SOA! PRODUCTS FOR POLAND: Judy Gallagher of Seva Foundation of Chelsea is holding a gallon of shampoo, part of a 700-pound shipment of soap products beside her which will go to Poland via Channel 7 in Detroit. Seva was given about 60 cases of shampoo, hand cream and liquid soap. Mrs. Gallagher contacted Channel 7 which is collecting soap in the Detroit area, and the television station said it was interested in the gift.

Seva Foundation Sending 700 Pounds of Soap to Poland

Seva Foundation of Chelsea plans to give nearly 700 pounds of soap products to Poland through Channel 7 in Detroit. Soap products such as bar soap, shampoo, liquid soap and hand cream from Feather River Co. in Pt. Reyes, Calif. were given to Seva for their Christmas gift program.

To encourage financial donations, Seva, an international foundation to prevent blindness, had asked companies around the country to donate products which were then given to a person of the financial donor's choice. Unfortunately the soap arrived Jan. 27, too late for the gift program.

There is no local need for that much soap, said Judy Gallagher, administrative assistant at Seva. She had seen a Channel 7 broadcast by the station's "news hawk," Jerry Stanecki, which said a bar of black market soap in Poland now costs $2.50. Stanecki was collecting soap in the Detroit area to send to Poland.

She called him. He and his news crew had planned to be at Seva on Spring Lake Dr. last Friday for a spot newscast and to pick up the soap, but had to reschedule the appointment.

Gallagher, who has arranged to have products as complicated and big as a helicopter shipped to Nepal, asked the news team Friday how they planned to get the soap to Poland.

They said they didn't know at this time how they will transport it to Europe.

Budget Cuts Put Secretary of State's Office in Jeopardy

The word from Lansing is, don't write off the Secretary of State's branch office in Chelsea just yet. On the other hand, don't assume that its continued existence is assured.

Gov. Blanchard's "State of the State" message included the pronouncement that 14 Secretary of State branch offices throughout Michigan will be eliminated as part of his program to bring Michigan's $900 million budget deficit under control.

CHS Students Will Present 'Wizard of Oz'

Chelsea High school students will present the musical, "The Wizard of Oz" the evenings of Thursday, Feb. 24, Friday, Feb. 25 and at 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 26. Note the Saturday show. It is a change of date from prior announcements.

The show is being held one month earlier than usual this year, so keep these new dates in mind.

Staff of the show is Tamara Barbret, director; Sue Bauer, choreographer; Carol Palms, orchestra director; Bart Bauer, set designer; and Doug Beaumont, technical director.

Tickets will be on sale soon at Chelsea Pharmacy.

That touched off local speculation that the Chelsea branch at 102 S. Main St. will be axed, on the basis that it reportedly barely escaped the last round of state government budget cuts in the fall of 1982.

"No decisions on specific branch offices have been made yet," said Ed Boucher, public information director for the Department of State in Lansing, "and none will be for at least another week."

"We know that we have been ordered by the governor to shut down 14 of the 187 branches that we operate throughout the state, and we are getting ready to do that. He has left up to us which ones to close. We are trying to develop and apply some objective criteria to decide which 14 closings will hurt the public least from a service and convenience standpoint."

"The Chelsea office serves a large rural area," Boucher continued, "and that is a strong point in its favor. There is no other office between Jackson and Ann Arbor, and that's a distance of 40 miles."

"On the other hand, the volume of business done at Chelsea doesn't begin to compare with that in some of our large-city offices. The main reason for having a branch in Chelsea is convenience—service to a large but rather sparsely populated geographical area."

"We'll be looking at a lot of factors—area served, people served, (Continued on page five)

Village Nominating Petitions Due Feb. 7

There's a village election coming up in Chelsea on Monday, March 14, but to date interest appears to be minimal on the part of both prospective candidates and potential voters.

Up for decision are the position of village clerk, three seats on the village council and two places on the library board of trustees.

Nominating petitions, which are available in the village office at 104 E. Middle St., must be turned in by 4 p.m. Monday, Feb. 7. They must bear the names of at least 15 but no more than 50 persons registered to vote in Chelsea.

Village elections are non-partisan, and so is the nominating process.

Incumbents in the offices to be filled include:

Clerk — Evelyn Rosentreter.

Village trustees (council members) — Jerry Satterthwaite, Herman Radloff, Lyle Chriswell.

Library board — Fred Harris, Mrs. Frederick Wagner.

All are reported to be seeking new terms and to have petitions in circulation. No other contestants for any of the posts have surfaced as yet.

New Law Offices Filled With Many Chelsea Historical Items

To fully appreciate the new law office for John P. Keusch and Peter C. Flintoft at 119 S. Main St., one needs to know some Chelsea history.

Most prominent in the new lobby are the Kempf Commercial and Savings Bank sign and the reception desk which came from that bank.

The Kempf bank was once housed in the building where the Secretary of State's office is now. In 1934 it merged with Farmers and Merchants Bank to become Chelsea State Bank and moved to the building which is now the courthouse. That is where Farmer and Merchants had been located since the 1920s. (Chelsea State Bank moved to its present offices in 1968.)

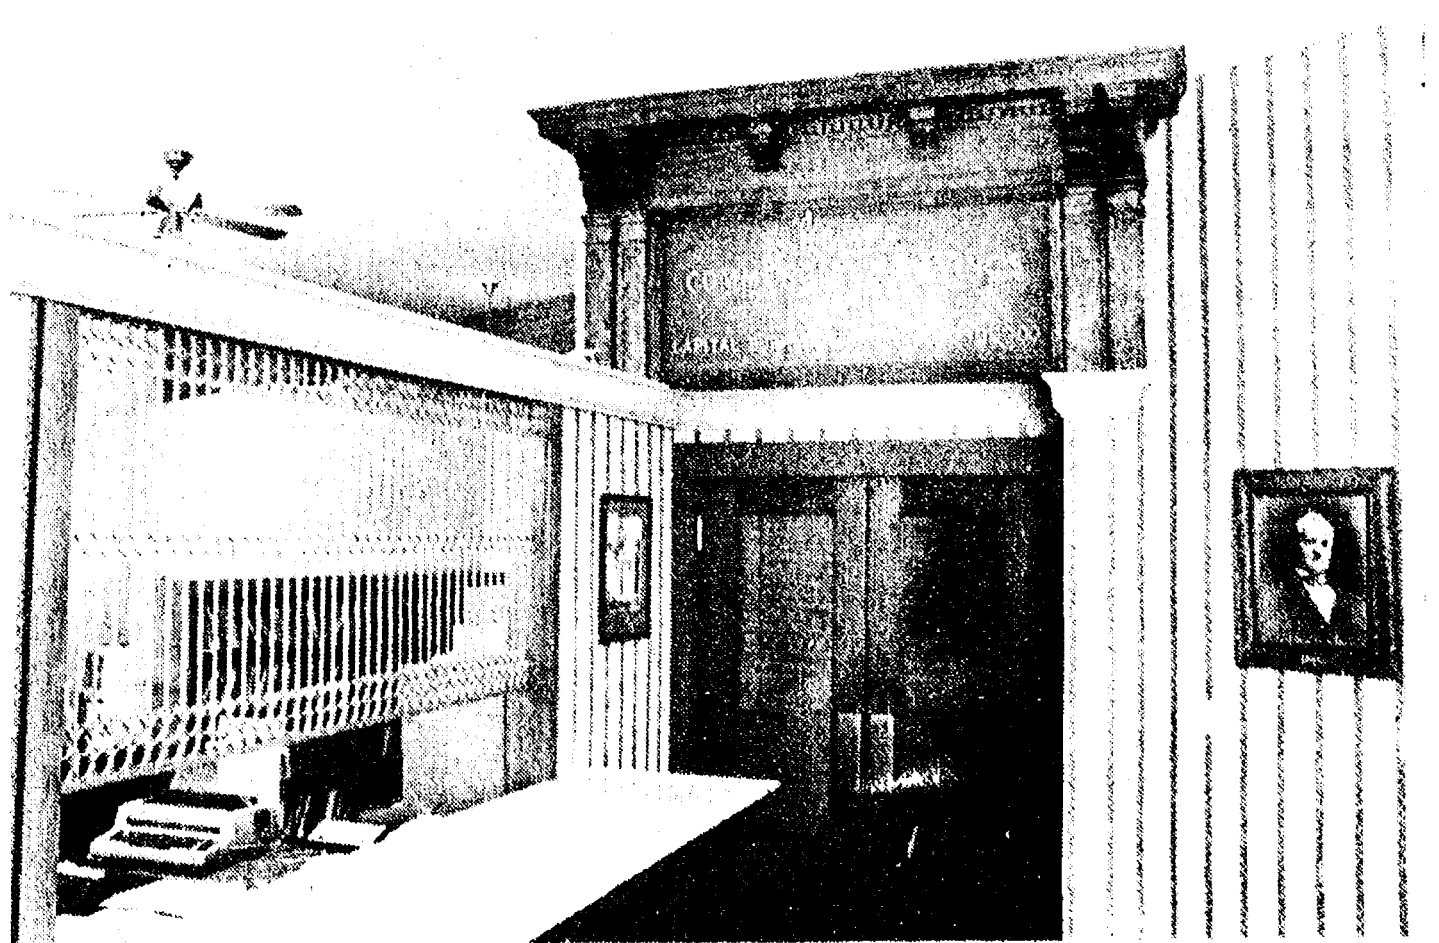

At that time the tenant at 119 S. Main St. was Chelsea's post office, and the building was owned by Oscar D. Schneider, who had bought the building in 1919.

When Schneider heard the government planned to expand Chelsea's post office in 1937, he bought the vacant Kempf building and moved Chelsea's post office there.

But the Postal Service had other ideas. It built the present post office in 1940. Schneider, like many Depression era businessmen, then had two vacant buildings, Kempf and 119 S. Main.

He placed the fixtures from the bank such as the sign and teller window into storage where they stayed until his grandson, Peter C. Flintoft, wanted them for his law office.

After it ceased to be a post office, the building at 119 S. Main became a Kroger store, The Chelsea Restaurant and an office for Spaulding for Children.

KEUSCH AND FLINTOFT'S NEW LAW OFFICES at 119 S. Main St. feature bits of Chelsea's past. That Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank sign and the swinging doors below it came from the old Kempf building which is now the Secretary of State's office. The old photographs came from the boardrooms of the two fore-runners of Chelsea State Bank, Kempf and Farmers and Merchants' Bank. The reception desk also came from the Kempf bank, but the filigreed lamps with white milk glass shades came from Cummings and Freeman's store, where Schneider's Store is now.

The mahogany, swinging doors in the new law offices vestibule also came from the Kempf Bank and still have the original beveled glass in them. The mahogany wainscoting on the far wall of Flintoft's office also came from the old bank. The photographs which will hang in the reception area once hung in the boardrooms of the two forerunners of Chelsea State Bank.

The woodwork in the hallway and frame doors in the office were retrieved from the 19th century Pielemeier Farm house before it was demolished to make way for the new site of Chelsea Lumber Company. The doors appear to have been made on-site by the original builders from native walnut and oak.

The cherry wood stairwell paneling and railings were once local trees. They were harvested 12 years ago from Stofer Court. Blocksma Millworks of Waterloo designed, milled and installed the cherry woodwork.

The filigreed lamps with white milk glass shades in the offices once hung in Cummings and Freeman's, a general store which is now the site of Schneider's Store.

Architect for the renovation was Kowalewski and Associates of Ann Arbor. Construction and finish carpentry were done by William Coltre, a Chelsea builder.

The first floor has a reception area and offices. The basement includes a law library/conference room and storage space.

Keusch and Flintoft established their partnership in 1968.

An overloaded sewage treatment plant has prompted Chelsea Village Council to consider a new single-family residential housing district which would allow septic fields. A public hearing will be held March 6. Minimum lot size for this estate residential district would be 20,000 square feet, just more than 1/2 acre. The village's sewage treatment plant was designed to treat a maximum of 600,000 gallons a day. In slow times of the year, it now treats 450,000 gallons a day, and during heavy spring use, more than one million gallons a day.

When there is a medical emergency in Chelsea, it now takes 20 minutes for an ambulance to arrive. Fontana-Taylor Ambulance Service, which began servicing this area Jan. 1, has been unable to find a large reasonably-priced garage or one which could be renovated in this area to house their new, over-sized modular ambulances.

County Board of Commissioners have set a $90,390.40 ceiling for renovating the former Chelsea State Bank Building into a district courthouse. They have added this clause to architect Linden C. Pettys' contract, but he has not agreed to it yet. If no bids were to come in under this total, which includes architect's fees, Pettys' would have to re-do specifications so bids would make it under the ceiling. The disadvantage of a publicly known ceiling is that contractors could hike bids to match it.

Wrestling co-captains Kerry Kargel and Mike Gaken treated spectators at the Howell tournament last week-end to perhaps two of the best high school matches of the season. Kargel, who had dropped down to the 145-pound class, was tied, 1-1, at the end of regulation time with his opponent, who had a 27-match winning streak. Kargel, who was in better shape, dominated over-time to win, 4-1, and up his winning streak to 17 matches. Gaken, also tied at the end of regulation, dominated his opponent, who had a 23-win string, in over-time. Gaken now has a 17-win string.

An estimated 2,000 area residents visited the new high school Sunday. Comments ranged from "It's fun to go to school now," "outstandingly perfect," "It probably will be in use for the next 100 years," "a big change from the conventional type to which most of us are accustomed," to "where is the storage space for students' textbooks?" and "It is a tropical disjointed show place where the breeze under the canopy fans the brows of the students as they walk from building to building."

Midwest Governors May Unify On Unemployment Insurance
Governor James Blanchard has announced there is a good chance that midwest and north-east governors would coalesce in an effort to get the federal government to limit unemployment tax penalties, defer interest on unemployment repayments and extend unemployment benefits.

All the states involved are continuing to stagger under the long deepening recession which has forced heavy state borrowing from the federal government to pay benefits to unemployed workers.

Michigan alone has a debt to the federal government of over $2 billion.

Blanchard said that because other industrial states were in severe economic straits, he thought unity in approaching the federal government was possible.

Michigan's new governor recently met with governors from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania and U.S. Senator Robert Dole (R-Kansas), chairman of Senate Finance Committee.

Blanchard said the five governors agreed to ask the federal government to either defer or suspend interest payments on state unemployment debts. The group also will ask the federal government to limit the penalty tax all employers will be charged if the unemployment debts are not repaid and to extend the federal unemployment benefits.

Following the meeting, Blanchard said major reforms from the federal government will be needed if the state is to improve its business climate.

The interest charged by the federal government amounts to a tax on states which are hardest hit by unemployment and are forced to borrow from Washington. It is essentially a tax on business in states with high employment. It is the opposite of federal counter-cyclical policies which historically have been designed to help states when they are financially hard pressed," Blanchard said.

Blanchard said Dole acknowledged that many states are unable to repay the interest on debts because of the length of the recession.

The governor said that unity among the states in approaching the federal government could cause it to deal with those states' problems more seriously than in the past.

For several years, legislators and officials of the midwest and northeast states have tried to form compacts that could deal more forcefully with the federal government, but the efforts have always failed.

Students Test Scores Improve in Michigan
Reading and mathematics test scores for students in the fourth, seventh and 10th grades all improved this school year over the previous year, State Public Instruction Superintendent Philip Runkel reported.

Runkel said the improvements, especially in reading, were very significant but a solution to the lower math scores for seventh and 10th graders were needed.

The levels in all categories showed that most students received acceptable scores statewide.

Fourth grade students showed 75.6 percent acceptable scores in

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Bug Hookum told the fellers at the country store Saturday night that he was 'full agreed with whoever said that if all you got is a hammer, everything looks like a nail. A heap of folks in this country, Bug declared, are trying to make the best of what little they got left.

Bug opened the agender by wondering what become of David Stillman. He's the Tennessee handyman that got attention late last year by announcing he was going to raffie himself off. Bug said the feller wanted to sell 10,000 tickets at $2 apiece. He would use $1,000 to pay the cost of the lottery and the winner would get the rest with the understanding $4,000 would go to charity and the rest to pay Stillman at the rate of $288 a week to do whatever the winner wanted done. Bug said Stillman believed things would get better in a year, but right now all he had was a strong back and a willing mind and if it looked like he was selling himself into slavery, so be it.

Democrat Clem Webster was agreed that this third year of Reaganomics is changing the way everybody sees things. Clem said he wondered how Stillman sees that $58,000 a year handyman President Reagan said does more than cut wood on his ranch, he clears brush to. Politicians are seeing nails now where they wouldn't even bring themselves to look two year ago, Clem said. Fer instant, there are strong pushes for state-run lotteries in legislatures that not long back would of shouted out talk of such legalized sin. And voting fer higher state taxes no longer is political suicide.

A wage of at least $3.25 a hour was the right of ever American, Clem said, until Congress realized people out of work would be happy to work fer $2.75. Five years back, clean water and air got top billing in state capitals as well as Washington, and now, Clem allowed, these are luxuries we can't afford. If all we got is coal we got to burn it, and if the plant can't keep the gates open and pay fer treating the waste, we got to keep the gates open, was Clem's words.

General speaking, declared Bug, folks all over are taking bigger risks because the stakes are higher. He had saw where a woman in a big city used a toy gun to hold up a drugstore where she had been laid off. She told police that payments were due on her house and her car, and she had to do somepun. Bug also had saw by the papers where 20,000 people stood in the snow two days last week to apply fer 2,000 jobs that might open up in a Detroit plant that makes car frames.

Republican Ed Doolittle ask fer equal time to git in word of cooling inflation and dropping interest rates, but Clem and Bug filledbusted with reports of farm sales fer taxes and debts causing uprising by farmers that want to know when the Government is going to auction some of them foreign countries that owe this country a heap deeper than all the farmers put together. Bug had saw where we recent lent one of em $12 billion just to pay back interest on what it owes.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

FUNERAL HOME

MY SPECIFIC REQUESTS

That's the title of a free booklet which may answer a lot of questions you may have.

Many residents of our community have used this guide in deciding NOW (when there is no stress or emergency) about making arrangements for funerals IN ADVANCE OF NEED.

Why pre-plan a funeral? First, you can make decisions and choices, yourself with full composure instead of under the unfortunate circumstances of grieving and emotional stress. Second, you need not "overspend." You should select only that service, and that casket, and those touches which you feel are important.

That beloved meaningfully significant Scripture passage, that special hymn, the minister whose understanding and compassion you so admire — all can be part of your service, if you make your wishes known and arranged-for in advance.

The "Planning Guide" covers a great deal more. Call or write for a free copy.

Modern Mothers Study Benefits of Well-Balanced Diet

Modern Mothers met at Beach school Jan. 25 to continue their version of the Richard Simmons Show.

Richard (Mary Adams) introduced guest speaker and associate member, Lenore Matoff, who addressed the 15 members, two guests and associate member, Sherri Plank, on the value of a well-balanced nutritious diet.

Chinese cuisine is an excellent blend of meat, vegetables and spices cooked to retain valuable nutrients and good flavor while keeping fats and calories to a minimum, she said. Lenore shared recipes for pork with green onion, beef with green peppers and sauteed mushrooms, and demonstrated helpful hints as she prepared them.

Co-hostesses Barb Pruess, Jean Cooper, and Katrina Thiel served delicious samples of the prepared recipes and Chinese tea to members.

The next meeting will take place Feb. 8 at Jeanene Riemenschneider's home. Guest speaker will be Alice Rhodes, director of recreational therapy at Chelsea Community Hospital. She will discuss stress management. For further information call 475-9856.

What's Cooking In Michigan...

By Margaret G. McCall
Michigan Dept. of Agriculture

What's nutritious, colorful, flavorful, and conveniently bite-sized? You guessed it — red tart cherries! And since February is National Cherry month, and Michigan is the Cherry Capital of the world, it's time for us to celebrate.

Conveniently, Valentine's day is also in February, and cherries are appropriately colored for valentines.

The Michigan Cherry committee tells us there are 270 named varieties of red tart cherries, although only a few are grown commercially. And a prime cherry tree 8 to 12 years old will produce about 100 pounds of fruit in a good year — depending upon the weather.

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, our state's production of red tart cherries in 1982 totalled 260 million pounds, which was valued at $28 million. Additionally, we produced 67 million pounds of sweet cherries, worth $11 million. Our tart cherry production accounted for nearly 84% of the nation's total crop.

With all that information at hand, let's consider what we can do with cherries. They're great in pies, of course, as a filling for cake, in cookies, biscuits, yeast coffeecakes and rolls. Cherries are also a delicious accompaniment to many meats, and if you haven't had cherry soup you've missed an interesting old world menu item. Here's a recipe from "The Art of Polish Cooking."

Combine 3 pints fresh pitted cherries, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, with 4 cups water (or use the equivalent in water-packed canned cherries). Simmer fresh cherries until tender, puree in blender or food processor. Stir in 1 teaspoon cornstarch which has been mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water, bring to boil. Add ½ cup sugar and heat thoroughly. Cool, then stir in three-quarters cup sour cream. The cookbook suggests serving cold, after the meat course, with noodles or croutons.

In winter, I like to serve it piping hot as a first course, with spoonfuls of sour cream floating on top instead of stirred into the soup. In summer, well chilled, it becomes a refreshing palate cleanser after the main entree.

Child Study Club Urges Enrollment In CPR Classes

Chelsea Child Study Club members had fun with a blind auction last week at Barbara Branch's home.

Co-hostesses June Flanigan and Bert Cobb served fresh fruit with their delicious dessert.

During the business meeting, Nancy Grau reported on plans being made to honor National Honor Society members at a spring tea.

Dotti Bell, program chairman, encouraged all members to attend the cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. Feb. 15, 22 and March 1 at Chelsea Community Hospital. Those who attended last year found learning a life-saving technique to be a rewarding experience.

The Feb. 8 meeting will be at Judy Nemeth's home. Weather permitting, everyone will enjoy an evening of cross country skiing with their husbands.

Homemaker Club Members Practice Cake Decorating

Chelsea Homemaker Club met at 8 p.m. Jan. 27 at the home of Martha Luick for a cake decorating demonstration presented by Dorothy Hafner.

She emphasized color-flow decorating, and gave special tricks and tips which even the experienced decorators in the group could use. Each member brought a cake, chose a special decorating design, and then decorated it. It was most enjoyable and informative.

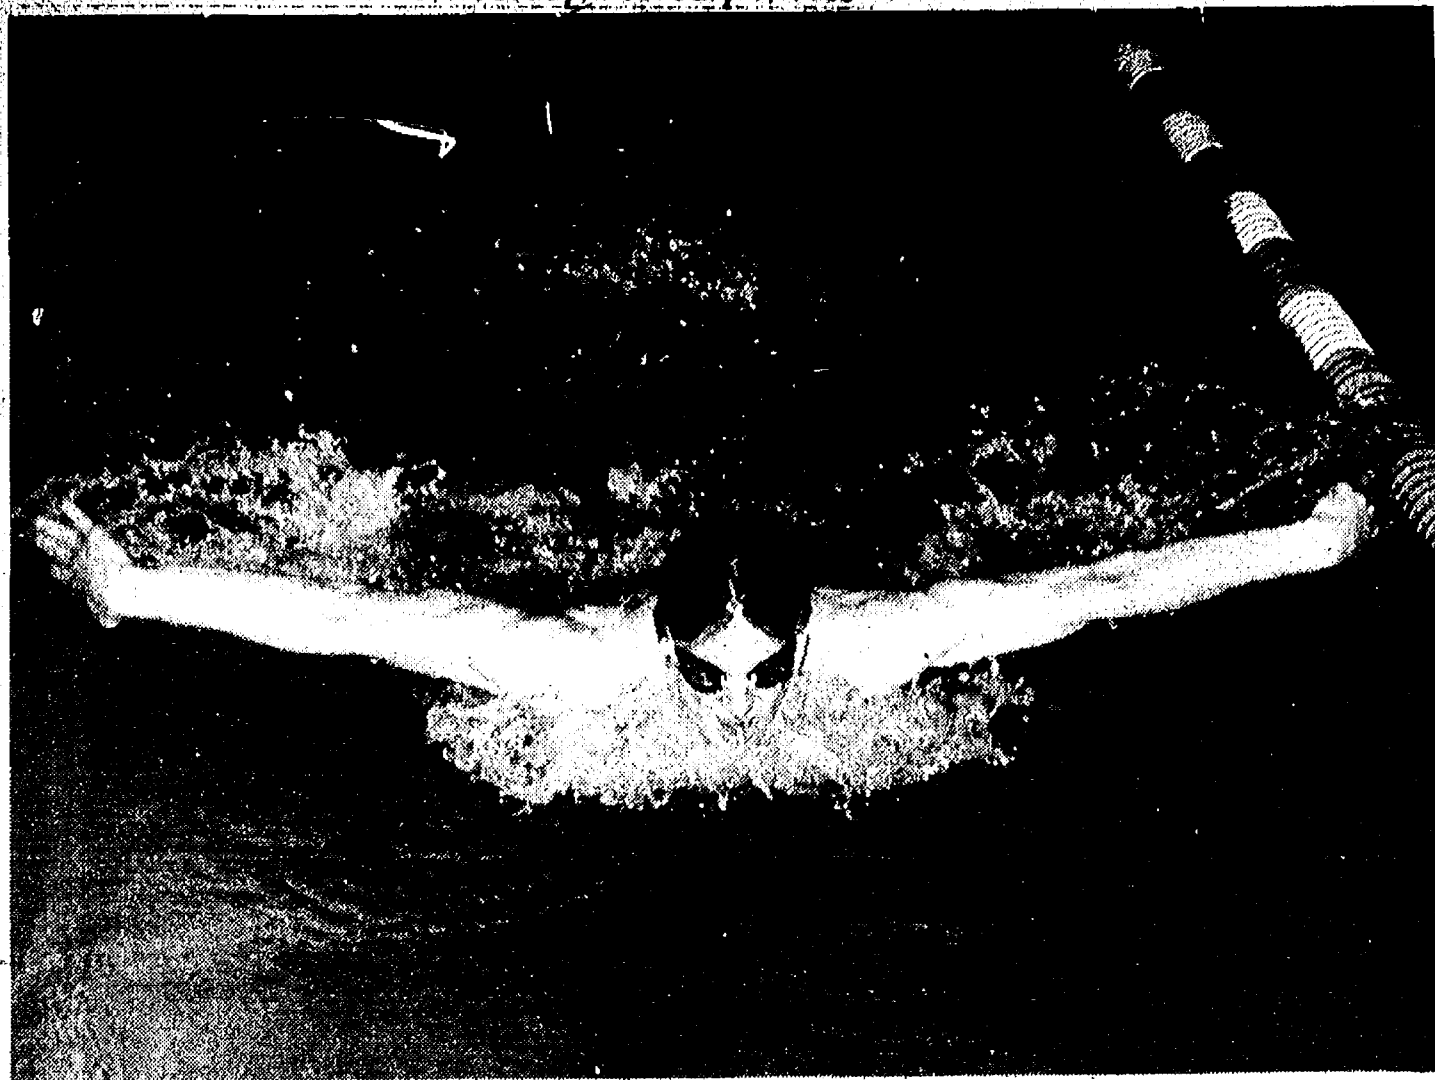

Members brought their wedding photograph albums and shared memories of how they had met their husbands. They all got to know each other better, laughing and reminiscing about that event in their lives.

Coffee and a light fruit gelatin dessert were served by co-hostess, Marge Plumb.

Next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Feb. 24 at Barbara Wolfgang's home for a rug hooking and yarn dying demonstration.

As a freshman he was an alternate for the state meet, and as a sophomore he qualified for the free relay and backstroke. He has swum competitively since Cameron Pool opened in 1976.

Chelsea Swimmers Defeat Lincoln, Rank Third in State

Bulldog boy swimmers beat Lincoln, 71-55, Jan. 27 away.

Against Lincoln Kraig Leach, who was diving in exhibition, set a new pool record of 238.00 points.

The Bulldogs' next home meet is at 7 p.m. tonight against Battle Creek Lakeview, who finished second in the 1982 state meet.

Schools Will Join in MS Read-a-thon

Chelsea school district elementary and sixth grade students will soon begin asking community members for pledges for the 1983 multiple sclerosis read-a-thon.

Last year, 198 student volunteers from North, South and Beach Middle schools raised more than $8,000 for MS by reading 3,344 books. The funds they raised were used to support patient and family service programs in the area and to fund research programs.

MS is a chronic, often disabling disease of the central nervous system. It usually strikes persons between the ages of 15 and 50.

Michigan has one of the highest incidence rates of MS in the United States with more than 11,000 patients, according to the Michigan chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Although research has not shown why yet, the MS incidence rate goes up as the distance from the equator increases. Northern states such as Michigan and New York and Scandinavian countries have more cases than southern states and countries.

North school will have a school-wide assembly Feb. 2 to announce the program. South school, which has participated for the past three years, plans to start the read-a-thon soon, but had not set a date last week.

Although the average number of books read by students statewide is 14, some Chelsea students read up to 59 books.

The Michigan chapter of the national society recently honored North and South schools with banners and plaques for being one of the few schools in the state to raise more than $2,000.

Suspect Charged With Illegal Entry

John D. Swoffer, 20, no address, was arrested last Thursday night on the roof of the Hackney Hardware store, 8105 Main St., Dexter, as he emerged from a skylight which he allegedly broke open to enter the building.

The sheriff's department said a tenant in a nearby apartment heard noises on the roof of the hardware store and called deputies, who went quickly to the scene and waited. They caught Swoffer and charged him with illegal entry and malicious destruction of property.

Nothing was stolen in the incident.

SOUTH SCHOOL FUN FAIR BICYCLE PRIZE: Someone attending the fun fair from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 5 at the school will win this bicycle donated by Gamble's. Joyce and Sam Johnson, left, join Anna Flintoff, Kathryn Giebel and Sheila Tillman, South school alumni who are admiring the bike.

Manchester School Buses Equipped With 2-Way Radios

All Manchester school buses have now been equipped with two-way radio communication systems which enable the transportation department to maintain constant contact with all buses. Installation of the radios was recently completed. Awarded to the General Electric Co. after a competitive bid process the total cost of the project was approximately $30,000.

The radios enable immediate contact with the bus garage and the central office in the event of a problem. "It is amazing," said Superintendent Gene Thompson. "Within the first few days we had already serviced a bus with brake problems within a few minutes of the breakdown. In the past the driver would have had to send an older student in search of a telephone to call for help. The time lost and concern over the location of buses with problems was considerable.

Saline Players Schedule Auditions

Saline Area Players have scheduled auditions for the musical "Annie Get Your Gun" at 7 p.m. on Feb. 1 and 2, (with "last-chance" auditions and callbacks on Feb. 3) in the Saline High school auditorium.

The show will be directed by a couple of people familiar to Chelsea Players. The director, Jan Koenigter, not only directed last winter's Chelsea Players production of "Plaza Suite," but also performed in many of Chelsea's musicals during the late 60's and early 70's.

The vocal director for "Annie" is Carolyn Bertrand.

For more audition information call the producer, Teddy Groeb, at 665-8456, or Bertrand at 434-1183, or Koenigter at 231-2634 (or 994-2326 during the day).

number of transactions, alternative offices available to the public, terms and conditions of building leases, adequacy of present space and facilities, parking availability, that kind of thing.

"We would certainly rather not close any office, and in fact would like to add some. But the budget realities force us to make some real tough decisions. Chelsea will be one of 187 branches reviewed, but it definitely is not now on any list to be closed or kept open.

"All I can tell you for sure is, that when we get all through with this disagreeable process there will be 173 Secretary of State branch offices in Michigan instead of 187."

St. Barnabas Members OK Budget

Members of St. Barnabas Episcopal church held their annual meeting and a pot-luck dinner after services Sunday, Jan. 23.

The proposed budget for 1983 was approved. Ron Buckenberger, George Lewis and Florence Wessell were elected to the Bishop's Committee. Lorraine Schatz remains the secretary, and the newly elected treasurer is Florence Wessell.

Matters discussed included the current fund-raiser. The church is giving away a microwave oven, portable television and video game on Valentine's Day to benefit the building fund. Chelsea Pharmacy, Chelsea Craft Co., Dancer's and Merkel Furniture & Carpets are helping the fund drive. With only two weeks left, the prognosis for an adequate profit looks bleak.

During 1982 the church had extensive maintenance. A new roof was installed, and a long-awaited working sacristy was completed several weeks ago.

The Rev. Fr. Jerrold Beaumont, who is beginning his 10th year with the church, thanked the congregation for their continued faith and support and said he is looking forward to 1983.

Accomplishments of the past year were reviewed, especially the launching of Faith-in-Action. The congregation wished to express their gratitude to other churches and community organizations for the success of Faith-in-Action and for making a dream a reality.

Reports were also heard on various activities. An open forum was provided to discuss concerns of the congregation and future plans and goals.

Two Charmers Win 6 Firsts in Ohio Competition

Two members of the Chelsea Charms baton twirling corps traveled to Wadsworth, O. on Jan. 22 for a "New Year Twirling Spectacular" and won six first-place trophies between them.

Amy Weir, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Weir, competed in the 7-9-year-old age class, and took two first places. She also moved out of the "beginner" division in the "basic strut" event, the first Chelsea Charm to advance from a beginner division. Brook Quartermaine, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Quartermaine, won first places in four events. She competed in the class for twirlers age 6 and under.

Both girls were accompanied to the two-day event by their mothers.

Accessories Stolen From Parked Truck

Approximately $500 worth of parts and accessories were stolen from a truck parked at the Union Truck Stop, I-94 at Baker Rd., early Sunday morning, sheriff's deputies reported.

St. Mary's Offers Lenten Programs

Because Lent is an ideal time for special devotion and a time for people to grow spiritually, St. Mary's Catholic church of Chelsea will offer a "Lenten Academy" program.

Four programs will be offered from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for two to four weeks on Thursdays in Lent in different classrooms at St. Mary's school on Congdon St.

The first class is Feb. 17 and pre-registration is requested by Sunday, Feb. 6 to help planning.

"Introduction to the New Testament," is a four-week series to be taught by the Rev. Fr. Mandel, O.F.M. of the Retreat House in DeWitt. He will cover how the New Testament came into being and how to interpret it.

Sister Mary Finn will speak on "Prayer," its different forms and experiences in her two-week series, Feb. 17 and 24.

"Problem Solving," a four-week series on self-defeating behavior, coping with stress, handling conflicts and family communications, will be taught by Lois Plantefaber, the church's social worker.

The Rev. Fr. David Philip Dupuis will teach a four-week course, "Sacramental Theology," which will cover Christian initiation, baptism, confirmation, penance and the Eucharist.

The public is invited to attend. Call Patricia Zangara at 475-8503 or St. Mary's Rectory for further information and pre-registration.

Sgt. Norman Green Serving in Germany

Sgt. 1st Class Norman D. Green, son of Ed S. Green of 1285 Jackson St., Chelsea, and Betty Green, also of Chelsea, has arrived for duty in Baumholder, West Germany.

Green, a storage specialist with the 3rd Support Command, was previously assigned at Fort Bragg, N.C.

He is a 1967 graduate of Chelsea High school.

Burglary Reported at Whitmore Lake School

Sheriff's deputies reported a burglary at the Whitmore Lake High school last Saturday night. About $25 worth of food was stolen, and there was considerable vandalism damage to doors and windows.

Grass Lake Woman Dies In Auto Crash

Theresa Lynn Smith, 21, of 500 E. Michigan Ave., Grass Lake, was killed Sunday morning, Jan. 23, in a head-on collision on Michigan Ave. near Maute Rd. in Grass Lake township, Jackson county.

Three Chelsea residents who were occupants of the other car involved escaped with minor injuries.

Troopers at the Jackson state police post, who investigated the accident, said Ms. Smith lost control of her small compact car on a slushy surface and crashed into a larger oncoming vehicle driven by Timothy J. Willoughby, 21, of 128 Jackson St., Chelsea.

Willoughby and his two passengers, Kathy Andrews, 22, of 1000 North Green Acres Dr., Chelsea, and her two-year-old daughter, Jessica were treated at Foote East Hospital in Jackson and released after found to have sustained only bumps and bruises.

Willoughby was issued a violation ticket for having an unrestrained child in the front seat of his car.

"Nobody involved was wearing a seat belt or any other kind of restraint," a state police spokesman said.

State law requires that children be restrained in a "safety system", but use of seat belts or other devices by adults is not mandatory.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I am writing in regard to the Jan. 18, 1983, article: "Home For Mentally Impaired Considered in Lima Township."

As I read the article, I was shocked that people wouldn't approve of a home for mentally impaired in their neighborhood. I just couldn't believe how cold and unreasonable some citizens can be. Do they seem to think they're better than everyone else? Is that why they don't want mentally impaired persons in their neighborhood?

Some of the reasons for not wanting the home nearby seem to be unreasonable. The two major reasons are security and safety. If the residents are not parolees or prisoners, have not been convicted of crimes, or judged criminally insane, and have no history of violence or drug abuse, what problem can they add? I live less than a half mile away from a house where mentally impaired persons reside. I have no fear that they will break into my home. In fact, I don't even consider it. I have more fear of the "walk-aways" from Cassidy Lake Technical School and Jackson State Prison (the one with maximum security). It's ironic that some people fear harmless individuals when there are convicted murderers escaping from prisons in the area nearly every day.

Furthermore, I see no problem with safety either. The highway presents no more problems for the residents of the home than it can for other children in the area. As I wrote before, I live near a home for mentally impaired persons, which happens to be on M-52. This highway may not have as much traffic as Old US-12, but it, too, can be dangerous. Nevertheless, I've never seen the residents of the home near the road. In fact, I've never even seen the residents. I find this discouraging. I would like to know them as my neighbors.

I find it appalling that some people can't accept other citizens in society. I have no relatives that are mentally impaired, and I still feel they shouldn't be ostracized from society. All of you who oppose the home should put yourself in the shoes of those who NEED it. How would you feel if you had to live in an institution just because you're not as smart as someone else? You need to learn what it's like to be unwanted and unaccepted by many people. How would you feel? (You sure wouldn't be very happy!)

I'm in favor of the house being used for mentally impaired persons. Furthermore, if the County Mental Health Center can't use the house, our family would be glad to rent our home for that purpose. It needs no repairs, which would lower the cost.

To the Editor:
This letter is about a sign on Old US-12 next to St. Paul church, saying "Coming Soon, Chelsea Fitness Center."

Well I have read this sign for six years, maybe less. But I was just wondering if there are any future plans for this fitness center. I myself think it's just a great idea. In Chelsea more and more people are getting back into shape, one way or other. So bring the business and jobs here. Just ask around; people would really go for this.

I'm not writing this to hassle anyone, just wondering if, just if, we could start one here. People now drive as far as 20 miles to work-out.

I did not know who to ask so I wrote you. Hope you can help. I have lived in Chelsea for 25 years. I am now 25, married and work-out with weights, run and exercise. Everyone should if they know how and had a place to do it. Community Education has a limit.

The double-paned window glass, specially treated for a historic look, gives an interesting reflection to Sylvan Township Hall across the street. The exterior trim is repeated with interior oak trim, as are the etched windows in offices, skylights to be installed in spring, and the high windows between the reception area and library/conference room. During the renovation contractor Dick Clark of Grass Lake exposed the original brick walls and treated them with linseed oil. Plans call for planting a small garden in the tiny courtyard behind the building in spring.

Lima Township Couple Grow, Spin Their Own Wool Crop

By PEGGY PAGE

Winter is the season for both lambing and spinning for Mary Jane Coble of 1815 Steinbach Rd., Dexter. She breeds and raises Karakul sheep for their long-fibered wool on the farm she and her husband Mike bought seven years ago.

Her 10 ewes are expecting lambs any day now. One lamb, Orpah, was born Christmas Eve.

The Cobles bought the old Detroit place with a spinning business in mind. Mrs. Coble, 43, had always wanted to live on a farm, she said. When she was a girl she tore up the family lawn in Wichita, Kan., to plant wild oats to make bread.

She and her spinning partner, Barbara Ullman of Chelsea, began marketing their home-spun yarn just before Christmas at The Wild West in Ann Arbor. They have been invited to represent the craft of spinning at Dexter's Pioneer Fair March 19.

Karakuls are a Russian breed originally raised for tightly curled lamb collars, she said. Their sheep wool makes a very durable yarn because the fibers or staples average 8 to 12 inches, instead of 2 to 4 inches like commercial yarn.

Short fibers mean more pilling, those little fuzz balls sweaters get after a few wearings.

A pair of mittens Mrs. Coble made her daughter, Jennie, two years ago from Karakul yarn still looks like new.

Her goal as a Karakul breeder, she said, is to develop sheep with softer fleeces, and she has seen progress towards that goal in the past seven years.

Black, a recessive gene in some sheep breeds, is a dominant gene in Karakuls, she said. Wool from young sheep is coal black.

After several years their fleeces lighten, similar to humans going gray. Red Karakuls' fleeces eventually lighten to a beautiful warm beige.

Kirk VanNatter of Dexter shears the Cobles' sheep in April. They shear only once a year so fleece fiber length will be longer. Mrs. Coble then washes the yarn to soften and clean it before storing it in cedar chips and moth balls.

MARY JANE COBLE spins the Karakul wool by the woodstove in the kitchen of her Steinbach Rd. home during winter months. She holds a clump of washed wool in her left hand and twists it to the desired texture and thickness while it winds on the bobbin. She can fill the bobbin in about 10 minutes for thick yarn, but fine yarn takes much longer. Her spinning wheel is relatively new. Antique wheels are often warped, she said.

She became interested in spinning after buying homespun yarn from a neighbor in Ann Arbor. She learned to spin, however, after they bought the farm.

Weavers like homespun yarn, she said, because its twist and thickness can vary, giving it more texture than machine-spun yarn.

This county is a natural place for a renaissance in the craft of spinning. Washtenaw leads the state in amount of wool sold and number of sheep, according to county Co-operative Extension Service figures. There are also more than 60 members of the local Weavers Guild and many more amateur weavers.

Mrs. Coble uses the yarn for knitting. Mike, her husband who is a computer programmer at University of Michigan's Population Studies Center, had one request when they started the business, she said. He wanted a sweater so thick he could hold it up to a window and not see through it. He also wanted it made of unwashed wool, so it would have more lanolin, which makes wool water resistant.

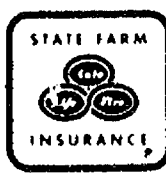

It took four years of breeding sheep, spinning and knitting to make that sweater. It is so thick and heavy it weighs five pounds and can almost stand by itself. But Mrs. Coble also makes lighter-weight garments, of course. She has knit hats, is designing a sweater for herself which she hopes to enter in Chelsea Community Fair, and is experimenting with a lamb puppet while she awaits the births of this year's lambs.

CALL ME.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

PROUD PAPA of this year's lambs is David, who is four years old. He is a red Karakul, a recessive gene in that breed, which are usually black. His fleece was the color of fox fur when he was younger, and is lightening with age to a warm beige. He has sired more than 30 lambs.

FIRST LAMB in Mary Jane Coble's Karakul flock this year was Orpah, who was born on Christmas Eve. Orpah's characteristic, intensely black color will lighten in a few years to the gray color of her mother, Sheba, to the right. Mrs. Coble, who is holding Orpah, has a tradition of naming the sheep after Biblical characters. The other 10 ewes in the flock are imminent mothers.

What's Cooking In Michigan...

This week's column is devoted purely to pork, one of the most flavorful and adaptable meats available. Michigan pork producers marketed about 350 million pounds last year, which the Michigan Department of Agriculture reports was worth almost $150 million to the growers.

Pork chops are among the most popular cuts of pork, probably because they offer automatic portion control and can be cooked in a short time. Another nice feature is that you can vary your pork chops with different seasonings and accompaniments. For example, one night serve pork chops with Michigan mushrooms; another time, fix them with sliced Michigan onions; and next time, prepare a pork chop and potato scallop, good for a cold winter's night.

Here's a favorite recipe for pork chops with mushrooms: brown 6 one-inch thick pork chops in a mixture of butter and oil, add one-half cup dry white Michigan wine, season with salt and pepper, cover and simmer about 10 minutes. In another skillet, saute 1 pound small whole (or large quartered) mushrooms in 4 tablespoons butter, season lightly with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons flour, add 3/4 cup heavy cream and 1 tablespoon Worcestershire, stir until slightly thickened. Transfer chops to heated platter, pour off grease from skillet, transfer mushroom mixture to pork skillet and stir to incorporate the flavor of the pan juices, then pour over the chops.

Serve with Michigan apple salad and baked or hash browned Michigan potatoes for a delicious all-Michigan meal.

James Beard has an interesting recipe using pork chops, called Nantuckets Fireman's Supper, which you don't have to be a fireman, or living on Nantucket island, to enjoy. And this, too, can be made with all-Michigan products.

Just put a little oil and butter into a heavy skillet, fry your chops slowly on both sides. Then cover thickly with sliced onions. Top the onions with sliced peeled potatoes. Season with salt and pepper, cover with cold water and simmer, covered, until potatoes are tender. This dish can be prepared either on top of the stove or in the oven.

Where's All That Snow?

Dear Boss:
According to what I read in the Ann Arbor News last Thursday, we have had about 10 inches (9.4, to be exact) of snow so far during this so-called "winter." The News quotes as its source one Dennis Kahlbaum of the University of Michigan's Atmospheric and Oceanic Sciences Department.

Now I don't know Dennis Kahlbaum, but assume he is competent to measure snow. It really isn't all that difficult, because even I can do it. All it takes is a foot-ruler and the ability to read numbers, and I am fortunate enough to have both. As a back-up, I have a yardstick in case there should be more than a foot of snow. That has been known to happen around here in winters past.

I have to wonder, though, just where I have been while all those 9.4 inches of alleged snow were coming down this winter. Unless my memory has gone completely haywire, I haven't observed an honest inch of snow on the ground at any time. (An "honest inch" is enough to hide the grass on a lawn that was mowed late last fall.)

As you know, I commute to Chelsea from my home which is located halfway between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti. It's about a 20-mile drive, no matter which of several routes I travel. Recognizing that snowstorms, like thundershowers, are quite local in intensity, it still seems reasonable that somewhere along the route on some morning or evening there would have been visible enough snow to cover the ground, assuming we really have received close to 10 inches.

As you also know, my reportorial duties occasionally take me as far north as Stockbridge and Pinckney, and as far south as Manchester. Haven't seen an honest inch of snow in those directions, either.

Now, boss, I'm not complaining, not at all. My lifestyle is such that I can get along beautifully without snow, and would be delighted never to see another flake of the stuff. I've moved tons of snow during my lifetime, and can honestly say I never enjoyed a shovel-full of it. There are other, more fun ways to get exercise. Shovelling snow falls into the same category of pleasure as jacking up a car to change a tire. You've got to do it when the time comes, but there is nothing that says you have to like it.

I suppose that if I were a skier or a snowmobiler, I would take a more positive view of snow, and maybe even pray for it. As the saying goes, to each his own. Let those who want snow murmur their incantations so that it will fall someplace where I am not.

Some of the scariest hours of my life have been spent driving in snow, trying to get home or to work or to anywhere without sliding off the road, hitting another vehicle, or getting hit. I've been lucky, but still have occasional bad dreams about the time a semi-truck came skidding at me sideways on a snow-covered highway. If that trucker hadn't been a master driver who managed to get his rig under control at the last instant and roll it into the ditch, I wouldn't be writing this. I'd be a name on a stone in some cemetery.

To sum it up, boss, I think Mr. Kahlbaum is all wet when he says we have had almost 10 inches of snow dumped on us this winter. My impression is that we have maybe had half that much, and I'm glad. Zero inches would be even better.

I also note that somebody in the U. S. Weather Bureau station at Detroit Metropolitan Airport says we would have been buried under 30 to 50 inches of snow had it been a little colder when all that rain fell during November and December. Thank heaven for rain!

Your hard-working reporter,
Bill Mullendore.

Outstanding Math Students Honored at Beach School

The United States Achievement Academy has honored 24 outstanding math students at Beach Middle school.

Each year the academy asks teachers to recognize their students, who are chosen on the basis of high academic performance, interest, aptitude, leadership, motivation, enthusiasm, attitude and dependability, said Betty Cox, Beach school math department chairman.

Students selected for USAA at the high school level are eligible to apply for scholarships. This year more than $25,000 will be given to students across the country.

Although Beach students cannot apply for scholarships yet, Mrs. Cox says USAA is one way to honor student achievement. Recognition now may inspire them to continue their excellence.

Louise Koenn Retires With 30 Years As Visiting Nurse

Louise Koenn, of 2010 Hayes Rd. and a visiting nurse in the county for more than 30 years, retired Jan. 28 on her 65th birthday.

As a visiting nurse Mrs. Koenn gave home bedside care such as giving insulin, following up on patients with heart disease and cancer, teaching about diabetes and checking blood pressure through the Visiting Nurse Association of Huron Valley and the county health department, said Betty Winkel, supervising nurse with the health department.

She worked mostly with adults whose physicians had ordered home nursing services. Although based in Ann Arbor, she also saw patients throughout the county.

"Her patients will really miss her," said Ms. Winkel, "because she was a warm person who really enjoyed taking care of people."

During the last 1½ years, the contacts in area hospitals she had made since 1951 helped the department centralize their referral program from three offices to one, said Ms. Winkel.

The department honored her with a retirement open house Jan. 20 at the Ann Arbor office on W. Stadium Blvd. Staff, former staff, county board of health members and her patients attended along with family members; her husband, Herman Koenn; her son and daughter-in-law, Charles and Margot Koenn, and her grandchildren, Charlie and Debbie Koenn.

Her co-workers gave her a tape recorder and included tapes of messages they had individually made for her. They also honored her with a birthday cake her last day of work.

Mrs. Koenn was born and reared in Grand Rapids, and took her nursing training at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids. She worked at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti where she met her husband.

She now plans to travel, she said, and wants to start some hobbies such as landscape painting and furniture refinishing.

TAXIDERMY AWARD WINNER: Jim and Joel Krichbaum, local taxidermists, took first place in large mouth bass diorama at the first state-wide taxidermy competition last week with these two mounted bass. Jim, who has mounted animals more than 15 years, posed with the underwater display. The fish are attached to that piece of driftwood from Lake Michigan, and two nightcrawlers are dangling near their mouths. Their coloring and gloss comes from air-brushed polyurethane paints.

Father-Son Taxidermy Team Takes Three Top State Honors

Jim and Joel Krichbaum of 3411 Waltrous Rd., a father-son taxidermy team, took three top honors at the first state taxidermy competition Jan. 27 at Michigan State University.

Their white-tail deer head mount was among the top 10 out of more than 80 deer shown. No places were given in the top 10, but all of the deer mounts and winners in other categories will be shown at the Greater Michigan Boat and Fishing Show Wednesday Feb. 9 to Sunday, Feb. 13 at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

This deer had been hunted by a customer of the Krichbaums, the owners of Jim & Son Taxidermy.

Their small raccoon, which was taken by a local hunter, won first in the small raccoon class. It is a wall hanging with the raccoon poking his head and fore paws out of a hole in a piece of tree.

The Krichbaums prefer mounting an animal in a natural habitat, said Jim, such as the raccoon and two large mouth bass in an under-water setting, which took first in the large mouth bass diorama class.

Anyone who saw that bass mount which he brought into The Standard office last week would understand why it did so well in state competition.

All they had to start with was the skin and gills from a four-pound fish Jim caught and the same from a 1½ pound fish his wife Barbara caught at Sutton Lake.

Fish, unlike other animals with fur or feathers, lose all their color after death. Some taxidermists hand-paint them, but the Krichbaums airbrushed these fish with a recently-marketed polyurethane spray which gives a glossy, wet look.

The body, so crucial to a good mount, was made from excelsior and papier mache, said Jim, 39, a driving mechanic at Chrysler Proving Grounds. For larger fish, they usually carve the body mold from styrofoam.

They save and use the gills, he said, because it gives a mount a more vivid, alive look. The fins are taped to cardboard to dry flared.

The driftwood came from Lake Michigan, and the silk lily pads they purchased in Chicago were

Bulldog Cagers Win In Triple Overtime Over Milan, 65 to 63

A lot of basketball games are close, some go into overtime, and a very few stretch into multiple overtimes. Aside from those there is the occasional classic contest which is close, exciting and extremely well played besides.

Last Friday night's game matching Chelsea against Milan on the latter's court qualifies as a classic. Chelsea won it, 65-63, in triple overtime, and both coaches said afterward that it was a shame somebody had to lose.

It was that kind of game. Milan opened up an early lead as Chelsea continued its season-long habit of getting off to a slow start, and went ahead, 16-11, at the quarter. The Big Reds stretched it out to 27-16 midway through the second period and appeared to have the game under control.

Then Chelsea began one of the comebacks for which it is becoming famous this season and clawed back to a three-point deficit, 29-26, at half-time. The Bulldogs played their usual strong third quarter and finished it leading by a point, 40-39.

All of that could have been exciting enough, but it simply set the stage for what was to come.

Milan had a little the better of the fourth quarter going, and built a seemingly safe 55-51 lead with nine seconds left to play, but Chelsea wasn't about to throw in the towel and concede a loss that would have all but put them out of the Southeastern Conference title chase.

David Kiel scored from underneath to narrow the margin to two. The Bulldogs had to foul to get the ball, and they picked on Ron Dingman, Milan's best free throw shooter. Dingman went to the line for one-and-one, missed, and Chelsea's Dave Wojcicki rebounded the ball. Wojcicki brought the ball upcourt looking for a shot, instead spotted Carl Pate in the open, made the pass, and Pate drilled a 15-foot jumper at the buzzer to tie the score and force an overtime.

Like a couple of boxers waiting for a chance to throw a sneak punch for a knockout, the two teams played cautiously through two overtimes, each seeking a "last shot" to win the game. Neither got the opening.

With the score tied at 61 at the end of the second extra period, each team got a basket early in the third overtime to knot it up again at 63-all. With time on the clock once more running out, Bulldog Marty Steinhauer put up a forced shot from the baseline. It missed, but Chuck Hager was in the right place to grab the rebound and dump it in for the game-winner.

Heroes? You can run right down the Chelsea lineup and name everybody. Steinhauer, running on a gimpy knee, played the full 41 minutes and, according to Coach Robin Raymond, had "an exceptional game" on defense besides scoring 16 points.

Wojcicki turned in his third straight fine game, getting 20 points including 8 of 11 from the foul line. Four of those free throws came in the clutch when Chelsea was fighting to stay in contention near the end of regulation time.

Kiel had 8 points and 10 rebounds. Pate put in five field goals, including his game-tying long jumper. He is not known as a strong outside shooter, but he made the one he had to make.

Chelsea Makes It Four Straight Wins

Chelsea's varsity basketball team might have been expected to come up flat for its game against Stevensville Lakeshore last Saturday night, just 24 hours after the tremendous effort it had to make to defeat Milan in triple overtime.

However, the Bulldogs showed both their conditioning and their character by starting out strong against the visiting Lancers, something they haven't done in very many games this season, to take a 14-7 first quarter lead which they never lost.

The final score was 61-55 as Stevensville used an excellent full-court pressure defense to keep the game close. It was 26-23

Stevensville Wins Game

Bulldog junior varsity basketball team lost to Stevensville Lakeshore, 61-55, Jan. 29 at home to make their over-all record 6-5.

Lakeshore led, 14-13, 31-24, and 43-32 at the end of the first three quarters of play. But the Bulldogs came back to lead briefly, 48-47, during the fourth quarter.

Chelsea made 15 of 23 free throw attempts for 65 percent; Lakeshore, 13 of 27 for 48 percent; and Chelsea, 29 rebounds to Lakeshore's 21.

Dave Steinhauer had 21 points, seven rebounds; John Harris, 12 points; Mark Henson, 12 points; Scott Jones, nine points; and Keith Neibauer, nine rebounds.

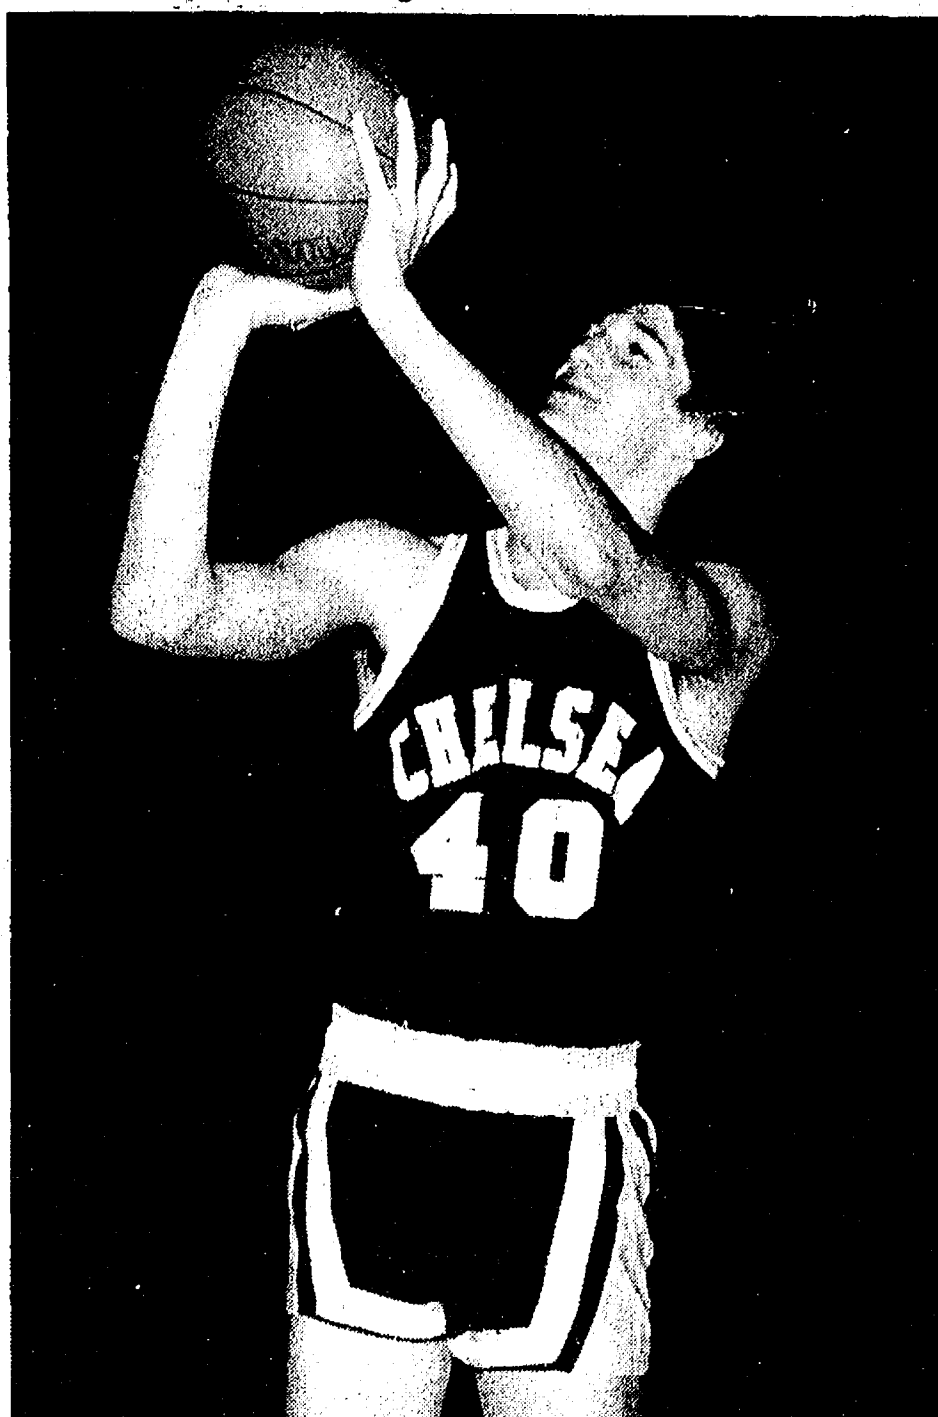

Hager had just six points, but his last two won it.

Once again Chelsea was forced to play short-handed, as forward Dave Mann was ill with the flu and didn't dress.

"It was, just simply, a great basketball game," Raymond said, "the kind you don't see very often. Milan played very well, and so did we. Ron (Dingman, Milan coach) and I agreed that it was one of the best either one of us has ever been involved in."

"It's really kind of too bad there had to be a loser, but naturally I'm glad to have the win. It keeps us right behind Dexter for the conference lead, and we have our destiny in our hands with Dexter coming over here to play us Friday. That could turn out to be a whale of a game, too."

Cager of the Week

DAVID MANN, at 6-4 and 175 pounds, is the next-to-tallest player on the Chelsea varsity basketball squad. He works at either forward or center, and makes his biggest contributions on defense and in rebounding. He leads the team in steals, an unusual accomplishment for a player of his size and position, and is second in collecting rebounds. His scoring average is about four points a game. A senior, Mann stands out academically as a member of the National Honor Society.

SEC ROUND-UP:

Dexter Makes Move And Assumes Lead

Suddenly the Southeastern Conference basketball standings have a familiar look, with defending champion Dexter on top and a pack of challengers hot on the Dreadnaughts' heels. That's the way it was last year at the midway point of the season.

Dexter had an excellent week in SEC play with victories over Saline and Tecumseh to move into first place all alone, half a game ahead of Chelsea and Tecumseh. Dexter's one-point win at Saline was one for the books, and its triumph over Tecumseh wasn't as easy as the 51-32 final score suggests.

Chelsea came up with a heart-stopping, "must" win at Milan in triple overtime, 65-63, to raise its conference record to 4-2, while Tecumseh, last week's league leader, was dropping back into a second-place tie, also at 4-2, after its loss to Dexter.

Fourth-place Lincoln defeated Milan last Tuesday to post a 4-3 conference record and remain very much in the running. The Railsplitters had a night off from conference play on Friday, defeating Ida, 56-53, in a non-league game.

Saline (3-4) kept its title hopes alive with a 72-69 overtime win over tough Jackson County Western (0-6). Western hasn't managed to win a conference game yet, but is good enough that it can't be taken for granted, especially on its home floor.

Faltering Milan ranks with Saline at 3-4 and still has a chance, although last week's losses to Lincoln and Chelsea put a chill on the early front-running Big Reds.

Interestingly, Lincoln at 8-4 has the best over-all season record among the seven SEC teams. All four of its losses have come in conference play. Chelsea is 7-3 and Dexter 7-6. None of the others is above the .500 level.

At this stage all that can be said for sure is that Dexter is on top. Western is out of it, and everybody else has at least a fighting chance for the championship.

As Saline coach Ken Sippell put it following his Hornets' victory at Western: "If we win our next five games, we're in it. With the way things have gone in the conference this season, you just never know."

Scores last week (conference only):

Tuesday—Dexter 37, Saline 36; Lincoln 80, Milan 70.
Friday—Dexter 51, Tecumseh 32; Chelsea 65, Milan 63 (triple overtime); Saline 72, Western 69 (overtime).

Friday Night's Big Chelsea-Dexter Game May Be Season's Best

Chelsea's gym should be packed to the ceiling on Friday night when the Bulldogs entertain neighboring Dexter in a basketball game that just could decide who wins the Southeastern Conference basketball championship.

Defending titlist Dexter leads the SEC with a 5-2 record. Chelsea is right behind in a second-place tie at 4-2. Both teams have some momentum going, and right now have to be considered the two top contenders for the league crown.

Coaches Robin Raymond of Chelsea and Jim McCormack of Dexter both point out that there are more games to be played after Friday night's clash, and that the road to the championship is by no means assured for whichever wins on Friday.

But they both acknowledge that the upcoming game is indeed a big one, the most important of the season thus far for either.

Dexter drew first blood in the annual home-and-home series between the two schools, winning a 60-57 overtime thriller at Dexter on Dec. 17, in a game that was just about as even as the final score was close.

The young Dexter team was struggling at that stage, and has improved steadily since. Experienced Chelsea has been inconsistent this season, but has shown signs of steadying in recent games.

On a neutral court the game would have to rate a toss-up. Chelsea may be favored by a couple of points because it will be playing at home, always an advantage, but it still stacks up as one of those contests in which it would be foolish to predict a winner.

Both teams like to run, shoot and score. Both prefer to play man-to-man pressure defense. Neither coach has much use for the slow-down game or the zone defense, but both can apply those tactics if forced to.

Both squads boast some outstanding individuals, but both play solid team basketball. It should be quite a game.

Freshman Cagers Lose Two Contests on Road

Chelsea freshman basketball coach Paul Ash was worried about the very tough middle part of his team's schedule, and it turned out he had reason to be as his young cagers extended their losing streak to four last week.

The frosh dropped a pair of road games — 49-44 to Lincoln and 62-56 to Jackson Lumen Christi. "They are both good teams, but we could have beaten them both," Ash said. "We just didn't execute when we needed to."

Poor shooting from the foul line was the big problem at Lincoln, as the Chelsea freshmen made only 6 of 22 attempts in the five-point loss. "Otherwise, we outplayed Lincoln in every phase of the game," Ash said. "Actually, we did a lot of things very well. We stopped their running game, and made ours go. Our pressure defense was very effective."

Against Lumen Christi the free throw marksmanship improved to a very good 14 of 19, but late-in-the-game errors kept Chelsea from pulling even when it had the chances.

Dan Bellus turned in the week's top individual performance with 23 points against Lumen Christi, and had 13 at Lincoln.

"The kids are down on themselves a little bit after getting off to such a fine start and then losing four in a row," Ash said, "but I believe they'll bounce back. We are 6-5 right now with six more games to play, and we can win them all if we work at it."

A 12-5 season wouldn't be all bad, and it's not an impossible dream."

David Boyer Takes Lead In Cribbage

David Boyer holds the lead all alone with a 14-6 record after two rounds of play in the Chelsea Jaycee cribbage tournament. Right behind are Glenn Boyer, Richard Dotts, Duane Boyer, Gini Schermacher and Garry Wheaton, all tied at 13-7.

Jo Anderson, Art Steinaway and Rodney Houle come next at 11-9, followed by Skip Schlupe and Tom Penhalligon at 10-10. Norman Allen and Tina Dotts are tied at 9-11, and Gary Radke is alone at 8-12.

Others are Ray Dotts, Fremont Boyer, Leslie Williams, Jim Hofmeyer, Jeff Boyer and Noreen Schuette, all tied at 7-13.

There will be a third 10-game round of preliminary play starting at 7 o'clock tonight at the Chelsea VFW Hall. The eight players with the best records after tonight's competition will qualify for the playoffs on Feb. 8.

Swimmers Divide

Beach Middle school boys and girls swimming team split meets last week. They beat Dundee, 64-52, Jan. 27 at home and lost to Milan, 75-41, Jan. 25 at home.

THE WORLD TURNS UPSIDE DOWN: That's what happened to an unidentified Lincoln wrestler as Chelsea's Travis Rudd upended him and pressed his shoulders toward the mat. Rudd got a "near fall" for this maneuver, and a bit later scored a pin.

The Chelsea wrestling team's performance in scoring 10 straight pins while defeating Lincoln, 60-15, last Thursday probably isn't a record, but it is certainly a rare accomplishment.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

It may not work, but it has a good chance and is certainly worth a try that could and perhaps should have been made several years ago.

That sums up my reaction to last week's pleasant surprise provided by the Department of Natural Resources' wildlife division when it made the first in a series of wild turkey releases in the Waterloo Recreation Area. You can laugh all you like about the idea of turning loose three males and expecting something to happen, but that's the way the turkey transplanting game goes. You take what birds you can get, when you can get them, and hope for some more later.

The plan calls for releasing a minimum of 20 wild turkeys in Waterloo, with a sex ratio at least 3 to 1 in favor of hens, before the spring breeding season begins in April. Whether that plan can be carried out in all particulars depends on the luck of the trappers in Iowa who are supplying the birds.

Trapping wild turkeys is devilishly difficult even in a bad winter when the birds are pinched for food and can be lured into baited areas. They have to be covered by cannon-fired nets, caught and subdued by hand, disentangled from the twine, and placed in close-confining crates before they injure themselves in their struggles to escape.

Iowa has had a winter much like Michigan's so far — mild with almost no snow. There is no reason for turkeys to go looking for free hand-outs of food. They can get all they want in their wild, natural habitat, and that is where they prefer to find it.

The wild turkey is the wariest of all creatures in North America. A whitetail deer is tame by comparison. Turkeys possess incredibly acute sight and hearing, and are a bundle of nerves besides. They are set on hair-trigger all the time.

The idea of importing Iowa turkeys into southeastern Michigan makes sense, because a strain of birds has developed there which may have the characteristics to survive in areas having a fairly high density of human population and heavy year-around recreational use. Michigan's turkeys have not done all that well among people. Iowa's turkey habitat is at least roughly like that of southeast Michigan.

Re-establishment of wild turkeys in Michigan and in many other states where they were once native but succumbed to the onrush of civilization, is one of this century's biggest wildlife management success stories. (Others are the introduction of oriental pheasants, the comeback of deer, restoration of antelope and bighorn sheep, rebuilding of elk herds.)

Michigan's native turkeys vanished back about 1900. They were, apparently, kind of dumb birds, not too much different from today's domestic varieties which are so incompetent that they have to be assisted in the mating act.

During the 1930's the Pennsylvania Game Commission set out to breed a new kind of wild turkey, one that would be able to make it in the eastern states. (The western Merriam's and Rio Grande species had managed to survive.) The Pennsylvanians eventually succeeded, and they furnished the stock which provided the seed for Michigan's present thriving wild turkey population.

Amid a great deal of skepticism — including the outright opposition of some high-ranking officials in the Conservation Department who regarded it as a frivolous waste of money — wild turkeys were imported from Pennsylvania during the 1950's and stocked in the Allegan State Game Area. They took hold, and from that introduction have spread naturally and been transplanted into a big chunk of northern Michigan, including a portion of the Upper Peninsula.

A premiere "quality" sport of spring hunting for surplus males that have performed their mating function has evolved and become popular. Bagging a legal bearded gobbler during the late April-early May season is perhaps the summit of success in Michigan hunting. The sport is carefully controlled under a quota-permit system, to make sure that no over-harvest occurs. The flock originally established near Allegan has done less well than its offshoots farther north. That is why the Iowa strain is now being tried in southern Michigan, including Waterloo. The Hawkeye state birds just may be able to adapt in places where the Pennsylvania products can't.

The idea of attempting introduction of wild turkeys into southeastern Michigan has been on the DNR drawing boards for a long time and, as usual, the department has moved at a glacial pace. Now that the DNR has finally decided to go ahead and try something, the effort merits full public support.

The best support that can be given at this point is for people to leave the turkeys alone and let them do their thing, which is to establish territories, mate, nest and raise young this spring. The bird-watcher trying to add a Washtenaw county wild turkey to his "life list" can do as much mischief right now as a poacher.

I know where the birds are being released. I won't go near the place for the next six months.

HIGH HOPES: Wayne Bronner, Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist, cradles one of three tom turkeys imported from Iowa which were released into the Waterloo Recreation Area on Jan. 21. Implanted in the bird's back is a tiny radio transmitter which will send out continuous beeping signals allowing the turkey to be "tracked" and monitored. The transmitter will eventually lose its battery power and drop off, with no harm to the bird.

Beach Wrestlers Still Undefeated

Chelsea Beach Middle school's wrestlers remained undefeated after defeating Dundee, 75-17, last Tuesday night. Their season record is 3-0 in dual meets.

Winners were:

Bryan Kidd (75 pounds), decision; Mike Westover (82), fall; Mac Krzewowski (96), fall; Ron Bogdanski (110), fall; Lee Riemenschneider (117), fall; Steve Rosentreter (124), fall; Greg Rudd (131), forfeit; Ron Grifka (138), fall; Chris Zangara (147), forfeit; Rob Hubbell (157), decision; Andy Box (169), fall; Randy Ferry (heavyweight), forfeit.

In exhibition matches Gregg Rudd, Curtis Heard, Randy Ferry, Jay Marentay, Marty Poljan and Jason Petty all won by pins, and Sam Eisenbeiser and Scott Marentay earned decisions.

Volleyball Team Wins And Loses

Chelsea girls varsity volleyball team beat Lincoln, 15-2, 15-5, Jan. 27 at home and lost to Pinckney Jan. 24 away, 15-13, 4-15, 4-15.

The Lincoln team graduated 11 seniors from last year's team and are in a rebuilding year, said Bulldogs coach Cathy Vleck. They had trouble returning the ball.

In the first game Donna Popovich had seven straight service points. Kathleen Morris and Kim Johnson both had five service points in the second game.

Venus Roberts had five unplayable hits, one of which was untouched, and Sharon Glassford, six unplayable hits, four of which were untouched.

After the first game against Pinckney, the team did not play well in the next two games, said Vleck.

JV Girls Play Well in Pioneer Invitational Meet

Bulldog junior varsity girls volleyball team had a convincing win and a convincing loss this week—they beat Lincoln, 15-5, 15-0, Jan. 27 at home and lost to Pinckney, 6-15, 0-15, Jan. 24 away.

Lincoln had troubles returning the ball, said coach Sandy Mandel, so the Bulldogs didn't get much chance to play much.

Chelsea served well, she said. Jennifer Swearingen had seven straight service points in the first game, which included several aces. Cathy Basso had three service points and Debbie Morris, four.

Morris served the first seven points in the second game, and Julie Koch served the next eight. They were the only servers in that game.

The team's next home game is at 7 p.m. Feb. 3 against Jackson County Western.

Chelsea girls junior varsity volleyball team came together as a team at the second Ann Arbor Pioneer Volleyball Invitational for junior varsity teams Jan. 29 at Pioneer High school, said coach Sandy Mandel.

Everyone had a good day—playing and serving well under pressure, she said. All the games were close although the team did not make it out of morning pool play.

In this tournament they played two games against the other teams in their pool. The Bulldogs beat Greenhills in both games; lost two games to Class A Adrian; lost two games to Saline; and lost two games to Northville.

Saline and Adrian had the best records in pool B, so they went on to semi-finals with Pioneer and Romulus.

8th Grade Cagers Win 2, 7th Graders Drop Pair

The season ended last week for Chelsea's junior high basketball teams, with the eighth graders winning a pair and the seventh graders losing two.

The eighth grade unit defeated Dexter, 38-25, and Milan, 39-28. The seventh grade squad fell to Dexter in a squeaker, 25-24, and then dropped its final game to Milan, 43-30.

Eighth grade—

Chelsea's Jeff Harvey played his best game of the year against Dexter, scoring 13 points. Todd Starkey had 10 and Mark Bareis and Jon Lane four each. Dexter played a zone defense, but Chelsea was able to get the ball inside. "It wasn't a blowout," Coach Jim Tallman said. "Dexter was tough all the way."

Against Milan, the eighth graders were down by four with 30 seconds to go, but kept their poise, made some key baskets and free throws, and went on to pull out the win. Starkey had 16 points, Harvey 7, and Matt Steinhauer, Bareis and Matt Bohlander 4 apiece.

"It was our first opportunity all season to come from behind at the end, and the kids handled it very well," Tallman said.

Seventh grade— Behind by six points with two minutes to play, the Chelsea seventh graders rallied but fell short by a point. Tim Anderson led the team with eight.

The Milan game was "really weird," Coach Ron Lacro said.

"We were ahead, 24-14 at the half, and I thought we had it won, but Milan came back strong and we lost our momentum." John Cattell and Clay Hurd had 11 and 10 points, respectively.

A story on the previous week's games appears below.

Junior High Cagers Have Active Week

Chelsea's eighth grade basketball team had a "pretty good week," but the seventh graders was only so-so according to their respective coaches.

The eighth grade squad won a pair of games, defeating Ann Arbor St. Thomas, 38-25, and Lincoln, 44-17. The Lincoln game was "our best so far," said Coach Jim Tallman.

The seventh graders defeated St. Thomas, 38-27, with Clay Heard scoring 12 points. Eight other players shared in the scoring.

However, they fell to Lincoln 47-22, as the Railsplitters "dominated the entire game," according to Chelsea coach Ron Lacro. "Lincoln has one boy who is really good," Lacro, "and he just sort of took charge."

Heard and John Cattell accounted for most of Chelsea's scoring with eight points each.

THANK YOU

The family of Lula Beutler wishes to express their appreciation to the many neighbors, friends and relatives for their expressions of sympathy and memorial contributions. We would also like to extend our appreciation to all of those persons for their many visits to the Evangelical Home, the Rev.

Koch for his comforting words and the ladies of St. Paul's for the lunch after the services.

The Loren Beutler family.

THANK YOU

Words cannot express my many thanks to my daughter Bernice, son-in-law John, and family, for the lovely surprise party they gave me on my 75th birthday.

Also thanks to my husband,

George, for keeping it a secret.

Your presence at the open house was appreciated and it will be a day I will always remember and cherish. A special thanks to my relatives and friends for the many gifts, birthday cards and telephone messages. Your thoughtfulness meant far more than you can guess. May God bless each and every one of you.

Marguerite Harvey Miley.

Faith in Action Seeks Volunteers

Previous articles have described Faith in Action's philosophy, purposes and programs. It is an organization originated and maintained for and by the local people. It has already accomplished many things in a short time and has the potential to achieve greater aspirations as more people become involved.

Through the generosity of a local patron, Ms. Madeleine Vallier, Faith in Action has a home now. It is the brown stained house with yellow awnings behind the Chelsea Community Hospital (near the emergency room entrance). The hospital has also been generous in providing furniture for the house. The phones will be installed in February and the new number will be announced at that time.

Several things are needed yet before official opening. Volunteers are needed for answering phones, office duties and transportation. Office furniture needed would include a desk, office lamps, electric typewriter and desk copier.

Faith in Action would like to extend a warm thank-you to all of those who have helped and donated thus far in its endeavor to serve the community.

Temporary phone numbers for Faith in Action are: the Rev. Jerry Beaumont, 475-2003; Jo Ann Carruthers, c/o Chelsea Comm. Hospital, 475-1311, ext. 262, (8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday only).

Sheriff's deputies who investigated the accident said it was dark and raining at the time, and the road was spotted with patches of ice.

Taxidermy Team Wins State Award

sprayed with an epoxy to make them look wet.

The mount even has night-crawlers in a "Texas rig."

Krichbaum has been doing taxidermy as a hobby and business for more than 15 years. He had decided to have mounted the first fish he caught that weighed more than five pounds. He had some one mount that fish, and got interested in taxidermy.

He then attended Northwestern School of Taxidermy in Omaha, Neb.

Joel Krichbaum, 19, began taxidermy about six years ago, and does it full-time now.

Although one looking at the bass and their intricate coloring would assume the Krichbaums spent months on this display, Jim estimated it took 25 hours.

He had expected the bass display to do well, he said, but the top places of the deer and raccoon were a "real thrill."
