ONE HUNDRED-THIRTEENTH YEAR—No. 26

CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1982

CHRISTMAS MUSIC resounds through all the schools now as different vocal, band, and orchestral groups prepare for the school's Christmas music spectacular Tuesday, Dec. 14 at the high school. The Contemporaries, a 15-voice close harmony group, will join two other choirs for two "Messiah" selections and also sing "Winter Is On Its Way" and "Velvet Shoes." The group has a busy Christmas

School Music Groups Plan Joint Christmas Spectacular

Chelsea schools will combine all musical performances into their first big Christmas fanfare 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14 at Chelsea High school gymnasium.

Choirs, bands and orchestras, 11 in all, from Beach Middle and the high school will play in a "collage" performance—such as a junior high choir, followed by a high school band, followed by an orchestra, said Bill Gourley, chairman of the music department. Each group will perform about two selections with some group numbers.

That gives variety to the concert, he said. The music department decided to combine all events in one night, so there would be fewer conflicts for relatives and friends of musicians and for ease of school scheduling in the busy Christmas season.

The evening will begin with something Christmasy, said Gourley, "to get everyone charged up—a Christmas curtain raiser," but the exact schedule has not yet been set.

The high school Contemporaries, a close-harmony group of 15 girls, the SATB choir (soprano, alto, tenor and bass) and the SSA choir (first and second sopranos, altos) will join with the symphony orchestra for two selections from Handel's "Messiah," the "Hallelujah Chorus" and "For Unto Us a Child Is Born." That will be a total of 150 voices directed by Tammy Barbret, schools vocal director.

The Contemporaries will sing "Winter Is On Its Way" and "Velvet Shoes." One selection the SSA will sing is "Stars." A group of male voices from the SATB will sing "Masters in This Hall." The 60-voice Beach school choir of seventh and eighth graders will sing "Wintertime Aglow" and "Three Songs for Christmas." The 18-voice Beach small ensemble will sing "Christmas in a Small Town" and "Share Some Love."

Beach school seventh grade band will play "Merry Bells of Christmas" and "Tinsel and Holly." The eighth grade band will be choosing some selections soon, said Warren Mayer, Beach band director. "It will be something Christmasy or wintery."

The high school freshman concert band will play "Jingle Bell Rhapsody" and "Variations on a Folk Song" by Dmitri Kabalevsky, said Gourley, high school band director. The symphony band will play "American Overture for Band" by J. W. Wilcox and another number.

Both the high school and middle school orchestras will also play.

The evening will end with sing-along carols.

South School Book Fair Set For Saturday

Parent Teacher South school is sponsoring a book fair for families and friends of children to buy books which will become treasures to young readers 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4 in the South school cafeteria.

Prices for elementary, pre-school and special education books, puzzles, flash cards and activity books will range from 99 cents to $3.99. Free gift wrapping will be available.

Suzuki piano students will perform at 10:30 a.m. Cartoons will be shown at 11 a.m., noon and 1 p.m. in the music room.

Dexter Township Home Burglarized Over Week-End

Nearly $5,000 worth of property was stolen from a house at 4828 Dexter-Pinckney Rd., Dexter township, over the week-end, the sheriff's department reports. How the burglars entered the home is undetermined.

Listed as missing were a television set, TV game-player, shotgun, camera and accessories, micro-wave oven, power saw, stereo and speakers, and miscellaneous smaller items.

Merchants Offering Extra Shopping Hours For Christmas Season

Chelsea Merchants will kick-off the Christmas shopping season with the annual community sing at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 13 at Sylvan Township Hall.

Choirs from the elementary, middle and high schools will sing, and those attending may join in on some sing-along carols.

Santa Claus will be waiting for children with Christmas wishes from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4 in the Longworth Building. He will walk the streets Saturdays, Dec. 11 and 18.

This year Chelsea Merchants, a division of the Chamber of Commerce, are sponsoring a free trip to Toronto for two. Stores will have coupons, and all a customer needs to do is fill in his name and address. That lucky person will have train travel from Windsor, two nights at the Westin Hotel, and $100 spending money. The name will be announced the evening of Dec. 22. You may enter as many times as you wish. No purchase is necessary.

Many stores will begin late hours the night of the community sing, staying open until 10 p.m. Stores will be open until 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14 through Saturday, Dec. 18 and Monday, Dec. 20 through Thursday, Dec. 23. Sunday, Dec. 19 they will be open noon to 5 p.m. On Christmas Eve many stores will be open until 5 p.m. Check with particular stores you may be interested in for what hours they will observe.

Plenty of parking will be available downtown, and many stores offer free gift wrapping.

Methodist Church Has Minor Fire

Fire broke out in the Chelsea Methodist church during worship services last Sunday morning but was extinguished by village firemen with only minor damage.

Assistant fire chief Larry Koch said the fire started in a light fixture, which apparently overheated, and spread to insulation in the ceiling. The alarm was given and the church evacuated.

"It's a good thing it happened when it did," Koch said, "because the fire was noticed right away and we were able to get there and put it out before much damage was done. Otherwise, it could have been pretty serious."

Another Deer Hit By Car in Village Limits

With the firearm season now ended, harried deer may quit coming into town to escape the pressure, although bow hunters will keep after them through Jan. 1.

The latest deer-car collision inside the Chelsea village limits occurred at 7:15 p.m. last Friday (Continued on page two)

No Damage Results from Overheated Furnace

What might have been a major loss was averted last Friday night as a fire at the Chelsea Lanes bowling establishment, 1180 S. Main St., literally put itself out before much damage was done.

The village fire department was called out at 6:27 p.m. in response to an alarm reporting a strong smell of smoke. Four trucks and 18 men rushed to the scene.

They found that the furnace in the building had overheated and ignited insulation in the nearby ceiling and walls. When the furnace was turned off, the fire-resistant insulation quit burning and the fire was out.

The premises were evacuated and late bowling leagues cancelled while firemen put in portable fans and ventilated the building to get rid of smoke.

Chelsea Lanes remained closed Saturday morning while repairs to the furnace were made, but reopened later in the day.

Mrs. Edwin F. Greenleaf of 633 S. Main St., wife of the owner of the business, said the reason for the temporary closure was not so much the smoke but cold outside temperatures which made it uncomfortable for people to bowl while the furnace was not working.

The fire department recorded it as a "no damage" fire, but there was some loss of receipts because of the bowling shutdown on Friday night and Saturday.

Festival of Lessons, Carols Is Scheduled

Have you always sung along to recordings of the "Messiah," yearned to be in a big choir performing this Christmas masterpiece, but been too shy to try out for choir?

You'll get your chance at this year's sixth annual Festival of Lessons and Carols. The service put on by area churches to help prepare those attending for the Advent season, will be at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12 at Zion Lutheran church, 3050 S. Fletcher Rd., Rogers Corners.

This type of service originated more than 50 years ago at Kings College Chapel, England. Chelsea's version includes Scripture readings, the Chelsea High school Contemporaries, a 15-girl singing group; a combined children's choir, and a combined adult choir.

Anyone who would like to sing "Messiah" selections, "Glory to God" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" is invited to the two rehearsals, at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12 at Zion church. Mrs. Pat Stirling, who will direct that portion of the program, asks that anyone who has their own "Messiah" score to bring it along.

Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship is sponsoring the event. Festival committee members include the Rev. Marvin McCallum, chairman; Mrs. June Warren, Mrs. Marjorie Beaumont, and the Rev. John Morris.

SHE'S 104 YEARS OLD: Mrs. Leno Doty was 104 years old last Sunday, Nov. 28, and is believed to be the oldest living resident of Washtenaw county. She lives at the Chelsea Methodist Retirement Home, 908 W. Middle St. Although confined to a wheelchair, Mrs. Doty is in generally good health and good spirits considering her years, home officials say. She was born on Nov. 28, 1878, which happened to be Thanksgiving Day that year.

SAVED AND SAVIOR: Michele Rea (left), a registered nurse at Chelsea Community Hospital, swallowed some food the wrong way in the hospital dining room last week, and was choking when Tessie Warrens (right) came to her rescue. Mrs. Warrens performed the "Heimlich maneuver" to dislodge the obstruction. Nurse Rea credits Mrs. Warrens with saving her life.

Nurse's Aide Saves Choking Friend's Life

"She saved my life. There is no doubt about it. I had passed out. I couldn't talk, I couldn't see, and I couldn't breathe. I was choking to death. I could hear a little bit and was thinking what it was going to be like to die. Then Tessie saved me."

That is how Michele Rea, 26, of Ann Arbor, a registered nurse at Chelsea Community Hospital, describes her experience in the hospital dining room last week when she choked on a piece of food and was rescued by nurse's aide Tessie Warrens, 46, of Munith.

"The two of us went to dinner together as we often do," Michelle said. "We work together, and we like and respect each other."

"We sat down at a back table and were eating tacos, and all of a sudden I got something stuck in my throat and choked. I was sure I was dying, and grabbed onto Tessie. She hit me three times on the back and then squeezed me around the waist. The food came up, and in a few seconds I was all right."

What Mrs. Warrens performed was the so-called "Heimlich maneuver," which she has been trained to do as part of her duties as a nurse's aide.

"I've been taking that training (in the Heimlich maneuver) every year during the 13 years that I've worked at the hospital," Tessie Warrens said. "Every year they bring you back for a refresher course."

"I'll be honest and tell you that I began to get a little tired of it, because I never had to do it and began to wonder if there was any use for it. Now I know better. I'm thankful that I was trained and ready when the time came. I'll never miss another class."

Mrs. Warrens asked that nurse Marti Schneider be given credit for helping in the life-saving effort. "She saw what was happening and ran over to assist," was the way she put it.

As for Michele Rea, she is now a profound believer in the practice of what she preaches. "I have been teaching the Heimlich maneuver to others during the 1½ years I've been working at the hospital, but it never occurred to me that I might need to have it performed on myself.

"According to the book, people most likely to choke on food are those who are eating meat in large bites, talking and drinking alcohol, all at the same time. I wasn't doing any of those things, and I still choked. That should be a lesson to the public. It can happen to anybody at any time."

Nurse Rea also teaches cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). At her age it is unlikely she will need it any time soon, but she is now more conscious of the risk and urges everyone to take available courses in how to administer the emergency treatment.

"You just never know what is going to happen when," she said, "and when an emergency does arise, having someone close by who knows what to do can mean the difference between life and death. I was absolutely terrified when I choked, and I couldn't help myself. If Tessie hadn't been there, and done the right thing, I might not be here talking to you."

The two women are now closer friends than ever.

The second annual Festival of Lessons and Carols, a community service to prepare those attending for the Advent-Christmas season, will be held Dec. 10 at First United Methodist church. Special features include a string group, a youth bell choir, a combined children's choir and a combined adult choir.

"When not in use, cut the juice," the school's new battle cry in the war against power costs, is working—at least in the elementary and middle schools and the school bus garage. The high school has increased its energy consumption, which school officials attribute to longer building hours for Community Education evening classes and an expanded sports program.

Chelsea Jaycees are sponsoring a blood bank clinic Dec. 16, because Christmas is a time of many traffic accidents.

A sudden-death 14-13 overtime loss to High Point school put Chelsea special olympians in second place for the Dec. 1 tournament, but they still qualify for the state floor hockey tournament Dec. 16 in Flint.

The "bumper crop" of deer who met their maker by hitting cars this month is fast approaching the 100 mark county-wide, said Donley Boyer, state conservation officer. Half of those were in the western part of the county with I-94 and North Territorial Rd. frequent accident sites. Four were hit Friday night and three Sunday night in this area.

Chelsea High school wrestling team will begin defending its state regional and conference titles Tuesday night against Willow Run, who wants to revenge last year's 39-12 loss to the Bulldogs. Chelsea wrestlers will be led by co-captains Mike Gaken and Kerry Kargel, who both took seconds in the state AAU meet.

FUNERAL HOME

SEEK OUT A PROFESSIONAL!

"It is a truism in the legal profession that the vast majority of widows lose a substantial part of an uncontrolled bequest within seven years." So states Ms. Theresa Morse in her book, "Life is for the Living."

She points out that a team of experts (a lawyer, accountant, and investment counselor) can provide the professional advice that well-meaning friends and relatives simply cannot. All of us may need some or all of that "team." Ms. Morse counsels a widow, especially, to seek out a lawyer with whom she can communicate frankly and comfortably. He must be "right" for her, and he and the other counselors must earn her confidence and trust. Only through this trust can they help chart her short and long-range courses of action.

So, too, must we earn your trust. You should be comfortable discussing your funeral wishes with us. As with your lawyer, we conduct our affairs on a professional level. We want you to consider us as members of your "team," ready to help make pre-planned arrangements or provide information in advance of need.

Reports Say PBB Threat Over
Declaring that Michigan's problem with PBB contamination are "now behind us," Department of Agriculture Director Dean Pridgeon issued the department's last report under the PBB testing act which was allowed to expire earlier this fall.

The report, in outlining the range of activities the department undertook during the five-year life of the law, said its test to check for PBB residual contamination in milk and meat would continue for the foreseeable future.

According to the final report, there are some 377 dairy cattle on six residual contamination farms that have some traces of PBB.

Only 89 of those would approach the 20 parts per billion level outlawed by the expired state act and the report added, the PBB levels in those 89 cows are steadily decreasing.

In the last several months the controversy over PBB has been renewed when a Detroit news article questioned the confidence of government officials that PBB was no longer a major threat to the public health.

In the five years the act has been in place the state has spent some $16.2 million in testing animals and milk, cleaning up contaminated areas, conducting research and promoting Michigan agricultural products, the report concluded.

During the life of the act, more than 104,000 cattle were tested, finding nearly 2,300 with excessive PBB levels, along with 3,700 other livestock animals.

Further, 13 farms with residual contamination were cleaned.

State Budget Problems Continue
Governor William G. Milliken may not be able to end his current term, without facing another budget crisis.

State officials no longer disagree that the current budget will take in less money than it spends, but Management and Budget Director Gerald Miller said it is too early to determine how large the deficit is.

He, however, recommended waiting to resolve the deficit until February when holiday sales revenue is reported, but said he would work with legislative Democrats if they want to resolve it before year's end.

Milliken's last four-year term has been marked with continuing costs and declining revenues bring about budget crises after budget crisis. With the fall

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Clem Webster reported to the fellers at the country store Saturday night that he had saw where the Internal Revenue Service has come up with a "EZ income tax form" that anybody that can endorse his paycheck can figure out, but only single folks can use. That figgers, Clem said, since them smart enough to stay single ain't the ones that need help.

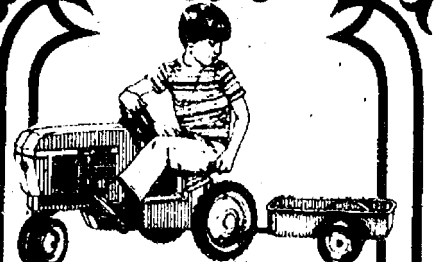

The IRS, like ever other Government outfit, is allus fixing the part that ain't broke. It ain't the forms we need help filling out that's eating us ordinary taxpayers alive, he declared, it's what we got to send in with em. Clem said he don't know nothing about IRS rules and he gets that mixed up, but he knows tax laws are wrote by and fer folks looking fer ways to wiggle out of carrying their share of the load.

What this country needs is laws that treat everybody fair, and that goes fer tax laws, Clem declared. The high powered accountants and lawyers that keeps folks with money from paying any of it in taxes don't need forms that's easy to read, Clem said, they can find the loopholes and shelters in the hard ones jest fine.

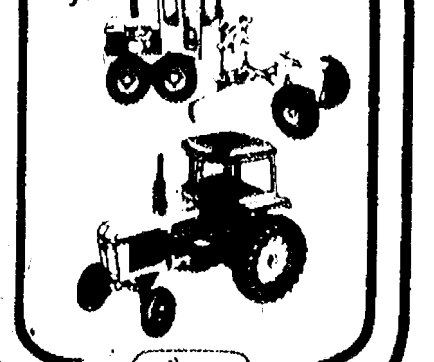

The fellers were general agreed with Clem, but Zeke Grubb was of a mind that the IRS works on the forms because that's all it has any hope of changing. Practical speaking, Zeke said, tax dodging is bigger business than tax collecting, and it's got a heap more pull with Congress. Zeke had saw where the real good revenue agents have decided they can't lick the dodgers so they're joining em. A sharp accountant, Zeke went on, can git more revenue juggling the books fer the rich than checking the books of the rich fer the IRS, so a lot of em are going over to the other side.

What this means, Zeke said, is sloppy work by IRS agents that can't git better jobs and more

As a wage earner, you can deposit up to $2,000 of your wages in an IRA. $2,250 if your spouse is unemployed and $4,000 if both you and your spouse are wage earners. By deducting the amount you deposit in an IRA from your earned income, you pay a lot less tax now and may well fall in a lower tax bracket.

Not only is your IRA investment tax sheltered, the interest earned is tax deferred until retirement. Your IRA account will continue to earn interest on interest, year after year, assuring you of the funds needed for a happy retirement.

Every wage earner, every self employed person, everyone married to a wage earner or self employed person is eligible for an IRA.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest and tax penalty for early withdrawal.

Christmas Breads Workshop Set By Home Economists

Want to give gifts from your kitchen this holiday season and still be a calorie watcher? Give Christmas breads, instead of cookies and candies. They are more nutritious, have fewer calories, cost less and are easy to make.

Helen Fairman and Marion Prince, home economists with Co-operative Extension Service will demonstrate the versatility of breads at a public program Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the County Service Center, 4133 Washtenaw, Ann Arbor. Two sessions will be held; at 10-11:30 a.m. and 7:30-9 p.m. There is a charge of $2 payable at the door, to cover the cost of food for tasting. The programs will be held in the Co-operative Extension Service building, distinguished by the red square symbol sign near the roof. Pre-registration is required; call 973-9510 to reserve a place.

Three types of yeast dough will be demonstrated: refrigerator dough, basic roll dough and commercial frozen dough. See how different fillings and shapes can convert plain dough into a festive treat. Compare preparation time and cost of various breads and learn how to freeze now for later enjoyment.

Police Dept. Has Service of Volunteer Tracking Dog

PETE AND JAKE, A GOOD PAIR: Chelsea patrolman Pete Graves proudly shows off Jake, his Golden Retriever male dog that has qualified for tracking duty with the Chelsea police department.

Patrolman Graves Praised by Chief

Meet Jake, the newest member of the Chelsea police department. He has no last name and works for nothing except pats on the head and words of encouragement and praise, plus his daily food and water.

Jake is a 3½-year-old pedigree and registered male Golden Retriever, Chelsea's first tracking dog. He may be the best bargain the village ever got.

Patrolman Pete Graves owns Jake and volunteered him for duty. On his own time and spending his own money, Graves has had the dog trained to track to the point where Jake is now ready for service on some kinds of police work that policemen just can't do because their sense of smell isn't good enough.

Jake's job will be to follow tracks of people who need to be found for one reason or another. They may be lost children, lost hunters, escaped convicts, accident victims who have wandered off in a daze, or persons hiding out in buildings.

"We've never had a tracking dog in our department before,"

Police Chief Robert Aeillo said, "and there have been many times when we could have used one. The sheriff's department has dogs, and we have called on them for help, but by the time they can get here from Ann Arbor the trail is often too cold for a dog to pick up and follow. They should be put on the track within half an hour to be most effective."

"I happened to remark in the office one day that it was too bad we didn't have a dog of our own. Pete Graves spoke up and said he had a dog that might work out. He deserves a lot of credit for volunteering. The cost of having the dog trained and the many hours of practice Pete has put in haven't cost the village a cent."

"That's what I call dedication." Jake was put into the hands of Ed and Maralyn Wight of Clinton for training. Golden Retrievers are keen-nosed dogs, bred to find and bring back gamebirds and animals for hunters. Their hunting instinct is so strong, in fact, that a big problem is to break them from chasing off on game trails which leave stronger scents than human tracks do.

Jake had an advantage in that Graves had never used him for hunting. The Wights worked with him for several weeks and taught him to follow the scent of people. Ed Wight has been an American Kennel Club tracking judge since 1977, and Maralyn qualified two years ago. They own two Golden Retrievers that have won both American and Canadian advanced tracking dog titles.

The police department's latest recruit is definitely not an "attack dog." He is as friendly as you would ever want a four-footed friend to be. When he finds the person he has been assigned to look for, he wags his tail and waits to be petted.

"We don't need an attack dog in Chelsea, and I don't want one around," Aeillo said. "This dog is terrific around people, especially kids. We will take him to school safety programs and maybe put on demonstrations. Children will love him."

"Jake is going to help us a lot, in a lot of ways. He gives us another service to provide to the public, and he probably will save us some money. When we have to do a ground search, we will be able to call on a dog and a handler instead of a lot of people who have to work by sight rather than scent."

"I can't say enough about Pete Graves, he has given us something we just haven't had before. His interest in the department and the community is certainly commendable, and he's done it all on his own."

Pete Graves, meanwhile, is kind of humble about the whole thing.

"I didn't know whether Jake could make it or not, but I thought it was worth a try," he says. "Jake has done very well. I just hope I can do as well in handling him. He's a great dog, and I love him."

That kind of rapport between dog and handler is what makes tracking teams work. Jake and Pete will be protected by armed officers while on the trail of potentially dangerous, armed persons, Aeillo promises.

TAKING THE TRACK: Pete Graves sends Jake away on the trail of a Standard reporter who took off on a zig-zag half-mile track to test the dog's ability.

Jake Found Me...

By Bill Mullendore

What does a tracking dog do when put to the test?

He tracks, and tracks, and tracks until he eventually finds what he's looking for.

I put Jake, the Chelsea police department's new tracking dog, on trial last week, and he came through with flying colors.

Dressed in field clothes, including rubber-bottomed boots which leave little scent, I walked a zig-zag trail through a weedy field, cut back onto a bare-dirt road, dodged in and out of a swale, ducked into a thicket of trees, made a couple of swerves, and sat down on a fallen log where I was well hidden.

Then I used the hand-held radio loaned to me by Chelsea police patrolman Pete Graves and told him to come find me.

Pete was working with Jake. The dog wore a chest harness to which was attached a 30-foot cord that Pete held on the other end.

"Along on this test of the dog's ability was Steve Worley, Standard photographer who followed Graves and Jake as they tried to find me."

I had asked for a 10-minute head start and walked maybe a half a mile before concealing myself. Upon setting out I had planted a flag to show where I had begun my trek.

What happened during the next 15 minutes is unknown to me. Graves had taken Jake away from the starting point so the dog could not follow me by sight, and then brought him back.

Jake picked up my trail at the flag, I'm told, had a little trouble following my zigs and zags, but kept quartering the field until he found a strong scent.

From there it was easy. At my hideaway I watched Jake as he sniffed out my footprints and tracked me down. He greeted me like a long-lost friend. He had done his job.

Looking at the situation from the viewpoint of someone trying to get away, I could have gotten up and run when I saw the dog coming close. I'm sure it would have done no good. The dog eventually would have found me. He can run longer and faster than I can.

Looking at it from the standpoint of someone lost and wanting to be found, I would have been darned grateful.

Cattle Feeder Market 'Bearish'

This week's cattle-on-feed report by the USDA caught cattle feeders by surprise, according to Ken Nye, commodity specialist for the Michigan Farm Bureau.

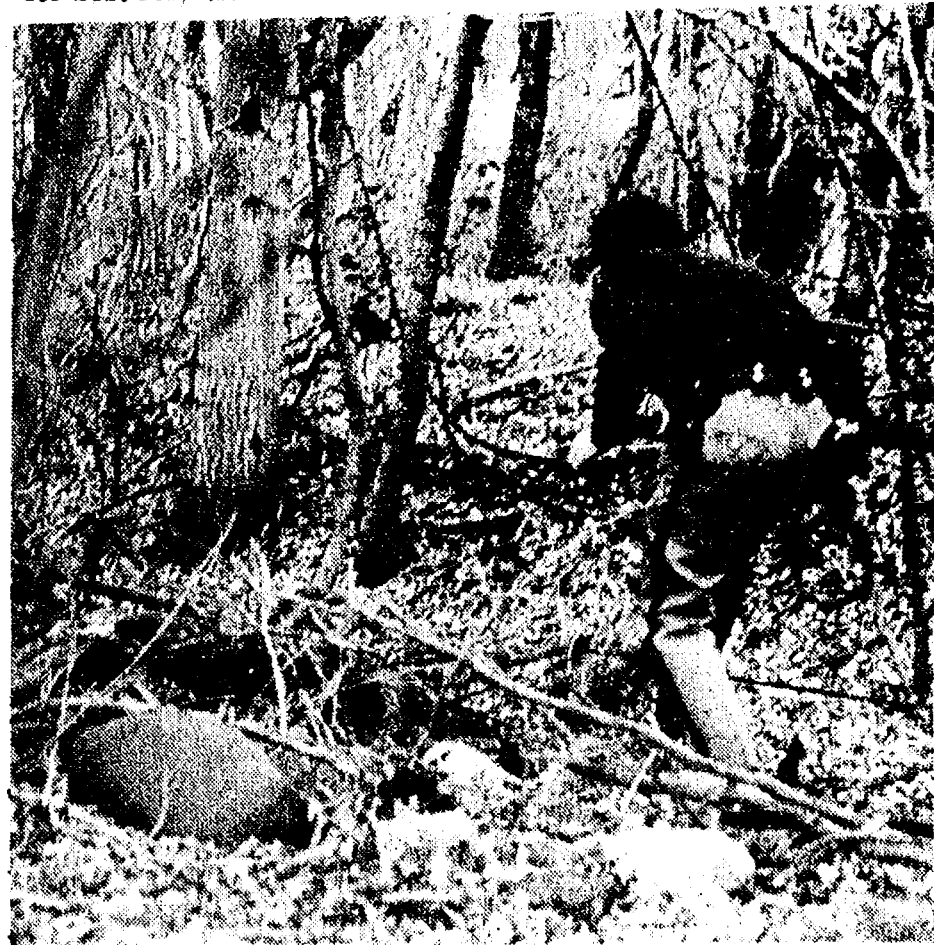

"The trade always tries to guess what the report is going to show," Nye said. "I think that, by and large, the traders thought the report was going to be at least neutral to a little positive."

The report, however, was considered "bearish," mostly because placings in October were 127 percent of last year. The trade had predicted that placings would be considerably lower. At the same time, marketings were only 106 percent of last year, while traders had figured marketings would be 110 percent.

"I think cattle producers should keep their feed lots very current, since the market doesn't seem to really want too many heavy cattle," Nye said. "In the long term, the market is going to be bearish. The market could fall off considerably as we get down the road further."

GO FIND IT BOY: The dog is temporarily puzzled, but Graves is helping him find the track. Handler and dog must work together for best results.

GETTING CLOSE: Jake has picked up a strong scent and is working through the woods as Graves ducks and follows among the trees.

THERE HE IS: The Standard reporter, Jake, and Pete Graves come together at the end of the line. Least impressed was the dog. For him it was all in a day's work that he will do many times for the Chelsea police department.

Chelsea Scenic Postcards Become Endangered Species

Your grandchildren, your new in-laws, or your school chums visiting Chelsea for the holidays have few postcardal options to send the folks back home—generalized scenic shots such as Lake Anywhere, Tree Covered Lane Anywhere, Campground Anywhere, or scenes of other towns' sights, such as the University of Michigan stadium.

If your friends get sick while they are here, they're in luck. The only Chelsea-scene postcard in town is an outside view of Chelsea Community Hospital, which is now redoing their one view, which they have run out of.

Economics is the reason for no postcards of such a visually interesting town. Chelsea used to have postcards—Dan Murphy of Chelsea Drug Store sold them.

"But the last salesman who came by said we had to order about 10,000 of every view to get a good price," he said. "We got some, but the cards got out of date and the paper aged before we could sell them all."

He finally just threw them all away.

People still ask for them, especially in summer, he says. Views he would like to be able to sell would be the clock tower, the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home, a Waterloo-area lake scene, the Chrysler Proving Grounds, Chelsea Milling Company, and the court house.

Laurie Smith, owner of Dayspring Gifts, said the large order required by the salesman who approached her, deterred her from ordering scenic postcards, too.

She gets about 100 requests a summer for them, she says, so she's sure of the demand out there.

She thinks either drawings or photographs of scenes like the train station would sell well. A local photographer supplied her with photographs printed on postcard size paper, which sold out, although they were more expensive than a normal post card.

Her experience in a card shop has shown her, she says, that "if someone wants to send a message, they will, even if it's more expensive than plain paper."

Sam Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, agrees postcards of Chelsea would be a "great idea."

"But it's a question of dollars and cents," he said. "Those old penny postcards now cost 15 cents."

The Chamber of Commerce itself cannot afford the costs of putting photographs in the brochures on Chelsea they are putting out in a few months.

People will be able to know the electric and water rates, and all about the schools, but not know what anything looks like.

Agnes Boylan, the court clerk, says several times a week, the persons working in the court house see someone taking photographs of the historic building.

When her daughter Janet Hudkins moved to Virginia Beach, Va., she wanted to show her friends what her hometown looked like. The Boylans had to take photographs, have them developed, and send them to her, said Mrs. Boylan, because there were no postcards.

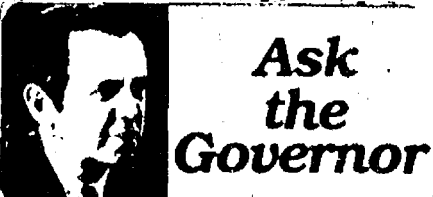

"We've got beautiful lakes and churches in this area," she said. "We should have postcards of them."

Honor Roll Additions

Four seniors were inadvertently omitted from Chelsea High school's honor roll last week.

Congratulations are due to Cynthia Bowen, Timothy Dmoch, Brock Hadley and Andrew Simon.

Question: When will the tougher drunk driving laws go into effect?

Governor: The three new laws tracking down on drunk driving in Michigan will take effect 90 days after the late December adjournment of the Legislature—a date which usually occurs at the end of March or on the first of April.

Michigan's alcohol-related traffic death toll constitutes a staggering loss of lives and economic resources. The new laws go a long way toward alerting the drinking driver that we mean business when we say society will no longer tolerate the threat that a relative handful of drinking drivers present to each of us on the road.

Under the new laws, the blood alcohol level for proof of drunkenness will be lowered and penalties for offenders will be increased. It will be a misdemeanor to drive with a blood alcohol content of more than .10 percent by weight, compared to .15 percent currently. The penalty will be a fine of $100 to $500 and 90 days in jail or both, as well as community service by the offender, participation in alcohol counseling programs and restriction of driving privileges.

A second offense within seven years can bring one year in jail and a $1,000 fine or both, as well as revocation of the driver's license. A third conviction is a felony with revocation of license.

The new laws also provide that the courts must order the offender to undergo screening and assessment to determine whether the driver is likely to benefit from rehabilitation services—costs paid by the offender.

Also under the new laws, refusal to take a blood/urine test will result in suspension of the driver's license and the addition of six points to his or her record. It also provides that blood withdrawn from a driver for medical purposes may be used for legal analysis.

THEY ARE MAKING A COMEBACK: Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hunget stand outside of the new house they are building to replace their former home at 3820 Rentz Rd., Freedom township, which was destroyed by fire on Nov. 17. They are temporarily using the motor home shown on the right, which was loaned to them by relatives.

HELP FROM OTHERS: Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hunget look over some of the clothing and furniture donated to them to help them get back on their feet. Relatives, friends and neighbors rallied around when they learned the Hungets intended to rebuild.

Community Rallies To Help Family Whose Home Burned

For Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hunget and their two children this will be a bitter-sweet holiday season.

Bitter because they lost their home and almost everything else they owned in a fire on Nov. 17.

Sweet because, with the help of relatives, friends and neighbors, they are coming back and by Christmas hope to have a new house to live in, rising out of the ashes of the old one that burned.

The Hungets live at 3820 Rentz Rd. in Freedom township. He works as a furniture mover at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. She takes care of their small farm during the day. They both work on the farm evenings and week-ends.

On the fateful Wednesday morning that their home burned, Mrs. Hunget went out to the barn to feed the livestock they own—14 pigs, 8 cattle, some chickens and ducks. She just plain forgot to turn off the burner under a frying pan on the kitchen stove. The pan had grease in it. The grease caught fire and, by the time she saw the smoke coming out of the house, it was too late. She has burn scars on her forehead to show that she tried to get back into the house but was driven out by the heat.

"I just plain made a mistake when I left that pan on the stove," Mrs. Hunget told a reporter as she cried over the memory. "Everybody makes mistakes once in a while, but this one was the worst of my life. I'll never do it again."

The Manchester and Chelsea fire departments responded to the alarm and poured 12,000 gallons of water on the blaze. Despite their efforts, the modest two-bedroom frame home burned up. Most of the water went into the basement.

That may have been a good thing because it kept the furnace, a washer and dryer and some other items from burning, because they were too wet. All have been restored to working order.

In the one-story house itself, the only thing saved was an old trunk filled with winter clothing for the Hunget's two children—Tom, 16, a junior at Chelsea High school, and Kerry, 11, a sixth-grader at Beach Middle school. Some of the clothes were charred, and they all smell of smoke, but a few things can be salvaged. Neither the house nor its contents were insured, which Hunget admits by hindsight was a mistake, but it is understandable in light of the family's philosophy of looking out for themselves and being self-sufficient.

"We built that house by ourselves 16 years ago," Hunget recalls. "We did it a little at a time, buying materials from payday to payday. When we got it done, we owned it and it was ours. We didn't owe anybody anything. We were broke and I didn't think we could afford insurance. Insurance is awfully expensive out here in the country. We took a chance, and we lost."

Over the years the Hungets worked to make a go of their 30-acre farm. He rented another 60 acres and grew corn, wheat, oats and hay. Gradually, they got ahead and managed to put a few thousand dollars in the bank. Then came the fire, and the Hungets' future looked bleak indeed. They seemed to have little hope but to give up and go on welfare, and that is what many people might have done.

Instead, Jerry Hunget and his wife went to work to rebuild not only their home but their lives. People rallied to help them. On the week-end following the fire a crew of 15 volunteers helped the Hungets frame in and roof a new house on the foundations of the old one.

Jerry's brother John, of Brooklyn, drove his motor home to the Rentz Rd. site and parked it there. It's self-contained and heated. Relatives Robert and Sharon Schmidt of Ann Arbor opened their house to the family as a place to rest and clean up between long bouts of rebuilding work.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Buss, who are neighbors, took on the task of co-ordinating voluntary help, finding out what the Hungets needed and then trying to locate it. Through their efforts the family has received donations of clothing, furniture and several hundred dollars in cash.

The women of the Rogers Corner Extension Club bring cooked meals out every day. Mrs. Hunget is a member of the club.

Even with all the help, it's still touch and go for the Hungets. They have spent their savings and the money donations, and are still short of some badly needed building materials such as windows and insulation.

"If we can just get the house closed in before really bad weather comes, we'll make it," Jerry Hunget said. "We can work on the inside during the winter and finish it from payday to payday, like we did 16 years ago."

"I suppose we could borrow some money, but we don't want to. We believe in paying as we go. We don't like to owe anybody."

Hunget's U-M job pays him a modest salary—$540 every two weeks—and that doesn't leave a whole lot to buy building supplies after immediate needs are paid for, but he's confident that he and his wife of 18 years will make it.

"We did it before, and we'll do it again," he insists with the kind of stubborn pride and determination that reminds one of old-fashioned pioneer virtues. "We just can't say enough thanks to all the people who have helped us. Because of what they have done, we are going to make it. I know we are."

It's a heartwarming story in these times when people seem all too ready to fall back on welfare when they get into trouble, and when friends and neighbors sometimes don't care or don't want to get involved.

Anyone who has a little left over after finishing Christmas shopping might consider helping the Hungets help themselves. Everybody concerned might have happier holidays.

The Hungets add a promise. Even though they don't cotton to the idea of "owing anybody," they assure that they will be there when somebody else needs a helping hand.

"...We Never Talked About That..."

Almost everyone, in the course of making funeral arrangements says something like this: "Oh, I wish I knew what he would have liked. We... we never talked about it and ... I just don't know..."

It isn't necessary that those left behind be burdened with this added agony of indecision. The thoughtful, sensible thing to do, is to record your wishes in advance of necessity.

What's Cooking In Michigan

By Margaret G. McCall
Michigan Dept. of Agriculture
With cold weather at hand, it's time to light the fireplace and warm the innards with a hearty Michigan soup.

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, our farmers produce more than 50 major commodities each year, making agriculture the leading growth industry in the state.

We lead the nation in production of five crops, and are 10th or higher in a total of 37. That certainly gives us a wide choice of ingredients for our Michigan soups.

Almost any combination of meat and vegetables is appetizing, filling and nutritious. Similarly, cream soups may be made with a variety of vegetables for added flavor and interest.

At our house, cream of potato soup has been expanded to be "cream of almost everything" soup. To make, you begin with sliced Michigan potatoes and chopped onions, simmered in home-made chicken, beef or turkey broth. When these ingredients are cooked through, mash coarsely. Then add almost any leftover cooked vegetables, such as corn, green beans, carrots and broccoli. Of course, if you haven't leftovers, you can add other fresh vegetables and cook with the potatoes and onions. Michigan cream or half and half should be added last and just heated through (do not boil). Season with salt, pepper and a little sweet basil.

Portuguese soup is another favorite, made with a combination of spicy Portuguese (or Italian) sausage, onions, cabbage, red kidney beans, tomatoes, and beef stock. Brown the sausages, drain well, and slice. Combine vegetables and stock, add the sliced sausages and simmer over low heat until tender. Delicious served with thick slices of home-made rye bread, and a fruit salad which doubles as dessert.

Motorists Warned To Be Watchful for Ice-Slick Bridges

'Tis the season to be jolly, and also the time of year when motorists should be especially careful about slippery road conditions for which they may not be alert.

That is a warning from the Washtenaw county sheriff's department, and it is timely in view of some recent events, including a fatal accident on the Baker Rd. bridge over I-94 three weeks ago and a rash of crashes on freeway overpasses last Wednesday morning.

In both instances the bridge decks were glazed even though the roads were clear. Motorists simply were not on guard against a sudden change in driving surfaces, and so lost control when they came onto the slippery sections, said deputy Lee Collier of the Chelsea sheriff station.

"We get a lot of these accidents every late fall about this time," Collier said. "People aren't used to winter driving conditions and haven't adjusted their habits accordingly."

"When the roads are obviously bad, with snow or ice that can be easily seen, drivers slow down.

We don't have a whole lot of accidents in really bad winter weather because everybody realizes the problem and is extra careful. It's this in-between time that is worst.

Despite posted signs which warn to "Watch for Ice on Bridge," many drivers don't. Bridge deck pavements freeze sooner and stay frozen longer than ground-level surfaces, because of the cold air circulating underneath them.

Particularly dangerous are freeway interchanges, where a motorist may go from a road that is merely wet, or even dry, to one that is coated with ice. The best bet is to stop, look, and then proceed very slowly, testing the road with a cautious application of the brakes. If the car skids or fishtails, you know it is slippery. Ice is not always apparent to the eye, especially at dawn and dusk hours when visibility is poor even with headlights.

It is fairly easy to bring a slow-moving car out of a skid. A speeding vehicle will spin before the driver can take corrective action.

Police Keep Busy With Routine Calls

What does the Chelsea police department do during a week when it generates little or no news?

Chief Robert Aeillo and his secretary, Judy Tucker, provided a rundown of activities for a recent typical week that produced nothing "newsworthy" for The Standard.

There were 11 "suspicious incidents," most of them involving calls from village residents who had seen a car or a person in their neighborhoods and were concerned that somebody might be intending to do something wrong.

"We check out all such calls and almost always find that the suspicion was unfounded," Aeillo said. But every once in awhile one of those complaints turns into something, so we want people to keep calling us. That's what we're here for."

There were six responses to motorists who needed help—out of gas, flat tires or mechanical breakdowns.

Disturbances of the public peace—loud arguments or other noises, disorderly conduct and the like—produced four complaints.

Rounding out the list were two automobile accidents involving property damage but no injuries, two civil (as opposed to criminal) complaints, one dog at large, a property check, a bank alarm (false), an abandoned vehicle, and a minor case of malicious destruction of property.

There were also the usual routine duties—traffic patrol, parking meter enforcement, walking the beat in the downtown area. Chelsea's is one of the few police departments left that uses patrolmen on foot as an integral part of its enforcement effort. Almost all policemen ride in cars these days.

"We keep busy," Aeillo sums up. "Most of what we do doesn't make news, but it's by far the most important part of our job."

Manchester Schools Receive Appraisal

A report prepared by the American Appraisal Co. and submitted to the Manchester Community Schools shows the value of buildings, equipment and machinery to be worth more than $5 million on a depreciated basis.

The appraisal and inventory of all school equipment was prepared for insurance and inventory control purposes. The report, which is the first of its kind for the Manchester Schools, details all furniture, science equipment, movie projectors, and all other equipment owned by the school district. This information will allow the administration to maintain records regarding locations and values of equipment items.

Each principal will be provided with a computer print-out of all equipment located in his/her building and each year will update this list. A loss of any type will enable the district to provide insurance companies with accurate information.

Whitmore Lake Lumber Yard Destroyed By Fire

Fire destroyed the Apex Lumber Co. on Main St. in Whitmore Lake village Sunday night with a loss tentatively estimated by Hollis Close, Northfield township fire chief, at half a million dollars.

The Washtenaw sheriff's department arson squad is investigating.

Twelve area fire departments with more than 20 vehicles and 100 men responded to the alarm, which was sounded at 7 p.m. Saturday, and fought the blaze through most of the night. Among the agencies called to assist was the Dexter fire department.

The fire threatened to engulf the Bio-Sentry Engineering Co. next door, but was stopped after damaging the roof and one side of a storage building on that firm's property.

The main building and a large lumber shed on the Apex property were destroyed along with several vehicles and a large quantity of lumber.

Close said the blaze started in the rear of the Apex storage shed and had a big start before the alarm was turned in.

"When we got there, flames were coming out of the roof and shooting over the top of the shed," Close said. "They spread to the main building. There was a pretty strong wind and a lot of dried lumber. It was a real hot fire."

Firemen laid hose lines down into Whitmore Lake, 800 feet away, and pumped water out of the lake as part of their effort to control the blaze.

Close said it was the largest, most costly fire in Northfield township in several years. His estimate of a $500,000 loss is subject to revision after a thorough inventory is made.

Besides Northfield township and Dexter, departments called to the scene included Hamburg township, Green Oak township, Brighton, South Lyon, Lyon township, Salem township, Superior township, Ann Arbor township, Pittsfield township and Saline.

Woodcarving Class Offered

Jim Daniels, whose hand carved signs decorate Sylvan Township Hall and McKune Memorial Library, will be offering a free woodcarving class at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 7 in the Chelsea Lumber Co. showroom, 305 N. Main St.

He will show how to use tools, how to sharpen them, will show samples and talk about the different woods, and suggest projects for different skill levels. Those attending do not need to bring their own materials or tools.

Depending on attendance, interest and questions asked, there could be additional class meetings, he said. Perhaps the group would like to meet another time for consultation on projects.

Wooden signs are good projects for beginners and are well-liked by recipients, said Daniels, co-owner of the lumber company. He has exhibited at Waterloo Farm Museum and makes picture frames and signs.

After some practice, a woodcarver can move onto figures "in the round," he says. He has carved figures such as a Yugoslavian folk dancing couple and Fanny Brice ("Funny Girl") out of basswood, and an elephant from walnut.

Coffee and donuts will be served.

Freezing Rain Early Sunday Causes Rash Of Accidents

The Washtenaw sheriff's department logged 71 traffic accidents throughout the county last week-end, most of them caused by the freezing rain which fell early Sunday morning.

Most were minor and involved only property damage because the vehicles involved were traveling slowly as drivers recognized the obviously hazardous conditions.

As the temperature rose after daylight Sunday, the freezing rain changed to just plain rain, and the ice melted by mid-morning. However, fog settled in during the afternoon and contributed to several more collisions.

No residents of the Chelsea and Dexter areas were reported injured in the rash of accidents.

School Board Lets Legislators Know Their Feelings on Pending Legislation

Chelsea school district has a Christmas list—one with desired legislative goodies it is sending to Lansing instead of Santa Claus.

The school board made up the list in November on pending legislation affecting the schools such as proposed summer tax collection, making education a priority, and legal strikes, and its position on these issues. The list is being sent to present and newly elected legislators.

If Chelsea had both a summer and December property tax collection, it would save $220,000 in interest payments on money Chelsea school district must borrow until taxes are in, said Raymond Van Meer, schools superintendent.

Cutting down those interest payments, he said, would be equivalent to eliminating one mill of property tax.

Proposed summer tax collection House bill 4150, which has passed the house and senate subcommittee, but has not been voted on by the full senate, would exempt farmers and the permanently disabled from this mid-year collection by the townships, he said, an important consideration in a rural district.

Ann Arbor has had a summer collection at least since 1937, said Livia Leever, Ann Arbor deputy treasurer. Although it is optional, more than 90 percent of tax payers do split their payments.

That July bill has all the city and Washtenaw Community College taxes, and half of the Ann Arbor school and Washtenaw Intermediate School District taxes, she said, and saves huge interest payments by all these groups.

The school board supports this bill.

Education just isn't the priority in the state that it once was, said Van Meer.

Education was 30 percent of the state budget in 1970, he said, but now it's about 12 percent.

That difference has been picked up by local governments in property tax rates, he said. The 1970 average millage rate was 19 mills. Now it is 30. He would rather see more funding come from the state than local sources.

"When your gasoline tax goes up," he said, "most people don't gripe at the gasoline attendant." But people are more aware of property tax increases, and they do have a say-so in that.

Schools are not being supported at the ballot box, he said, and are not getting much from state taxes—the short-shrift all the way around.

Chelsea has gotten used to not depending on promised state funds. When an executive order delays payment, the districts cut its budget in anticipation.

Chelsea school district does not support the Uniform Budget Act which took effect during the 1981-82 school year, said Van Meer, because the accounting procedures it requires are cumbersome and unnecessary.

Schools and businesses use different accounting methods, he said. Most schools got letters from their auditors last summer citing violations, even though their books were in good shape.

The recent Truth in Taxation legislation on budget hearings is just as expensive and burdensome, he said. Out of 400 school districts state-wide, no one came to 26 percent of the districts' truth in taxation public hearings; 27 percent of districts reported less than four persons at their hearing; and 80 percent had less than 10 at their meeting.

Advertising such a hearing, renting space and/or labor expenses to arrange and hold the hearing, he said, isn't worth the state-wide median of 3.1 persons attending.

The board does not favor legal strikes.

Mutual penalties on management and teachers would help solve this problem, said Van Meer. Management could be assessed fines or loss of state aid if a settlement isn't reached by school's start, and teachers could lose a day's pay for every strike day.

Then there would be mutual incentive to bargain in good faith before Labor Day, he said, instead of hearing and seeing long lists of closed schools each fall.

The board says the Open Meetings Act, which only permits closed sessions in few situations, is too restrictive.

Although "We are against closed sessions most of the time," said Van Meer, "less constructive criticism is made in a public meeting than in private."

Say a teacher or administrator had problems dealing with parents. A public session criticism might be "You need to work on public relations," where in private that person's habitual sarcasm or poor phone manners would be pointed out.

The proposed Caesar Amendment would change the way state funds are allocated to county districts for special education, so that Chelsea students would get less funding.

Now a special education child from Chelsea, an off-formula district (supported mostly by property taxes), benefits from state aid as well as a child from Ypsilanti, an on-formula district. Washtenaw Intermediate School District funds are determined by an average of state aid county-wide.

If the Caesar Amendment passed, it would direct funds to specific school districts instead of to counties. Chelsea school board does not support this bill.

Beach Academic Games Team Competes in Regional Meet

Beach Middle school hosted mathematics academic games for 300 students representing 18 schools in the southeastern Michigan region Saturday, Nov. 20.

It takes two weeks to compile results, so no one has been declared winner yet. Betty Cox, advisor to the group, says they did place higher than their fifth place finish last month in Detroit. More than 30 Beach students competed in the math game Equations against students from Lansing, Ann Arbor and many Detroit schools.

The Beach team has scored consistently well since joining the Michigan League of Academic Games three years ago, she said. Last year's team won two trophies at the March state tournament. The league now has 75 schools divided into five regions. Each region has a Saturday tournament once a month hosted by various schools.

Students in grades five through 12 compete in both Basic and Adventurous versions of the games, and any student may join the team. Beach's team has 36 students from grades 6-8 and is sponsored by Mrs. Cox and Mary Powers, both Beach math teachers. The team practices once a week. Pat Clarke, a Beach math teacher, helps seventh and eighth graders play the Adventurous version.

Loren Rosenberg, in his first Adventurous competition, Brian

Feldman, in his first competition, Matt Riemenschneider and Calisa Tucker had perfect scores at the November meet. Other high scorers were Heather Niebauer, David Freitas, Jennie Ghent, Chris Walter, Owen Wilcox, Lisa Unterbrink, Mike Thompson, Krissy Steffenson, Linda Laier, and Charlie Hosner.

Students would like to thank their parents for the cookies they provided; Mary Marentay for her work; cookie servers Mrs. Walter, Mrs. Radant and Mrs. Laier; Ellie Unterbrink for lunch-on pizzas; Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Walter, and Mrs. Niebauer for keeping score, and Chelsea McDonald's for providing orange drink.

Two Escapees Nabbed By Alert Sheriff's Men

A scenario that might have been portrayed in one of the popular television police dramas was enacted in real life on Monday afternoon, Nov. 22, and as a result two escapees from Camp Waterloo are behind bars at Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson.

It started when Randall Bryant, 26, and Jimmy Lee Stewart, 24, walked away from the camp in the Waterloo Recreation Area and headed east along I-94.

County sheriff deputy Mike Oltersdorf spotted the pair, who were wearing "prison blue" clothing and carrying paper bags, walking along I-94 just west of the Zeeb Rd. interchange. As Oltersdorf stopped his patrol car to question the men, they ran into a woods between I-94 and Jackson Rd.

Oltersdorf radioed for assistance, and sheriff's department personnel moved in to seal off the area. Among those summoned to the scene was detective Paul Wade from the department's Chelsea station. Driving an unmarked car, he began searching around the buildings and parking lot of Sarns, Inc., 6200 Jackson Rd.

"I saw a man come out of a field and into the parking lot," Wade related. "I put my gun in my lap, rolled down my car window, and asked him if he wanted a ride. He said 'I sure do' and came on toward the car. When he got about five feet away, I showed him the pistol and told him to get in."

A few seconds later Stewart was in custody. His comment on learning that he had accepted a ride from a police officer was expressive, Wade said, but not fit to print in a family newspaper.

A bit later deputy James Skidmore spotted Bryant trying to hide in some shrubbery and captured him without resistance.

Both convicts were taken to the county jail in Ann Arbor and later transferred to the prison at Jackson. Stewart is serving a sentence for manslaughter, and Bryant is doing time for burglary and armed robbery. Their terms will be extended as a result of their escape.

Wade and deputy Lee Collier of the Chelsea sheriff's post echoed statements made a week earlier by Chelsea police chief Robert Aiello, who was highly critical of security at Camp Waterloo and the Cassidy Lake technical School.

"Those places are like revolving doors," Collier said. "The inmates seem to be able to get out whenever they decide to try. Almost all of them are caught before they go very far, but finding them takes a lot of our time."

Two More Flee Camp Waterloo

Two more escapes from Camp Waterloo have been reported to local police agencies.

Latest to walk away from the camp are Eric J. Frey, 29, of Grass Lake, serving 2½ to 10 years for breaking and entering, and Kenneth J. Woolner, 25, of Detroit, serving 1 to 10 years for armed robbery and a concurrent mandatory two-year sentence for illegal possession of a gun.

The two men apparently left Camp Waterloo about 5 p.m. Sunday, but area law enforcement officials were not notified until Monday morning.

Wrestling Season Opens Tonight With SEC Title Hopes High

Chelsea High's wrestling team will open the school's winter sports season tonight in an away-from-home meet against Columbia Central, and will get in a second contest on Thursday against Stockbridge there.

New wrestling coach Kerry Kargel, a former state high school champion in the sport, is approaching the campaign with mixed feelings. He has seven letter-winners back on his squad, but will have to fill out his roster with newcomers.

"We will be a very young wrestling team with 16 freshmen, some of whom will be varsity starters," Kargel said. "We hope to be a contender for the Southeastern Conference championship, and will fight for it along with Saline and Dexter who appear to be the other principal contenders."

Chelsea won last year's SEC wrestling championship with a league record of 11-0-1, and also did well in several tournaments including a 14th place finish in the state meet. The Bulldogs won their own Chelsea Invitational, the Dexter Invitational and the Willow Run Invitational, finished third in the Jackson Western Invitational and District meets, and were second in the Regional.

Coming back from last year's team are Dave Gipson, Eric Stoflet, Travis Rudd, Bill Hanna, Jeff Morgan, Ernie Bristle and Scott Dault. Of those, Bristle, Hanna, Morgan and Rudd qualified for the state meet, and Bristle placed sixth in his weight class.

Bristle wrestled last year at 98 pounds, Hanna at 105, Morgan at 112 and Rudd at 126. There will be some changes this winter to accommodate the fact that the boys have gotten bigger.

Kargel is taking over as head wrestling coach after having served as junior varsity mentor. A Chelsea High graduate, he won the state championship at 145 pounds in 1969 and went on to national ranking as a collegian.

New JV coach is Mike Young, also a Chelsea graduate, who placed fifth in the state in his senior year.

Both Kargel and Young expressed pleasure over the large turnout of contestants for places on the varsity squad and said they were impressed with the newcomers' attitude and interest.

What they will be looking for in the early weeks of the season are able wrestlers in the higher weight classes, up through heavyweight. "We're right now in a position where we could win a majority of individual matches in a dual meet and still lose the meet on total points," Kargel said. (In scoring a wrestling meet, points are awarded on a scale according to whether matches are won by decision or pin.

Junior high wrestling coach is Pat Clarke, who also coaches both boys and girls cross country teams. Clarke's season for seventh and eighth graders will open Jan. 13 with a home meet against Dexter.

THESE NINE BULLDOG SWIMMERS now own all the girls varsity records and all qualified for the state Class B meet Friday and Saturday: Becca Lee, left, Vicki Harrell, the team's diver; Paula Kuzon, Amanda Holmes, Dawn Borders, Kristin Thomas, team captain, Liesel Culver; Paula Colombo, back row, and Marji

Rawson. Kuzon and Colombo are wearing tights which increase the water's resistance on one's legs. Those pull buoys by Culver are worn between one's legs so one doesn't kick during pulling drills. Lee was wearing street clothes, because she was going on a trip momentarily.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Several readers have suggested to me that in last week's column I made deer hunters as a group "look bad" by telling stories about a few whose behavior doesn't conform to the norm. As one critic put it, "Deer hunters aren't all a bunch of drunks and violators."

Of course they aren't, and no such suggestion was intended. It's just that the odd-balls manage to do the kinds of crazy things that make for good story-telling and therefore (I hope) entertaining reading.

Over the past 40 years I have known hundreds of excellent deer hunters, the sort who take their sport seriously and soberly, including a few who can honestly be labeled as experts. An expert is a hunter that you don't need to ask if he got a deer. You know he did, because he invariably does; and so you instead ask him when he got it and how big was it.

Those types get to be kind of boring after awhile, if only because their hunting skill transcends that of almost all the rest of us. They are in a class by themselves, and you begin to wonder if they are real people. I can't write from experience because I never made it into the expert category, but have to think that year-after-year success might come to be a little dull. The joy of hunting is as much in the hope as in the reality.

The Department of Natural Resources' RAP (Report All Poaching) program is up for renewal by the Legislature and, as one who had something to do with getting it started, I encourage its continuation. What's needed is legislative authorization to continue earmarking a portion of license revenues to keep the poaching "hot-line" to Lansing — 1-800-292-7800 — open and operating. If you think that is a good idea, let your legislator know. In these extremely tight state budget times, nothing is a sure thing, no matter how worthy it may seem.

The RAP concept is to get citizens involved in policing the outdoors, by giving them an open channel to report violations they observe, so Conservation Officers may be assigned to follow up. From experience, I can say that RAP has worked pretty well, and has provided hard-pressed CO's a valuable tool in their law enforcement kit. A lot of good tips, and a lot of arrests, have come off the RAP hot-line.

Also from experience, I can say that the system needs to be improved. It takes far too long for information telephoned into Lansing to get back to the CO in the field so that he can follow up a track before it gets cold. The cumbersome bureaucracy in Lansing needs to be streamlined, and that should be made a condition of renewing the RAP program. Let your legislators know that, too.

Meanwhile, keep your RAP calls flowing to Lansing. Give as much specific information as you can — car license plate numbers, hunter tag numbers, physical descriptions, vehicle descriptions, anything that will tie down a violation to a particular person.

Simply saying that "I saw somebody doing something wrong" doesn't help much. Conservation Officers, like all other law enforcement officers, need facts to go on.

Reported deer weights don't impress me much, unless they are recorded on certified scales attested to in writing by the operator of the scales. Deer, like fish, have a way of growing as they get older after the fact.

I have looked at a lot of deer and have seen quite a few weighed. From that experience I can say that an honest dressed-out weight of 150 pounds is a mighty big deer, and that very few go over that amount.

Deer are not big, as large hoofed animals go. They are smaller than several breeds of big dogs. The average deer stands about waist-high to the average person, and probably weighs less.

Very few deer are weighed "live," which is good because, as stated in this column a few weeks ago, the most important thing to do with a dead deer is to get it cleaned out and cooled off as quickly as possible. Otherwise, the meat will begin to spoil.

Dressed weights are educated guesses in terms of the animal's live weight. The time-honored formula says that a deer loses 30 percent of its weight in the cleaning-out process. That holds reasonably true for small and medium-sized deer. As deer get bigger, the percentage of dressed-out loss goes down, to as low as 20 percent in the case of really big ones.

When a deer puts on weight, it doesn't add poundage to internal organs, which weigh about the same throughout the animal's life. The extra pounds go into meat and muscle and, in the case of southern Michigan deer, fat.

Wild animals normally don't put on much fat, but whitetails in this part of Michigan are an exception. They eat year-around on a bountiful food supply including agricultural crops that aren't a part of their natural diet. Deer down here have "learned" to digest corn. A diet of corn will kill northern Michigan deer whose digestive systems aren't adapted to handle it. Well-intended but mis-directed efforts to feed corn to starving deer during severe northern winters undoubtedly have killed more deer than they have saved.

Bucks grow big around here, in some cases very big. In my time I have seen two that might have weighed more than 300 pounds on the hoof, which would have put them high up in the record books if such records were any longer kept. The reason they aren't kept is that accuracy and authenticity are impossible to achieve.

Today the sole testimony to record-size deer is antler count — how many points, inside spread, beam diameter, etc. — a complicated system developed by the Boone & Crockett Club for gun-killed deer and the Pope & Young Club for bow-shot deer. It's imperfect, but probably as good as any that can be devised.

A big-bodied deer may have a relatively small rack of antlers, and vice versa. That part's of the luck of hunting.

Nine Chelsea Girls Prepare For State Swimming Meet

Chelsea is sending nine girl swimmers to the state Class B swimming championship Dec. 3 and 4 at Grand Rapids Junior College—that is 75 percent of the team.

Coach Von Acker says the Bulldogs may finish in the top 10.

Dearborn Man Charged in Shooting Of Protected Hawk

Jihad F. Makki, 20, of Dearborn has been arrested and charged with shooting a red-shouldered hawk in the Pinckney Recreation Area on Nov. 13. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned in district court.

Conservation Officer Craig Wales made the arrest after talking to four other men who were hunting in the area, heard a shot and saw the hawk fall. One of the witnesses gave chase and recorded the license number of a car which was later traced to Makki.

Last year they were 11th, but he says they may finish as high as sixth or seventh, even though it will be a faster meet this year. This year's team now owns all the varsity records.

He expects the battle for the top five teams to be between East daily workouts Nov. 19, the day after they dominated the Chelsea Invitational, to get over their mini-peak invitational preparation.

They began their state meet peak Nov. 26. As a final psych-up technique, they will all "shave down," (shave their arms, legs, and backs—anything touching the water and not covered by a swim suit) right before the meet.

The boys team even shaved their heads before the state meet last year, but although Acker jokingly suggested it, he said, no one got very excited by the idea.

Swimmers are limited to three events at this meet. Those on the medley relay will be Dawn Borders, Paula Kuzon, Paula Colombo, and Liesel Culver. Borders will lead off the freestyle relay, then Marji Rawson, Kristin Thomas, and Culver as anchor. Amanda Holmes and Becca Lee are the alternates for the relays. Rawson will swim the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke; Thomas, 100 fly and 500 free; Borders, 50 free; and Colombo, 200 IM and 500 free; and Culver, 100 free. Kuzon has a consideration time in the 100 breaststroke, so if less than 24 swimmers make the cut-off, she may be eligible to swim that event.

league honorable mention, as did Missi Lazarz, who also received all-region honorable mention.

Unterbrink, a 5' 8" sophomore guard in her second varsity season, led the team in 12 of 14 statistical categories. She was named to second team all-league and was honorable mention on The Ann Arbor News' all-region team.

She also won the Defensive Ace award, chosen by her Bulldog teammates. She was leading scorer with 248 points, the most points any sophomore has scored in a season. She set a new varsity record for most assists in a season, 61. She is the daughter of Kenneth and Eleanor Unterbrink of 818 S. Freer.

Mary Klink, a 5' 9" senior center, began the season on the bench but worked her way up to a starting position for seven games. She led the team in shooting percentage and snared 87 rebounds in the season. She is the daughter of Fred and Caroline Klink of 21385 Waterloo Rd.

Tanya Mattoff, a junior guard, inspired hard work from her teammates in practice and games, said coach Jim Winter. She was always enthusiastic and encouraging. Mattoff, the daughter of Chuck and Lenore Mattoff of 634 Flanders, played in 20 of 21 games this season and led the team in free throw shooting percentage, 70 percent.

She also received the Coaches' Award, he said, given to a player who contributes the most for the good of the team.

Amy Poljan, senior co-captain and a forward, was leading rebounder for the team with 97 in a very close race for that honor—the top five rebounders had 92 to 97 rebounds apiece. She was second leading scorer on the team and is the daughter of Richard and Kay Poljan of 13875 McKinley.

Missi Lazarz, senior co-captain and forward, missed the last five games of the season with knee problems, but still got all-league and all-region honorable mentions. She was the team's leading rebounder going into the last game, ended up fourth in that category with 93, and was third in scoring. Lazarz, the daughter of John and Marjorie Lazarz of 1305 N. Freer, is going through rehabilitation for her knee now said Winter.

The team graduates five seniors, Poljan, Lazarz, Klink, Colleen Clark and Sharon Glassford.

SPORTS
NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Watching last Tuesday night's Chelsea High school intra-squad basketball game, I was reminded once again how difficult it is for athletes to make the transition from football to basketball. It has to be the roughest switch in sports.

Seven of the 11 players who took part in the scrimmage were coming off the football team, and it showed. There was a lot of "football" played on the basketball floor. The two games are about as diametrically opposite as any you could imagine or devise.

Football is a contact game. The idea is to hit somebody and put him down or at least knock him out of the way. Basketball is, theoretically, a non-contact game. Bump into an opponent in basketball, on purpose or accidentally, and you probably will be whistled down for a foul. Most basketball games are eventually decided at the free-throw line, which means that body-contact fouls are critical, very often the difference between winning and losing.

The idea that basketball should be a non-contact game is, of course, ridiculous, but that's the way the rules are written. You can't put 10 energetic athletes into a relatively small, confined space and expect them never to collide with each other in a fluid, fast-moving contest of motion. The strategy and tactics of basketball demand that opposing players must try to occupy the same space at the same time, and that means they are going to run into each other.

Officials have the impossible task of judging who was entitled to be where, and who wasn't, which puts refereeing basketball close to the top of the list of jobs guaranteed not to win popularity contests. A bill collector has it easy by comparison.

That said, let it be noted that the Bulldog footballers who will carry most of the basketball load this winter are making good progress. In another week or so, they should have their muscles and instincts in shape to make Chelsea a competitive team in the Southeastern Conference.

Coach Robin Raymond is hoping that his team will pick up where it left off last year. After a slow start Chelsea won nine of its last 12 games, and the strong finish allowed the Bulldogs to tie for second place in the SEC.

A conference championship is not beyond the realm of possibility this winter. Raymond has six players, including three starters, back from a year ago, the largest contingent of veterans he has had return during his tenure at Chelsea. Additions to the squad, especially sophomore guard Eric Schaffner, will help, as will development of some of the veterans. Big Dave Kiel especially shows a lot of improvement.

Raymond believes he has at least seven, perhaps eight, quality players who will be able to match up with any team on the Bulldog schedule. You can go a long way in small-school basketball (or big-school basketball, for that matter) with five solid starters and two or three substitutes who can come off the bench and contribute. Jud Heathcote at Michigan State won an NCAA championship a few years back with just seven men who logged virtually all the playing time. The fact that Earvin (Magic) Johnson and Greg Kelser were two of them didn't hurt, of course. Both were superstars who went on to do big things professionally.

Nor will the remaining players on the Chelsea squad be a drag on the team. All appear capable of doing at least spot duty, and they probably will get better. The development potential of high school-age youngsters, who are still growing and mastering body co-ordination and control, is remarkable. Kiel is an outstanding example of what a difference a year can make.

Raymond coaches a crowd-pleasing brand of basketball. His offense isn't quite "run and gun," but it's close—get upcourt quickly, make two or three passes, and shoot. His man-to-man defense emphasizes ball-hawking—try to take it away before the foe can set up for a shot. It should be a fun season.

Aquatic Club Handed
First Loss of Season

Chelsea Aquatic Club coaches are probably glad the Rose Bowl is in January, so it won't distract the swimmers from this week's Southern Michigan Swim League age-group championships.

The Michigan-Ohio State football game dented their ranks for the dual meet Nov. 20 with Ann Arbor Y at Cameron Pool—the CAC's first loss of the season, 486-416.

CAC swimmers got touched out in almost all the close races, said co-coach Von Acker, and when teams are even, touch-outs spell the difference.

CAC, Milan, and Ann Arbor Y are now tied with 4-1 records. Acker says he expects it to be a tight race for league champion, but a full-strength Chelsea team has a good chance to win.

Championships for 8- and unders were yesterday in Brighton; 9-10-year-olds, Dec. 1 at Ypsilanti High school; 11-12-year-olds, Nov. 16 at Cameron Pool, and 13- and older swimmers, Dec. 8 at Cameron. No Ceiling Planned
On 1982-83 Crop

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block has announced there will be no ceiling on entries of crops now being harvested into the farmer-held reserve. He indicated he may impose a ceiling on 1983-84 crops.

FIRST OF THE SEASON? Well maybe not, but this slightly leaning snowman certainly was one of the first to be constructed in the Chelsea area. It was built from the one-inch snow which fell last Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving and, from the looks of the background, took most of the snow in the yard to make. The photographer spotted the snowman in front of a farm home on S. Fletcher Rd.

Alumni Give Boys Varsity Swimmers A Good Test

Larry Reed, Chelsea boys swimming coach, says he wasn't sure which side to root for at the Bulldogs boys varsity 100-72 win over the alumni team Wednesday, Nov. 24 at Cameron Pool.

Reed has been the only boys coach Chelsea has had since the pool opened in 1976, so everyone there was either a present or former swimmer of his. The solution—he rooted for a good time for everyone.

It was the first alumni meet the boys team has had, said Reed, and drew one of the largest dual meet crowds ever.

The Bulldogs got a pre-season meet into their schedule, and the alumni had fun trying to make state qualifying times for the fun of it.

The alumni team scared the varsity a bit. They led going into the 500 freestyle event, but the varsity team loaded the last three events and free relay teams to insure the win.

They shouldn't have worried. The alumni swam only 50 frees in that relay instead of 100s—automatically disqualifying themselves.

Goderis, Skjaerlund Win 4-H Scholarships

Two Washtenaw county youths have been named national 4-H scholarship winners and will receive $1,000 in scholarships arranged through the National 4-H Council.

Jon Goderis, 17, 3250 McKinley, Chelsea, was one of six national winners in the 4-H bicycle program and received a $1,000 scholarship from the Quaker
Oats Co., the program sponsor.

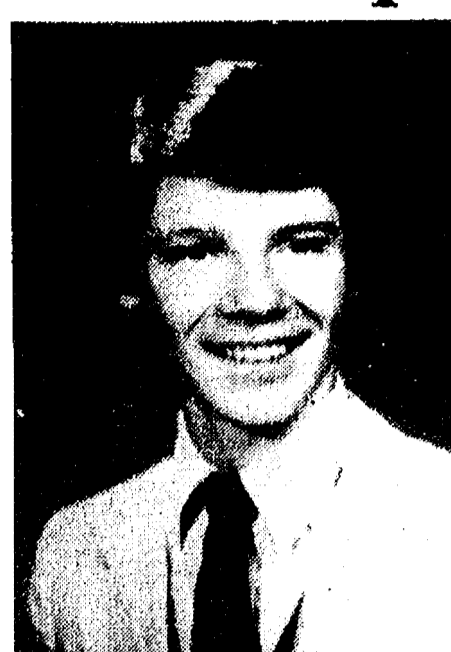

David Skjaerlund, 19, 4600
Strawberry Lake Rd., Whitmore
Lake, was among seven winners who received $600 scholarships awarded by the Chicago and North Western Transportation
Co. to students enrolled in agricultural business, agricultural economics or forestry curriculums. Skjaerlund is a junior at Michigan State University majoring in animal science

The awards were announced at agricultural producers and railroads to strengthen agricultural and natural resources industries.

D. Fisher Honors The Standard Staff

Walter P. and Helen May Leonard, publishers of The Standard, were honored at a surprise ceremony during a private showing of photographer Dale Fisher's art prints last Saturday evening at the Chelsea fairgrounds.

Fisher, whose helicopter photo
service is based at his Notten Rd.
home, recognized the Leonards for their service to the Chelsea community during the 35 years that they have published The Standard.

"I don't know any other people who work as long and as hard at their business," Fisher said of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard. "For them it is a seven-days-a-week operation, and sometimes it seems like 24 hours a day."

"Whenever I drive by their office, one or both of them are in there working. They do a lot to hold the community together through their constant, tireless effort. As a resident of the Chelsea area, I want them to know that I appreciate what they have done, and I think other people should, too."

Fisher also recognized Bill
Mullendore, who joined The Standard staff as a reporter in September, citing him for his 35 years of outdoor writing in Michigan. The two were co-workers at the Ann Arbor News during the 1950's.

"He is the best outdoor writer in Michigan and one of the best in the country," Fisher said.

Fisher presented the Leonards a large framed print of his dramatic limited-edition photograph of a field of sunflowers in full bloom. Mr. and Mrs. Mullendore received prints of two of Fisher's outstanding

St. Mary's Delegates Attend Recent Assembly

St. Mary's parishoners Mrs. John Arbogast, Robert Hodder and Mrs. Leon Chapman attended the Pastoral Assembly for the Diocese of Lansing held recently in Flint.

The Assembly is an advisory body to Bishop Kenneth Povish of the Lansing diocese and was hosted by St. Michael's parish of Flint.

Prayer began the meeting Friday evening for the more than 400 delegates from 10 county Dioceses, representing 94 parishes and more than 209,000 persons. An all-day session and luncheon were held Saturday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel and the final session Sunday at St. Michael's.

Delegates discussed goals set forth in the first assembly held two years ago and suggested continuing goals in evangelization, worship, liturgy in the church, Christian family, young adults, Christian service, peace and justice.

Assembly delegates also had a chance to do some dreaming with the theme, "My hope for the diocese is," which was introduced by Bishop Povish in his keynote address.

He recalled that the late Martin Luther King had a dream for black Americans, and he too had been to the mountain top and had a dream about goals for the diocese.

He said he would like better worship in the diocese and expressed concern that worship services are poorly attended by the young. His dream included diocese members reaching out to others with love and concern especially in the area of alcoholism and for those who have experienced tragedy or trauma in their lives. He touched on the dangers of nuclear war, noting the arms race has the whole world on the brink of nuclear war.

He concluded, "I can't do much without you. We can't do much in two years, but we have to start."

Delegates elected 10 new members to the Pastoral Council. Elected from the Washtenaw-Brighton area was Paul Gray, St. John's parish, Ypsilanti. He will replace Robert Grace of St. Francis of Assisi parish, Ann Arbor, who has served since the inception of the council four years ago. Grace is leaving the council.

The assembly closed with a Mass Sunday concelebrated by Bishop Povish. Installation of newly elected members took place during the Mass.

Messiah Sing Slated In Ann Arbor Church

The 18th annual Community Messiah Sing, an unrehearsed performance of Handel's great oratorio "Messiah," will be held Sunday afternoon, Dec. 12 at 2 p.m. at St. Clare's church, 2309 Packard Rd., Ann Arbor. As usual, the performance is for the enjoyment of the performers themselves, who serve as their own audience.

Music director and conductor of this year's sing is Dr. Patrick Gardner, a professor of conducting at the University School of Music. Dr. Gardner is also director of the Michigan Men's Glee Club and of the University Choir, and will be remembered by many for his fine direction of the sing last year.

The sing is open to all area musicians—singers and instrumentalists—professional, semi-professional, serious amateurs, young, old, parents, children, family groups, choirs, etc. Vocal scores and orchestra parts are furnished by the organizer, Emerson Hoyt, who also provides cold cider for the mid-point break. Participants are asked to bring along some cookies, doughnuts, or other goodies to share.

The sing will begin at 2 p.m. sharp and singers should arrive by at least 1:45. All orchestra players should arrive by 1:15 for warm-up and briefing by the conductor, and should bring their own music stands. To insure a balanced and manageable ensemble, orchestra members are to pre-register.

London policemen are often called "bobbies" after Sir Robert Peel, the British statesman who organized the London police force.

Thank You.

At the November election 65% of the voters in the Washtenaw Community College District approved the millage renewal to support College operations.

We thank you for the confidence you expressed in WCC. We value that trust and pledge to continue sound, responsible fiscal planning and to provide quality education and job training.

Farm Leader Reappointed To Trade Committee

President Reagan has announced the reappointment of American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano to the advisory committee on trade negotiations. Delano will continue to serve as a private sector advisor on agricultural affairs to U. S. Trade Representative William Brock. He was a participant in the 88-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) conference in Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 24-27.

One of the items of discussion at the conference was the concern of U.S. farmers regarding the European Economic Community's expanded use of agricultural export subsidies. Since 1973, EEC export subsidies have increased fourfold.

★ Our Investment Program

The Michigan School Code allows for the investment of funds, but does limit investments to bonds, bills, U.S. securities, Certificates of Deposit, and commercial paper. Schools may invest only in instruments of the U. S. government or banks licensed to operate in the State of Michigan.

The school district operates an aggressive fund investment program within the limits of the law, which essentially safeguards the security of the investment.

During the 1981-82 school year, the interest income was as follows:

General Operating	$160,811
Debt Retirement Fund	42,018
	$202,829

The total interest income is equal to 1.165 mills. Lacking the investment income, the school district would have had to levy those additional mills to generate the same total income.

The general operating fund encompasses salaries, supplies, utilities, insurance, maintenance and transportation. The debt retirement funds are allocated to bond issues that were levied in 1956, 1965 and 1974. Within the school district, all checking accounts have been placed in NOW accounts which draw daily interest. General fund money for payroll is kept invested and transferred to the payroll account only on the day of paycheck distribution. General fund money for payment of regular bills is invested to come due on the day bills are paid.

Nearly all investments are in amounts over $100,000 to allow for the maximum negotiable interest rate. Money is also invested for short-term Prime Rated Commercial paper for as short a period as one week-end and as long as 13 days. Investments for 14 days or more are put into Certificates of Deposit to obtain the maximum rate.

Tax collections designated for the debt retirement fund are invested and withdrawn only to meet principal and interest payments which are due and payable every six months.

The Board of Education annually authorizes Assistant Superintendent Fred Mills to develop an investment program. The projected anticipated interest income is incorporated in our budget projections. In reference to the illustrations above, you can see the investment program is an integral part of our management system.

Agriculture Committee Shook Up in Elections

Republican members of the House Agriculture Committee took a beating in the 1982 elections and three Democrats will not be returning. No other congressional committee was shaken up so badly, according to American Farm Bureau Federation analysis. The defeat of veterans on the committee leaves the Reagan Administration without floor leadership on farm issues. "We are not sure it is possible or appropriate to attempt to read any 'farm program' message into the election," Farm Bureau officials said.
