Industrial Park Plans Studied By Village, Sylvan

An industrial park is in the works for the Chelsea area. The revelation came as a surprise to those in attendance at last Tuesday night's village council meeting. The matter had not been discussed publicly before.

In separate but closely related actions, the council:

1. Voted to cost-share with Sylvan township a $4,500 feasibility study for the industrial park, to be made by the Ann Arbor engineering firm of Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May. Each governmental unit will pay half the fee.

2. Approved making an offer to buy a 73-acre tract of land fronting on Sibley Rd., immediately west of the Dana Corp. plant, for $125,000. The site is owned by Stewart Small. It includes a vacant two-story house in apparently good condition, plus a barn and three smaller outbuildings in obviously poor shape. The land was planted to corn last year and is presently a stubble field. It has not as yet been plowed for spring planting.

The idea for a local industrial park originated with the Sylvan township board of trustees, village administrator Frederick A. Weber said. The township has committed itself to pay its $2,250 share for the feasibility study.

However, the land being sought lies entirely within the village limits, and how future costs might be handled is uncertain. Weber suggested the money to buy the tract might be borrowed from the village Electric and Water Fund, and repaid from future rental receipts on the property. That was done in the case of the Hafner house at 134 W. Middle St., which the village bought nine years ago and has paid for itself a year ahead of schedule.

In giving the green light to Ayres, Lewis, Norris, & May, the village council committed itself only to the first two parts of a five-phase development plan suggested by the engineering firm.

Under the first two phases the consultants will "investigate the feasibility of locating an industrial park in the Chelsea area and evaluate alternative sites for its location." The work will be completed in 60 days or less and will provide "a clear idea of the feasibility and cost of the industrial park."

Phase III, if undertaken, would cost $18-20,000 and would include plans for design and construction of utilities for the selected industrial park site. It would also involve securing necessary permits from the state Department of Natural Resources, county drain commissioner, county health department, plat board and other government agencies.

Phase IV would consist of providing roads inside the industrial park. Engineering costs are estimated at $12-15,000. Construction costs have not been estimated.

Phase V would involve final preparation of the final plat—dividing the park into lots, setting surveying monuments and corner markers, and the like. Cost of doing that is estimated at $6,000.

Ashok K. Singhal, a vice-president of Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May, will be in charge of the feasibility study. He told the council that, if a site is purchased and all goes well, the industrial park could be ready for prospective renters during the summer of 1984.

Approval of the feasibility study occurred early during last Tuesday night's village council meeting. Much later, the council declared a closed "executive session" to discuss the purchase of the Sibley Rd. property.

Advised by a reporter that such a meeting was illegal under the Michigan Open Meetings Act, the council went ahead and did it anyway. (Closed meetings are required to be given at least 18 hours of advance public notice.)

After conferring in private for 15 minutes, the council came back into public session and voted unanimously to offer $125,000 for the Small property, with $5,000 to be put down as earnest money. The offer is contingent on a favorable recommendation from the feasibility study.

Only other parcel of land mentioned as a possibility for the industrial park is a tract located west of Schumm's restaurant on south M-52. Its potential cost was said to be "much higher" than that of the Small property.

The Small property definitely is for sale, and has a sign to that effect posted in the front yard of the house. Weber said that village water and sewer lines are located close to the property and could be extended at relatively low cost.

The land is roughly rectangular in shape, bounded by Letts Creek on the south, Sibley Rd. on the north, Dana on the east and the village limits on the west. The southeast corner juts across the creek. There is a small "in-holding," a private home which fronts on Sibley Rd. and is not part of the proposed purchase.

The hope behind an industrial park is that land at relatively low-rent cost with utility services available will attract new industry into a location zoned and managed for industrial purposes.

The city of Saline opened up an 85-acre industrial about a year ago, has attracted three new businesses into it, and has several more prospects.

Tregets Moving Out After Zoning Hassle

Tregets Tool & Engineering Co. will move out of the Chelsea area to a new location in Jackson county, senior owner George Dygert has informed The Standard. He and sons Steven and Douglas are principals in the business.

The decision to move was to be formalized at a board of directors meeting yesterday, the senior Dygert said.

Dygert also revealed that Ryerson-Haynes Co. of Jackson, of which he is general manager, had been considering moving some of its operations to Chelsea but has given up the idea now that Tregets has been denied the rezoning it needed to remain in the village.

The two firms are separate but have some interests in common, including the fact that George Dygert is a high officer in both.

"We can't wait any longer to move Tregets," Dygert said. "It's costing us money every day that we stay where we are (in the Weinberg Dairy building on Old US-12). We have a big new contract, and we can't handle it in our existing plant."

"The publicity given our unsuccessful effort to have a site rezoned so we could stay in Chelsea attracted the attention of some people in Jackson county. They want us, and they are bending over backwards to accommodate us."

Dygert said that Ryerson-Haynes had been looking at the vacant IPSCO (Industrial Plastics Specialty Co.) plant on the north side of the railroad tracks at the east end of Cavanaugh Lake Rd. as a possible location for operations in Chelsea, but that idea is now dead. The IPSCO plant is listed for sale by a Pennsylvania firm which specializes in industrial real estate.

"The two moves would have had to go together," Dygert explained. "When we were turned down on the Chelsea rezoning for Tregets, the IPSCO plant idea became impractical."

Tregets had sought to buy and occupy the old Riemenschneider two-cycle fuel plant, a short distance east on Old US-12 from their present location. That site is inside the village limits and is zoned residential. Tregets applied to have the property rezoned to light industrial (I-2) and that, finally, was turned down after six months of negotiations, hearings and meetings.

The council formally buried the application last week.

While all that was going on, the council did take steps to try to accommodate Tregets by passing two amendments to the village zoning ordinance. One creates a new type of extra-light industrial (I-3) zone to accommodate small, clean plants such as Tregets. The other provides for special Planned Industrial Districts (PIDS) within areas zoned for other uses.

The village openly invited Tregets to try again by applying to have the Riemenschneider plant site rezoned under either of the new amendments, but Dygert said that almost certainly will not happen.

"It would take several more months to complete the (rezoning) process even if everything went well," he said, "and we have no assurance that the outcome would be favorable. We just can't afford to wait that long, and

Methodist Pastor Leaving in June

The Rev. Marvin H. McCallum, pastor of First United Methodist church of Chelsea for the past seven years, has accepted a position as senior pastor of St. Paul United Methodist church in Monroe. He will leave Chelsea in mid-June to begin his duties there.

He will be succeeded by the Rev. David Truran, now senior pastor of St. Paul United Methodist church, Bloomfield Hills.

The Rev. Truran was born in Detroit, received a Bachelor of Arts degree from North Central College, Naperville, Ill.; a Master of Divinity degree from Evangelical Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill.; and a Doctor of Ministry degree in pastoral theology and counseling from Vanderbilt University Divinity school, Nashville, Tenn.

He served as associate pastor of Royal Oak First United Methodist church and senior

POSSIBLE INDUSTRIAL PARK SITE: The Chelsea Village Council has approved offering $125,000 for a 73-acre parcel on the south side of Sibley Rd. just west of the Dana Corp. plant as a possible site for an industrial park to be developed jointly with Sylvan township. The land was planted to corn last year. The site includes a vacant two-story house (inset), a barn and three other out-buildings.

Village Applies for Federal Funds To Expand Sewage Plant

When the village of Chelsea goes after something, it doesn't fool around. It strikes for the top.

A resolution passed by the village council last Tuesday night, seeking 75 percent federal funding for expansion of the wastewater treatment plant, will be sent to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, as required by law and regulations.

A copy of the resolution will also go to President Reagan. That isn't asked for in the law, but council members decided it might be a good idea anyway.

The so-called "201 Facilities Plan" prepared for the village by the Toledo, O., engineering firm of Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout, estimates a cost of $4,543,000 to modernize the sewage plant and bring it into compliance with federal and state water quality laws.

The present plant, although well operated, is frequently overloaded and does not provide the final steps of treatment required to remove the last few percentage points of nitrogen, phosphorus and other contaminants found in municipal wastes.

The plant's discharge goes into Letts Creek and from there eventually into the Huron River by way of Mill Creek.

The letter to the president may or may not ever get to him personally—the chances are it won't—but the council decided it should touch all the possible bases.

There is a considerable amount of money at stake for the village.

If the $4.5 million estimate for the project is in the ballpark, a 75 percent federal grant would pay $3,375,000 of the cost, leaving the village to come up with the remaining $1,125,000, presumably through a bond issue. Available state matching funds are essentially zero.

The 75 percent federal matching money will last about four more months. After that, the federal contribution will drop to 55 percent.

The difference is significant. A 55 percent grant on a $4.5 million job would amount to about $2,475,000, a reduction of $900,000 from the 75 percent level.

Chelsea has been under the gun to upgrade its wastewater treatment plant for several years, but has not previously been able to qualify high enough on the state's priority list to become eligible for a grant.

The inadequacies of the sewage plant unquestionably constitute a major block to Chelsea's residential and business growth. The plant normally operates close to its maximum of 600,000 gallons of treated sewage per day and on wet days exceeds it, resulting in discharge of up to 250,000 gallons of untreated overflow into Letts Creek.

Some additional capacity could be created with changes in the village sewer system to keep stormwater from filtering into sanitary sewer lines, but that would be only a temporary stop-gap. The activated-sludge method of treatment would still be below state and federal standards, and Chelsea would still be causing a water pollution problem.

That all helps to explain why the village is pressing to get on the 75 percent federal grant list, and why the council is going all the way to the president to make its case.

Council Committees Named

Village president Jack Merkel has appointed the following committees of the village council to serve during the 1983-84 year which began with last Tuesday night's meeting. In each instance the first named is the chairman.

Chelsea Area Transportation System (CATS)—Jeanene Riemenschneider and Richard Steele.

Electric and Water Department—Loren Keezer and Herman Radloff.

Fire Department—Steele and Joe Merkel.

Landfill—Radloff and Keezer.

Personnel and Public Relations—Jerry Satterthwaite and Riemenschneider.

Planning and Zoning—Satterthwaite and Steele.

Police Department—Merkel and Radloff.

Public Works Department—Radloff and Satterthwaite.

Wastewater Treatment—Steele and Keezer.

Ways and Means—Keezer and Radloff.

Parks and Recreation—Riemenschneider and Satterthwaite.

Music Concert Slated

Chelsea High school choir, orchestra and bands will present a "montage" concert featuring combined numbers by the different groups at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 19 at the Chelsea High school gymnasium.

The concert will kick off the spring tour by the band and Contemporaries vocal group, who leave April 20 for Chicago.

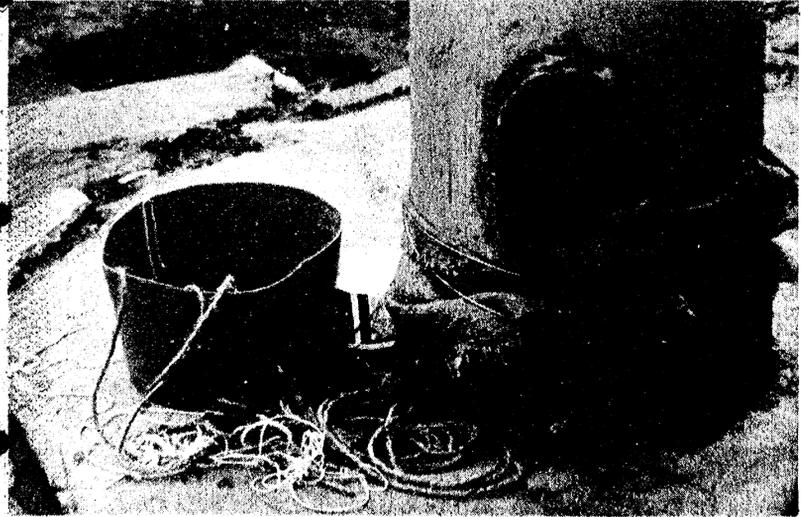

The orchestra and choir, SSA (soprano, soprano, alto), SATB (soprano, alto, tenor, bass) and Contemporaries, a 15-voice ensemble, will combine to perform portions of Verdi's Requiem. The jazz band and Contemporaries will perform "You Don't Send Me Flowers Anymore." Other selections include "You'll Never Walk Alone," "The Impossible Dream," Neil Diamond tunes and "They Call It the Blues."

The spring tour gives students a chance to perform often and get experience playing for strange audiences, said William Gourley, band director and chairman of the music department.

Earning a standing ovation from strangers is different than getting one from the home crowd, he said, and can mean a lot to one's self-confidence.

The tour also gives students an opportunity to travel, he said, which is educational in itself.

The tour begins with concerts April 20 at Tecumseh High school in the morning; Albion College, afternoon; and Bellevue High (Continued on page two)

CAT DOWN UNDER: Somehow a cat got through this hole in a pole by the court house and fell eight feet below the level of the pavement. It had trouble getting out, of course—it's a tight squeeze for a 10-pounder. This burlap "ladder," dropped down the hole by Fred Petsch, superintendent of the village's public works department on Monday, was the second ladder installed for the cat. When the humane society checked Monday night, the cat had gotten out.

Cat Rescued from 8-ft. Hole

Chelsea had an unusual cat rescue last week. Although they are more famous for getting stuck up trees, this black and white tiger cat got stuck inside a pole for a few days.

"Yes, inside. The metal pole in front of the court house, which houses electrical cables, had an opening at ground level. Somehow the cat squeezed through that hole and fell eight feet below the level of the pavement.

Now cats can climb trees, but the inside of a smooth metal pole is another story.

Steve Rice, who lives at 119½ S. Main St. and is employed by Schneider's Store, heard the cat screaming "loud enough to be heard a block away" about 11:30 p.m. Friday, April 1.

He didn't know how far down it was to the cat, and thought the cat could get out by itself. But he called the Huron Valley Humane Society anyway.

The next morning the cat was still there, and Rice found out how far down it actually was. He (Continued on page five)

Anyone shooting a protected bird or fishing without a license may be arrested by a woman. Sue Koppelo, one of two conservation officers in the county, is one of only five women conservation officers in the state. She was among the first three women accepted for training in 1977. In May, on her first day on the job in this county, she helped dig up a body at Waterloo Recreation Area. Although many think her job is just nursing animals back to life, she said she actually deals more with humans.

Main St. The firm, one of five new car dealerships in the area, actually moved there in November, but delayed the celebration until the building was more complete.

St. Paul United Church of Christ's new pipe organ and new organist, Paul Renick, will debut at the worship service Sunday, April 13. The organ, installed by Robert Fouser of Fouser Organs Inc. of Ann Arbor, features 17 ranks of more than 1,200 pipes arranged to complement the nave's high, vaulted ceiling.

Two escapees from Ionia State Prison were apprehended early Wednesday morning by Chelsea patrolman Bruce Sibert after a high speed chase on M-52. Sibert became suspicious when two youths inside a 1962 Chevrolet parked across from the fire station ducked to avoid being seen. When Sibert approached them, they drove off at a high rate of speed. He pursued them at speeds up to 80 miles per hour on M-52, finally forcing them to stop at Peckins Rd.

FUNERAL HOME

WHAT ARE THE RULES FOR FUNERAL TRAFFIC?

Traffic rules governing funeral processions differ sometimes from those governing other traffic. These tips may help if you are in a funeral procession (or to be remembered if you encounter one):

1. Use the windshield sticker or flag we provide.
2. Keep your headlights on. It identifies your vehicle as part of the procession.
3. If the procession is crossing an intersection while the traffic light changes to red, continue through. Do not stop. The funeral procession has the right-of-way. The lead car, of course, will stop and obey all posted signals.
4. A policeman, if available, may direct funeral traffic through busy intersections. We, as funeral directors, appreciate the escort service which our police department provides. The mourners consider this civic safety service both thoughtful and welcome.
5. Obtain and read the state traffic regulations regarding funeral processions.
6. If you are NOT part of the procession, remember it has right-of-way. Do not cross it or join it.

Jobs Council Created To Aid Private Businesses

A cabinet-level Council on Jobs and Economic Development, with Commerce Director Ralph Gerson as its chairman, was created recently by Executive Order by Governor James Blanchard.

Blanchard said the council, which will "interface" with a private sector council, will provide the first co-ordinated efforts to develop strategies for attracting new business and promoting employment in Michigan.

Additionally, House Speaker Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) said the legislative Joint Committee on Administrative Rules will begin a review of administrative rules with four departments—Natural Resources, Labor, Commerce and Public Health—to find which rules can be eliminated or streamlined to aid business locations and developments in the state.

The executive jobs council will consist of the directors of the Departments of Agriculture, Natural Resources, Labor, Licensing and Regulation, Management and Budget, Transportation and Treasury, along with Attorney General Frank Kelley and State School Superintendent Phillip Runkel.

Blanchard said the council's first task would be to "put together a comprehensive strategy on jobs and economic development. It will identify target industries for our future, make recommendations to attract business and retain businesses," along with making recommendations on diversifying business.

Blanchard also said the council will have top priorities of helping to formulate a public works program, small business initiatives and create a new strategic investment bank.

The council will also work with a group the governor has formed of business and labor leaders to help develop strategies for improving state employment.

The administrative rules project was launched after consultations between both the speaker and Senate Majority Leader William Faust (D-Westland). The project's goal is to eliminate regulations that tend to inhibit job development.

Kelley To Launch Study Into Dioxin Contamination
Attorney General Kelley recently announced he will meet with federal and state environmental and health officials to develop a specific plan to study the extent of dioxin contamination in Michigan.

Kelley made the announcement following a request by the governor who said the issue needs a thorough scientific and legal review.

The attorney general said he will meet with the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Michigan Environmental Review Board, the Department of Public Health and the Department of Natural Resources.

Kelley said he is considering assembling a state-federal task force modeled after one used in obtaining a settlement with Velsicol Corp. relative to PBB-contaminated sites.

"It is still too early to commit to any one way of doing things. We will make ourselves available to anyone with evidence of dioxin contamination and how it got there," Kelley said.

A Michigan State University study has found dioxin-tainted fish in 10 Lower Peninsula rivers, and the EPA has identified dioxin contamination around Dow Chemical Co. facilities in Midland.

JOGGING AND FOOT PROBLEMS

Today, jogging is becoming your most popular pastime for pleasure and for health. But if you're having any problems with your feet, it's no longer pleasurable or healthful. You should have your feet checked immediately by a foot specialist. When you jog, you put a lot of stress on your feet. If you develop any foot problems they'll get worse unless treated in time.

Your feet are a lot more complex than you realize. Each foot has 26 bones, each serving an important function. Then there are the joints, ligaments, muscles, tendons, the network of nerves and blood vessels. When you're jogging, all of these structures work together to provide balance and support. They help propel the entire weight of your body forward.

Are you wearing the proper shoes when you jog? Good jogging shoes provide cushioning and support for our heels and arches. Is there enough room for your toes to move comfortably? Shoes wear out with use, and that's something you should guard against. Make sure your shoes—as well as your body—are in good condition.

Women in Technology Program Set To Follow High Tech Fair

"Careers for the Future: Women in Technology" has been selected as the theme of a program April 18 as a logical follow-up to activities occurring in connection with the High Tech Fair in Ann Arbor.

The woman's career program, under the sponsorship of the Women in Science Program at the University of Michigan, will be held in the library of the Center for Continuing Education of Women, (CEW), 350 S. Thayer St., Ann Arbor.

Dr. Barbara Sloat, co-ordinator of the University of Michigan Women in Science Program, and Dr. Alexandria Aldridge, Associate Professor Interdisciplinary Technology at Eastern Michigan University, will respond to questions about careers and career opportunities in industry for women.

The program is open to students, professional women, and to members of the community as well.

The Tech Fair, sponsored by the Michigan Technology Council, is scheduled April 16-17 at the U. of M. Track and Tennis Building, and is the highlight of numerous events and conferences connected to high technology.

Catholic Women Spring Meeting Scheduled in Milan

The Council of Catholic Women will feature a Diocesan Spring Day at Immaculate Conception church in Milan, on Tuesday, April 19, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., with Mass beginning at 9 a.m. and registration from 9:30 to 10 a.m. The theme for the day is "To Mary With Love."

The morning program will include Paul Nevel, Monroe county extension director, who will be speaking on "How the Economy is Affecting the Farmer."

The afternoon program will include two speakers, the first being Billie Kops Wimmer, executive secretary for Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools, speaking on "Tuition Tax Credits." The second speaker is Mrs. Catherine Pelletier, National Council of Catholic Women province director for the Detroit province, speaking on "Public Relations Within Our Organization."

Mass will be offered for the Rev. Fr. Patrick Jackson. The program will close with special readings and songs centered around the theme of the day, "To Mary With Love."

Cost for the day is $5, which includes an international luncheon. All prepaid registrations must be sent to Mrs. Jeanette Kirk, 10113 Grossman Rd., Manchester, by April 15.

St. Mary's Group Plans Rock-A-Thon

St. Mary's Catholic church sixth, seventh, and eighth grade religious education students and teachers are planning a rock-a-thon 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, April 16 at St. Mary's school gymnasium.

Students need a minimum of 10 pledges and their own rocking chairs to participate.

Proceeds will be sent Fr. Andrew Guljus for his missionary work in Chile.

The first collective bargaining agreement in the building trades was gained in 1885 by bricklayers in New York City, according to a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

She received her BBA degree from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, in 1979.

Ms. Mann resides on Chicago's Near North Side.

President Reagan To Promote Ag Exports

In remarks observing National Agriculture Day, March 21, President Reagan promised to promote U.S. agricultural exports by opening markets and introducing creative alternatives in order to overcome excessive surpluses—not by increasing subsidies or federal controls.

In noting that farmers have been hit hard by the recession, President Reagan said: "Surviving has been a job in itself, but I think it is fair to say that although winter's been harsh, it is going to be a beautiful spring. We've planted the right seeds, and now economic recovery is popping up all over the country—and America's farmers aren't going to be left out."

Dave Reid, Veteran of Two Wars, Marks 85th Birthday

One of Chelsea's most remarkable war heroes will celebrate his 85th birthday on Friday. He is Dave Reid of 714 McKinley Rd., a veteran of two world wars in the service of two countries, first against the Kaiser, then against the Nazis.

Sixty-eight years ago he enlisted in a Scottish regiment of the British army. It was April 15, 1915, and his 17th birthday. Within five days he was in active combat in France against the invading Germans.

Twenty-seven years later at age 44, David Reid, now an American citizen, volunteered for service in the U.S. Army, intent on beating the Germans for a second time.

Because U.S. participation in World War I began on April 6, 1917, and the first American troops arrived on French soil in June, Reid had nearly a two-year head start over his future compatriots.

This raises two questions: Is Dave Reid the first soldier in Washtenaw county to do battle with the Kaiser's army in World War I? Is he, at age 85, the Washtenaw county veteran whose military service in European combat is of earliest record?

In World War I Reid was wounded when a German shell hit a horse-drawn ammunition train that he was loading. He received a citation for this during his service with Scotland's 51st division of the Royal Garrison Artillery.

In addition, Reid was decorated for rescuing 10 men from a gas-filled dugout in France. He also survived the torpedoing of a hospital ship which was carrying him to England. Upon recovering, he became a driver of one of the early armored tanks which British forces used against the German armies.

Reid came to the United States in 1923 and applied for American citizenship. It was many years before he received his final papers, but he earned them in time for enlistment in World War II. In 1942 he volunteered for military service and became a member of the U.S. Army. He served until he received his honorable discharge. Upon joining, he had begged for "one more lick at those Germans" but proved to be more valuable in support activities with the 12th Armored Division at Camp Campbell, Ky.

Before and after his service in the armed forces, Reid was employed at the Chelsea Spring plant. He began as a mechanic in 1936 and retired in 1963 as superintendent of the night shift.

In 1956 he built his own home on McKinley Rd., mostly with his own hands but with some help from local craftsmen. His barn provided a stable for his beloved horse Trigger, which died in 1974 at the age of 33. Trigger was the horse that Reid rode at the head of the 1950 Chelsea Fair parade.

His constant companion now is a miniature schnauzer named Buttons Wee Mac. Besides visits to relatives in Ontario, Dave Reid makes occasional trips to Scotland but, to this veteran of two world wars, Chelsea is home.

Letters to the Editor

Cat Rescued . . .

Dear Editor,
Tearing down the McKune Library as suggested in the April 5 edition of The Chelsea Standard is a silly idea.
The library was donated to the village in 1959 by Catherine McKune. It would be a great injustice to tear down a building of such great historical value to make way for a parking lot.
Many adults as well as children use the library for educational and reading enjoyment.
I feel Mr. Lewis is using the McKune Library as a scapegoat just because it is located next door to the Pump 'n' Pantry.
If any place should be torn down for a parking lot, it should be the yellow house next door to Palmer Ford. It is an eyesore and would make an excellent parking lot.
As for loaning out books for free. What is the library supposed to do, charge a person every time they decide to borrow a book? The McKune library is supported by the people FOR the people.
That is my view point.
Howard Whitaker

Dear Editor,
While reading "Letters to the Editor" in The Standard on 4/5/83, I was not only surprised, but very impressed with the views of Steve C. Lewis. On countless occasions, I have been inconvenienced by the parking situation at the Pump 'n' Pantry. However, I also appreciate the historical value of the McKune Public Library.
Therefore, I submit the following idea for approval by the community:
Located just south of the village on M-52 before the I-94 bridge is a State Car Pool Lot. Now conjure up a vision of this. The State of Michigan sells that piece of land to the Pump 'n' Pantry. Considering the current financial situation of the state compared to that of Gallup-Silkworth, the real estate transaction could set an all-time speed record.
This would not only raise much needed funds for the state, but it would also put a jingle in Chelsea's pocket.
Here's why.
One might think that a mile and a half is a bit far to walk for a loaf of bread or a Mountain Dew. But that 35 minute walk could be turned into a 5-second dart on the Pump 'n' Pantry shuttle service or "Tram" system as it would be called. A minor retooling of the Federal Screw Works to manufacture the shuttle would provide over 2,000 jobs for the community as well as keeping that respected business afloat.
I think it's great when a community like ours can put its minds together and solve any type of problem that might arise. I'm looking forward to riding the McKune Memorial Tram Service.
Brian G. Kruger.

Photographer Dale Fisher is moving his business from Notten Rd. west of Chelsea to the Airport Plaza at State and Ellsworth Rds. in Ann Arbor and plans a grand reopening this weekend.
The 5,000-square-foot building at 749 Airport Plaza will feature a gallery with more than 300 pictures permanently on display for wholesale and retail sales. His helicopter will also be based there.
Fisher will actually be operating three separate enterprises at his new location — art gallery, heli-photo service, and publishing house. He is getting out of the photo printing business, but will continue to custom-frame prints produced for him by firms in Dexter, New York and Dallas, Tex. He also plans to publish some books of art prints.
Shannon Culver will manage the gallery and the production of prints and books, Fisher said. He plans to employ five salespersons, has hired two, and is looking for three more.
Remodelling work on the Airport Plaza building was done by contractor Jim Hartman of Chelsea with materials bought from Chelsea Lumber Co.
"I'm very loyal to the Chelsea area and plan to come back here to live," Fisher said. "Personal considerations made it necessary to move the business and for me to move, too, temporarily. As soon as I can find the right piece of property, I'll be back as a resident."
Fisher expressed optimism about the future of his business, noting that "1982 was my best year ever" and predicting that "1983 will be better yet, based on what we have done the first three months."
Fisher added that he plans to spend a lot more time flying and photographing and "will not be around very much" at the Airport Plaza. "My employees will be pretty much running the business end while I go out and take pictures," he said.
Hours on the opening weekend will be 1-8 p.m. Saturday and 1-6 p.m. Sunday. Refreshments will be served. Regular business hours will be 8-5 Monday through Friday and 1-5 Saturday and Sunday.

DALE FISHER

lowered cat food and water to it in a cup tied to a string.
Carl Strom, of Ypsilanti and an animal rescue worker for the humane society, came by Saturday night. He used a flashlight and hand mirror to see the cat, which was a rather large adult tiger that "weighed 10 pounds easily."
He suggested making a make-shift ladder, which Mrs. Rice did with molding and window screen. That is a technique used by humane society workers to rescue animals who've fallen inside something or gotten stuck up high, said Strom, such as raccoons stuck in chimneys.
They put the ladder down the hole and waited. But he didn't come out right away, which isn't unusual. An animal will usually wait for nightfall to come out of such a place. The Rices removed the ladder Sunday afternoon.
Monday Fred Petsch, village superintendent of public works dropped a weighted, make-shift burlap ladder down the hole and tied it to the pole. Petsch says he didn't actually see the cat inside, because he didn't have a mirror. Apparently this cat would make noises for the Rices but clammed up for both Strom and Petsch.
So no one knows whether the cat climbed out via the Rices' ladder or the burlap ladder, but he wasn't there Monday night when humane society workers came back with a flashlight and mirror.

That may explain why about a dozen people were laying on their tummies by the court house Monday night.
The hole was temporarily sealed, so another animal won't meet the same fate. The state, which maintains the pole, has been contacted about a more permanent cover.
Apparently no one saw how the cat got inside the hole in the first place. April 1 was a typical gloomy Good Friday, so he may have sought shelter from rain and wind.
He may have smelled something yummy or interesting down there and crawled in to investigate. Or he may have chased another animal into the hole.
The humane society has a more sinister theory—someone deliberately put the cat inside the pole.
Cats are usually bright enough to check out their footing before going into a strange, dark place, said Dee Gibson, cruelty investigator for the humane society. This cat was also pretty big to have fallen into the hole accidentally.
The penalty for a misdemeanor cruelty to animals charge is up to $500 in fines and up to 90 days jail.
However it happened, Chelsea's "polecat" is now free.

Council Holds Action On Drain Proposal

Chelsea Village Council discussed participation in the proposed Palmer & Baldwin drain clean-out project last Tuesday night, but decided to take a wait-and-see attitude before committing itself to support or oppose the project.
Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner James E. Murray has laid before local government units and private property owners within the 932-acre drainage district a renovation proposal which could cost as much as $249,000 to carry out.
If the job is done, the village would be assessed for 15 percent of the cost, or up to approximately $37,500. The money would be paid over a period of three to five years.

clean-out project, and a Board of Determination last fall decided that it should be done, but that was before the cost estimates were known. The problem is periodic flooding in the drainage district, caused by silt and vegetation which have clogged the drains and also by a lack of "fall" in the system.
Murray described the proposed project as "very expensive" for the $32 acres to be benefited but promised that it would work. He added that he would not push the proposal unless there is strong positive support from local units and private citizens. He further added that there could be no more development within the district unless something is done about the drainage.
The village council, in effect, decided to see what the property owners think before taking a position on behalf of the village.

In presenting the plan, Murray said he would be guided by local sentiment in deciding whether to go ahead with the drain clean-out or not, and added that he believes participation by the village and the Chelsea school district is essential because the burden on private owners would be too heavy otherwise. The school district's share is estimated at 12 percent. Minor shares would be paid by Conrail, the County Road Commission and Lima township.
That would leave property owners along Freer and Trinkle Rds. with almost two-thirds of the cost burden, and the council decided it would prefer to wait and find out how they feel before deciding on the project, which is not mandatory.

Surplus Foods Distributed

Chelsea Social Services and Faith in Action distributed 1,050 pounds of cheese and 480 pounds of butter to local families March 28 as part of the government's surplus food program.

More surplus food is expected in early summer.

Most of the 185 families that signed for the food are residents of Chelsea school district, the territory covered by Chelsea Social Services. No one was turned away, however, said Linda Ormsby, director of social services. Families from Dexter, Manchester, Grass Lake and Ann Arbor got food, and there were no leftovers.

Social services has names of 80 families whom they contact before surplus food distributions. (Sometimes there are problems with delayed deliveries.) Faith in Action also has a list of others interested.

Any school district resident who would like to be included in future surplus food projects, may call 475-7405 after 5 p.m. or 475-1581 on Thursdays to discuss the guidelines.

Food will be set aside for shut-ins who request it.

Scout Troop Plans Scrap Paper Drive

Boy Scout Troop No. 478 will have a newspaper collection Saturday, April 23. Persons with papers may call 475-1412 or 475-2850 for pick-up service. There will also be a drop-off point at Polly's Market parking lot.

The troop held a car wash Saturday, April 2 at Great Lakes Federal Savings. In spite of rain and freezing temperatures, many persons had their cars washed for Easter.

Mrs. Marentay, Mrs. Johanson and Mrs. Stoner provided donuts and cocoa, and the boys ate a warm lunch at Chelsea McDonald's.

The scouts went to a Pistons vs. Hawks basketball game March 12, which was Scout Night. Scouts received a Pistons button for being in uniform, saw a great game and got the cheerleaders' autographs.

Two new scouts were welcomed into the troop, Kevin Rail and Andy Box. Webelos from Pack No. 455 and their parents visited the troop.

"We hope a lot of them decide to join up with us," said Scott Marentay, troop scribe.

At the Court of Honor March 6, 15 scouts earned 41 awards of merit badges and new ranks. Those scouts were: Eric Bell, Kevin Bell, Thad Bell, Rob Friday, Mark Johanson, Monte Kimball, Andy Koszegi, Joe Loveless, Jay Marentay, Scott Marentay, Jeff McDougall, Joe McDougall, John Platt, Jerry Reinhardt and Mike Steinaway.

County Economic Development Group Solicits Chelsea

The Chelsea village council listened politely last Tuesday night as a team of spokesmen for the Washtenaw County Development Council made a pitch for the village to join, but took no action.

"We have some parallel interests, and we may talk to you later," village president Jack Merkel said following the presentation by Michael Ammann, executive director of the council, and two of his associates.

The Development Council was formed several months ago by local government units and chambers of commerce in the east end of the county. The county Board of Commissioners is also a member. The council presently includes eight of the 28 entities eligible for membership.

"Now we're going after the other 20," Ammann stated. Asked why Chelsea and other west Washtenaw units were not sought for initial membership in what is supposed to be a county-wide economic development organization, Ammann responded:

"With Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti and the eastern townships, we had 85 percent of the county's population and decided to go ahead and get the council started, and then try to bring in the rest later."

That explanation obviously did not sit very well with the Chelsea council. Exclusion of western villages and townships from consideration in what are supposed to be county-wide discussions and decisions is a continual sore point.

Ammann said the village would have to pay an initial fee of $5,000 to join the Development Council and that annual dues thereafter would be about $2,500, an amount computed on the basis of population and assessed valuation.

The council's declared purpose is to serve as a single "clearing house" for potential economic development anywhere in the county. "We want to bring in new firms and help existing businesses expand," Ammann said. "Our goal is to create jobs."

Summer Recreation Classes Organizing

Along with gymnastics, Chelsea Recreation Council will also offer summer youth baseball and girls softball, a co-ed volleyball tournament, men's weight lifting and body building and international recreation dancing.

Softball and baseball registration will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, April 16 at Beach Middle school cafeteria for the nine leagues: T-ball, farm league, little league, pony league, boys Babe Ruth, boys Connie Mack, midget league slo-pitch, junior miss fast pitch and senior miss.

Children must be the age for their league by Aug. 1 in order to be in that league.

Additional registration will be taken at the Chelsea Recreation Council office at the high school until April 22 with a $1 late fee.

The co-ed volleyball tournament will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 30 at the Beach school gym. Twelve teams total will play, six in the morning and six in the afternoon. Play-offs will follow for first and second place trophies.

Late registration date for the tournament is Monday, April 18.

Men's weight lifting and body building will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursdays at the high school weight room for six weeks. Classes begin April 21.

The class is informal with beginners, intermediate and advanced students working on specific skills with the instructor or just working out.

Partners are not needed for the recreation dance class, which meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays beginning April 13 for nine weeks.

Dances to be taught include the Israeli Hora, the Russian Trolka, and American dances such as the Virginia Reel and Salty Dog Rag.

Anyone who knows how to do the Salty Dog Rag well is always in great demand at dances where its done.

The goal of the dance class is fun, burning off some calories (these are pretty peppy dances), and toning muscles while one improves dance skills. There is no charge for this class.

For further information about any of these classes, call the recreation council office at 475-9830 from 9 a.m. to noon, week-days.

Village Exchanges Taxes for Parking Lot

The village council has agreed to lease the vacant lot on S. Main St. between the Merkel furniture store and McKune Memorial Library from its owner for an annual amount equal to the taxes on the property.

The lot, which is not fenced along the street front, is presently being used for parking by library patrons, Merkel customers and others with businesses in the vicinity. The Merkel firm parks its trucks on the property.

Owner John Mitchell asked the village to grant him tax relief in exchange for his willingness to continue to let the lot be used as what is, in effect, a free off-street public parking lot.

This year's taxes on the property, which the village will pay, are about $350. The amount could vary in future years, depending on what happens to assessments and tax rates.

Village Council Notes

Last Tuesday night's meeting of the Chelsea Village Council set a record for length during the presidency of Jack Merkel. It began at 7:30 p.m. and ended 3½ hours later at 11 p.m. "We had things to consider and talk about," said Merkel, who was elected president in 1982, "and it all took a lot of time."

Normally, council meetings conducted by Merkel are finished in about 1½ hours. However, village clerk Evelyn Rosentretter recalls some sessions prior to 1982 which went past midnight. "Some of those meetings just seemed to go on forever," she said. "This one really wasn't long compared to those."

Newly elected trustee Richard Steele took his seat on the council after being sworn into office. Also taking new oaths of office were re-elected trustees Jerry Satterthwaite and Herman Radloff. Other trustees present were president Jack Merkel, Joe Merkel and Loren Keezer. Jeanene Riemenschneider was absent.

Lyle Chriswell, who lost his bid for re-election as trustee by a single vote, was formally recognized by the council for his seven years of service and presented with a gift of appreciation.

The council voted to buy a new 7½-foot attachment for the village grass mowing machine at a cost of $1,690. The low bidder was Dunkel Bros. of Brooklyn.

Chelsea has been paired with Roosevelt Park, a community of about 4,000 population entirely surrounded by the city of Muskegon, for the annual Mayor's Exchange Day during Michigan Week. The exchange is scheduled May 16.

"If we are doing it, we will stop it," village president Jack Merkel promised a citizen who complained that village plows cleared snow from the Chelsea fairgrounds following the March 21 storm. The fairgrounds are private property, and the fair board does not have a contract with the village for snow removal.

Trustee Jerry Satterthwaite was elected president pro-tem, which means he will act in the absence of president Jack Merkel as may be necessary.

For the first time in many years Chelsea has a police commissioner. He is trustee Joe Merkel, appointed by his distant relative, village president Jack Merkel. "The last time we had a police commissioner, he tried to fire the police chief on his own authority which he didn't have," Jack Merkel said. "I assure you nothing like that will happen this time." Joe Merkel agreed as he accepted the appointment.

The council unanimously approved allowing the Chelsea Lions Club to place a promotional banner across Main St. later this year, after no one showed up to object at a public hearing required by village ordinance.

The council authorized chief Robert Aeillo to handle all funds in connection with the police department's clothing allowance. The money had previously been allotted to individuals in the department, and accounted for by them. The new system will centralize responsibility.

Larry Blackwell Promoted in Navy
 Navy Chief Torpedoman's Mate Larry R. Blackwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy R. Blackwell of 705 W. Middle, Chelsea, has been promoted to his present rank while serving aboard the submarine tender USS Orion, homeported in La Maddalena, Sardinia, Italy.

Faith in Action Food Drop Boxes Set Up

Faith in Action, which provides emergency assistance to Chelsea residents, has scheduled a food drive April 19-29 to replenish the food supply they give to the needy.

Since Faith in Action moved into its house near the main entrance of Chelsea Community Hospital in February, the organization has helped 50 families with food, clothing, transportation and limited financial assistance.

Their supply of food, donated by local churches, individuals and business has been depleted. Food drop boxes will be located in several places around town for community members to drop off nutritious non-perishable food such as boxed dinners of macaroni and cheese, spaghetti and jars of sauce, tuna fish, peanut butter, chipped beef, canned meats and stew, canned fruit and vegetables, soup, boxed breads, and muffin and dessert mixes. Paper products such as toilet paper, facial tissues and disposable diapers are needed as well as soap and detergent.

The food drive is being coordinated with the Wolverine Council Boy Scout food drive. Scouts will place food bags at residential homes. The bags will be picked up Saturday, April 23, and items in them will be given to Faith in Action and Chelsea Social Services.

Pat Merkel Named Chairman for '84 Sesquicentennial

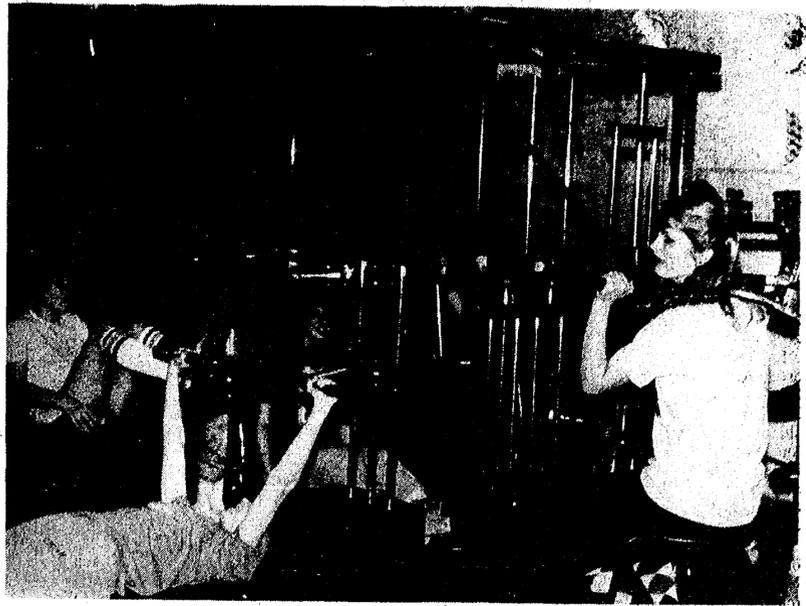

Pat Merkel of Crooked Lake has been named general chairman of the Chelsea Sesquicentennial, which will take place in late June and early July of 1984. Merkel, a life-long resident of this area, is active in the American Legion, Chelsea fair board, the Rod and Gun Club and employed by Ann Arbor Trust.

The group grew through several meetings to 30 to 45 persons representing most local organizations, from which the sesquicentennial steering committee was formed. The committee's highest priority after consolidating ideas and plans was to choose a general chairman, a key figure in any celebration or event. The steering committee will meet later this month. Open public meetings will follow some time after that. No dates have been set yet. For further information about the sesquicentennial, contact Merkel, Mrs. Stump or Lynda Longe, who is active in the Chelsea Area Historical Society. The sesquicentennial committee may also be contacted by writing Chelsea Sesquicentennial, 1984, Chelsea 48118.

Good, Used Siren Wanted By Village

Wanted: One used siren in good condition. Contact the village of Chelsea. That ad probably won't appear in local newspapers, but it might be appropriate in the wake of discussion at last Tuesday's village council meeting. The village presently has two sirens—one on top of the Village Hall at 104 E. Middle St., the other on Van Buren St. The problem is that neither can be heard in some places around town, especially if the wind is blowing from the wrong direction. The sirens are used primarily to sound fire alarms but are also called on for weather warning alerts and other emergencies. They come through loud and clear as far away as North Lake at some times on some days. At other times they are inaudible along Wilkinson St. on the southwest corner of the village. A committee composed of trustees Loren Keezer and Jerry Satterthwaite came up with some suggestions for the council to consider. One is to raise the downtown siren higher above the roof of the Middle St. building on the assumption that it could then be heard at a greater distance. Another is to move the Van Buren St. siren to Lane St., or somewhere in that vicinity. A third—the one the council finally endorsed informally—is for the village to look around and see if it can buy a third siren, preferably one that is second-hand and cheap. Fire Chief Paul Hankerd estimated that it would cost about $2,000 to move either of the present sirens and warned that, because they are so old, they might be wrecked in the moving process. "We'll get complaints whatever we do," Keezer said. "The sirens will be too loud for the people who live close to them wherever we put them. But we have an obligation to warn people in an emergency. You can't put a price on saving a life." In the end, village administrator Frederick A. Weber was instructed to look around and see if there are any surplus sirens available, and at what price.

BOOSTER WEIGHT TRAINING GIFT: Chelsea Athletic Boosters donated $4,500, 12-station weight training equipment to Chelsea High school last fall. The equipment is used by athletic teams, students, adults in the community and physical education classes such as this group of freshman girls. Rachel Berry, left, is doing sit-ups on the slant board; Karen Hawks, dipping bar; Laura Damm, leg presses; Christie Favara, who is lying down, bench press; and Jill Schaffner, military or over-head press.

Rezoning Sought To Move House onto Vacant Lot

Public hearings for rezoning a lot bordering on Madison St. and the railroad tracks and a zoning ordinance amendment will be set by Chelsea Planning Commission at its 7:30 p.m. meeting tonight at village council chambers. Application for rezoning the land which is now agricultural to two-family residential is being made by Donald A. Cole, who is buying the one-plus acre lot from Oak Grove Cemetery Association. Cole plans to move the old white house at 208 W. Middle St. to the Madison St. lot, and turn the 208 lot into additional off-street parking for his funeral home next door. The house, which has leaded glass windows, an open stairwell, and a rounded corner, whose windows have curved panes, is now being rented. Cole would rather save the house by moving it, he said, than simply tearing it down. The zoning ordinance amendment is one of those clean-up amendments which adds forgotten details such as sign set-back regulations to several amendments in one fell swoop. April Named to AC-Delco Central Distributor Council Ted April, Jr., president of Allied, Inc., an Ann Arbor automotive parts warehouse distributor and commercial garage equipment supplier has been named to the AC-Delco Central Distributor Council. The council advises AC-Delco on marketing and distribution policies and is comprised of a dozen parts distributors from 16 states in the midwest and southwest. The council's next meeting is being held at Detroit Westin Hotel on April 11-13. Allied, Inc. is the parent company of A & L Parts, Inc., an Ann Arbor based automotive/truck parts jobber since 1918.

Athletic Boosters Sponsoring Millionaires Party Saturday

Funds raised at Chelsea Athletic Boosters annual Millionaires Party, at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 16 at Chelsea fairgrounds, go for projects such as the $4,500 weight training equipment given to Chelsea High school before Christmas. The 12-station machine is used by students in physical education classes, athletic teams and adults in the community. When the high school got this equipment, they passed their former weight machine to Beach Middle school. Beach students used the equipment as part of their recent 'Feelin' Good' program to promote cardiovascular fitness. Each person attending the boosters' Las Vegas style party will receive $1 million in casino money at the door. There will be games of chance, cards, refreshments and sandwiches throughout the evening. Extra casino money will be available if one's luck hits a dry spell. The evening's highlight will be an auction of more than $1,000 in prizes donated by local merchants and businessmen. Tickets are available at Chelsea Pharmacy and at the door.

Youth Inspired To Help His Stricken Grandmother

When these crazy tests are through,
I'm sure you'll be as good as new.
You gave me such a fright,
I pray for you every night.
You're going to look so fine,
I'll take you out to dine.
You'll soon be better from God above,
Because you're the one we all so love.
I am sorry you are sick,
I really miss you a lot.
I have been praying for you every night.
Love from your grandson,
Shawn McDaniel.

That's a fine poetic effort from a 10-year-old fifth grader at South school. Shawn is the son of Bill and Bonnie Castleberry of 60 Cedar Lake. His grandmother is Mrs. Dottie Spellich of Belleville. Mrs. Spellich, 69, suffered a severe heart attack a month ago, and is home from the hospital and doing well. "Shawn thinks a lot of his grandmother," Mrs. Castleberry said. "He wrote the poem from his heart. It gave her a big lift and may have been as important as anything else in her recovery."

Seva Foundation Co-ordinates Surplus Food Distribution

Seva Foundation of Chelsea's local food collection program is growing.

Ravi Khanna, an outreach coordinator for the international foundation based at Spring Lake, has been picking up surplus and slightly damaged food at 15 local food stores and distributors during the last two months. He delivers it to Faith in Action in Chelsea and to food programs in Jackson and Ann Arbor.

Seva, better known for its blindness prevention programs in Nepal and India, began collecting food two months ago and has distributed more than two tons since.

Students at Chelsea High and Beach Middle schools and cooks at Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home have also been baking desserts such as cakes and cookies for the supper program at Hunger Coalition, based at St. Mary's Student Chapel in Ann Arbor. Suppers are provided for the hungry three times a week in different churches.

A collection box was set up at Polly's Market for shoppers to drop donations into. Khanna collects an average of 50 to 60 pounds of non-perishable food a week from the box.

Polly's gives bread and slightly damaged but still good food each week. They gave a total of 506 pounds of goods in March.

Two new donors of food in the last month are Park St. Produce, which gives about 50 pounds of mixed produce and fruit weekly, and Frank's Shop Rite in Grass Lake, which gave 195 pounds of bread during March.

Bread goes to Faith in Action and other food to Hunger Coalition; Second Baptist church, Ann Arbor, which gives food which may be taken home; the county Safe House for battered women and children, which gives a collection of "starter food" for families who leave and need to set up their own kitchens; Jackson Community Pantry; and St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Ann Arbor, which gives free breakfasts six days a week.

Easy meals, such as cans of stew or spaghetti dinners, had been going to St. Andrew's shelter program, but its future is uncertain because of code violations.

Khanna needs volunteers to help cook desserts; make twice weekly pick-ups at stores; help sort donations; and make deliveries to the various food programs.

He is willing to run the food program for six months, he said, but then he would like to pass it on to a volunteer staff. Seva's tradition and expertise is in starting and organizing programs and training local volunteers to continue them.

That is what they have done in their blindness prevention programs in India and Nepal. Seva trains local physicians and laymen in eye care, and then moves on to another town, another problem.

For information about the food program or to volunteer, call Khanna at 475-1351.

WEEKLY FOOD DONATION: Polly's Market averages more than 100 pounds of surplus bread and canned goods each week as its donation to food programs in Chelsea, Ann Arbor and Jackson. Charlie Rushlow, left, store manager, helps Ravi Khanna of Seva

Foundation of Chelsea pack last week's gift from the store and also the food donated by shoppers in a drop-off point near the exit. Khanna distributes food collected from 15 businesses to the food programs.

Dexter Man Faces Charge of Assault With Back Hoe

Willard M. Gould, 38, of 8043 Huron St., Dexter, has been charged with felonious assault on a police officer following an incident last Friday involving the attempted repossession of a backhoe.

Deputy Chester Wilson accompanied a woman officer of the 14th District Court to Gould's home to serve notice of the repossession, a sheriff's department spokesman said. The court officer had asked for police protection.

Gould is said to have gotten into and started the machine, and swung the hoe toward Wilson, who dodged and was not hit or injured.

District Forensics Tourney Hosted By Chelsea High

Chelsea High school will host the district forensics tournament from 4 to 10 p.m. tonight.

More than 100 entries are expected from the seven schools competing: Chelsea, Dexter, Saline, Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Greenhills, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Dearborn Divine Child. Judges will be seniors on Eastern Michigan University's forensics team, EMU faculty and forensics coaches from local schools not in this district.

The top two or three students in each district event (depending on number of entries) go on to the regionals April 2 at Dearborn Edsel High school. The state tournament is May 7 at the University of Michigan. Teams get recognition only at the latter.

Competition in the 14 events will be scattered throughout the school, so schedules are available at the Community Education office in the gymnasium building. There is no admission charge.

Chelsea, the defending Class B state champion, is the only school entering with a full team, said Bill Coelius, a high school speech teacher who has coached the team since 1967.

But other teams have more entries than usual, making this the biggest and "toughest" district tournament yet, he said. Greenhills, a Class D school, will probably be the Bulldogs' stiffest competition.

In forensics students from large and small schools compete against each other even at the state meet. Team awards at the

UP FRONT.

There are several IRA bonus plans being offered right now. And some of them sound pretty good. But work them out on paper, and you'll discover that Ann Arbor Trust beats them all with a 2% up-front cash bonus PLUS 10% interest.

Let's take an example:

Suppose you and your spouse both work, and that you each deposit $2000 into an IRA. In that case, we would automatically add $80 to your total deposit. Then we'd pay you high, tax-deferred, compounded interest on all that money. All year long. And with maturities ranging from 18 months to five years. (With other plans, you'd get higher short-term interest and no cash added to your deposit.)

If you open your IRA before the April 15th deadline, you can deduct the entire amount of your deposit from your 1982 taxable income.

So before you invest your hard-earned money in an IRA that just sounds good, call Ann Arbor Trust today at 994-5555. We'll show you—in black and white—how our cash bonus beats any other offer in town.

*Based on maximum initial contributions of $2000 for a married couple with two incomes. Offer applies to new IRA deposits only and ends April 15, 1983. Withdrawal prior to age 59½ incurs substantial tax penalty except for death or disability. Early withdrawal from any certificate of deposit incurs substantial interest penalty.

Council Declines Lighting for Dana Softball Field

The village council last Tuesday night passed up a chance to obtain a 50 percent federal matching grant for a lighting system on the new Dana softball field at Veterans Park.

Village administrator Frederick A. Weber informed the council that fresh money is available from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund and said he believed a Dana field lighting project might qualify. The field, which includes two softball diamonds, a toilet-concession building and fencing, was constructed with the help of an LWCF grant. It will be opened for play later this spring.

A motion was made to authorize Weber to file a "pre-application" for a lighting grant, but it died for lack of a second. The deadline for filing is April 15 and the council will not meet again until April 19, so the idea appears dead for now.

Weber estimates that lighting Dana field would cost about $45,000 at today's prices.

"I suspect we are going to do it someday," Weber said. "Lights would more than double the potential use of the field, and I'm pretty sure there will be a demand for more playing time than can be provided during evening daylight hours, especially in the spring and fall."

"The pre-application would not have committed the village to anything more than an expression of interest. We would have been getting in line, and that's all. I'm disappointed. Maybe I didn't explain the situation (to the council) clearly enough."

During a brief discussion one trustee suggested the village look into the possibility of buying the football field lights which Chelsea High school is seeking to replace.

That idea got short shrift. The Niehaus field lights provide about one-third of the illumination considered adequate for football. Because of the nature of the game, softball requires better lighting than football.

Pinckney Area Youth Completes Army Basic Training

Army Pvt. Roger R. Lyke, son of Roger R. and Nancy L. Lyke of, 234 Dexter St., Pinckney, has completed basic training at Fort McClellan, Ala.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

His wife, Constance, is the daughter of Leslie and Judy Cota of 1640 DeCamp Rd., Stockbridge.

The private is a 1981 graduate of Pinckney High school.

WHAT A SWING! One can tell from Mark Policht's smooth form off the tee why he is the golfing pro at Inverness Country Club. (Some golfers wouldn't want a photograph taken at this crucial, telling moment!) Policht got in some rounds last week, checking out the course before the spring rush which follows the Masters.

Spring Schedule Set for Swim Pool

The spring schedule for Cameron Pool includes recreational swimming, swim and trim classes, Chelsea Aquatic Club and swimming lessons.

Recreational swimming, which costs 60 cents per person, will be from 8 to 9 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Ladies swim and trim, which costs $10 or $15, is from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Thursdays, May 5 to June 2.

Chelsea Aquatic Club runs from May 2 to June 3, at costs ranging from $25 for a single school district resident swimmer to $80 for a non-resident family of three swimmers or more.

The 10-and-under B group practices from 5 to 6 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. All other groups practice from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday. Before school groups practice at 6:30 to 8 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Swimming lessons, either $15 or $22, are week-days April 18-29.

Aqua tots meet from 3:30 to 4 p.m.; 3- 4-year-olds, 4 to 4:30 p.m.; 4- 5-year-olds, 4:30 to 5 p.m.; 5- 6-year-olds, 5 to 5:30 p.m.; and 7-and-older, 5:30 to 6 p.m.

Fruit Crop Damage

Michigan's peach and cherry crops suffered frost damage due to the unseasonable warm weather in February and early March, followed by a cold snap. Although no firm estimates of crop damage have been released, reports are that the southwestern Michigan peach crop and the cherry crop from southwest Michigan to Traverse City have been hurt by frost.

GOLFING RITES OF SPRING: Mark Policht, golf pro at Inverness Country Club, checked out the greens last week with putting style. A major tournament such as the Masters over the weekend gets golfers in the mood.

Gymnastics Classes Starting

If you want to learn gymnastics in Chelsea, try the Chelsea Recreation classes. The chances of it ever becoming a varsity sport are slim—because of cost and demand.

In these times many schools are cutting out athletic programs, not adding them, said Ron Nemeth. Gymnastics on the competitive level is expensive because of high insurance and equipment costs.

A competition mat must be a cut above what physical education classes are allowed to use. A balance beam costs $1,400. All equipment must be weighted and firmly attached to a gymnasium floor.

Gymnastics programs have also suffered from the domino effect of school budget crunches, said Nemeth. Schools who used to have programs are dropping them. The schools that are left have to travel long distances to get to matches, making travel costs prohibitively high for some schools, who then have to drop the sport.

BUDDING OLGA KORBUT AND KURT THOMAS? Brian Atlee and Erin Callipetro, both students in Chelsea Recreation Council's gymnastics classes, practice their skills on the uneven parallel bars at Chelsea High school. The girls turned off from gymnastics just because he can't do a forward roll at age five.

When a child's confidence and skills grow, he may try a class such as Jumpin' Gymnats or Mat Masters, where specific skills such as forward rolls, aerial cartwheels, and beginning work on the apparatus, are taught.

As a pool of experienced students develops, more advanced classes may be offered.

Chelsea Recreation Council and the high school physical education classes share equipment, which benefits both programs. Rec council purchased a spring board and new mats which are used by both groups. The school recently bought a new balance beam.

The next session of gymnastics classes begins Saturday. Tiny Tumblers, kindergarten and first graders, starts at 9 a.m.; Jumpin' Gymnats, grades 2-4, 10 a.m.; and Mat Masters, grades 5-12, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Classes run six weeks. For more details either consult the spring community education brochure, or call Chelsea Recreation Council at 475-9830.

Michigan used to be a powerhouse of boys gymnastics, but now there are only five teams left in the state. Two of those teams are in Ann Arbor, Pioneer and Huron, and there is talk of combining those two boys programs. Girls gymnastics is thriving, however, with 117 teams in the state.

Even the obstacles of cost might be overcome if there were overwhelming interest in a program in Chelsea. But no one has ever approached Nemeth about it, he said.

Chelsea Recreation Council offers a good fundamental program, he said, and students may also take gymnastics in physical education classes at both the middle and high school.

Three levels of rec program classes begin April 16, Tiny Tumbler, Jumpin' Gymnats and Mat Masters.

In the beginning classes Carolyn Parker, a former South Lyon physical education and Ann Arbor YMCA teacher who lives at Cavanaugh Lake, uses "movement education," a method popular in Europe, she said.

Students are given ambiguous instructions and problems to solve such as "balance on three body parts" or "move backwards," she said. The beginner will use two feet and a hand, while the more advanced student will do a head stand.

Children have fun solving these "problems," learn body awareness and become more physically fit and flexible, she said. It's a positive way to learn, so a child doesn't get discouraged.

Amy Unterbrink Pitching for 14th Ranked Indiana

Amy Unterbrink, former Bulldog pitching ace, is now 12-4 on the Indiana University softball team, which was ranked 14th in the nation as of last week's poll.

The team, the only Big 10 school which is ranked, has bounced back from an 0-7 spring break trip to a 25-7 overall record. Their 17 straight wins is a school record, and they are now 4-0 in the Big Ten, with wins over powerful Minnesota April 9-10. Indiana's games against Iowa earlier in April were rained out.

Unterbrink, who is sharing pitching duties with senior Sally Wood, had two of those wins against the Gophers. Prior to those

JV Softball Team Opening

Bulldog junior varsity girls softball team begins their season Thursday, April 14 with a 4 p.m. double-header against Pioneer High school at home.

The team should have a winning season, said coach Bill Wescott. Last year they were 23-1, but that was partly by having really close games go their way—which depending on Lady Luck may or may not happen this year.

win-loss record, he said, as he is with developing future varsity players—the goal of junior varsity programs.

Junior varsity players will also keep varsity positions covered, so if the varsity gets the flu bug, JV players will move up.

He expects most of the sophomores on the team to float between the two teams.

Although there is no softball program at the middle school level, he said many of his team's players have gotten valuable experience and skills playing with either Chelsea Recreation Council teams or on Pat Clarke's summer travel teams.

Both the sophomore and freshman classes are strong in number and talent, he said.

Laura Anderson will be catcher. Her leadership is important, he said, in running the defense.

Sarah Comeau will play infield and outfield; Kelly Hawker, pitcher; Carol Nix, third base; Tina Paddock, first base; Joanne Tobin, pitcher and infielder; and Lori Folcik, who is playing her first year on the team.

Freshmen on the team are Cathy Burkel, Jenny Cattell, Chris DeFant, Michelle Easton, Kelly Fletcher, Chandy Hurd, Karen Killelea, Jill Schaffner and Chris Mattoff.

Wescott expects the team to have good matches with Pioneer Thursday; Pinckney, which gave Chelsea its loss last year, Saturday, April 16.

Motorcycling Classes Set

Basic motorcycling courses will be offered by Michigan educational institutions this spring at 20 Michigan locations, including Ann Arbor.

Focusing on cycling skills and safety fundamentals, the 20-hour evening and weekend classes include classroom discussion and extensive riding practice. Certified instructors will cover such topics as braking, riding different road surfaces, and carrying passengers and cargo.

The $25 course fee includes training materials and the use of a cycle during class sessions. A current driver's license and protective clothing is required of all participants.

The Michigan Department of Education, the Office of Highway Safety Planning and the Motorcycle Safety Foundation are co-sponsors of the program, which is offered nationwide to encourage safe riding for novice motorcyclists.

The courses which start in April are being offered in southeast and mid-Michigan,

Grand Rapids, and the Upper Peninsula.

Michigan residents may call 1-800-637-8775 toll-free at Michigan State University to request a brochure listing courses in their area.

Jacqueline Blair Completes Air Force Basic Training

Airman Jacqueline Blair, daughter of Wanda M. and Herman Blair of 10990 Bellman, Grass Lake, will remain at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. She is a 1982 graduate of Napoleon High school.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

It was natural that my interview a couple of weeks ago with John Staten, superintendent of the Cassidy Lake Technical School, should turn to sports and athletes, even though that wasn't supposed to be what we were talking about. John is a former athlete in a big way, a man who made it into the National Football League and would have stayed there a long time but for one "bad hit" which resulted in an injury and ended his career. Like almost all former athletes, Staten retains a keen interest in sports and the people who play them.

His viewpoint as one of Michigan's top corrections administrators—and as an exceptionally sensitive, caring person who agonizes over the problems of every person, athlete or not, who comes under his surveillance—makes him a man of rare perspective and therefore a person worth listening to.

We got to talking about Ron LeFlore, the former Detroit Tiger outfielder who came out of Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson and developed into a near superstar within three years. LeFlore could hit, he could run the bases like nobody else in the American League, and he had the arm, speed and range to become a great centerfielder if he wanted to work at it.

LeFlore was one of the two truly exciting players the Tigers have come up with in the past 10 years. (The other was Mark Fydrich.) LeFlore could make things happen whenever he got on base. He stole bases, induced errors, took the extra base, scored runs.

There were some early signs of trouble. LeFlore began showing up late for workouts and games, missing planes for trips out of town. He flat-out refused to try to learn how to bunt, which would have boosted his batting average at least 10 points a season and put him on base another 20 times or so. He declined to do the extra work that he needed in the outfield.

Frustrated, the Tiger organization traded LeFlore to Montreal, where he stayed a couple of years, and was traded again to the Chicago White Sox. Two weeks ago, out of shape and in trouble with federal authorities over drugs, LeFlore was turned loose by the White Sox, his baseball career apparently ended.

Let's listen to Staten: "Give credit to the Detroit Tiger management and especially to general manager Jim Campbell. They did everything they possibly could for Ron LeFlore. They got him out on parole early, they gave him every chance. Don't blame them for what happened.

"What was wrong in LeFlore's case was that he went back to Detroit, where he had come from. He should have gone someplace else when he came out of prison, anyplace else but Detroit.

"A person released from prison needs to go into a totally new society, a place where he has no friends. If he goes back into familiar surroundings, he will take up with the people who helped him get into trouble in the first place, and he very likely will get into trouble again.

"It looks to me like that's what happened to LeFlore, and it's a shame. He is a great athlete, and had unlimited potential.

"From what I read he may be into drugs. He's got $700,000 left on his contract and, if he is into drugs, that won't last him a year."

Staten had something bitter to say about the signing of Herschel Walker, the University of Georgia All-Everything running back, by the fledgling United States Football League for a reported $8 million contract.

"They made a liar out of Herschel Walker. They got him to sign a tentative contract with the understanding that he could pull out the next day. Then they leaked the story of his signing to the press before he could have a chance to reconsider.

"He was wrong to have signed the so-called contract, and they were wrong to twist it into a valid contract. They took advantage of him. I don't blame Bo Schembechler (University of Michigan head football coach) a bit for wanting to keep USFL scouts off the premises. Bo has the right idea. Athletes should earn their degrees. Where would I be if I hadn't gotten mine?"

Staten was a little more reserved about the case of Anthony Carter, the three-time U. of M. All-American wide receiver, who signed with the Detroit Panthers for a reported $1.4 million.

"I'm not sure Carter could have made it in the NFL," Staten said. "He's awfully small. If he's got the money up front, guaranteed in the bank, he may have made a good deal for himself. But I think he might have done better."

Staten feels that both Walker and Carter should have waited until after the National Football League draft before deciding their professional futures, and then dickered for the best deal. Walker, a junior, would have had to wait a year.

"Walker as a senior was certain to be the number one draft choice in the NFL next year, and Carter probably would have been selected somewhere in the first round this year. They both sold out their bargaining power, and I suspect they might both have done better."

The bottom line, as Staten puts it: "If you are an athlete, you are always going to wonder if you could play with the best, at the very top of the game you play. Herschel Walker and Anthony Carter have sold themselves short by signing with an inferior league. They may never know how good they are."

Circle Calling: an optional calling plan from Michigan Bell that could save you money on your next phone bill.

Your best friend lives less than 30 miles away, but it's a Long Distance call each time you phone. Maybe you call less often than you'd like just to save on your monthly phone bill.

There's another way: With the Circle Calling plan from Michigan Bell, you save 30% on Long Distance calls placed within a 30-mile radius of your calling center.

In addition, the low $3.13* monthly charge includes $1.83 worth of discounted Long Distance calls.

The Circle Calling discount is in effect all the time except Monday through Friday mornings from 8 a.m. to noon and applies even when other regular Long Distance discounts are in effect.

So if you find that you place a significant number of Long Distance calls up to 30 miles away within Michigan, check into Circle Calling.

Circle Calling is just one way Michigan Bell can help you trim the cost of your telephone bill. There are others.

Budget Toll Dialing, for instance. If you are a frequent Long Distance user, Budget Toll Dialing will give you a 30% discount on the already discounted Long Distance rates in effect when you place your calls within Michigan. Just dial direct from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m. Sunday evening through Friday morning and from 5 p.m. Friday till 5 p.m. Sunday.

For a monthly charge of just $3.13* Budget Toll Dialing with its discounted Long Distance rates can quickly pay for itself.

PART THREE OF A SERIES:

Cassidy Lake . . Dangerous, Or Noble Project?

By Bill Mullendore
(last of a series)

It's called the Cassidy Lake Technical School, with the emphasis on school, and there is a reason. The minimum security state prison in the Waterloo Recreation Area stresses rehabilitation through education. The goal is to release inmates—mostly young, short-term first offenders—back into society equipped with knowledge and skills that will enable them to lead useful lives and not drift back into crime.

Although each case is different, most convicts sent to Cassidy Lake lack the education and training necessary to make an honest living in today's world.

"If they can't get a job and support themselves after they leave here, they almost certainly will turn up back in the prison system," says John Staten, Cassidy Lake superintendent. "We do everything possible to prevent that. Sometimes we're successful, sometimes we aren't."

Staten concedes that it is especially difficult in these tough economic times for released or paroled prisoners to find work.

"Ideally, we would have every young man placed in a job before we let him out of here," he said, "but that isn't possible in these days when so many people who aren't handicapped by prison records can't find a job. We give them the best preparation we can within the limits of our facilities and staff, and hope for the best."

All persons entering the Michigan prison system go first to the classification center at Jackson where they are evaluated and then placed in one of several institutions in the system.

Those assigned to Cassidy Lake are, generally, young men aged 17 to 22 who have committed their first felony offense. In most cases their crimes were non-violent, and they are considered good prospects for rehabilitation. Pure and simple punishment is not Cassidy Lake's purpose. Although a prison, it has no walls, bars or armed guards. Life at Cassidy Lake is relatively relaxed for its inmates. They are pretty much on their honor to behave.

The prospect of early release is an incentive to behave. So is a "furlough" program under which inmates can earn a 48-hour pass every month in custody of their parents or wife, for the purpose of seeking a job.

A deterrent is the certainty that serious misbehavior, including an escape attempt, will result in transfer to a walled prison, usually with an extended sentence.

On arrival at Cassidy Lake a new resident is placed in an instruction and training program tailored to his individual needs. For many, the most urgent requirement is basic education, the "three R's"—reading, writing and arithmetic.

"We receive many young men who can't read or write, or do simple addition and subtraction," Staten says. "We have to start from scratch with them. Our goal is to have every resident leave here with a GED. We don't accomplish that in every case, but we give between 180 and 200 GED certificates a year."

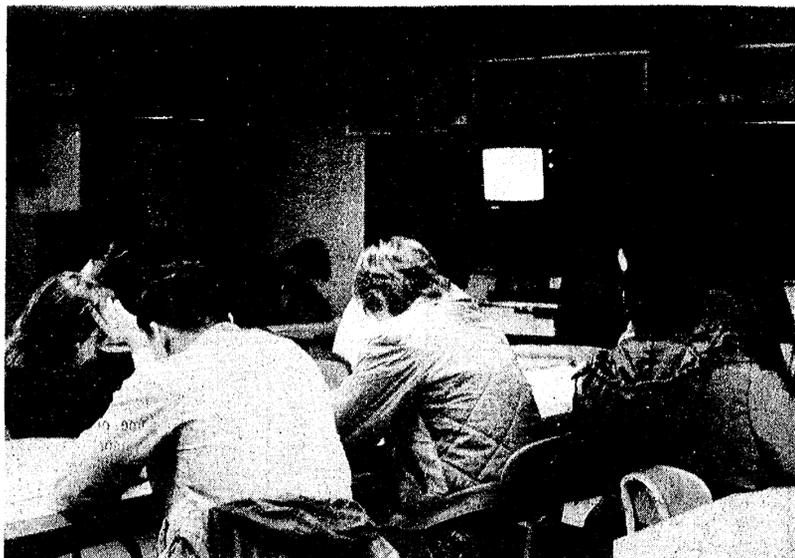

(GED stands for General Equivalency Degree, which many employers consider a suitable substitute for a high school diploma. Some don't.)

The heart of the Cassidy Lake institution is the school building, which looks like any other older school and is operated in pretty much the same way, with a principal, a full-time teaching staff and six 50-minute class periods a day. Modern teaching methods and equipment are available and used, including video tapes and display screens. Teachers are required to be certified, as in any other Michigan school.

Besides academic subjects, classes are offered in several vocational skills such as welding and auto repair. Instruction is on a virtual one-on-one basis. Residents can also learn good work habits and useful skills by working the school kitchen and laundry.

The school library, which was harshly criticized by a review team a year ago, has been renovated. Old, outdated books and periodicals have been weeded out, some new materials brought in, and hours of use extended. There are still many gaps. Especially needed are easy-to-read books and magazines. An exchange program with the State Library brings in 200 new paperback titles each month, but there is a large demand for more. The school has no money to buy library materials, and would welcome donations.

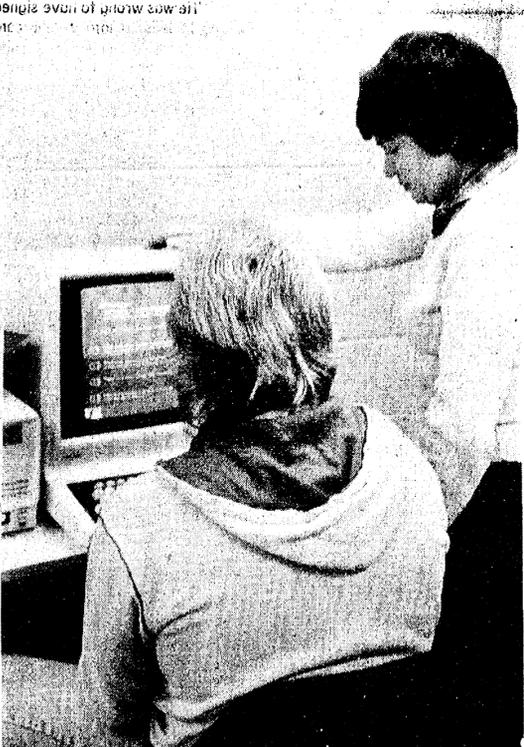

In addition to the formal education program, Cassidy Lake offers its residents a variety of psychological services—individual and group psychotherapy, crisis intervention, an Alcoholics Anonymous chapter, drug abuse counselling.

CASSIDY LAKE CLASSROOM: Going to class is part of life for residents of the Cassidy Lake Technical School, a minimum security prison for young, male first offenders. This is an English class at work, learning from instructions flashed on a video screen.

LIBRARY UPGRADED: Cassidy Lake library supervisor Tim Hogan is proud of the job done to improve the school library which was harshly criticized in a state-commissioned study made a year ago. The library is neat and pleasant, materials are in order, and the card catalogue is up to date. More books and periodicals are needed, but money is not now available to buy them.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION: Teacher aide Nadine Packard assists a Cassidy Lake student to carry out a classroom assignment.

Much of that effort is carried out by citizen volunteers from the local community and by students from the University of Michigan who either donate their time and expertise or work as interns to obtain required training in their specialties.

"What we strive for is total treatment of the individual," Staten says. "Ideally, we would have a tailor-made program for each resident, a personal blueprint for rehabilitation. We can't do that in every case, but we come as close as we can."

"Community involvement and volunteer services are vital to our treatment program. Our religious services are made possible with the assistance of local ministers and priests. We get help in recreation, in counselling, everything we do."

As with schooling, some residents have to be taught the basics of living—sanitation, hygiene, adjustments to other people. "Treatment teams" assigned to each dwelling unit at the school carry out that function.

Staten insists that homosexual behavior is not a problem at Cassidy Lake, although it is a plague at most prisons. "Whenever we identify a sex deviate—and it doesn't take long because of the way we house our residents in groups—we transfer him out," he said.

"The classification center generally does an excellent job of screening out homosexuals and other persons with serious behavioral problems which make them unsuitable for residence in our facility," Staten says, "but they occasionally make a mistake and send us someone who doesn't belong here. When they do, we spot the person right away and take the necessary (transfer) step."

The screening and rehabilitation process doesn't invariably work, and Staten is the first to admit that.

"Sure, we have young men who don't take advantage of the opportunities we offer them for rehabilitation," he acknowledges. "We have people who make trouble, who destroy school property, who walk away, who simply refuse to try to help themselves."

"It's not easy to understand the idea of a minimum-security prison where the residents are put on their honor to behave, obey rules, and work at improving themselves so they can function productively in society without committing crimes.

WORKING ON WEIGHTS: A recently purchased 10-station exercise machine, paid for in part with funds raised by the inmate Jaycee chapter, is a popular piece of equipment at the Cassidy Lake school. Many of the residents possess athletic ability, and one is a prospect for a college basketball scholarship.

"Everything we do here is a calculated risk. We're betting in every case that the programs we offer will persuade the individual to mend his ways. It doesn't always work, but our rehabilitation rate is very high compared to other corrections facilities. Most of the men who leave here don't come back into the prison system."

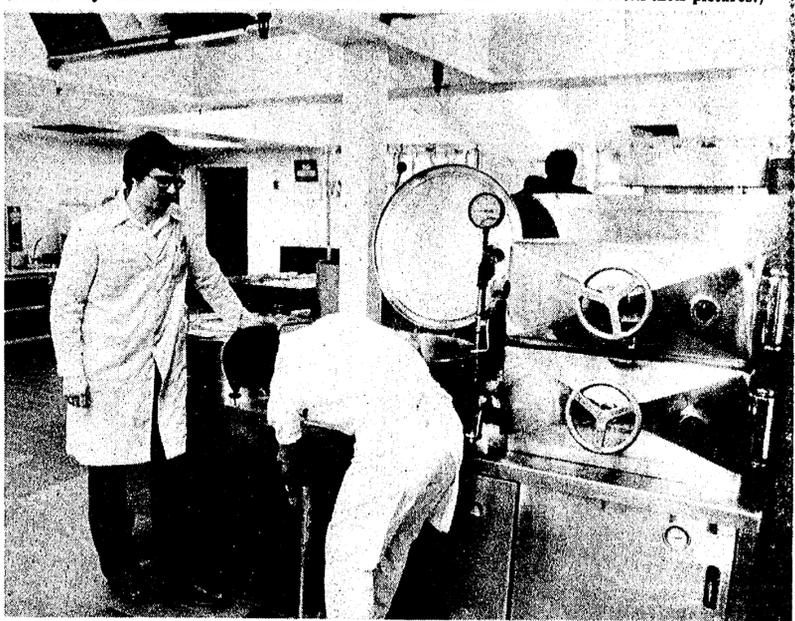

"One thing we try to avoid is 'institutionalizing'—making a person so dependent that he comes to accept and enjoy life in prison. You would be surprised how often that happens."

"For many people it's easier to live in a place where all your problems are solved for you and your decisions made for you, where all your needs are taken care of."

"It's not unusual for prisoners to be released only to commit an obvious crime and be deliberately caught so they can get back in-

LEARNING TO WELD: Harold Saarinen (left), principal of Cassidy Lake school, and teacher Lloyd Lober watch and instruct as a resident learns the welding art. (This and all other photos made at the school were taken so that inmates cannot be identified from their pictures.)

WORK IN THE KITCHEN: All meals consumed at the Cassidy Lake Technical School are prepared by residents under the eye of kitchen dining room supervisor Ron Dutton (left). The food is not fancy, but is tasty and ample.

BREAD IN THE MAKING: The Cassidy Lake Technical School kitchen produces all baked goods for the facility, including home-made bread which is baked daily. Cooking and baking are among the trades skills that school residents can learn.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS
 Many thanks to my family and friends for the favors done for me, calls, visits, flowers, fruit, and gifts sent me following surgery and during my convalescence at home. A special thanks to St. John's church of Francisco Women's Fellowship and Pastor McKenna, Dr. Stubbbs, Dr. Long and nursing staff at Chelsea Hospital.
 Margaret Wahl.

THANK YOU
 I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those in emergency, all nurses in intensive care, Dr. Krausse, Dr. Yarrows, and all nurses on the floor while I was in the hospital, and the Chelsea Community Hospital for their good care.
 Thomas Harris.

Free Seminars Offered on Drug, Alcohol Abuse
 Whitmore Lake Community Education is sponsoring a series of three free seminars on drug and alcohol use and abuse. The seminars will be held April 13, 20, and 27, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Whitmore Lake High school library.
 Terry Dunivin of Ann Arbor Consultation, Inc., will be conducting the seminars. Dunivin is also a staff therapist at U. of M. Hospital's Department of Psychiatry.
 The seminars will include an introduction to chemical dependencies and how to recognize drug and alcohol abuse. The idea of the seminars was developed by Mrs. Joan Lampert, a social worker at Whitmore Lake High school, who recognized the need for drug and alcohol abuse education. "Many parents feel helpless and confused when they suspect their child has a drug and/or alcohol problem," Mrs. Lampert commented.
 Registration and more information is available by calling Mike Messmore, Whitmore Lake Community Education Director at 449-2411 or 449-4461 beginning April 11.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Especially if you want badly to believe something, it is easy to put two and two together, add a strong dash of optimism, and come up with six.

I may be guilty of that mistake in forecasting better days ahead for Michigan pheasants, but I'm going to do it anyway. Prediction: there will be more pheasants this fall than last, and quite likely a lot more in 1984.

The "two and two" are these items recently in the news:

1. Farmers are signing up in unexpectedly large numbers for the federal government's new Paid In Kind (PIK) program.

2. Illinois wildlife biologists have concluded after an exhaustive study, which ruled out just about every other factor, that shortage of insects is the main reason why pheasant chicks grow up or don't.

So what? Although the local pattern isn't entirely clear yet, it appears that as much as 30 percent of farmland normally planted to grain crops will be retired from production for at least one year under the PIK program. Farmers will receive free grain stored from past surplus harvests in return for not making the glut worse.

The land not planted will either lie idle or grow up to weeds, or will be seeded with alfalfa, clover and other nitrogen-fixing legumes to build up its fertility. In either case it will make good pheasant cover, because it will not be drenched with a combination of chemical fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides which create a sterile environment for everything except the target crop.

Among other things, the idled land will produce an abundance of insects—grasshoppers, crickets, and other little creeping and crawling critters—and that's where the Illinois research report comes into the picture.

It's not news that young pheasants need a high-protein diet during their first few critical weeks of life, and that ground-dwelling insects provide the main source of "meat" for the little birds. Those facts have been known for a long time.

What the Illinois researchers did was to demonstrate, through carefully controlled experiments, just how important insects are to survival of pheasant chicks from the spring when they are hatched through the 16 weeks that it takes them to grow into adults.

A hen pheasant lays about a dozen eggs, of which maybe 10 hatch. What the Illinois study established is that, with an abundance of insects, 6 to 8 of those 10 hatchlings will survive. With a scarcity of insects the rate drops down to 3 out of 10, which is not enough to replenish the stock. (You have to figure on some losses to predation, disease, weather and other natural mortality causes.)

What I'm betting on is that the PIK program will bring back, at least temporarily, the old practice of crop-rotation agriculture, the pattern which produced bumper pheasant crops during the 1940's and 50's. There will be idle acres scattered among the grain-growing fields, and hen pheasants are going to do their thing by bringing off good hatches and raising large broods.

The best pheasant hunting I ever experienced was in South Dakota during the mid 1950's. We hunted fields which had been put into the Soil Bank—the 30-years-ago equivalent of the PIK program. From those resting weed fields we flushed birds by the hundreds. I don't expect ever to see anything like that again anywhere, and certainly not in Michigan where pheasant populations at their peak never approached South Dakota densities.

But I honestly believe there is an outside chance, assuming the PIK program is carried on for as long as three years, that young hunters in Michigan will experience the kind of pheasant shooting I used to enjoy. Back in those good old days, if you worked at hunting and could shoot reasonably well, you could expect to get your two-bird limit every time out.

Adding to my optimism is this past mild winter. While there can't be a big carry-over of pheasants from last fall's disastrously small crop, there still is some breeding stock around. I've been seeing birds along the roads in places where I didn't see them last summer and fall, which leads me to believe that winter survival was high. A really nasty winter could have dropped the population below what is needed to maintain the species.

I have a lot of confidence in pheasants. They are hardy, tough birds which ask only a fighting chance to survive and prosper. They are getting that chance with the PIK program, and my best guess is that they will take advantage of the opportunity.

Let's hope the weather will continue favorable—warm without too much rain—through the nesting and rearing season. If it does, we could easily see twice as many pheasants in the fields this fall as there were last October.

Car-Deer Accidents Increasing

Car-deer accidents are rising again now that spring green-up has begun, the sheriff's department reminds. Three have been reported in the Chelsea-Dexter area during the past week.

At this time of year deer come out of the woods and swamps to feed on the green grass springing up along roadsides. After a winter-long diet of dry foods, deer seek a change of diet to fresh, green growth which has higher nutritional value. Especially vulnerable are does carrying fawns, which will be born in late May or early June.

The mothers-to-be seek extra nourishment for both their fawns and themselves, instinctively anticipating the stress of giving birth and nursing.

Motorists are urged to be on the lookout for deer feeding along roadsides, especially at night when deer do most of their roaming and feeding.

'SAFE BOATING TIPS'

From Ann Arbor Flotilla 17-03, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

★ Boating Course Offered By Coast Guard Auxiliary

Ann Arbor's Flotilla 17-03 of the USCG Auxiliary is offering an eight-week "Boating Skills and Seamanship" course for boating enthusiasts, in co-operation with the Dexter Community Education Department.

The course will begin Thursday, April 21 and run for eight Thursday evenings until June 9. The class will meet at Dexter High school from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

A fee of $14 will be charged to cover the cost of textbook and instructional materials, for individual registration. If additional members of a registrant's family wish to take the course, their materials fee will be $7 each.

Topics covered in the course include: the safe way to boating enjoyment, boater's language, trawling, boat handling, legal requirements, rules of the road, aids to navigation, piloting and marlinpike (knots and splices).

A certificate will be awarded to the students who successfully complete the course, which has been approved by the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators, and the U. S. Coast Guard.

For additional information, call Jim Schlee at 313/426-2902.

Latest Angles Are Available on Michigan Angling

Steelheaders, smelt-dippers, and all other anglers for that matter, can get a line on just where their favorite Michigan sport fish are biting this spring by calling the Michigan Travel Bureau's toll-free, 24-hour Conditions Report Line.

Within Michigan, fishing buffs can dial 800-292-5404. Out-of-State anglers dial 800-248-5708.

Those who call will hear a recorded message that gives: current fishing conditions, where they're biting, what they're biting on, and a word about festivals and other travel happenings in Michigan.

District Forensics Tourney . . .

state tournament are given by school size, however, said Coelius.

More than 200 Chelsea students came out for the forensics team this year. Each picked his own event, which range from humorous readings, story telling, oratory to sales pitches, and Coelius helped them choose readings. Practice began after Christmas, followed by in-school competition which culminated in the school finals in mid-March.

Forensics attracts a real cross-section of the student body, said Coelius. Some team members in the 16 years he has coached haven't done really well in the classroom or in other activities, but they achieve in forensics. Other team members are multi-talented, however, involved in school drama productions, musical groups, the honor society and athletic teams.

Considering the number of students involved and low costs of running a forensics program—tournament fees range from $50 to $100 and all of them are close enough to Chelsea that an overnight stay isn't needed—Coelius says it may be the most cost-effective extra-curricular program at the school.

Chelsea has quite a forensics tradition. During the 1970s they won the Brighton Invitational four years in succession, and haven't been invited back since.

Forensics is divided into two categories, interpretive and public address. Each category has seven events.

This roster of Chelsea students competing in the district tournament lists the school champion first and then the runner-up. Each school may send only two entries per event.

Interpretive: humorous, Damon Mark, Thomas Schumann; serious, Mike Smith, Margie Rawson; storytelling, Sue Riemenschneider, Tom Mull; drama, Carrie Parkins, Marge Lewis; duo, for ninth and 10th graders only, Gayla Bauer, Sue Nye; duo, Eric Kruger and Tim Benjamin, Carine Brown and David Bushway; multiple reading, Ron Satterthwaite, Chad Freyre, Shane Brown, Doug Otto and Mark Bentley, "Star Trek—Last Voyage," multiple reading, second, Jay Marshall, Doug Pagliarini, Rich Slater, Stephanie Harvey and Shari Haab, "Wanda Hickey's Night of Golden Memories."

Public address: oratory, Sharon Glassford, Becky Schlupe; sales, Tom Nemeth, Derek Hodgins; sales, ninth and 10th graders, Laura Koepele, Mary Grifka; informative, Dan Fenton, Laura McCracken; radio news, Bob Clark, Tracy Smith; extemporaneous, Gretchen Vogel, Allen Cole; and impromptu, Jeff Koepele and Josh Smith.

+ AREA DEATHS +

Daniel G. Cook

12780 Hadley Rd.
Gregory

Daniel G. Cook, 38, a Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department deputy, died suddenly last Saturday at his home, 12780 Hadley Rd., Gregory.

He was born in Ann Arbor on Nov. 20, 1944, and served in the Ann Arbor police department for three years before joining the sheriff's department in 1970.

Surviving are his widow, the former Kathleen Hawley, whom he married in 1965; two sons, Michael A. and Paul D.; a sister, Mrs. Larry (Mary) Gerkes; two brothers, John A. and Richard A., and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. this morning at St. Thomas Catholic church in Ann Arbor with the Rev. Fr. Robert D. Lunford officiating. Cremation and burial will follow.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Washtenaw County Family Social Services.

Gustave Wellnitz

Tecumseh

Gustave Emil Wellnitz of Tecumseh died April 11 in Inverness, Fla. He was 102 and had a son and grandson who live in Chelsea.

He was born Nov. 10, 1880 in Germany to Herman J. and Mary Wellnitz, and he came to the United States when he was 4½.

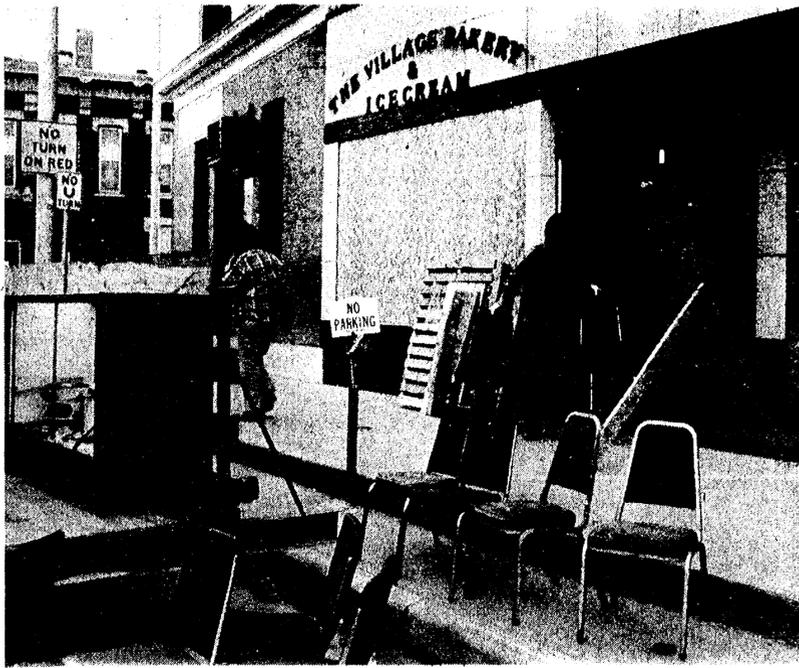

Mr. Wellnitz grew up on a farm between Tipton and Adrian. He married Esther R. Armstrong, and she preceded him in death in the 1960s.

He was a farmer near Tipton for more than 70 years.

Survivors are his son, John Wellnitz of Chelsea; two daughters, Wilma S. Allen and Ruth M. Gove, both of Tecumseh; several grandchildren, including Jack Wellnitz of Chelsea and John Wellnitz of Ypsilanti; and several great- and great-grandchildren. His son, Harold, preceded him in death in 1919.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, April 14 at Proctor Funeral Home, Tecumseh.

Burial will be in Tipton Cemetery.

WORK BEGINS AT VILLAGE BAKERY: Rebuilding of the Village Bakery at 103 W. Middle St., which was burned out inside by a fire on Jan. 14, began last week following an insurance settlement. Charles Belser of F. C. Belser & Son, a local contracting firm, carries out chairs which had to be moved so interior reconstruction could start.

Three Walk Away From Cassidy Lake

Three residents of the Cassidy Lake Technical School walked away from the correctional institution last Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning. One has been recaptured, and the other two are still at large.

James L. Young, 20, serving a 3-to-10-year sentence for armed robbery, was caught riding a bicycle on I-94 near Fletcher Rd. about two hours after he left the school. The bicycle was identified as having been stolen from a North St. residence in Chelsea.

Sheriff's deputy William Stielow made the arrest. It is illegal to ride a bicycle on a freeway, and anyone spotted doing so is stopped and questioned. Young was sent to Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson following his apprehension.

Still at large are Freddie Terry, 20, serving 2-4 years for larceny from a building, and Demetrius Howell, 18, serving 1½ years for robbery.

Chelsea police chief Robert Aello believes there may be a connection between the escapes from Cassidy Lake and the theft of a 1981 Buick Regal automobile from a residence at 209 Buchanan St. early last Wednesday morning.

"The timing makes us believe the events are related," Aello said. "I suspect that at least one of the two still missing is riding around in the car."

Registration Starts For Community Ed. Spring Classes

Registration is now being taken for Community Education spring classes.

Courses for young children include Animal Crackers for two-year-olds, kindergarten orientation, pre-school classes, and safety town, which teaches traffic safety skills.

Fitness classes include swimming programs, aerobic dancing, North Lake Fitness Club and Chelsea Recreation Council programs.

North School Book Fair Opens Friday

North school will hold its fifth annual book fair from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, April 15 and Monday through Thursday, April 18-21 at the school library. Tuesday, April 19 the fair will also be open from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

The starting date should be easy to remember—that's the tax filing deadline.

New, used and discarded books will be for sale beginning at 59 cents, with the average price between $1 and $2.

Proceeds from the book fair are used mainly for purchasing new books for the school library but are also used for equipment.

Both children's and adult books will be available, mostly in paperback, with subject matter ranging from "How to Grandparent," Garfield, personal computers, historical fiction, fantasy and the children's series, "Choose Your Own Adventure."

In the latter, which are quite popular with children, said Barbara Locks, school librarian, students read a page and must make a choice between several other pages, which lead them on to other pages. Some students try to make it through the adventure alive; others try to die as many ways as possible!

Paperbacks of current interest include best-sellers, "Winds of War" and "War and Remembrance." Ms. Locks tried to get some books on Gandhi, but none were available.

Interesting and useful used books include almanacs and books to identify birds, insects, and weeds—for the insecure gardener.

Parent volunteers will help during the sale. Students will be given forms on which titles and prices of books they are interested in may be listed. These will be sent home, so the parents and child may discuss them before a purchase is made.

The sale will end during the day April 21, so bookworms should probably not wait until the last minute.

Kiwanis Club Flower Sale Makes $700

Chelsea Kiwanis Club realized a little over $700 profit from its annual Easter flower sale, president Tom Bust reported. About $3,000 worth of plants and flowers were sold.

"We had a lot of competition this year," Bust said, "and we didn't do as well as we had hoped. It seemed like everybody was selling Easter flowers."

Chelsea Greenhouse, which supplied the plants to the Kiwanis Club, had about a dozen other bulk buyers, Bust said.

"We had a poor sales day on the Friday before Easter," Bust said. "We did better on Saturday morning, but Saturday afternoon was dead. I think people were waiting until the last minute and shopping for bargains. We're going to have to evaluate the sale and decide whether we want to continue it in the future."

USDA Says 1983 Ag Exports Down

Because of large world supplies, a depressed economy, a strong U.S. dollar and intense competition from major exporters, USDA says U.S. agricultural exports will total $36.5 billion in fiscal 1983, down from $39.1 billion in fiscal 1982.

State Board OKs Lima Rural Historic District

Designation of 9,400 Lima township acres as a Rural Historic District is one step away from final approval. The Michigan Historic Preservation Review Board unanimously recommended the label following an April 7 public hearing in Lansing.

The recommendation will be sent to the National Park Service in Washington, which has the ultimate say-so as to whether a proposed area is placed on the National Register of Historic Sites. A decision is expected within 45 days.

About 25 persons showed up at the Lansing hearing, and 10 spoke. Eight favored the designation, and two opposed it.

The two opponents, both property owners in the proposed district, expressed concerns that the designation would "lock in" present land uses and deprive them of possible future development options.

Actually, what happens after the area is listed on the historic site register, if it is, is up to local government officials who have discretion to preserve the area or not through zoning ordinances.

The area could be de-listed if enough changes are made so that it would no longer be considered of historic significance.

Property owners within an historic district can qualify for certain federal tax breaks on improvements, provided that what they propose to do is in keeping with the character of the district.

The district as a whole would be more or less immune from development projects involving federal funds, such as highways, airports, dams or parks. The impetus for establishing the district came from a 1965 proposal to dam Mill Creek and build a 3,500-acre Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority metropark, a suggestion that most local residents opposed.

The proposed Lima Township Rural Historic District is the largest of its kind in the nation, and in that sense would be a first. The 9,400-acre area includes many houses and other farm buildings more than 100 years old. It is primarily agricultural, with emphasis on corn and dairy farming. There has been some development in recent years, mostly in the form of new, modern homes built on 10-acre lots.

"We (the Mill Creek Research Council which has pushed for the historic site designation) understand and sympathize with the concerns of some property owners," said Mrs. Margaret

Milk Production Continues Climbing

At 10.6 billion pounds during February, milk production was up 2% from a year earlier, 5% above that of February 1981—and record high for the month for the second straight year.

The reason: more cows, higher production per cow. Cow numbers averaged 11.1 million head, up fractionally from a year ago.

Sias, a spokesperson for the council. "Farming has not been very profitable in recent years, and some owners undoubtedly have financial problems which would cause them to consider doing something else with their property, such as selling it for development.

"The timing isn't the best, but we didn't set the schedule. We've been working on this (the historic site designation) for 18 years, and it just happened to come to a conclusion now. We don't want to see anyone get hurt financially. It would be very helpful if the agricultural economy improves so that farmers can make a good living off their land."
