CATCH OF A LIFETIME: Todd Ferry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Ferry of 9740 Beeman Rd., is only 11 years old, but he may fish for the rest of his life without catching anything larger than this 40-inch, 32-pound chinook salmon he hooked and landed in Lake Michigan off Pentwater on Aug. 14. Todd reeled in his prize after a 15-minute fight on 20-pound-test line. It was the largest salmon brought to port at Pentwater this season. Todd's cousin, Bill Hafner, went along on the fishing trip along with Lloyd Hafner and Tony Hafner, all of Chelsea, and Todd stole the show. Great Lakes salmon are running large this season, but there won't be many bigger ones caught.

Chelsea Teachers, Board Achieve Tentative Accord

A tentative contract agreement has been reached between the Chelsea Education Association (CEA) and the Chelsea Board of Education, Richard Graves of Ypsilanti, bargaining representative and spokesman for the local teachers union, announced Monday.

The accord was reached after about 40 hours of intensive negotiations over the weekend, said Graves, who is a district agent for the Michigan Education Association (MEA) with which the Chelsea unit is affiliated.

Graves said he will present the terms of the proposed contract to a meeting of the CEA executive board tonight, adding he expects a date to be set for a membership vote on the pact.

He declined to discuss the terms pending their revelation to CEA members, other than to say that they include improvements in the areas of salaries, fringe benefits and working conditions.

"The settlement, if adopted, will enable Chelsea school employees to 'maintain their position' in the area," Graves said.

The proposed contract is for three years, Graves announced. Among other things, it includes starting school this fall on Tuesday, Sept. 6, the day after Labor Day.

Neither Ray Van Meer nor Fred Mills, superintendent and assistant superintendent of the Chelsea school district respectively, was available for comment following Graves' announcement. Both were out of town on business.

The tentative agreement represented at least a preliminary victory for the process of so-called "expedited bargaining," under which early negotiations narrowed the issues, and a short period of time was set for intensive talks to resolve them.

The two bargaining teams exchanged lists of issues and proposals on July 25, and mulled them over until Aug. 10. They then came back to the bargaining table, and reached the accord four days later.

"It worked very well," Graves said. "I am pleased with the way the bargaining was conducted on both sides."

The CEA's old contract with the Chelsea board expired on June 30. If the new agreement is adopted for three years, it would extend through the 1985-86 school year.

CHIPPING AWAY: Work has begun on restoring the historic stone entrance gates to Oak Grove Cemetery on Madison St. at the east end of Middle St. In above picture, Don Nordman, Jr., of Ann Arbor, works to remove the concrete caps which will be replaced. The job must be done very carefully and is expected to take about a month.

Joint Township Meeting Set Wednesday To Study Proposed Park Expansion

Members of the Huron River Area Association (HRAA), a local citizen's group concerned about Hudson Mills park expansion plans, presented their concerns to the Washtenaw County Planning Commission at the Commission's Aug. 11 board meeting in Ann Arbor. The group had made a similar presentation that same morning at the Huron Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA) board meeting. HCMA operates the Hudson Mills park.

Ken Brooks, acting chairperson of the association, outlined the issues the group has raised regarding HCMA's $1 million expansion plans and distributed copies of a paper which had been prepared for the two boards.

Association members feel that the expansion has not adequately considered the needs and safety of the public and area residents. They also raised the issue as to whether the burden of providing land for park use has been equitably shared between the HCMA's five-county area. They feel that Dexter and Webster townships have been heavily burdened by park activities over the last 30 years. The association also expressed concern that the natural woodlands and river areas will be altered or destroyed and that wildlife in the area will be adversely affected.

Brooks asked that a member of the Planning Commission and HCMA boards be present at a joint meeting of Dexter and Webster townships on Aug. 17. The meeting, to be held at Dexter Township Hall, has been set up so that objections raised by local residents will be addressed by authorities before any further work is done to the park.

HCMA plans include construction of an activities building with concession stand, volleyball and tennis courts, group camp, bike trail and golf course.

The HCMA board decided at last Thursday's meeting to table action on the bid submitted for the activities building.

The Board, aware of increased public scrutiny over the expansion, decided to wait until the next board meeting, Sept. 8, to take action on the $738,000 bid which was considerably over the $400,000 that had been budgeted for the building.

The Aug. 17 meeting between the townships and the two board to discuss park plans will be held at Dexter Township Hall, 6880 Dexter-Pinckney Rd., and begins at 7:30 p.m.

Work Begins on Oak Grove Gates

Although it isn't quite like building the pyramids of Egypt, the job of reconstructing the Oak Grove Cemetery gates on Madison St. at the east end of Middle St. is near enough to be fascinating.

Work began last Friday and will continue for about a month until finished, said contractor Paul Henes of Dexter.

"I've never tackled a job exactly like this one before," Henes said, "but I figure I can do anything in the line of masonry work by studying and learning as I go along. I honestly don't know what I'm into, but I'm excited about doing it."

The task requires restoring the stone cemetery gates, originally erected by the Glazier family back around the turn of the century, to like-new condition. The over-lying cement work must be removed, the mortar around the stones chipped out, and all put back together again while preserving the original appearance. Henes has bought a sand-blasting machine to clean off the old stones, and promises that their original colors and facets will sparkle as they originally did.

"We have to proceed carefully," he explained, "or the whole thing might come down. We will work on a few stones at a time, mortar them back into place, and then go on to another section."

"When it comes time to restore the cement work, we will build special forms on the site. The whole job is a real challenge to me as a mason. I bought the contract for $4,300, and may or may not make any money at that price, but I sure will learn some things. The experience will be useful in bidding on future jobs of this kind that I am interested in doing."

are chipping away with hammers and chisels, much as old-time artisans did. It's a long, slow, laborious process. In some skilled trades the old ways and tools are the best, despite all the advances in modern technology.

filled balloon without breaking it. In front are Mary Malott and Abbey Hanson. In rear, Walter Buchanan and Director Roberta Kemp. (Related picture on page 18.)

Thursday, Aug. 23, 1979— Melanie Schneider was crowned Chelsea Community Fair queen on the 25th anniversary of the date her mother, Shirley, competed in the 1954 fair queen contest. Melanie, sponsored by American Business Women's Association, is a junior at Chelsea High school and sang "He" as her talent. School district voters turned down a 1.7 mill increase at the special election Monday for the second and last time. The school board will decide program cuts at its Sept. 4 meeting. Marty Steinhauer won the national junior boys water skiing title last week in Duquoin, Ill. He set a midwest regional record in jumping with 107 feet on his way to the title. He has skied competitively for six years and was second in the nationals last year.

Thursday, Aug. 14, 1969— Negotiations between the school board and Chelsea Education Association, the teachers' union, are moving slowly, according to representatives of the CEA team. A state negotiator, who was called in after little progress was made between March and July, met with both teams Aug. 7. School administrators are on vacation now, so negotiations will resume Aug. 19. School is scheduled to start Sept. 3, and negotiations haven't moved beyond the non-economic issues yet. The vacation ended for a couple who passed bad checks at several local stores. They were arrested by the sheriff's department yesterday. The woman was wearing a two-piece swim suit and floating on a raft in the middle of Clear Lake, and her husband was sitting in a boat by the shore when sheriff's deputies arrived.

They had bought fishing equipment, food, swim suits, an iron and sweat shirts at eight village businesses with checks from a closed account.

The 25-year-old Ann Arbor man had escaped from a farm outside the prison walls. Local police were notified after he was missed during a routine check Thursday evening. The man was seen walking on Chelsea-Dexter Rd. and put up no resistance. He was serving a 10-year sentence for attempted criminal assault. Prison Population High Despite Overcrowding Orders Although prisoner sentences have been cut under a prison overcrowding order in effect since March 22, state officials are facing the prospect of having to declare a second overcrowding emergency order while the first is still in effect. An overcrowding emergency cannot be declared over until prison population drops to 95 percent of capacity and the early paroles granted since March have not yet reduced inmate levels close to that mark. The state's prison population is currently at 12,904 or 143 prisoners below the 13,047 rate capacity of the system, Gail Light, Department of Corrections Information Officer said. She added that is about what the population count has been running through the summer and is about 500 inmates higher than the 12,400 mark that represents the 95 percent capacity level permitting the overcrowding order to be rescinded. During the overcrowding emergency, prisoner minimum sentences are reduced 90 days. Another 90 days would be cut if a second emergency is declared on top of the current one. The first emergency was declared in 1981 and prisoners eligible for sentence reduction who have not yet been released have had a total of 450 days cut from their sentences. But with September and October constituting months when "higher than average" persons are imprisoned, Light said another order may have to be declared while the current one remains in force. September and October tend to be higher commitment months, she said, because many trials which have been delayed for summer vacation are resumed. If another emergency is required, it cannot be automatically declared as was the current operating emergency, Keith Roberts, assistant attorney general for corrections, said. The law provides for only one automatic re-triggering, which happened on March 22. An overcrowding order was first declared in December. If the prison population exceeds 100 percent for 30 consecutive days, then the corrections commission would have to certify that overcrowded conditions exist and Governor James Blanchard would have to declare an emergency. Roberts said it would not be enough for the old emergency order to simply remain in effect until prison population dropped to 95 percent of capacity. If another emergency is declared, it would be the sixth time the state has had to invoke the act's provisions. It would also be the first time an emergency was declared while one technically was underway. An emergency declaration does not actually mean prisoners are released early, but it does mean they may have earlier parole considerations. The current emergency was automatically declared after a December emergency declaration failed to reduce the prison population to 95 percent of capacity within 90 days. Light said the automatically renewed emergency does not have to expire within 90 days as the state tries to reduce the prison population. Don't forget to renew your Chelsea Standard subscription!

Ed Doolittle didn't have a crystal ball Saturday night at the country store, but he done some gazing into the future during the session. He had this clipping from a magazine predicting how life will be lived 50 year down the pike. Ed said life then is good news, since so much of what's going on now is aimed at putting an end to it. He passed along a few other items to the fellers. Buildings with 300 stories won't be unusual. Deserts will git water from icebergs. Colonies of people will be in harvesting minerals in space. Satellites will collect solar energy in space and beam it down. The United States won't depend on foreign oil. Planes will carry 1,000 passengers and we will run our jobs and homes with computers. It sounds like the good new days are going to put the good old days to shame, was Ed's words. Clem Webster said he hated looking at a half empty bottle instead of a half full one, but Ed's list confirmed his worst fears. Clem said the fact is, the longer people live the bigger problems they cause, and that's proof enough that the more we succeed the more we fail. For instant, Clem said, there'll be so many people in 50 year they won't have standing room on the ground so they'll have to pack in 300-story beehives. Colonies in space will be looking for food, Clem went on, cause there won't be enough down here. And probable the reason we won't depend on foreign oil is because there won't be none anywhere. Clem admitted he has been looking more on the dark side since he realized about half of the Federal Government's budget problems is caused by folks living longer. He had saw where a male born today can expect to live to be 73 and a female 81. By 1990 that will be up to 75 and 86, and by the time Ed's 50-year future rolls around 120 years will be ordinary. Social Security can't stand the strain now, Clem went on, and more drain is cause by retired Government workers drawing benefits longer. Actual, Clem said, men out-smarts himself at ever turn. He discovers diseases about as fast as he discovers cures for diseases, and he causes problems faster than he can solve em. Clem had saw where a scientist said a computer that can do 200 million operations per second is to slow because we got problems that would take our fastest computer 1,000 hours to solve and we can't wait that long. Even today, he went on, it is unusual when a computer gits everthing right. Just the other day he saw where a California company's computer got confused and mailed all 12,000 monthly statements to one person. How long, Clem ask, until the IRS's computer sends 41 million tax forms to everybody instead of one each to 41 million and we all suffocate under the paper. On top of everthing, Clem said, we got to spent $30 million to keep the Statue of Liberty standing another 50 year, and latest word is that the Leaning Tower in Italy will fall sure in 50 year if it ain't propped up at a cost of $11 million. Yours truly, Uncle Lew.

Motorists Alerted To Watch for Road Painting Crews

Within the next 10 days, motorists in the Lansing, Ann Arbor, Monroe and Jackson areas should be on the lookout for pavement-marking crews working on state highways. The crews, working under contract with the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), will be using a new polyester paint to apply lines along state highways and business routes in the cities of Jackson, Ann Arbor, Lansing and Monroe. Bright orange cones will be placed next to freshly-painted markings, but motorists are advised not to drive over any coned area because the paint is very hard to remove. If some gets on a vehicle, removal may require scraping, stripping or even sandblasting. The paint takes about 40 minutes to dry, unlike paint used in former years, which dried in a few minutes. The new paint will last about three years, however, compared with the former paint, which lasted less than a year.

Upon installation, each officer was given her new pin guard and a single carnation. As a token of appreciation, Judy Moisan presented out-going president

Micki Quackenbush with a pearl-studded guard.

The monthly vocational talk was given by Cheryl Nelson, who described her work at Mercywood Hospital in the therapy department. Guest speaker was Linda Carbeck, counselor from Soundings for Women, from Ann Arbor. She spoke on the Target Jobs for Women Program and the support activities that Soundings offers.

Meetings are held the fourth Tuesday of each month, in the Chelsea Community Hospital Dining room. For additional information please contact Nancy Morgan, 475-8823.

Hospital Errs in Information Regarding Victim of Auto Accident

Newspaper reporters, being human, are not infallible and so make mistakes. Some are their own fault; others result from trusting news sources believed to be reliable.

A story on page 4 of last week's edition of The Standard reported a traffic accident on I-94 in which Elmer J. Fountain, 71, of Grass Lake was injured. Mr. Fountain was being driven home by his wife, Mina, after an extended stay in the Veterans Administration Hospital at Ann Arbor for treatment of a heart condition when their car was hit from behind by a truck and knocked off the freeway into a woods.

This reporter went to the scene and was informed by sheriff's deputies and village police officers that Mr. Fountain had been taken to Chelsea Community Hospital in apparently serious condition.

A phone call to Chelsea Hospital produced information that Mr. Fountain had been transferred to University Hospital in Ann Arbor. A call was then made to the public information office at University Hospital. A spokesperson there said that Mr. Fountain had been discharged from the hospital in good condition on the day after admission.

The tragic fact is that Mr. Fountain died in University Hospital on Aug. 4, the same day that he was admitted. A call back to the hospital produced the explanation that someone had "made a mistake" in reading the records and so had given out wrong information.

The Standard, and this reporter in particular, regret the error and apologize for unknowingly adding to the sorrows of the Fountain family.

Food Stamp Distribution Sites Changed

Washtenaw County Department of Social Services has announced that effective Sept. 1, county recipients will be able to pick up their food stamps at either of two new sites in the county. The locations are: Washtenaw County Department of Social Services, 2350 W. Stadium Blvd., Ann Arbor 48103, and Washtenaw County Department of Social Services, Food Stamp Issuance Site, 209 Pearl, Suite 103, Ypsilanti 48197.

Operating hours for both sites will be continuous from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Food Stamps will not be distributed at the current six sites.

The change is necessitated by the state's move to a magnetic card (plastic card) issuance system which has proven to reduce the current administrative and programmatic costs of the program.

Recipients will receive in the mail during the month of August their ID card, magnetic card, Food Stamp pick-up schedule and maps showing the location of each issuance site.

The last day of business for the existing six issuance sites will be Wednesday, Aug. 31. Realizing that the closing of these sites may create some hardship and inconvenience for county recipients, the Department is working with local agencies to provide transportation or authorized representatives. The following local agencies have agreed to provide transportation assistance for recipients in their area:

Manchester—Manchester Social Services, Inc. Ph. 428-8852.

Milan (at this time Washtenaw County Recipients only)—Aid in Milan. Ph. 439-8420.

Saline (Monday-Friday, 10-3)—Saline Social Services. Ph. 429-4570.

Whitmore Lake—Whitmore Lake Community Service Center. Ph. 449-8452.

Christian Ministries To Present Films

Christian Film Ministries will present a double feature in the Chelsea High school auditorium on Friday and Saturday evenings from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The first film, titled "Flying High," is about hot air ballooning. The second, photographed in Colorado, is called "For Pete's Sake."

There is no charge for the showings, but donations are accepted. Refreshments will be available. Large groups may call 475-7880 to reserve group seatings.

FISHING FOR CRAYFISH: Casey Schiller (in dark shirt with the "7" on the back) and Scott Beard (peering into the net) went fishing for crayfish last week in the stretch of Lettis Creek that flows through Veterans Park. They had a ball.

"THEY WERE THIS BIG": Fishermen of all ages tend to stretch the measurements of their catfish. Had the crayfish caught by the two boys been as long as their out-stretched hands, they would have set some kind of a record.

VIEWING THE CATCH: The two boys take a close look at one of their crayfish captives, which is sitting up and looking right back at them. Casey is a Chelsea resident and will be a fourth grade pupil at South school this fall. Scott is from Ann Arbor and will enroll in the third grade there.

Hearing Set On Rezoning Old US-12 Lot

A public hearing has been scheduled by the village planning commission for Tuesday, Sept. 13, on proposed rezoning of property at 20701 Old US-12 from single-family residential to general commercial.

Owners Earl Heller and Don Thompson have not revealed what specific commercial intent they have for the property, a lot located next-door to Heller Electric & Supplies Co.

The lot is located on the north side of Old US-12, east of St. Barnabas Episcopal church and immediately north of Thompson's Pizzeria. The Archie W. Wilkinson estate is on the north side of Old US-12 next door to the property.

"I'm sure the planning commission will want to know the purpose of the rezoning request before taking any action," said Charles Winans, assistant to the village administrator. "I expect it will come out at the hearing."

The first machines for making paper bags were invented in the United States during the early 1860's.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

The village council's cautious approach to joining the Washtenaw County Development Council is understandable. Any venture into the unknown is best undertaken with a considerable amount of care, even skepticism.

For what it's worth, the suggestion from this Clock Tower observer is that the village should take the plunge, bite the bullet (to mix a couple of metaphors) and go ahead and join. Assuming the Development Council staff can deliver on even part of its promises, membership is a bargain.

That recommendation comes from a background which includes contractual work on industrial and commercial development promotions. They are, or at least can be, very costly undertakings. As a sub-contractor hired to prepare information and advertising materials, I have been paid a lot to do not very much, and the eventual cost of printing and production sometimes went out of sight. Had making money ever become the major objective of my life, I would have gone into the business full-time.

The price of placing an ad in a national publication such as the Wall Street Journal, New York Times, Business Week, Barron's, Fortune, U. S. News and World Report, Time, Newsweek and the other media which carry the message to persons who might be shopping for a place to locate a new enterprise will shock the uninitiated out of their shoes. The cost of setting up and manning a small and plain exhibit at a trade fair is kind of unbelievable until you have paid it.

The Development Council promises to do all that—and more—for the promotion of Chelsea's new industrial park, which right now is a cornfield on the south side of Sibley Rd. The asking price is $5,000 to join and belong for the first year, plus $2,000 a year thereafter.

Even if the first $5,000 up-front ante won't buy a full year's membership, as has been questioned, the price is dirt cheap. It is so cheap, in fact, that I have to question whether it is realistic. I have seen more money than that go into a modest piece of promotional literature or a one-shot advertisement in a single publication.

Still, after having listened three times to executive director Michael Ammann as he outlined the Development Council's promotional program, I am inclined to believe that his agency can do great good for Chelsea's industrial park, if only by bringing it to the attention of the business world out there.

The effort undoubtedly will have to be supplemented by effort—and money—from the village. As Ammann has pointed out, there are some 15,000 economic development agencies world-wide, and they are all competing in the same market for the attention of businesses and industries looking to start up, expand or relocate. There are no doubt several times 15,000 "industrial parks" or their equivalents seeking a slice of the pie.

The village has made a good start with the new Chamber of Commerce-sponsored loose-leaf booklet titled "Chelsea Is the Place for You... And Your Business." It's a dandy job, excellently conceived and carried out. A new "Chelsea Map and Guide" is in the mill. It, too, looks like it will be a winner.

Let there be no mistake, however, in thinking that those two publications will get the job done. They are beginnings of a long-term promotional campaign that will cost a lot in effort and money if the industrial park—and Chelsea—are to make a go of it.

As soon as the Sibley Rd. land is rezoned industrial, I hope to see a large billboard proclaiming the site for what it is—a good and inexpensive place to start up a business.

Chelsea has a lot going for it. The community is attractive for many reasons. The village is large enough to offer essential services, small enough to be a pleasant place to live. Land is relatively cheap. There is a supply of reliable labor. The village is accessible to transportation and the amenities of big-city life. Energetic, imaginative entrepreneurs like Howard and Dudley Holmes (Chelsea Milling) have proved that a well-run business can prosper here even in bad times.

Chelsea needs some things—upgrading of its sewer, water and solid waste systems, a motel, improved traffic patterns—to realize its business potential. All can be accomplished without changing the character of the village.

What Chelsea needs most, though, is to promote itself. That, too, can be done, and the Development Council can help.

Fair Queen Candidates

SANDY YOUNG, daughter of Carol and Bob Benedict of 7411 Bush Rd., Chelsea, will compete for Chelsea Community Fair queen under the sponsorship of McDonald's of Chelsea. Sandy is vice-president of the local Key Club and lieutenant-governor of the organization. She has been a trainer for the Chelsea High school track and swimming teams, and is also active in Methodist church youth work and teaching children. Her past fair activities include participation in 4-H clothing competition.

MICHELLE HARDEN, daughter of Lloyd and Beverly Harden of 143 Lincoln St., Chelsea, is entered in the fair queen contest with the Chelsea Big Boy restaurant as her sponsor. She has played powder puff football, and has entered pictures in local art shows. Her talent is drawing and painting. Michelle designed the logo for the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club.

GAYLA BAUER, daughter of Norman and Gail Bauer of 19917 Waterloo Rd., is sponsored in the fair queen contest by the Chelsea Kiwanis Club. She has participated in the last 15 Chelsea Community Fair parades, beginning when she was two years old. Her talent specialty is music, and she is active in many musical organizations. She has also been a cheerleader, a member of the Chelsea High school yearbook staff and a participant in forensics and debate. Gayla has shown horses in past fairs.

Revere's Riders Group Does Well in 4-H Fair

The Revere's Riders 4-H Club of Chelsea continued in its winning ways by having one of its members named a champion again this year at the Washtenaw County 4-H Show.

Stephanie Roberts, daughter of Joe and Linda Roberts, was named Junior Western Pleasure Champion riding her gelding, Digger. She will go on to compete at the State 4-H Show Aug. 23 at Lansing.

First-place ribbons also went to Steve Bush in his western equitation class and to Kathy Monaghan and Rhonda Evislizer in their respective fitting and showing classes. Numerous other second through sixth places were awarded to the club's 11 horses. All but one horse received an A rating.

The Revere's Riders, led by Janice Martin, look forward to showing at Chelsea Fair and a trail ride at Waterloo to finish out their summer of fun and work.

Railroad Society Buys Clinton Building

The Southern Michigan Railroad Society, Inc., Clinton-based group dedicated to the preservation of a local rail line, has purchased the former Clinton Engine Building, located on the corner of Clark and Division Sts., in the village of Clinton. The group had been restoring the structure under an option to purchase from the village.

The Society will use the building to have its indoor railroad museum and for a gift shop, waiting room, and rest rooms for the group's proposed operating railroad museum.

The purchase and restoration of the building is being financed by a grant from a local foundation, and through contributions from the public made through the Society's continuing fund drives.

Restoration of the building is now about 40% complete, with Society volunteers working each Sunday at the building beginning at 12 noon.

The Society plans to have the building open during Clinton's Fall Festival, Sept. 23-24-25.

Village Police Have Quiet Month of July

The Chelsea police department put in a rather routine July, according to the monthly report submitted to the village council by chief Robert Aeillo.

Radio runs increased over the June total, 310 to 281, but otherwise there was little variation in the activity statistics for the two months. The only other category that showed an increase in July was property checks, an indication that many people were away on vacation.

The department recovered a $128.50 check forged against Chelsea State Bank and found a stolen bicycle valued at $125.

While it may have been a hump-drum month, it was busy in the sense that village police kept on the go. They logged more than 8,000 miles on the department's two patrol cars.

Rezoning Recommended For Industrial Park

With one dissenting vote the village planning commission last week recommended rezoning of Chelsea's industrial park site on Sibley Rd. from agricultural to light industrial.

The negative vote was cast by Craig Coltre, who indicated he does not feel the site, which has been purchased by the village, is suitable for industrial development.

The planning commission's recommendation for rezoning now goes to the village council, whose approval seems certain in view of the fact that the council previously approved buying the land for development into an industrial park.

The rezoning action covers 70.1 of the 73 acres of land bought from Stuart Small for $139,000. The other 2.9 acres includes a house and several outbuildings which the council has suggested it may sell separately for residential purposes as a way of recovering part of the purchase price for the entire tract.

State Fair Slated For Aug. 26-Sept. 5

Where can you go to see a championship rodeo, auto thrill show, demolition derby, a circus, performance horse shows, big name entertainment, prize-winning crops, a petting farm and the biggest pig you've ever seen?

The 1983 Michigan State Fair has all this and more during 11 straight days of fun, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

This year's fairgoers will notice major improvements to the fairgrounds and exhibit buildings since last year's event. The Coliseum, livestock and exhibit halls have been completely renovated inside and out, and many areas are newly landscaped.

This year, the emphasis of the oldest fair in the nation is being returned to its original intent as a state-wide agricultural exhibition. Rural and urban residents alike can see blue-ribbon Michigan commodities on display and witness such events as a sheep-shearing contest and a livestock auction.

Everyone can still watch or participate in contests galore, be entertained by an array of special events or enjoy thrilling rides on the biggest midway in Michigan. Five acres of exhibits under one roof make a visit to the fair enjoyable even in inclement weather.

Featured free events this year are the Budweiser Championship Pro Rodeo in the all-new Budweiser Coliseum on Thursday, Sept. 1 at 7 p.m. and Friday, Sept. 2 at 2 and 7 p.m.; an Elias Brothers International circus, Monday through Friday, Aug. 29-Sept. 2; Joie Chitwood's thrill show from Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 1-3 at 2 and 7 p.m. and the Arbor Drug/Coca-Cola demolition derby on Sunday and Monday, Sept. 4-5.

Also free are the Firemen's Field Day in the grandstand on Sunday, Sept. 4, at 2 p.m., six days of performance horse shows in the Coliseum, televised coverage of Channel 2's "Stars of Tomorrow" talent show from Monday, Aug. 29, through Monday, Sept. 5, and a fireworks display by Kroger supermarkets on Kroger Day, Wednesday, Aug. 31.

Top entertainers including Rickie Skaggs, the Thrasher Brothers, Doc Severinsen and The Look, Join O'Bryan, Terri Gibbs, and the Rev. James Cleveland Gospel Show for free daily concerts in the bandshell.

Major paid entertainment in the grandstand includes country star Barbara Mandrell on Friday, Aug. 26 ($14, $12, $10) and Willie Nelson on Tuesday, Aug. 30 ($14, $13, $12). For rock fans, The Greg Kihn Band will perform on Saturday, Aug. 27 ($11, $10, $9), and singer/composer Luther Vandross will entertain on Monday, Aug. 29 ($11, $10, $9).

Advance tickets with reserved seating in the grandstand may be purchased by calling (313) 368-9347. Paid entertainment tickets include discount admission to the fair.

The Michigan State Fair is located at Woodward and Eight Mile Rds. Hours are 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Admission is $4 (children 11 and under free). Watch for discount admission and/or free ride promotions from sponsors such as the Michigan Lottery, Burger King, Kroger Supermarkets, Coca-Cola, Elias Brothers Restaurants and Borden Dairy.

EXAMINE MAMMOGRAM X-RAY: Dr. Janet K. Baum (right), head radiologist and chief of staff at Chelsea Community Hospital, and Peg Goodman, radiology technician, examine a film taken in the hospital's special mammogram X-ray room. The low-radiation exposures are used to detect early breast cancer and, according to Dr. Baum, represents the best and safest way to find such malignancies early and treat them successfully.

Chelsea Hospital Pioneers Successful New Method of Detecting Breast Cancer

Low-dose radiation X-ray mammograms, recently publicized in other local news media as "something different," have been provided at Chelsea Community Hospital since 1976, according to Dr. Janet K. Baum.

Dr. Baum is director of the Department of radiology at the hospital and is also chief of its medical staff.

A mammogram is, basically, a series of X-ray pictures of the female breast, taken from the top and side. It is, according to Dr. Baum, the best available technique for diagnosing early breast cancers.

"About 7-8 percent of all women will develop breast cancer during their lifetimes," Dr. Baum said. "If the lesion is picked up early through mammography, while it is less than one centimeter in size and is localized, the chances for successful surgical removal of the lump without recurrence of malignancy are 95-98 percent.

"Once the cancer grows larger and spreads into the lymph nodes, a mastectomy (breast removal) may be required. The surgery is much more radical, and the long-term survival rate is lower.

"Obviously, we have a technique (low-dose mammography) which will save lives and suffering, and that is the message we are trying to put across to women of all ages."

Unfortunately, Dr. Baum says, women have been frightened by "scare stories" on the dangers of exposure to X-ray radiation.

"We use a low-dose film technique, which includes a special machine in a special room, special film and special monitoring. The result is an exposure of less than one 'rad' per examination, well within acceptable limits. The average-sized woman could have 120 mammograms during her lifetime without increasing her chance of developing breast cancer by even one percent under the most conservative estimates."

According to new American Cancer Society guidelines issued June 4 of this year, all women between the ages of 35 and 40 should have a "base-line" mammogram. From then on they should have mammograms either every year or every other year, depending on their personal case-history risk factors, and annually after age 50.

Every woman from age 20 onward should do a monthly self-examination of her breasts, using techniques which can be learned from brochures supplied by the American Cancer Society. In addition, she should be checked at least every other year by a medical practitioner until age 40, and yearly after that.

Besides the fear of exposure to radiation, women are also concerned that a mammogram may turn up some symptom which will result in "disfiguring" surgery, such as a mastectomy.

"That attitude is self-defeating," Dr. Baum said. "The longer a woman waits, the more likely it is that a serious problem requiring radical surgery may be discovered. A lumpectomy to remove a small lesion discovered early is a relatively minor operation, and there is little or no disfigurement.

"In cases where breast removal is necessary, modern prosthetic devices worn under clothing provide a normal cosmetic appearance. You would be surprised by how many women are wearing them unknown to anyone except intimate family members and friends."

About one per cent of all breast cancers occur in men, Dr. Baum said, and males are likewise advised to examine themselves regularly for suspicious hardenings and lumps.

A mammogram at Chelsea Community Hospital costs $97, which Dr. Baum said is on "the low side" of charges made by radiology clinics across the country.

"I can't honestly say that a mammogram is painless," she said. "Taking an X-ray of soft tissue requires that the tissue be compressed so that the pictures will be clear and will show what we need to interpret from the films. But it doesn't hurt much, and it is quickly over."

If the X-rays show anything suspicious, Dr. Baum normally recommends a biopsy, in which a small piece of the suspected tissue is removed and then examined under a microscope for possible signs of malignancy. Biopsies are performed under a local anesthetic and are pain-free.

You can't just walk into Chelsea Community Hospital and order a mammogram, Dr. Baum stressed. Referral from a physician is required. She urged women to suggest to their doctors that the procedure be done as preventive medicine.

Not all medical insurance programs cover mammograms for "screening" (detection purposes) and in Dr. Baum's view that is both unfortunate and short-sighted.

"For less than $100 you may detect a condition that, if not found early, can eventually cost $40-50,000 to treat with ultimate failure to save the person's life. Looked at that way, mammography is pretty cheap."

Local Funeral Home Invited By Select Group

Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, 124 Park St., recently accepted a distinctive invitation into membership in National Selected Morticians, an international association of leading privately owned and independently operated funeral homes and mortuaries.

The new NSM member in Chelsea, the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home has been serving the public since 1862. The present owner and director, John W. Mitchell, has been associated with the firm since 1981.

Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home has been recognized by National Selected Morticians as meeting its high standards of invitational membership, and in providing responsible funeral service for those it is called upon to serve.

Membership in this international association is by invitation only. Dr. Frank W. Miller, executive director of NSM, said yesterday. Affiliation with NSM is considered an honor because of the high standards of funeral service which are required. Invitation to membership is extended only to a leading mortuary after a thorough investigation and evaluation of its standards of service, reputation and facilities has been made within the community.

As a member of National Selected Morticians, the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home has pledged itself to strict adherence to the NSM Code of Good Funeral Practice. This document is a clear statement of the obligations, responsibilities and high standards of professional conduct which must be observed by the members. Strict compliance by every NSM firm is a condition of membership. Failure to observe the Code's 10 provisions for funeral service in the public interest results in termination of membership.

The essential purposes of National Selected Morticians as an active and leading association in funeral service were explained by Mitchell. These are four-fold: 1) to study, develop and establish the highest standards of service for the benefit of the public; 2) to provide a continuing forum for the exchange, development and dissemination of knowledge and information beneficial to members and the public; 3) to furnish information to members and to the public regarding all aspects of funeral service; 4) to co-operate with other organizations, public and private, to achieve these purposes.

NSM Headquarters is in Evanston, Ill. More than 900 member mortuaries are located in key cities through the United States and Canada, as well as elected members in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France, Belgium, Sweden, Mexico, New Zealand, Australia, Sri Lanka, Guam and the Philippines.

Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home was congratulated by the president of National Selected Morticians, Donald G. Bryant, of Charlotte, N. C., who said, "I am privileged to welcome Staffan-Mitchell into NSM, with every assurance that this reliable firm will continue to serve the people of Chelsea in complete accord with the Principles and Code of Good Funeral Practice of our association."

Firemen Keep Busy, But Not on Fires

The Chelsea Fire Department did just about everything during July but put out fires. Of the 28 runs made, only five related directly to fires. Four of those were grass fires and the other a tree fire. It was an unusual month in that not a single building fire was reported.

Firemen made 11 rescue runs, responded to four traffic accidents involving injuries, sounded three tornado warnings, handled two instances of downed electric wires, and covered a boating accident and a drowning.

They also donated 110 man-hours of volunteer time working on equipment, assisting on events at the fairgrounds, watering ball fields, and participating in meetings.

HOME PROTECTION DEVICES: Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo displays the materials made available to him by the Kwikset Co. of Anaheim, Calif., for his use in presenting a program on protecting private homes against burglars.

Police Chief Offers Presentation On Protection Against Burglars

Want to know how to protect your home against burglars?

Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo is anxious to tell you and is soliciting appointments to speak on the subject to local groups.

Aeillo has received a 30-minute slide-tape show and a set of associated visual aids—types of locks and other devices—from the Kwikset Co. of Anaheim, Calif., and is anxious to present the message and give demonstrations.

"These materials have been given to us without cost, and they are very good," Aeillo said. The program will take 60 to 90 minutes to present, depending on the length of the question-and-answer period.

Aeillo may be contacted at the police department, 475-9122.

"Burglaries of homes and businesses are periodic in Chelsea," Aeillo said. "We go for months without having any, then suddenly we get a rash of them. We make an arrest, and the problem goes away for awhile, then somebody else starts 'working' out here and we have another bunch until we catch the criminal. We've always been successful in arresting and convicting the suspect, but sometimes not before several burglaries have been committed."

Even though Chelsea is not a high crime area and burglaries are rare here as compared to Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti (where they are so common that the local newspapers don't bother to report most of them) Aeillo urges Chelsea residents to take such precautions as putting stout locks and bolts on doors.

"You never know when you might be hit by a burglar," the chief said. "The more difficult you make it for somebody to gain entry into your home or place of business, the less likely you are to be a victim. Burglars look for the easy marks."

Aeillo's presentation on "Protecting Your Home" goes into such subjects as identifying your belongings, what to do if you are burglarized, and how to react if you become aware that an intruder is in your home.

How much are you paying for a business checking account at your bank? As much as $20 some months? Thirty? Fifty?

If you open an account at Ann Arbor Trust, you'll pay no more than $8 a month. Any month. And you could, with ease, maintain your account for free.

You see, we charge you only if your available balance falls below $2000. If you keep an average available monthly balance of between $1 and $999 in your account, you pay just an $8 monthly service fee. Between $1000 and $1999, just a $5 monthly fee. And a balance of $2000 or more in your account means you pay no service charges at all.

That's a welcome change from the policies of some area banks who charge you for each deposit you make, every check you write, and a monthly service fee to boot.

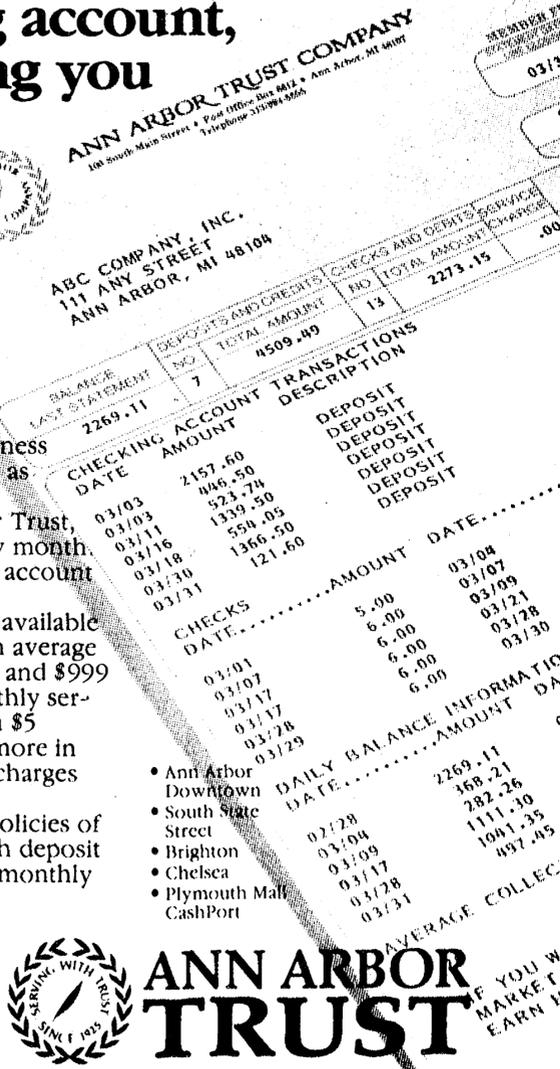

Next month, when your monthly statement arrives, sit down and figure out how much your account is costing you. Then move your money to Ann Arbor Trust. Because we feel eight dollars is enough.

39 Boys Turn Out For Opening Day Of Grid Practice

Thirty-nine candidates reported for varsity football practice early Monday morning, and coach Gene LaFave promptly put them through a tough five-hour work-out that had them breathing hard and sweating heavily before it was over.

LaFave said he was pleased with the general conditioning of the squad. "It looks like most of them worked hard to stay in shape during the summer, and they are ready to go. They could put on pads and do contact drills after a couple more days if the rules allowed."

Michigan State High School Athletic Association regulations prohibit contact (blocking and tackling) practice through the first week.

LaFave expects the squad to shake down to about 33 players through attrition and does not anticipate having to make cuts. "Those who stick out the practices and keep working and improving will stay," he said. "All we ask is dedicated effort."

The Chelsea gridders have just three weeks to get ready for their opening game against Novi on Sept. 9. The contest, scheduled as a home game, will instead be played at Dexter because the torn-up Bulldog field will not be in shape by then.

"It's not much time, but I'm confident we will be ready," LaFave said. "We have a strong nucleus of returning players from last year, and some fine prospects coming up from the junior varsity and freshman teams.

"Our biggest problem during the early part of the season will be to develop depth beyond our experienced players. I think the prospects are there, but it's going to take some time. Early-season injuries to key players could hurt us badly."

Among other things, LaFave has to come up with an all-new offensive backfield to replace the graduated trio of Dave Wojcicki, Russell Harris and Mike Hintzen.

Senior Marty Steinhauer, a wide receiver last year, has been tabbed as the quarterback to replace all-stater Wojcicki. A left-handed passer, Steinhauer ran only one series of plays at quarterback last season before going down with a head injury on a late hit.

"Marty is a fine all-around athlete," LaFave said. "He has good size and good skills. He will be a different type of quarterback than Wojcicki, but he can do the job. What he needs is experience."

Jay Marshall is slated to move into the left halfback spot vacated by Harris. Marshall played at flanker last year. He has good size, strength and speed and could, in LaFave's words, "be a real horse for us."

Moving into the right halfback position in LaFave's Y-formation is sophomore Rob Beckwith, who set all kinds of records on last fall's freshman team. Beckwith is small but very quick, the kind of runner who squirts through holes and darts into the open in a few fast steps, a break-away threat.

Another sophomore, Mark Mull, has the inside track at one wide receiver spot, but the other is wide open at this point. "Right now, he's Mr. X," LaFave said. "The position is up for grabs."

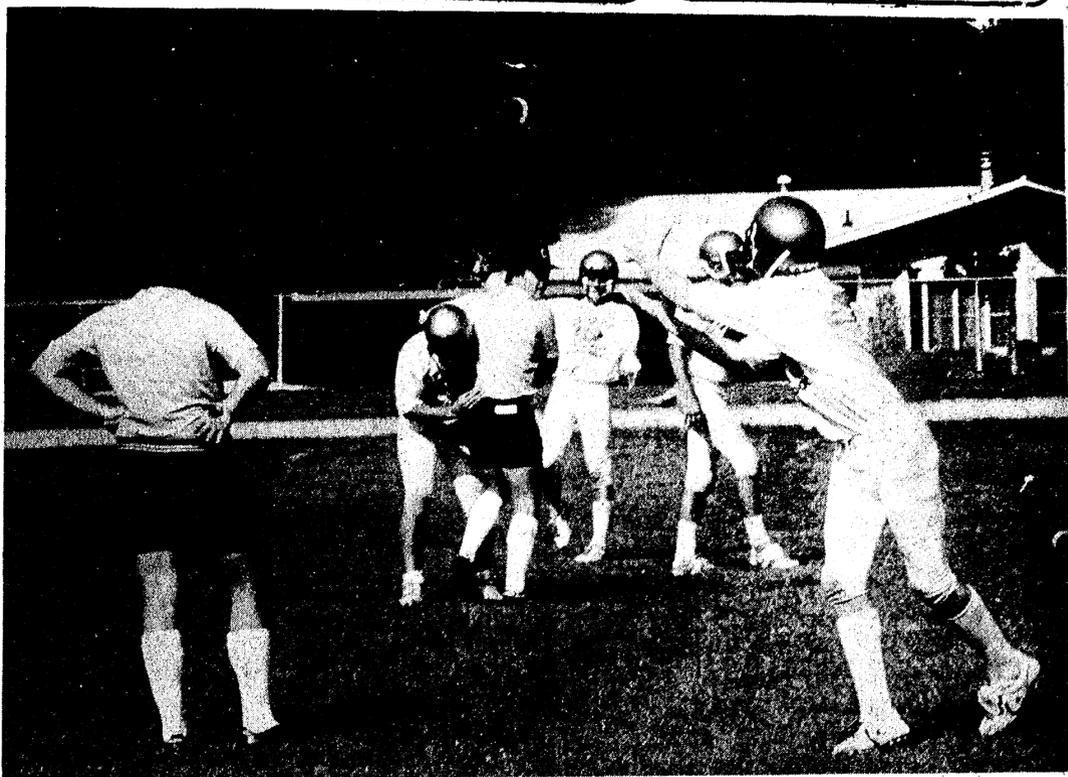

Junior Dave Steinhauer, Marty's younger brother, will be shifted from offensive guard to tight end, offering the prospect of a Steinhauer-to-Steinhauer passing combination. "Dave is going to be a very good tight end," LaFave said. "He's a fine receiver and an excellent blocker, the combination you look for at that position."

Leading the charge in the offensive line at left tackle will be David Kiel, biggest player on the squad, who will also play a lot on defense. Kiel is 6-5 and will weigh in at about 230.

"We need to find some more offensive linemen because we lost a lot of them through graduation, and I believe we have the boys to give us the up-front blocking to make our offense go," LaFave said.

Less certain is the defense, where graduation left many holes to be filled. "We have a lot of work to do to build a solid defensive unit," LaFave said, "but, again, I think the talent is there. We just have to put it together and get some experience."

The Bulldogs, who were 5-4 last season, are defending champions in the Southeastern Conference with a 4-1 mark last fall.

Frosh Gridders Asked To Report on Aug. 24

Coach Jim Tallman has issued a call to practice for all interested incoming freshman football players. They should report at 9 o'clock next Wednesday, Aug. 24 in the high school cafeteria for an organization meeting that will last until noon.

Boys who can't make the meeting but would like to try out for football should telephone Tallman at 475-7068.

"I would like to see a large turn-out, 30 to 35 boys," Tallman said. "Any eligible freshman is welcome. At the freshman level it's important that any boy who wants to play football be given a chance. You never know how kids are going to develop as they get older and more mature."

At least one member of last year's freshman squad, halfback Rob Beckwith, is tentatively slated for a starting spot as a sophomore on this fall's varsity team. Dave Steinhauer made that same jump last fall and became a stand-out lineman. "It doesn't happen often, but it does happen," Tallman noted. "At age 14 or 15, boys are going through a transitional stage of physical and mental growth. Coaching them is challenging and fun. You never know when somebody is going to blossom, and sometimes it's a boy that you least suspect at the start."

Stein & Goetz Team Finishes 13th in National Tourney

The Stein & Goetz Pacers women's fast pitch softball team from Ann Arbor, with Nanette Push and Amy Unterbrink of Chelsea doing the pitching, finished exactly in the middle of the 26-team pack in the national tournament held at Salt Lake City, U.

The Pacers were awarded 13th place after splitting the four games they played.

Unterbrink posted a 2-0 pitching record, winning the two games that she started. Push was charged with the team's two losses despite having pitched very well.

Stein & Goetz won their opening game, 3-2, in 12 innings, with Unterbrink going all the way and giving up seven hits. They lost the next one, also 3-2, in eight innings. Unterbrink kept the Pacers in contention with a one-hit, 2-0 shutout in the third game, but the team then bowed out of the double-elimination tournament with a 4-0 loss.

"We were behind only 1-0 in the sixth inning of that last game," Unterbrink said, "and Nanette was pitching well. Then things kind of came apart. We had some defensive breakdowns, and they scored three runs that they shouldn't have. Meanwhile, we couldn't score. We kept hitting the ball hard, but right at somebody. It was frustrating."

Unterbrink, who will be a sophomore at Indiana University this fall, said she "learned a lot" from competing in the national tournament. "I think that we (the Stein & Goetz team made up of college-age girls from the Ann Arbor area) can compete with anybody in the country. I honestly believe that I can pitch and win against anybody, and that's the attitude I will take back to school."

(As a freshman, Unterbrink led Indiana into the national collegiate women's softball tournament, where the Hoosiers eventually lost after making a fine showing.)

The difference between being a winner and an also-ran in the national tourney at Salt Lake City was professionalism," Unterbrink said. "The top teams had paid coaches and paid players, and they performed on a professional level. Comparatively, we were just kids. We had as much talent, but our techniques weren't as well perfected."

"We were out there playing for the fun of the game, and we had a good time. Salt Lake City and the surrounding countryside are beautiful, and the people treated us very well. It was an excellent experience. I'm looking forward to going to the nationals again, and doing better, just like I'm anticipating being in the college championships again next spring. I'm learning all the time."

Sports physicals for the Chelsea school system were held at the University of Michigan Family Practice Center at Chelsea during June. These physicals were made available to all students in the school system for grades 7-12 at a special rate of $3.

In total, 409 students were examined by the physicians at the center on the designated afternoon. All personnel at the center helped to assure that the exams were completed. Regular appointments at the center were not scheduled for that afternoon.

This fall, three physicians from the FPC will be supporting the athletic department at the high school as the team physicians. They are Drs. Robert Reinhardt, John Severin and Robert McCurry. Although the primary activity in the fall will be serving as medical support to the football team, they will be working with other athletic activities such as swimmers, gymnasts and the girls basketball team.

The physicians will be in attendance at all home football games and as many away games as possible. They will meet with the teams every Monday before practice to examine any injuries the athletes may have suffered in competition in the previous week. They will also meet with the teams every Thursday to examine any injuries which may have occurred during practice.

Nadeau Brothers Shine in Tourney

Three Nadeau brothers—Mike, Don and Ken—from Chelsea helped mightily as the Inner City Auto baseball team won the Ypsilanti Stan Musial League tournament and the right to play in the district tourney at Wyandotte this week-end.

Inner City Auto did it the hard way, climbing up through the Capt. James Storey With Marine Unit At Quantico, Va.

Marine Capt. James D. Storey, son of William F. And Jean C. Storey of 218 Jefferson, Chelsea, has reported for duty with Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va.

Girls Tennis Practice Begins at High School

Girls tennis practice began last Monday and will continue every day from 9 to 11 a.m. until school starts, coach Terry Schreiner announced.

Coach Schreiner will build her team around four returnees from last year's squad. Six seniors were lost to graduation.

"I hope to have at least 10 competitive players," she said. "It takes that many to form a solid tennis team. We are going to have to use some young players, and opportunities are wide open."

Although disappointed that the four new tennis courts projected to be built at the high school could not be constructed this spring as originally planned because of a lack of funds, Schreiner said she understands the reasons and hopes they can be put in next year.

"They will make a big difference to our program," she said. "Right now Chelsea doesn't loser's bracket in the double-elimination tournament.

Don, the starting catcher, had an excellent seven-game series, hitting .522. He had a double and a home run to go along with his six RBIs, which included one game winner. Don shone on defense as well, handling 52 chances without an error.

Mike batted .476 for the series with six RBIs and one game winner.

Ken went to the mound for the first time in six weeks to pitch a three-hit, one-run game. He struck out five while walking only one in going all the way for the victory. At one point in the game Ken sat down 18 straight batters. The Wyandotte District tournament will be Aug. 18-21.

have the facilities needed to support the kind of tennis program I hope to see develop here."

There are two courts at the high school and two more at North school, and it requires all four for a tennis team (either girls or boys) to practice and play matches on. "We have to do a lot of shuttling," coach Schreiner remarked.

Another problem with the tennis program is that only Saline among the present Southeastern Conference members has tennis teams. Pinckney, which will join the SEC next year, is a tennis school.

"We don't have a league, so we have to schedule matches where we can without travelling very far," Ms. Schreiner said. "That means playing against the schools in and around Ann Arbor which have excellent programs and are mostly Class A. The competition is very tough."

Local Soccer Team Wins Big Match

Even though they had only four days advance notice and had not practiced together since early June, the Chelsea Recreation soccer team defeated a team from England in a match played at Brighton last week. The score was 3-1.

The visitors from England had not previously lost a game since coming to the United States on tour, Chelsea coach Dennis Petsch said.

Chelsea scored early on a goal by Eric Schaffner, assisted by Brian Ackley, and added their other two before the first half ended, the first on an excellent solo shot by John Mitchell and the second by Ackley, assisted by Mitchell.

The English team came back strong in the second half, but Chelsea's defense, led by Dave Steinhauer and John W. Cox and fine goal-tending by Randy Sabo, held them in check.

"Our boys did an outstanding job," Petsch said. "Now all we need in Chelsea is for soccer to be a high school sport. There is a lot of talent here, perhaps enough for a state championship."

Day Camp Offered Handicapped County Residents

Camp Big Heart, a special day camp for handicapped residents of Washtenaw county 6 to 18, will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 22-26 at the Ypsilanti Township Recreation Center, 2025 E. Clark Rd.

Trained staff will supervise such activities as music, sports, drama, horticulture, movies, new games, picnics and nature study.

Camp Big Heart is the first of its kind in Washtenaw county and is funded by the Greater Ypsilanti Area Civitan Club and implemented through the co-operative efforts of the Washtenaw County Parks and Recreation Commission and the Ypsilanti Township Recreation Center. The cost is $25 for the week. Efforts to raise between $4,000 and $5,000 have already begun. Registrations must be received by Aug. 15.

RATTLESNAKE KILLED: Russell Scripter displays the massasauga rattlesnake killed by his father, Gary Scripter of 3355 Jeanette Dr., who found the poisonous reptile on McKinley Rd. and killed it with an improvised club. The seven-rattle tail had been cut off when this picture was taken.

Rattlesnake Killed On McKinley Rd.

Rattlesnakes aren't rare in southern Michigan, but they are uncommon enough that it is news when somebody finds one on the road, picks up a stick and kills the creature.

Gary Scripter of 3355 Jeanette Dr. spotted a rattlesnake while driving on McKinley Rd. half a mile east of Chelsea one day last week, got out of his car, and killed it.

The snake, an apparently pregnant female, was 15½ inches long and carried seven rattles on its tail—a typical specimen of the small massasauga rattlesnake ("Michigan rattler") which rarely grows to more than two feet.

The snakes are actually quite common but are not often seen because of their secretive habits. They are not aggressive toward people unless provoked. Their venomous bite is definitely dangerous, although there is no documented case of death from a rattlesnake bite in Michigan.

Massasaugas are native to all of the Lower Peninsula and have been found on the islands in the Straits of Mackinac, but none has ever been recorded in the Upper Peninsula.

It is difficult to make a case against killing a rattlesnake, of any species, whenever the opportunity offers. The reptiles are poisonous and therefore dangerous to people as well as domestic animals. They reproduce rapidly and are in no danger of extinction.

Harvest Festival Slated Sept. 18 at Cobblestone Farm

A festival to celebrate our bountiful harvest will be held on Sunday, Sept. 18 from 12 noon to 7 p.m. at the Cobblestone Farm.

Activities will include folk dancing, a honey harvest, herb display, and demonstrations of food preservation techniques. A pot-luck meal featuring home-grown foods will be held at 1 p.m. Those interested in participating should bring a dish to pass and place settings.

Judges from the Washtenaw County Co-operative Extension Service will award certificates for prize produce and canned goods.

This event is sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation, Project Grow, the Washtenaw County Co-operative Extension Service, and the Interfaith Council for Peace/CALC.

Admission to the historic farm house is $1 for adults, youth/seniors, 50¢. All other activities are free.

Cobblestone Farm is located at 2781 Packard Rd.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Thanks to a couple of Detroit professional teams—the Michigan Panthers and the Detroit Tigers—this hot and steamy summer has been more than normally interesting for area sports fans.

After an undistinguished start in the fledgling United States Football League, the Panthers beefed up their roster, got some momentum going, and came on strong to win a championship. It was the first time any Detroit pro football team has achieved anything of importance since the Lions won the National Football League crown in 1957. The dry spell lasted 26 years.

Judging from what I saw from watching a few televised games, the Panthers played a pretty decent brand of football, interesting to watch. They choked badly in the first half of the title game but collected themselves and did what they had to do to win.

What made the Panthers fun was their desire. A bunch of National Football League rejects and cast-offs for the most part, they were out to prove that they were good enough to play pro football. Their execution didn't match NFL standards, but their intensity made up for much of the difference. They came to play.

Surprising to many (including me) who believed that victory-starved Detroit area fans would support a winning team in any sport, the Panthers did poorly at the gate. Their average home game attendance was second lowest in the 16-team league, although the last few games did produce respectable crowds.

I remain skeptical that football played during the spring and summer in direct competition with baseball will ever catch on big with the public as a "live" spectator sport. The USFL's future, if it has one, may well lie primarily in television. Given the number of dull baseball games that TV projects, sports fans may be happy to tune in to something else.

That brings me to the Detroit Tigers, who are hanging on in the race in the tough American League East and, at this writing, had as good a chance as anybody to win it. They have edged into first place a couple of times only to fall back by losing critical games, but have managed to stay close.

My feeling is that the Tigers don't have quite as much talent as the Yankees, Orioles and Brewers and will eventually lose out to one of those three during a stretch run that shapes up as one of the most exciting in the recent history of Major League baseball.

The team that can avoid a disastrous losing streak during the next six weeks, and can string together a bunch of victories at the end, will be the winner. I question whether Detroit has enough pitching depth to hold on and win, but the Tigers have an honest shot at this stage of the race. That is more than can be said of their performances in recent years when they regularly played themselves out of contention by the All-Star Game break and went through motions during the second half of the season.

What the Detroiters need more than anything is a boost from some of their second-line players. Lance Parrish, Lou Whitaker, Alan Trammell, Larry Herndon, Chet Lemon, Glenn Wilson, Dan Petry, Jack Morris, Dave Rosema, Juan Berenguer and (most important of them all) Aurelio Lopez have had to carry most of the load, while the rest of the roster has sort of sat around and watched.

A surge by potential superstar Kirk Gibson, for example, could make the difference between finishing first or back in the pack. Gibson remains an enigma. He has all the tools for greatness and has shown in spurts over the years that he can use them.

Plagued by injuries through most his career, Gibson has been relatively healthy this year, but is suffering so far through his poorest season ever. The fans have gotten down on him, and he appears to have gotten down on himself as a result—a classic case of "rabbit ears." A few big swings of the bat would turn the situation around in a hurry.

The Tigers, like the Panthers, have not done well at the gate this season, and that is really surprising considering that they have been in the thick of the division race since day one. At last count attendance was running more than 100,000 below last year, when the team never seriously threatened to win anything.

It makes you wonder if Detroit fans can any longer be counted on to turn out automatically, especially at today's ridiculously high ticket prices (caused by ridiculously high player salaries). The impression is that people are waiting to see if a team's performance is really worth the price of admission before they plunk down a lot of dollars to watch it.

Plan Commission Delays Decision On Home Sites

The Chelsea Planning Commission will wait at least 30 days following its Aug. 9 meeting to decide on a rezoning request for the Salyer property off Wilkinson St., where a development company headed by realtor Robert Thornton, Jr., proposes to build 28 clustered residential homes.

Thornton is seeking approval of a Planned Unit District (PUD) for residential purposes, the first such request since the provision was put into the village ordinance in 1977.

Thornton appeared before the seven-member planning commission and answered many questions during a public hearing attended by many neighborhood residents who expressed concerns about increased traffic and water run-off problems.

The motion to delay for 30 days was made and passed after several commissioners asked for more information about the potential traffic situation that the development would generate.

Salem Lutheran Church Will Be 150 Years Old

In 1831 a small group of German Lutheran immigrants came to Washtenaw county (part of the Northwest Territory, later became Scio township) and settled near what is now the corner of Scio Church and Strieter Rds.

A log cabin, north of the present church, served as their first church. Seeking for a Lutheran pastor to serve them, they appealed to the Basel Mission Society of Germany. In 1833, the society sent the Rev. Friedrich Schmid to serve them.

The Rev. Schmid made his way on horseback to many settlements in southern and central Michigan, organizing Lutheran congregations.

On Aug. 26, 1833, the Rev. Schmid conducted his first service in Washtenaw county in a school house about four miles west of Ann Arbor. On Sept. 20, 1833, he established Salem congregation in Michigan.

The first church building became, too small, and another

Warrant Arrests By Chelsea Police Increase Recently

Chelsea police have been making an unusually large number of warrant arrests, chief Robert Aeillo reports. Such arrests are made on "wanted" warrants issued in other police jurisdictions.

"Sometimes we are notified that a wanted person may be in our area, and we locate the person," Aeillo explained. "In other cases we apprehend a person for some other offense, check through the computerized state files and discover that there is a warrant out for that person."

Most of the recent arrests have resulted from routine traffic stops, Aeillo said, and none of the persons involved has been from the local area.

"We average about 25 such arrests a year, but the number goes up and down," he added. "We hit a high of 56 in 1979. The way things are going, we could approach that total this year."

Health Care Conference Slated Aug. 22 at U-M

Consumers and providers of health care in Washtenaw county will gather in the Courtyard garden of the University of Michigan School of Education for a light picnic supper and informal orientation program on Monday, Aug. 22, from 6:15 to 9:30 p.m., rain or shine.

Invitation is extended to everyone interested in improving the match of consumer needs and provider services through recommendations channeled to the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Mich (CHPC/SEM) from its Subarea Advisory Council (SAC) of Washtenaw county.

open to the public, and Washtenaw consumers are encouraged not only to participate, but also to apply for membership on the county's SAC, which meets monthly.

To aid those attending Monday's meeting, the U-M School of Education—on E. University, between S. University and Monroe—offers free parking after 6 p.m. in the Hill St. structure, one block south (by the Paton Accounting Center sign).

Gates to the Courtyard, mid-building off E. University, are to be left open. Guide signs will be posted to follow as needed.

State Wildlife Habitat Foundation Promoting Wetlands Restoration

Wildlife enthusiasts now have a chance to buy a "share" in a wetland project which will restore 230 acres of permanent marsh.

The Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation is raising $40,000 necessary for the Mill-Ander Wetland Restoration Project on the Maple River, north of Lansing. In announcing the share offering, Dan Robbins of Grass Lake, president of the foundation, stressed the importance of citizen support for wildlife during this time of budget shortages in state and federal programs.

"Until now the private sector has never been called on for direct support of wildlife management. However, if wildlife is to thrive in these difficult times each of us who enjoy it must make an extra commitment to help," stated Robbins. This project offers citizens the unique opportunity to buy stock in the future of wildlife by purchasing one of the 230 shares offered.

Share-holders will receive one of 230 reproductions of an oil painting done by Andrew Kurzmann of Battle Creek. Kurzmann, the 1979 state duck stamp winner, painted the restoration site along US-27. Each share-holder's print will be signed by former Governor Milliken and former State Rep. Tom Anderson (now a member of the Natural Resources Commission) for whom the project was named. The project print is the "First of Series," meaning that each year the foundation will have a prominent artist do a project print. The "share" will also include a share-holder's certificate suitable for framing and a lapel pin depicting the great blue heron found in the painting.

The $130 investment will sponsor one acre of restoration and yield wildlife dividends every year in perpetuity. Surveys of the existing marsh along US-27 show that the new wetlands should produce about one brood of ducks per acre in good years. The area will also be suited for wading birds and other wetland species. Bird-watching, waterfowl hunting, and nature walks are the most popular uses of the area.

The project was named after Milliken and Anderson for their two decades of conservation achievements. Robbins attributes the progressive natural resource policy of our state largely to those two men. "What more fitting way to remember their efforts than to name a major wetland project in their honor. The restoration of a living marsh will be a lasting tribute from the conservationists of Michigan," said Robbins.

To request a prospectus on this investment opportunity contact the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation, 2325 S. Cedar, Lansing 48910, telephone (517) 675-5300. A project share may be purchased by sending a tax-deductible contribution of $130 plus $6 for postage and handling to the same address.

The Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation was organized out of the need for a private-sector program to enhance wildlife habitat. The recent lack of funding has changed the traditional role of government in managing wildlife resources, thus requiring the private sector's help. The foundation will try to fill the void by bringing together the various interests in a program to benefit wildlife.

The foundation is not a membership organization, but is a tax-exempt trust designed to help other groups fulfill their wildlife management objectives. Wilderness Survival Training Course Offered

Washtenaw county older youths and adults who want to learn more about wilderness survival may take advantage of the opportunity to participate in the 4-H Challenge wilderness adventure training program.

Through the 4-H Challenge program, participants learn a variety of skills, including hiking and backpacking, canoeing, cross-country skiing, orienteering, and wilderness cooking and survival. According to Bernadette Sietz-Garbe, 4-H Youth Agent, county residents interested in becoming part of the Challenge program and, after training, serving as group leaders for young people, should sign up now.

The 4-H Challenge leader training will be held Sept. 16-18.

Anyone interested in becoming a Challenge leader must attend four week-end intensive training sessions, pass a comprehensive written test and take a Multi-Media Standard First Aid and CPR course. Additional training in areas such as climbing and rappelling, caving, survival, canoeing, kayaking, sailing, bike touring, winter survival (including skiing and snowshoeing) and wilderness backpacking is available.

"Because Challenge leaders questions about local wildlife projects.

Individuals and organizations may donate directly to wildlife habitat by sending tax-exempt contributions to the foundation. Because the operating budget of the new organization has been underwritten, all contributions made to the foundation will go directly into habitat projects.

Wildlife habitat improvements and developments will be chosen in consultation with state and federal wildlife agencies. It is expected that wetlands habitat will be given top priority initially, but that endangered species projects and all other wildlife needs will be considered for funding.

will be involved in high adventure situations and be responsible for youngsters participating in wilderness outings, they must be prepared," Sietz-Garbe points out. "After completing all the training, Challenge leaders become certified and are qualified to take youths on wilderness adventures.

"It's worth all the hard work and studying if you like the challenge of the out-of-doors."

To be eligible for the 4-H Challenge certification program, applicants must be at least 21 years old. Young people aged 16-20 years may become associate leaders, who must be accompanied by a certified adult leader when taking a group of youngsters on a Challenge outing. Training for both leader types is identical.

Washtenaw county residents interested in signing up for the 4-H Challenge Leader certification program should contact Bernadette Sietz-Garbe at the Washtenaw County Co-operative Extension Service office, or call 973-9510.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Canoes have an undeserved reputation for being dangerous. The fact is that, if properly respected and used, a canoe is as safe as any other type of small boat, and safer than some.

I say that from the viewpoint of having canoed for 40 years and from having spent a considerable chunk of my outdoor life on the water in a variety of boats, from eight-foot prams to small houseboats. I own a canoe and have never been afraid of it. I can't say the same for some other boats that I have known.

(Racing models are exceptions to the rule that canoes are safe for general recreational use. Those specially designed low and narrow craft are for experts only. If you feel you must try one, wear a bathing suit and a life jacket, and expect to get wet.)

Recreational canoes come in a variety of lengths, the most common being 13, 15 and 17 feet. The longer the canoe, the larger its load capacity. A 13-footer will carry two people and very little else. My 15-foot model with a load factor of 550 pounds will accommodate three normal-sized adults provided they don't take much with them, but it's really intended for two. A 17-footer will hold three people comfortably, or two plus a sizeable load of gear. There are even larger canoes available by special order.

The maximum safe load for a canoe (or any other type of boat) is required by law to be listed on an engraved metal plate permanently fixed to the craft. Find it, read it, and remember it. Remember, too, that the number is the maximum, the top limit. My personal rule is to stay at least 50 pounds under.

Unless you own a very old one, your canoe will have flotation material built into it which insures that it won't sink even if swamped. In the event of a tip-over, the canoe will support its occupants if they grab, hang on and submerge themselves so that only their heads are out of the water.

Righting a capsized canoe, emptying it and climbing back aboard is a tricky business, a maneuver that should be practiced and learned in shallow water. If you don't know how to do it, it's best not to experiment in an emergency. You are better off hanging onto the overturned craft until help arrives.

Actually, there is no reason why you should ever have to worry about your canoe capsizing, if you follow a couple of simple rules. The first and most obvious is, don't ever stand up in a canoe. The second is to paddle from a kneeling posture, with your knees on the bottom and your rump resting on a cross-thwart. That is not only the safest way to paddle, it is also the most efficient because it positions your upper arms, shoulders and back to exert the most leverage with the least effort.

Time was when canoes were constructed without seats. It was an excellent idea that should never have been dropped. By kneeling, occupants put most of their weight below the canoe's center of gravity so that the craft can scarcely be rocked, much less upset.

If the weather gets really wild, sit in the bottom of the canoe, and you can ride out a gale. I know, because I did it once, having misjudged the force of an offshore wind while paddling out to retrieve a duck decoy that had broken loose from its anchor line. On finding that I couldn't turn around and go back, I simply sat down in the bottom and drifted to the far shore, pushed by two-foot waves. Not a drop of water came on board.

Personal flotation devices (life jackets or belts) provide extra added insurance, and are required by law besides. Any Coast Guard-approved device that has been properly put on and fastened won't come off your body no matter what, and it will keep you afloat should you unexpectedly find yourself in the drink.

Even if you can swim like a fish, wear the flotation gear. There is always the outside chance of a disabling injury in case of an accident. A life jacket stashed in some out-of-the-way place is useless when you need it most. It belongs on your body.

Canoes are fun. I have gotten more enjoyment out of owning and using one than I have from any other kind of boat, which is why I gradually got rid of the others and kept the canoe.

Canoes are likewise safe if you apply common sense in using them—safer, I suspect, than automobiles although I have no statistics to prove it. They are relatively cheap to buy (you can get a pretty good one for $300 if you shop around) and those made of aluminum, fiberglass or Kevlar require virtually no maintenance and can be stored outside year-around. I can't testify how long a quality canoe will last, but my aluminum model is going on 20 years and is in as good shape as the day I bought it. I am going to have to replace the wood paddles one of these years.

Washtenaw Has Big Share of Trophy Deer

The second-best buck deer taken in Michigan during the 1982 regular firearm deer season came from Washtenaw county, according to Commemorative Bucks of Michigan, a group of sportsmen who measure and rank trophy deer.

James McAlestine of Ann Arbor was the successful hunter. His trophy scored 166 1/8 points on the Boone and Crockett Club's antler-measuring scale, 4 1/2 points less than the winning buck shot in Berrien county by a Crete, Ill., sportsman.

Third place went to James Corwin of Munnith for a Jackson county buck that scored 163 7/8 points.

Janet Salyer of Chelsea topped women entrants with a Washtenaw county buck that measured out at 152 points, and Walter Kempher of Manchester was second in the black powder (muzzle-loader) division at 136.

The Boone and Crockett Wives are less likely than other women to work year-round full-time; and the presence of children affects the amount of time some wives devote to work outside the home: about 73 percent of wives with no children under 18 worked year-round full-time, compared with 44 percent of those with children, according to a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Group Organizes To Fight Drugs

Organization of a group called Chelsea Citizens Against Drugs (CCAD) has been announced by Mrs. Juanita Murphy, one of the five families who have gotten together to co-found it.

"There definitely is a problem in the community," Mrs. Murphy said, "and we know it. We know it reaches down even into the elementary school level. We want to be effective in doing something about it."

Except for Mrs. Murphy, the five couples involved in organizing the group asked to be known by first names and telephone

Drowning Victim's Body Located

The body of Harold D. Hill, 17, of Detroit, who drowned in North Lake Aug. 4 in a canoeing accident, was found last Thursday after it floated to the surface and was discovered by a party of fishermen.

Sheriff's department divers had been searching in 60-foot-deep water for the victim. Young Hill was visiting two friends at Camp Burt Shurley. The three went out in a canoe, and it capsized. The other two occupants clung to the overturned craft and were saved. Hill's lifejacket apparently slipped off as he fell overboard and, unable to swim, he drowned.

Make your own peanut butter at home. Combine two cups roasted nuts and a tablespoon of oil. Add a half teaspoon of salt unless salted nuts are used. Process in a blender or food processor until soft.
