AFTER 41 YEARS:

Gen. Dwight Beach Recalls Shock of 'Pearl Harbor Day'

Dwight Beach remembers Pearl Harbor vividly, even though he wasn't there.

The 74-year-old retired four-star United States Army general who lives with his wife, Florence at 11350 Jackson Rd. just east of Lima Center, was a captain in the army and stationed at Fort Shafter in the Panama Canal Zone on Dec. 7, 1941.

"I was taking a nap on that Sunday afternoon and was sound asleep," Beach recalls. "Somebody came in and shook me awake and told me that Japs were bombing Pearl Harbor. I couldn't quite believe it. We had been warned that a war might be coming, but the reality took awhile to sink in."

For the next several weeks Beach and his fellow soldiers worked around the clock to protect the Panama Canal against what they and their superiors in Washington considered to be a certain attack by the Japanese.

"To this day I don't understand why they (Japan) didn't try to plug the canal by scuttling a ship somewhere in the middle of it," Beach says. "It would have been easy to do, and it would have cut off a vital supply line and forced us to ship everything to the Asian war theater around Cape Horn. We were pretty helpless to prevent it."

Concern of the Panama garrison next turned to the Caribbean Sea which, in Beach's words, was for several months in 1942 a "German lake."

"The Germans had a pack of about 20 submarines in the Caribbean, and we really had nothing to keep them from doing whatever they chose. The few anti-submarine weapons we had didn't work. Army pilots kept coming back with stories about bombs that hit submarines and bounced off after failing to explode."

On one airplane flight from Panama to Aruba, a Netherlands-owned island off the Venezuelan coast, Beach counted 11 petroleum tankers burning, victims of German submarines.

"I don't think the American people knew much about what was going on down there," Beach says. "Censorship was very tight. And I don't think the story has been fully told to this day. The war was on our country's doorstep, but few people realized it then or now."

Beach applied for a transfer to the Philippine Islands, where hopelessly outnumbered American troops were fighting a desperate rear-guard action against a Japanese invading force. He didn't get it, and that may be why he is alive today.

His brother, Kenneth, an infantry lieutenant, did get an assignment to the Philippines. Kenneth Beach survived the battle of the Bataan peninsula, the siege of Corregidor, the ensuing "death march" after U.S. troops were finally forced to surrender, and two years of captivity.

He was killed when American forces invaded and recaptured the Philippines. The Japanese tried to take their prisoners off the islands in unmarked ships, which were bombed and sunk by U.S. planes.

"I'm pretty sure Kenneth was killed by our own forces," Beach says. "It was one of those terribly unfortunate accidents of war."

Instead of the Philippines, Beach was sent to Australia to head an artillery unit. "We were still using horses and mules to pull guns in those days," he remembers. "and we bought a bunch of Australian horses. They were wild. Just about the time we finally got them broken, the Army sent us some tractors. That was the end of the horse-drawn artillery."

A 1932 graduate of West Point, Beach began his Army service that year as a second lieutenant. He tried to make it as an Air Corps pilot but washed out in training at Randolph Field, Tex. That was another lucky break in his life, as it turned out, because he was transferred to the artillery at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. While there he met his future wife, a native of San Antonio. They were married in 1933 and will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next year.

Mrs. Beach was pregnant on Pearl Harbor day, and was evacuated from Panama to the United States, surviving a German submarine scare that caused her ship to be diverted from Miami to New Orleans.

Beach went on to Australia and participated in the long series of battles in the New Guinea chain of islands. By the time of the Philippines invasion he had been promoted to lieutenant colonel and put in command of an artillery battalion.

At the end of the war in the Pacific, he was part of the 24th Infantry Division which landed on the Japanese island of Shikoku to occupy it.

"The atomic bombs had been dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki," Beach remembers, "and the war was supposed to be over, but we weren't sure. We had been told that the Japanese might resist to the last man. They were supposed to be fanatics, and they had fought that way all through the war. We were very grateful when the people on Shikoku greeted us with open arms. They were as happy as we were to have the war over."

An unhappy memory is the immediate aftermath of the war which resulted in, in Beach's words, "the finest fighting force I ever saw being disintegrated. We were too quick to demobilize and return troops home, and we paid for it later."

Beach came back to the United States in 1946 and served in a variety of high Army positions. At one time he commanded the famed 82nd Airborne Division which distinguished itself in Europe during World War II and is still on the battle-ready front-line of forces to be first deployed if the nation needs to take military action.

Gen. Beach served in Korea twice, as chief of staff to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and as commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command. The latter assignment brought him his fourth star as a full general. Only five-star generals rank higher, and there have been but a handful of those in all U.S. history.

From Korea Beach went to Hawaii, the scene of the Pearl Harbor battle many years before, then came back to the United States as chief of research and development for the U.S. Army.

He did not have a command during the Vietnam War but went there "about 15 times" on advisory assignments.

Gen. Beach retired in 1968 at the mandatory age of 60 with the title of Commander in Chief of the U.S. Army of the Pacific, after 36 years of service, and has lived since at the Lima township farm home where he was born.

"I probably could have gotten a good job in private industry, especially after my tour of duty as research and development chief," Beach says, "but I just don't believe in that kind of thing. When somebody hires you that way you know they want to use your connections and contacts. That's wrong, and I wanted no part of it."

Gen. Beach is outspoken on issues of contemporary concern:

On Vietnam—"We won every battle over there, and still lost the war. You can't fight a war with half a dozen different chains of command and all the shots being called from Washington. It's a shame we lost, and it wasn't necessary, but we did."

On rearmament—"I agree with President Reagan that we need to build up our armed force to match the Russians. You'll notice (Continued on page five)

Civic Foundation Makes First Grant To Senior Citizens

The Civic Foundation of Chelsea has made an $8,000 grant which will enable the Chelsea Senior Citizens to establish a Lifeline System in the Chelsea School District. The grant is the first made by the foundation.

Lifeline is a personal emergency response system which helps elderly or disabled persons to maintain their independence.

The participant has a communicator at home with a portable emergency button that may be worn on clothing or carried in a pocket. In the event of trouble, the person can push the button, which sends a signal to the equipment attached to the telephone. The signal automatically notifies the response center (located at the Chelsea Community Hospital Emergency Room), where trained staff will arrange for appropriate help.

When the message is received, a staff member will immediately call the individual to determine the nature of the trouble. If the subscriber cannot answer the telephone, the staff member will call one of several people (a relative or friendly neighbor) who have agreed to respond in an emergency. The responder, who should live near the subscriber, will immediately go to the individual's home to check on the problem and arrange for assistance.

It is not necessary for the participant to physically push a button for an emergency signal to be sent. A signal for help is placed automatically if the individual fails to reset the unit within the pre-determined time period (12 or 24 hours).

In administering the Lifeline System, the Chelsea Senior Citizens plan a program of identifying appropriate participants in the system, installing the home units, training the participants in the use of the system, and monitoring the home units.

Installation of the Emergency Response Center will be done on Dec. 21 and 22. Home units will be installed following those dates as appropriate participants are identified.

Commenting on the grant, George Palmer, president of the foundation said, "The Civic Foundation of Chelsea is extremely pleased to make its first grant to such a worthy organization as the Chelsea Senior Citizens and for such a needed and valuable program as Lifeline. The entire community should benefit from this important program. I can't think of a better way for the Civic Foundation of Chelsea to begin its grant-making process than for Chelsea Senior Citizens and Lifeline."

Council Faces Decision on Electric Power

Chelsea Village Council is scheduled to decide tonight whether to buy a share of the output from the new Detroit Edison Co. Belle River electrical generating plant in St. Clair county.

If approved, the purchase would assure Chelsea an additional three megawatts (a megawatt is one million watts) a year of electricity on top of the 4-1/2 megawatts it presently buys from Consumers Power Co.

Chelsea is a member of the Michigan Public Power Agency (MPPA), a group of communities which banded together under the Michigan Energy Employment Act of 1976 to purchase electrical power jointly for resale to local customers.

The village is one of the relatively few local government units in Michigan which operates its own electric power utility. In most places residents buy electricity directly from Consumers, Edison or some other firm.

Besides Chelsea, members of MPPA include Bay City, Charlevoix, Crossell, Grand Haven, Harbor Springs, Hart, Holland, Lowell, Petoskey, Portland, St. Louis, Traverse City, Zeeland, Niles, Lansing, Paw Paw and Sebawaing. Chelsea Village Administrator

Frederick A. Weber, who represents the village on the MPPA commission, said he will recommend that the council approve the proposed contract with Detroit Edison.

"What MPPA members would be doing, in effect, is to buy shares of the Belle River plant and become part-owners," he explained. "Chelsea thus would have a vested interest in the plant."

The buy-in would be financed by revenue bonds sold by MPPA, to be paid off by receipts from power sold. Neither Chelsea nor any other MPPA member would be required to spend any money "up front" or pledge its faith and credit for the bonds.

Weber said that, initially, Chelsea would probably sell most of its three megawatts of purchased power back to Detroit Edison, which would then market it to other customers.

"I don't think we would need the whole three megawatts for at least 10 years," Weber said, "but having it available now would guarantee the village an ample power supply for a long-term future."

Of more immediate benefit would be an opportunity for the village to sell electricity to local industries on a more competitive (Continued on page six)

CIVIC FOUNDATION MAKES GRANT: George Palmer (right), president of the Civic Foundation of Chelsea, presents an $8,000 check to Shirley Dehn, president of Chelsea Senior Citizens, to establish a Lifeline System in the Chelsea area. At left is William Nuffer, chairman of the foundation's distribution committee.

WHERE IT STARTS: This telephone with attached special equipment is what participants in the Chelsea Senior Citizens Lifeline System will receive to place in their homes. In case of a problem in which the person in trouble can't get to the phone, an emergency portable button can be pushed and the response system activated.

A KEY TO THE LIFELINE: This telephone and connected set of automated files at the response center in the Chelsea Community Hospital is a key link in the Lifeline System for Chelsea Senior Citizens, insuring quick reaction to calls for assistance.

FESTIVAL OF LESSONS AND CAROLS planners met Dec. 3 at First United Methodist church to make final preparations for the Dec. 12 Advent event. Pat Stirling, left, will direct the mass choir which will sing two "Messiah" selections. The Rev. Marvin McCallum, pastor of First United, is chairman of the festival committee and is one of 10 area pastors who will read scripture tracing historical prophecies of the Christmas story. June Warren is director of music at First United and is on the committee. The Rev. John Morris, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, the host church, is also president of Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship, which is sponsoring the festival.

4 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, Dec. 14, 1978—

Chelsea High school juniors Jeff Boyer and Jim Fitzsimmons fooled everyone at the Chelsea Kiwanis annual children's Christmas party. Sergeant Robert Aeillo of the sheriff's department lent them his handcuffs, with the warning, "I didn't bring the key." One handcuffed boy was locked in a trunk and managed to switch places with the other one in less than 20 seconds to the amazement of everyone.

Chelsea Aquatic Club staged and won what may have been the biggest athletic event in Chelsea's history Saturday—the Super Six league championship meet with more than 3,000 swimmers and spectators and 2,400 events. Chelsea's 1,671 points was 277 more than runner-up Milan had. Three teams had swimming program's more than 20 years old, while Chelsea's is only two years old.

Chelsea Community Hospital has been granted permission by the county board of health to offer homebound services in the western part of the county. This will also make them eligible to receive federal and state reimbursements for these services just like the county-provided service.

Community Chest Fund's contributions feathered in front of the post office got a few extra inches painted on it this week when the drive topped the $23,850 goal with $23,910. Still more funds are expected this month.

Linden C. Pettys, an Ann Arbor architect, was appointed by the county building and grounds committee to study the former Chelsea State Bank building at 122 S. Main to see what changes are needed to convert it to a district court building.

Chelsea school children gobbled a record 1,648 turkey dinners Nov. 27. The number of diners prepared usually averages between 1,100 and 1,200.

Task Force Agrees on Unemployment Comp Proposal
 A proposal to repay Michigan's $2.2 billion unemployment debt to the federal government and restore the state's unemployment system to sound financial footing has been approved "in concept" by a joint Senate/House Task Force.

Approval of the plan is the first step in gaining Legislative approval before the end of the current session set to expire around Dec. 17.

Unemployment compensation reform was listed as the number one priority of the final 1982 session, but until the task force reached agreement, little hope was given for anything being accomplished during the session.

The proposal, which would raise some $3.6 billion over four years—$1.1 billion of that being paid by labor in the form of frozen benefits and tightened eligibility requirements for benefits—will be placed immediately before the Senate for first-house action.

The plan is a composite of some points recommended by Governor William G. Milliken last September. It has been supported by both labor organizations and the so-called "positive balance" employers.

Positive balance employers are those with very little turnover and, therefore, sending persons into the unemployment system.

The proposal does not prevent a federal unemployment penalty tax from being levied against all Michigan employers, beginning in January.

But S. Martin Taylor, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, said the proposal would relieve the state of that tax earlier than originally anticipated.

Taylor said the proposal should have the state's estimated $2.2 billion unemployment debt repaid no later than fiscal 1987-88, with interest bearing loans paid by 1985.

The employer aspects of the proposal would net some $2.5 billion over four years, meaning employers will pay approximately 70 percent of the "ratio of sacrifice" in solving the financial problem.

Within the employer groups, negative balance employers—those whose laid off workers have collected more in benefits than the companies have paid in tax—will pay approximately 55 percent of the total. The first component of the proposal is to raise the employers taxable wage base from its current $6,000 to $10,000 in 1986. The increase would be to $8,000 in 1983 and then in increments of $500 each year until reaching the $10,000 mark.

The second component—raising $417 million—modifies the "account building component" of the unemployment tax.

That tax is based on the amount of reserves a company has built up for unemployment compensation.

The tax currently is determined using a multiplication figure of .25 percent based on the amount of reserves, with a maximum tax of 2 percent of the employer's total unemployment tax.

The proposal would double the multiplication figures, but increase the maximum tax to only 3 percent.

Other components include: establishing a "solvency tax" charged against negative balance employers; phasing out the "limiter" on the amount of annual tax increase imposed on an employer; imposing an experience-rated tax against employers whose laid-off workers are getting extended benefits; and eliminating a federal unemployment tax credit for negative balance employers.

The main feature of the labor proposals is a four-year freeze in the maximum benefits at $197 a week. Total estimated savings of the freeze would then be lifted.

The labor equation would also save $257 million by further reducing benefits to 65 percent of the employee's after tax earnings, down from the current 70 percent. That would revert to 70 percent after 1986.

The proposal does not include a one-week waiting period before a person is eligible for benefits and a worker would have to work 20 weeks to qualify instead of the current 18.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ever now and agin I worry about not worrying. Has there got to be somepun wrong with me if I don't worry about somepun being wrong with me? Everwhere you turn, somebody is telling folks my age to be careful of this and not to worry to much about that. After some years of this you start thinking you must be crazy not to be crazy with worry.

Here I am, easing well past my three score and 10, and I am at peace with the world. I figger if I take care of living the dying will take care of itself. There's all kinds of sayings to keep us from worrying, but ever last one of em is based on the belief that we do. You might say today is the tomorrow you worried about yesterday, if you did. You could tell yourself you worried about not having shoes till you met a feller that had no feet, but you didn't. I am full agreed with my old lady. She says 95 percent of the things we worry about never happen, and if they do, it's late to worry.

The value of worrying come up Saturday night at the country store, and it was Zeke Grubb that allowed when it comes to doing a feller good, cussing is way ahead.

Farthermore, Zeke allowed, worrying probable got started when cussing died out. Real cussers knoed a thunder roll of words to suit ever situation, Zeke said, but them artists are long gone. Now all we got to pass fer cussing is a half dozen or so four letter words that have lost their value cause folks use em over and over. Zeke said he worries about the passing of cussing as a way to put some spark in the language and clean all the worry out of the system.

Actual, put in Bug Hook, machines was the death of cussing. A feller felt right cussing a balky mule, Bug allowed, but he feels like a fool hollering at a tractor. About all we got left to cuss is one another, and that usual brings on more worry than it gits rid of, was Bug's words.

Ed Doolittle was of a mind that it takes smart, successful folks to worry. He had saw this piece where the more a feller makes the more he worries. The item said company presidents making $300,000 to $700,000 a year worry about making bonuses that put them over the $1 million a year mark. Then they worry about inflation, income taxes, estate taxes and investments. Worse, Ed went on, they wish they could spend more time with their families, travel and relax and do all they can't do because they got to keep making money.

Mister Editor, there's a certain kind of outrage that comes with old age. Fer one thing, you realize the old geezers you use to see tottering about on their canes now is you. Fer another, you git sick of younger folks looking at you the way you use to look at people like you. But through it all you tell yourself that being alive and reasonable well beats the alternative six ways from Sunday.

Personal, I figger the only feller that really has cause fer worry is the one that said the biggest mistake in his life was buying stock in his company, cause now he worries about the lousy work he turns out.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew

Village Bakery Has New Owners

The Village Bakery changed ownership Dec. 1—John and Phyllis Muncer of 6401 Conway Rd. bought it from Art and Anne Steinauway.

Mrs. Muncer says she does not anticipate any immediate changes, since many of their valued customers are "regulars" who feel comfortable the way the shop is now. Staff and the business name will stay the same.

Although Mrs. Muncer says she expects to spend more time in the basement office than behind the counter, she did help customers juggling packages and coffee cups carry things to their tables and try some ice cream scooping last week.

"It's harder than it looks to get a tightly rolled full scoop and make it to stay on the cone!"

The Muncers bought the bakery, she said, because they wanted an independent business in Chelsea.

WHAT IS INVOLVED IN A FUNERAL COST?

There are generally four funeral expenses which can be incurred: 1) professional services of a funeral director and his funeral home, including facilities, staff-time, equipment and casket; 2) the cemetery plot and opening of the grave; 3) monument or grave marker; and 4) miscellaneous expense such as flowers, obituaries and extra limousines.

Some of these expenditures are optional. Most of them have a fairly wide range of costs, depending on the family's wishes. You will not find any undue influence exerted for exorbitant funeral costs by funeral directors in this service area. We — and most funeral directors we know — prefer that the funeral expenses be appropriate for each family served. We spend much time with each family to make sure that all arrangements and decisions will best serve their own interests. We'd be glad to discuss this in complete detail, showing you the ranges in pricing available to you.

ABWA Members See Holiday Crafts Demonstration

American Business Women's Association, Chelsea chapter, had both a Christmas decorations demonstration and a speaker on typesetting and graphics at their Nov. 23 meeting at the Wolverine lounge.

After dinner the group heard Diane Alexander, interior decorator at Merkel Furniture and Carpets, describe and show how to make wreaths, baskets and other creative decorations for the holidays.

Joan Lutck, who is employed by Total Type & Graphics in Ann Arbor, described the process of typesetting and brought along visual aids showing the many type sizes and styles available. She said she enjoys the creativity of her job very much.

Guest, Denise Brooks won the lovely flower centerpiece. Mickey Quackenbush won the white elephant, and Kathleen Chapman won the 50-50 drawing.

A "Builders Show" will be held in the spring to raise scholarship funds. More information on it will be available as plans progress.

The December meeting will be held Tuesday, Dec. 28 at the Wolverine with husbands and friends invited for the holiday celebration. Each member is asked to bring warm socks for the Youth Haven Home in Jackson.

Arts & Crafts Exhibit To Benefit Hospice Group

On Sunday, Dec. 12, an arts and crafts exhibit and sale will be held at the Holiday Inn for the benefit of Hospice of Jackson. The show will run from 12 noon till 5 p.m. and will feature paintings by Jackson artist Leland Beaman and stained glass pieces by Jackson's Kirby and Jay Johnson, Monette Thorrez and Judy Hundblad.

The Red Yee No. 2 artist collective (Kisti Beckwith, Robyn Blocksma, Lisa Cole, Audrey Leamon and Robyn Lubbs) will also have paintings, water colors and other mixed media on exhibit.

There will be ceramics by Lloyd Kemp, wood toys by Cal Goeschal, grapevine and bittersweet wreaths by Jim Richardson, baskets of bread by the Millpond Bakery, and a wine tasting sponsored by Katie and Sharon of the Pickle Barrel.

There will be entertainment throughout the afternoon with Dave Weatherwax, the Jackson Area Dance Council, guitar music by Steve Tucker and piano by Cris Reed. For the children there will be a "tent of movies" all afternoon.

"We are pleased that this project is being held for the benefit of Hospice of Jackson," said Kay Fitzpatrick, executive director of Hospice. "It is an ideal opportunity for people of the area to see the outstanding quality of works by local artists and craftsmen."

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Arthur Seymour

Knickerbocker-Seymour Vows Spoken at St. Paul Church

Patrice Jean Knickerbocker and Phillip Arthur Seymour were married at 5:30 p.m. Nov. 27 in a candlelight ceremony at St. Paul United church of Christ.

The Rev. Erwin R. Koch officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. George A. Knickerbocker of 455 Washington St. and the late Audrey Knickerbocker, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Seymour of Modesto, Calif.

James Stirling, Sr. sang "The Lord's Prayer," and the bride sang "Evergreen." Dr. and Mrs. James Holm, Jr., the bride's sister and brother-in-law, read from The Prophet during the ceremony.

The bride wore a long dress featuring a Queen Anne neckline, beaded chantilly lace overlaying a fitted dropped bodice, satin puffed sleeves with appliques, and a full satin skirt with cathedral train. She wore a natural flower crown with a cathedral veil and carried a bouquet of cascading gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Jana Lynn Knickerbocker of Chelsea. She wore a burgundy, satin dress with a Queen Anne neckline, fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and full skirt. She wore a half-crown baby's breath headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of ivory and burgundy carnations and roses.

Bridesmaids were Annette M. Houle of Houston, Tex., and Renee J. Houle of Chelsea. The bride's niece, Rebecca L. Holm of Clarksville, Tenn., was the flower girl. All their dresses were similar to the maid of honor's, and they carried bouquets of carnations.

Elaine M. Yocum of Chelsea was the honorary "mother of the bride" and wore a teal A-line evening gown with a tiered chiffon overlay. Mrs. Seymour wore a dusty lilac silk taffeta dress, with a ruffled scoop neckline and full skirt.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother, David B. Seymour of Modesto, Calif. Ushers were the bride's brother, Steven Knickerbocker of Midland, and James Power of New York.

A reception catered by Patricia Whitesall of Chelsea followed at the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club. Mrs. Dorothy Collins, the bride's aunt, and Mary Knickerbocker, the bride's sister-in-law, served the wedding cake. Katie Holm, the bride's niece, and Jean Yocum attended the guest book.

After a week-long wedding trip to Woodstock, Vt. and the eastern seaboard, the couple will return to Chelsea for a week. They will then travel to California where they will temporarily reside.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of Chelsea High school, attended Michigan State University. The bridegroom, a 1969 graduate of Stadium High school, Tacoma, Wash., served in the United States Air Force. He has been employed in hotel management for the last two years by Grand Teton Lodge Co. in Wyoming.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Women's Bureau is particularly concerned about certain groups of women who have not been able to enter the economic mainstream. These target groups include blacks, Hispanics, American Indians, Asian Americans and other minority-group members, displaced homemakers, young women, mature women seeking to reenter to job market, women offenders and ex-offenders, women with low incomes in rural areas, and women business owners.

No Strings Attached Program Will Be on Color Analysis

The monthly meeting of "No Strings Attached" was held Monday evening, Nov. 8 at the high school.

The program was conducted by Louise Hubal and Bonnie Cummings of Jackson. It consisted of a discussion of holiday stress with exercises and techniques to help reduce stress in our lives.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Dec. 13 at the High School Media Center. Guest speakers will be Barbara McLeroy and Diane Patricelli owners of "Palette Impressions" of Ann Arbor. They are personal color analysts and will talk about colors that make you look great and feel fabulous!! Their demonstration will help you assess natural colors and choose the ones that harmonize with your style and mood. Why just look good when you can look super! Barbara and Diane are available for individual color consultations.

All women in the community are invited to enjoy an evening of color analysis just in time to look your best for the Christmas Holidays!

For reservations or further information call the Community Ed. office at 475-9830. There is no charge for the program, but early reservations are recommended.

Elliott-Haas Engagement Told

Chelsea residents Vickie Elliott and Charles Haas have announced their engagement and are planning a July 31 wedding.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prater of 311 Garfield. She is a 1981 graduate of Alexandra Beauty College and of PCCAS College of Design, Grand Rapids. She specializes in hair and nails.

Mr. Haas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haas of 4534 Dexter-Townhall Rd., Dexter, is employed by Livonia Building Materials in Livonia and is a self-employed finish carpenter.

Tracy Cattell Selected To Albion Honorary Group

Tracy L. Cattell of Chelsea was recently selected to Albion College's chapter of Pi Sigma Sigma, the national public policy honorary, on the basis of outstanding achievement in public policy studies.

To be selected, upperclassmen must maintain at least a 3.3 grade point average (on a 4.0 scale) while being members of the Gerald R. Ford Institute for Public Service at Albion.

"Albion was one of the first colleges in the nation to charter a chapter of this new honorary," according to Mike Dively, director of the Ford Institute. The Ford Institute, established at Albion in 1978, offers qualified students a broad liberal arts education with concentrated study in the area of government and public service.

Cattell, daughter of Mrs. Lynda Cattell, 358 Washington, Chelsea, is a 1980 graduate of Chelsea High school, and is a junior majoring in Spanish at Albion.

Apprenticeship in the United States is expanding its scope to encompass more and more occupations that require a formal system of training and education, the U.S. Department of Labor reports.

Potters Guild Preparing for Christmas Sale

The Potters Guild, a collective, non-profit studio in Ann Arbor, will have their annual Christmas sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12 in a large heated tent on the guild grounds, 201 Hill St., Ann Arbor.

The guild, organized in 1949, is the oldest group in the city continuously producing and selling ceramics.

Although each potter works as an individual, he or she shares essential labors of running a studio, such as mixing clay, firing kilns, and repairing light fixtures.

Mary DeLaTorre Honored By U-M on Long Employment

Mary DeLaTorre of 524 Lane St., Chelsea, was honored by the University of Michigan for 30 years of continuous employment at a banquet Nov. 30 at the Michigan League, Ann Arbor.

She began working in the admitting department of Women's Hospital after her graduation from Dexter High School and has been there ever since.

Harold Shapiro, university president, spoke at the banquet and gave each 30-year employee a ring with the university seal on it.

Miss DeLaTorre's mother, Mercedes DeLaTorre, was her banquet guest and also attended the surprise luncheon given by the admitting department Nov. 30. Miss DeLaTorre was given gifts, a corsage and a bouquet of red roses at the luncheon.

Her father was the late Frank DeLaTorre.

Douglas Schoenberg Named Senior Real Estate Appraiser

Douglas R. Schoenberg, assistant vice-president with Great Lakes Federal Savings & Loan in Ann Arbor has been awarded the SRPA (Senior Real Property Appraiser) designation by the board of governors of the International Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

Schoenberg has been an appraiser for more than 11 years. He is a member of the Society's Washtenaw County Chapter No. 167. The SRPA designation is earned through a program of professional training covering the appraisal of both residential and income real estate.

Jon Goderis Wins National 4-H Honors

A Washtenaw County 4-H member has been selected as a national project winner at the annual National 4-H Congress Program held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, Ill.

Jon Goderis, 17, of Chelsea, received a National Project Award for his work in the Bicycle Safety Area. A member and teen leader in the Washtenaw Pedal Pushers 4-H club, Goderis has participated for six years on the State 4-H Bicycle Developmental Committee, taught bicycle options at MSU Exploration Days on road safety and bicycle maintenance, and anchored the repair crew on the annual "Coast the Coast" 4-H bicycle tour. For these accomplishments and other teaching and judging experiences, Goderis will receive a $1,000 scholarship provided by Friends of the National 4-H Council and recognition as one of six National 4-H Bicycle winners.

While in Chicago, Goderis will tour the Schwinn Bicycle factory in Chicago and participate in the National 4-H Congress program which annually involves more than 1,700 youth in recognition, leadership, and citizenship activities.

Jon is the son of Louis and Barbara Goderis of 3250 McKinley, Chelsea.

School Closings for Bad Weather Decided In Early Morning Hours

When the weather report sounds like the Antarctic moved to Michigan, Ralph Brier, transportation director for the Chelsea school district, doesn't get much sleep.

He sets his alarm clock for 3 a.m. If it is storming, he is out traveling about 40 miles of the 115-mile Chelsea school district bus routes by 3:45 a.m.

He knows which roads are likely to be in worst condition, and travels those. Wind direction determines which roads he checks for drifting. At times he himself has gotten stuck in drifts and has had to call for assistance.

He calls Raymond Van Meer, Chelsea schools superintendent about 5 a.m., and they discuss road conditions. Van Meer makes the decision about closing or staying open, and Brier gets on the telephone.

First call is usually to the state police's Law Enforcement Information Network, which is hooked up by teletype to radio stations such as WJR. At 5:45 a.m. the LEIN network starts broadcasts.

Only three persons know the code which Brier uses to notify LEIN and four other stations, WKMH in Jackson; WPAG, WAAM, and WNRS in Ann Arbor. They will only accept a school closing call for a district with that district's proper code—sorry to those with the school blues!

The LEIN network is available only in the morning, so if school is closed mid-day, parents should listen to local radio stations. Usually there is one to two hours advance notice of a mid-day closing so parents can make baby sitting and work arrangements.

The district has had only one bad weather accident in 16 years, said Fred Mills, assistant superintendent, and even that one was not bus driver error. Another car slid into the bus, which did not have children in it at the time.

White strobe lights should be installed on tops of the school's entire bus fleet sometime this month. The strobes are used in fog, rain and snow, and create a "halo" around the bus when the light hits water particles, said Brier. The schools have had numerous compliments on them since they were installed, he said. One caller said they make the buses more visible than they are on a clear day.

Widow's Group Helps Dispel Feeling of Being Alone Again

One of the hardest adjustments for a new widow to make, said Shirley Dehn, a widow since 1978 and member of the senior citizens center widow's group, is not being part of a social unit, the couple, anymore.

"If you're invited to a wedding," said Mrs. Dehn, whose husband Bill died in a snowmobile accident, "you either go alone or you don't go."

"We used to play a lot of euchre—a partners game," she said. "All of a sudden I didn't have a partner anymore."

But that adjustment is not just for obvious social occasions, she said. "When you drive to someone's house for dinner or go shopping, you drive alone."

Mrs. Dehn joined the widow's group, started by Mary Kilgore, a University of Michigan nursing graduate student, after she retired from the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home in 1980.

By that time she was "fairly well-adjusted" to her loss, she said. She had gotten through the immediate logistical business and moving problems but still had some grieving to do.

The group, which meets monthly, talks about and has speakers on both practical problem and feeling adjustments that come with the loss of spouse, such as car maintenance, the legal aspects of widowhood, making a will, nutrition for a single person, financial counseling from local bankers, and planning for their own funerals.

Group members also talk about things they don't tell their families, such as one woman whose husband had died at their lake home. The first time she drove there, she cried the whole 150-mile drive. Another cannot stand the smell of burning leaves; or another turns off the radio when one of her husband's favorite songs comes on.

The group is not limited to just older widows or to just widows, said Mrs. Dehn, but it is awkward for widows in the group, now single women, to ask a widower if he would like to join without it seeming like a pass.

"I guess we are waiting for a widower to make the first gesture which we would welcome," she said. Group members do call newly widowed women—perhaps on a Sunday, a day many found to be especially lonely because it was a traditionally together day.

Just meeting as a group is helpful too, she said. "You have to get outside of your home and yourself."

Losing one's spouse is not easy, whether one has been married 5 or 45 years, suddenly or with a prolonged illness.

"You'd think a woman whose husband had a terminal illness would have made her adjustments beforehand," she said. "But that long period of nursing and comforting can make a couple so close, that those widows are often hardest hit."

The widow's group will have their next meeting at 10 a.m. Monday, Dec. 13 at the North school senior center. They will have a Christmas pot-luck brunch with a 50 cent gift exchange. They meet the second Monday of the month.

Call the center at 475-9242 or Mrs. Dehn for more information.

3 of 4 Jailbreakers Now Back in Custody

Three down and one to go. That's the score in the search for four prisoners who escaped from the Washtenaw County Jail in Ann Arbor Nov. 20. One was caught the day after the escape, and two others were recaptured last week-end.

Still at large is Bruce W. Jackson, 26, of Ypsilanti.

Back in custody are: Michael Gregory of Ann Arbor, whose bid for freedom ended in Pittsfield township less than two miles from the jail.

Daniel D. Wright, 25, of Ann Arbor, arrested in Oakland, Calif., last Friday on information supplied by Washtenaw Sheriff Tom Minick and now awaiting extradition back to Michigan.

Daniel L. Valentine, 21, caught by Clare county sheriff's men while breaking into a house at Harrison last Saturday afternoon.

The quartet escaped from the jail by bending bars in a detention cell window and squeezing out through an opening barely six inches wide.

A resident of the Glencoe Hills apartment complex, next-door to the jail, has been arrested and charged with harboring the

Warm Weather Sets December Records

May in December is over, at least for now.

Last week's balmy weather broke all kinds of records for the first week of December, as temperatures soared into the low 70's on several days.

Dandelions popped into bloom and some leaf buds began to swell during the spell of spring-like thermometer readings accompanied by on-and-off rain punctuated by periods of sunshine.

It began to end yesterday as a cold front moved through Michigan. Temperatures in the 30's, normal for this time of year, are forecast for today and the rest of the week. Skies are expected to clear, providing bright and crisp days more typical of this time of year.

Last week's unseasonable weather resulted from an unusual set of meteorological conditions—a strong storm system pushing eastward from the west coast which drew warm air up from the Gulf of Mexico.

The collision of the two systems caused a strong, slow-moving front that triggered high temperatures and, in states south and east of Michigan, heavy rains which produced widespread flooding.

While stream levels in southern Michigan are well above their normal highs for this time of year, there is no immediate flood threat. There could be a problem next spring when the run-off adds to the heavy volume of water already present.

There could also be winter damage to tree and shrub buds which started to grow five months before their normal time.

Merchants hoping for a rush of Christmas buying welcomed the change to more seasonable weather. Cold and snow are thought to put people into the Christmas spirit and buying mood.

General Beach . . .

that the Russians haven't made any moves since we announced our plans. Before that they were pushing everywhere."

On the Army—"Younger men have taken over command, and that is good. Most of my contemporaries are either retired or dead. (Gen. George C.) Marshall made a lot of enemies during World War II by replacing old field commanders with younger ones, but he was absolutely right. You have to be young to handle the stress of field command. The Army is getting some excellent recruits these days, because young people have realized that military service is an attractive career. It certainly was good for me."

The military tradition continues to run in the Beach family. A son-in-law is stationed in the Netherlands as a U. S. Army officer in the Allied Forces of Central Europe. A son and another son-in-law are retired from military service.

Altogether, the Beaches have five children, who are scattered over the world, from Holland to Houston. They spend considerable time visiting them, and just last week returned from a three-week trip to Europe.

When not traveling, they enjoy themselves at their spacious, tastefully furnished and decorated Centennial Farm home which has been in the Beach family since 1853. It is the last and best of the 32 houses that the Beaches have lived in during their marriage.

Gen. Beach farms 50 acres of land, gardens, rides horses, looks after fruit trees and grapes, feeds and watches birds, and generally enjoys a leisurely but busy life.

His brother, David, owns 60 acres on the north side of I-94, which splits the old 160-acre homestead in two, much to Beach's disgust. The highway took out about 50 acres of the original farm.

"I suppose they had to build the road somewhere," he says, "but I sure wish it had been someplace else. I've planted evergreen trees and hedges to try to screen out the noise and the sight of the billboards. About all I've accomplished is to be over-run with rabbits. We also have squirrels and deer and pheasants, and used to have some quail which I hope will come back. I hunt, but not on my own property. Those birds and animals are pets."

The place is called Wild Gobo Farm, a name thought up by Mrs. Beach. "Gobo" is the Chinese word for burdock, a weed that is plentiful on the Beach premises. In China burdock roots are used for food, but the plant is considered an unmitigated nuisance in this country.

Gen. Beach's name will live after him in the title of Dwight E. Beach Middle school, and he isn't quite sure why. "I didn't donate any land or any money for the school," he says, "and I have never been particularly active in education. They were looking for a name, and chose mine because I had been a general. I'm grateful that they did it. It's nice to be remembered."

Gen. Beach in no way fits the common caricature of the blood-thirsty military type. He is as gentle a man, and as much a gentleman, as anyone you would want to meet.

WILD GEESE WINGING SOUTH: The sight of a wedge-shaped flight of Canada geese is familiar at this time of year as the birds form flocks and head south for the winter. Leader of the flock is always an older bird, usually a female. Others fall in behind. The wedge formation enables trailing birds to ride the wind-break patterns established by those ahead, much as racing car drivers "tail-gate" on cars up front.

Police Groups Discuss Alcohol Abuse

County law enforcement officers and operators of by-the-glass liquor establishments got together last Wednesday night at Chelsea Lanes to talk over how they can help each other to keep alcohol abuse problems—especially drunk driving—under control during the holiday season.

The meeting was sponsored by the Jackson-Washtenaw unit of the Michigan Licensed Beverage Association (MLBA) and was arranged by its director, George Glinesky, who operates a resort at Pleasant Lake in Jackson county.

Purpose of the affair, which is held annually, was to reinforce co-operation between police agencies and bar owners in enforcing laws against drunk driving, selling alcohol to minors, and other problems connected with liquor consumption in licensed bars.

Police officials attending included Washtenaw county sheriff Tom Minick; Ann Arbor police chief William Corbett; undersheriff Kirk Profit; Lt. Robert Pfiffer of the Ypsilanti state police post; Kenneth Edwin, director of the state substance abuse control agency; Robert Popp, president pro-tem of the MLBA; Rod Brown, executive director of the association, and Glinesky.

About 60 representatives of licensed bars were present. They included several who are not members of MLBA, which is a voluntary organization. "We made a special point to invite non-members," Glinesky said, "because we think the problems are important enough to concern all bar owners."

Police representatives said at the meeting that they know of no special, unusual problems involving operations of bars in the county. Sheriff Minick stated that, to his knowledge, there are no illegal liquor sales establishments in Washtenaw.

Spokesmen for MLBA made the point that most traffic accidents in which alcohol is a factor involve persons who have been drinking at home rather than in bars.

Everybody agreed that there is now way to "police" private parties from a low enforcement standpoint, and that it is therefore up to individuals who give parties and who attend them to prevent driving by persons who have had too much to drink.

License Plate Stolen

A car license plate was reported stolen from an address at 8289 Broad St., Dexter, over the weekend. The number is ZKW081, Sheriff's deputies said.

Parent Teacher Groups Hold Games Workshop

A Christmas games workshop for parents was held Wednesday evening Dec. 1 at North school.

Teachers Sally Burchfiel and Lynn Davis had suggestions for parents who ask, "What can we do with our children at home to help them with their schoolwork?"

The ideal game should be fun and teach something without seeming like a drill, said Ms. Burchfiel. Many games already in the home can easily be adapted to get a little more learning in. After rolling dice for a move, she suggested the child spell a word with that many letters, or spell a word for a turn, or run through times tables for that number.

Many games teach memory skills, and others teach colors and orientation to right and left, an important skill for reading and something many learning disabled children have trouble with, she said. Twister is a game on the market which does both, or parents can make a similar game.

Coin collections teach both organization and the worth of money, she said, while a scrapbook teaches categorizing and develops the fine motor skill of cutting. A gift of a diary may encourage a child to write, and give him something to chuckle over in 20 years.

Parent Teacher North and Parent Teacher South co-sponsored the workshop with supplies donated by Washtenaw Intermediate School District.

If more interest is expressed, another workshop may be held.

Pinckney Area Youth Returns from North Atlantic Deployment

Navy Aviation Boatswain's Mate 1st Class Steven R. Hale, son of Roger N. and Marilyn S. Hale of 11205 Patterson Lake Dr., Pinckney, has returned from a deployment to the North Atlantic. He is a crewmember aboard the amphibious transport dock ship USS Trenton, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

During the 2½ month deployment, the ship participated in various NATO exercises including "United Effort," "Short Engagement," "Northern Wedding" and "Bold Guard." Following the exercises, port visits were made to Wilhelmshaven, West Germany and Portsmouth, England.

The Trenton is 570 feet long and carries a crew of 473.

M. Gorton Riethmiller Authors Book on Olivet

M. Gorton Riethmiller, a native of Waterloo, graduate of Chelsea High school and former president of Olivet College, is the author of a new book titled "Upon This Hill," subtitled "My Affair With Olivet."

The book is a history of Olivet College, a small private school located in the village of Olivet since 1844, and is also in large measure an autobiography of the author, who served as Olivet president from 1957 to 1970.

A copy of "Upon This Hill" has been donated to the Chelsea Public Library and is available there for loan. Copies may be purchased from Olivet College, Olivet 49076, for $16.95 plus $2 postage and handling charge.

In the early pages of the book Riethmiller recalls his boyhood experiences which included walking to Chelsea High school from Waterloo. He didn't do it every day, only on week-ends. He boarded in Chelsea during the week.

After graduating from high school, Riethmiller went on to earn degrees from Olivet and from Wayne State University. From there he entered the Highland Park school system as a teacher and administrator.

His presidency at Olivet spanned a period during which the college struggled to survive and rebuild after a combination of depression, war and ideological conflicts almost forced its closing.

In more recent years Riethmiller has been a member and president of the State Board of Education, an elected body, and is currently a member of the Michigan Higher Education Facilities Commission/Authority.

He lives in Eaton Rapids and works as a private consultant to educational institutions.

Health Careers Class Sponsoring Blood Drive

Chelsea High school will sponsor a blood drive from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14 in room 23 of the science building.

Students from the health careers class and in the Health Occupations Students of America chapter will interview prospective donors, but Red Cross nurses will do the actual blood drawing.

Interview to the obligatory post-donation 10-minute rest period, (when donors get to stock up on orange juice and cookies!) will take about 45 minutes, said Colleen Clark, a health careers student.

Community members may make appointments in advance by calling 475-9131 and asking for Karen Ruhlig, the health careers teacher. If she is not available, the receptionists will take a name, phone number, and preferred time. Mrs. Ruhlig will call back the prospective donor to confirm the time.

Donors must be at least 17 years of age. All student donors must have written permission from their parent or guardian to donate, but may be excused from class to give blood.

Donors will be asked questions, such as whether one weighs more than 110 pounds; have you donated in the past eight weeks? had jaundice or hepatitis or been in contact with anyone who has in the past six months? been pregnant or had a terminated pregnancy in the last six weeks? a history of a malignancy, minor skin cancer excluded? had teeth extracted or oral surgery in the last three days? had penicillin in the past 48 hours? had malaria or anti-malarial medication in the past three years or immigrated from a place in that time where malaria is endemic? had major surgery in the past six months? Are you a diabetic on insulin?

Electric Power Decision Due . . .

As Weber explained, it, the price that Chelsea pays Consumers Power for the electricity it presently buys allows the village to offer residential and commercial customers somewhat lower rates than they would pay if they bought directly from Consumers.

That isn't true for industrial users, however, and most therefore bypass the Chelsea Electric & Water Department and deal directly with Consumers.

"The new (Edison) power source would make us competitive on industrial rates," Weber asserted.

Two years ago Chelsea made a similar buy-in to Consumer's Campbell No. 3 plant, and is committed to buy 1.85 megawatts of power annually from that source. Weber said the arrangement was worked out well, Chelsea "owns" 4.87 percent of the Campbell plant, which is located on Lake Michigan north of Holland.

A year ago Chelsea turned down an MPPA proposal to participate in a study of the feasibility of using existing hydroelectric (dam) sites to augment power production. "There were just too many problems," Weber said, "including the tangled ownership of the dams."

Charlevoix, Hart, Holland, Lansing, Lowell, Petoskey,

Portland and Traverse City are already committed to the Belle River project. Chelsea and other MRPA members must decide no later than Thursday, Dec. 9. Weber emphasized that the Belle River plant is not a nuclear facility. It will generate electricity with steam produced by conventional fuels (coal, fuel oil, natural gas).
The council held a private "working meeting" on Nov. 30 to obtain information on the proposal. They heard approving advice from Charles North, a representative of the engineering firm of Cummins & Barnard of Ann Arbor, electrical consultants to the village, and Garry Cornish, a spokesman for the R. W. Beck national engineering company which is co-ordinating the project for MPPA.

Festival of Lessons, Carols Slated Sunday

At the Festival of Lessons and Carols, 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12 at Zion Lutheran church, 10 area clergy will read scripture tracing the historical prophecies and the Christmas story, and vocal and bell choirs from seven area congregations will perform.

The community orchestra will accompany the mass choir formed from church choirs and the congregation in the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah"—the grand finale. The mass choir will also sing the Messiah selection, "Glory to God." Special music includes the First United Methodist church's bell choir, the Tintinnabulators; Chelsea High school Contemporaries; and combined children's choirs from Zion Lutheran church, St. Paul United Church of Christ, and First United Methodist church, who will sing "That First Christmas Day" and "Carol of the Children."

Susan Goodson, Zion's organist, will play as prelude, "From Heaven Above Earth I Come," by J. Pachelbel; as offertory, "A Rose Tree Hath Arisen," by M. Drischner; and as postlude, "From Heaven Above to Earth I Come," by J. S. Bach. Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship, which organized the event, will divide the offering between the different concerns of Faith in Action and the fellowship's treasury for local needs and concerns.

Following the festival a fellowship hour will follow in Zion's basement fellowship hall.

Those who wish to sing the Messiah selections with the mass choir are invited to attend two rehearsals, 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12, both at Zion, 3050 S. Fletcher Rd. at Waters Rd., Rogers Corners.

MADD Steps Up Campaign Against Drunk Drivers

President Reagan has signed into law a resolution establishing the week of Dec. 12-18 as "National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week."

Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) announces a national candlelight vigil to be held across the country and in Canada, on Sunday, Dec. 12. Please put a light (not a real candle for safety reasons) in your window to show your concern for this national problem.

In recognition of "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week," the Washtenaw county chapter of MADD is also asking MADD members and other concerned citizens to drive with their car headlights on during daylight hours throughout the week to bring attention to the issue of drunk driving and its consequences. "This will be the culmination of our efforts in 1982 and the start of the holidays ahead campaign," said Candy Lightner, president and founder of MADD. "MADD is dedicating the activities of this national awareness week to the victims of drunk drivers."

MADD's National Headquarters will be sending a letter to major corporations to alert them to the dangers of combining alcohol and driving and to request that corporations provide free taxi service to their employees after holiday office parties.

An occupational illness is any abnormal condition or disorder, other than one resulting from an occupational injury, caused by exposure to environmental factors associated with employment, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's revised publication "All About OSHA."

Film on Alaska Slated Saturday

DENNIS BURKHART

Chelsea Kiwanis Club will present Dennis Burkhart on "Wilderness Trails of Alaska," at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11 at Chelsea High school auditorium. This is the third program in the "Travel and Adventure" series.

Burkhart will begin the evening in Juneau, the state capital and a bustling fishing port, and use it as a jumping off point for Glacier Bay National Monument via a 70-mile kayak trip into this wilderness. The quiet bay, ringed by mountain peaks and thundering glaciers, is the home of seals and whales.

Then hike the famous Chilkoot Pass, now the new Klondike Gold Rush National Historical Park and follow in the footsteps of the "sourdoughs" on the trails of 1898. Return will be via the narrow gauge White Pass and Yukon Railroad.

A raft trip down the Yukon River, thoroughfare for explorer, traders, miners and salmon, is followed by an exploration of the Charley River, now a proposed national park. The floating trip ends in Circle, an old gold town.

Take a look at active Fairbanks, the University of Alaska campus and busy commercial district. From Fairbanks, one will experience the massive beauty of the Brooks Mountain Range, most northerly mountains in the nation and slated to become one of the largest parks in the U.S. national parks system.

Mt. McKinley National Park, dominated by the continent's highest peak, provides a majestic backdrop to one of the best game viewing areas in the world.

The tour ends with a ride on the Alaska Railroad with homesteaders, hunters and tourists to Anchorage, the state's largest city, the Katmai National Monument, and Seward and Kenai Peninsulas, all enhanced with close-up looks at Alaskan wildlife.

Burkhart, a former naturalist ranger for the U.S. National Parks Service, was born in San Luis Obispo, Calif. While still a high school student he crossed the Pacific by cruise ship to live in Australia for a year. During his first travel-adventure, he developed an interest in photography which began with award winning photos in scholastic publications, expanded into studio and wedding photography and eventually led to publication in National Geographic Magazine.

After getting a political science degree from Linfield College in Oregon, Burkhart joined the Peace Corps as an agricultural officer in Kenya. He spent five years in Africa, and shortly before he left, he photographed the Indian Ocean reefs for the National Parks of Kenya, the National Museum and National Geographic.

Drama Class Play Slated Next Week

Chelsea High school stage and drama class opens their comedy, "The Mouse That Roared" next week. They will perform for Beach Middle school students Tuesday, Dec. 14 and Wednesday morning Dec. 15 for high school students.

Their performance for the public is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 16.

Thad Bell, a senior, will star as Billy Bascom, a simple-minded forest ranger who becomes a major leader of the army of Grand Fenwick, a tiny European country that declares war on the United States.

Lisa Von Wald, a junior, will play Duchess Gloriana, the princess of Grand Fenwick. Tom Mull will play Count Mountjoy, an aristocrat who is Gloriana's over-bearing uncle. Other leading characters include Rob Beaudoin, who will play David Benter, leader of Grand Fenwick's dilutionist party; Rob Moore, who is Professor Kokintz, a brilliant nuclear physicist; and Thom Schumann, who plays Chet Beston, the U.S. Secretary of State.

Tickets for the Dec. 16 performance are general admission only, and are on sale at the Chelsea Pharmacy.

Battle Develops Over County Road Comm. Appointment

County Commissioner George Merkel of Chelsea may hold the key to whether western Washtenaw county continues to be represented on the County Road Commission.

Up for grabs is the road commission seat being vacated by James K. Daniels of Chelsea, whose term expires on Dec. 31. Daniels is retiring voluntarily after serving more than 12 years on the road body.

Actively politicking for the appointment is Gerald Faye of Ann Arbor, who lost out in the August primary in his bid for re-election to the County Board of Commissioners and apparently seeks the road post as a consolation prize.

The road appointment was supposed to be made at last Wednesday's Board of Commissioners meeting, but wasn't. Instead, the board deadlocked after 10 roll-call votes were taken and no candidate for the road commission post won a majority.

The commissioners finally resolved the issue, temporarily, by adopting a resolution to put the road appointment off until its next meeting on Jan. 5.

By that time it will be a whole new ball game, with new players. The present 15-member board will cease to exist, and a new nine-person group will take its place. Faye will be among those absent when the new board convenes.

Merkel won a seat on the new board and promises that he will continue to press for appointment of somebody west of Ann Arbor to take Daniels' place on the three-member road commission.

"It's only fair and right that west Washtenaw, which has two-thirds of the roads in the county, should have one-third representation on the road commission," Merkel said. "With the help of some others who feel the same way I do, I was able to block Faye's appointment last week, and I am going to do my best to prevent it again next month."

Merkel noted that the two other road commissioners are from the metropolitan areas of eastern Washtenaw. They are Bent F. Nielsen of Ann Arbor and Norman E. Kennedy of Ypsilanti.

"I think Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti are entitled to seats on the road commission, and I supported the appointments of both Nielsen and Kennedy," Merkel said. "Now it's west Washtenaw's turn, and I expect some support from the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti people."

"Between now and Jan. 5 we will go over the list of candidates again and try to come up with a person acceptable to a majority. The first qualification, as far as I'm concerned, is that the appointee be from somewhere west of Ann Arbor."

Last week's tie-up among county commissioners was a classic example of practical politics in action. In a straight party-line vote, Merkel and his adherents would have lost. Merkel is one of but four Republicans on the present 15-member board, and will be one of only two on the new nine-member panel.

Fortunately for the interests of west Washtenaw, the heavily Democratic majority on the board is split over the road commission appointment. Some agree with Merkel that the western part of county deserves to be represented, and are helping him.

Going into last Wednesday's meeting, Faye had seven votes (including his own) lined up, but needed an eighth. He couldn't get it through the 10 roll-calls. Nor could any other candidate get the required eight-vote majority.

Merkel's nominee was Emory W. Garlick of Manchester, head of an Ann Arbor-based construction company. Garlick is planning to retire soon and presumably could give a lot of time to service on the road commission.

Commissioner Donald N. Duquette of Ann Arbor, a Democrat, put in the name of Mona Walz of Ann Arbor, a former deputy county drain commissioner.

Garlick and Walz never mustered more than four votes each on the roll calls, but their combined totals were enough to deny Faye the appointment. Result was that nobody won.

Majority Democrats on the Board of Commissioners are sensitive to criticism that the board has tended to "reward" its own members, past and present, with appointments to advisory boards and commissions, without regard for competence or geographical distribution.

The backlash of that criticism was reflected in the recent appointment of Nancy Burkhalter of Chelsea to the County Planning Commission, thus giving west Washtenaw a representative on that body. Mrs. Burkhalter had previously served on the commission but in 1981 was dropped in favor of a political appointee who was, ironically, Gerald Faye.

Faye did not seek reappointment to the planning commission, deciding to go for the road commission post instead. That opened the way for Mrs. Burkhalter's appointment.

"I don't see how Faye could possibly do a decent job on the road commission," Merkel said. "He teaches at Oakland Community College and is up there all day. The road commission meets on Wednesday afternoons and I have to wonder how Faye could get to meetings while holding down his teaching job."

Members of the road commission are paid $3,000 a year and serve for six years. While not especially rewarding financially, the position carries both prestige and political clout. Merkel suggested that Faye may be seeking the post "just to keep his hand in" in county politics.

Meanwhile, Daniels, who is co-owner of the Chelsea Lumber Co., said he is leaving the Road Commission "reluctantly" after serving two full six-year terms and part of another.

"I've enjoyed it," Daniels said, "but I believe it's wrong for public appointees to stay on too long. There should be some turnover. I decided a year ago that I would quit at the end of this term, and I am sticking to that decision."

Daniels agrees emphatically with Merkel that his successor should be someone from the western part of the county and is surprised that any other possibility has arisen.

"There is an important principle involved here," Daniels said. "West Washtenaw deserves a voice in county government, whether it's roads or anything else. I can't quite understand all the contention (over appointing his replacement) because the logic is so obvious."

Daniels said he has made no recommendations as to his successor and does not intend to, but added that he fully supports Merkel's stand. "Somebody from out here (west Washtenaw) should be on the Road Commission," he insists. "Anything else would be unfair."

The new Board of County Commissioners will try to resolve the issue on Jan. 5. Merkel hopes to have a candidate and five votes (a majority) lined up by then.

Teen-Agers Charged With Arson in Whitmore Lake Fire

Two young teen-agers have been charged with arson in the $500,000 fire which destroyed the Apex Builders Supplies Co., Whitmore Lake, on Sunday night, Nov. 28, Washtenaw sheriff Tom Minick announced at a press conference.

The boys, age 13 and 14, will be tried in juvenile court. Their names were not released because of their ages. They are being held in the county's juvenile detention center on Platt Rd. near Ann Arbor.

Sheriff's deputies arrested the pair on Wednesday, three days after the fire, as a result of tips from citizens and leads provided by investigating police officers. Both boys have previous juvenile delinquency records.

One of the youngsters lives down the street from the lumber yard which burned, the other about a quarter-mile away.

Minick said the boys apparently torched off the fire as a prank, pouring stolen gasoline on a pile of lumber and then lighting a match to it.

Twelve area fire departments worked through the night to control the blaze and finally put it out, but not before the Apex firm's two buildings, five vehicles and stockpile of lumber and other building materials had been destroyed. The Bio-Sentry Engineering Corp. building next door was damaged.

Apex owner Charles Gilboe of Manchester has announced that he plans to rebuild and reopen the business, located at 9191 Main St. in Whitmore Lake village. His loss was partially covered by insurance.

Substation Personnel Named

In a change of operations at the Chelsea sheriff's department substation Sgt. Donald N. Wenk has been appointed in charge of the day shift and will be on duty from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sgt. Harley Ryder will supervise the 4 p.m. to midnight afternoon shift.

The midnight to 8 a.m. night shift will continue to be supervised by the sergeant on duty at the main sheriff's department office on Hogback Rd. east of Ann Arbor.

Detective Paul Wade will continue to work out of the Chelsea station and cover west Washtenaw county. The station is located at 14000 Old US-12, in the northeast corner of the building that houses the Chelsea schools' bus garage.

The change took effect on Dec. 1. Previously, supervision of the Chelsea station was provided from Ann Arbor, by telephone and radio. Assignment of full-time sergeants to the day and afternoon shifts is new.

Sgt. Wenk said there will be three deputies working the day and afternoon shifts, in addition to the sergeants, and two at night. He added that he and Sgt. Ryder expect to spend considerable time out of the office, on patrol, to augment the deputies' services.

The number of women in apprenticeship has increased from less than 1 to more than 3 percent in recent years; women are now represented in 56 apprenticeable occupations, compared with fewer than 10 formerly, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Christmas Films Offered By Scouts

Chelsea Senior Troop No. 47 will be bringing two holiday films to Chelsea to help children celebrate the season. The films will be shown on Friday, Dec. 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Chelsea High school auditorium. They will include "The Littlest Angel" and "Hansel and Gretel." The program will run until 8:30 p.m. and will include the singing of Christmas carols at the end of the program.

This project has been organized as a joint public service and fund-raising effort by the Scouts. It is hoped that parents may take this opportunity to do their last-minute holiday shopping in Chelsea while their children enjoy the films. Chelsea merchants who have generously provided financial support for the project include: Jack Merkel, Schneider's Grocery, Strieter's Men's Wear, Grove 5 cent to $1 Store, Inc., Kusterer's Grocery, Foster's and Vogel's and the Chelsea Craft Company.

Tickets will be available at the door and advance ticket sales will be announced.

Any questions may be directed to Sandy Patterson, Scout leader at 475-8223.

3 Escapees Nabbed, 2 Others at Large

The revolving door out of Camp Waterloo and Cassidy Lake Technical School continues to spin. Chelsea police captured three runaways from Camp Waterloo last week, and also logged two more escapees from Cassidy Lake.

Patrolman Richard Walter arrested the three Waterloo fugitives early Thursday morning, Dec. 2, on the I-94 entrance ramp at the Pierce Rd. interchange. They surrendered without resistance.

Back in custody are Philip E. Howard, 26, of Berrien county, serving 4 to 10 years for breaking and entering; Charles R. Horton, 26, of Kent county, also serving 4 to 10 years for breaking and entering, and Jeffery O. Duncan, 23, of Adrian, sentenced to 7½ to 15 years for breaking and entering.

The three were lodged in the county jail to await pickup by state officials.

Meanwhile, Cassidy Lake authorities reported that John C. Yeomanus and Herman J. Gamelin, both 18, escaped on Friday. Yeomanus was serving 1½ to 5 years for receiving stolen property, and Gamelin was under concurrent sentences of 1½ to 10 years for larceny and 3 to 5 years for carrying a concealed weapon.

Community Orchestra Plans Concert

The newly-formed Chelsea community orchestra will present their first concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home game room.

Lynda Culver and Joyce Meade will share conducting of the 15-member string section with members from Chelsea and Manchester.

The entire group will play "A Wreath of Carols," by Ralph Matesky; "Pavane," by Maurice Ravel; selections from "Capriol," a suite for string orchestra by Peter Warlock; and "Christmas Carols," arranged by Merle J. Isaac.

The Miller Quartet within the orchestra will play Quartet No. 23, ("Eine Kleine Nachtmusik") by Mozart. The M-C Junior String Ensemble, some of the younger musicians in the orchestra, will play "Minuet and Trio," by Frost and "Herald Quartet," by Dancla.

The orchestra began practicing in September in the Chelsea High school orchestra room.

Call Pat Stirling at 475-1112 for more information about either the concert or the orchestra.

METALS I CLASS at Chelsea High school had a visitor Dec. 1 from the North Central Association evaluation team, Hal Vanwagen, who is wearing the name tag. Teachers, principals, counselors and librarians observed classes and talked to teachers and students as

Suspects Arrested In Trailer Theft

Chelsea police patrolmen Richard Walter and David Dettling last week recovered a U-Haul trailer stolen in the aftermath of a hit-run accident on I-94 in Jackson county, and arrested two suspects in the theft.

According to the village police report, the U-Haul was left at the scene of a minor collision, when the driver of the car that had been towing the trailer unhitched it and sped off.

Jackson county officers shortly afterward saw occupants of another car hook up the trailer and head east on I-94. Alerted by radio alarm, Walter and Dettling intercepted the car and trailer at the M-52 interchange just south of Chelsea.

Arrested were Thomas E. Groves, 27, and Dorothy L. Easterday, 18, both of Detroit. Two 16-year-olds also in the car were not charged.

The trailer was impounded, and the two suspects were released to Jackson county authorities.

Accrediting Team Impressed By School Students, Staff

Chelsea High school's "strengths far outweigh any weaknesses" it may have, said Don Geiger, leader of the 18-member team doing the school's seven-year evaluation last week for the North Central Association, a 17-state accrediting body.

Before the team made up of counselors, administrators, classroom teachers, librarians and an athletic director left Dec. 2, they gave an oral evaluation of their two-day stay at a staff meeting.

Chelsea High school has two important resources—an impressive student body and a caring staff, was the consensus opinion, said John Williams, high school principal.

Students' behavior, dress, "self-direction," and helpfulness in answering questions about their school and giving directions was impressive, several persons told him.

Teachers seemed to have a comfortable but proper relationship with students. Team members said they noticed school personnel talking to students in the hallways before school, tutoring one-on-one, and answering questions without being too buddy-buddy.

One Class A school principal told Williams he would like a curriculum as broad as Chelsea's. That breadth is necessary, said Williams, since Chelsea's student body is so diverse.

Geiger, principal at Adrian High school, visited the elementary and middle schools and the community. He said the community is "very supportive" of the school, reported Williams. Those interviewed liked the utilization of its facilities, such as the senior center at North school, the pediatrician's office at Beach school, and night-time community education classes.

The school maintains good communication with the community through The Chelsea Challenge, a newsletter mailed to every home in the district, not to just parents, said the team. They commended the good sharing relationship between the school and community.

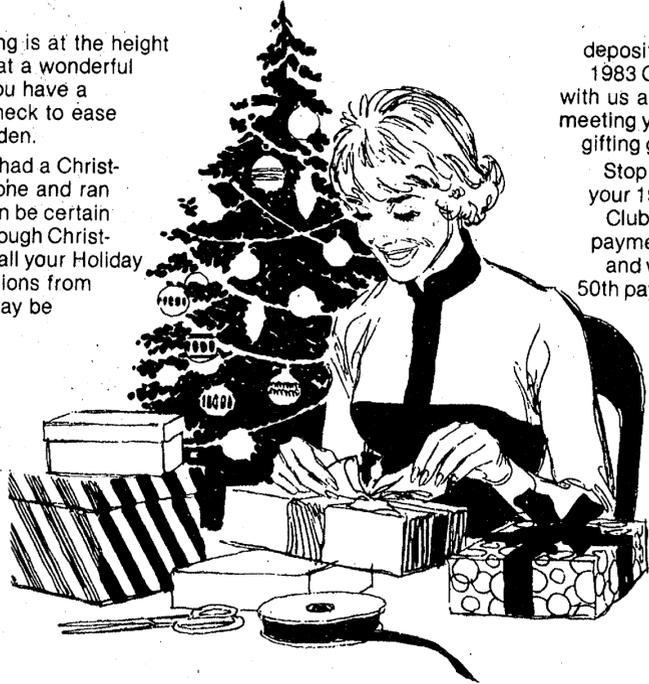

They had some recommendations, too.

The school's physical layout with so many separate buildings hampers communication between staff, especially in bad weather. Many teachers don't see

Bulldog Varsity Cagers Roll to Easy 87-65 Win Over East Jackson

Chelsea's varsity basketballers got off on the right foot last Friday night with an easy 87-65 win over outclassed East Jackson in the Bulldog gym.

The visiting Trojans scored the game's first basket, but that was their only moment of glory as Chelsea rolled to a 25-14 lead at the end of the first quarter, made it 43-27 at the half, and coasted home in a sloppily played second half.

Big story of the evening was provided by senior forward Carl Pate, who wasn't supposed to play but did in a big way. Pate suffered a shoulder separation in Chelsea's final football game of the season and was declared out of basketball action until after the Christmas holiday break.

However, the shoulder healed faster than expected, and Pate's doctor gave him the go-ahead to play. He came off the bench midway through the first quarter and proceeded to pump in 20 points during the rest of the first half to pace the Bulldogs' hustling offense.

Pate added six more points in the second half to finish with 26 for the night, which tied him for scoring honors with Dave Wojcicki, guard and captain, who does it all when he's on the floor. Wojcicki had 13 points in each half, served up assists, rebounded, defended and provided inspired leadership.

"He makes us go," coach Robin Raymond said of Wojcicki after the game, while also praising Pate for his inspired play. "Carl is a scrapper and a hustler," Raymond said. "He lost some practice time because of his injury, but he showed what he can do even though he probably wasn't in 100 percent condition."

Raymond started an all-veteran quintet of Marty Steinhauer and Dave Mann at the forwards, Dave Kiel at center, and Wojcicki and Matt Villemure at the guards.

As the score rolled up and Bulldog dominance became evident, Raymond went to his bench and gave everybody a lot of playing time. Ten Bulldogs got on the scoring chart. Kiel, with 11 points, was the only other Chelsea player to register double-digit numbers.

It was a typical first game of the season, marked by spurts of excellence and some segments of poor play. Over-all, Raymond was happy about the whole thing.

"We played the kind of aggressive, hustling basketball that we wanted to play," he commented. "We moved the ball well, and our shot selection was good."

"We got into foul trouble early, but our bench took the pressure off. We had too many 'cheap' fouls and way too many turnovers. Those are things we will have to work on."

Class C East Jackson was 16-5 last season but graduated all of its starters, and their replacements simply could not match up with the Bulldogs. The Trojans' lone bright spot was forward Dave Branham, who contributed 24 points.

The junior varsity game was a sorry mismatch, with Chelsea rolling up a 73-25 score. JV coach Paul Terpstra used everybody, and it didn't make much difference who was playing.

David Steinhauer led the scoring with 15 points, Mark Henson had 12 and Scott Miller 10.

The best any East Jackson player could register was four.

Chelsea travels to Pinckney tonight for its final tuneup before opening its Southeastern Conference schedule against Tecumseh there on Friday. Looming big on the calendar is a Dec. 17 date at Dexter, the last contest before the holiday break

WOJCICKI SHOOTS AND SCORES: Dave Wojcicki takes aim on a long jump-shot that swished through the hoop. The all-league guard and captain didn't get a whole lot of playing time last Friday as Chelsea rolled over East Jackson, 87-65, but still managed to score 26 points. Other Bulldogs in the picture are Carl Pate (44) and Eric Schaffner (20).

Wojcicki, Neibauer Earn All-State Honors

All-state high school football team selections are beginning to come out and, so far, Chelsea has had two honorable mention winners.

Quarterback Dave Wojcicki and two-way lineman Mike Neibauer have been named on one or another of the "dream" squads.

Wojcicki's nomination comes as no surprise. He received honorable mention a year ago, as a junior, and had an even better season this fall, accounting for more than 1,600 yards in total offense. A gifted passer and talented runner, Wojcicki, also handled Chelsea's punting and place-kicking duties, and played in spots as a safety on defense in passing situations.

Neibauer is one of those unsung heroes in the line who too seldom get the recognition they deserve. He has been a three-year starter at tackle on both offense and defense, playing almost every minute of every game. His blocking on offense helped open a lot of holes for Bulldog ball carriers, and he got more than his share of tackles on defense. Neibauer has been a steady, consistent performer throughout his career.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Those who proclaim themselves to be experts in the art of prognosticating basketball—which I am not and will never pretend to be—have established Chelsea, Dexter and Milan as triple co-favorites to win the Southeastern Conference title. That is probably as good a guess as any, although the other four SEC teams have ideas of their own and will no doubt have a lot to say about which school comes out on top of what promises to be a season-long scramble for supremacy.

If any one word describes the SEC basketball outlook this winter, it is "balance." None of the seven schools can be considered hopelessly out of the title picture. There probably is not a great team in the group—"great" being used in the sense of state champion potential—but there are several good ones and no apparent pushovers.

Before going any further, let me say that I consider basketball the least predictable of all sports, and high school basketball the least predictable of all levels of the game. Short of tearing up money and using it for confetti, I can't think of a better way to go broke than to bet on schoolboy cage contests.

Anybody who pretends to think he knows how a high school game, much less a season, is going to turn out is either a fool or a braggart, and quite possibly a liar to boot, and I like to believe that I am none of those.

Chelsea has been installed as a slight favorite because it has three starters and three other letter-winners coming back from a team that finished strong last year to win a share of second place. The Bulldogs are led by all-league guard and captain Dave Wojcicki, who is as versatile on the basketball floor as he is on the football field. He very likely will be the outstanding individual player in the conference this season.

Defending champion Dexter has been downgraded a notch because four of five 1981-82 starters were lost to graduation, including all-time-leading school scorer Rob Ianni. However, center Eric Sing, one of the conference's premiere players, will be back as will five other seniors who had playing time and game experience last year. Dreadnaught coach Jim McCormack is optimistic about his team's chances for a repeat run at the title.

Milan has to be included among the top three contenders simply because it is Milan, a school with a strong and rich basketball tradition which goes back into the 1940's and includes a couple of state championships. The Big Reds almost always put a strong team on the floor and have had only one losing season in the past 15 years. Beyond that, veteran coach Ron Dingman has three starters back from last winter's team that tied Chelsea for second place, plus five other letter winners. Milan will have more experience, on the floor and on the bench, than any other SEC team.

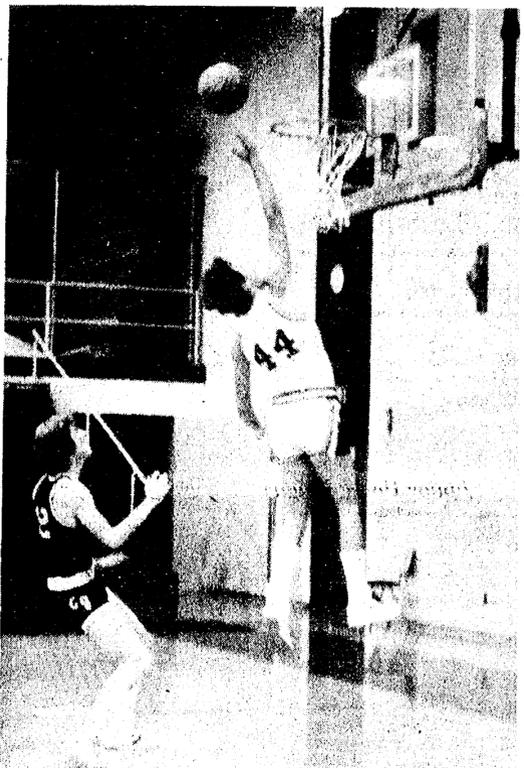

Lincoln, Saline, Tecumseh and Jackson County Western brought up the rear of the SEC pack last year, and none has prospects for spectacular improvement this time out. Lincoln graduated three starters, and Saline, Tecumseh and Western four each. However, with the hope that springs eternal, coaches at all four schools are lurking in the weeds waiting for the front-runners to stumble. All appear capable of springing upsets, a word which perhaps shouldn't be used in connection with high school basketball because underdogs win so often.

Chelsea coach Robin Raymond is especially wary of Lincoln which, he says, just may have more raw talent than any other team in the league. "They have a couple of exceptional players and could win it all if they put things together," Raymond noted. Dexter's McCormack said much the same thing about the Railsplitters.

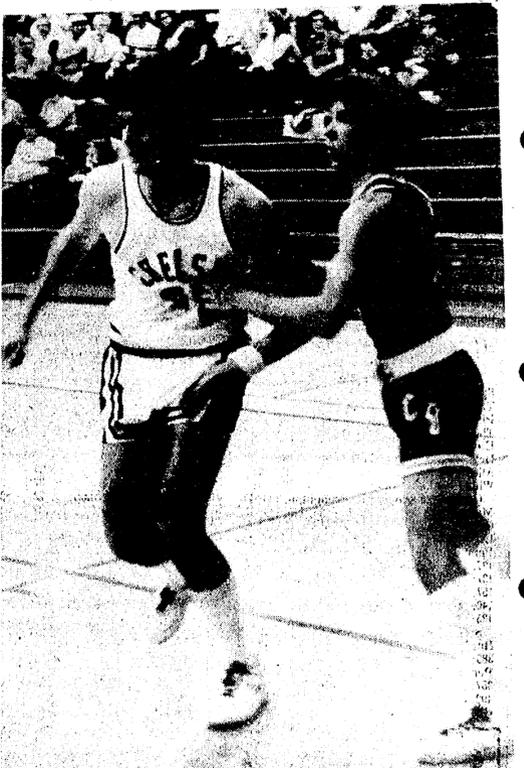

Based on experience of having played and watched basketball for more than 40 years (most of it has been watching in recent times) I would venture that the eventual conference champion will be the team that can split even on the road while mopping up at home. The home-court advantage is big in basketball. No two gyms are exactly alike. The floors, backboards and lighting are each and all a little different, and the home team familiar with the peculiarities of the court has a decided edge.

Beyond that, there is the crowd factor. The fans sit so close to the floor, especially in high school gyms, that they become part of the game. You can't help but hear the gyrans noise, and it either motivates or intimidates you, depending on which team you are playing on.

One mark of a champion is the ability to win away from home, and I will be surprised if this year's SEC title-winner is not the team that has the best road record.

HE WASN'T SUPPOSED TO PLAY: Carl Pate lays it up for two of his 26 points scored during Chelsea's opening game basketball win over East Jackson. Pate, a substitute forward, wasn't supposed to play at all until after the holidays because of a shoulder separation suffered in the Bulldogs' last football game. He got well in a hurry.

NOT A CONTACT SPORT? Theoretically, nobody is supposed to touch anybody in basketball, but this Chelsea player was definitely grabbed and held by his shirt in this bit of action. Although 49 fouls were whistled during the game, this one wasn't.

Aquatic Club Drops to 2nd

After two age group competitions last week, Chelsea Aquatic Club is in second place in the Southern Michigan Swim League championships.

Ann Arbor Y is leading after the 8- and unders meet Nov. 29 in Brighton and the 9-10-year-olds meet Dec. 1 in Ypsilanti with 933 points. Chelsea is in second place with 783 points; Milan, 722; Ypsilanti, 507; Brighton, 285; and Jackson, 77.

Chelsea's 8- and under girls won their category with 250 points, 30 more than Ann Arbor had.

Last night the 11-12-year-olds meet was held at Cameron. The 13- and older time-finals will begin at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at Cameron.

Good swims are needed tomorrow, said Reed, if the CAC is to win. Although there is still a good chance for the CAC, whose strengths are in the older age groups, he had not expected the team to be 150 points behind at this point.

Bulldog Wrestlers Win One, Lose One in Dual Competition

Chelsea High school's wrestling team recorded a split in two dual meets and a third-place finish in its own invitational meet during a very busy first week of the season.

Coach Kerry Kargel's fears that his team would have problems in the heavier weight classes proved well-founded in the Nov. 30 season opener against Columbia Central, which the Bulldogs lost, 37-31.

Chelsea dominated up through the 132-pound class, but lost every match from 138 pounds on up, except for the heavyweight division which the Bulldogs' Eric Eeles won by default.

Actually, Chelsea might have won the meet had Ernie Bristle, perhaps the team's best wrestler (he was sixth in the state meet last year at 98 pounds), been able to make the 105-pound weight. He didn't, and his substitute lost by a pin, a six-point swing in the scoring.

Pete Hanna (98 pounds), Bill Hanna (112) and Travis Rudd (132) all pinned their opponents, and Mark Rosentreter (119) and Jeff Morgan (126) won lopsided decisions. However, it was all Columbia Central after that, except for the heavyweight default.

The Bulldogs came back two nights later to thrash Stockbridge, 60-18 in a wrestling rarity — a meet in which every match but one was decided by falls. The exception was the 105-pound class, where the Stockbridge entrant was disqualified for unsportsmanlike conduct.

The two Hannas, Rosentreter, Morgan, Rudd, Scott Dault (138 pounds), Eric Stofflet (145) and Blake Alder (198) all pinned their opponents.

Stockbridge grapplers scored pins in the other weight classes. "It was a most unusual meet," Kargel commented. "You very seldom see that many pins. Our (Chelsea) kids were motivated by a very enthusiastic crowd who helped us keep our momentum going."

Last Saturday's 10-team Chelsea Invitational saw the Bulldogs finish third with 126 points behind Rochester-Adams which won with 222 points and Jackson Northwest with 170. Dexter came in fourth with 117.

Other entrants were Ablon, Lake Fenton, Linden, South Lyon, Stockbridge and Vandercook Lake. A total of 130 wrestlers, using three mats, put on a continuous program which began at 11 o'clock in the morning and wound up at 9:30 p.m.

Jackson Northwestern's Gary Nanton, a 110-pounder who was a state champion last year, was judged the meet's outstanding wrestler.

Chelsea wrestlers winning first places were Bill Hanna (112 pounds), Morgan (126) and Rudd (132).

Bristle, seeing his first action of the season, placed second in the 105-pound class and might have won his final match, according to Kargel, but for the fact that he was "a little weak" from his personal struggle to make weight.

Pete Hanna came in third at 98 pounds and Dault fourth at 138.

PETE HANNA is Chelsea High school's wrestler of the week. Wrestling at 98 pounds, the lowest weight on the roster, Pete pinned both of his opponents in the season's first two dual meets and finished third in his weight class at the 10-team Chelsea Invitational meet. The plastic poking out of a hole in the knee of his warm-up pants is part of his practice equipment. Wrestlers trying to manage their weight often wrap themselves in plastic to induce sweating and weight loss.

"We still have a lot of problems in the heavier weight classes," Kargel said at the conclusion of the week's activity. "We will keep trying different people, and hope they develop. For the most part we are working with freshmen from 145 pounds up, and they have a lot of learning to do."

The Bulldogs travel to Jackson County Western Thursday to open their Southeastern Conference schedule. On Saturday, Kargel will split his squad to cover two invitational meets, one at Linden and another at Dexter. He expects both to be tough and noted that several state champions will be wrestling at Linden.

THE CHRISTMAS TREAT for these Bulldog swimmers will be swimming close to 10 miles a day. Now they only swim seven miles daily because they have less time. They open their season Thursday against Monroe away, and their first home meet is at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 16 against Okemos, a Class B swimming powerhouse. Team members are Mark Ahrens, first row, left, Matt Ryan, Dan Degener, Paul Robbins, Scott Pryor, Mark Westhoven, Craig Miller,

Swim Team Training Now in Preparation for State Meet

Bulldog boy swimmers will peak for the state meet March 11-12, said coach Larry Reed, a priority combined with a tough schedule which may mean dual meet losses during the season.

Swimming has only this state championship meet, no league or regional crowns—a good reason for this all-eggs-in-one-basket approach.

Dual meet days, such as this Thursday's season opener against Monroe away, will be much like any other day, he said. They will have their usual 1 1/2 hour morning swim, go to school, have their twice-weekly weight lifting after school, swim an hour or so, and have about a 15-minute rest before meet time—unless travel time to away meets cuts it shorter.

That kind of day takes some getting used to, he said, especially for first season swimmers developing mental competitive toughness.

Chelsea swimmers have the "roughest dual meet schedule of any Class B team in the state," he said. They face four of the top 10 Class B teams, three at home, Okemos, Fenton, and Battle Creek Lakeview, and three of the top 20 Class A teams.

When the Chelsea swimming program began in 1976, Reed says he set up a relatively easy dual meet schedule for the first few years to establish a winning tradition and the confidence that comes with that.

But then the first time Bulldog swimmers faced anyone faster than them was at the state meet. To peak mentally for that state meet, Reed said, the swimmers had to start getting used to competing against faster teams.

It takes dedication to be on Chelsea swimming teams. At their morning workout, they average 6,000 yards and another

5,000 in the afternoon—an average of close to seven miles a day!

good chance at the state meet this year, said Reed, and the four-member diving team is very strong.

Other returning state meet swimmers are John Hoffman and John Drew.

The team's first home meet is at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 16 against Okemos, a dark horse candidate for the state championship.

Recreation Areas Reduce Services for Winter Season

Even though the winter outdoor season is just about to begin, the Waterloo Recreation Area is all but shut down until next Memorial Day week-end.

Area manager Glenn Robb said that only the Big Portage Lake campground, the horse trail camp south of Sugar Loaf Lake, the Mill Lake outdoor center and the Burns frontier cabins will be open and available on a guaranteed regular basis during the winter months.

The privately operated riding stable concession on Trist Rd. west of Clear Lake Rd. will be in business, as probably will the Waterloo Nature Center in a limited way.

"People will be free to use all of the Waterloo Recreation Area during the winter except for those specific sites and facilities that are gated off and posted as closed," Robb said. "They will have to travel at their own risk. We won't plow snow out of any access roads or trails other than those advertised as being open all winter."

Robb is not happy about the limited opportunities being offered, but says there is no alternative under the circumstances. To meet severe budget reductions at the state level the Waterloo staff has been cut from 13 to 7 persons, and funds for all operating and maintenance purposes have been slashed in proportion.

"We just don't have the people, the equipment or the money to do the kind of job we wish we could this winter. The public will be denied some recreational opportunities, no question about it." As an example, Robb cited the Green Lake campground north of Chelsea, off M-52, which was closed and gated on Dec. 1, the day after the firearms deer season ended.

"It's a beautiful rustic campground, one of the finest of its kind in the whole state park system," Robb commented. "It provides access to a lot of public land for deer archers and rabbit hunters, and there is some ice fishing on Green Lake. Besides all that, it's a nice spot for winter camping."

"But there is no way we can keep the access road plowed out, patrol the campground and keep it cleaned up. If people can find a safe and legal place to park along M-52 and want to walk in, they are welcome to do so. Otherwise, it's closed until Memorial Day week-end."

Robb added that the state has just taken possession of a 290-acre tract just north of Green Lake as an addition to the Waterloo area.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Dale Fisher played a "dirty trick" on me a week ago Saturday night. That is his expression, not mine. If anybody else wants to make me the same kind of victim, I am ready and eager.

Dale has gone on to great things in the photography profession since the time that he and I worked together at the Ann Arbor News during the mid-1950's, when he was a staff photographer and I was city editor. His helicopter commercial and art photos are the best I have ever seen, and I've looked at a lot of pictures. His print exhibition at the Chelsea Fairgrounds was startlingly beautiful.

What happened was that Dale invited me to a special ceremony at which he proposed to honor my bosses, Walter and Helen May Leonard, publishers of The Standard. He told me my role was to say some nice things about the Leonards, who have been publishing this paper for 35 years and, in their own way, are as important landmarks in Chelsea as the clock tower on the building next door to the newspaper office.

Saying nice things about the Leonards would have been easy, and I was primed and cocked to do it.

Instead, Dale made the speech about Mr. and Mrs. Leonard and then shocked me out of my shoes by paying me some very handsome compliments that I don't deserve but was gratified to hear anyway.

Many, many thanks, Dale.

In the wake of all this, the thought occurs that I might use this column to introduce myself to the readers of The Standard and The Leader. I came to work in September, sat down at the typewriter and began punching out words, which is basically what I have done all 36 years of my working life. I figure that I've written more than 10 million words, and plan on producing a few million more before I call it quits. Having spent the better part of a year in "retirement" before coming to work for the Leonards, I can testify that the so-called "life of ease" is not for me. After catching up on deferred travel and some other personal odds and ends of business and pleasure, I was itching to get back to work, and here I am.

A very brief biography: Born in Detroit, educated at the University of Michigan and Columbia University, 16 years at the Ann Arbor News, a year teaching journalism at the University of Montana, a year in the Booth Newspapers State Capitol Bureau, 17 years as a publicist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. I've done a lot of different things—covered every kind of news there is including a few "big" stories, edited copy, written headlines, taken pictures, authored magazine articles, and sold my soul as a hired mouthpiece for state government (a long chapter in my life that I'm trying hard to forget).

The connecting thread in all of this is outdoor writing, which I began to do in 1947 and have continued in one way or another ever since. It is what I enjoy most and what I suspect I therefore do best. By giving me the opportunity to write this column every week, Walt Leonard has done me a great favor.

I don't want to try to fool anybody, so let me put it on the record that, when I write about hunting, I'm coming from past rather than present experience. I don't hunt any more. Catact surgery on both eyes a couple of years ago put an end to that part of my life. I can see well enough for almost all purposes, but lost just enough peripheral vision that I no longer feel 100 percent safe handling guns in the presence of other people. When it comes to firearms, anything less than 100 percent safety is not good enough.

Forty-five years of hunting have left me enough memories to recall and write about for as long as I expect to live, and I keep in touch with friends who are active hunters and fill me in on what's going on out in the field.

I still do some fishing, and expect to do more now that I'm back living in an area where there are both abundant water and lots of fish. You don't appreciate what this part of Michigan has to offer in fishing opportunities until you have been forced to live in the "desert" around Lansing, where you can count the number of lakes on your fingers and have a few left over (fingers, that is).

My wife and I go camping, where we have the chance and spend much of our leisure time walking around outdoors, observing and enjoying.

One of my hobbies is collecting wild mushrooms, an enthusiasm that Mrs. Mulendore frankly doesn't share. She and I both got frighteningly sick one night many years ago after eating a bunch of mushrooms brought to us by all people. Dr. Alexander H. Smith of the University of Michigan, Alex. Smith is this country's foremost expert on mushrooms and their edibility, but something went amiss that time. (Actually, the cause could have been something else we ate at the same meal.) To this day Vivian won't taste any mushrooms I bring home except those bought in a grocery store.

My knowledge of practical field zoology (animals and fish) is reasonably good, but my background in botany (plants) is sadly lacking. To be able to identify all the trees, shrubs, wildflowers, grasses and weeds that I see would add much to my enjoyment of the outdoors. Similarly, I am ignorant of geology, the most basic of the earth sciences in terms of understanding the natural world we live in. Adult education courses are the obvious answer. One is never too old to learn.

All of that hodge-podge may have served to tell you a little bit about me, so that you can read future columns with better understanding of the guy who wrote them.

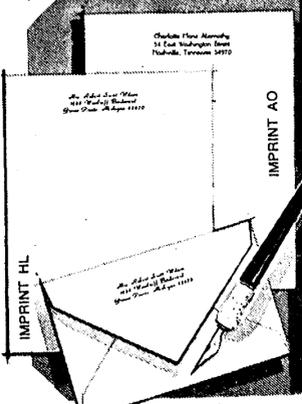

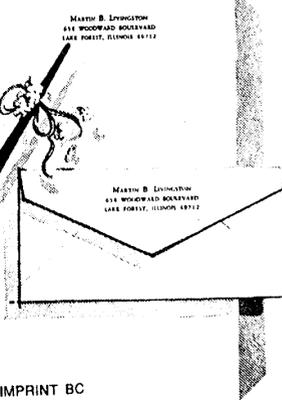

Finally, I like to hear from readers, and especially appreciate suggestions as to how I can better serve your tastes and interests. I won't satisfy everybody, but it's fun to try.

Girl Swimmers Place 12th in State

Bulldog girl swimmers placed 12th with five varsity records in the Class B state championship meet held Dec. 3-4 at Grand Rapids Junior College.

Last year they placed 13th, so coach Von Acker was quite pleased, he said, with their end of the season peak and placing, considering it was also a much faster meet than 1981. They will only graduate two seniors from this year's team, Kristin Thomas and Vicki Harrell.

Chelsea had 32 points. East Grand Rapids won the meet, Dexter was 14th and Milan was 16th.

Top Bulldog finisher was the 400-yard freestyle relay. Dawn Borders, Marji Rawson, Kristin Thomas and Liesel Culver placed seventh in a varsity record of 3:51.16. That was the fourth fastest time at the meet, but the Chelsea team had only qualified for the consolation finals. That meant they could only place as high as seventh.

Lead-off swimmer for that relay, Dawn Borders, set a new varsity record for the 100 free, 57:09.

The medley relay team of Borders, Paula Kuzon, Paula Colombo and Culver finished eighth with a time of 2:02.11.

Colombo placed highest: individually for the Bulldogs, ninth in the 500 free in 5:32.61, another varsity record. She also took 12th in the 200 individual medley, 2:23.94, a new freshman record.

Thomas was 11th in the 500 free at 5:35.30. She broke the old varsity record in the preliminaries, but Colombo beat that time in the finals. Thomas set a varsity record in the preliminaries of the 100 fly, 1:03.88, and placed 12th in the consolation finals, 1:04.55.

Dawn Borders missed the flip turn in the 50 free, but still managed a time of 26.4, a "great" time, said Acker, considering the turn.

Rawson set a varsity record in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:16.75, but did not make either finals. Her time in the 200 IM was 2:24.86.

Vicki Harrell dove in the regional meet Nov. 30, but did not make the 30 diver cut-off for the state meet.

"Both days were very exciting," said Acker. "We couldn't have asked for better drops in times at the right place."

John Dunn Earns Albion Varsity Football Letter

Albion College junior John Dunn of Chelsea received a varsity letter for his participation on the 1982 Albion College football team. Dunn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn, 555 Washington St., played at the quarterback position.

The Britons ended up the season with a 3-5-1 record overall and a 2-2-1 record in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference play. This record placed them in a tie for third place with Kalamazoo, behind first- and second-place Hope and Adrian, respectively.

Albion's "Briton" athletic teams compete in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA), as well as in NCAA.

Visiting Athlete Reports Ring Stolen From Locker Room

Stockbridge lost more than a wrestling meet against Chelsea last Thursday evening at Beach Middle school. A member of the Stockbridge wrestling squad, Raymond D. Massey, had a class ring stolen from a locker at the school. Village police are investigating.

During fiscal year 1981, much of the work in the Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration was in the area of regulatory reform. As part of their efforts to implement the Economic Recovery program, ESA took several actions designed to reduce the cost of compliance with federal law while retaining needed protection for workers.

Card of Thanks 16

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of our wonderful friends and relatives for all the love, support and gifts we were given through the illness and recent death of our son, husband and father. Special thanks to Don and Linda Cole, the Rev. Fr. Philip Dupuis, Deacon Richard Cesarz and to all at Chrysler Proving Grounds. Lillian Houle. Mary Houle Marie, Gary and Jeremy Montange. Mark and Denise Houle, Kevin and Kerri. Tom Houle and Carol Hafner.

CARD OF THANKS

This is the season of gifts. We wish to thank John Mitchell of Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home for honoring Father Dupuis on his Dec. 8 ordination anniversary, with the gift of holy cards for all the families of St. Mary's. Thanks, John.

Millie Warner.

CARD OF THANKS

LeRoy Heller, Robert and grandchildren, and the late Carl Heller, Ella, Loren, Earl and grandchildren would like to thank Pastor Morris and everyone for their kind thoughts and contributions in regard to our mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank Gertrude O'Dell and Opal McNamara for preparing and serving the delicious dinner.

The family of Gerald Fletcher.

THANK YOU

My family and I would like to thank everyone who had a part in the excellent emergency care I received on the night of my accident. Also, we would like to thank the doctors and nurses for the good care they gave me during my stay at University Hospital. I would like to thank my relatives, friends, and neighbors for the plants, flowers, gifts, numerous cards, visits, and phone calls I received while in the hospital and since my return home. Special thanks to Pastor Morris for all his visits and prayers. Thanks to everyone who was so helpful to my family while I was in the hospital.

Paul Prentice.

each other for weeks at a time. Williams says they will consider solutions such as changing the structure of staff meetings or have additional informal times to see each other.

The school's two-year-old daily 15-minute reading period to encourage reading needs to be revitalized. The team liked the idea, but thought it had gotten old hat to students and staff.

The custodial staff should be re-organized, so that preventive maintenance is done on a regular schedule.

Textbooks need to be systematically up-dated.

The pottery kiln needs a vent to the outside, which has been budgeted in capital outlay for this year, said Williams. Although it would be cheaper to vent it out a window, students walk right by that sidewalk, and no one should be directly breathing the minerals and fumes which fire out of clay and glazes. They may have to put such an industrial quality vent through the roof.

The chemistry lab should also have a simple shower in case someone spills something on themselves. Now they just have an eyewash.

Something needs to be done about the public address system, which has been a past problem. It

Mott's Holiday Store Set Up By Lioness Club

Children who are hospitalized at Mott's Children's Hospital over the Christmas holidays this year will be able to do their own Christmas shopping.

The "Holiday Store" will open within the walls of the hospital for the first time in what is hoped to be an annual event. The children will need no money to purchase gifts for their families.

A member of the Chelsea Lioness Club will be making a trip to Mott's with gift items that Lionesses have made or purchased for this project before the children begin shopping on Wednesday, Dec. 15.

Anyone who is interested in contributing items may contact Patsy Cabaniss at 475-9653. The Lioness Club will be happy to see that all of these items reach the children at Mott's Hospital.

Church Women United Name New President

Church Women United with representation from five area churches celebrated World Community Day Nov. 5 with a pot-luck breakfast and service at Zion Lutheran church.

The day's theme was "Scarcity/Abundance." After personal introductions, Millie Warner, program chairperson, led the group in prayer. Bible readings: "Anxiety about Things," Matthew 6:25-34 by Caralee Hoffmeyer; "Living in Community," Acts 4:32-5:12 by Katherine Hiltz; "Sharing with Others," II Corinthians 8:1-9 by Arlene Schroen; "Love Overcomes Fear," I John 4:7-14 by Karol Morris; and "Tale of Two Cities," by Joanne Fredal were spaced between hymns.

Mrs. Morris led the singing and was accompanied by her husband, the Rev. John Morris of Zion, on the piano. Ruth Zeeb and Mrs. Warner organized the program. business meeting was held. Margaret Horning, secretary, read a resignation letter from Joy Stacey, president of Church Women United. She will leave at the end of December, citing other commitments to family, bereavement counseling and school.

Katie Chapman, who had accepted nomination to president prior to the meeting, was unchallenged and unanimously elected. She will take office in January.

Methodist Women Offer Child Care For Busy Parents

If you would like to shop, sew, bake or wrap gifts without a little one tugging your sleeve, you may leave your children with experienced, caring adults at the First United Methodist church.

No appointment is necessary for this holiday babysitting service sponsored by United Methodist Women. All ages including infants are welcome. Parents are asked to provide food and drink if children will be at the church during mealtimes.

The hours are planned to complement Chelsea stores' shopping hours; Friday, Dec. 10, 5 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 11, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Monday, Dec. 13, 5 to 9 p.m.; Wednesday, Dec. 15, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Thursday, Dec. 16, 5 to 9 p.m.; Friday, Dec. 17, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 18, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Monday, Dec. 20, Wednesday, Dec. 22, and Thursday, Dec. 23, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and Dec. 24, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Call Carol Kattual at 475-9251 or Judy Radant at 475-1457 for more information.

Musical Youth Group Organizing for Tour

Musical Youth International officially began its 19th season last Sunday, with the first rehearsal of the 1982-83 tour group. Selected student members from 35 Michigan high schools will organize as an orchestra and chorus to perform both separately and in combined repertoire for a July tour of Mexico, the Bahamas and Eastern United States.

Robert Phillips, director of orchestra in the Saline area schools for the past seven years, will lead MYI's first orchestra. Mrs. Alice Allen, choral director at Highland Park High school and Junior College, will direct the chorus. Mrs. Lester McCoy is MYI executive director.

On Saturday, Dec. 18, at 7:30 p.m. the annual Musical Youth International Alumni concert will be open to the public, admission free. The concert will be presented at Saline Middle School.

Among the student members of Musical Youth International is Amy Finkbeiner of 854 N. Fletcher Rd., Chelsea.

Grass Lake Youth Completes Air Force Basic Training

Airman Randy N. Mosler, son of Glenn W. and Shirley Mosler, of 13015 Tophitt Rd., Grass Lake, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

The airman is a 1980 graduate of Stockbridge High school.

"Dialogue with the Superintendent," a chance for community members to discuss and ask questions about the operation of the Chelsea schools with Raymond Van Meer, schools superintendent, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 9 at South school. The next session will be held Jan. 11 at the high school.

Legal Aid Attorney Canned Mushroom Shipment Stolen From Restaurant

Susan Hartman, a legal aid attorney, will speak to Chelsea senior citizens on "Supplemental Health Insurance and Medicare" at 11 a.m. Monday, Dec. 13 at the North school senior center.

Those attending are encouraged to bring along their health insurance policies for examination and ask any questions they may have about health insurance.

Call 475-9242 for further information.

A thief with a taste for mushrooms stole six one-gallon cans of them from the Sir Pizza restaurant on Main St. in Chelsea last Thursday night. The canned mushrooms, packed in a shipping case, were left unguarded for a few minutes by the restaurant's rear door and were gone when an employee went to bring them in. The stolen goods were valued at $37. The Chelsea police department is investigating.

James P. Liebeck

17332 Old US-12
Chelsea

James P. Liebeck, 76, of 17332 Old US-12 died Wednesday, Dec. 1, at Chelsea Community Hospital. A lifetime Chelsea resident, he was retired from Federal Screw Works where he had been employed for 31 years.

He was born April 14, 1906, at Sylvan Center, the son of Peter A. and Hannah (Birch) Liebeck. On April 22, 1939, he was married to Dorothy M. Boone in St. Mary's Catholic church, Muskegon. She survives him.

Mr. Liebeck had been a member of the Chelsea Kiwanis Club since 1945, and served as president in 1961. He was division chairman and a distinguished lieutenant governor of Michigan Kiwanis District 10 in 1967. He received the Kiwanis Legion of Honor Award in 1971, 1976 and 1981.

Mr. Liebeck was a former president of the Chelsea United Way and served on its board of directors from 1968 to 1974. At the time of his death he was a member of the Sylvan Township Zoning Board.

He was a graduate of the former St. Mary's Catholic school in Chelsea and attended Cleary College in Ypsilanti.

He was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church of Chelsea, where a mass of the resurrection was said at 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 4, with the Rev. Fr. Philip Dupuis of Chelsea and the Rev. Fr. Alfred Camp of St. Paul's Catholic Church of Vicksburg, Miss., concelebrating.

The rosary was recited Friday evening, Dec. 3, at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home. Burial was in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Chelsea.

Members of the Chelsea Kiwanis Club served as an honor guard and pallbearers.

Surviving besides his widow are a daughter, Suzanne of Kalamazoo; three sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Smith of Jackson, Mrs. Margaret Long of Hollywood, Fla., and Mrs. Helen Allshouse of Clearwater, Fla., and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to the St. Mary's Catholic Church building fund.

Carrie Stanlake

Crawford, Tenn.
(Formerly of Chelsea)

Mrs. Carrie A. Ledford Stanlake died Dec. 4 in Lady Anne Hospital, Livingston, Tenn., after an extended illness.

"ALL ABOARD," two words seldom heard in Chelsea anymore, echoed down the tracks by the depot Wednesday morning Dec. 1. An Amtrak train bound for Chicago stopped to pick up 47 senior citizens off to the windy city for a two-day trip. (Three others boarded in Ann Arbor and one person in Jackson.) The Ann Arbor ticket agent arranged the stop, said Treva Winans, director of the senior activity center.

He said they would make stops at towns with either platforms or depots. Mrs. Winans had arranged for the seniors to wait in a heated school bus, since the depot isn't open anymore, but it was an unseasonably balmy day. As the train pulled away, a little girl waved at it and said, "Bye, bye Grandma."

John Galloway

206 Blind Lake
Chelsea

John L. Galloway of 206 Blind Lake died Dec. 3 after an extended illness at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. He was 54 years of age.
