Monday, June 22, saw a tough battle of hitting, pitching and nervous players. Each team totalled 13 hits.

The Peppermint Patties started the scoring early with singles by Debi Koenn, Debbie Urbanek and Sara Musoff. Pattie Heather Neibauer slugged her first homer of the year, giving her team an 8-2 advantage in the third inning.

The Bumble Bees rallied with a single by Beth Kenney, a triple by Mary Kemp, singles by Jennifer Ghent, Teresa Lewis and Vicky Niethammer and a booming home run by Peggy Hammerschmidt to tie the game.

Peppermint Patties Julie Tobias, Heidi Boyer, Sheri Stephens and Carol Hanke added singles to help their team. The Pattie pitching combo was Heather Niebauer and Tina Kimbler.

Starting pitching duty for the Bees was Beth Kenney with relief work by Maria Kattula, Peggy Hammerschmidt and Mary Kemp.

Slugging singles for the Bees were Heather Osinski, Judy Bareis and Dianne Monroe. After good pitching, fielding and slugging, the dust settled and the game ended in a 9-9 tie.

Peppermint Patties 12, Jellybeans 9

Wednesday, June 24 found both teams tallying 18 hits apiece. It was hits galore and Coach Koenn said that her team slugged single after single with Tina Kimbler, Heidi Boyer, Sherie Stephens, Sara Musoff and Kristin Bohlender contributing to the cause. Debi Koenn went three for three with a triple and two singles.

Debbie Urbanek slugged two singles and a double while Heather Neibauer slashed her second homer of the year.

Jellybean Coach Lynda Longe reported all around good play by her girls though they fell short in their season opener.

Bumble Bees 13, Blue Belles 10

The bats were humming as the Bees and Belles rounded the bases in an up and down battle of the bats.

Bumble Bee Mary Kemp slugged her first homer of the year followed by doubles by Peggy Hammerschmidt, Judy Bareis and Vicky Niehammer.

Bee Coach Jim Ghent said he was very pleased with the excellent hitting abilities of his girls. Kerry McArthur, Sonya Osinski and Teresa Lewis each added doubles of their own late in the game.

In the Belles' first showing of the season, Alisha Dorow, Laura Unterbrink and Colleen Scharphorn handled the pitching duties. Swinging the bats were Shannon Losey with a triple, Deana Stephens with two triples and Shawn Losey with two doubles.

Through 1947, the United States was a net exporter of petroleum. Net imports reached a high of 8.6 million barrels a day in 1977.

WCC Reports Enrollment Jump of 24 %

Responding to a dramatic enrollment increase of 24 %, Washtenaw Community College Trustees approved a 1981-1982 budget 11.2 percent higher than the current budget.

"The enrollment increase reflects the recession," Dr. Gunder Myran, WCC president said. "Many unemployed individuals came to WCC for retraining, and many others came to improve their skills to hold on to their jobs."

"We do not expect the same level of growth in enrollment next year. We do expect enrollment to remain high and recommended a budget to meet that situation," he said.

The $15,162,000 budget reflects a modest increase in tuition of $2.50 per credit hour.

"Tuition is 20 percent of College revenue; with this increase students will still be paying 20 percent of the cost of their education," Dr. Myran pointed out.

Other sources of revenue for 1981-1982 are:

Anticipated state aid will be $4,043,000, an increase of 5.5 percent over last year.

Property tax revenue $7,106,000, an increase of 13.5 percent.

Investment income and other sources $717,000.
$208,000 from fund balance.

The new budget provides for no increase in staffing and substantial reductions in non-instructional expenses. Budget increases are provided to open the new Occupational Education Building in January, 1982, as well as replacement of certain items of instructional equipment.

Dr. Myran pointed out that although a number of efficiencies were achieved last year, the new budget would challenge the staff and faculty to continue to make reductions in expenditures. Particular emphasis will be placed on reducing utility expense and in College support activities.

Trustees approved the budget at their regular June meeting, Tuesday, June 23. It becomes effective July 1.

Lawrence Wengren Earns DVM Degree at MSU

Chelsea native Lawrence E. Wengren has earned a doctor of veterinary medicine degree from Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine. He was among the 115 veterinary students to receive the degree during MSU's morning commencement exercises on campus, June 13. Hooding ceremonies for the new veterinary graduates took place that afternoon in the sanctuary of the Peoples Church in East Lansing.

LAWRENCE E. WENGREN

Wengren is the son of Mrs. Celia Wengren, 12780 Luick Dr. "His veterinary skills will be a valuable asset to any community in which he practices and to the American public," says John Welsler, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine. "Without veterinarians, much of the world food supply would be jeopardized. Infectious diseases transmissible between animals and man would be out of control." "Health care of companion animals also is the responsibility of the veterinarian. "Besides befriending and protecting man, pets are vital to the mental health of many people—especially those handicapped in coping with the stresses of a complex society. "Tourism, horse racing and commerce, too, rely on veterinarians who know equine, marine, wildlife, and zoo medicine."

MSU veterinary students are also trained in professional ethics, business management and client communication.

Master Canner Program Slated

The basics of home food preservation — including canning, freezing, jam and jelly making, pickling and drying — are the focus of the Master Canner Program to be offered by the Cooperative Extension Service beginning July 9.

The program was developed by Extension specialists at Michigan State University to train volunteers to multiply Extension Home Economists' efforts to promote reliable and safe food preservation practices. Helen Fairman, Washtenaw County Home Economist, notes there has been an upsurge of men and women turning to home gardening and food preservation the past few years. "We home economists are concerned that people use safe up-to-date preserving methods and procedures. To do it incorrectly and end up with poor results is disappointing. To do it incorrectly and throw it out because of spoilage is poor economics. And even more vital, is to risk botulism poisoning by using wrong methods," she says.

Master Canner participants will learn the do's, don'ts and how-to's of each method of food preservation. The course will include lectures, demonstrations, and actual experience. Each will receive a notebook of food preservation information and will take home sample products they have produced.

To be certified as a "Master Canner" participants must pass weekly quizzes and a final exam, and volunteer 20 hours during the summer to share what they have learned with others. Volunteer opportunities include answering telephone questions, providing information at farm markets, fairs and food preservation workshops and providing personal assistance to beginning canners.

The Washtenaw County course is scheduled for consecutive Thursdays beginning July 9. Daytime sessions are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through July 23, plus from 9 a.m. to noon July 30. Evening classes run from 7 to 10 p.m. through Aug. 20.

A $25 course fee pays for the reference notebook and workshop supplies.

Boys State Delegates Elected to Various Offices

Chelsea's Boys State participants returned to town Wednesday, June 24, beaming with enthusiasm. The four including Paul Schumann and Mike Bareis, who represented the Chelsea Kiwanis Club and Bob Benedict and Phil Powers, who represented the Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31 of the American Legion, discussed their adventures with open enthusiasm.

Learning about government was the major reason they were recruited and the major development coming from their week-long experience. Simulated national conventions, lasting as long as 12 hours, were held by the 1,100 Michigan participants.

Participating in government found Schumann, Bareis and Benedict elected to various city governments while Phil Powers became speaker of the House of Representatives and was given the opportunity to carry on a Congressional session in the actual chambers in Lansing.

Powers commented on the willingness of his constituents to support him without really being familiar with his policies or at a more personal level.

Still, government did not consume all of their days while staying on the Michigan State University campus. Instead, there were softball games, volleyball and time to relax, as well.

Michael Toth Earns Degree At Kalamazoo

Kalamazoo College held its 145th annual commencement exercises on Saturday, June 13. Nearly 300 members of the Kalamazoo College class of 1981 participated.

U.S. Representative Paul Simon of Illinois, delivered the commencement address, "Education for a Changing World." His address was preceded by a colorful academic procession of Kalamazoo College faculty, trustees, honorary degree recipients and the seniors, viewed by their families and friends.

As the seniors crossed the commencement platform and their names were announced, they each received their individual diplomas from Dr. George N. Rainsford, president of the college.

Receiving honorary degrees from Kalamazoo College were Simon, Charles A. Pratt, retired Kalamazoo County District Judge and E. Mandell de Windt, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of the Eaton Corp.

Among the graduates was Michael Toth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Toth of 8495 Mast Rd., Dexter.

The first institution of higher education in the state of Michigan, Kalamazoo College is widely recognized as one of the nation's finest small liberal arts colleges. The innovative, year-round Kalamazoo Plan provides a uniquely structured curriculum, through which all students participate in the off-campus experiences of foreign study, career development, and senior individualized projects, in addition to a rigorous on-campus complement of core courses in the liberal arts and sciences.

Revenue for Transportation Systems Plummeted by 27%

State revenue for work on highways, roads and streets and other transportation systems plunged by 27 percent in the first quarter of 1981 compared with the same period a year ago, the Michigan Department of Transportation reported last week.

The decrease, the biggest single-quarter drop ever recorded, was chiefly the result of a continuing decline in gasoline consumption and removal of the March 31 deadline for yearly registration of autos and most other vehicles.

Proceeds from motor fuel taxes declined from $115.43 million to $103.4 million, down by 10.4 percent.

A shift in the expiration date for vehicle registrations from March 31 to the driver's birthday resulted in a 42.8% decline in weight tax revenues. Collections for the January to March quarter fell from $146.68 million to $83.91 million. They will increase in the other three quarters of the year, although registration of commercial vehicles is down sharply.

Fuel and weight tax income further reduced for cities, villages and counties whose populations declined or failed to keep pace with average state-wide growth in the 1970-1980 decade.

Detroit suffered the biggest dollar loss as its regular quarterly take declined from $11,488,704 in 1980 to $7,227,475 this year. It lost another $2,655,021 for the first quarter only, reflecting a census adjustment for the first three quarters of 1980 and reducing its net income for the January to March period to $4,572,454.

Flint's regular quarterly share fell from $1,591,149 to $1,043,378, and its one-time census adjustment reduced its net income to $800,075.

Grand Rapids' regular quarterly allotment declined from $1,635,135 to $1,161,761, while the one-time adjustment added $9,201 to its income.

Fast-growth areas fared better. Regular quarterly income for Sterling Heights in Macomb county went up from $516,668 to $582,239. The city collected an additional $626,634 one-time payment for the census adjustment.

Oakland county is an example of a county where the population increased but the number of residents in areas served by rural county roads did not meet the state-wide average growth in those areas of 23 percent. Its share of gas and weight tax revenues fell from $7,440,351 to $5,285,879, and another $120,631 was deducted to reflect the census adjustment.

Reduced driving and the growing number of light-weight, fuel-efficient autos accounted for the 7.5 percent drop in gas tax revenues, which fell from $108.35 million to $100.28 million.

Income from diesel fuel sales declined about 37 percent, going from $6.98 million to a little more than $3 million, the result both of reduced truck traffic and the six-cent-a-gallon rebate available to truck operators. Special diesel carrier taxes and license fees totaling $2.35 million made up part of the shortfall.

Total income for the Michigan Transportation Fund, which supports state bus and rail programs as well as highway, road and street systems, totaled $195.78 million. It was $268.1 million in the first quarter of 1980.

Collection costs and special grants totaled $15.73 million, a 5.6 percent increase from last year. The amount available for distribution for road and other transportation programs totaled $180.05 million, a drop of 28.9 percent, or $73.13 million.

The State Trunkline Fund for construction and maintenance of the state highway system will receive $68,574,685 as its 38.4 percent share of the fund, down by $27,988,226. State-financed public transportation and rail programs will receive $14,829,338 as their 8.3 percent portion, off by $6,050,831.

The 83 county road commissions will collect $59,818,704 as their 34.3 percent share, a drop of $25,087,775.

The 532 incorporated cities and villages will receive $33,811,670 as their 19 percent share, down by $13,920,023.

Together, the state, counties and municipalities maintain more than 117,000 miles of highways, roads and streets.

Jackson county saw a decline of $31,212 during the first quarter of 1981 as compared to the first quarter of 1980. The 1981 figure was $1,129,652 as compared to a figure of $1,646,291 for the same time period the preceding year.

Views On Dental Health

By ROBERT A. BURNS, JR., DDS, P.C.

WISDOM TEETH

As babies, we start out with 20 primary (or baby) teeth. By the time we are adults, we shed these baby teeth and end up with a total of 32 teeth. Where do the extra 12 come from? These are our 12 permanent molar teeth. They develop behind the baby molars in three stages (of 4 each) during our youth.

The third set of molars are called wisdom teeth. They generally make their appearance between the age of 17 and 21. The one who invented this label equated "wisdom" (perhaps rashly) with physical maturity. Wisdom teeth often cause trouble.

The jaws may be so small that one or all of these wisdom teeth remain completely embedded in the jawbone. In other instances, only a portion of the crown may erupt and a flap of gum tissue may overlap much of the wisdom tooth enamel.

These embedded (impacted) or partially erupted teeth may become a source of trouble from pressure they produce on adjacent teeth or from infection that develops under the gum. Their removal may be necessary.

If you have dental health questions you would like to see answered, please mail them to the address below.

A public service with the aim of promoting a better dental health environment. From the office of: ROBERT A. BURNS, JR., D.D.S., P.C., Chelsea Professional Building, 1200 S. Main St., Chelsea, Phone: 475-9124.

Players Progressing Rapidly In 'South Pacific' Rehearsals

Could you go wrong with "South Pacific"? Admittedly, it wouldn't be easy, but neither is it easy to go particularly right with this musical for those who worship beyond its melody, the never-fading memories of Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza and all.

Well, old faithfuls, rest easy. The Chelsea Players have come up with a winner this time, a new team that will do more than justice to the business on hand and make the memories fade just a little. And, once again, all the suspenseful romancing of the American nurse and the Frenchman, the raucous carryings-on of a bunch of seedy Seabees and the hard-won happy endings will be sure to enjoy along with some of the best Rodgers and Hammerstein songs to stand the test of over-familiarity. Everyone is involved in doing well by this 32-year-old classic, as rehearsals are now in full swing for the July 23-26 production of "South Pacific" under the direction of Jeanette Tracy Brock.

"I don't pretend to know every aspect of the theater," says Brock, "and am continuously looking for a good support team." Part of the team helping to develop a unified stage picture for "South Pacific" is musical director June Warren, choreographer Kathy Schneider, assistant director Brian Myers, and two technical directors, Bart Bauer and Doug Beaumont.

The world famous blend of touching wartime romance and explosive GI humor is accompanied by one of the greatest collections of song hits—14 of them—ever found in one show, and the orchestra for this year's production will be under the expert direction of June Warren.

Warren's involvement in the Chelsea Players in recent years has included her appearances in "Dolly" and last winter's "Vanities" and rehearsal pianist for "Anything Goes" and "Sweet Charity." She was music director for "Bells are Ringing" and last summer's "The King and I." She is director of the Chelsea Community Choir, which she helped organize last fall. Three members of the choir will appear in "South Pacific;" they are Denny Mull, Emily Warden and Joe Diederich, who has the male leading role.

Chelseaites and area residents will be pleased to note that Kathy Schneider, who played the unforgettable Anna in "The King and I" is choreographer for this summer's production.

The youngest of six children in a musical family, Schneider was a member of the Northville Players Guild in her late teens and began her dance training at the age of 17, continuing at Ranzazzo Dance Studio after moving to Ann Arbor. She also danced for a season with Southfield Ballet Co. and has studied voice and classical guitar.

Brian Myers, who was stage manager and technical director for "The King and I" is assistant to Jeanette Brock this year. Myers, who is now a Chelsea resident, has been involved in many shows in Saline with the high school and the Saline Area Players' productions. He graduated from Saline High School in 1979 and during that year, was involved in Saline's "Annie" and "Once Upon a Mattress." He studied acting at Washtenaw Community College in 1980 and, most recently, was technical director for the Chelsea Players' "Vanities."

Director Brock has chosen two most talented technical directors for her production this year. Bart Bauer and Doug Beaumont, both Chelseaites, each have impressive backgrounds in the theater.

Bauer, who also plays the part of Seaman Tom O'Brien in "South Pacific," began his theatrical activities in 1975. He worked on set construction and was a chorus member in the Chelsea Players production of "Oklahoma!" "Carnival" "Dolly," "Anything Goes," and "Bells are Ringing." In 1978, his senior year in high school, he played the

SIGNS AND MUSHROOMS

In the spring, "for-sale" signs pop up like mushrooms after the rain. Many prospective sellers wait until the tulips bloom thinking that their homes will bring a better price in a lush setting.

Spring is not necessarily the best time to sell your house. Perhaps you do not realize that large companies inform their employees of transfers shortly after the first of the year. Consequently, we see many transferees, (some of our finest buyers) before the bloom of spring. Although these people come early in the year, they will gladly wait until the school year ends to make their move to the area.

During the months between notification and the actual move, the buyer is most anxious for the security of an established address in his new town.

If you are thinking of selling your house, we will be happy to give you all the fix-it-up advice you need, if any.

Don't wait for the grass to grow under your feet.

Good Things Growing In Michigan
 By Margaret G. McCall
 The Fourth of July is approaching, and that's what I call our Red, White and Blueberry celebration. Blueberries, one of our good things growing in Michigan, will begin appearing in markets over the July 4th holiday.

Michigan, I'm proud to say, leads the nation in blueberry production, an honor we wrested from New Jersey some years ago. Our farmers harvested 41 million pounds of blueberries in 1980, producing more than 40 percent of the nation's crop, according to statistics from the Michigan Department of Agriculture.
 Friends from the Michigan Blueberry Growers association tell me the 1981 crop will be plentiful throughout the state, whether you buy blueberries at your neighborhood, a roadside market, or your favorite pick-your-own location.
 There are a lot of good things to say about blueberries—they're convenient, low in calories, easy to prepare, and adaptable to many uses. They freeze nicely—just package them, unwashed, in freezer containers. When ready to use, pour out the quantity you need, wash and use.
 Fresh blueberries may be stored in your refrigerator for up to three weeks, for use in blueberry pancakes, cobbler, shortcake, pudding, muffins, pie, and dozens of other recipes.
 Michigan's blueberry industry began more than a half a century ago in the South Haven area, where the National Blueberry Festival July 11-19 gives you a chance to sample a varied assortment of blueberry goodies, compete in contests, admire the Blueberry queen, and even visit some of the surrounding farms where blueberries are grown.
 I think of blueberries as hazy in color, but a more poetic friend describes them as possessing "the silvery bloom of summer skies." Nice, don't you think? And here's a nice easy blueberry recipe.
 Wash and drain 4 cups fresh blueberries, pour into a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Combine ¼ cup flour, ⅓ cup of sugar, dash of salt, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, and 1 cup fresh Michigan whipping cream. Blend well, pour mixture over blueberries. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven about 45 minutes, until lightly browned. Cool, then serve topped with dollops of sweetened whipped cream. Ah, maybe we should name it "My Blue Heaven" pie!

An 11.2 percent compensation rate increase for veterans, their surviving spouses, and children is one of the highlights of VA's proposed FY 1982 budget.

GARDEN SPOT

By Kerry J. Kelly, County Horticultural Agent

GARDEN PESTS ARE GOING STRONG

Question: Our garden last year was filled with bugs and I fear this year will be the same. I know this is a general question, but what are some of the more common garden insects I should watch for at certain times during the year? How might I control them without using chemicals?

Answer: Knowing what insects are common to certain crops and when they are expected to be a problem can help you in controlling them. Whether you use chemical controls or not, checking your garden at regular intervals for feeding damage and the actual insect themselves, is a key activity.

Tomatoes, Peppers and Eggplants

At the present time you should be checking tomatoes, peppers and eggplants for Colorado potato beetle. This is a bright red, yellow and black-striped beetle that feeds on the foliage and growing tips of plants. There are as many as two to three generations in a season. If they are large, they can easily be picked off of plants and disposed of, or controlled chemically if necessary.

The tomato hornworm is a large (3 to 4 inches long) green worm with white bars on its sides and a short horn near the end. These caterpillars are ravenous foliage feeders and some people even claim you can hear them chomping in the garden at night (an experience I've never had). Pick them off by hand or use Dipel or Thuricide. These are organic products which control only the caterpillar stage of insects that feed on foliage. They contain a bacteria which is parasitic to caterpillars and eventually kills them. Be patient though, as these products do not react immediately to kill the caterpillar—they take time.

Cabbage, Broccoli and Cauliflower (Cole Crops)
The cabbage worm and cabbage looper are two common caterpillar pests in cole crops and in lettuce. Both are green and feed on the foliage causing large holes in the leaves. The cabbage worm appears in early June and has three to four generations in a season. Cabbage looper first appears in mid to late July and can have two to three generations in a year. An easy way to tell them apart is that the looper lifts its middle like an inchworm when it crawls; the cabbage worm doesn't. Pick these off by hand or use Dipel or Thuricide while they're present and feeding.

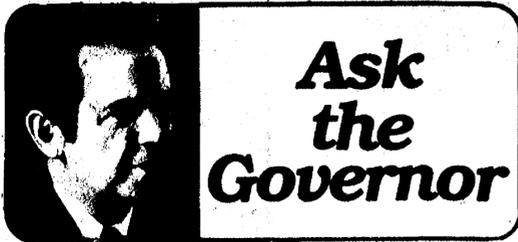

Aphids are common insects on leafy crops and on most any other vegetable as well. These tiny insects about the size of a pinhead or larger are usually present by mid-June and can be found throughout most of the season. They suck the juices out of the leaves and can cause wilting to occur, especially during dry periods. Aphids, however, do not normally cause a great deal of damage unless there is a rather large population. If there appears to be no damage from their presence, then ignore them.

Cucumbers, Melons, Squash and Pumpkins

The striped cucumber beetle is out and feeding right now. Feeding can occur on young emerging sprouts or more commonly, on the foliage. Large populations can stunt the plants and sometimes kill them. In addition, these insects are carriers of a disease called bacterial wilt which can cause the wilting and death of these plants. Pick them off if possible (this will probably prove difficult). Short of this method, spraying is the only other means of control.

For specific chemical controls in the home garden, you may wish to contact the Extension Office and obtain a copy of "Home Vegetable Garden Disease and Insect Control," E-760 (b) for $3.00 a copy. Remember, early detection is essential for effective control.

Questions for Garden Spot may be sent to: Co-operative Extension Service, P. O. Box 8645, Ann Arbor 48107.

Ask the Governor

Question: I heard a lot about how successful your Conference on Agriculture was, but not a word about what specific recommendations were made help Michigan farmers.

Governor: The conference members—leaders of farm organizations, agri-business and forest industries, and agricultural research—pointed out that the growth potential for agriculture in Michigan is enormous. Among the recommendations which will be carefully considered are:

—Expansion of Michigan's processing capabilities including modern meat packing facilities, a soybean processing plant, development of an anhydrous ammonia fertilizer facility, and attraction of a hard cheese processing unit.

—Increased awareness of agriculture's contributions to our economy and its potential for growth.

—Preservation of Michigan's natural resources including prime agricultural land and the proper management of Michigan's water resources.

—A strengthening of agricultural programs to assure the technical and scientific progress provided by agricultural research and development.

—An expansion of funding for agricultural cooperative extension service which must translate research developments to commercial agriculture.

—A desire for joint efforts between government and the private sector to expand market potentials.

—Improvement of Michigan's transportation network to facilitate the shipment of commodities nationally and internationally.

—Establishment of a council or committee to facilitate effective communication between the farm sector and governmental agencies in adopting and enforcing regulation.

—Review and revision of Michigan's taxation on agricultural business.

—Establishment of a task force to review all labor laws pertaining to the agricultural industry.

Question: I've heard you talking on television about cutting back on government spending. What have you done to cut spending in state government this year?

Governor: Michigan is one of the few states with a constitutional ban on indebtedness for operating purposes and also a constitutional limit on growth of state revenues. Therefore, because we are required to have a balanced budget and revenues have declined during the last year, we reduced state programs by more than $1 billion and the number of state employees by 6,700.

Question: I live in Michigan and have relatives in Wisconsin. It's a lot easier to take the boat to Wisconsin than drive through Chicago, but I heard it has been cancelled.

Governor: The Ludington to Milwaukee ferry has been discontinued over the winter months, but the legislature recently restored funds for daily passenger and auto service for the summer months. The Chessie System's "Badger" will make one round trip daily, leaving Ludington at 9 a.m. and returning by 10:30 p.m. A one-way trip takes about six hours, so the schedule allows for an hour-and-a-half stay at Milwaukee.

This demonstration project is expected to boost the Ludington area's tourist economy and return to work about 36 crewmen laid off last October when the Chessie System abandoned its Ludington-Milwaukee service. As part of the demonstration project, the state Department of Transportation plans to assist in the Ann Arbor railroad to improve cross-lake passenger service at Frankfort/Elberta.

Passenger and auto service across Lake Michigan is now operated by the Chessie System from Ludington to Keweenaw and Manitowoc, Wisconsin and the Ann Arbor railroad from Frankfort/Elberta to Keweenaw and Manitowoc.

Question: Michigan never seems to get its share of federal dollars. With more money going to defense, will any of those dollars come to Michigan or will they go to the sunbelt as usual?

Governor: We are making efforts to assure that more defense dollars will come to Michigan. The state and local chambers of commerce have co-sponsored workshops for small businesses on how to secure federal contracts. Another seminar will be held in Traverse City on June 25. Business representatives who attend these procurement seminars have an opportunity to meet the top experts in military and other federal government agencies and learn how to bid on government business.

Many small businesses in Michigan are geared to automotive supply and it is relatively easy for them to bid on many of the Defense Department's needs. For example, one federal purchasing agency recently issued a bid list specifically for small businesses for everything from pumps, gears and valves to wiring harnesses, pulleys and couplings. The needs are there and will be filled by small business somewhere in the nation. The challenge is to determine which jobs Michigan business can effectively and efficiently bid on.

In addition to the Traverse City conference on June 25 (call 616-946-5650, ext. 398 for information), a Mid-Michigan Federal Procurement Conference will be held on June 29 at the Kellogg Center at Michigan State University, East Lansing. For information, call 517-373-3533.

If you have a question for the Governor, please send it to: Ask the Governor, Executive Office, Press Section, Lansing 48909.

Revenue for Transportation Systems Plummeted by 27%

Washtenaw county upped its expenditures by $30,158 following the census adjustment. The first quarter of 1980 allowed for a total of $1,895,413 while, during a similar time span, the 1981 figure was $1,350,769.

Comparing state revenue shares in cities, Ann Arbor saw a census adjustment of $129,027. First quarter expenditures this year reveal that Ann Arbor spent a total of $611,099 while a total of $802,609 was allowed for during the same time frame last year.

Figures from 1980 show that the village of Chelsea had a total of $29,897 distributed during the first quarter of last year. A $2,954 census adjustment was made and first quarter expenditures this year total $22,139.

Dexter lost a total of $834 in the census adjustment while receiving a total of $10,175 for the first quarter of 1981. This is in comparison to the same time period last year when a total of $14,696 was allotted for road repairs.

Grass Lake was awarded $8,108 thus far this year as compared to $11,423 during the first quarter of 1980. A $109 census adjustment was also made.

Manchester was given a $1,964 census adjustment this year and had been allotted a total of $12,497 for the first quarter of 1981. This is a $4,000-plus decrease over the 1980 figure of $16,746.

New Books at McKune Library

Broadening its already large collection of reading materials, McKune Memorial Library has added seven new books to its shelves. These books range from romantic novels to yet another diet plan manual.

The Officers Wives by Thomas Fleming covers times ranging from occupied Germany and Japan in the 1950's to the steamy chaos of Saigon and Bangkok in the 1960's in a global drama about the U.S. Army. It is a story of Americans trying to live personal lives, to cling to touchstones of faith and hope in the grip of the blind, blunderous history of the last 25 years.

Monique High has created a romantic novel in Encore. Set in the special world of Russian ballet during the years prior to and during World War I, Encore is the poignant story of young Natalia Obolonova's struggle to become a great ballerina and of the two men whose love for her creates bitter and turbulent passions.

James Herriot, the author of All Things Bright and Beautiful, All Creatures Great and Small and All Things Wise and Wonderful completes the verse with the long awaited The Lord God Made Them All. The world's beloved storyteller once again brings the reader the magical beauty of Yorkshire, the joys and sorrows of its inhabitants.

Sally Emerson has created an interesting novel in The Second Sight of Jennifer Hamilton. Ever so often in fiction, a character comes along to capture anew the rhythms of an adolescent's uncertain passage toward adulthood. Few, though, are caught up in a bizarre murder trial and fewer still find themselves using psychic powers to escape reality.

The Devil's Voyage by Jack Chalker is a fast-paced novel based on the story of the U.S.S. Indianapolis, the ship that carried the atomic bomb from San Francisco to the Pacific island from which it was launched.

Allen Drury offers the reader a tense and powerful story in The Hill of Summer. This novel presents the ultimate clash of minds, purpose and ultimate national aims represented by the unyielding and grimly determined new leader of the Soviet Union and the farm-born, easy going and grandfatherly new President of the United States.

Finally, the new additions to the McKune Library collection is The Pritikin Permanent Weight-Loss Manual by Nathan Pritikin. This diet plan addresses the questions so often associated with weight loss. Do you want to lose some weight and keep it off? Do you enjoy eating? Do you regard crash diets with suspicion? Do you want to be slim and healthy for the rest of your life? If your answers are yes, this book has been written for you. This is a complete, step-by-step plan for weight loss, good health and good eating.

McKune Memorial Library has these and numberable other selections from which the summer reader may choose to borrow, take to the beach, take under a tree or just take home.

GARDEN SPOT

By Kerry J. Kelly, County Horticultural Agent

GARDEN PESTS ARE GOING STRONG

Question: Our garden last year was filled with bugs and I fear this year will be the same. I know this is a general question, but what are some of the more common garden insects I should watch for at certain times during the year? How might I control them without using chemicals?

Answer: Knowing what insects are common to certain crops and when they are expected to be a problem can help you in controlling them. Whether you use chemical controls or not, checking your garden at regular intervals for feeding damage and the actual insect themselves, is a key activity.

Tomatoes, Peppers and Eggplants

At the present time you should be checking tomatoes, peppers and eggplants for Colorado potato beetle. This is a bright red, yellow and black-striped beetle that feeds on the foliage and growing tips of plants. There are as many as two to three generations in a season. Since they are large, they can easily be picked off of plants and disposed of, or controlled chemically if necessary.

The tomato hornworm is a large (3 to 4 inches long) green worm with white bars on its sides and a short horn near the end. These caterpillars are voracious foliage feeders and some people even claim you can hear them chomping in the garden at night (an experience I've never had). Pick them off by hand or use Dipel or Thuricide. These are organic products which control only the caterpillar stage of insects that feed on foliage. They contain a bacteria which is parasitic to caterpillars and eventually kills them. Be patient though, as these products do not react immediately to kill the caterpillar—they take time.

Cabbage, Broccoli and Cauliflower (Cole Crops)

The cabbage worm and cabbage looper are two common caterpillar pests in cole crops and in lettuce. Both are green and feed on the foliage causing large holes in the leaves. The cabbage worm appears in early June and has three to four generations in a season. Cabbage looper first appears in mid to late July and can have two to three generations in a year. An easy way to tell them apart is that the looper lifts its middle like an inchworm when it crawls; the cabbage worm doesn't. Pick these off by hand or use Dipel or Thuricide while they're present and feeding.

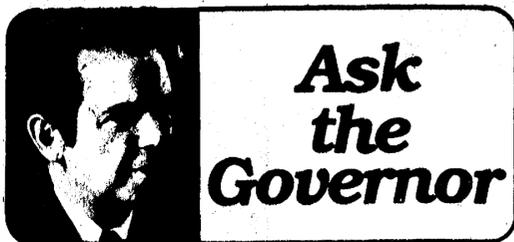

Aphids are common insects on leafy crops and on most any other vegetable as well. These tiny insects about the size of a pinhead or larger are usually present by mid-June and can be found throughout most of the season. They suck the juices out of the leaves and can cause wilting to occur, especially during dry periods. Aphids, however, do not normally cause a great deal of damage unless there is a rather large population. If there appears to be no damage from their presence, then ignore them.

Cucumbers, Melons, Squash and Pumpkins

The striped cucumber beetle is out and feeding right now. Feeding can occur on young emerging sprouts or more commonly, on the foliage. Large populations can stunt the plants and sometimes kill them. In addition, these insects are carriers of a disease called bacterial wilt which can cause the wilting and death of these plants. Pick them off if possible (this will probably prove difficult). Short of this method, spraying is the only other means of control.

For specific chemical controls in the home garden, you may wish to contact the Extension Office and obtain a copy of "Home Vegetable Garden Disease and Insect Control," E-760 (b) for 30¢ a copy. Remember, early detection is essential for effective control.

Questions for Garden Spot may be sent to: Co-operative Extension Service, P. O. Box 8645, Ann Arbor 48107.

Ask the Governor

Question: I heard a lot about how successful your Conference on Agriculture was, but not a word about what specific recommendations were made help Michigan farmers.

Governor: The conference members—leaders of farm organizations, agri-business and forest industries, and agricultural research—pointed out that the growth potential for agriculture in Michigan is enormous. Among the recommendations which will be carefully considered are:

- Expansion of Michigan's processing capabilities including modern meat packing facilities, a soybean processing plant, development of an anhydrous ammonia fertilizer facility, and attraction of a hard cheese processing unit.

- Increased awareness of agriculture's contributions to our economy and its potential for growth.

- Preservation of Michigan's natural resources including prime agricultural land and the proper management of Michigan's water resources.

- A strengthening of agricultural programs to assure the technical and scientific progress provided by agricultural research and development.

- An expansion of funding for agricultural cooperative extension service which must translate research developments to commercial agriculture.

- A desire for joint efforts between government and the private sector to expand market potentials.

- Improvement of Michigan's transportation network to facilitate the shipment of commodities nationally and internationally.

- Establishment of a council or committee to facilitate effective communication between the farm sector and governmental agencies in adopting and enforcing regulation.

- Review and revision of Michigan's taxation of agricultural business.

- Establishment of a task force to review all labor laws pertaining to the agricultural industry.

Question: I've heard you talking on television about cutting back on government spending. What have you done to cut spending in state government this year?

Governor: Michigan is one of the few states with a constitutional ban on indebtedness for operating purposes and also a constitutional limit on growth of state revenues. Therefore, because we are required to have a balanced budget and revenues have declined during the last year, we reduced state programs by more than $1 billion and the number of state employees by 6,700.

Question: I live in Michigan and have relatives in Wisconsin. It's a lot easier to take the boat to Wisconsin than drive through Chicago, but I heard it has been cancelled.

Governor: The Ludington to Milwaukee ferry has been discontinued over the winter months, but the legislature recently restored funds for daily passenger and auto service for the summer months. The Chessie System's "Badger" will make one round trip daily, leaving Ludington at 9 a.m. and returning by 10:30 p.m. A one-way trip takes about six hours, so the schedule allows for an hour-and-a-half stay at Milwaukee.

This demonstration project is expected to boost the Ludington area's tourist economy and return to work about 36 crewmen laid off last October when the Chessie System abandoned its Ludington-Milwaukee service. As part of the demonstration project, the state Department of Transportation plans to assist in the Ann Arbor railroad to improve cross-lake passenger service at Frankfort/Elberta.

Passenger and auto service across Lake Michigan is now operated by the Chessie System from Ludington to Keweenaw and Manitowoc, Wisconsin and the Ann Arbor railroad from Frankfort/Elberta to Keweenaw and Manitowoc.

Question: Michigan never seems to get its share of federal dollars. With more money going to defense, will any of those dollars come to Michigan or will they go to the sunbelt as usual?

Governor: We are making efforts to assure that more defense dollars will come to Michigan. The state and local chambers of commerce have co-sponsored workshops for small businesses on how to secure federal contracts. Another seminar will be held in Traverse City on June 25. Business representatives who attend these procurement seminars have an opportunity to meet the top experts in military and other federal government agencies and learn how to bid on government business.

Many small businesses in Michigan are geared to automotive supply and it is relatively easy for them to bid on many of the Defense Department's needs. For example, one federal purchasing agency recently issued a bid list specifically for small businesses for everything from pumps, gears and valves to wiring harnesses, pulleys and couplings. The needs are there and will be filled by small business somewhere in the nation. The challenge is to determine which jobs Michigan business can effectively and efficiently bid on.

In addition to the Traverse City conference on June 25 (call 616-946-5650, ext. 398 for information), a Mid-Michigan Federal Procurement Conference will be held on June 29 at the Kellogg Center at Michigan State University, East Lansing. For information, call 517-373-3533.

If you have a question for the Governor, please send it to: Ask the Governor, Executive Office, Press Section, Lansing 48909.
