School Board To Study Summer Tax Collection

Discussion on whether to try collecting part of the school district's property taxes in summer of 1984 should begin at August school board meetings.

The topic has been dormant since the board decided in January not to go for summer taxes in 1983. School district administrators suggested at the board's July 5 meeting that it's time to begin talking about it again.

Legislation permitting school districts to go for 50 or 100 percent of their taxes in summer was passed by the state legislature in late December. Whitmore Lake and Willow Run decided to collect taxes this summer and were the only out-county districts to do so. Ypsilanti school district had collected in the city of Ypsilanti in the past, but has expanded to the entire school district this summer.

The issue is a dilemma for Chelsea school board. It will spend $152,000 in interest on $3 million in borrowed money this year, since its fiscal year begins six months earlier than the tax due date.

Usually taxpayers expect the board to be financially responsible and save money wherever possible. If summer tax collection is an exception to the rule, the board needs to know.

Full-time farmers and senior citizens would be exempt from summer collection. Information on how many persons would be exempted isn't readily available, so the board can only estimate summer revenue based on what happens in districts such as Willow Run and Whitmore Lake.

Chelsea school board has favored requesting 50 percent of its taxes in summer collections in past discussions, although the law would permit 100 percent.

Summer tax collection isn't without expense. Townships charge for their legwork.

Local school superintendents and township supervisors have met since the beginning of the year to work out fee schedules.

State-wide summer collection fees range from 76 cents to $11 a parcel, said Fred Mills, assistant superintendent of Chelsea schools. The fees reflect the "degree of co-operation between the two governmental units."

Publication Day Now Wednesday

Starting with the July 6 editions, The Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader began publishing on Wednesday instead of Tuesday. The change was made to smooth out the production schedule.

Subscribers will receive their papers in the mail on Wednesdays, and copies will be available on newsstands on Wednesday mornings.

Deadlines for news and advertising are unchanged. They are:

- Display advertising: 5 p.m. Thursday.
- Classified advertising: Noon Saturday. (Late ads will be accepted until 10 a.m. Monday, but they will NOT appear in the regular classified section.)
- News stories: 10 a.m. Monday.
- Pictures to be taken: 5 p.m. Friday.

To produce the papers in a timely way it is necessary that we enforce the above deadlines. Your co-operation in helping us to do a better job will be appreciated.

the Lions also made financial awards to the Michigan Eye Bank for assistance in corneal transplants as well as aiding the new eye bank research center being built in Ann Arbor. Donations were also made to the Washtenaw County Substance Abuse Program and to the Diabetes Foundation. Prohaska commented that the Chelsea community actively supported the various projects sponsored by the club, and despite the poor economy, the Lions exceeded their fund-raising goals for the year by 10 percent.

Fair Queen Candidates Sign Up Now

The 1983 Chelsea Community Fair queen contest, designed to recognize outstanding young women in the community, will be held Tuesday, Aug. 30.

If an organization would like to sponsor a candidate, someone should contact Cindy Bradbury, 475-2668, or Margot Koenn, 475-2170.

The only two qualifications are the candidate attend Chelsea or Dexter high schools and that she have a float to ride upon in the fair parade, Saturday, Sept. 3.

Sponsors are required to provide a sash with the organization's name on it and flowers for the candidate to wear in two parades.

Deadline for entries is Saturday, Aug. 6.

D. Schumann Will Head School Board

Dale Schumann, who is serving his second term on the Chelsea school board, was chosen board president for the 1983-84 year at the annual organizational meeting July 5.

Schumann is part-owner and pharmacist at Chelsea and Stockbridge pharmacies.

Joseph Redding was appointed to the board to replace Daniel Snyder who is moving from the district. Redding's term will be one year, until the June 1984 election.

Earl Heller was chosen vice-president; Arthur E. Dils, who was re-elected to his seat at the June 13 election, secretary; and Lloyd Grau, treasurer.

Ann Feeney will be the board's representative to Chelsea Recreation Council. Anne Coe-mau will continue to be the representative to Washtenaw County School Officers Association. Redding, an engineer with Ford Motor Co. who ran for school board in 1981, will be the board liaison to the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Board meeting schedule will stay the same, at 8 p.m. first and third Mondays of the month. That schedule is usually amended for holidays and at election time.

Grievance Going to Arbitration

The question of whether farming is an appropriate use of a teacher's personal business day will be decided by an arbitrator.

The grievance committee of Chelsea Education Association, the teacher's union, voted last week to take Jon Schaffner's grievance to arbitration. Costs will be shared between the CEA (Continued on page five)

Industrial Park Site Approved On Sibley Rd.

Chelsea will buy 73 acres of land on Sibley Rd. west of the Dana Corp. plant and develop it into an industrial park, the village council decided at a special meeting late Monday afternoon.

The village will pay $139,000 for the property, the price offered to and accepted by owner Stuart Small in May. The offer was contingent on results of a feasibility study to determine if the tract is suitable for an industrial park.

Money to finance the purchase will be borrowed from the village electric fund, administrator Frederick A. Weber said, and will be repaid from future sales of lots in the park.

With all trustees but Herman Radloff present and members of the Sylvan township board in attendance, the council voted unanimously to buy the site.

"I believe we have taken a very important step forward," village president Jack Merkel said in summing up the implications of the decision. "It means we finally have started something going for the future growth and development of Chelsea, and gives us the opportunity to reverse a long-time pattern of no growth, population decline, job loss, and erosion of our tax base."

The Small property will be bought for several thousand dollars less than its market value as determined in an appraisal made by Ann Arbor realtor John Swisher.

Acting on that premise, the council voted to start proceedings to have the remaining 70 acres rezoned from agricultural to industrial. Those acres presently are planted in corn, and the likelihood is that the crop can be harvested this fall before any actual industrial development takes place.

"If somebody wants to come in sooner, I'm sure we can find a way to work it out," president Merkel said.

The council also voted to invite Michael Ammann, director of the Washtenaw County Economic Development Council, to attend and speak at next Tuesday night's meeting. The implication is that Chelsea may become a dues-paying member of the council now that it has a direct stake in the county's future economic growth.

"I think we probably should join," said trustee Jerry Satterthwaite. "We have something to offer now."

All of that action came about after council members and five Sylvan township representatives in the audience agreed that a suggested alternative site—off Brown Dr. south of the village—would be prohibitively expensive to buy and develop.

Township officials, who shared in the $4,500 cost of the industrial park feasibility study done by the Ann Arbor engineering firm of Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May, had asked for more information on the 20-acre Brown Dr. parcel.

The supplemental data suggested that the per-acre price to buy the Brown Dr. property, which is not now listed for sale, would be about five times that for the Sibley Rd. tract if it could be bought at all.

Costs of extending adequate water and sewer service to Brown Dr. would also be much higher.

Village officials did echo the concern of township representatives that something should be done soon to improve utility services on the south side so development of some sort can happen.

"It's a high priority," Merkel agreed. "That area (in the general vicinity of the I-94 and M-52 interchange) has a lot of potential for some kind of development, but the water and sewer problems have to be solved first. We can't do much without it."

While Swisher insisted in his appraisal report that its details not be made public even though the report was paid for with public funds, it can be said that his conclusions suggest the village is getting a bargain in terms of current real estate values.

The property includes a two-story house, a large barn and three smaller out-buildings. Informal discussion among council members indicated that the house, other buildings and about three acres of land may be offered for sale as residential property.

"I think we might get enough from that package to recover close to half the cost of the whole parcel," trustee Loren Keezer said. "That would leave us with 70 acres for the industrial park, and that should be plenty."

Village Will Try To Keep Landfill Going 10 Years

Chelsea will try to squeeze another 10 years of use from its sanitary landfill by lining future burial sites with a plastic film intended to keep liquids from leaking into the ground water.

That decision was reached by the village council last Tuesday following receipt of a report from Washtenaw Engineering Co. of Ann Arbor, which was retained to study ways to deal with Chelsea's solid wastes in the future.

The landfill, located off Werkner Rd. northeast of the village, serves Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon and Dexter townships as well as Chelsea. It has a limited life of a little more than one year unless something is done to bring its operation up to state standards, which are designed to prevent ground water contamination.

Monitoring wells have thus far shown no signs of contamination from the Chelsea landfill.

The landfill has been given a provisional license until Sept. 1, 1984. The license requires the village to meet five stipulated deadlines, one of which has already been missed. Chelsea was supposed to have decided on a long-term option by July 1, and it didn't.

The decision to proceed with plans to use a plastic liner was made four days late, and it was tentative. The next deadline is Nov. 1, when engineering plans are supposed to be completed and submitted to the Department of Natural Resources.

The village council had to struggle with a report from Washtenaw Engineering which said, among other things:

"The unfortunate conclusion which we draw from all the data compiled to date is that there is no option that clearly stands out as the best solution to the solid waste handling problems that the village is faced with."

In other words, there is no really good idea.

- Washtenaw Engineering explored a number of possibilities including:
1. Closing the landfill and opening a new one somewhere else.
  2. Closing the landfill and contracting to have wastes hauled someplace else.
  3. Closing the landfill and constructing a "transfer station" in its stead. (A transfer station compacts wastes into containers, which are then hauled to a disposal site.)
  4. Keeping the present landfill open by trying to bring it up to the requirements of Act 641, the Solid Waste Management Act administered by the DNR.
- After lengthy discussion, the village council decided to go with the fourth option, at least through the planning stage.

Going that route means that the present disposal area must be capped with two feet of clay at an estimated cost of $250,000. There is no money available in the landfill operating fund to do that, and the present schedule of fees charged will not generate enough income to cover the cost.

Assuming that problem is overcome, the next step would be to design two new burial cells, each lined with sheets of polyvinyl chloride plastic, which supposedly would hold liquids inside the cells.

The first cell would have an estimated useful life of four years, the second six. All that would prolong the life of the landfill for 10 years, assuming the DNR approves the proposal.

Construct Sewage Plant By 1988, Village Ordered

Chelsea may be allowed to continue operating its wastewater treatment plant until Sept. 30, 1988, but there are some stiff conditions attached to the draft permit proposed by the Department of Natural Resources.

According to the draft, the village must begin construction of a new treatment plant by April 1, 1986, and have it in operation by July 1, 1988. No mention is made as to if or when Chelsea will receive a grant for the project.

When the draft National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit was presented to the village council for discussion last Tuesday night, trustee Richard Steele took strong exception to inclusion of the deadline dates.

"I don't think they should be in there," he said. "I don't think it's fair if they don't promise us a grant."

Actually, there is no guarantee of a construction grant from either the federal government, which authorizes permits under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, or the state, which administers the program under federal supervision.

State funding under the 1968 Clean Water bond issue has been long exhausted, and federal funds are rapidly drying up. There is no likely prospect of renewal from either source.

"I think what they are telling us is that we are going to have to do the job, whether or not we get (Continued on page eight)

A 116-car, westbound ConRail train derailed Friday, July 13 at the Brown St. crossing in Grass Lake, tearing up 1,300-feet of track, spilling loaded freight cars into nearby fields and downing power lines. Two railroad workers in the caboose received treatment for minor injuries, and no damage was reported to private property. Service from Detroit to Chicago was restored Saturday afternoon. ConRail is still investigating the cause of the derailment.

Chelsea police reported a case of a well-known con game in the community. A firm will approach a house and offer to blacktop the driveway for a lower than usual fee or do a sample portion with asphalt left over from another job. Their goal is to see where cash is kept in the house, such as one of the workmen feigning sickness and asking to use the restroom at the time payment is requested. ## Governor Proposes Strategic Investment Fund

Governor James Blanchard has unveiled a proposal, which was later introduced in the Legislature, to create a Michigan Strategic Fund to provide additional venture capital to accelerate the state's economic diversification and growth.

An immediate $54 million is available as "seed" money for the fund while future funding is uncertain until negotiations are completed with state financial institutions.

Under the proposal, a strategic fund would be created along with an outline of the powers and duties of the fund's board of directors, mostly representing the private sector.

The fund would co-ordinate efforts to eliminate any duplication of efforts, provide for the guarantee of federal funds for venture capital and then make allocations on a case-by-case formula to Michigan business and industry.

Other proposals under the plan would provide for the establishment of the Center for Assistance to Private Enterprise, which will be a part of the fund, to provide for leverage of private capital by participating in loans to create and retain jobs in Michigan and the establishment of the Center for Product Development to leverage private participation in the development of new products, devices, inventions and techniques.

Other features of the plan include the establishment of:

—a Center for Loan Insurance which will leverage additional financial availability to businesses through an array of insurance mechanisms.

—a Center for Assistance to Local Governments which will be designed to stimulate local investment in public works by providing loans and loan guarantees to municipalities.

—a Center for Minority Venture Capital to stimulate additional financial investment in minority enterprises by providing tax credits to corporations providing financing for minority businesses.

—a Center for Research and Development to providing financing to non-profit research institutions working in the area of emerging technologies.

For an additional incentive for minority venture capital, the proposal also suggests an amendment to the Single Business Tax Act providing for investment tax credits at 50 percent of the total amount.

Blanchard said the fund will be used to better manage and co-ordinate existing state development financing and debt management programs.

Current state programs to be included within the new proposal are the Michigan Economic Development Authority and the Job Development Authority.

The governor said the program will provide long-term benefits for the economic well-being of the state. He added that the success of the program will hinge on the willingness of the private sector to participate actively in the program.

Blanchard said there are ongoing negotiations with representatives of the financial community to make future investments in the fund.

He said he was willing to provide "flexibility" on banking regulations in return for future venture capital adding he remained open-minded on banking regulatory matters, especially interest rates, but this was coupled with a commitment to the future by the financial community.

"The Michigan Fund is a vital component of our strategy to develop jobs for our state. It will set Michigan on a course that is bold and far more innovative than that of any other state," Blanchard said.

He added the proposal is designed to bring greater efficiency and less bureaucracy to Michigan's existing financial assistance programs for business development by consolidating programs and centralizing them. The proposal was introduced in both the state Senate and House of Representatives to allow legislators an opportunity to review the proposal over the summer recess.

Early fall passage of the proposal into law is expected.

ON YOUR FEET

MEDICARE AND FOOT CARE

If you have medicare health insurance, this can help pay for any problems you may have with your feet. And the treatment doesn't have to be in a doctor's office. It can be in your home, at the hospital, or in a nursing home or extended care facility.

As a Medicare subscriber, you pay a monthly premium that the government matches with an equal amount. Usually there's a deductible amount for any treatment, then your insurance will pay up to 80 percent of the charges.

When you see your podiatrist for treatment, he can apply for payment through Medicare. Or if you prefer, the medical payment can be made directly to you. This is something you can discuss with the doctor when you see him.

If you're having problems with your feet that need a doctor's care, there's no reason for you to wait for treatment. You'll only be waiting for the problem to get worse. And if you have Medicare, most of the cost will probably be covered.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan B. Reynard

Kim T. Hopkins, Bryan B. Reynard Are Wed at Stockbridge Church

Kim T. Hopkins and Bryan B. Reynard were married at 4:30 p.m. July 2 at Stockbridge United Methodist church.

The Rev. Daniel Wallace of Saline United Methodist church officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas K. Hopkins of 10277 Hershey Lane E., Dexter, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Morrell of Stockbridge and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Weber of Saline and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Reynard of Ann Arbor.

Andrea Videki of Saline sang "Endless Love" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride wore a white Queen Anne dress with silk border at the hem and a veil trimmed with pearls. She carried white silk roses and an array of colored flowers which matched the bridesmaids' dresses.

Maid of honor was Kathy Ashmore of Stockbridge. She wore a light pink pleated dress with a lace cape and carried a basket of multi-colored silk flowers. Matron of honor was Mrs. Michael (Linda) Bowen of Chelsea. Her dress was a similar style but was dark pink, and she also carried a basket of flowers.

Bridesmaids were the bride's stepsisters, Lynette Mephians of Chelsea and Lesa Morrell of Stockbridge; and Michele Miller of Ann Arbor. They wore a variety of pastel pleated dresses similar in style to the honor attendants and also carried baskets of flowers.

Mrs. Morrell wore a peach colored dress with multi-colored flowers; Mrs. Hopkins, an ivory and green dress with ivory jacket; Mrs. Weber, a mint green pleated dress; and Mrs. Reynard, an off-white dress with maroon flowers.

Best men were Evert Van Raden of Ann Arbor and Michael Bowen of Chelsea. Ushers were the bride's brother, Ken Hopkins of Chelsea; the bride's stepbrother, Harvey Morrell of Stockbridge; and the bridegroom's uncle, Richard Hunt of Manchester.

Flower girl was the bride's cousin, Kristi Lentz of Chelsea. Ringbearer was Alan Meadows of Ypsilanti.

A reception was held at Romanoff Hall, Ann Arbor. Three aunts of the bride helped with the guest book and cut the cake.

After a two-week wedding trip to Colorado and California, the couple will be making their home in Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Douglas Frey

Tammy Stepp, Paul D. Frey Are Married at Waterloo Church

Tammy Lynn Stepp and Paul Douglas Frey were married Saturday, June 18 at Waterloo First Methodist church.

The Rev. Lawrence Nichols officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Stepp of Chelsea and the late Leroy Stepp and the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frey. Organist was Jan Kitley.

The bride wore a white floor-length gown with lace sleeves and bodice and a train from the skirt. She carried white, pink and blue silk flowers and wore a matching circlet of flowers in her hair. Her cousin, Terry Lynn Worden, made the dress, and her aunt, JoAnn Mosier, made the flowers. Matron of honor was Mrs.

Worden. Victoria Stepp, the bride's sister, was a bridesmaid. Kimberly Frey, daughter of the bridegroom, was flower girl. They wore peach, floral street-length dresses.

Best man was Larry Brown of Munith. David Graber of Chelsea was groomsmen, and Scott Frey, the bridegroom's son, was ringbearer.

Rose Jenks of Munith, who was honorary mother of the bridegroom, and Arlene Baker, catered the rehearsal dinner and reception, given at Munith American Legion Post.

After a week-long wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the couple is making their home in Munith.

Lions Club Installs

New Officers

Chelsea Lions Club installed new officers and directors for the 1983-84 club year June 21 at a ladies night dinner meeting held at Leutheuser's Restaurant in Saline. Past District Governor Ev Huttenlocher of Munith performed the induction ceremony.

The following Lions members were installed: Phil Radant, president; Vince Spade, first vice-president; Ed Pratt, second vice-president; Al Cordell, third vice-president; Tom Dmoch, secretary; Bill Lurkins, treasurer; Charley Cox, tail-twister; Chris Browning, lion tamer; Herb Pearson, Chuck Armstrong, Jim Versailles, and Don Kvarnberg, directors.

In addition to the induction ceremony, outgoing president Dave Prohaska presented the Lion of the Year award to Jim Nicola who was voted this honor by his fellow Lions. Prohaska also awarded presidential appreciation plaques to Bill Wescott, John Cabaniss, Doug Nutt, and Don Kvarnberg for outstanding service during the club year just ended.

Chelsea Lions will bring their sightmobile to town during the Chelsea Sidewalk Sale Days on July 29-30. Free eye screening will be offered to any area resident who wants a checkup.

David Prohaskas Are Honored On 25th Wedding Anniversary

David and Helen Prohaska of Stofer Ct., Chelsea, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at a cook-out for 50 friends at their home July 3.

The Prohaskas were married July 3, 1958 in Evanston, Ill.

Their two children, Julie of Bloomington, Ill., and Scott of Chelsea, hosted the cook-out.

The couple who introduced Mr. and Mrs. Prohaska, William and Joan Severa of Cedar Rapids, Ia., attended the party. Mr. Prohaska worked with Mr. Severa, and the Severas were in a church group with the then Helen Shultz.

Mr. Prohaska is an insurance agent with The Bankers Life of Iowa. Mrs. Prohaska teaches third grade at South Elementary school.

New Farm Bureau Group Organized

There's a new group in town! It's a Farm Bureau group and it's called, "The Grass Roots Bunch."

The name originates from the fact that Farm Bureau is just that, a grass roots organization involving farmers in common interests of the nation. The group is located in the Fletcher Rd. area and holds meetings once a month.

Doug Welshans is president of the "bunch," with Barb Satterthwaite as his secretary. Ted Hinderer is a stand-by V-P, with Nelson Bollinger as the discussion leader and Sue Huehl running the recreation department.

The group is an "up and coming" Community Action "bunch" of Chelsea. Their first community activity is to serve at the Spaulding for Children Ice Cream Social on July 17, at 2 p.m. The community is also invited. They are also running the kitchen at the Farm Bureau Young Farmer's Rescue Seminar on July 9 for Washtenaw County Rescue Squads.

Watch out for this "bunch" because it's an outgoing and very active young group in the Farm Bureau organization. We already are seriously discussing our population as so many Chelsea area couples are enthused about "The Grass Roots Bunch!"

Manchester Couple Wed

Annette Louise Alexander and Jeffrey Charles Gilboe, both of Manchester, were married June 4 at Emanuel United Church of Christ in Manchester with the Rev. Robert MacFarlane officiating.

Donna Schiller Gets Degree from EMU

Donna Schiller of 17221 Carolina Trace was graduated recently from Eastern Michigan University with a magna cum laude bachelor of science degree in interior design and industrial technology.

She is currently the designer for D. J.'s Designs in Chelsea and is a consulting designer for Dick Clark Construction, Inc., of Grass Lake. She won first place in the 1982 American Society of Interior Designers' competition.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harold Alexander of Manchester and the late Harold Alexander. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilboe of Manchester.

Matron of honor was Lynette Porter of Manchester. Best man was Jerry Gilboe, the bridegroom's brother.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Pat Hanselman of Manchester and Michelle Powell of Chelsea; the bridegroom's sister, Lori Gilboe of Manchester; and Michelle Kempf of Manchester.

Ushers were Tim Koceski of Saline, Brent Powell of Chelsea, Don Fica of Whitmore Lake and Dan Hassett of Manchester.

After a reception at the American Legion Hall, Manchester, the couple took a wedding trip to northern Michigan. They are residing in Manchester.

Cemetery Seeking Sign Exemption

The village council has set a public hearing for July 19 on a request by the Oak Grove Cemetery board for a variance from the village sign ordinance.

The cemetery is opening up an addition on the south side of Freer Rd., across from its present main location, and the board wants to erect a sign eight feet off the road. The prescribed sign setback in the cemetery zone is 35 feet.

Manchester Appoints Principal

Manchester Board of Education has taken action to appoint William J. Bushaw of Rochester, as principal of Manchester High school.

For the past four years Bushaw has been employed as assistant principal at Lake Orion High school where he was responsible for scheduling and curriculum development as well as attendance and discipline for half of the student body of 1,300 students. In addition he served on the Board of Education negotiating team, was chairperson of the K-12 reading committee, and evaluated certified personnel under his supervision.

Bushaw earned his Bachelor of Science degree at the University of Michigan in 1970 with a major in biology. His Master of Arts degree was earned at Eastern Michigan University with a major in educational leadership in 1979. He also holds the Specialist in Arts degree from Eastern with a major in educational leadership.

ENERGY PLUS+ Plant modernization. A key ingredient of Michigan's revitalization.

For the past 20 years, Detroit Edison has been involved in a massive program of modernization. Replacing old power plants dependent on diminishing gas and oil with new plants fueled by abundant, cost-efficient American-produced coal and uranium.

Today, this program is near completion. And that's good news. Good for businesses contemplating expansion. Good for attracting new businesses. Good for our state economy. Good for you.

Here's why.

□ Abundant energy is a prime consideration for businesses interested in expanding or relocating to Southeastern Michigan. That means more jobs. More utilization of an already skilled and proven labor force.

□ As more new businesses discover Michigan's plentiful advantages, such as our vast waterways, ideally located industrial parks, state-funded economic incentive programs, and, of course, lots of electricity, they will make our area's economy more vibrant. More stable. Plant modernization has helped to set the stage for economic recovery. And, even now, promising results are beginning to show.

□ Naturally, the benefits of more new businesses and a strengthened state economy mean you enjoy a better standard of living. Plant modernization also means you enjoy a healthier standard of living through use of advanced technology to protect the environment.

Completion of our 20-year plant modernization program means the beginning of a new era for Southeastern Michigan. An era brimming with promise, opportunity and assurances of ample energy. Energy today, plus energy that will take all of us into the 21st century.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Chelsea is suffering from no-growing pains.

That fact emerges clearly from data collected by the Ann Arbor engineering firm of Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May in preparing a feasibility study on proposed development of an industrial park in the area.

While the study's major conclusion—that an industrial park should be developed on a 70-acre tract fronting on Sibley Rd. within the village limits—is disputed by Sylvan township officials, the basic facts in the report cannot be argued, simply because they are just that: facts.

Chelsea lost population during the 1970-80 decade. It wasn't a big loss—only 42 persons, representing a 1.1 percent decline from the 3,858 people who lived in the village in 1970.

That the 1980 federal census showed the number had shrunk to 3,816 is perhaps not as surprising as the change in the make-up of the population over the 10-year span. There were significant losses in the younger age brackets, gains among older groups. Chelsea's population is definitely more "mature" than it used to be. There are fewer young people, including school-age children, more persons 45 and over. Chelsea is becoming an "old" town in more than an historic sense.

Interesting and not easily explained is that both Sylvan and Lima townships had substantial population growth during the decade. Sylvan had a healthy increase of nearly 30 percent, and Lima a perhaps not so healthy climb of 66 percent, a leaps-and-bounds kind of jump that is hard to absorb.

Lima's case is especially intriguing because the township has tried almost desperately not to grow, to the point of seeking to lock its south half into a historic district that would fix present land uses in place. It makes you wonder whether a local government can effectively keep people out if they are determined to come in.

The simplest explanation for Chelsea's loss and the townships' gain is that it is cheaper to live in the country from a tax standpoint. That is, at best, a dubious argument. Taxes unquestionably are higher in town, but in return you don't have to worry about the costs of putting in and maintaining private wells and septic tanks, disposing of rubbish legally, and the ready availability of police and fire protection services. It's a toss-up, and the guess here is that country living is more costly in the long run if your time is worth anything.

Be all that as it may, a fact is that not a single building permit for a new residence has been issued in Chelsea during the past three years, and there were very few for several years before that.

Most startling of all is that the Chelsea area has lost 1,200 industrial jobs since 1970, owing to plant closings and lay-offs. Some of those—but not nearly all—will come back with economic recovery. On the plus side there have been some gains in so-called "service" jobs provided by restaurants, banks and other businesses.

The idea here is not to portray Chelsea as a dying community. It is far from that. There are vigorous seeds of growth present. What is needed is some concerted action to make those seeds sprout. The industrial park, wherever it eventually is located, is just one idea that will someday bear fruit if it is carried out with energy and imagination.

The going will not be easy. Chelsea faces some serious problems which it is going to have to confront and solve, and the solutions will cost money. Right now, the Department of Natural Resources controls the future of the village. The DNR could, under the law, shut down both the wastewater treatment plant and the sanitary landfill tomorrow, and put Chelsea out of business as an incorporated community. The DNR won't do that, but it may run out of patience if something besides "planning" doesn't start to happen soon.

There are deficiencies—serious ones—in the water and sewer systems. There are drains and streets and sidewalks that have to be fixed. It all adds up to a big backlog of needs in what is called, in today's jargon, the "infrastructure" of the village—the network of service arteries that keep a community going and growing.

It all adds up to a major challenge, and an opportunity. Perhaps by starting late, Chelsea can take advantage of new technology and do some things better than those who did them earlier. For instance, there is a lot to be learned from the experiences of other industrial parks in Washtenaw and Jackson counties, some of which have succeeded on a grand scale while others are still just sitting there.

Biology teaches that any living organism begins to die when it quits growing. There is a lesson in that.

Banner Conflict Resolved

The village council ran into a "conflict of banners" problem during its meeting last Tuesday night, but resolved it by decreeing that the two organizations concerned must keep their flags many poles apart.

The Knights of Columbus asked permission to put up a banner on Main St. to advertise its Sept. 5 chicken barbecue, and the Community Fair Board put in a similar request to announce its Aug. 30-Sept. 3 festivity. Both are annual events.

"I suppose it's happened before that these two events came more or less together," observed trustee Loren Keezer, "but I can't remember when. The fair will be late this year because of the calendar."

After discussion, the council decided to require that the K. of C. banner be put up south of Old US-12, where it has been in the past, while the fair flag will fly across downtown Main St.

The council also approved a request from the Downtown Merchants Association to put up a banner in connection with the Sidewalk Sale Festival July 29-30.

School's Energy Management Computer System Nearly Ready

The school district's energy management computer system should be working by the end of the month, Fred Mills, school district assistant superintendent, said last week.

That gives the district two months to check it out before a Sept. 30 funding deadline.

Wires and phone lines for the system have already been installed, said Mills.

The $64,950 computer system, which will control heat to begin with and be capable of controlling electricity and security in the future, was funded by the maintenance millage and surplus funds from the district's federal energy conservations measures grant.

School Board Notes

Present at a regular meeting of the Chelsea Board of Education Tuesday, July 5 were Ann Feeney, Dale Schumann, Arthur Dils, Earl Heller, Anne Comeau and Lloyd Grau. Superintendent Van Meer, assistant superintendent Mills, principal Benedict, community education director Rogers, athletic director Nemeth, Joseph Redding and guests.

The meeting was called to order at 8:00 p.m.

Ann Feeney administered the oath of office to Arthur Dils who was re-elected at the June 13 Special Election.

The minutes of the meeting of June 27 were approved as presented.

A letter from Joyce Gardner, in support of the Building Trades Program, was read.

A letter from attorney Peter Flintoft, relative to the collection of legal fees in the Methodist Retirement Homes Apartment tax appeal, was read and discussed.

The following officers were elected for 1983-84: Dale Schumann, president; Earl Heller, vice-president; Arthur Dils, secretary; Lloyd Grau, treasurer.

Because of the resignation of Dr. Daniel Snyder as Board Trustee, the Board appointed Joseph M. Redding to fill the vacancy thus created for the 1983-84 school year. At the annual school election in June 1984, the two-year unexpired term of Dr. Snyder will be filled by a successful candidate. President Schumann administered the oath of office to Joseph M. Redding.

Staff members Beverly Peebles, Sally Burchfiel and Barbara Fisher reported on the North school-EMU staff development project.

Superintendent Van Meer reported on employee attendance for the second semester 1982-83. Approximately 1/3 of the school employees had perfect attendance.

A brief discussion was held regarding summer tax collection for 1984. No action was taken.

Superintendent Van Meer reported that negotiations with the CEA will be conducted on an expedited basis Aug. 10-12 and 13 and 15 if necessary.

The Board set the first and third Monday at 8 p.m. in the Board of Education Room of the high school administration building for their meetings.

Chelsea State Bank was designated as the depository for all school funds.

The Board authorized superintendent Van Meer to sign payroll checks and the president, secretary and treasurer to sign general fund, debt retirement and building and site checks.

The Board treasurer, Memarie Walter, Frederick A. Mills and Raymond E. Van Meer were authorized to stamp all checks "For Deposit Only."

The firm of Keusch and Flintoft was retained as legal counsel for 1983-84.

Trustee Ann Feeney was appointed as Board representative on the Chelsea Recreation Council.

Trustee Anne Comeau was appointed to represent the Board in the Washtenaw School Officers Association.

Trustee Joseph Redding was appointed to act as Michigan Association of School Boards liaison person.

The assistant superintendent was authorized to participate in co-operative purchasing.

The assistant superintendent was authorized to develop and implement a fund investment program.

The Board authorized the assistant superintendent to pay general fund and debt retirement fund bills in the best interest of the district.

The Board approved G-M Underwriters of Troy as the carrier for student accident insurance at $1.50 per student.

The Board approved membership in the Michigan Association of School Boards Legal Trust Fund at a cost of $41.91 per year.

The Board set Aug. 1, 1983 at 8 p.m. in the Board Room for the "Truth in Taxation" hearing, if necessary and authorized the secretary to place the notice in The Chelsea Standard.

CEA Taking Teacher's Grievance to Arbitration

and the school board. Minimum cost is expected to be $300 for each party.

Schaffner, a high school teacher, was docked a half day of pay for using part of a personal business day to prepare his fields for planting May 12. The school board denied his grievance at its June 27 meeting.

It usually takes three to four months before a grievance is arbitrated, said Phil Jones, chairman of the CEA grievance committee. Both sides have to agree on the choice of arbitrator and date of the hearing.

The contract says personal business days "must be used to do business that cannot be done outside school hours." Schaffner had gone to a farm equipment auction in the morning, which the administration agreed was an appropriate use of the time. In the afternoon he farmed. It had rained a great deal in the spring; May 12 was clear, and rain was forecast for that evening.

The contract doesn't specify, however, who determines if the business can or cannot be done outside school hours, said Jones. The union would like the individual to be the judge of that.

Manchester Reschedules School Vote

Throughout Michigan 95 percent of all renewal proposals that were on the ballot in school elections in June were approved. 208 of the 218 proposals which were voted on were passed by the voters.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkle stated, "It demonstrates that voters in the vast majority of communities in Michigan overwhelmingly support their public schools."

In Manchester, voters approved the renewal millage by a three-to-one margin. Superintendent Gene Thompson observed, "The margin of approval of the renewal millage by Manchester voters is the highest within anyone's memory. We have been unable to discover records of an election which indicates a higher rate of community support for the school system. We have interpreted the three-to-one margin as an indicator that the community appreciates and supports the direction in which the school district is heading. Our effort will be to keep it going."

A millage proposal of 1.8 mills for general operating purposes was defeated in Manchester by the narrow margin of 15 votes. Thompson stated, "We operated a fairly low-keyed campaign prior to the election. As we approached the election date we were discovering large numbers of voters who did not perceive the situation to be serious. We had a difficult time getting the message across that indeed without additional voted revenues the school district would be in trouble because the state equalized valuation had declined. We feel that the slim margin of 15 votes indicates community support for our programs but perhaps a lack of understanding regarding the tenuous financial picture."

The Manchester Board of Education has voted unanimously to return both the proposition calling for a 1.8 mill increase for general operating purposes and the proposal of 1.5 mills for renovation and maintenance to the ballot at a special election to be held Aug. 31.

Federal Grant Received By County Agency

Child and Family Service of Washtenaw, a United Way agency, has received a $351,640 contract to continue the Senior AIDES Project, an employment program for low-income seniors which has returned more than $1 million in federal funds to Washtenaw county in the past four years.

The project places low-income older workers in part-time jobs at public and private non-profit agencies in Washtenaw county. Federal funds, awarded through the National Council of Senior Citizens from the U. S. Department of Labor, go directly to the AIDES as wages and benefits. Administrative costs are met by local sponsors, such as Child and Family Service.

Three outgrowths of the Senior AIDES Project are the Huron Harvest Food Bank, which distributes otherwise wasted surplus food to 39 area food programs, the Older Workers Listing, (OWL), places older workers in unsubsidized jobs in the private sector, and the Transportation for Seniors and Handicapped, provides free rides for Ypsilanti area residents.

To qualify for Senior AIDES positions an enrollee must be over 55 years old, meet specific income guidelines, and be of good health. Interested older workers should contact the Senior AIDES office at 483-1418 for more information.

Chelsea area residents in the program now are Dorcas Cummings who works at the Retirement Home and Olla Voelm working at the Senior Nutrition Program.

GRETCHEN L. VOGEL of Chelsea is shown examining a specimen of native copper while touring the Michigan Technological University experimental mine as part of the university's Women in Engineering Program. The MTU program, which began in 1973, provides an opportunity for high school women interested in technological studies to explore a variety of engineering fields for a week during the summer. ## Spaulding for Children Schedules Ice Cream Social Spaulding for Children will hold its annual ice cream social on Sunday, July 17, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Spaulding farmhouse, 3660 Waltrous Rd., Chelsea.

The 15-year-old agency, which finds adoptive families for older and handicapped children, sponsors this event every year for families and children served, as well as for members of the community.

A traditional summer event for the whole family, Spaulding's ice cream social features a magic show, food, games, good conversation, a country atmosphere, and all the ice cream you can eat.

For more information, to donate items, or to volunteer time, call 475-8693.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

We hear so much of young people falling short of expectations, and somehow it's always making headlines. We hear of the accomplishments of youth in sports, and academic fields, but so little is read of those young persons who have outstanding achievements in the religious area.

I don't know if you would put this letter on the religion page, but it rings of special dedication and devotion of one young person in an area church. St. Mary's is the church, and the person earning his "place in the sun" is Matt Schnaidt.

Matt has just passed his anniversary of 10 consecutive years as an altar boy. His altar boy days began in 1972. It takes some kind of special person to quietly fulfill a position as altar boy, not only when scheduled to do so, but making himself available to the priests for Masses the "other guy" never showed up for.

Serving all these years at Masses on weekdays, Sundays, and holy days, there were also wedding and funeral Masses. Matt has touched all our parish families at one time or another. In 1979 Matt also became a member of the Usher Club.

Matt's good nature and endless sense of humor make him liked. Sometimes the jokes are "corny," but one can be sure he puts a smile on your face. As Popeye would say, "I am what I am," and Matt Schnaidt we are so glad you're just that. How does one thank someone like Matt for all the years, the time and the love, not to mention the wonderful example you are for all of us? Matt is special and the St. Mary's parish family knows it.

Millie Warner.

Village Will Try To Keep Landfill Going 10 Years

What is worrisome is that the DNR has changed the operating ground rules, several times already and is in the process of revising them again. The plastic liner may turn out to be unacceptable under future regulations.

It is possible, for instance, that the Department may require liquids accumulated at the bottom of a lined disposal cell to be drained, collected and disposed of elsewhere, which would largely negate the function of the landfill by making it too costly to operate.

In discussing the various possibilities, the council rejected the notion of trying to locate another landfill site where state requirements might be more easily met.

"Nobody wants one of these things (a landfill) anywhere around his property," said trustee Joe Merkel. "We could be hung up for five years trying to find another site, and we might not have it at the end of that time."

Trustee Loren Keezer suggested that the plastic liner is the best path to follow, at least through the stage of detailed engineering planning, and that approach was eventually adopted unanimously by the council. All members were present, and all voted yes.

"We're obviously being pushed toward shutting down our landfill and going to some type of recycling operation," village administrator Frederick A. Weber said after the meeting. "That is obviously what the DNR wants to do throughout the state."

"It's the wave of the future, but the technology isn't here yet. If we can keep our landfill going for a few more years, we perhaps can buy the time we need for recycling to become practical from a handling and cost standpoint."

Cost is a key. Washtenaw Engineering recommended that rates for using the landfill be increased no matter what course of action is followed, and Weber indicated they will be on Nov. 1.

Present rates are $2 for a car, $6 for a truck or trailer, and $2 per cubic yard for commercial haulers. The proposed new schedule is $2.50, $7 and $2.50. The increases would generate funds to cap the existing cells with clay.

Landfill charges for village residents are paid out of general tax funds. Twice-a-week pick-up of two trash bags per week is "free," and cars bearing an appropriate sticker may likewise dump for nothing. The four townships handle the charges in various ways.

The Washtenaw Engineering report was prepared by Lee M. Fahrner, who was present at last Tuesday's meeting.

Rodney Grames Given Term on Probation

Rodney Grames, 18, of Detroit, has been sentenced to three years probation and ordered to pay damages and restitution for a Dec. 26 burglary at the Jiffy Market.

Rossettie Airport Business Growing Despite Recession

During bad times, the first thing most people give up is their hobby. If business at Rossettie Airport, 8875 Chelsea-Manchester Rd., Manchester, is used as a barometer of the economy, things are improving.

Most of the clients of the family-owned and operated airport are recreational flyers or persons doing business with Manchester and Chelsea companies. Those same firms, such as Michigan Livestock, Chelsea Milling Co. and Chrysler Corp. often use the airport to send out small shipments.

When Chrysler Corp. had its second major lay-off several years ago, Mike and Alice Rossettie lost five regular recreational fliers—literally overnight.

Now their gas sales and traffic are increasing, not dramatically, "but improving," said Mike Rossettie, 45, a heavy truck driver with the county road commission.

The airport began with Mike's acute case of the "flying bug" in 1969. He went up in a plane with a friend and signed up for flying lessons on his way home. He became a licensed pilot in 1970.

They built a private landing strip on the 105-acre family farm originally owned by Mike's grandfather, August Rossettie. Although they don't know exactly when he bought it, the date on the barn is 1898. They grow corn by the landing strip and also oats, wheat, hay and steers.

After they built their strip, neighbors and friends asked to use it. When one got a larger plane which needed a longer strip, the Rossetties decided they might as well make the new strip long enough to be an airport.

Their airport is open 24 hours a day and stays open throughout winter. In summer they use a flail mower to cut the 2,465x100-foot strip and in winter they plow the snow off. Next year will be their 10th year of operation.

Napoleon Soaring Club, a glider club with members from Jackson, Chelsea, Manchester and east towards Birmingham is one of their largest clients.

Mike said he's tried gliding, but he prefers having a stick in his hand and getting where he wants to go. Gliders are towed up and fly using rising heat such as from a large parking lot or newly plowed field and air currents.

Alice, 44, airport manager and assistant weigh master, navigates the family plane. She took two flying lessons. After she taxied into the cornfield on the second one, "that was the end of that," she said.

She is studying photography at Washtenaw Community College, and aerial photography is an area where they would like to expand their business.

Along with taking photographs of person's homes and farms, they have also been asked to take photographs of fields just after drainage tiles have been installed. The photograph can be used as a reference for location of the tiles.

They have a hangar for their own plane, a hangar they rent to the soaring club and also space to tie down planes. They own a single engine, four seater Maule M-4 and lease a four-seater SkyHawk Cessna 172 and a two-seater Cessna 150.

They sell gas to planes passing through and have a courtesy car for fliers who need to go places such as 14th District Court 3 in Chelsea or to nearby businesses.

Mike gives flying lessons and air tours and flies banners made of parachute silk over Michigan Stadium during ball games.

The most memorable banner he ever flew was not over the stadium, however. (Young men have proposed via banners flown over the stadium.)

It was flown over graduation of Onsted High school several years ago. Two couples in the class on a double date were in an automobile accident. Only one girl lived. After a long hospital stay she was graduating from high school.

One of her uncles had Mike fly over graduation with a "Congratulations Teri" banner. He made a dramatic approach and then turned the plane so the banner was suddenly visible.

"It stopped the whole ceremony," said Rossettie.

They don't expect to expand the airport, he said. Right now it is a manageable family business size and a nice "neighborhood airport."

"There is only so much airport business in a small community," he said, and they don't want the airport to ever be a nuisance to neighbors.

Before they went through local zoning to get a conditional use permit for the airport, Rossettie visited the neighbors to explain it to them. Before he took on the gliders, he also told all the neighbors, so they wouldn't be surprised if a glider landed close by. (Ideally they all land at the airport.)

Owning an airport is not all business and no pleasure. The Rossetties fly the plane to vacation spots and take Sunday flies the way others take a Sunday drive.

THE AIRPORT SIGN on Chelsea-Manchester Rd. was a wedding anniversary gift several years ago from Napoleon Soaring Club, a major client of Alice and Mike Rossettie. She moved to the Manchester area when she was 14. Mike grew up on the family farm which is the site of the airport. The farmhouse is behind them.

FILL 'ER UP: Mike Rossettie is the family pilot. Alice navigates the windshield of the family's Cessna Sky Hawk, before he took The Standard photographer for an aerial tour of the neighborhood.

RUNWAY VIEW TO THE SOUTH: The 2,465-foot airstrip at Rossettie Airport looks short from above. One can see the planes tied down on the field, the barns and cornfields of the family farm and M-52 to the right. The hangar with the open door is where the Rossetties keep the family plane.

AIRPLANES AND STEERS ARE NEIGHBORS at Rossettie Airport. These power planes are tied down beside the fenced-in yard where the family raises steers. The grassy area in front of the planes is the strip where planes taxi to take-off points at either end of the runway. The airport is in the middle of the Rossettie's 105-acre farm where they also raise corn, oats wheat and hay.

GLIDERS owned by members of Napoleon Soaring Club are kept at Rossettie Airport. After a glider is towed up by a towing plane, the glider pilot lets go at about 2,000 feet. Gliders gain altitude by using rising hot air from sources such as a large parking lot on a sunny day or newly plowed fields. The instrument panel includes a heat sensor.

McKinley St. Is Legally Polk St. in Village Records

It may come as a surprise to residents along McKinley St. to know that they are legally living on Polk St., no matter what the signs say.

That bit of local history was dug out by Charles (Skip) Winans, assistant to the village administrator, following publication of a story on Chelsea's street names in last week's edition of The Standard.

Winans went into the files and came up with a copy of Ordinance Number 1, approved on Dec. 12, 1888, which prescribed, among other things, "that the street heretofore platted and known as New Street and continued north through said (Chelsea) village shall hereafter be known as Polk Street."

The ordinance apparently has not been amended to this day, and what is now McKinley St. is still legally named Polk St.

Winans suspects that the village council passed a resolution shortly after President William McKinley was assassinated in 1901, and decided to erase former President James K. Polk from the map in favor of McKinley.

Unfortunately, records of council proceedings don't go back that far. "We have pretty good records for the past 20 years or so," Winans said. "Beyond that they are either sketchy or non-existent."

Winans is pretty sure that the 1888 ordinance has never been amended to change Polk St. to McKinley St., which means that it's still Polk St. under the law.

"There is nothing to suggest that an amendment was ever made, so the language of the ordinance remains in force," Winans said. "The ordinance says it's Polk St., and I think that's what it technically is. An ordinance cannot be changed by a council resolution. A resolution shows intent, but does not change the law."

Winans' research also disclosed that the misspelling of president Millard Fillmore's name as "Filmore" is written into village law, and so Filmore St. has existed ever since 1888. It probably was a typographical error at the time, one that has persisted for 94 years without correction.

Fillmore is regarded by historians as the most obscure of all 39 U. S. presidents, so it's perhaps not surprising that 1888 Chelsea village clerk A. R. Congdon didn't spell his name right.

THEY ARE BOTH WRONG: These village street signs reflect a couple of local historical oddities. Filmore St., named after President Millard Fillmore, should be spelled with a double "l," but it's listed in the Chelsea street ordinance as having only one. McKinley St. is really Polk St. according to the letter of the law. The name was changed somewhere along the line, but the ordinance was never amended to reflect it.

Sewage Treatment Plant...

a grant," trustee Loren Keezer said. "The message seems pretty clear."

The cost of upgrading the Chelsea treatment plant to comply with federal and state discharge standards is estimated at $4.5 million in a plan prepared by the Toledo, O., engineering firm of Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout, Ltd.

The village has applied for federal funding, but has not been successful.

The draft permit is 22 pages long and includes, besides the construction deadlines, a long list of technical requirements for monitoring and reporting discharges of effluent into Letts Creek from the treatment plant at 680 McKinley St.

It also requires that the village submit a sludge management program proposal by June 30, 1984, and an "alternative power source" plan by Jan. 31, 1984. The latter would provide a way for the plant to keep operating should the normal power source be shut down for any reason. The village would have to bear the cost of preparing and submitting both plans.

The treatment plant is acknowledged by the village to be inadequate. Built in 1937, it has a capacity of about 600,000 gallons a day, and is frequently called on to handle loads of up to a million gallons. The excess goes into Letts Creek untreated.

Further, the plant provides only primary and secondary treatment of wastes. Today's legal standards call for tertiary treatment to remove additional pollutants.

The NPDES draft permit was submitted to the council for study and comment, and the village has until July 15 to suggest changes. A representative of Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout has proposed several minor technical corrections.

Police Dept. Reports Quiet Month of June

Chelsea's police department operated at about the same pace in June as it did in May, according to a report submitted to the village council by Chief Robert Aello. Radio runs for the two months were almost identical—281 to 279.

The only sharp increase noted was in the category of "case reports," which went up to 42 in June from 20 in May. A "case report" arises from a complaint which results in a written report that is put on file.

While the number of case reports was up, the level of mischief was normal. Most of the cases involved such offenses as animal bites, minor thefts, bad checks and vandal damage to vehicles.

Already Damaged Wheat Crop Menaced By Disease

The Washtenaw county wheat crop, already hurt by a cold spring which delayed its growth and recent storms which have knocked some of it down, is further threatened by a disease called "barley yellow dwarf virus" (BYDV) which a Michigan State University scientist says will cut the yield by 10 percent or more state-wide.

"We definitely have the disease present here in Washtenaw county," said Bill Ames, county agricultural extension agent. "I can't estimate how widespread or severe it is, but 10 percent is probably a pretty good guess."

"We certainly will not have a bumper wheat harvest. This disease, coming on top of earlier problems, will cut the crop substantially."

Michigan's normal wheat harvest is about 41.5 million bushels and has a value of more than $147 million.

The outbreak of BYDV is the biggest and most widespread in Michigan since 1976, said Dennis Fulbright, MSU associate professor of botany and plant pathology. "We feel that somewhere between 10 and 25 percent of the wheat fields throughout the state are infected."

Nothing can be done now to control the virus, which is spread by aphids. They transmit the disease to the wheat plant when they feed on plant juices. Fulbright says that the virus got started last year on wheat that had been planted early in the fall.

Infected wheat plants are stunted, and the leaves turn yellowish-brown to streaked-red. Wheat plants weakened by the virus may then become infected by other plant diseases or may be attacked by insects. Yield reductions may be as high as 60 percent, depending on the wheat variety. Some varieties are more resistant to the virus than others.

"Farmers might think about plowing severely infected wheat under, but even though BYDV-infected wheat will not produce as much, something is better than nothing in the case of mildly infected stands," Fulbright says. "The most important thing farmers can do this fall is plant later in the season, at least 10 days after the local Hessian fly-free date."

Ames said the Hessian fly-free date in Washtenaw county is Sept. 19, which means wheat should not be sown until Sept. 29 or later. "We've been advocating this late planting for years, and many local farmers have been doing it," he added. "Those who planted after Sept. 29 last fall shouldn't be affected by the virus disease."

BYDV dies when the wheat plant matures for harvest. There is no way that the virus can be transmitted to humans.

Two Walk Away At Cassidy Lake

Two walkaways from the Cassidy Lake Technical School were reported last Thursday, July 7.

Michael A. Willis, 20, of Detroit was reported missing at 12:52 a.m. He was serving 4-15 years for breaking and entering.

Fletcher Johnson, 21, of Detroit, was found gone at 1:19 p.m. He had been convicted of attempted larceny from a building and sentenced to 1-2 years.

THIS WAS THE FOOTBALL playing surface at Chelsea High school's Niehaus field. The sod was plowed and then disced to provide a base for special new sod that will be laid as part of the outdoor athletic facilities renovation program under way at the school. Workers are racing the clock to get the new sod laid in time to take root before grid play begins this fall.

CHELSEA HIGH SCHOOL'S TRACK was considered unusable before, and it sure couldn't be run on now that the surface has been chewed up preparatory to putting in a new one. The old asphalt was ground up into little pieces, which will be part of the sub-surface for the new track. This picture was taken looking down the straightaway from the starting line at the north end of the track.

Youth Fitness Meet Set

Chelsea Youth Fitness Meet will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, July 25 at the Chelsea High school athletic field, the site of the baseball and softball diamonds.

Events will be held for boys and girls in three age groups: Class A, 13-14; Class B, 11-12; and Class C, ages 9-10. Sept. 1 is the cut-off date for determination of age group.

Children may enter one running and one field event. Field events are the same for all age groups: standing long jump, running long jump, pull-ups and softball throw. Running events for Class C are 50-yard dash and 440; Class B, 60-yard dash and 880; and Class A, 75-yard dash and mile run.

Each winner will advance to the State Youth Fitness Meet to be held Thursday, July 28 in the Detroit area. At that meet children may enter only one event. Each class will also have co-ed relays, two boys and two girls. Relay participants will be determined by times at the Chelsea meet.

There is no cost for the Chelsea meet, so children are encouraged to have fun competing. Registration will be held at the meet. Bill Wehrwein, elementary school physical education teacher and high school boys track coach, will be meet director.

Chelsea Recreation Council and Chelsea school district are co-sponsoring the meet.

Jim Roberts Wins In July 4 Truck Pull

Jim Roberts of Chelsea was the only local placer in the Fourth of July truck pull at the fairgrounds arena.

Roberts took first in the super-modified 5,800-pound class; first, super-modified, 6,200-pound open class; third, modified, 5,800; and third, modified 6,200 class.

He won $200 for each first and $75 for each third.

The mid-afternoon downpour stopped pulling for about an hour.

More Silver Lake Parking Tickets Given

The sheriff's department issued 20 tickets last weekend for illegal parking along Dexter Town Hall Rd. outside Silver Lake beach in a continuing crackdown on the problem.

"I would have written at least 10 more if I hadn't been called away on another assignment," Sgt. Don Wenk said.

Wenk added that the number of violations was down substantially from past weekends. "I think maybe people are getting the message that we mean business," he said. The tickets cost about $20 each in fine and court costs, which is expensive parking.

The problem arises when the beach parking lot fills up and no more vehicles are allowed to enter. That is the method used by the Department of Natural Resources to control the number of people using the beach at any one time.

What has been happening is that drivers who find the gate closed park illegally along the road and walk in around the gate to get to the beach, which is a popular summer recreation spot.

Life Along Huron River Nature Study Planned in Canoes

"Life Along the Huron River," a canoe program, will be held at Hudson Mills Metropark near Dexter on Tuesday, July 19 at 10 a.m.

This is a naturalist led tour with stops made along the Huron River from Hudson Mills to Delhi Metroparks. Participants should have a lunch or snack pack. Canoes will be provided and there is a nominal charge for the four-hour trip.

Advance registration is required. For information/registration, contact the Nature Center at Kensington Metropark, phone 685-1561 (Milford).

53 Canadian Geese Banded on Area Lakes

Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologists have banded a total of 53 Canadian geese on three Washtenaw county lakes—Wild Goose, Silver and South. The banding records are used to track goose movements and ages when the birds are eventually recaptured.

Surplus geese were trapped and removed from Independence Lake, where they had become a nuisance.

Aquatic Club Edged Out By Georgetown

Chelsea Aquatic Club lost, 420-263, July 30 against Georgetown.

After diving, the team was 23 points behind and never caught up, said coach Von Acker. The meet was mid-week because of the July 4 holiday week-end.

Many of the swimmers do other things besides swim, he said. They were committed to other activities, which meant the CAC didn't have swimmers in many events.

Several new swimmers competed for the first time in this meet, he said, and he hoped they found it rewarding. "I thought everyone did a fine job."

Individual results as submitted by the coaching staff follow.

Chelsea Baseballers Win One, Lose One

Chelsea's "week night" baseball team split a pair of games last week, losing on Tuesday to Packard Dairy Queen, 10-14, and rebounding on Thursday with a 5-2 win over Gabriel Richard.

The Chelseaites faced Doug Pagliarini, leading pitcher for the 1983 Bulldogs, in the Dairy Queen game and managed to knock him out of the box even though they lost. Jim Ritter pitched for Chelsea.

The game was tied, 4-4, after five innings, but Dairy Queen scored an unearned run in the sixth and five more in the seventh to lock it up.

"Even with the loss I was very pleased with the way we played," Chelsea coach Akel Marshall said. "We played a very fine team and were in the game until the last inning."

Rick Boham had two hits, and Jim Toon, Chuck Downer, Ron Dunn, Ritter, Evan Roberts, Charlie Koenn and Mark Mull collected one each.

Dunn was the winning pitcher over Gabriel Richard, yielding only three hits. Chelsea jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, added one in the second, and two more in the fifth.

Boham again paced the attack with two hits, while Roberts, Eric Stofflet, Mark Porath and Mull collected one each.

CHELSEA WOMEN'S FAST PITCH SOFTBALL

New System Set For Ball coverage

Our coverage of summer softball and baseball so far this season has been less than the best, and we realize it. We want to do a better job, and are setting up a new system to try to do it. To accomplish that goal, we must have help from the participants. There is no way we can cover games in person except on an occasional basis.

In our June 14 edition we asked for co-operation in getting information to us by noon on Saturday each week. The results have been rather poor, with some excellent exceptions. Many reports have been getting to us late or not at all. Those we do get often are submitted in a form we cannot use without extensive rewriting that we just plain don't have the time to do. It is not necessary to submit attempted news stories unless you are a trained professional journalist.

To try to solve those problems and give summer softball and baseball the kind of coverage they deserve, we have devised a form, similar to the form used in reporting bowling. Copies of the form are available at our offices. We invite you to come in and obtain a supply.

We want information by leagues, not by individual teams. We suggest that each league appoint a responsible representative to fill out a form and submit it to us by noon on Saturday each week. We will print what you give us if you meet the deadline.

Your co-operation will be appreciated.

Big Boy Finishes Fourth in Tourney

Chelsea Big Boy posted a 4-2 record over the weekend in the Kalamazoo Open Invitational Fastpitch Tournament, good enough for fourth place in the 18-team event.

Big Boy's victories came against Robert's Construction of Marshall, Steve's Amoco of Ludington, Fred's Food Mart of Benton Harbor, and Borden's Drugs of Flint. Big Boy was defeated by Burchfield Indiana, a national open finalist last year, and Mitchell Corp. of Owosso.

The Mitchell game was played on Sunday when only four teams remained in the tourney. The score was 2-1, and both Mitchell runs were unearned.

Last year Big Boy defeated Mitchell, 5-4, in LaCrosse, Wis., in the "A" National Regional Tourney. Having a good tournament for Big Boy was Mike Lauerman, who hit three home runs, drove in eight runs and had a .404 average in the six games. He also cracked six homers in a home run derby exhibition, which was good for second place.

Al Cohen pitched a one-hitter against Borden's.

Meanwhile, last week in league action Big Boy came from behind to defeat Brewer's Gulf, 6-3, on Tuesday night. Roger Bourne delivered the key hit, driving in two runs. Jim Strong got the pitching victory in relief.

Thursday night Big Boy beat Wolverine Supply, 5-2, getting home runs from Wayne Welton and Al Augustine. Al Cohen went the distance for his 11th win of the year.

The Ann Arbor all-star fastpitch game will be played tonight. Big Boy has nine players on the all-star squad: Al Augustine, Randy Brier, Bruce Wagner, Roger Bourne, Mike Lauerman, Todd Orbring, John

Raspberry Picking Contest Delayed By One Week

The wild black raspberry picking contest at Park Lyndon South, announced for last Sunday, has been postponed a week because the berries weren't ripe.

A spokesperson for the Washtenaw County Parks and Recreation Department said she regretted any inconvenience caused to would-be pickers who showed up last Sunday on the basis of the earlier announcement.

"There are lots of berries, but they were still green last weekend," she said. "The weather just didn't co-operate in time."

The contest will begin at 10 a.m. this coming Sunday. Entry fee is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the weight of berries picked.

Strong, Jim Strong and Len Kozma.

Big Boy's over-all record now stands at 35-7. They are seeded in the open class in the state tournament. A high finish will put them in the national finals at Decatur, Ill. Big Boy has been placed in the open field as a result of last year's third-place finish in the "A" national regionals.

Live-Trapping Advised To Handle Nuisance Animals

This is the time of year when several species of small wild animals—including rabbits, woodchucks, raccoons and squirrels—begin to invade gardens. They can eat an astonishing amount of tender young green stuff in a short time.

The Department of Natural Resources advises live-trapping the nuisance animals and releasing them in a wooded area at least a couple of miles away. If turned loose close to the point of capture, they are likely to come back.

It is illegal to shoot any protected wildlife except during open hunting seasons, and shooting is generally prohibited at any time inside the limits of a city or village. Poisoning is strictly against the law.

Californian Aces Hole at Inverness

A visit to Michigan from California proved lucky for Rudy Neschkat who scored a hole-in-one at Inverness Country Club last Friday afternoon.

Playing as the guest of Dietrich Schulze of 15400 Cassidy Rd., Neschkat holed out a 6-iron shot in the 177-yard seventh hole at Inverness. It was the first ace of the season at the club.

Five Chelsea Students Attending Arts Camp

Five local children are attending the first session, June 28 to July 10, of Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in Manistee National Forest.

During their session they will hear two of the camp's Highlights concerts, Roy Clark on July 2 and Natalie Hinderas on July 9.

Chelsea campers are: Randal Hafner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hafner, jazz; Scott M. Westphal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Westphal, band; Amy Dmoch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dmoch, band; Anna Muncer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Muncer, band; and Amy Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson, theatre.

BASKETBALL COACHES tend not to smile a lot, especially under the pressure of regular season play, but Chelsea's Robin Raymond was in a relaxed mood last week as he directed his annual summer basketball camp in the high school gym. About 50 boys turned out for the camp, and Raymond said he is very pleased with the way things have gone so far.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDRE

If your last experience with tent camping goes back to the days of the old-fashioned wall and umbrella tents, you have some catching-up to do. Technology has made vast improvements in tents.

Unlike the clumsy canvas shelters of the past, which took a lot of sweat (and sometimes also blood and tears) to put up, modern tents are simple. You can erect your temporary shelter in a few minutes of not very hard work—about the same amount of time and effort it takes to settle into a $30 motel room.

When wife Vivian and I decided to travel by tent during our long tour of the Southwest two years ago, we went shopping for a tent, and were amazed by what we found available. Our eventual choice was a 63-square-foot model with seven feet of head room, a vapor-proof polyethylene floor, an easy-zip door, and big cross-ventilating windows that zip from the inside.

The fabric is waterproof if you obey the instruction not to place anything directly against the walls on the inside or outside. (We forgot that one night and got dampened by a surprise rain that had not been forecast.)

This gem of a tent fits into two 10-pound carrying bags—one for the fabric, the other for the poles and stakes, both easily packed into the trunk of a mid-sized automobile. (The five-foot pole package might not fit into some small cars. Take measurements before you buy. A roof rack is an alternative, although expensive because the air resistance reduces gas mileage drastically.)

The tent and carrying cases, ordered out of a catalogue, cost a little less than $150 on a special sale in late summer. The tent hangs from a framework of jointed aluminum poles, and is anchored by 10 stakes.

After practicing a couple of times in the backyard, we found we could work together and have the tent in place and ready to occupy in 10 minutes, once we had selected the site and cleared it of pebbles, sticks, old walnuts and other debris. (If you have room in your vehicle, a short-handled broom rake is a very useful tool to have along on a tent-camping trip.)

Once we have the site ready, we unroll and spread out the tent. I drive the stakes, while Vivian assembles the poles. Together we put the poles through the tent loops, raise them and, presto, we have a shelter ready to move into.

The only problem I found was that the points of the plastic stakes which came with the tent quickly blunted, making them difficult to drive. A set of steel replacements, bought for about $10, took care of that.

Taking the tent down is even easier. Vivian removes the poles and unjoins them, while I pull the stakes with the aid of a "stake-puller"—a short length of rope with loops tied at both ends. One loop goes under the "hook" in the stake, and I yank on the other loop. The stake pops up into my free hand.

Poles and stakes go into one storage bag, the rolled-up tent into another, and the whole job is done in about five minutes.

You might wonder why we selected a 63-square-foot model which measures 7 by 9 feet on the floor and 7 feet at the center-pole. The reason is simply that we wanted some room. We didn't want to have to crawl on our hands and knees, nor did we want to sleep in a claustrophobic cocoon. We wanted to be able to stand up, and get in and out, without stooping. We wanted to sit comfortably on lawn chairs inside in case of bad weather.

The makers and sellers of tents make some extravagant claims about their capacities. Our tent, for example was advertised as large enough to "sleep six." Well, maybe it could if all six knew each other very well and had somehow else to stow their clothing and other gear. Four might fit in with a duffel bag apiece. The tent is just right for two. We have plenty of room to lay out our mattresses and sleeping bags, stash everything else around the edges, and have vacant space left to move around in.

A roomy, fun-to-handle tent is the key to easy tent-camping for adults who don't care to do it the hard way with spartan mini-outfits. There are some accessory items that help to make tent camping a pleasure instead of a disagreeable chore. Those will be the subject of next week's column.

IT'S TIGER LILY TIME: Adding to the beauty of summer along rural Washtenaw county roads are wild-growing beds of tiger lilies. The tawny yellow-orange lilies are blooming at their peak right now. Tiger lilies are often cultivated in home flower beds, but they seem to do just about as well in the wild, where they form dense stands.

Tillage Methods Will Be Compared In Twilight Tours

Field crop production on moldboard plowed, chisel plowed and no-till planted ground will be examined in evening meetings July 19, 20 and 25 by the Saline Valley Project and Co-operative Extension Service. Each meeting will tour one of three tillage demonstration plots sponsored by the Saline Valley Project, Rural Clean Water Program.

Elmer Diuble's soybean plot, on Parker Rd., one mile south of Jackson Rd., will be toured July 19. On July 20, Stan Poet's corn plot, on Burmeister Rd., just west of Shellenburger Rd., will be toured. A soybean plot on Ernie Girbach's farm, Arkona Rd., one mile west of Jordan Rd., will be toured July 25. All tours start at 7:30 p.m.

Each plot is divided into side-by-side strips of moldboard plowed, chisel plowed and no-till planted ground. All other factors within the plot, such as seed and variety, fertilizer rate and weed control are kept the same to allow for differences in crop production due to tillage systems to be studied.

In last year's plot, Ron Struss, Extension Agricultural Agent working on the Saline Valley Project, found only slight yield differences between tillage systems. "Results from the 1983 tillage plots showed that farmers could have their cake and eat it, too—they could reduce soil erosion with chisel plowing and no-till and still produce good crop yields," reported Struss. It will be interesting to see if this season's plots will prove out the same.

The Saline Valley Project, Rural Clean Water Program, is promoting chisel plowing and no-till planting because these systems retain more soil-protecting crop residues on the soil surface than moldboard plowing. Although crop residues left on the soil's surface, such as corn stalk and wheat and soybean stubble, protect soil against the erosive forces of wind and water, some question whether a surface layer of residue hampers planting operations, fertilizer placement and weed control. These tillage demonstration plots were designed to address such questions. The plots are well marked, and the public is encouraged to inspect them at any time.

Pets Require Special Care During Summer

Most pets survive and enjoy hot summer months. Each year, however, some die and many more suffer needless injuries and discomfort. The Humane Society of Huron Valley offers the following guidelines for pet owners:

Be sure your pet has adequate shade and ample cool, clean water. Reduce animals' diets in warm weather. They do not need as much food in hot weather.

Exercise your pet in the early morning or late evening when it is cooler. Never over-exercise pets in the heat.

While it may be a good idea to clip some breeds during the summer, it may be harmful for others. Don't shave off the animal's natural insulation and sunburn protection. Sunburn is a hazard to the nose and eyelids of most pets away from shade when the coat is clipped too short.

Summer's greatest danger for pets is heat, which can kill animals left in parked cars and other hot, confined places. Don't leave an animal in a car. On a hot summer day the inside of a car heats very quickly. On an 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside your car—with the windows slightly opened—will reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes. In 30 minutes it will go up to 120 degrees. On warmer days it will go even higher.

Heat exhaustion is a medical emergency that leads to death

Early Reservations Urged for Parks

Area residents seeking campsites this summer in Michigan state parks are advised to make reservations early, especially for weekends.

The Department of Natural Resources reports that park campgrounds have been busy and often filled to capacity since the Memorial Day weekend. The recent hot weather has been a big factor in bringing people to the parks.

By policy, the DNR makes half of all state park campsites available on an advanced-reservation basis. The others are first-come first-served.

Without immediate treatment. Signs of heat stroke are rapid shallow breathing, excessive salivation and vomiting and, in the last stages, forced breathing and collapse. Immediate treatment by immersion in cold water is necessary. If you cannot immerse the animal, spray it with cold water or apply cold wet towels or ice packs.

Flea Wars Can Attack Your Pets

With summer comes fleas and still another chapter of the never-ending flea wars. The Humane Society of Huron Valley offers the following information for a flea-free summer.

Flea Facts

The adult female feeds for 2-3 days, then begins laying hundreds of eggs. When your pet stretches, or scratches, eggs fall into carpeting, bedding, grass.

The adult flea has up to 30 days to find a host or it will die. The adult will find a host pet, and often jumps from pet to pet.

Fleas Can Cause

1—Anemia in small animals.
2—Allergies, itching caused by allergy to the flea's saliva.
3—Infection and hot spots.
4—Tapeworms through ingestion of fleas.

Treatment

1—Shampoo, powder, dip and/or spray the host animal to kill adult fleas. Shampoos should be rinsed thoroughly and powder or spray may then be applied.

2—Spray or bomb indoor environment with a combination insecticide that kills adults and the egg/larvae. House bombing can be effective as long as 10 weeks.

3—Vacuum indoor environment and remove the vacuum bag.

4—Spray outdoor environment with a recommended insecticide or have it done professionally. Spraying should be repeated every 2 weeks in heavy flea season.

The effectiveness of a flea control program depends on keeping the animal and its environment clean, and on the regular use of insecticides. Consult your veterinarian about which products are most effective and best suited for your pet.

SPORTS NOTES

By PEGGY PAGE

When I was swimming on the city team in my hometown of Raleigh, N.C., an older girl with a lot of promise quit.

Her mother didn't want her wearing a pair of swimming shoulders when she walked down the aisle to be married.

So she quit the team just before her shoulders blossomed, and gained about 30 pounds instead. I lost track of her and don't know what she finally looked like on her wedding day or if she is married.

That was 15 years ago. Both Chelsea High school and the University of Michigan will have had a decade of girls and womens varsity sports as of this fall season.

Girls on school and summer teams in Chelsea aren't afraid to compete—they get black eyes from hard-hit volleyballs, slide on dusty ballfields without hesitation and lift weights in the off-season to make their legs stronger for track.

They are fit, strong girls, and it hasn't hurt them in the romance market.

But the argument that times have changed isn't completely true. Although it may be okay to have shoulders now (top women models these days pump iron to firm this or that), height and weight are still sensitive issues for both boys and girls and men and women.

Athletic programs for boys list height and weight. The programs for girls list height only. Coaches have said short boys fudge their height upward, while tall girls fudge theirs downward.

Although college programs may be more truthful about girls' height, many still do not list weight.

My 5'2" mother met Monte Towe, a former North Carolina State basketball player who was listed as 5'6" in the official program. At 5'6" he was still the shortest player in the NCAA that year, but Mom said he looked 5'4" to her.

Martina Navratilova's height and weight were published after her recent Wimbledon triumph, but when Tracy Austin and Chris Evert Lloyd have been in their plump phases, you don't see their weight published.

Anyone who follows Chelsea athletics knows there are many tall girls here, and that is good for team sports. The Budding volleyball team had one of the best net blocks in the league because of team members' height. The reach of the first baseman on the softball team (she was also a volleyball player) contributed to several big plays in the past two seasons. Tall girls make better rebounders.

Although I am average height, 5'5 1/2", I can understand their reticence about height. My husband is 6'6", which helps on the volleyball court but makes him a freak to the curious in grocery stores and a menace to other movie-goers.

Although I have no problems with my height and swimming shoulders, I have my sensitive points. I can't remember the last time I told the truth about my weight. In 13 years I might not want to tell the truth about my age either (27 now).

Women's liberation and the fitness craze may have made shoulders, black eyes, muscles and dusty uniforms fashionable.

But "equality," "revolution" and "liberation" haven't changed social attitudes about height and weight and accepted masculine and feminine proportions.

Average is okay, but extremes in either direction are fudged or left out, unless it is to one's advantage, such as in the recent basketball draft or for a skinny woman.

Size has eluded the revolutionaries.

Chelsea Loses Out On Emergency Jobs

Chelsea may go through the motions of filing for grants under the federal Emergency Jobs Act, but the action almost certainly will mean nothing because the July 1 deadline was missed.

The village council discussed at some length last Tuesday night whether to seek grants for any or all of four public works projects which might be eligible under the act.

The projects include water and sewer line improvements, upgrading of the wastewater treatment plant, and development of a proposed industrial park. Detailed plans have been developed for only one of the proposals—renovation of sewers on the village's southwest corner.

The matter was first brought before the council at its June 21 meeting, but no action was taken at the time.

Reminded by a reporter that the grant application deadline was July 1, village administrator Frederick A. Weber said, "I'm afraid you may be right," and he later confirmed that the forms do specify that date.

"We didn't get the forms until about the middle of June," Weber said. "It's a hurry-up program, and we didn't hurry fast enough. Frankly, I overlooked the deadline date because I didn't read the fine print closely enough."

All federal money available under the Emergency Jobs Act must be obligated by Sept. 1. Several projects within Washtenaw county, for which plans were in place and applications submitted in time, have been approved for funding.

WHOOOPS: This hay fell from a truck the afternoon of Friday, July 8 at the corner of Main St. and Old US-12. It blocked the intersection for a only a short time. The driver of the truck turned around and returned for the load.

Borrowed Car Causes Series of Problems

A woman reported her car had been stolen from the Half Moon Lake beach parking lot on Sunday afternoon, after she loaned it to a group of four friends for a trip to a nearby party store.

Before the incident was over, there had been a false report of an armed robbery and a fire in a farm field. No arrests were made, the sheriff's department said, but all concerned were warned about playing games.

Deputies reconstructed the happening this way:

After borrowing the car, the quartet drove it off the road into a field on the property of John Tandy, 7045 Hankerd Rd. The car got stuck. During efforts to drive it back onto the road, the engine overheated, setting fire to the field.

The Chelsea fire department was called and put out the fire. The car escaped damage in the blaze.

Meanwhile, the four persons who had borrowed the car walked back to the beach and told a story of having been held up at gunpoint by an armed robber who fled in the car. That tale quickly broke down under questioning, and the truth came out.

The persons involved agreed to pay Tandy $65 in damages to his field, the car was recovered, and no charges were filed.

"The deputies who handled the matter used their on-the-spot judgment and decided not to arrest anybody," said Sgt. Don Wenk, "but that doesn't mean we condone this kind of thing. We and the fire department had to put in time and effort that was really unnecessary. Both agencies have better things to do."

Council Goes Along On Knoll Secession

The village council will help Mr. and Mrs. Donald Knoll of 1220 Old Manchester Rd. secede from Chelsea and return their property to Sylvan township, from which it was annexed into the village in 1968.

The council last Tuesday night passed a resolution asking the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners to act favorably on the request. The procedure requires public notice and hearings and cannot be completed until September.

In taking the action the council expressed concern that it might set a precedent and tempt others to try the same thing. Several trustees emphasized that the Knoll case is special because their property apparently was included in the 1968 annexation by mistake.

"They never wanted to be in the village, and everything we can learn suggests it was never intended that they should be," village president Jack Merkel summed up. "I think we are justified in making an exception in this case."

Why it has taken 17 years for the Knolls to press their claim for de-annexation was not explained.

Principal Interns Sought for Schools

Chelsea school district is looking in-house for principal interns for the coming year, since Alan Conklin, principal of Beach Middle school, and Sylvester Wojcicki, principal of South Elementary school, both plan to retire at the end of the 1983-84 school year.

Robert Benedict, now principal at North school, will replace Wojcicki at South. Candidates for North school principal would intern with Benedict this coming year, and interns for the Beach principal position would intern under Conklin.

The length of internships depends on the number of candidates, said Fred Mills, assistant school district superintendent, but will probably range from two weeks to a month.

The internships will give candidates "a good opportunity to try administration," he said, and see whether they like it.

The positions have not yet been posted outside the district, he said.

Conklin, 55, began in the district in September of 1952 as a middle school teacher of physical education, biology, social studies and driver's education. For 10 years he was high school head football coach, also coached baseball, track and basketball and was summer recreation director.

He became unofficial principal of the middle school in 1959, he said, when the new high school opened. A few years later as enrollment rose, he became principal full-time. Beach Middle school opened in 1968, and he has been the only principal the school has ever had.

Wojcicki, 58, became principal of South school in the fall of 1964 and has continued in that position ever since.

Before he came to Chelsea, he had been principal of an elementary school in the Whittemore-Prescott school district near West Branch. He has taught at both elementary and middle schools, and is also a former coach.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING on PROPOSED AMENDMENT to the LYNDON TOWNSHIP ZONING ORDINANCE

TAKE NOTICE: That the Lyndon Township Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on JULY 14, 1983 at 8:30 p.m., at the Lyndon Township, Lyndon Township, Michigan, for the purpose of considering the following Amendment to the Lyndon Township Zoning Ordinance:

An Ordinance to Amend the Lyndon Township Zoning Ordinance adopted March 10, 1973 and to create a new zoning district to be known as the P-5 DISTRICT, PRIVATE SITES DEDICATED TO COMMON USE (P-5).

Under Section 23.12

THE TOWNSHIP OF LYNDON ORDAINS:
A new district be created under Section 23.12 to read as follows:

LYNDON TOWNSHIP PRIVATE SITES DEDICATED TO COMMON USE (P-5 DISTRICT) SECTION 23.12

A. INTENT.

The P-5 District is established for all private riparian sites which are dedicated to common use. Private riparian sites are: lands held in common by a subdivision, association or any similar agency; or held in common by virtue of the terms of a plat of record; or provided for common use under deed restrictions of record for riparian access or riparian use of a body of water.

The intent of this section is, in support of the general intent of this Ordinance, to provide for necessary lands and uses required by the needs of Township residents and visitors.

B. PERMITTED PRINCIPAL USES AND STRUCTURES.

All lands in a P-5 zone shall be maintained and used for common purposes, such as:

1. Recreational sites, including bathing beaches, playgrounds, boat launching sites, and other recreational areas, adjoining a body of water.

2. Scenic sites, adjoining a body of water.

3. Trails, bicycle paths, walk ways, and access routes, which adjoin a body of water.

C. PERMITTED ACCESSORY USES AND STRUCTURES.

1. All structures, facilities, and uses customarily incidental to the permitted Principal Uses.

D. AREA AND BULK REQUIREMENTS.

P-5 Sites Dedicated to Common Use shall conform in all respects to the area and bulk requirements of the adjacent Districts which they are intended to serve.

E. GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

1. Limitation of Uses.

The specific uses assigned for common utilization under the terms of sub-Section B are to be limited to areas zoned P-5, PRIVATE SITES DEDICATED TO COMMON USE. No residential, agricultural or commercial zoned lot can be used for these common purposes.

2. Riparian Access for Non-riparian Lots.

If a riparian lot or parcel is zoned P-5, giving access for common uses by non-riparian lots or parcels, the following conditions shall apply:

- a. The deed to such lot or parcel shall specify the non-riparian lots or parcels which shall have rights to its use.

- b. Such riparian lot or parcel shall have a minimum frontage of one hundred and fifty (150) feet, a minimum area of thirty thousand (30,000) square feet, and its design shall be subject to Site Plan Review. Frontage shall be measured by a straight line which intersects each side lot line at the water's edge.

- c. Not less than thirty (30) feet of riparian frontage shall be provided for each non-riparian lot or parcel so served.

- d. A non-riparian lot or parcel which is occupied by more than one dwelling unit (duplex or Multiple Residence) shall require the provision of thirty (30) feet of riparian frontage for each dwelling unit occupying said lot or parcels.

- e. Not more than one boat mooring for each dwelling unit served may be placed upon the riparian lot.

- f. The non-riparian lot which is served by the riparian lot, shall conform to the regulations of its zoning district.

Written comments concerning the above will be received by regular mail at 17090 Boyce Road, Stockbridge, MI 49285.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Date: July 15, 1983

The Michigan Water Resources Commission proposes to reissue the following discharge permit: Permit No. MI 0020737 to the Village of Chelsea for an existing wastewater treatment facility. The applicant, located at 104 E. Middle Street, Chelsea, Michigan, treats municipal wastewaters from the Village of Chelsea and discharges its effluent from its facility located on 680 McKinley Street, Chelsea, Michigan. It is proposed to reissue the permit for a period of five years with the following modifications: Final effluent limitations, toxic substances monitoring, program for effective residuals management, schedule of compliance-alternate power sources.

Comments or objections to the proposal received by the Commission within thirty (30) days of the date of this Public Notice will be considered in its final decision to issue the permit. Persons desiring further information regarding the proposal, including inspection of the draft permit and fact sheets, should contact the Municipal Permits Section, Surface Water Quality Division, Department of Natural Resources, P. O. Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan 48909, phone 517/373-8088. Comments on the proposal should be mailed to the above address.

Card of Thanks 16

CARD OF THANKS
I would like to thank my family and friends for their many acts of kindness extended to us during my stay in the hospital and since my return home. All of you are very special.

Mary Eder.

THANK YOU

We would like to extend our appreciation to Verne Salsburg, Don Doll, Patrick Merkel and the other members of the American Legion who invited us to participate in their Fourth of July Celebration. We truly enjoyed the experience and deeply appreciated the co-operation received from the Legion members as well as their wives who provided several delicious cakes. Also a special thanks is extended to Joe Merkel who provided his expertise in planning the affair. Thanks, too, to the dedicated ladies of the Knights of Columbus Auxiliary and other members of St. Mary's Parish who gave so unselfishly of their time and provided many delicious desserts that were enjoyed by all. It was truly a united effort by all concerned. Even a visitor from Pennsylvania volunteered her time to serve our anxious customers! May God bless and keep all of you. Sincerely,
Eileen Gondeck, President,
K. of C. Auxiliary.

THANK YOU

Waterloo Nature Center would like to thank the Lions Club of Chelsea for their donation of $50 which will be used to purchase books for the Center's library. The books chosen by the club will cover such varied topics as the care of wild animals, discovering nature with a hand lens, and field guides on insects and birds. In the past the Lions Club has supported the Center by donating an audio-visual program on bird identification and offering a scholarship to an individual who participated in a special education day camp last summer.

Substance Abusers Talk to 5th Grades

Chelsea Community Hospital provided North and South school fifth graders a program on Substance Abuse Awareness Wednesday, June 8. Speakers were Mrs. Judy Stopke, sponsor for Alateen in Ann Arbor, and Tom Keshishian, Washtenaw County Sheriff Department.

Mrs. Stopke provided information on Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), Alateen and Alateen. All three are self-help groups for alcoholism; AA for the alcoholic, Alateen for the adult family members of the alcoholic and Alateen is for the children of a substance abuser. A family member abusing substances not only hurts himself, but anyone close to them. It is very difficult to understand and to know how to help a close one who is afflicted with this disease. Alateen and Alateen provide the understanding and support to affected family members. Such groups are available at the Chelsea Community Hospital. Interested persons may call 475-1311 and ask for the Substance Abuse Dept.

With Mrs. Stopke were two young people currently at Dawn Farm recovering from alcohol and drug addiction. They spoke to the fifth graders explaining their experiences as substance abusers and how they became addicted. Their stories were similar in that both had problems that they were unable to cope with. The young man began drinking at age 11 because he was afraid to go home from school every day to an alcoholic father who constantly berated him. Drinking provided a numbness to this. It made him feel good which led him to try drugs to feel even better. Alcohol and drugs became his priority; the only thing that mattered in his life. This led to stealing in order to get money to support his habit. He was arrested five times and finally enrolled at Dawn Farm for recovery. He realized abusing substances did not make him feel better; he'd had some "bad trips" and realized his life was miserable.

The young woman came from a close-knit, solid family but she could not live up to her own self-expectations. She was never happy with what she achieved, always expecting to do better. Abusing substances provided an atmosphere in which she could lie to herself and others until she finally believed she was important and achieving the best of everything. In the meantime, however, she alienated herself from her family and close friends, she stole money from them and others because she too, put her addiction above everything else. As with the young man, she never thought she was the typical "bum in the alley with a bottle" and therefore not an alcoholic or drug addict. She also never thought she would ever touch the "hard stuff" but in order to achieve that original "high" that one gets from the first time of trying something, she did try just about everything. She is now in recovery and realizes that she made a mess of her life and is now learning to like and accept herself while maintaining sobriety. She made a statement that is quite interesting, "I never thought I could have fun while being sober."

It took a lot of courage for those two young people to come forward and tell their stories, painful as they were.

Tom Keshishian of the Washtenaw County Sheriff Dept. was an undercover narcotics agent for five years. He provided the fifth graders with knowledge of the different drugs and their effects, both short-term and long-term. He also explained what happens if a minor is caught selling illegal substances. People who depend on alcohol and/or drugs cannot remain anonymous; hide away so that no one knows. They too, pay for the consequences of their acts. This habit is very expensive to maintain and abusers eventually are caught and prosecuted for sale of some illegal act they have performed in order to purchase alcohol and/or drugs.

The purpose of the program was to educate the young people so that when they are confronted with a decision on whether or not to try alcohol and/or drugs, they can make an educated decision. Ultimately, they are the only ones who can make that choice. The program was presented to fifth graders as they are graduating to middle school and many will undoubtedly be confronted with such a decision if not already. It is very difficult to accept that children in elementary school could be using alcohol and/or drugs when in fact there are some.

Hopefully, they now understand that substance abuse is only a symptom of other problems and that there are other resources available to them for help in coping with different problems.

U.S. Postage Stamps Date Back to 1847

When adhesive stamps were adopted in 1847 for use as prepayment of U. S. Postage, one of the single most important improvements in Postal Service history took place.

Mail processed for dispatch prior to that time was simply marked "Paid" by postmasters with pen and ink or a hand stamp. Such mail usually contained the town's postmark as well as the mailing date.

In order to facilitate mail processing at that time, some postmasters provided special stamps or other devices for use on letters as evidence of postage prepayment.

On Jan. 1, 1856, the use of adhesive stamps issued by the government became mandatory, and it wasn't long afterward that the hobby of stamp collecting began.

Emergency Food Grant Made to FIA

Faith in Action (FIA) has been awarded a grant from the Michigan Department of Social Services to provide emergency food. This grant will only cover costs for provision of food through September, 1983.

This grant will allow FIA to purchase food that has not been available in the past through donations such as powdered milk, meat, frozen foods and vegetables. Purchases will be made through Polly's and the Huron Harvest Food Bank.

It has been in the last week that FIA has been accepted by Huron Harvest to purchase food and orders will be placed this month.

Huron Harvest Food Bank is a non-profit program through Child and Family Services established to serve agencies, churches and organizations who feed or supply food to people in need. Food is offered for purchase at a very large discount.

FIA will continue to request food donations as in the past since the need for food is on-going, whereas the grant is not. Another source of food donations has also recently been made available to FIA—the Seva food drop box at Polly's. Seva is phasing out this aspect of their program and has requested FIA to take over the

Parent Aides Sought By Catholic Social Services

Catholic Social Services needs volunteers to serve as Parent Aides. Parent Aides work one-to-one with parents who are having serious difficulties. By providing friendship to isolated, often frustrated parents, they help prevent child abuse and neglect. No religious affiliation is necessary. Training and supervision are provided.

A training session for new Parent Aides will be held during September.

Call Catholic Social Services at 662-4534 for more information. Catholic Social Services is a Washtenaw United Way agency.

building safe for fall classes, something has to be done about the settling of the northeast corner of the high school building. Henry Schneider, who had examined the wall, said the settling is no worse than it has been for the past 30 years. He said he thought it would be possible to reinforce the wall to satisfy the fire marshal.

Chelsea police have announced their plans to crack-down on speeders this month, part of a state-wide campaign. "Exceeding safe and reasonable speeds," said a spokesman for the department, "is like driving with a chip on your shoulder, begging both inertia and kinetic energy—two forces you can't possibly lick—to knock it off."

A Small Business Administration survey in 1980 estimated that it cost the nation's small businesses an estimated $12.7 billion annually to fill out forms required by federal, state, and local governments. One hundred and three federal agencies required small businesses to fill out at least one form.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, under which federal regulations must be designed to have minimum impact on small firms, has been of some help in reducing the regulatory burden. So has the Federal Government's over-all effort to reduce regulation and paperwork.

Zion Lutheran Church Plans Ice Cream Social

Zion Lutheran church will hold an ice cream social, supper, bazaar and organ recital Tuesday, July 19 at the new church, the corner of S. Fletcher and Waters roads.

The ice cream social and dinner, barbecued hamburgers, hot dogs, ice cream with toppings, cake, baked beans, cole slaw and potato salad will begin at 5 p.m. Food will be served until about 9 p.m. or until the food runs out.

There will also be a bazaar and games for children such as a fish pond.

The organ recital will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the old church. Susan Goodson, church organist, and Ruth Sutton, an organ student from Ann Arbor, are two of the organists from Chelsea and Ann Arbor who will play pieces by composers such as Bach, Pachelbel and Beethoven on the church' 90-100-year-old Hinners organ. It is a manual pipe organ and was re-built 20 years ago.

Each year the concert is given in honor of someone. This year it is for Reuben Lesser, Sr., who is serving on the old church preservation committee and has been a member of Zion since he married.

+ AREA DEATHS +

Blanche C. Weber

20790 Scio Church Rd.
Chelsea

Blanche C. Weber died Wednesday, July 6, at her home at 20790 Scio Church Rd.

She was born Jan. 7, 1904, in Clatskanie, Ore. She had been a resident of Chelsea since she was three years old.

On July 17, 1929, in St. Mary's Catholic church in Chelsea, she was married to Sylvester J. Weber, who survives.

She was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church and a former member of The Cooperative Extension Service. Prior to her marriage she taught school.

Surviving besides her husband are two cousins, Bertille Hindelang of Greenwood, Ind., and Louis Doll of Bay City. She was preceded in death by a sister.

Mass of the Resurrection was held Friday, July 8, at St. Mary's Catholic church with the Rev. Fr. David P. DuPuis and Deacon Richard Cesarz officiating.

The Rosary was recited Thursday evening at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home in Chelsea. Burial was in Mr. Olivet Cemetery, Chelsea.

Expressions of sympathy may be made to St. Mary's church or Chelsea Community Hospital.

Katharine Kusterer

312 East St.
Chelsea

Katharine A. Kusterer, 83, of 312 East St., Chelsea, died July 8 at Chelsea Community Hospital. She was a life-long resident of Chelsea.

She was born April 5, 1900 in Chelsea to Orrin and Emilie (Girbach) Hoffman. She married Waldo H. Kusterer Oct. 1, 1924, and he preceded her in death Aug. 9, 1957.

Mrs. Kusterer was a life member of St. Paul United Church of Christ, where she had been active in church work until recently.

Survivors include her son and daughter-in-law, Luther M. and Louise Kusterer of Chelsea; two grandsons, Keith Kusterer of Gregory and Kenneth Kusterer of Bay City; one great-grandson, Justin Kusterer; and nephews. She was preceded in death by two sisters and one brother.

Funeral services were held at 1 p.m. Monday, July 11 at Cole-Burghardt Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Erwin R. Koch of St. Paul United Church of Christ officiating.

Burial followed in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Paul United Church of Christ.

BRIDGE OPENED: The new bridge over the north fork of Mill Creek on Chelsea-Dexter Rd. was opened to traffic last week, eight days ahead of schedule. The project was completed by Argersinger-Morse Construction Co. About all you can see to remind that something was done is the straw along the banks of the road, which covers newly seeded grass.

Chelsea-Dexter Rd. Bridge Finished Ahead of Schedule

Chelsea-Dexter Rd. was officially reopened last Thursday night after final touches were completed on the new bridge over the north fork of Mill Creek (Luick Drain) just west of Fletcher Rd.

The $151,324 project was completed by Argersinger-Morse Construction Co. of Ann Arbor in six weeks, an excellent performance according to Mike O'Neil, project engineer for the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

A target date of July 15 had been set to reopen the road, and it was met with eight days to spare. The route is important to area wheat farmers hauling their crop to Honegger's elevator at 11800 Chelsea-Dexter Rd. just east of the Conrail tracks. The local wheat harvest begins in mid-July.

"They built it fast and well," O'Neil said. "I'm very pleased with the way the job went."

Money for the project became available under the federal "critical bridges" program to upgrade portions of the deteriorating national highway system and to provide work for the depressed construction industry.

The old bridge had been posted as unsafe for heavy loads such as wheat-laden trucks headed for Honegger's. "It was rotted out underneath," Fletcher DesAutels, county highway engineer, said. "You could put your hand up through some of the supporting beams."

During the construction, traffic was detoured around the site on a route involving Freer Rd., Old US-12, Seitz Dr. and Lima Center Rd. The detour signs have been taken down, and it's once again a straight shot between Chelsea and Dexter.

The project also involved relocating a natural gas pipeline which had run above-ground parallel to the bridge. The line has been buried under the creek bed, where it will no longer be a safety hazard. Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. completed that phase of the work, using a private contractor.

'Kiss Me Kate' Opens July 21 at Chelsea High

Joe Diederich and Ruth Kenny will star in the Cole Porter musical, "Kiss Me Kate," the attraction at Chelsea High school auditorium July 21, 22, 23 at 8 p.m. and Sunday matinee at 2 p.m.

Supporting players will include Marcia Warren and Ric Foytik.

"Kiss Me Kate" is the story of a recently divorced actor and actress who are paired as the leads in a touring revival of Shakespeare's comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," and whose backstage bickerings gradually increase as carry-overs into real life from the shrew and tamer roles they play on-stage.

Others in the cast are Mike Long, Sal Jordano, Thad Bell, Mike Smith, Todd Wurster, Bob Penskar, Kristyn Hoanke, Bev Slater and Tom Mull.

Administrative rules for Michigan Family Farm Development Authority have been approved. The rules govern loan applications for eligible beginning farmers to purchase agricultural land, make capital improvements, buy farm equipment and breeding stock. It is expected that the authority will soon be in full operation. Those wishing information about the program may contact a local bank or the authority by calling Don Schaner, 517-373-3898.

Fair Hopes To Have New Building This Year

The proposed new exhibit building at Chelsea Community fairgrounds is still on hold, said Lloyd Grau, fair manager and executive vice-president of the fair board.

The building would serve as a show arena for horses and livestock, he said, and would be the site for indoor entertainment such as the fair queen contest. It would be built south of the green building, where ducks, chickens and rabbits are exhibited.

If the fair board can get architectural approval of plans soon (a complicated process since this is a public building), Grau said it may be built in time for this year's fair.

It would take three weeks to a month to construct it, he said. The fair begins Tuesday, Aug. 30.

Last night the planning commission was to vote on a new ordinance which would make the fair a legal, conditional use in the Agriculture-1 district. The ordinance would then go to village council for its approval.

As it is now, the fair isn't a legal use in that district.

Between 1979 and 1981, employment in all U. S. industries increased by 2.7 million.

Supreme Court Says Apartments Can Be Taxed

Village council and the school board heaved a collective sigh of relief Tuesday evening, when both groups were advised Sylvan township had won its appeal of the Chelsea Village Apartments tax case.

That meant the school district could keep the more than $100,000 in taxes collected on that property since 1973, and the property will stay on the tax rolls.

Since the school district gets about 70 cents of every tax dollar, the village 20 cents and the township 10 cents, the school stood the chance of saving the most or losing the most with the case.

Sylvan township had assessed the apartments, built by the Retirement Homes of the Detroit Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, Inc., as it would any other apartment complex. Residents there are responsible for their own meals and dental and medical care. They have the option of buying meals at the nearby Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home.

Retirement Homes, a non-profit corporation, had requested the property be tax-exempt as a charitable institution.

After Retirement Homes filed suit against Sylvan township, the state tax tribunal found for the township. The state court of appeals reversed the tribunal's decision, and the state supreme court reversed the appellate court's decision, making the township the final winner.

When the supreme court found for the township, it said Retirement Homes had to pay the township's final appeal costs, $7,751.80. Both the village and school district had chipped in for legal fees with the school district contributing the most, more than $5,000.

The township has not been reimbursed for the legal fees. At their July 5 meetings both village council and school board took a wait-and-see attitude about payment. If the township isn't paid, a court order could be requested.

The school district has spent about $11,000 in legal fees since the case began, said Fred Mills, assistant superintendent of Chelsea schools. That was a "fairly good" investment to protect more than $100,000.
