SIDEWALK FESTIVAL SHOPPERS: Chelsea's downtown streets were crowded last Friday as shoppers turned out in large numbers for the Sidewalk Festival. Conspicuous by his height is Chelsea High school basketball coach Robin Raymond, who is carrying his youngster while looking over the sale offerings.

Sidewalk Sale Successful Despite Adverse Weather

Despite adverse weather—hot and humid with intermittent rain—Chelsea's Sidewalk Festival last Friday and Saturday was reported to have been a success.

"It would have been better if the weather had cooperated," said Sam Johnson, Chamber of Commerce member, "but from my experience and what other merchants have told me the sale was quite successful."

Although it rained early and late on Friday—and was uncomfortably hot in between—crowds were good and sales brisk during the day as early-bird shoppers hunted for bargains among the racks and tables of merchandise offered for sale on downtown sidewalks.

What hurt most was a steady morning rain Saturday which didn't quit until nearly noon. Merchants with awnings on their store fronts pulled their offerings in under them, while others moved their goods inside. A few shoppers, but not many, braved the wet. Skies cleared during the afternoon, and business picked up.

The antique car parade went off as scheduled beginning early Saturday afternoon.

"People were in a buying mood, but they definitely were price-conscious and shopping for genuine bargains," one merchant said. "Items that were marked down by one-third to one-half or more sold very quickly."

"I took in quite a lot of money and got rid of many items that hadn't moved at regular prices. I didn't make much profit but converted a good deal of old inventory into cash that I can use to buy new stock."

Hospital Auxiliary Awards Health Career Scholarships

Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary has awarded $500 scholarships to Kimberley Harvey, Laura Hines, and Carol Hafner Houle. This is the fifth year for the Auxiliary's scholarship program.

To be eligible, a student must be enrolled in a health career program for which certification is given or a degree is granted. Selection is based on academic achievement and intent to pursue education in a health career. Candidates were interviewed by a committee whose members are Marys Doan, Gail Olson and Jean Mann.

This year the three young women selected are pursuing nursing careers. Kimberley Harvey is a 1981 cum laude graduate of Chelsea High school who attends Michigan State University. While in high school she was active in the National Honor Society, the Contemporaries, a vocal group, forensics, and musicals. Kim spent last summer working in a physician's office and this summer she is employed at Chelsea Community Hospital as a nurse aide. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harvey of 14100 Harvey Rd., Grass Lake.

A 1982 graduate of Chelsea High Laura Hines will be entering her second year in the School of Nursing at the University of Michigan. She was a member of the National Honor Society, orchestra and debate team at Chelsea High school. At the U. of M. she was president of the freshman nursing class, and has been elected secretary of the Nursing Executive Council for 1983-84. She has served as a volunteer at Chelsea Community Hospital and the Methodist Home. This summer she is

Six Road Projects In West Washtenaw On Construction List

Six west Washtenaw projects are listed for financing under a special $135 million state bond issue for repair and reconstruction of roads throughout Michigan.

The County Road Commission is scheduled to receive $3 million from the bond issue in the form of a loan to be repaid with interest within 15 years.

Bids have been taken on five of the six projects, Fletcher DesAutels, road commission engineer, said. The Cunningham-Gooding Co. of Ypsilanti was the low bidder in all instances.

The projects, their location, distance and low bids are:

Old US-12 from I-94 (Pierce Rd. interchange) west to the Jackson county line—3.87 miles, $334,500.

Scio Church Rd. from Parker Rd. west to M-52—7.1 miles, $428,000.

Jackson Rd. from Wagner Rd. west to Baker Rd.—4.05 miles, $243,500.

Waterloo Rd. from M-52 west to the Jackson county line—4.76 miles, $268,000.

Pleasant Lake Rd. from M-52 west to the River Raisin—3.56 miles, $202,500.

A late addition to the program, not yet let out for bids, is a project calling for work on the 2.36 miles of Old US-12 from the Chelsea village limits west to I-94 (Pierce Rd. interchange).

The Jackson Rd. project involves two contracts—one for recycling the old asphalt pavement by grinding it up, heating it, adding a rejuvenating agent and putting it back down; the other for laying new asphalt on top of the recycled layer. Ajax Paving Co. of Madison Heights was the low bidder on the recycling phase at $47,000. Cunningham-Gooding bid $196,500 on the new paving.

The Jackson Rd. stretch is presently three lanes wide. The reconstructed road will have two driving lanes plus bicycle paths on each side.

Sale of the $135 million bond issue was authorized last week by the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation. It had been delayed in the hope of possible lower interest rates, which have been edging up lately instead of coming down as earlier predicted.

If all goes according to schedule, the county will receive its $3 million share about mid-August, and that could be too late to complete all the projects this year, DesAutels said.

The road construction season normally ends on Nov. 15, he explained, and there may not be enough time to complete the whole program by that date. Whatever may not be finished this fall will be done next spring. "As soon as we have the money and are sure we can go ahead, we will sit down with the contractors, establish priorities, and lay out a definite work schedule," DesAutels said.

The state bond issue is part of Gov. Blanchard's program to create jobs in Michigan. Cunningham-Gooding has estimated that it will need 100 workers to complete the projects it has bid on, and said some will be new employees.

"We have been very enthused about this program from the time we first heard that it was a possibility," DesAutels said, "and we began to get ready for it last spring."

"The Road Commission staff submitted a list of nine projects to the board on June 1, with an estimated total cost of $3 million. When the bids came in, they added up to only $2.3 million, so we put two more projects on the list, and the board approved those on July 26. The bids so far have been excellent, well below our expectations."

"We see this as a golden opportunity to get some badly needed road work done while helping the state's economy to recover. I just wish we could do 111 projects instead of 11. Our backlog of needs is that big."

The $3 million that the county will borrow out of the bond issue is over and above the Road Commission's legal debt restriction, DesAutels said. "We see no problems in handling the extra debt," he added.

Besides the six west Washtenaw projects, the county-wide program calls for work on five stretches of road in the eastern portion of the county, mostly in the Ypsilanti area.

Planning Comm. Hearings Slated

Chelsea planning commission will hold public hearings on two rezoning requests at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9 at the municipal building.

One is for Chelsea Residential Development, 28 cluster homes off of Wilkinson St. That property is now zoned agricultural and single family residential, moderate density. Robert Thornton, Jr., developer, is requesting planned unit residential district (PUD). This is the first PUD request since the district became part of the ordinance in 1977.

The other rezoning request is for the village's proposed 73-acre industrial park on Sibley Rd. That land is now zoned agricultural, and 70 acres would be rezoned light industrial.

At the meeting the commission will also review the site plan for BookCrafters, Inc. proposed off-street parking lot at 140 Buchanan St.

A public hearing will also be set for the rezoning request submitted by Don Thompson and Earl Heller for a lot at 20701 Old US-12. That lot, north of the Archie W. Wilkinson estate, is now zoned single family residential and rezoning would make it general commercial, as are other lots near it.

After the planning commission makes recommendations on rezoning requests, they go to village council for the final decision.

This is a tentative agenda for the meeting. Other proposals and business may be submitted to the village before the meeting and after The Standard's deadline for this issue.

Swimming Pool Closed for Annual Maintenance Work

Cameron Pool at Beach Middle school is closed until at least Aug. 15 for annual maintenance.

When it re-opens, it will be open only for recreational swimming until school opens. That date is dependent on contract negotiations between the school board and teachers' union.

Recreational swimming is noon to 1 p.m. weekdays; 8 to 9 p.m., Monday, Wednesday, Friday; and 2:30 to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Special Council Meeting Fails To Draw Quorum

A special meeting of the Chelsea Village Council on Tuesday, July 26, failed to attract a quorum of members, and so no action was taken on the two items on the agenda.

Present besides president Jack Merkel were trustees Jerry Satterthwaite, Herman Radloff and Richard Steele. Absent were Loren Keezer, Joe Merkel and Jeanene Riemenschneider. It takes four trustees, besides the president, to make up a quorum.

"We couldn't conduct any official business because we didn't have enough council members there," Jack Merkel said, "but we had a good informational meeting and discussion. A lot of questions were asked and some good answers given."

The meeting was specially called to consider two matters:

Chelsea's participation in the Washtenaw County Development Council.

The future of the village land-

Michael Ammann, executive director of the development council, was invited to speak, and did. He largely repeated and reinforced statements made in earlier appearances in the community, Merkel said.

"I don't think he told us anything new, but he perhaps gave us a higher sense of urgency. Those of us who were there appreciated his coming to talk with us."

Neither Chelsea nor any other west Washtenaw local governmental unit is presently a member of the development council, which was formed to promote economic growth on a county-wide basis.

Individual members of the Chelsea Village Council expressed interest in joining the development group after the council voted to buy a 73-acre tract on Sibley Rd. for an industrial park.

"I think we probably should join," Satterthwaite said during the July 11 meeting at which the purchase was approved. "We have something to offer now."

The development council's avowed goal, according to Ammann, is to prepare and sell a county-wide marketing effort to attract new business and industry, and encourage existing enterprises to stay and grow.

Lee Fahrner of Washtenaw Engineering Co. addressed himself to the situation at the Chelsea landfill, whose license has been provisionally renewed only until September of 1984 unless measures are taken to prevent leakage of wastes into the ground water.

Representatives of the four townships—Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon and Dexter—who use the landfill as "customers" of the village which owns it—were present to hear Fahrner's explanation of the options available to keep the landfill open for another 5-10 years.

Councilwoman Denies Quote

Mrs. Jeanene Riemenschneider has disclaimed words attributed to her in a story which appeared in last week's issue of The Standard.

The story concerned a tentative $75,000 offer by the Chelsea Village Council, approved by a 3-2 vote, to buy a piece of property at 304 S. Main St.

Mrs. Riemenschneider, a member of the council, voted no on the proposal. She denied having said: "It (the property) is not worth that much," the quotation attributed to her in the story.

"I was misquoted," she told The Standard. "I never said any such thing."

Mrs. Riemenschneider declined to comment for publication on her reasons for voting against the council's motion to make the $75,000 offer.

Chelsea's 16-18-year-old girls softball team is in Texas pursuing a national title. Team members managed to raise $5,000 in two days to go to the national tournament in Irving, after taking the regional crown Sunday in Saginaw with four consecutive wins. Qualifying for the nationals means they are among the top 20 teams in the country. Chelsea's 13-15-year-old girls team lost to Charlevoix twice in its regional to end its summer season.

Three area residents spent a wet hour bobbing in stormy Lake Erie last Sunday after their 12-foot boat capsized in eight-foot waves, high winds and rain. Tod Tudor, and Jim and Jeff Shepherd were fishing out of Boles Harbor near Monroe when they saw clouds forming on the horizon. They headed for shore, but were still two miles out when the storm hit. The boat capsized, but they managed to flip it, hold on, and wave at passing boats to get attention. After an hour, another boat got close enough to see their predicament. The Coast Guard found their boat Monday off Toledo Beach.

Buck, the fox squirrel who had his teeth shortened by a veterinarian July 17, is back playing in his neighborhood on Harrison St. His teeth grew so long, he couldn't chew—he shoved his food into his mouth with his paws—and his lower teeth were growing into his upper jaw. He disappeared for about two days after coming home from the operation, but showed up late Tuesday to eat banana bread which Mrs. George Walworth baked for him.

Drivers at Chrysler Proving Grounds rescued a three-day old fawn from the middle of the test track July 12. They turned it over to conservation officer Don Boyer. The motherless fawn was then taken to the Detroit Zoo.

Meanwhile, a smiling Buddha who was directing traffic in the middle of the intersection at Werkner and M-52 was rescued by Chelsea police just after midnight Wednesday. Although some said the statue looked "funny standing there," the police said it was a traffic hazard.

Vote "Yes" on the sewer improvement bond issue at Monday's general election—that will save the village money. Voter-approved general obligation bonds are cheaper than a court ordered bond sale. The state department of public health says the village's sewer system is so over-loaded, they will force a bond sale even if voters say "No."

More than 1,300 polio vaccinations have been given since the vaccine was available in the county, but some children still haven't been inoculated. Immunizations should be started now so some protection can be established before the height of polio season, say county health officers.

The first Chelsea area case of polio this season was reported Monday afternoon. The nine-year-old boy is at University Hospital and is breathing with the aid of a respirator. He is the eighth case reported in the county this season.

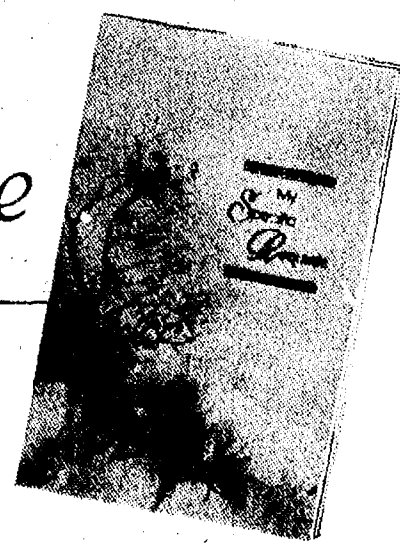

The three-year moratorium on new natural gas heating customers has ended. The pipeline between Michigan and Wisconsin should be completed by Dec. 1, so Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. requested a lifting of the restrictions on new customers, which was granted Friday. That gives them several months to process customers and have equipment installed before cold weather returns.

The Rev. M. W. Brueckner, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of his ordination at services this Sunday. His first church was in Toledo, and he has been pastor at Zion since 1928. Under his direction the church has just finished a $7,000 remodeling program and built a $36,000 parish hall.

Detroit Metro Area May Be Subject to EPA Sanctions
 Sanctions that could prevent construction of new factories in the Detroit area that emit hydrocarbons and pollutants, and could cut off the state's federal air quality funds, are scheduled to be imposed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The state will then have 45 days to appeal the sanctions, which are scheduled to be printed in the federal register by the end of the month, before they officially take effect in September.

Michael Koryto of the air quality division of the state Department of Natural Resources, said Governor Blanchard will lead a co-ordinated effort to stop the sanctions which would be imposed only against the three-county metro-area—Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The sanctions are being imposed because the state has failed to impose an inspection and maintenance to check automobiles for emissions of ozone and carbon monoxide.

In 1980, the Legislature, under threat of such sanctions then, enacted a statute providing for an inspection and maintenance program, but numerous efforts to promulgate rules implementing the program have failed.

Under the law, the Department of Natural Resources was supposed to certify which areas would be required for testing, and the Department of State would stipulate the kind of tests required, and the costs to cover the tests.

No funds have been appropriated for the inspection and maintenance program and several officials, including Secretary of State Richard Austin, have urged the federal government to drop the program.

Koryto said the sanctions proposed include a "construction moratorium" on new factories that would emit any significant amounts of hydrocarbons.

The state could also lose up to $3 million in federal air pollution grants which "would seriously jeopardize efforts to make progress to clean up dirty areas." Included in the "co-ordinated effort" Blanchard would lead against the sanctions would be the DNR, the State Department and the Department of Commerce and Transportation.

Budget Recodification Proposal
 A proposal to recodify Michigan's current statutes, allowing for such things as a later submission time of recommendations by the governor to the Legislature, should be ready for introduction by fall, officials with the Department of Management and Budget and the two Legislative fiscal agencies.

The proposal, taking either the form of one omnibus measure or two or three bills, would cap more than a year of work by staff members of the House and Senate Fiscal Agencies, DMB and other departments.

The proposal would also take the place of several hundred sections of current state law describing and defining how the budget is to be formulated.

A major objective of the recodification would be to update currently archaic language and references. The main acts currently defining the budget process were drafted in 1919 and re-enacted with revisions in 1941 and 1965.

Other major portions of the recodification could include a later submission time of budget proposals by the governor to the Legislature. The later time would allow state planners time to study the federal budget proposal which is submitted currently after the state budget.

Another major proposal would be to change current procedures for budget transfers which now all require approval by the legislative appropriations committees.

"WEAR AND TEAR" ARTHRITIS

If you want to avoid "wear and tear" arthritis caused by joints thrown out of kilter, you should take good care of your feet. For example, when one or both feet are flat, this creates a functional shortening of your legs because your ankles are closer to the ground. This means that your feet and legs are not supporting your body the way nature intended.

The body then tries to compensate. Your pelvis may tilt or your spine may bend abnormally. If only one foot is flat, this may cause the knee of the opposite leg to bend. Or that leg may tend to move outward, putting unusual stress on the hip as well as the knee. When this condition continues for a long time without treatment, you may begin to suffer muscle fatigue and spasm. Your bones may change their shapes. It may also affect your joints. The constant "wear and tear" causes the joint damage associated with arthritis.

But if the condition is treated in time by a podiatrist, your feet can be restored to normal and you can avoid the aches and pains of "wear and tear" arthritis.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

There's a heap of meanness in the world all the time, Bug Hookum noted Saturday night at the country store, and he allus was of a mind there's more of it in summer. Now, he told the fellers, there's scientific proof he's right. Bug had saw this report where hot weather, like the full moon and rotgut whisky, brings out the worst in folks.

The study was done by the Emory University Department of Sychiatry on more than 800,000 crimes of violence in 16 different parts of the country over four years, Bug reported, and it was found crime went up with temperature everwhere. Some crooks, like counterfitters and tax cheats, know no season, Bug said, and shoplifters are busiest around Christmas, but the hotter the weather the hotter the tempers and the higher the murders and rapes.

The fellers was strong divided on Bug's report. Zeke Grubb said it might be there is more crime in summer, but not because of the heat. What happens, Zeke declared, is that folks have more time on their hands now, they move around more and have more chances to git in trouble. Fer ever static that shows folks are meaner in months without Rs, Zeke allowed, another study will prove there ain't no crime at all on South Seas islands where it's hot all the time. Then, to, Zeke went on, you got to figger the nature of studies is to show what reserchers have made up their mind they want to know.

Fer instant, Zeke explained, he had saw where somebody recent testified before Congress that breathing gasoline fumes causes cancer. You got to know whoever come up with that wants to slow down use of gasoline by scaring folks away from it, Zeke said, and it's a bad idee fer more reasons than one. At the price we got to pay fer the stuff it ain't no problem holding your breath long enuff to pump all you can buy, but some nut somewhere right now is figgering some way to blow up a refinery to protest the risk to the human race. And how long, Zeke wanted to know, before a slick lawyer invents a gas fume disease and talks some feller that's worked at a service station 40 year into suing Big Oil fer ruining his health.

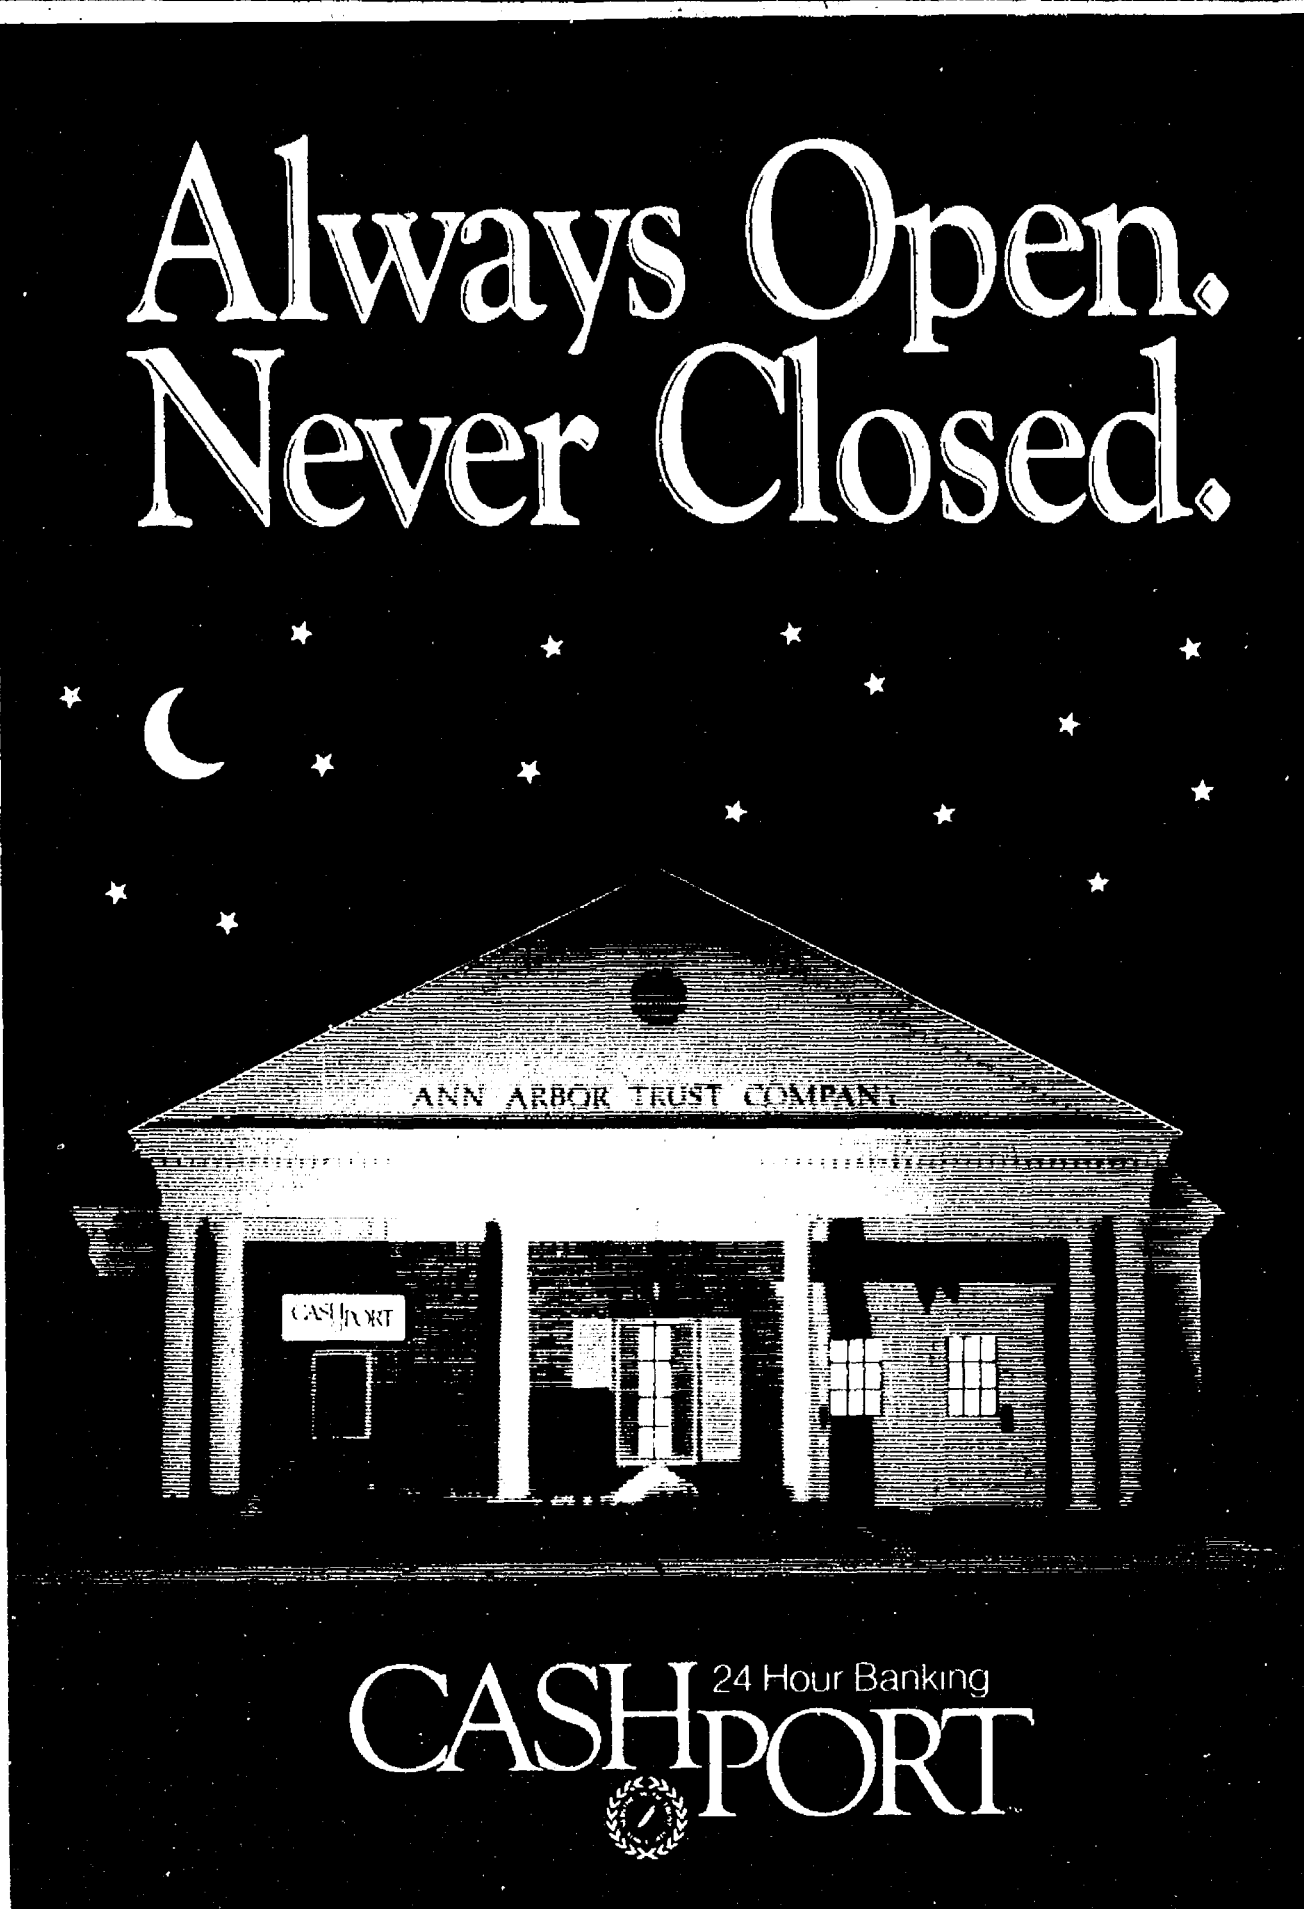

General speaking, Clem Webster broke in, reserch has a way of finding truth. He had saw recent where a Penn State professor has took a new tack on hazardous food. It ain't the caffeine in coffee and the sackerine in soda pop that's killing us near as much as feeling guilty over what the caffeine and sackerine is doing to us, but a coffee drinker that worries hisself to death will show up in the static as a caffeine victim.

Personal, Mister Editor, I'm with Clem. Figgers lie and llers figger and both can take you anywhere you want to go. It's a proved fact that apples kill. Any study will show that 100 percent of folks that die ever year eat apples. You can show in your statics that ever last apple eater born

LUCINDA McCALLA, fair queen candidate sponsored by Rogers Corners Herdsmen 4-H Club, will show two pigs at the fair along with vegetables, sewing and cooking. As part of her chores on the family farm at 481 Steinbach Rd., Chelsea, she gives bottle feedings twice a day to 15 piglets which were litter runs or had trouble nursing. This one's name is Fido. The cats gather at feeding time in case milk dribbles or splashes. Lucy, daughter of Leonard and Janet McCalla, is a rising senior at Dexter High school and is a member of the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. She won an FHA-HERO award and serves on the school's advisory committee for home economics. She is a member of Chelsea Fair Swine Club and 4-H cooking, sewing and cattle clubs.

WENDY WOLFGANG, who is being sponsored for the fair queen contest by Terrific Tailors 4-H Club, will show an aged dairy cow at the fair along with cooking, sewing, crafts, sheep and vegetables. Since her own cow keeps having bulls, Wendy will help her sister show cows such as Gertie, a Jersey junior calf born in March, which Wendy holds in this photograph. A rising senior at Chelsea High school, Wendy, who qualified for the 1983 state track meet in the 1600-meter relay, will be co-captain of the girls cross country team and tri-captain of the girls track team. She plays clarinet in band, served on the junior class prom committee, is a teen leader for Rogers Corners 4-H Club, and attended the Young People's Citizenship Seminar sponsored by Farm Bureau at Albion College. She is the daughter of David and Barbara Wolfgang of 2340 S. Fletcher Rd.

JOANNE M. BROWN, sophomore class contestant for fair queen, will do a humorous monologue, "The Visiting Hour," for the talent competition. During her one-sided conversation with her friend who was injured falling down the cellar stairs, the dummy-person starts doing strange things. Joanne, daughter of Penelope Smedley and Robert Brown and step-daughter of William Smedley, was a freshman basketball cheerleader and will be a junior varsity basketball cheerleader this year. She was a member of the SSA choir and is employed as a summer aide for different school district projects. She helped park cars at last year's fair and will do the same this year along with exhibiting candy and baked goods.

AMY DARWIN, freshman class contestant for fair queen, will sing the Dolly Parton tune, "Me and Little Andy" and accompany herself on the guitar for her talent segment of the competition. Amy, daughter of Bill and JoAnne Darwin of 9088 Beeman Rd., worked in the family raspberry business, The Berry Patch, this summer and will open a vegetable stand in August. She is a member of the Waterloo 4-H Club, youth fellowship at Waterloo Methodist church, and will be in the SATB choir at Chelsea High school this fall. She was in the choir and small mixed ensemble at Beach Middle school and in the one-act play, "The Pirates of Penzance." She played basketball for the Bullpups and plans to go out for Bulldog track, swimming and basketball. She will be 14 nine days before the queen contest.

Man Claws Way Out After Tractor Flips

James Vida of 9821 Chelsea-Manchester Rd. figures he's lucky to be alive, and anyone hearing his story would have to agree.

Vida was pinned under a two-ton tractor for an estimated hour and a half last Saturday and had to dig his way out with his hands. Although badly bruised and strained, he declined hospital treatment and is recovering.

The accident was a freak. Vida was hauling a large roll of hay with the tractor when a piece of the twine binding the hay broke and caught in one of the tractor wheels. That caused the wheel to stop turning, and the tractor flipped, coming to rest upside down with Vida underneath.

"I was unconscious for awhile," Vida said. "When I came to, I found myself pinned under the steering wheel, which was bent in half. There was about four inches between the wheel and the ground, and I was squeezed in that space, lying on my left hip.

"I dug with my hands and finally was able to wiggle out and crawl to the house, and call for police and medical help."

Vida credits his survival to the fact that he had a few days before installed a sun-shade umbrella on the tractor. The steel bracket which holds the umbrella held the tractor high enough off the ground so that it didn't crush him.

"When I woke up, I was soaked with gasoline," Vida said. "Why it didn't catch fire and burn me alive, I'll never know, but it didn't."

Vida said he still "hurts all over" but is recovering and is able to take care of his livestock.

"I can't go to the hospital," he said, "because I have to look after the animals." His wife is confined to a wheelchair as the result of an illness.

The village has tentatively decided to install a polyvinyl chloride plastic liner on the bottom and sides of new disposal cells as a way of containing liquids which might otherwise leach down into the water table.

"There was a lot of interest shown and many questions asked," Merkel said. "I think we all came out with a better understanding of the problems and our options to solve them. It was a very good discussion."

Fire Department Has New Phone Number

The Chelsea fire department will have a new telephone number beginning Monday, Aug. 1.

The number is 475-1338, and fire chief Paul (Bud) Hankerd advises that all persons living in the area covered by the department write the number down in a prominent place where they can find it easily in case of an emergency.

The new number is part of an expanded telephone service which will put two lines into the fire department in place of the present single line. Both lines will be reached by dialing 475-1338.

"If one line is being used, the call will automatically 'roll over' to the other," Hankerd explained. "The phones will ring in both the fire hall and the dispatcher's office in the police station at the village hall. We've had some problems in the past because our one line was busy when people called. The new system will correct that."

Persons who dial the present fire department number—475-1411—will hear a recorded message telling them to call 475-1338, Hankerd said. "I hope that doesn't happen," he added, "because it means a delay in giving us an alarm. The quicker we can get a call and go out on it, the better. Seconds are precious in fires or other emergency situations that we handle."

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Attending a Chelsea Village Council meeting isn't quite an exercise in futility, but almost. The problem is that you can't hear what is happening.

The meeting room on the second floor of the village hall is big and has a high ceiling. The acoustics are bad. Sounds don't bounce off the walls and ceiling, but are apparently absorbed someplace en route.

Making matters worse is that president Jack Merkel, the six trustees, village administrator Frederick Weber and clerk Evelyn Rosentreter are all soft-spoken people. I suppose they are all capable of raising their voices if they want to, but they don't in their conduct of council business.

At council meetings I sit in the front row, and pick up about every third word, if I'm lucky. At first I thought the problem was mine. I'm a touch hard of hearing, the result of having fired too many shotgun shells over the years without the protection of ear plugs.

To test that theory I took my wife to a council meeting a few weeks ago. She sat beside me in the front row and couldn't hear much either. Believe me, there is nothing wrong with her hearing. I can whisper from the back bedroom of our home, and she will catch every word in the kitchen.

I feel sorry for members of the public, village employees and guests who come to council meetings and sit in the rows behind the front. There is no way they can have the foggiest idea what is going on.

A few hundred dollars spent on a sound system, with microphones for the persons who sit at the council table, would be an excellent investment for the village. A central floor mike for speakers from the audience to use when addressing the council would add the final touch.

The way things are, there can be no real public participation. Dialogue is a two-way process. If you can't hear, you can't understand, much less respond.

Computers and I just plain don't belong in the same era. I'm old enough—and old-fashioned enough—not to trust my mind to the workings of any machine, especially one which, at times, seems to have a mind of its own, and just may be smarter than I am.

Here at The Standard we have a computer which has taken to swallowing words without leaving a trace of their whereabouts, let alone disgorging them upon command. It's a glorified electronic typewriter whose function is supposedly simple. You type words into the machine; and it displays them on a video screen so you can make corrections. The corrected words are stored on something called a floppy disc. When you insert the floppy disc into a second machine, you get printed out the neat columns of adjusted type that appear in The Standard.

At least that is the way the thing is supposed to work.

Lately, the computer has been eating discs, or at least their contents. Words put into the machine simply disappear and are lost forever. The floppy discs don't flop or even wiggle, they don't do anything. They just sort of sit there, mute and defiant, refusing to spit out the words entrusted to their memory.

If you don't think that is a nuisance, you have never worked for a newspaper, where you are invariably pressed to do things right the first time and never can really afford the luxury of repeating lost motions.

The computer hasn't victimized me. Like I said, I'm old-fashioned, and the 50-year-old manual typewriter that I use to punch out my copy works just fine, so long as I put in a new ribbon and clean the keys every now and then. It's no gee-whiz machine, but it works and it is honest. It doesn't eat my words.

When I came to work at The Standard last fall, I was told that I should learn to use the computer, technically called a word-processor. It was with relief that I heard the warning from an ophthalmologist that in no way should a person with eye problems like mine stare into a video display screen for more than a minute, unless I was just plain anxious to go blind.

And so I've stuck to my old reliable Underwood, and it hasn't swallowed a word yet. My fellow reporter, Peggy Page, has lost a bunch. Five different technicians have tried to figure out why. At last report, none had been able to out-smart the machine, which goes right on eating the words off floppy discs.

By the way, Peggy Page is no longer with The Standard. She resigned at the end of last week to pursue other interests including free lance writing. She is an honest, professional newsperson. After more than 35 years in the news business, that is the highest praise I can give to anyone in the field.

COUNTY 4-H ROYALTY: Matt Muzurek of 4950 Lima Center Rd., Chelsea, and Laurie Heller of 1610 Guenther Rd. were chosen king and queen of the Washtenaw County 4-H Youth Fair held July 28.

Chelsea Members Chosen County 4-H Queen, King

Laurie Heller of 1610 Guenther Rd., Chelsea, and Matt Muzurek of 4950 Lima Center Rd., Ann Arbor, were chosen queen and king of the county 4-H youth fair July 28 at the fair site, Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5550 Saline-Ann Arbor Rd.

Laurie, 17, daughter of Bob and Elsie Heller and a rising senior at Chelsea High School, has been in-involved in 4-H activities for eight years.

At the 4-H fair this year she exhibited two steers, two market lambs, a Cheviot lamb, a candlewick pillow, two canned fruits and two canned juices. She has also been superintendent for sheep.

She has been a teen leader in dairy and beef for Rogers Corners Herdsmen 4-H Club, which sponsored her for the queen contest. She is also a member of Terrific Tailors 4-H sewing club, Goal Getters, a county-wide performing arts group to raise awareness of the "differently abled," and Teen Leaders Association.

Matt, 15, son of Ray and Jeanette Muzurek and a rising sophomore at Manchester High School, entered three categories at this year's fair: photography, scenes of Washington, D.C.; cooking, a blitz torte; and outdoor meals, rump roast, corn on the cob, baked potatoes and apple pie.

He is a teen leader for Lima Leaders, a general 4-H club, and is also a member of Teen Leaders Association and Action Through Citizenship by Teens, which organized the Washington trip and seminar and planned activities for the fair.

Matt is also an acolyte at St. Barnabas Episcopal church, Chelsea.

Other local finalists in the queen and king competition are Connie Bollinger and Charlie Koenn of Chelsea and Ann Muzurek and Kelly Bristle of Manchester.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Well! Some people will go to any lengths to get their names in the paper! Apparently someone was impersonating me at a recent Village Council meeting, and complained about the street lights. It was probably my twin brother from Arkansas. He often substitutes for me in my science classes, and makes goofy mistakes that I have to correct the next day. He even ran off to Arkansas with my paycheck one time.

Anyway, when I pin him down and ask for the truth, he is very reliable. And according to him he went to that meeting to tell the Council that the problem had already been corrected and to thank all those who had been so helpful and considerate. Apparently The Standard's reporter, Mr. Mullendore, had not yet shifted his hearing aid to high gear at that point.

Then my brother from Arkansas explained to everyone that he just wanted to bring these negative feelings to their attention in case this particular change had been a "trial change" in the old residential areas of town, or in case the Council might be making decisions about street lighting in the future. After all, if this concern makes the headlines in the paper, it must be assumed that the Council has nothing more important on its agenda.

Perhaps if Mr. Mullendore needs really important things to do, he could write about some of the following: The Village Bakery sign over the door advertising green donuts; Jerry Ashby's window full of green plants; a census of gophers living inside the village limits; how many items are on the Big Boy salad bar.

And my twin brother wants all the publicity-hungry readers out there to know that if they want their names in the paper, all they have to do is go to a Village Council meeting and stand up and identify themselves. I can see the headline now: "Chelsea Residents Attend Village Council Meeting!"

My brother and I thank you. I'm leaving town for a few days. Jim Hoffmeyer.

To the Editor, I lived in the Chelsea area for about 30 years.

In this period it has seemed that we have one person that always complains about something.

Years ago it was the bank expansion, then the traffic on his street, then the Pump 'n Pantry, now it's the lights are too bright.

Is there no pleasing this person?

If there were no lights, he would complain he won't go out on a dark street.

If he hates Chelsea that much why does he stay there?

If his feelings are the best for everyone in the village—put him in charge.

Ron Bush, Ex-Chelsealte.

West Washtenaw Escapes Worst of Weekend Storms

West Washtenaw county again lucked out as a series of violent storms swept through the area last weekend, causing widespread power outages and other damage to the east.

Chelsea, Dexter and vicinity received heavy amounts of rain, which was needed, but there were no local reports of storm damage except for scattered instances of fallen tree limbs and minor flooding in low spots.

The first of a series of weekend thunderstorms swept through Washtenaw county of Friday evening, touching off tornado alerts. There were reports of funnel cloud sightings, but none touched the ground.

Only a small amount of rain fell in the western part of the county Friday night, but the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area and points farther east were hit harder. Dexter received far more rain than did Chelsea, and the storm picked up momentum as it moved eastward.

Heavy rain fell in west Washtenaw beginning early Saturday and continuing through most of the morning. Again, though, the lightning, thunder and winds went elsewhere.

Sunday morning saw another storm move through the area, dumping a considerable amount of rain.

The Detroit area received another heavy jolt on Sunday night, but nothing at all happened out this way.

The violent weather had cleared out by Monday morning, leaving cooler temperatures and comfortable humidity levels in its wake. Forecasts were for pleasant conditions through today, followed by a gradual build-up to another spell of heat and humidity with more storms developing by the weekend.

Jackson County Fair Opens Sunday, Aug. 7

Sixty thousand flowering plants of many varieties and hues brighten the concrete pathways at the Jackson County Fair and Flower Festival which opens Sunday, Aug. 7, for a seven-day run.

Those pathways lead to thousands of exhibits grown, produced, crafted or otherwise prepared for competition for the ribbons and thousands of dollars in premiums and for the enjoyment of all fairgoers.

There's also a midway where booths offer food and refreshment and tests of skill and dexterity. Breath-taking rides and calmer ones, too, add to the festive atmosphere of a county fair regarded as one of the best and cleanest in the nation.

Grandstand shows offer top-notch entertainment—from truck and tractor pulls on a new clay track on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to nationally known performers the rest of the week.

They are country singer Ricky Skaggs with two performances Wednesday evening, comedian Red Skelton Thursday evening, rock groups Jefferson Starship Friday evening and Chicago in two performances Saturday night, ending the fair.

Ticket information may be obtained by calling the fair office at (517) 782-5927 daytimes.

A few blocks from downtown Jackson, the Jackson County Fairground is on Ganson St. at the north end of Jackson St.

A TRIBUTE TO LIFE

All through life we mark our lives with mile stones. These noteworthy events are marked with ceremony. Mankind has done this since the beginning.

We celebrate births, baptisms, graduations, weddings and a variety of anniversaries. Ceremony and rituals are best done with family and friends because sharing the event gives it greater meaning.

When death occurs, family and friends also gather to celebrate a life that was lived and to share the sorrow that is present.

Oftentimes, it is difficult for one's emotions to accept the loss of a fellow human. The intellect understands what has happened, but the emotional adjustment is difficult. Ceremony affects the emotions . . . music . . . drama . . . people relating as a group to one purpose. For this reason a funeral service . . . a funeral ceremony . . . has a healing effect on the emotions. The funeral is a tribute to a life lived.

We hope this better aids your understanding about the purpose of a funeral service.

Indian Cultural Festival Scheduled in Ann Arbor

The Indian Cultural Festival scheduled Aug. 12-14 in Ann Arbor to celebrate India's independence day will benefit one of the projects supported by Seva Foundation of Chelsea—the Aravind Eye Hospital in south India.

Thousands of sight-restoring free cataract operations are performed at the hospital each year. Although the 1983 goal is to perform 20,000 such operations, it is estimated there are 9 million blind in India and two million new cases a year.

The festival begins with a classical music concert at 8 p.m. Aug. 12 at the Power Center featuring internationally renowned violinist Dr. L. Subramaniam and Ustad Alla Rakha, master of the tabla, Indian drums.

The festival moves to Veterans Ice Arena Aug. 13 and 14 for folk and classical Indian dances, music, plays, Indian foods, documentaries, movies, and exhibits on culture, religion and those sponsored by Indian businesses in the area.

Along with raising funds for the Aravind Hospital, the goal of the festival is to raise awareness of the problems of blindness and to promote Indian culture, said Ravi Khanna, outreach coordinator of Seva.

Concert tickets are available at Seva, Hudson's, CTC outlets, and Ann Arbor locations such as Raja Rani Restaurant, the Power Center box office, Discount Records, and Fashion 'N Things. Festival tickets are available at Veterans Ice Arena.

For information, call Ravi Khanna at Seva, 475-1371.

Other sponsors of the festival include the Indian Student Association, the University of Michigan Center for South and Southeast Asian Studies, the Gujarati Samaj, Detroit Kerala Club, the Tamil Sangam and the India League.

Voruses Visit Exchange Nurse on Tour of Orient

Julie and Bill Vorus of 13500 North Lake Rd., Gregory, saw a familiar face on their six-week trip to the Orient in June and July—Li Xue-Zeng, the Chinese nurse who spent last fall learning about U. S. nursing at Chelsea Community Hospital.

The Voruses visited with her in Peking. They spent a total of two weeks in China with stops in four major cities, Peking, Shanghai, Suzhou and Wuxi. They also spent two weeks in Japan, a week in Taiwan, and four days in Korea.

Bill Vorus, a professor of naval architecture and marine engineering at University of Michigan, is a specialist in ship vibrations. He gave lectures at universities and consulted with companies and governments during their tour.

Former U. of M. graduate students of his made them feel welcome on many of their stops, said Mrs. Vorus. One of his former students is the brother of Johnny Ko, a Taiwanese television star. Mrs. Vorus watched Ko and Sally Chan (the Meryl Streep of Taiwan) filming at a television studio.

The Voruses are members of North Lake Methodist church, so they attended different Methodist and Protestant churches during their visit, and heard familiar hymns such as "Jesus Christ Is Risen Today" and "Alleluia" sung in Chinese.

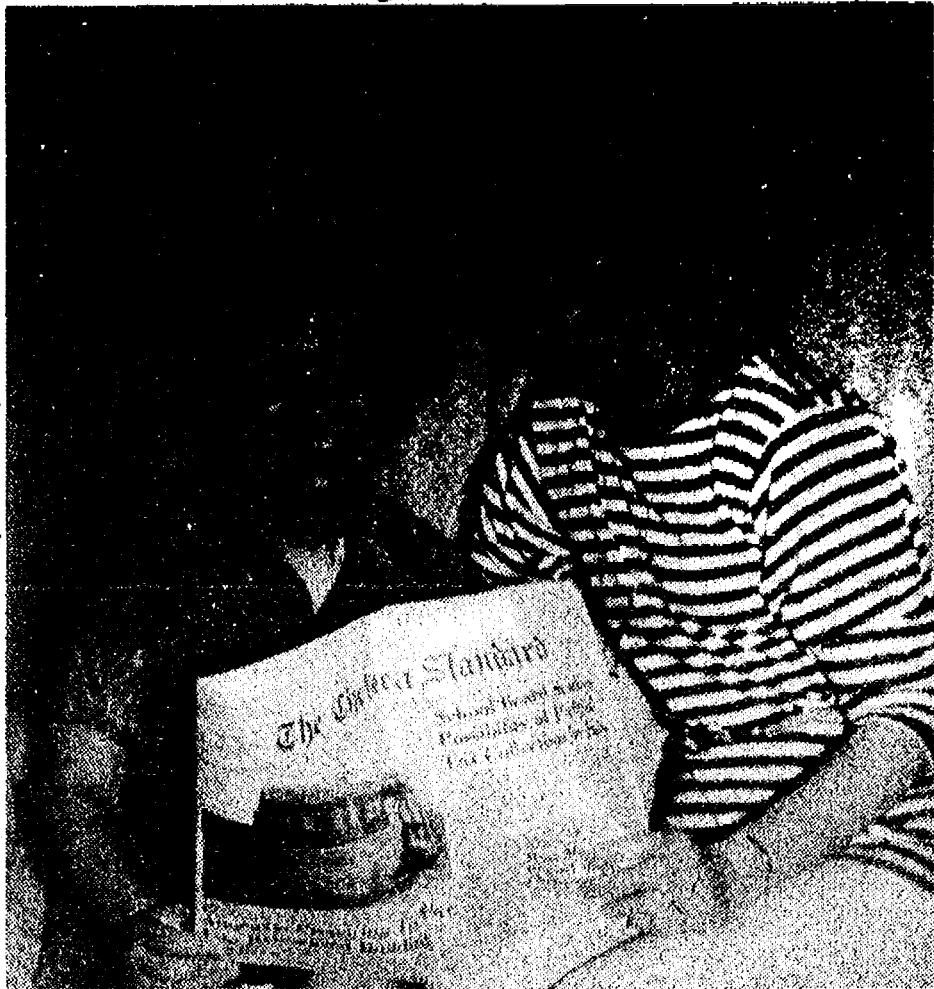

At one Chinese church, the minister announced some of the Bibles confiscated during the Cultural Revolution had been returned. He read a list of families who could pick up their Bibles that day.

The "biggest thrill" they had was standing on the Great Wall of China, said Mrs. Vorus. Photographs can't really depict its scale. Where they were, it was wide enough for brace of five galloping horses.

They toured the largest dry dock in the world, the two-year-old Daewoo Heavy Industries shipyard near Pusan, Korea and brought home wicker hard-hats as souvenirs.

Mrs. Vorus is director of North Lake and Chelsea fitness clubs. When her hosts heard she was interested in fitness and dance, they took her on a tour of the Shanghai Ballet school.

Her fair hair drew a lot of attention. After she bought a scented fan in a shop, she turned around to find 20 persons watching her.

The most unusual food they ate was in Nagasaki, she said. One of the appetizers was a bowl of live baby shrimp which hopped onto the table. The lobster main course was "so fresh the tentacles were still moving."

Site Plans Must Be Reviewed at Hearing

The recent amendment passed by the village to bring the ordinance into compliance with changes in state law had a clause requiring published notice of site plans to be presented at planning commission meetings.

Would-be developers should take note of that requirement. Site plans have to be submitted to the village in enough time for the village to get a legal notice to The Standard.

The Standard is published on Wednesdays. The planning commission meets the second Tuesday of the month. To make both the publication and meeting deadline, site plans should be submitted to the village at least two weeks prior to the meeting at which the developer wants his or her site plan discussed.

If a property owner or occupant within 300 feet of the boundary of the property being considered makes a written request to the village, a public hearing will have to be held on the site plan.

That could mean a site plan would be held over to the next month if a public hearing were requested.

Being a developer requires patience.

Couple Held Up, Robbed of $360, On Wylie Rd.

Wylie Rd. between Island Lake and Dexter-Pinckney Rds. is not a good place to park on the side of the road in the early morning hours, for whatever reason.

Two local persons found that out the hard and expensive way last Thursday morning when a man driving a green van drove up beside them at about 2:30 a.m. and asked for directions to North Territorial Rd.

The occupants of the car obliged and told the van driver to follow them. A short distance down the road the van pulled ahead and blocked the way. The driver got out and demanded wallets and car keys, saying he had a gun and would "blow your brains out" if not accommodated.

The robber, who may or may not have been armed, fled with $360 in cash, personal papers and other items, the sheriff's department said.

Chelsea Police Nab Two Walkaways From Cassidy Lake

Chelsea police nabbed two walkaways from the Cassidy Lake Technical School just 45 minutes apart last Friday afternoon.

At 5 p.m. patrolman Richard Foster arrested James E. Wilson, 17, at Conway and Sibley Rds. Wilson had been missing since the previous evening, and said he had spent the night hiding in fields near Chelsea.

At 5:44 p.m. chief Robert Aeillo received a call alerting him to a "suspicious person" at M-52 and Waterloo Rd. He responded and captured Michael P. Bachman, 19, who had escaped shortly before and had not yet been officially reported as missing.

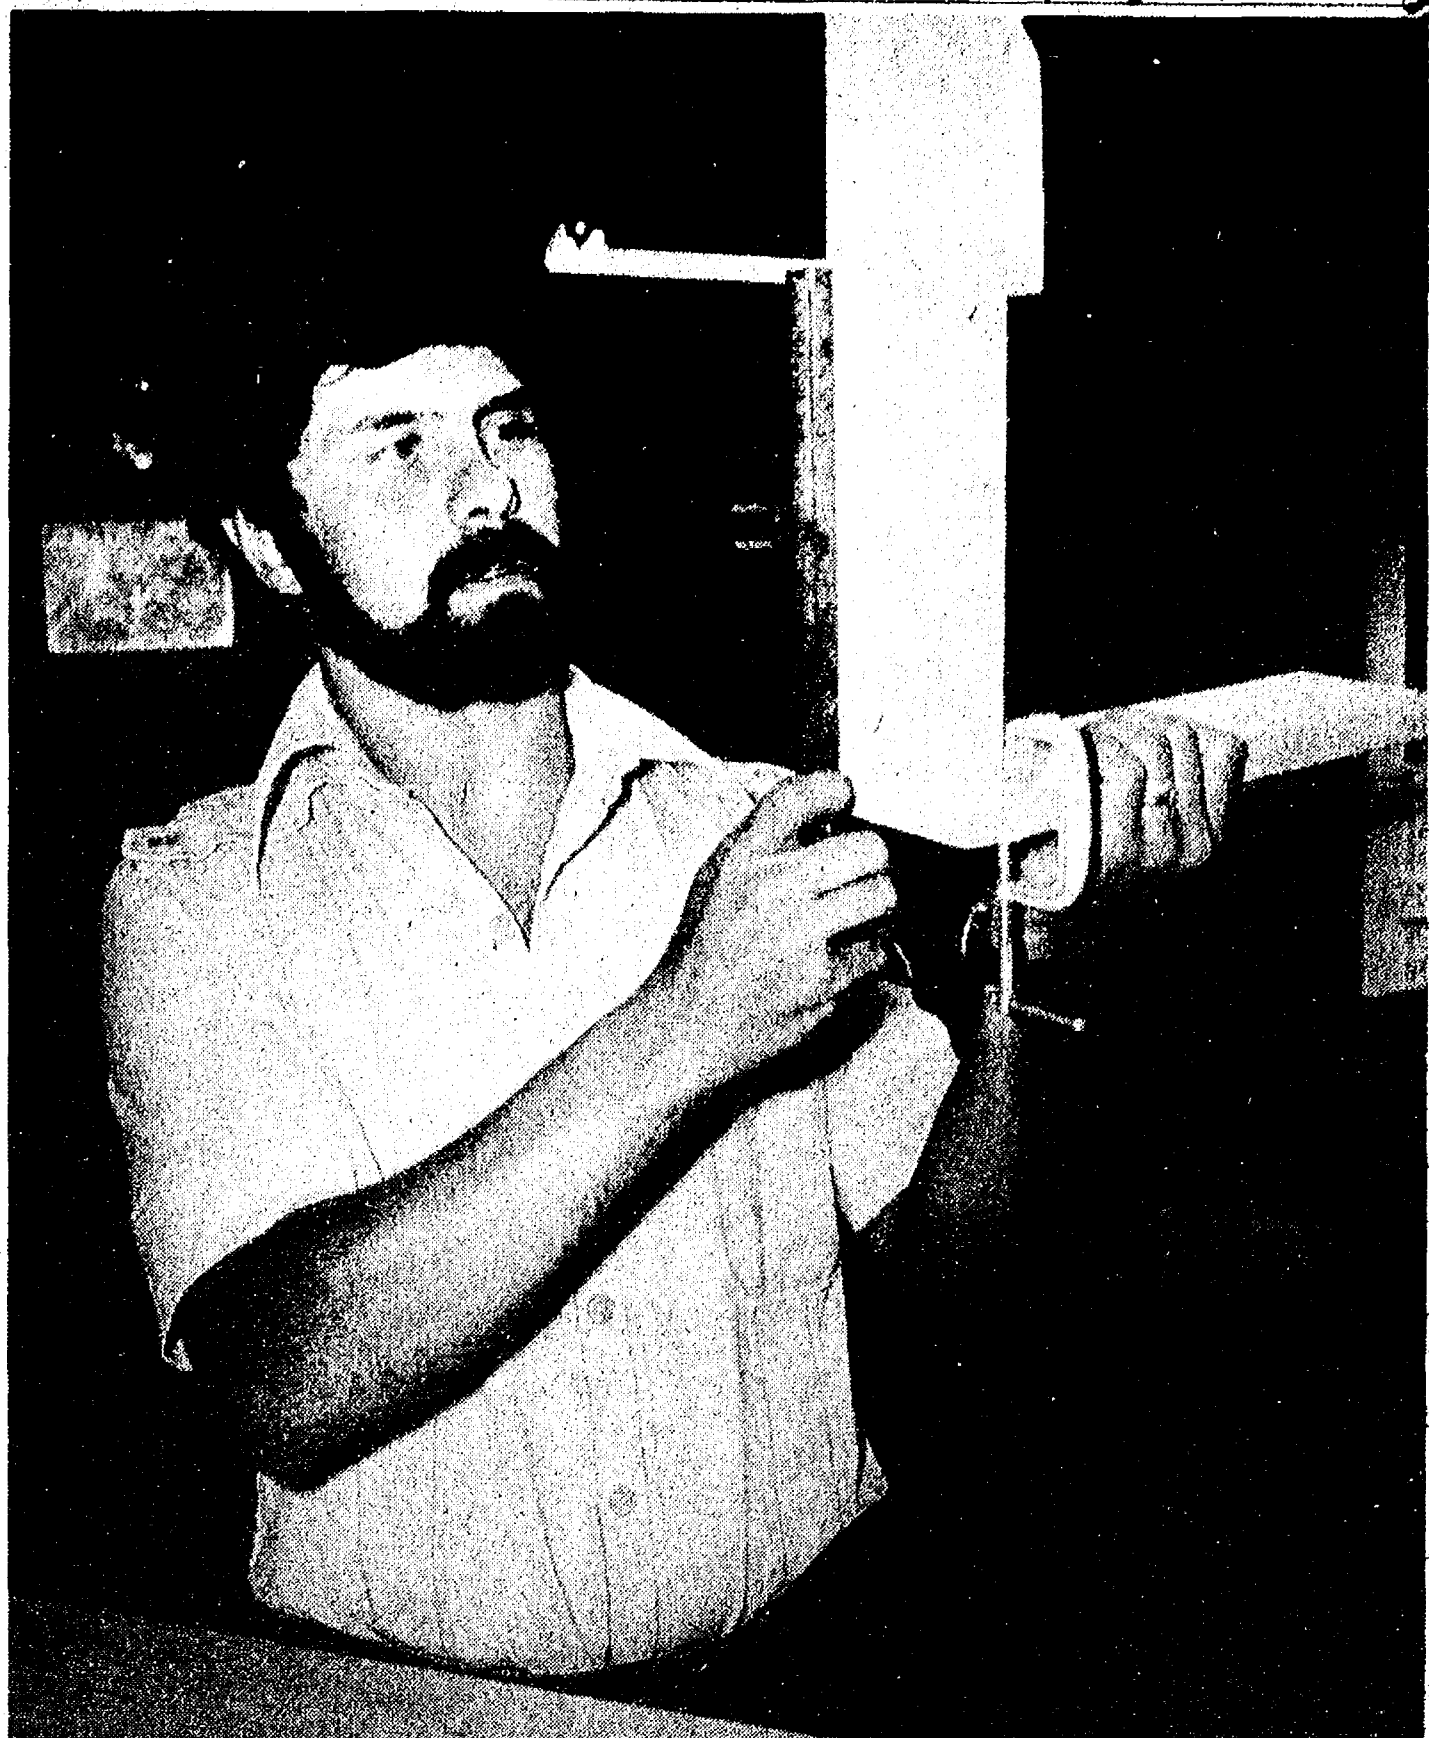

Neither escapee offered any resistance, and both readily admitted that they were fugitives from Cassidy Lake, Aeillo said.

Firemen Respond To Downed Wires

Chelsea firemen responded to two tree fires last weekend, the result of broken limbs which knocked down electrical wires.

The first, last Friday, was on South St. near the District Court building. The second, on Saturday, was on Werkner Rd. a short distance north of M-52.

Damage was negligible in both cases. Firemen stood by until utility crews arrived to repair the downed wires.

CABINETRY-BABY BIRTH SWAP: Dan Roberts, owner of D.J.R. Woodcrafting on Jackson Rd., is one of the members of the newly-organized Chelsea-Dexter skills exchange. His and his wife's third child is expected in several weeks. The medical personnel who assist at the baby's home birth will receive fine cabinetry in exchange for delivering the baby.

Community Skills Exchange Program Will Start in Fall

Are you handy with a hammer, needle and thread or pair of hair-cutting clippers? Do you need a special dessert baked, a faucet fixed or a paper typed?

The newly organized Chelsea-Dexter area community skills exchange will match your needs with services others can provide. In turn, you exchange your know-how in anything from ironing to computer programming.

An hour of any skill is worth an hour of work credit. Accounts are credited or debited according to one's giving or receiving—the exchange functions as a bank although no cash is used. Even membership and use are handled by debits of work time.

A maximum overdraw of eight credits is allowed, so new members may begin drawing on others' skills before they are called on.

Full use of the exchange, co-sponsored by Chelsea and Dexter Community Education programs, will begin in fall after a base of registrants and skills are in place.

For information or registration materials contact Ronnie or Jackie at the Chelsea Community Education office, 475-9830.

Because of the slowdown in births beginning about 1960, there will be fewer young persons reaching labor force age in the 1980's, and overall labor force growth is likely to slacken, according to a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Blood Drive Slated Aug. 16

Confusion over Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) decreased blood donations 33 percent in the county, according to Red Cross figures.

Although donations have risen recently as misconceptions about AIDS are cleared up, the Chelsea blood drive Tuesday, Aug. 16 is more important than usual since the blood supply is still low.

The Red Cross collected 1,500 pints at a factory in the county earlier in the summer. Usually they get 2,000 pints at that site.

But a low blood supply is a greater public health risk than is AIDS. One doesn't get AIDS from donating blood. Male homosexuals with multiple partners are at highest risk, 71 percent of reported cases; drug addicts who share needles, 17 percent; recent Haitian immigrants, 5 percent; and hemophiliacs, 1 percent.

Anyone who isn't in one of those categories isn't very likely to get AIDS, something like eight times less than the chance of being struck and killed by lightning. Donating blood does not increase one's chance of getting AIDS.

A new, disposable needle is used for each donor, said Barbara Ball, regional representative for Southeastern Michigan Blood Services, so it's a sterile process. Each donor will be given a recently-written pamphlet on AIDS, said Ball, who has visited Chelsea-area businesses to promote the August blood drive.

Summer is traditionally a slack time for donations, she said, since schools and universities are closed, and regular donors are on vacation. Yet summer is also a time when much elective surgery is scheduled, so more blood is needed.

The Chelsea drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16 at the VFW Hall, 105 N. Main St. Anyone who would like to donate but hasn't been contacted at work should call Ball at 973-5300 to make an appointment.

Staffing of the drive depends on the number of donors, and Ball must make those plans by Friday, Aug. 12.

If it is a hot muggy day, donors should be more careful than usual about replacing fluids. There will be juice and cookies at the donation site, which is air-conditioned.

PALMER SCHOLARSHIP WINNER: Patrick Killelea has been awarded the Dr. A. A. Palmer scholarship given by Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary for the study of medicine. He is shown here with Madeline Vallier of Chelsea Painters, who raise funds to finance the scholarship by selling their works at an annual art fair.

Patrick Killelea Wins Palmer Memorial Medical Scholarship

Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary has announced that Patrick Killelea has received the Dr. A. A. Palmer memorial scholarship.

The $500 scholarship is awarded to a Chelsea High school graduate who is pursuing a career in medicine, primarily family practice. This is the 13th presentation of the scholarship, which was set up by the original group of physicians at Chelsea Medical Center as a memorial to the late Dr. A. A. Palmer, a Chelsea physician for many years.

The first monies for the scholarship were raised by donations from local physicians and businessmen. Since 1973, the scholarship has been made possible by the Chelsea Painters, a group of about 18 artists who sell their works at an annual art fair held the first weekend in June at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Betty Maxwell of Ann Arbor is head of the group. These artists began painting a number of years ago, using space in the basement of Dr. Hawks' former office at the Medical Center. It was he who suggested that a portion of proceeds from the sale of paintings go toward the Palmer scholarship. ### Randall R. Smith Completes Marine Recruit Training Marine Pvt. Randall R. Smith, son of Robert W. and Mardelle E. Smith of 7731 Scully Rd., Dexter, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

TURN AROUND THE BUOYS: Paul Simon, a driver education teacher at Chelsea High school, directs traffic and gives directions to student drivers at the parking lot driving range at the high school. On the range each student drives alone, a more realistic driving experience than in a double-braked car with a teacher. They drive used cars since novice drivers occasionally bump into each other. The lot is painted with traffic markings to simulate a street.

Driver Ed Program Trains About 200 Students Annually

Economic pressures in the automobile industry, state and school districts have changed the structure of drivers education programs in Chelsea and throughout the state.

But the content of the program has also changed from the days when the words "drivers ed" conjured images of accidents from endless reels of "gory" movies. (This reporter's class used to have great fun running those flicks backwards.)

Gory movies have been de-emphasized because of criticism over violence in society and television, said Samuel Vogel, assistant principal of Chelsea High school and director of the drivers ed program.

Now students have lectures from insurance agents on rates and statistics on young drivers, such as three of every five will have an accident within two years, he said, which explains why insurance rates are decided by age.

They also learn what to expect when stopped on the road from Chelsea police chief Robert Aiello, hear a lecture on drinking and driving from sheriff's department deputies along with regular classroom work on rules of the road.

Classroom and on-the-road performance also means more now. Last year as a cost-cutting measure the state decided a Secretary of State's road test wouldn't be required of persons who have passed a public education drivers ed course.

"We always had a road test as a last drive," said Vogel, "but now we use established guidelines from the state for the test, since we are approving students for their licenses." School districts were a bit nervous about that move, he said, since they feared they would be held liable if a student had an accident. But that hasn't happened yet.

Students taking private driving courses still have to take the road test, since such programs are not as regulated as public school courses.

The Secretary of State's office also comes to the school to administer the written test to students in each session. Testing 100 at once is cheaper than giving 100 different tests at the local office.

More and more schools are going to summer programs such as what Chelsea has, said Vogel, because costs tend to be lower than in a year-around program.

Cars are needed for two months instead of nine; summer weather is easier on cars; the district saves benefits costs by using temporary teachers instead of permanent instructors; and the district doesn't have to pay overtime, which is usually necessary to give students the required on-the-road driving time during the school year.

The actual driving is divided into two parts, on the road in new cars and on the "range," the high school parking lot in used cars.

The school district pays local car dealers a daily rate for the road cars and a clean-up, reconditioning fee before returning them, said Vogel. Dealers are reimbursed part of their costs (having a used instead of new car to sell) by the auto companies.

The cars used to be donated, he said, but about three years ago the auto companies balked on reimbursements. That meant the dealers had to bear all the costs. Times haven't been good for them either, so the school district had to start paying at least some of the costs.

Some larger school districts use simulators for part of the driving time, said Vogel. That way they don't have to have as many cars or buy as much gas but do have to buy an expensive simulator.

Donated or cheap used cars are driven on the range, a program addition which the state prefers, said Vogel. Each student is in a car alone. The teacher stands in the middle, giving directions and directing traffic.

Being ready to drive is like being ready to go to kindergarten—not everyone is ready at the same age. The range has been worthwhile, said Vogel, because it gives the students the more realistic experience of driving alone, which they cannot do on the open road at age 15.

Some students do fine in a car with double brakes and a teacher beside them, he said, but freeze up at the range in a car by themselves. Without the range, that fear wouldn't be known, and the state could license someone too early.

For other students, driving on the road is terrifying. Often the students themselves decide to wait another year, either before they enroll or after a week or so in the course.

The Chelsea program trains about 200 students total in two summer sessions. It is free for school district residents aged 15-17, and enrollment preference is by age.

Training costs are about $100 per student, said Vogel, but the state supposedly pays $45 per student—depending on its financial position. That means the program costs the district from $11,000 to $20,000.

Classes are held between 7 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. weekdays. The early class is actually a preferred time, said Vogel, since it makes it easier to co-ordinate with a summer job. Classrooms are not air-conditioned either, which is why classes are scheduled earlier in the day.

Students may miss only one class during the four-week session. "You'd be amazed at who can be here early for a 7 a.m. class to learn how to drive but can't make it to school by 9 the rest of the year," said Vogel.

There is a "big move" nationally and in the state to take drivers education out of the schools, said Vogel. The commission on excellence in education questioned giving credit for it, which some schools with year-around programs do, and there is always the question of who should pay for such training, individuals or taxpayers.

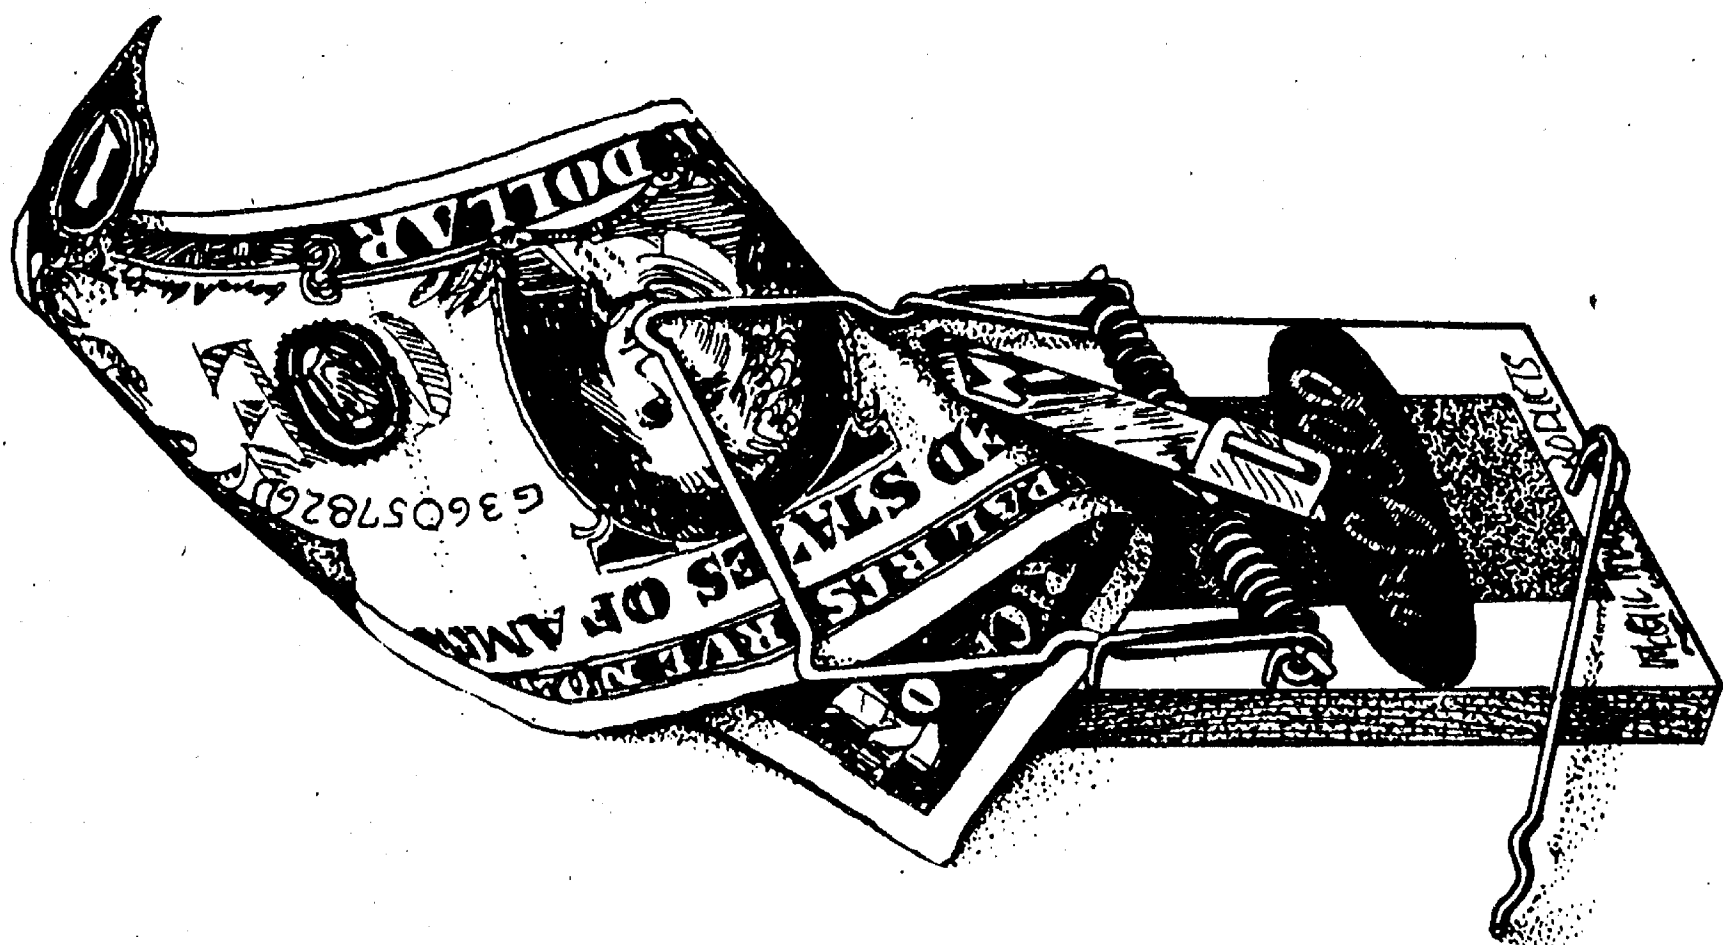

But as Vogel pointed out, the trend towards all academics overlooks the need for certain practical skills. "Which are you going to use more of in life—driving or chemistry?"

Construction Delay May Force Shift of First Football Game

Work on Chelsea High school's new football field is behind schedule, and the Bulldogs' scheduled home opener against Novi on Sept. 9 may have to be played someplace else.

"It all depends on how things go this week," Chelsea athletic director Ron Nemeth said. "It's still possible that the contractors can catch up and get the field ready for us to play on it Sept. 9, but I'm looking at the possibility of having to shift the game."

Earlier, Nemeth had said that the new sod on Niehaus Field had to be laid by July 15 to give it time to take firm root and provide a durable playing surface that would last through the season.

"Maybe we can stretch that," he said, "but I don't know. We'll just have to watch things and make a judgment."

One thing for sure, Nemeth said, is that the Bulldogs will not be able to practice on the field before the season opens. "That will be a problem for Gene LaFave (head football coach), his staff and the team, but I'm sure they will find a way to work around it."

"We have plenty of space available for practice, although there certainly is some value in being able to work out at least a few times on the field you are actually going to play on, to get the feel of it."

Football practice will begin Aug. 15. LaFave was out of town and could not be reached for his comment on the situation.

The reconstruction project has been on an extremely tight schedule from the start. It involves installing new lights, drain tile and an irrigation system as well as putting down new sod of a special "tough" variety grown to take the pounding of football.

A new track is being built around the football field.

Gregory Area Youth At California Air Base

Navy Aviation Structural Mechanic Airman Apprentice David W. Kellenberger, son of Carol Kellenberger of 471 Bullis Rd., Gregory, has reported for duty with Attack Squadron, 22, Naval Air Station Lemoore, Calif.

Start of the $211,000 job had to be delayed until after the June 13 school election, to be sure that the money would be available. A half-mill levy for special maintenance was renewed by a 2-1 vote, and contracts were let the next day.

Souter Asphalt and Paving Co. of Troy is the principal contractor for the work on the football field and track. Parts of the job have been sub-contracted.

"If everything had gone like clockwork, and the various work crews had been able to come in one right after the other, the July 15 schedule for laying sod could have been met," Nemeth said, "but the contractors had other jobs to do as well, so there have been some delays. We got the old sod plowed up and disced, and the old light poles removed, but not much else has happened for the past three weeks."

Men's Major Title Won by Big Boy

Chelsea Big Boy won the men's Major Fast-pitch League Championship last week with a 9-1 victory over second-place Wolverine Supply, winning the title two years in succession.

Chelsea's strong hitting proved to be too much for the opposition. Big Boy got RBI singles from Craig Houle, Bob Moffett, and Bob DeCarolis. Mike Lauerman hit a three-run homer, and Wayne Welton had a solo home run. Roger Bourne went 4 for 4.

John Strong pitched another fine game and earned the win.

Later in the week Big Boy took an 8-7 win from Portage Hardware, as Al Cohen picked up a win in relief of DeCarolis and Randy Brier, who pitched for Big Boy for the first time this year. Big Boy pulled out the victory in the last of the seventh inning on a base hit by DeCarolis. Al Augustine had a triple and a home run, and Craig Houle had two RBI's to pace Big Boy's attack.

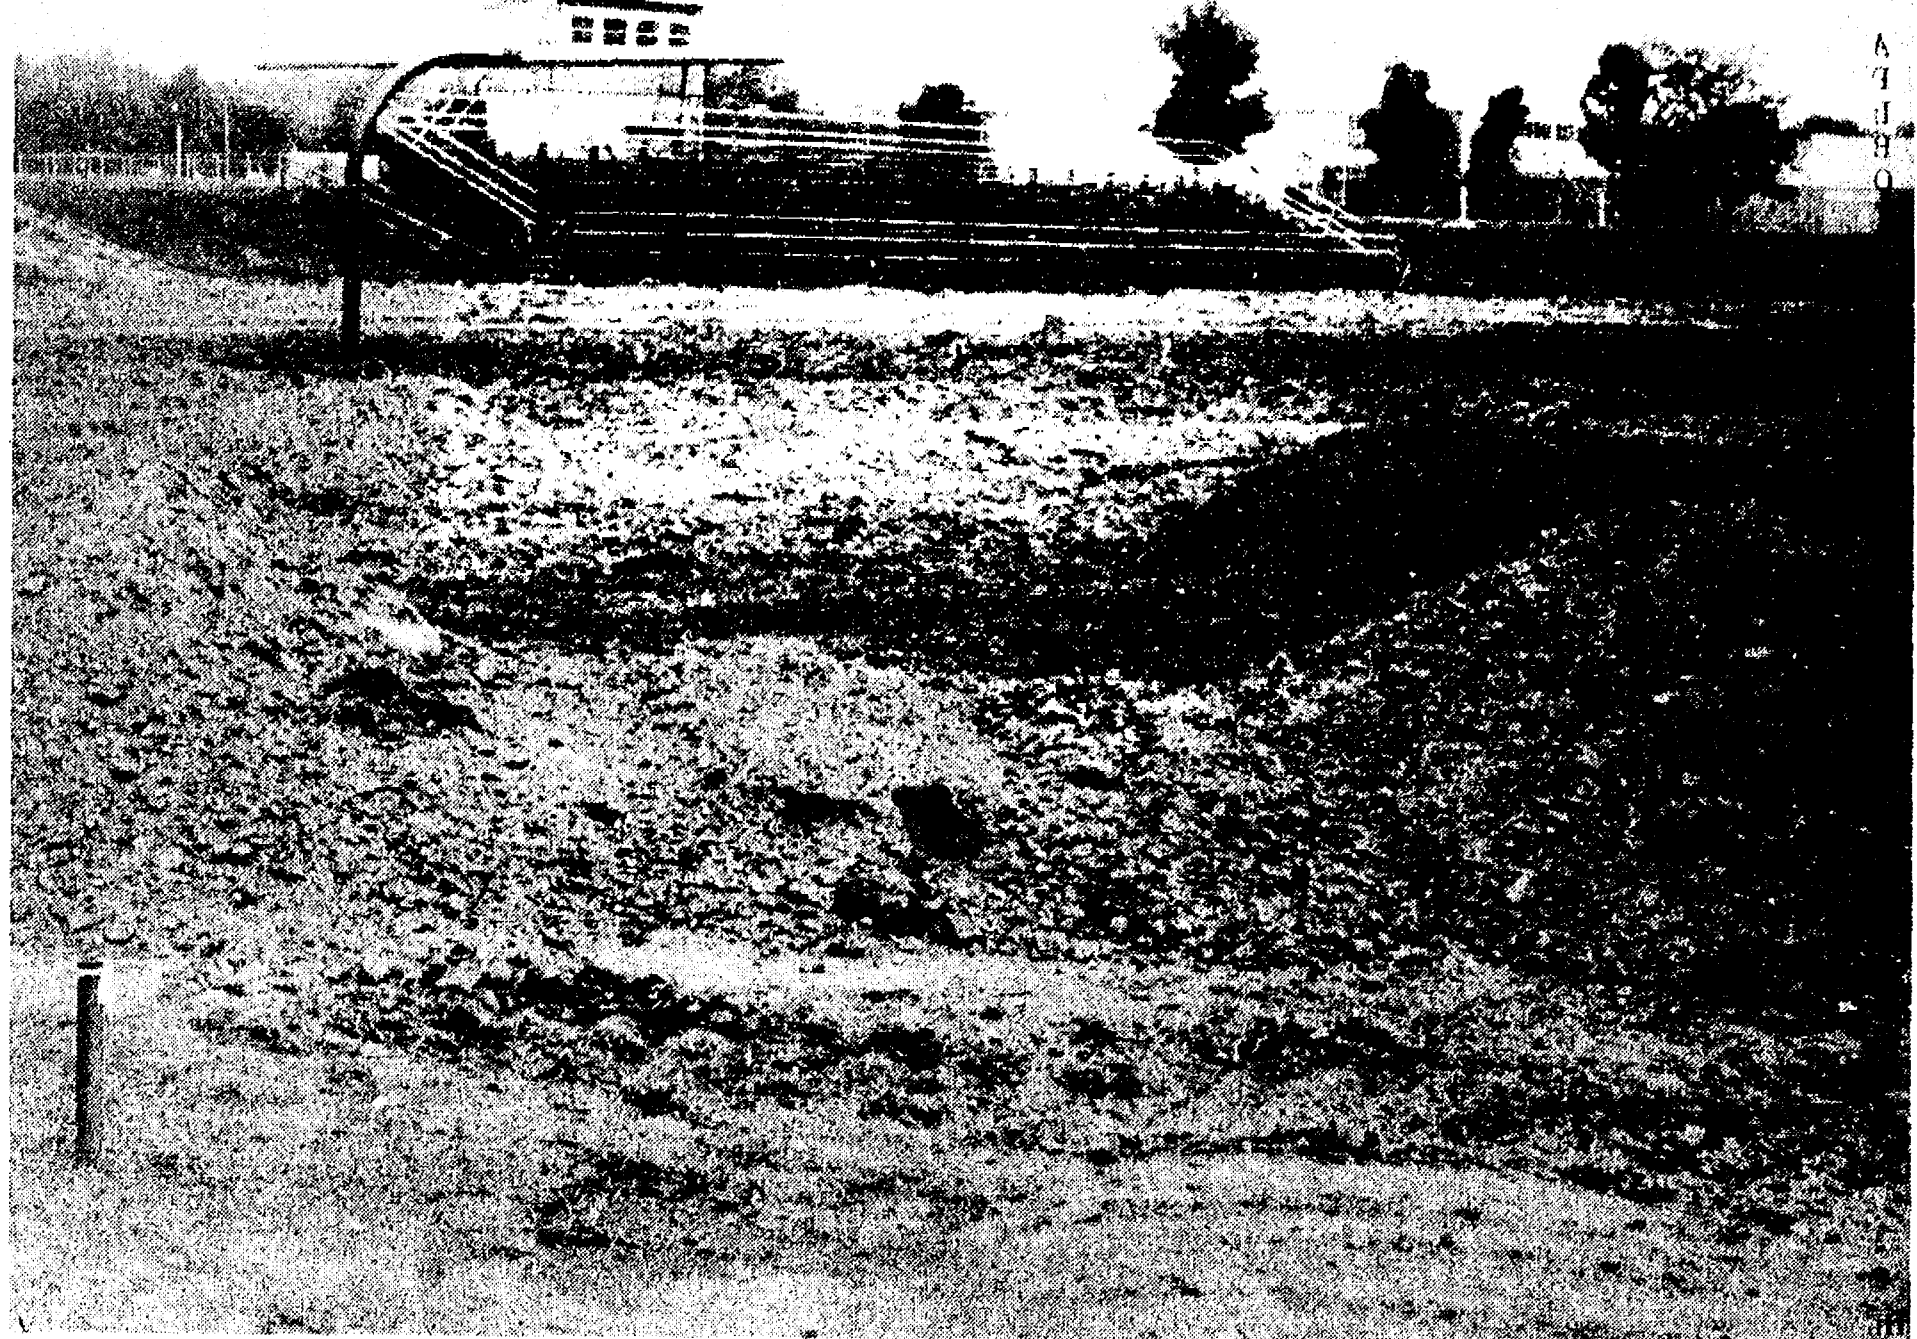

This weekend, Big Boy will compete at Midland in the state open class tournament. This is a national qualifier tournament, and a championship would send Big Boy to the national tournament. A second- or third-place finish would send them to Milwaukee for the national regional qualifier.

Last year Big Boy competed in the Class A national regional in LaCrosse, Wis., and finished third. As a result of this high finish, they must compete this year in the open class, which is the highest level of competition.

Big Boy will play at 11 a.m. Saturday in Midland's fast-pitch stadium, meeting the winner of the Wolverine Supply-Reese Croft Clara game. It will be a seven-team tourney. Big Boy drew a bye in the first round.

The national finals will be held in Decatur, Ill.

WILL IT BE READY? This is how the Chelsea High school football field looked at the beginning of the week, with the opening game of the grid season less than six weeks away. Reconstruction, including re-sodding, has been delayed, and the Sept. 9 home game against Novi may have to be played somewhere else.

Chelsea All-Stars Third in Tourney

Chelsea's Little League all-star team tied for third place in the Clyde Brown tournament at Napoleon July 24-25, marking the first time that a local squad has ever placed in Little league all-star competition.

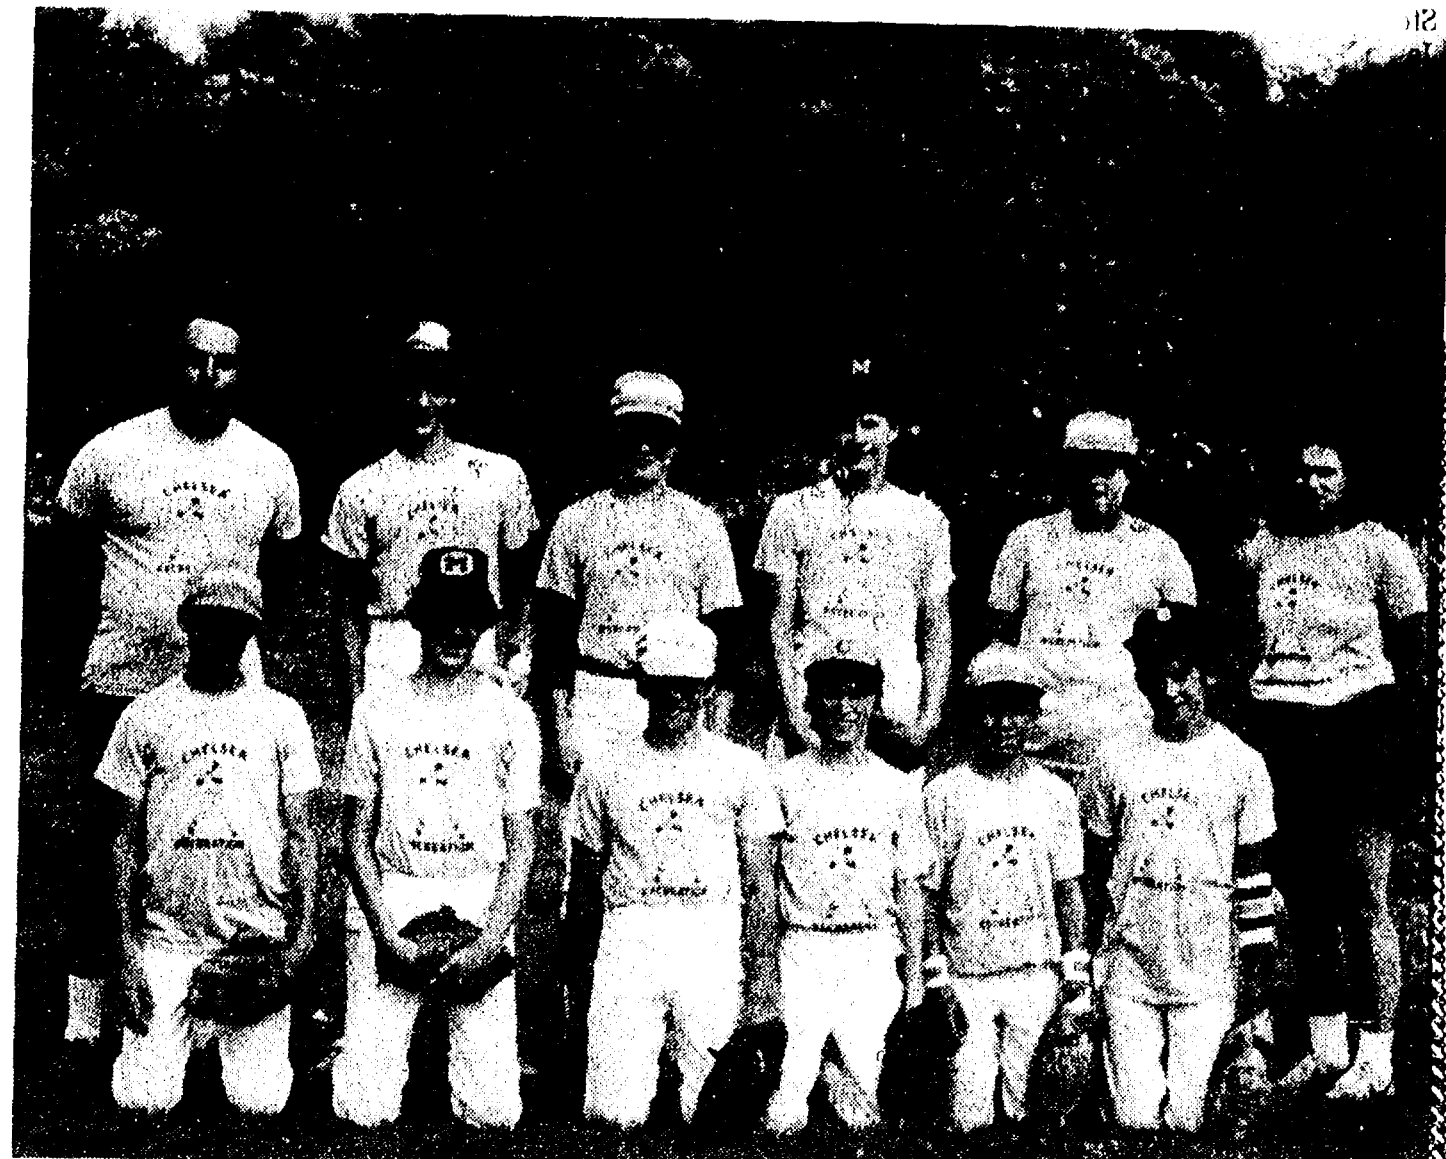

Chelsea defeated Napoleon, 5-1, in its opening game, and went on to beat Cement City, 5-4. Then came a heart-breaking 3-2 loss to Homer, the eventual tournament winner, in the team's third outing.

The Chelsea boys had never played together as a team before going into the competition, and had only four practice sessions to get ready.

Junior Morseau, son of Stanley and Linda Morseau of 12302 Roepeke Rd., a pitcher for the Chelsea all-stars, also did some heavy hitting. The 12-year-old slugger whacked 17 balls over a fence 250 feet from home plate to win a special slugging contest in which 40 boys participated. He knocked another one out of the park during a game.

Of the 32 million women who were full-time homemakers in 1982, six out of 10 were 45 years old or older, according to "Women at Work: A Chartbook."

Chelsea State Bank Wins Women's Softball League Title

It was perhaps only fitting that the Chelsea State Bank team which went undefeated during regular season play should also win the post-season tournament held among the five teams in the Chelsea Women's Softball League.

Chelsea State Bank defeated Jiffy Mix in the tourney's final game for the championship. Jiffy Mix had placed second during the regular season. The two teams played to a tie in a season game, the only mar on Chelsea State Bank's otherwise perfect record. Coaches of the bank team were Dick McCalla and Steve Schanz. Team members expressed gratitude that they were able "to find a way for Chelsea women to play in their own community."

In past years, and to an extent this year, women softball players have had to go to Ann Arbor and elsewhere to participate in the game. The new Dana Field softball complex and support from the village recreation department have made broader participation possible.

Pitcher Ann Hoeft was named by her teammates as the "most improved" player on the Chelsea State Bank team. She was the winning pitcher in the final tournament game.

Outstanding hitters during the tournament included Molly Elsele, Sue Pickell, Karen Kaiser, Lori Schanz, Karen Tobin and Jennifer Guenther. Pickell hit three home runs, and Kaiser had five runs-batted-in to lead the team in those departments.

Besides Chelsea State Bank and Jiffy Mix, teams in the league included Arend Tree Farm, BookCrafters and North Lake Sales and Service.

Manchester Plans Mill Run Events

The third annual Manchester Mill Run will be held on Saturday, Aug. 13.

The race and fun run/walk will be staged in conjunction with the Manchester Community Fair, Manchester Street Fair, and K. of C. pancake breakfast. All proceeds and donations will go toward the Manchester Senior Citizens, Manchester Athletic Boosters, and Manchester Band Boosters. It will be sponsored by Baker's Dozen, Charamar Farm, Commerica Bank, First Of America Bank, Drs. Johnson, Okey and Lehr, Great Lakes Federal Savings, and Krauss Pharmacy.

The race will start and end at the historic Manchester Mill located on Main St. Check in time is 8 a.m., and the race will begin at 8:30. There will be a 6.2 mile run, a two-mile run, and a two-mile fun run/walk for entrants to choose from, according to interest and ability.

Specific information and applications are available at the above sponsors' places of business.

Chelsea Nine Loses Twin-Bill To Jackson

Chelsea's week-end baseball team took on Jackson in a double-header July 23 and lost both games, 14-4 and 10-7.

In the first game Chelsea had a shaky start, giving up two runs in the opening inning but came back to tie it in their half of the first.

Jackson capitalized on some Chelsea errors in the second and scored seven runs to break the game open.

Rick Boham did a good job pitching for Chelsea but didn't get much help from the defense. Chelsea got just five hits in the contest, two singles by Jim Ritter, a double by David Bushway, and singles by Jim Toon and Evan Roberts.

With Ron Dun on the mound for Chelsea, the second game started like the first with Jackson scoring four in their first turn at bat and Chelsea rallying back to tie it in their half.

Chelsea took a 5-4 lead as Dunn crossed the plate on a single by Evan Roberts, but that was short-lived as Jackson scored three in the third with Chelsea getting just one.

Ritter relieved Dunn and gave up three more runs while Chelsea got only one more.

Chelsea collected six hits, a double by Toon and singles by Bushway, Roberts, Boham, Ritter and Mark Mull.

Keith Neibauer walked three times to help the Chelsea attack.

Chelsea wound up with a record of 1-7 good for last place in their league. Meanwhile, Chelsea "week-nighters" compiled a 6-4 record for a fourth-place finish in the eight-team league.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

The Ann Arbor Board of Education has voted, reluctantly, to renew its membership in the Michigan High School Athletic Association, having finally grasped the idea that pulling out of the MHSAA would mean disqualifying the city's schools from all post-season play. For an educated community, Ann Arbor and its representatives can be mighty dumb at times.

State Sen. Lana Pollack continues to froth at her feminist mouth and threaten to introduce and attempt to push through a law which would destroy the MHSAA. Fortunately, there appears to be a majority in the Legislature with better sense.

Last week I explored the transfer rule which has upset both the Ann Arbor board and Sen. Pollack, and concluded that there indeed is an abuse which needs to be stopped. Whether the MHSAA transfer rule is the right approach is open to argument.

Ann Arbor's other gripe against the state athletic association is more serious, because it charges "sex bias" against girls in high school sports. Any such claim, no matter how frivolous, tends to get attention in the news media these days.

To put the issue of "equal opportunity" between the sexes in Michigan high school athletic programs into perspective, you have to go back a long way in time. Until about 15 years ago and through all the decades before that, there was no such concept. High school sports were exclusively male. They were also limited. Football, basketball, baseball, track, possibly golf, and that was it for most schools. A few big and rich districts like Ann Arbor offered swimming and tennis, but they were the exceptions.

A series of court decisions and administrative rulings changed all that, and certainly for the better. The new laws decreed that high school (and college) sports programs should be for girls, too, and that there should be an equitable division of time, effort, money and facilities between girls and boys athletics.

The result has been an explosion of development and participation in girls sports, and a more modest but nevertheless significant growth in boys sports. Girls athletics have grown from nowhere to big in the short space of about 15 years. If you look at what has happened from a reasonably unbiased (sex-wise) point of view, you have to be astonished and happy over what has taken place in Michigan's high schools.

Far more students of both sexes have become involved in sports, and most of the additions are girls. School districts around the state have struggled hard and paid dearly to provide the facilities, coaches and other necessities for expanded athletic programs, to the point where many over-committed themselves financially and had to pull in their horns.

The list of districts that have had to cut back athletic programs for lack of dollar support during the recession years is a long one. The tax-paying public obviously has not yet been sold on the notion that high school sports programs should be open-ended.

At last count there were 165,000 boys and 87,000 girls involved in interscholastic sports at 720 high schools affiliated with the MHSAA. Obviously, boys outnumber girls by almost 2 to 1. Why?

There are two reasons:
1. It takes time to establish any new activity, and girls sports are still relatively new. I have heard repeated laments from coaches of girls teams that they can't find enough athletes to fill their rosters. "We can't have an intra-squad scrimmage," one coach complained. "We don't have enough people to divide into two teams."

(Coaches of boys teams are experiencing a bit of the same problem, especially at smaller schools. At both Chelsea and Dexter there is keen competition among coaches to "recruit" athletes who have a choice among three or four sports during any given season.)

2. Almost all the disparity in numbers between the sexes is attributable to one sport—boys football. It takes at least 25 kids to make a football squad, and 40 or 50 are better if you can find that many and have the coaches to handle them. There is, as yet, no comparable girls sport which requires anywhere near those numbers of participants.

Ann Arbor's bleat against the MHSAA rose to its loudest pitch in 1981 when two girls were denied places on the Pioneer High golf team, for which they apparently were qualified in terms of ability.

There are a few games—tennis and golf are a couple—in which exceptional girls can compete successfully with boys. They are games in which skills are more important than strength.

All right, you say, let girls win places on mixed-sex tennis and golf teams if they can. Unfortunately, it isn't that simple. Turnabout is only fair play. If girls can play on boys tennis and golf teams, then boys should be allowed to try out for positions on girls softball, volleyball and other teams. They would quickly push most girls out of contention.

What the Ann Arbor Board of Education members and Sen. Pollack don't seem to understand—or at least accept—is that there are indeed physical differences between boys and girls (and I'm not referring to the obvious sexual characteristics). Boys, in general, are taller, heavier and stronger. In particular, they have a lot more upper body strength, which shows up in comparisons of ability to lift and press weights.

Development of a full and varied program of girls athletics in Michigan high schools has been a good thing, and was long overdue. It should not have taken court orders to make it happen. However, the idea that programs for boys and girls should be perfectly parallel is ridiculous, and I will tell why next week.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

I have not met Ronald O. Skoog, who will become the new director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in October, but have to believe that he is either a very brave, or a very foolish man. Nobody to my knowledge has ever accepted a job under less auspicious circumstances.

Skoog was appointed by a 4-3 vote of the Natural Resources Commission, with one member who voted "yes" proclaiming that he was "luke-warm" about the choice. Skoog's selection was opposed by Gov. Blanchard and his staff, and also by key members of the Legislature. All made haste to express their unhappiness in statements to the news media.

The various environmental protection citizen organizations in the state, which are many and vocal and carry considerable political clout, joined the chorus of opposition, and made it plain they want Skoog's scalp just as soon as they can find a way to get it.

That way is open. Terms of two of the four commissioners who voted to appoint Skoog will expire at the end of the year. Blanchard can either reappoint or replace them, and the State Senate must confirm his nominees. It would be easy for Blanchard and majority Democrats in the Senate to cut a deal which would swing one vote in the commission against Skoog and get him fired.

Thus Skoog will have just three months to mend his political fences and prove that he is the right person for the job. That is a tall order indeed. It will take him at least that long to find out where all the doors are in the sprawling DNR, and get to know those who work behind them. (It took me a year to learn my way around back in 1964, when the department was much smaller and simpler.)

Establishing good relations with the governor's office and the Legislature is an even more complicated and much more subtle process. My experience is that the task requires several years for an outsider to accomplish on even a limited basis. Politicians mistrust bureaucrats on general principles, and vice versa, and breaking down that barrier is a long, slow, often agonizing exercise.

Winning approval from opposed and entrenched citizen groups is the most difficult challenge of all. Once an organization takes a stand in opposition to something or someone, it rarely changes its collective mind.

Skoog's political moxie has to be questioned. He failed to survive a change of administration in Alaska, where he last worked in an appointive post, and so entered the job-hunting market. He was unemployed when Michigan hired him.

The rap against Skoog is that he lacks education and experience in managing environmental protection programs—water, air, waste disposal, and the like—and a look at his credentials shows there is considerable truth in that charge. He is an old-fashioned natural resources manager. His expertise is in wildlife, fish, forestry and parks.

Those used to be the traditional out-in-front programs of the DNR, but they have been pushed onto the back burner in recent years by environmental protection concerns. It is not surprising that Skoog's precarious body of support comes from those commissioners and citizen groups (such as the National Wildlife Federation and Michigan United Conservation Clubs) which believe the DNR should get back to its original reason for being and let some other agency grapple with environmental protection.

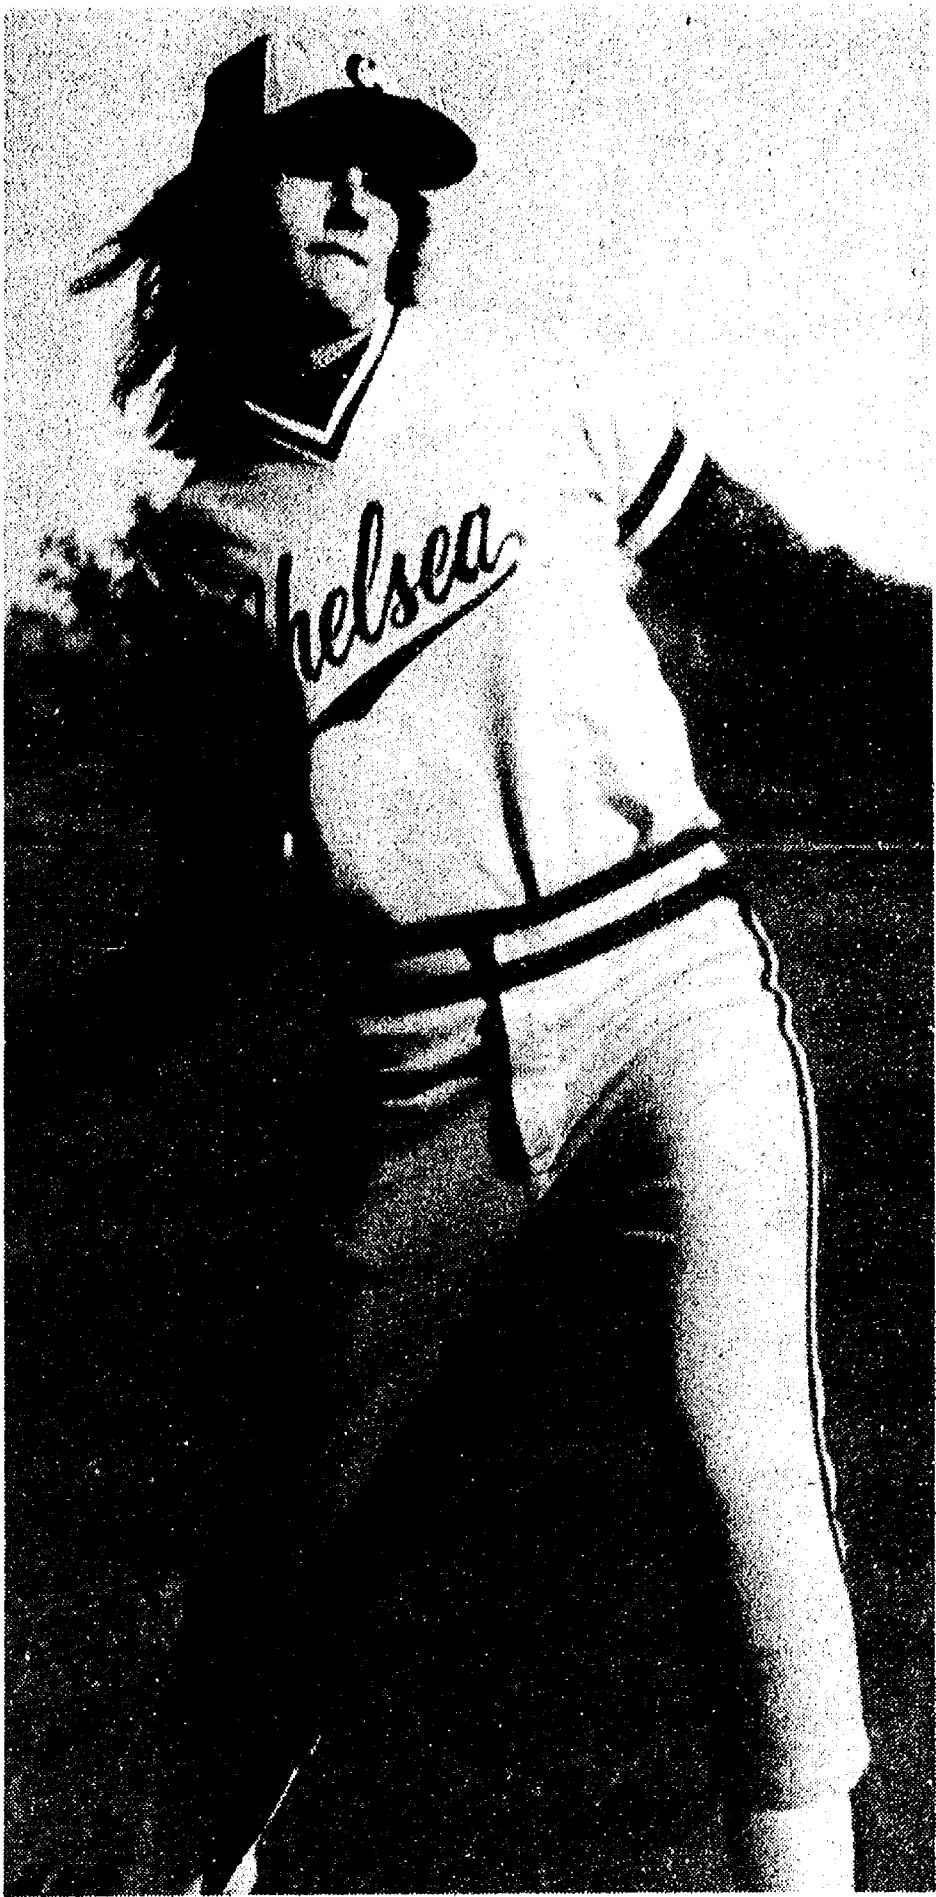

The fact is that there are precious few people qualified in both broad areas. Peter Lanahan of New York, who turned down the DNR directorship after it was offered to him in June, was an environmental protection specialist but had no background whatever in resources management. He apparently sensed the difficulty of working both sides of the street, and so opted not to come to Michigan even though he had applied to do so.

Preserving water and air quality, deciding how liquid and solid wastes should be disposed of are all, basically, public health functions best administered by engineers and members of the medical profession. Wildlife and fisheries biologists, foresters, and parks and recreation professionals have no qualifying expertise in those fields.

The hope here is that Skoog's courage in agreeing to accept the job will be recognized, and that he will be given a decent chance to prove that he just might be able to do it. Three months is not nearly long enough. A careful review after a year (in October, 1984) might be equitable.

Meanwhile, Gov. Blanchard and the Legislature should look very carefully at the essential wisdom of splitting the present unwieldy DNR into two separate departments—one for resources management, one for environmental protection—with a qualified director for each. I remain convinced that is the only ultimate way out of what is presently an impossible situation which the state has created and should dismantle after having received clear proof that it doesn't—and won't—work.

Brave or foolish as he may be, Ronald Skoog almost certainly is not a performer of miracles. I don't envy him. He will earn every cent of his $4,650 a month salary during the few months that he is likely to hold the job.

Spring Valley Offers Something New in Fishing

By Bill Mullendore

Fee fishing ponds are common in Michigan, operated as sidelines to commercial fish-raising businesses whose main goal is to provide rainbow trout for private pond stocking and the restaurant trade.

Spring Valley Trout Farm at 12190 Island Lake Rd. is different, and perhaps unique in the state. Owners Bob and Jim Kaercher, who are father and son, have made fee fishing their main business and shaped their operation toward that purpose.

Actually, the "trout farm" is misnamed. The Kaerchers offer to their patrons a variety of fish—channel catfish, largemouth bass, hybrid sunfish—along with rainbow trout. They sell some of their products for pond stocking, but fee fishing is their big thing.

"We have found there is a large demand from people who want to catch fish in pleasant surroundings under conditions that are fairly close to natural fishing," Bob Kaercher says, "and we are trying to accommodate them. Our customers come from all over southeastern Michigan, many of them from the Detroit area."

"They want to catch fish and have a good time doing it, and they are willing to pay our prices. We get a lot of first-timers, people who have never been fishing before, don't know much about it, and want to learn in a place where they can be pretty sure of catching something."

"We get many others who have tried 'natural' fishing and had little or no luck. They come here to enjoy the thrill of hooking and landing fish, and taking them home to eat."

"We must be doing something right, because almost all of our customers come back."

Fee fishing at Spring Valley Trout Farm is not cheap. Fish of all species are priced on a per-inch basis, and the costs work out to something more than $3 a pound dressed weight.

That is competitive with good-quality fish bought over the counter at stores. Where the Kaerchers have an edge is that their live-caught fish are sure to be fresh, and store-bought fish often aren't. The fun of catching them is another big bonus.

No fishing license is required at Spring Valley, and tackle, bait, instruction if needed, and cleaning and packaging are included in the price.

The Kaerchers' ponds are attractively landscaped to provide a nice setting for visitors. The fishing is easy, but not too easy. You have to work a bit to make a catch, especially during the mid-day hours when fish are not prone to feed without being coaxed.

The pond complex and the trout-rearing raceways are fed by three flowing wells which maintain a continuous circulation of cold water through the system. That's where the name "Spring Valley" comes from. The excellent water supply is the key to the operation.

There is enough available water, in fact, that the Kaerchers are constructing a small flowing stream which will be stocked with trout as an attraction to those who like that form of angling. The stream definitely will be a unique feature when it is completed.

The Kaerchers are also pioneering in raising largemouth bass for fee fishing, which involves "training" the bass to eat pelletized commercial fish food.

"Bass have to be taught to eat pellets," Bob Kaercher said. "Normally they eat only live food. We've found that 15-20 percent of the little ones can be trained to accept a diet of pellets. The rest we sell as fingerlings for private pond stocking. They would starve in our ponds if we kept them."

The extra work and cost involved in raising bass to catchable size require that the Kaerchers charge a premium price for them—about one-third more than for trout, which are far better on the table—but the demand for them is high.

"People want bass, and they are willing to pay extra for them," Bob Kaercher said. "I think it's because there has been so much publicity and promotion about bass fishing in recent years. Bass have come to be regarded as some kind of super fish. I just wish we had more of them."

The Kaerchers have succeeded in raising bass to lengths of 18 inches and weights of three pounds or so—nice fish but not trophies. They are working toward five-pounders.

Spring Valley's sunfish are crosses between bluegills and red-ear sunfish. They show typical hybrid vigor and grow fast to a size of 8-10 inches that makes them attractive for both sport and food. Moreover, they are 95 percent males which makes them useful for private pond stocking. An equal sex mix almost invariably results in a huge crop of small, stunted panfish within a few years.

One thing the Kaerchers don't do, yet, is raise their own fish. They buy fingerlings and rear them. A hatchery operation is somewhere in the future business together. The angler pictured has two artificial knees which limit his activity and make the pond an ideal place for him to try his luck in comfort.

HELPING HANDS: Spring Valley Trout Farm's Bob Kaercher (right) helps a fisherman unhook a trout while his son, Jim Kaercher, looks on. The two are father and son, and they operate the

A BIG ONE: This trophy trout measured more than 22 inches in length and weighed better than three pounds. There are bigger ones waiting to be caught, including one that will go better than five pounds if it doesn't die of old age before being hooked and landed.

DANDY BASS: Largemouth bass, which are difficult to rear for fee fishing and thus cost more than other species, are nevertheless in big demand because of their current high popularity among anglers. This was close to being a $10 fish.

A GOOD FIGHT AND SHE WON: This lady angler, using a light flyrod, got a spirited scrap from a smallish rainbow trout which put a good bend in the rod and jumped three times before yielding to the pressure and being landed. It was by no means the biggest fish caught that day, but she was happy with it.

TROUT STREAM IN THE MAKING: The Kaerchers' newest venture at Spring Valley Trout Farm is this man-made stream, which will be stocked with trout to provide a specialized fishery for those who like to take their fish from flowing water. The stream isn't completed yet, but may be ready for use in another year.

ACTIVITY AT SPRING VALLEY TROUT FARM: This is the main fee fishing pond at Spring Valley Trout Farm, 12190 Island Lake Rd., where fishing for fun, at a price, is the order of the day. As many as 50 anglers may be trying their luck on a weekend afternoon, but they tend to spread out so that each will have his or her own private spot. The building at upper right houses the entrance gate and the fish-cleaning station. Banks of the pond have been lined with rocks to prevent erosion.

A FINE CATCH: This family group put together an excellent mixed catch of rainbow trout and hybrid sunfish during an afternoon of fishing.

Their good luck probably cost them more than $40 when the inches were tallied, but they had fun and took home some good food for the table.

Card of Thanks 16

THANK YOU

On behalf of the Chelsea, Dexter and High Point mentally impaired athletes, I would like to thank all the area people who attended the Trinkle Barn Dance for Special Olympics in June. I would also like to extend a very special thank-you to those magnificent people who put this dance on every year. Many people don't realize how hard this committee works. The planning, organizing, clean-up, and the running of the dance itself takes a very big chunk of their time. I want them to know that their kindness and work is very much appreciated. I can't mention all of their names, but be assured that the money you raise is used to help many handicapped youngsters learn new skills and gain new experiences. The special athletes have the courage and it is people like you who give them the chance. We thank you.

Nancy Cooper, Chelsea Special Olympics.

Card of Thanks 16

CARD OF THANKS

Covenant Church thanks the Chelsea community for their support at the annual Ice Cream Social held July 28. Our thanks, too, to the businesses that gave their support and displayed posters.

Covenant Church.

THANK YOU

I want to thank all my friends and relatives for the many cards and flowers I received while in the hospital, the Rev. Trund and his visits, also the doctors and nurses at the Chelsea Community Hospital.

Glady Klumpp.

THANK YOU

Spaulding for Children would like to thank all of the local citizens and merchants, who donated raffle items, to our annual Ice Cream Social. A special thanks to the Grass Roots Bunch Farm Bureau Group, the Lions Club, Chelsea Boy Scouts and Boyer & Fitzsimmons for all their help in making the day such a success for our special children and their families.

SEE YOUR DOCTOR

If you smoke, you are 1-7 times as likely to develop a duodenal ulcer as a non-smoker. A government study showed that 46 percent of black men smoke compared with 38 percent white. It's now been established that cigarette smoking affects the development, severity, healing and recurrence of ulcers. If you smoke, and have frequent stomach pain, you should see a doctor to find out if you have a duodenal ulcer.

Federal Budget

Overlays Boosted
Federal outlays in U. S. agriculture programs are now expected to reach a record $25.3 billion during the current fiscal year, up from an earlier estimate of $24.2 billion and $14.9 billion in fiscal 1982.

In its midsession review of the 1984 budget, the Reagan administration also raised its forecast of agricultural spending in 1984 to $13.8 billion from $9.7 billion earlier.

The Office of Management and Budget raised its estimate of 1983 outlays by the Commodity Credit Corp. on farm price support and related programs by $600 million and 1984 outlays by $4.1 billion. OMB attributed the increases to higher-than-expected production under the payment-in-kind program.

OMB raised its estimate of total USDA outlays, including feeding programs such as food stamps, to $49.5 billion from $48.3 billion for 1983 and to $36.7 billion from $32.1 billion in 1984.

Why Do Farmers Keep Farming?

Life on the farm hasn't been easy lately. These are tough economic times, and right now we're uncertain how much of the economic recovery will spill over into agriculture.

It really makes you wonder why do farmers stay in business? Bill Heffernan, University of Missouri rural sociologist, has discovered one thing: farmers aren't into farming for the money.

In a survey, Heffernan found that income ranks pretty far down the list when you ask farmers what benefits they get from farming. The first reason they give for farming is that it "provides a sense of accomplishment and a feeling of doing something worthwhile."

Second, in farming you are your own boss. A lot of farmers like that. Income actually ranked seventh out of eight statements listed by farm men and women.

But Heffernan brings up a very good point when he says, "You've got to have your head above water financially before you get the other benefits of farming." Despite some of the pleasurable aspects of farming, there is a lot of stress on farm families because of the economic climate that exists in agriculture.

What other benefits do farmers say they derive from farming? They say the farm is a good environment in which to raise children. The farm also gives the family a sense of security in knowing they always have food and a place to live.

To quote another statement, "The work is interesting, stimulating and provides opportunities to make decisions." And another reason for farming is that it "provides opportunity to work outdoors and be close to nature."

The plain fact is that farmers aren't into farming just for the money. Oh, they would like to make a good income. We all would. But there are other benefits to farming that keep farmers farming even in tough times.

Federal Budget Shows June Surplus

Because it happens so seldom these days, it is worth noting that the U. S. government budget showed a surplus of $3.401 billion for the month of June, following a record May deficit of $29.285 billion. But then June normally is a month that sees a heavier than usual income from corporate taxes. The surplus in June 1982 was $6.724 billion. The June surplus brought the total federal deficit to $158.412 billion for the first nine months of fiscal 1983. Since June is the only month expected to produce a surplus, the Treasury Department is projecting a total federal budget deficit of $209.830 billion for fiscal 1983.

Formerly of Chelsea

Herbert Loeffler, 86, formerly of Chelsea, died July 27 in Stockbridge. He owned and operated a meat market at Main and Park Sts. in Chelsea for many years.

He was a life member of Ann Arbor Commandery No. 13, Knights Templar, and a charter member of the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club.

He married the former Edna Maroney, his wife of 57 years. She survives. Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Richard (Ileen) Kinsey; two granddaughters, Karna Brandt and Kathy Chambers, and a grandson, Richard Kinsey.

No funeral services were held. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Chelsea. Arrangements were made by the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home of Chelsea.

WAITING TO UNLOAD: Huge truckloads of wheat were lined up in the Chelsea Milling Co. driveway leading to the elevators and backed up north on Main St. last week as drivers waited their turn.

The company uses about 1.75 million bushels of wheat a year in its manufacture of Jiffy Mixes.

Parents Anonymous Offers Help for Child Abusers

By PEGGY PAGE

Last week Mary fussed at her teenage son to eat his broccoli at supper. For her and him that was a small but important sign that their relationship has changed and improved since Mary joined Parents Anonymous, a local support group for parents who have or fear they may develop child abuse problems.

Mary began abusing her son, John, (real names have been changed) when she was depressed about going through a divorce she didn't want. She slept most of the time, and he, a six-year-old then, fixed his own meals, mostly cereal and milk.

He was taking care of her at an age when she should have taken care of him, she said. That neglect was abuse, and why now being concerned about his nutrition means progress.

Physical abuse did follow the neglect, even though he was "the apple of my eye" and she went through a fertility program to conceive him. "Once I almost choked him to death. I grabbed him by his pajama top and twisted it."

"I was so angry I couldn't see his face any more—it was just a red blotch to me."

Once she hit him with a dog chain and an extension cord. He was asleep upstairs when she tried to burn the house down in a suicide attempt.

"The curtains wouldn't catch on fire," she said, so she never really got a good fire going.

She joined the Ann Arbor chapter of PA in the 1970s when she was afraid she'd lose custody of her son, and she was the first member of the Chelsea chapter when it formed in January.

She and John have both made progress, she in the adult's group and he with the children's group, she said. He calls it her "crazy group" because that's what his father told him people were who sought help such as psychologists. But he likes going because it gives him a chance to talk about his feelings.

She was brought up to keep her feelings inside. When she had a stillborn daughter whom she never saw, she wanted to cry and have her husband hug her. But she was afraid she would embarrass him if she cried and didn't ask for her hug.

Now she can cry for her lost daughter and talk about her life.

When things aren't going well between her and John, she will lock herself in her bedroom and call another PA member to talk it out instead of taking it out on John. If a member "in crisis" phones her, she'll stop what she's doing to talk. "I wouldn't care if the eggs flopped."

Although the parents support each other with a phone network, the children have not done so yet. Some are too young to use a phone.

Most child abusers are former abused children. That fact is the motive behind the children's group—stop the cycle.

Mary comes from a family that uses alcohol to forget problems. When she had her first Communion party, she was really hurt because the party for her ended up being a party for the adults.

She got the beatings when her brothers did something wrong. She still remembers the time when her brother slammed the door, and her mother who was wearing high heels kicked her.

She felt like the scapegoat of the family. Researchers on abuse have found the abused child in families of more than one child is often one who is either different from the others or one who was born or got sick at the wrong time in the life of the family.

John is in his early teens, (Mary describes him as "going on 50"), and Mary says she's "a whole lot" nervous about him discovering girls. She and he are "close, maybe too close" now, she said. He invites other children to play at their house instead of going over to other homes to play. He'd rather stay with her instead of visiting his father on week-ends.

"Nobody would ever be good enough for him," she said. Welcoming another woman into John's life is something the PA members, social worker and psychologist are beginning to work with her on now.

Although she says she wants him to "be a priest or violin player" so she won't lose him, she'd also like to be a grandmother, but she's afraid of that role.

Her own mother died a few days before John was born, so his birth was a time of mourning instead of joy. Her nieces and nephews knew her mother, but John never did.

She'd like grandchildren, "but I'm afraid I'll die like Mom did just before the first one was born."

Mary's feelings about herself as a parent are still mixed. She wondered if this reporter expected her to look strange—which she didn't. She is likeable—a strong opinionated, funny, expressive woman who is obviously trying to improve her life. She had branded herself as bad and expected others to see that in her.

She is still unsure about how she is doing with John, although the PA professionals reassured her about the progress she is making.

She and John are moving to a new state soon; she calls a fellow PA member instead of yelling at or hitting him; he cleaned the house last week as a surprise for her; and John is learning to eat the broccoli his Mom cooks for him.

Anyone interested in the Chelsea chapter of PA may call 475-9175. Although that is the number for the office of Dr. Mary Westhoff, a local pediatrician, she is not involved with the group to protect her patient's privacy.

Milk Production Continues To Climb

U. S. milk production totaled 70.4 billion pounds during the first half of 1983—up 2% from the same period in 1982. It is anticipated that production will total 138 billion pounds this year, up 16 billion pounds since the current buildup in milk production began in 1978.

TREE TOPPLES: Perhaps weakened by recent storms, a large willow tree broke and fell over at Veterans Park last week. It was rotten at the base and would have toppled sooner or later in any event. Village crews cleared the debris. Two stems remain of what used to be a three-stem willow.
