Fair Opens Under Hot, Humid Skies

Four Big Days Ahead Filled With Contests, Entertainment, Fun

"WE'RE SCARED TO DEATH": Ronald Olmsted, organizer of a local campaign to fence or close the Cassidy Lake Technical School, holds up a knife stolen from his Ivey Rd. home by three escapees from the school. The trio dropped their loot while being pursued by police.

Chelsea Community Fair opened yesterday under hot and humid skies with a forecast of rain later in the evening, to be followed by cooler and more pleasant fair-going weather the rest of the week.

Fair officials were hoping that attendance would break the 33,000 record set last year for the five-day event.

Main events scheduled yesterday were the Children's Parade beginning at 6 p.m., followed by the Fair Queen contest at 6:30 and the Demolition Derby at 7:30. All of those occurred after this edition of The Standard went to press.

Today was to be highlighted by judging of rabbits, sheep, horses, beef cattle and swine, with another Demolition Derby in the evening.

Thursday highlights include an English performance horse show at 9 a.m., and the antique tractor pulling contest at 10 a.m.

Thursday evening will feature the Livestock Auction at 7 p.m., and the B bar J Rodeo starting at 8:30.

Friday activities begin with a repeat of last year's popular Ladies Day at 8:30 a.m. Included in the morning program will be an address by Mary Keith Ballantine, former State Rep.; a flower arrangement demonstration by Sandy Zeeb of Chelsea Greenhouse; a presentation covering "Timely Meat Tips" by a butcher from Polly's Market.

Ladies will also be treated to a performance by the Sirab Dance

Troupe, a performance of the Kitchen Band from Jackson, and an appearance of Inza Bristle of Dexter, many times State Fair husband-calling champion.

A special Homemaker of the Year award will be announced and presented before the noon time conclusion of Ladies Day.

Tractor Pulling contests begin at 10 a.m. Friday and continue Friday evening.

Saturday morning starts with a Family Practice Center Fun Run at 8:30, followed by an Open Horse Show at 9, and a Compact Tractor Pull at 10.

At 1 p.m. Saturday a giant Fair Parade will step off downtown for its march to the Fairgrounds.

Saturday evening features a 4-Wheel Drive Speed Pulling Contest.

Teachers Approve Contract Agreement

Members of the Chelsea Education Association (CEA) overwhelmingly ratified the proposed new three-year teachers contract agreement last Wednesday night.

The vote among the 89 of the 136 members present at the ratification meeting was: yes, 73; no, 14; abstentions, 2.

The 47 persons eligible to vote who did not attend the meeting "probably were on vacation," said Cathy Vlcek, president of the CEA.

Next step in the ratification process is a vote by the Board of Education, scheduled at its Tuesday evening, Sept. 6, meeting. The board is expected to approve the agreement, but nothing is for sure until the board is polled and the votes counted.

Meanwhile, details of the three-year pact are being withheld from publication at the request of both parties. The accord includes improvements in salaries, fringe benefits and working conditions.

School will open on the morning of Sept. 6, as scheduled, even though the final step of contract ratification (board approval) will not have been completed. "The teachers will be there," Mrs. Vlcek promised.

"This community (the Chelsea School District) passed a millage proposal last June which provides that programs will continue at present levels and no personnel will be laid off for financial reasons," Mrs. Vlcek commented.

"We (CEA) appreciated that vote. School district residents supported us. We are supporting them."

"When we look at what is happening in other school districts, including the one (Dexter) just 10 miles down the road, we have to be thankful for the fact that we have been able to reach an agreement that we feel is equitable and that we can live with."

"The bargaining was done in good faith on both sides. The relationship is constructive. The June millage vote probably was the key to the whole thing. It showed that the people here support quality education."

Fred Mills, assistant superintendent who was deeply involved in the negotiations leading up to the tentative contract, said he is confident the school board will ratify it, noting that board members were kept "closely informed" on progress of the talks.

"Judging from what I hear from administrators in other districts around here, I'm very pleased that our Chelsea schools will open on schedule Sept. 6," Mills said. "We seem to be an exception, a center of calm in the middle of a storm."

"Give the voters and the CEA credit. It couldn't have happened without them."

Cassidy Lake Escapees Caught After Crime Spree

Three inmates of the Cassidy Lake Technical School ran off from the institution late last Wednesday night and caused a local reign of terror for nearly 24 hours before they were recaptured by Washtenaw sheriff's deputies and Chelsea police.

Their escapade—which included two burglaries—touched off a wave of indignation in the local community and led to organization of a Committee to Fence or Close Cassidy Lake Prison. (See separate story.)

Arrested after a chase through the woods and swamps northwest of Chelsea that lasted more than 12 hours and involved some 15 police officers, two tracking dogs and a helicopter were:

Henry T. Clifton, 18, of Flint, serving 1½-2½ years for auto theft.

Daril Streets, 23, of Grand Rapids, serving 5-15 years for assault during the commission of a robbery plus concurrent terms on two drug charges.

Raymond J. Szelepsi, 18, of Hazel Park, serving 1½-10 years for burglary.

As the story was reconstructed by police officers who participated in the chase and capture, it happened like this:

The three felons walked off the Cassidy Lake grounds sometime after 9 p.m. on Wednesday. They were reported escaped at 10:35 p.m. after having turned up missing at a bed check. By their own admission, they slept in a nearby woods overnight, woke about noon the next day, and made their way on foot toward Chelsea.

Shortly after, they spotted a house owned by Ronald Olmsted at 19816 Ivey Rd. and broke in through a basement window, cutting themselves in the process. They proceeded to ransack the house, picking up an assortment of items including knives, cameras, watches, cash, two cases of beer and some food.

Olmsted's son, Craig, 18, came home at about 1:15 p.m. As he was entering the back door, the burglars fled out the front, carrying their loot in canvas camping bags also stolen from the Olmsted home.

Police were called, and a contingent of sheriff's officers led by Sgt. Don Wenk, Detective Paul Wade and Deputy Thomas Kern responded. They called for the assistance of a tracking dog controlled by Deputy Robert Marsh and a helicopter flown by Deputy Joseph Marshall.

The dog struck the track, and the officers pursued the fugitives through woods and brush, muck and mire. "I know we were close to them several times because we could hear the brush cracking," Wade said. "But it was so thick in there you couldn't see anybody three feet away. We were up to our chests in slime some of the time. It was slow, hard going."

Under pressure of the pursuit the three escapees dropped their stolen goods. Olmsted said later that, as far as he could deter-

'Fence It or Close It,' Demands Group Opposing Cassidy Lake

When three runaways from Cassidy Lake Technical School broke into the home of Ron Olmsted on Ivey Rd. last Thursday, they picked on the wrong man.

As a result, the Chelsea community is as close to being up in arms as it has been in a long time, and this is probably only the beginning.

Normally a mild-mannered person, Olmsted became so outraged over the burglary of his house that he organized a local Committee to Fence or Close Cassidy Lake Prison within hours of the incident. He has enrolled more than 200 members so far, and is seeking more.

"We're going to send letters to Lansing, stage demonstrations outside the grounds of Cassidy Lake, do whatever it takes to get the place fenced or closed,"

Olmsted promised. "We're scared as hell, and we're not going to take it anymore."

Olmsted directs public relations for Chelsea Community Hospital and has had a lot of experience in organizing and directing campaigns of one kind or another. He undoubtedly has never put as much of his heart and soul into any of them as he is committing to this one.

Ironically, Olmsted has been something of an apologist for Cassidy Lake in the past. For the past 18 months he has served on the Chelsea citizens advisory board which has sought to create a better relationship between the prison and the community.

Earlier this year, following several stories in The Standard about escapees from Cassidy Lake, he persuaded this reporter to write a series of stories about the institution, its purposes and programs.

Now, he is demanding it be either tightly fenced and secured, or shut down.

"Sure I've changed my mind," Olmsted acknowledged. "The institution has changed, and so have I. It used to be a place where they put young first offenders who had committed minor crimes, hubcap stealers. Now they are housing multiple violators, men with records of violence, drug users. It's a different kind of prison."

Olmsted admits that the break-in was what tipped his mental scales in favor of his "fence it or close it" campaign. "It was a very personal thing," he says. "It was bad enough that they came into my house, stole a bunch of (Continued on page eight)

Two More Escapees Caught; One at Large

Two of three convicts who escaped from Camp Waterloo early Tuesday morning had been recaptured by Chelsea police as The Standard went to press. The third is still being sought and is believed to be in the area.

Police chief Robert Aeillo said his department was alerted at 12:36 a.m. About four hours later reserve police officer Dennis Petsch radioed that he had seen a man running in the vicinity of Broderick's Tower Shell and Schumm's restaurant.

Patrolman Pete Graves and his tracking dog, Jake, went to the scene while other officers set up a perimeter. Jake caught the scent and led Graves into a field of high weeds west of Schumm's.

Graves moved in and spotted Lonnie W. Watson, 26, of Detroit, who is serving 1-5 years for larceny, his second felony conviction, lying in the weeds. Watson offered no resistance as Graves arrested him with Jake close by.

It was Jake's first official "find" since he became a tracking dog for the Chelsea police department.

Two hours later Aeillo received a call from Broderick's reporting a suspicious person who had come into the station to make a telephone call. He and Graves went out and arrested Robert M. Egres, 29, of Pontiac as he was walking along the M-52 ramp toward I-94. Egres is serving 2-5 years for possession of a sawed-off shotgun, his fourth felony conviction.

Still at large as The Standard went to press was Michael Lee Jackson, 31, of Detroit, doing 6-15 years for burglary, second conviction. He is described as white, six feet tall, weighing 225 pounds, brown eyes and brown hair, with scars on his forehead and right knee.

"We think he's still hiding out there in that general area," Aeillo said. "If he surfaces, we'll get him. All we need is for somebody to see him so we can get on his trail."

Aeillo credited deputies Chris Spork and Roger Stielow of the Washtenaw sheriff's department and partman Herb Mahoney of the Manchester police department for their assistance.

That all brought the week's score for escapees from Cassidy Lake and Camp Waterloo to nine—four from Cassidy Lake and five from Camp Waterloo—with seven recaptures.

4 Years Ago . . .
Thursday, Sept. 6, 1979—Chelsea schools opened on schedule after a marathon round of bargaining on a new teacher contract that carried through the Labor Day weekend and beyond. Teachers had threatened to strike if an agreement had not been reached and ratified prior to the first day of school. However, all but five showed up for work upon receiving news of a tentative accord.

Meanwhile, the board of education slashed $143,305 from the operating budget to make ends meet after voters turned down a request for additional millage. Cuts were made primarily in the areas of capital outlay and supplies.

Head football coach Gene LaFave, starting his first season at Chelsea High school, promised that the Bulldogs will have "a new look" this fall, emphasizing quickness and deception instead of sheer power.

Chelsea cross country coach Pat Clarke is confident the girls team will be improved, thanks to the addition of freshman Sandra Frame.

14 Years Ago . . .
Thursday, Aug. 28, 1969—Negotiations continued on a new contract between the Chelsea Education Association and the Board of Education, and the list of 127 issues was narrowed through agreement on some of them. CEA spokesman Leonard Solomon said the grievance procedure is the most important remaining unresolved issue. "Until that is settled, a contract means nothing," he stressed.

"Today is 'Dexter Day' at the Chelsea Community Fair. It will conclude with an evening program highlighted by selection of the fair queen and the annual 'Waterball' fight between the Chelsea and Dexter fire departments. Fair board president Herman Koenn promises a good show.

Chelsea Milling Co. employees enjoyed their annual picnic at Dexter-Huron Metropark. The Chelsea Jaycee Auxiliary won first place in state-wide competition for the Travel Trophy given to the group which had the most miles traveled in connection with community projects, and also for best percentage of membership attendance at the state meeting which was held in Muskegon. Meanwhile, the Chelsea Jaycees were honored as the sixth best chapter in the state.

24 Years Ago . . .
Thursday, Sept. 3, 1959—A four percent state sales tax has been enacted, making Michigan one of three states to levy sales taxes at that extreme rate. The other two are Washington and Pennsylvania. The tax covers all purchases of goods and services.

An emergency "Mother's March" on polio drew contributions of $200 from Chelsea. The village council is offering a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons who have vandalized the restrooms at Pierce Park. Damage done recently cost more than $60 to repair. The council also decided to close and padlock the restrooms between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

"Oodles of prizes" are promised for persons attending the opening of the Chelsea Community Fair. Many will be awarded to contestants in the children's pet show. Youngsters who have become proficient in using the new hula hoops are urged to come and compete for prizes.

James Hoffmeyer is one of the five new teachers in the Chelsea school system. He will teach junior high math and science.

Thursday, Sept. 1, 1949—Chelsea youngsters won more awards than ever before at the Washtenaw County 4-H Fair held in Ann Arbor.

FUNERAL HOME

How Can Handicapped Persons Attend Funerals, Visitations?

We have facilities at our funeral home to make it easier for handicapped persons and the elderly. For example, we can provide the use of a wheelchair or a walker and we have designed an entrance and rooms to make it convenient for them.

Please let us know in advance if such equipment may be needed, just as you might with an airline. This assures that such equipment is immediately available. Advance notice can save embarrassment for you, the mourners and our staff, especially if we were to have several handicapped persons on hand at the same time.

We can also be of service in finding certain equipment needed by the handicapped at home. Hospital beds and items for physical therapy are sometimes hard to find. We may be able to direct you to sources for them.

Tax Expenditures Cut State Revenues By One-Third
Total state and local government revenues are cut by approximately one-third, roughly $6.9 billion in the 1982-83 fiscal year, because of various tax expenditures, a report from the Department of Management and Budget reports.

Details of the report were discussed recently at a House Taxation subcommittee on tax expenditures, and the head of that subcommittee said the figures will enable his group to analyze better the actual worth and effectiveness of the different tax expenditures.

Rep. Jeffrey Padden (D-Wyandotte) said with the data on the actual amounts involved in tax expenditures, the subcommittee could start reviewing whether those expenditures actually provide more benefit to the state.

The figures should "astonish taxpayers who don't enjoy the benefits of these expenditures and have to shoulder the burden," he said.

Padden said almost all taxpayers do get some benefit from the tax expenditures, such as the personal exemption which is designed to make the income tax more progressive, but the committee wants to examine how generally applied the tax expenditures are, "then determine if those are a valid public purpose."

The subcommittee will begin the review process in September with hopes of completing it by the middle of the fall quarter.

The report is the fourth the state has issued since it was mandated to estimate tax expenditures by the Legislature in 1979. Joanne Paul, of the department's Revenue and Tax Analysis Office, said the figures it issued in the report were just estimates since the revenues are not actually collected and returned.

Estimates on the cost of different state income tax expenditures, for example, she said are not based on the current withholding rate but based on the previous rate of 4.6 percent, not the current 6.35 percent rate.

The cost in tax expenditures to state revenues is about $4.4 billion ($3.1 billion of that from the general fund) compared to actual collections of $7.15 billion. Local government tax expenditures take about $2.5 billion compared to collections of $5.4 billion.

Other newly enacted costs include $5 million from an inheritance tax exemption for estates passed on to surviving spouses and a single business tax credit given to new employers equal to the amount of the higher federal unemployment tax, which is estimated to cost nearly $1 million.

The state recouped those losses by some $700,000 by increasing the single business tax liability of domestic insurance companies.

In estimating the cost of tax expenditures, Paul said, the office does not try to determine if the tax expenditure has generated certain kinds of behavior—such as expanded economic development—intended by the Legislature.

Two of the largest state tax expenditures are $564.4 million for the personal exemption under the income tax and $539.8 million for the property tax credit under the income tax.

Other large expenditures reported include $330 million for the food and drug sales tax exemption, $745 million for services exempted from the sales tax, $202.7 million from industrial processing exempted from sales tax and $151.2 million from the labor intensity single business tax credit.

Professional services such as this provide a non-threatening atmosphere and have a high rate of success in effecting change.

After the training period, a maximum of 4-5 hours is required of the home visitors, plus monthly training-educational inservice. A stipend is offered to cover transportation costs during home visits.

During September, referrals will be accepted for families wishing to participate in the program.

For further information and registration, call Jo Ann at 475-3305 afternoons.

Faith in Action Again Offers Parent-to-Parent Program

Training of volunteer home visitors for the Parent-to-Parent program begins Sept. 6 and will run two nights a week until Oct. 6. The program (a Faith in Action service) is an in-home support to families with young children focusing on child development, parenting skills, parent-child relationships and use of community resources.

Purpose of the program is to provide educational material and emotional support to families experiencing difficulties, using a "peer-to-peer" concept. Para-professional services such as this provide a non-threatening atmosphere and have a high rate of success in effecting change.

ON YOUR FEET

RUNNING WITHOUT BLISTERS

Maybe you're one of those people who are susceptible to blisters on the bottom of your feet, especially behind the big toe. When you run or jog, the structure of your feet makes you place excessive stress in this area. One way to eliminate some of the discomfort is to take a one-eighth-inch or quarter-inch piece of adhesive-backed felt, cut it to size, and attach it to the bottom of your foot or insole.

However if you usually run on the balls of your feet and have blister problems, in the front of your foot, a heel raise can be added to your running shoes. This can be made with a quarter-inch piece of felt trimmed toward the front. It can either be inserted directly in your running shoe or attached to the bottom of your insole. By doing this, you will help keep the weight off the front of your foot.

There are other aids and treatment that your podiatrist may recommend to help keep blisters from forming. Don't run in discomfort when you can get the help you need from your podiatrist.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Some mark time with sunrises, some by Sunday church suppers, some by school startings, some by holidays, some by birthdays and some try to ignore it altogether. But fer sure, Mister Editor, it passes, and the fellers took note of how fast Saturday night during the session at the country store. Clem Webster got the subject on the agenda with mention where he had saw that fer the first time in history this country's population has more folks over 65 than it does under 20. Clem didn't have to remind the fellers where they fit in this new picture.

As a people, Clem declared, we are getting a bit long in the tooth. And general speaking, he went on, as we get older we shift the burden of our problems and come up with new ones. Right now, fer instant, we got trouble with health care and Social Security we don't general have with younger folks.

Ed Doolittle took note that another Labor Day is just around the corner, and he said this one will be more of a holiday because of signs that American production is getting back on track and the economy in general is building a little steam. Ed said he still was worried about the habit we have got into of shipping raw materials to Japan and bringing back finished goods, and it ain't much comfort fer the Japanese to come over here and set up factories.

Ed had saw this piece where these two pefessors claim Japan didn't come up with the idee of management inspiring workers to have pride in perduction and quality. They said the Japanese learned this lesson from American textbooks after World War 2 and now are teaching us what we fergot. What we got, Ed went on, is a fourth of our folks taking pride in their work, half just working fer a living and a fourth agin everthing. What happens, Ed said, is the last fourth keeps stirring up the middle half and slowing down the works. Somehow, he declared, we got to reward the fourth that do the most and shift the big percent that way.

Actual, broke in Zeke Grubb, we got to start taking new looks at everthing because nothing looks the same. Zeke said he was thinking to other way about he hated to see the end of cabooses, but he reminded hisself we got to quit hanging on to somepun after it is dead weight that slows us down. If the little red house on wheels ain't there we'll jest have to learn a new way to tell when the train ends, was Zeke's words. Besides, he has saw where we still got more than 12,000 in use, and people are standing in line to buy em fer motels, cafes and homes. We're not losing em, Zeke said, jest giving em new jobs.

Personal, Mister Editor, I am full agreed with Zeke. Us old dogs have got to learn new tricks or move out of the way. I am thinking of that tired lady on Ellis Island. She is 97 year old, and she needs a $35 million operation. She'll git it, because our top fourth knows what it means to pass under her raised arm. These same folks are waking up to what this country needs.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

All work is juried for quality of workmanship and saleability. A yearly membership is charged which allows you to display and sell your work in the store. A markup is added to your asking price for your work. The store is operated on a co-operative basis with each member taking a turn at helping in the store.

One of the primary interests of the group is to keep the old-time crafts of quilting, knitting, etc., going and teaching others to use their hands constructively.

Any senior citizen is welcome to join regardless of where you live.

Carol Hafner, Thomas Houle Married July 23 in Dexter

Carol Lynn Hafner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hafner, and Thomas Matthew Houle, son of Mrs. Raymond Houle and the late Mr. Houle, were united in marriage July 23 in an evening ceremony at St. Joseph Catholic church in Dexter.

The Rev. Fr. John Bosco and deacon Richard Cesarz officiated.

The bride wore a white pearl-strewn gown embroidered with chantilly lace, with a multi-tiered chapel train and a matching chantilly lace veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and daisies.

The maid of honor, Mary Ann Hughes of Coral Springs, Fla., cousin of the bride, was costumed in a light blue floral print floor-length gown with an off-the-shoulder neckline and hoop skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies and blue carnations.

Bridesmaids, all friends of the bride, were Jeanne Bury of Lansing, Margie Peterson of Chelsea, Missi Arnett of Chelsea and Karen Kiel of Chelsea. All wore gowns styled like that of the maid of honor, with matching bouquets.

Other attendants were flower girl Kristy Houle of Chelsea, cousin of the bridegroom and ringbearer Kevin Hafner of Chelsea, nephew of the bride.

Kevin Houle of Chelsea, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Rodney Schneider of Chelsea, Scott Robertson of Chelsea, Mike Minick of Grass Lake and Jim Fitzsimmons of Chelsea, friends of the bridegroom.

Paula Haist of Chelsea, friend of the bride, was the vocalist.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length lavender gown with a corsage of white sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length gray floral print gown with a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Dexter with 325 persons attending. Margaret Hafner of Chelsea, sister-in-law of the bride, cut the cake. Marie Montagne of Chelsea, sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

The couple is living at 6580 Lombardy Dr., Chelsea.

The new Mrs. Houle is a second-year nursing student at Jackson Community College. Her husband is employed by Industrial Technicians in Dexter and is also attending Washtenaw Community College.

Right To Farm Law Is Working

Whether a neighbor complains about the odor from a farmer's hog operation or a stranger runs into a farm fence and then claims it is a hazard, Michigan's Right to Farm law is proving itself a valuable protection for those involved in the production of food and fiber, according to Michigan Farm Bureau's legislative counsel Robert Smith.

"So far, since the court decided the Right to Farm law is constitutional, there has been no reversal of that decision," Smith said. "There have been dozens of cases, many of which have been thrown out of court because of the recognition that odors and dust, for example, are part of a modern farm operation. If the farmer uses good management practices, he is protected from nuisance suits. The law has been very effective."

School Bus Route Changes Outlined

Changes in bus routes for the 1983-84 school year have been announced by Ralph W. Brier, transportation superintendent for the Chelsea School District.

The major change is that route 14 will be eliminated, and its riders accommodated on other routes.

Assistant superintendent of

$37.50 Stolen from Newspaper Coin Box

Chelsea police reported that $37.50 was stolen from a newspaper rack coin box located in front of the Chelsea Big Boy restaurant sometime during the day last Saturday. The theft is under investigation.

schools Fred Mills said the changes reflect both an anticipated lower enrollment in the Chelsea district this fall and shifts in where pupils live. Some cost savings will be realized by re-aligning the bus routes; he added.

The changes in detail, as outlined by Brier, are:

- Route 14 will be eliminated. Pupils who rode No. 14 will be riding the following bus routes:
 1. N. Mester Rd., will now ride No. 9, pick-up time approximately 7:50 a.m.
 2. Island Lake Rd., between Riker and Stofer Rds., will ride No. 36, pick-up time approximately 8:15 a.m.
 3. Lima Center Rd., between Dexter-Chelsea and Island Lake Rds., will ride No. 20, pick-up time approximately 8:10 a.m.

4. Trinkle Rd., between Lima Center and Fletcher Rds., will ride No. 21, pick-up time approximately 8:12 a.m.

Pupils who were riding No. 21 on Dancer Rd. and Hershey Lane will now ride No. 35; pick-up time will be approximately 8:15 a.m.

Pupils on North Territorial Rd., between Hankerd and Riker Rds., will now ride No. 10; pick-up time will be approximately 8:18 a.m.

All times are subject to change after the first two days of school.

Bill Mullendore

There are a lot of things in this world that I don't understand, and one of them is vandalism of facilities put in place for the public to use for their personal needs and comfort.

That comment is triggered by the problem that the village of Chelsea has in trying to maintain the restrooms at Pierce Park. Trustee Herman Radloff spoke his mind at the Aug. 16 council meeting. He said the Pierce Park facility was in such continually wretched condition that it ought to be closed permanently. Administrator Frederick Weber acknowledged that efforts to keep the place clean and functional had been repeatedly thwarted by vandals. I took a look, and could easily see what they were talking about.

Why? I wish I had an answer.

The need to go to the bathroom is one of the common denominators of human life. Everybody has to do it, several times a day. The urge does not always arise at the most convenient times and places. Hence the need for public restrooms where relief can be found quickly and comfortably.

Restrooms in private business places, such as gas stations, restaurants and grocery stores, fill part of the need, but not all of it. If you are like me, you cringe at using a restroom in a private enterprise unless you buy something, whether you need it or not. I have gone in and out of a men's lavatory many times without making a purchase from the people who provided it, but have never felt good about taking advantage of their hospitality for free.

As an alternative, I have relieved myself along back roads, which is not a very good idea from an environmental pollution standpoint. Sewer systems were invented for a reason.

Definitely, there should be restrooms available at any public park, including Pierce Park. Just as definitely, the people who patronize the park should treat the facility with respect and thanks for its being available when needed. It is there for a starkly functional but nevertheless vital human purpose. Whoever first said, "When you have to go, you have to go," said a lot.

In all of the homes that I have lived in and in almost all that I have visited, the bathroom was the cleanest room in the house, kept spic and span and spotless, continually cleansed.

So why do people make messes of public restrooms? Again, I wish I knew the answer.

Service station operators whom I have known over the years have told me that maintaining clean restrooms is the most difficult aspect of running their businesses. "You can clean them up and, half an hour later after three or four people have used them, find them a mess," one operator said. "It drives you crazy because you can't clean up after everybody, but your good customers expect the places to be clean. When they're not, they complain, even though you just mopped, scrubbed and swept the place 15 minutes before. You can't win.

Being dirty in a public place is hard to understand. Even less comprehensible are writing graffiti on walls in indelible ink, ripping fixtures off the walls, breaking faucets, making the facility impossible for somebody else to use.

It grieves me to know that there are people around here who have caused problems in the Pierce Park restroom building to the point that the village may be forced to shut it down. That is ridiculous, when you come right down to it.

Maybe the police department should station patrolmen in the bushes around the building at night, catch some of the culprits in the act of vandalizing, arrest them for malicious destruction of public property, and prosecute them to the point of stiff fines and/or jail sentences. I promise to publicize all such cases.

I think it's important that you be able to go to the bathroom in Pierce Park during the hours that the park is open. Maybe that seems like a small point, but it is, after all, pretty basic to the way we all live and function as human beings.

Music Lessons Set At Keynote Center

Music lessons will begin soon at Keynote Music Center. Registrations are being taken for a variety of lessons.

Included will be a guitar introductory course, private lessons in voice, piano, guitar, brass instruments and woodwinds, and Suzuki violin and piano lessons.

For a number of years Pat Stirling has been teaching private piano and cello lessons. She will be joined by a staff of seven other teachers who are well qualified in each area of musical instruction.

Teachers who will be starting lessons after Labor Day are: Ruth Hollenbach Craft, Mark Palms, Amy Rose, Carol S. Ross, Deborah Stanton, Robert Scannell and Al Townsend.

In a Miami, Fla., targeted enforcement effort during the 1982 fiscal year, the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration uncovered nearly $2 million in minimum wage and overtime violations, according to the department's annual report.

WE CAN DO IT, TOO: After a series of pictures appeared in last week's paper showing boys catching crayfish in Letts Creek, a group of girls decided they could match the boys. They went to the creek and came up with some big ones. Left to

Chelsea Lanes Heavily Damaged By Lightning Bolt

As thunderstorms go, the one that passed above Chelsea between 3 and 4 a.m. a week ago Monday morning didn't amount to much. There were a few flashes of lightning, a couple of fairly loud thunderclaps, and less than one-tenth of an inch of rain. Most residents weren't even awakened.

But don't try to sell that bill of goods to Ed GreenLeaf, owner of the Chelsea Lanes bowling establishment. One lightning bolt from that "puny" storm put him out of business for a couple of days and has him still trying to pick up all the pieces.

That lightning stroke hit the electrical transformer in front of Chelsea Lanes, knocking out the automatic pinsetters, the electronic scoreboards, three small computers, the cash register, and an automated message sign.

It also put the sewage lift pump that services the businesses along M-52 south of Old US-12 out of action. Result was that six inches of raw sewage backed up into the basement of Chelsea Lanes, which is located at 1180 S. Main St.

The sewage was pumped out and the basement fumigated, the pinsetters fixed, and everything else except the scoreboards put back into working order. Chelsea Lanes re-opened after two days and is doing business as usual except that bowlers have to keep score the old-fashioned way, with grease pencil and paper.

The scoring equipment was damaged beyond repair and will have to be replaced. A brand-new and much-improved system will be installed and should be ready for use by Oct. 1 at the latest. Meanwhile, league bowling will start as scheduled and continue with pencil-and-paper scorekeeping. Fortunately for GreenLeaf, The Chelsea Standard still had on hand a large supply of the paper score sheets that Chelsea Lanes used until the electronic equipment was installed eight years ago. Publisher Walter Leonard dug them out of storage, proving that there is value in saving things.

GreenLeaf figures the damage from the lightning bolt will add up to $20,000 or more by the time he has the new electronic scorers installed and working.

Don't try to tell GreenLeaf, either, that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. The same transformer was hit by a bolt on July 31. Damage that time amounted to $5,000, but it was all fixable.

"Actually, we've been hit several times over the years," he said. "I've been told by experts that, for some reason, this is a natural place to attract lightning. It has happened here often enough that I hate to come to work after a thunderstorm. It seems like we almost always have something knocked out of order, but we've never had anything this bad before."

Asked if Chelsea Lanes could have continued operating with pinboys had the automatic pinsetters not been repairable, GreenLeaf said no.

"The way bowling alleys are constructed now, there is no place for people to work back there and set pins by hand, even if you could find anybody who knew how and was willing to do it."

Technology marches on, but remains at the mercy of the elements.

Summer Tourism Growing Stronger

Travel in Michigan is growing stronger this summer—thanks to aggressive state and local level advertising, Jack S. Wilson, director of the Michigan Department of Commerce Travel Bureau, said Monday. "The rate of spending by summer travelers in Michigan this year has surged ahead of 1982 by as much as $64 million and is accelerating," he said.

Travel through the end of July was ahead of the 1982 direct spending rate of $1.6 billion by three to four percent—or $48 to $64 million. "The recirculation of these travel dollars in the economy—the 'ripple effect' of indirect spending—raises the potential total impact of this summer season on Michigan's economy to as much as $114 million above last year," he added.

"We are already ahead of last year's strong performance despite three weeks of poor weather early in the season. This proves that advance planning, aggressive advertising and investment in the future pays off—in the public as well as the private sector.

"Most travel indicators are up and are performing better each week," he said. "Our experience at the state level is substantiated by local experience." Wilson reported that in a spot check of private travel facility operators, the same unsolicited comments were made time after time: that this year's traveler is willing to spend for quality accommodations, quality meals and quality merchandise, but that he or she is demanding value for the price. "Field reports indicate that the communities and properties showing the strongest increases are those that have been advertising aggressively and promoting themselves," Wilson added.

"We have helped prime the pump with advertising, literature, and computerized facilities for handling inquiries. Inquiries to the Travel Bureau have been setting records—up 8.1 percent from last year and up 70 percent from levels experienced before the 'Say Yes to Michigan' campaign was launched."

"As a result, even three weeks of poor weather at the beginning of the summer season couldn't keep us down," he added.

The following travel indicators document the state's strong performance:

—Traffic volume at key vacation and pleasure travel routes, a key gauge of summer travel, was up 4 percent;

—Mackinac Bridge crossings totaled 755,374 through July, an increase of 3.6 percent from last year;

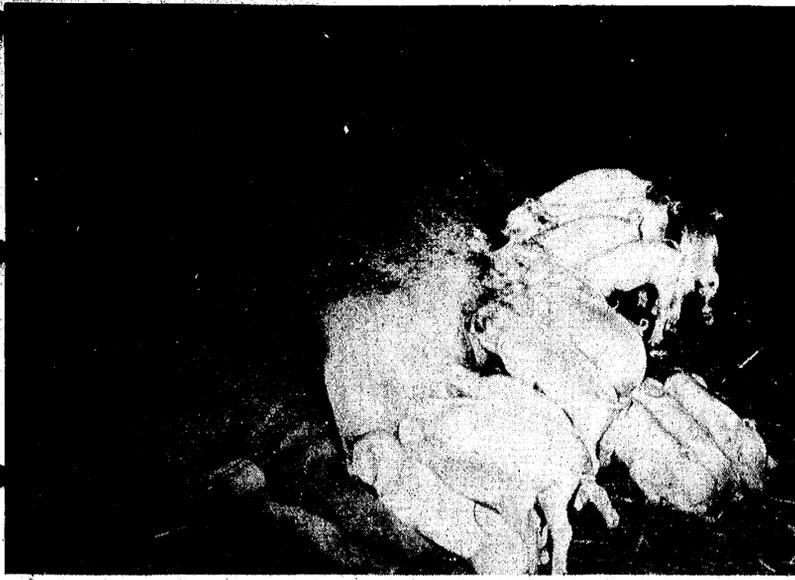

—State park activity was up 14.2 percent; day use surged as much as 161 percent one week in June; —Weekend occupancy at selected lodging facilities across the state was up 3.2 percent; 74 percent of the facilities surveyed reported that their midweek occupancy rates were ahead of 1982, while only 3 percent reported a decline.

—The number of visitors to the Department of Transportation's 10 Travel Information Centers totaled 770,000—up 8.3 percent.

"Our aggressive advertising strategy combined with the quality of our product will see Michigan's 1983 season surpass 1982's strong performance," Wilson said.

Investigations by the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration disclosed nearly $50 million in minimum wage underpayments during the 1982 fiscal year, according to the department's annual report.

JUDY-JUDY HAS A PROBLEM: Judy-Judy, the pet sow owned by the Shepherd family on Trist Rd., Waterloo, tries to feed her 16 offspring. (Although you can count only 15, there was another hidden underneath.) Trouble is, the sow has only 12 feeding stations. Three of the latecomers have given up, while the fourth goes looking for a place to eat.

Pig Given To Pay for Upholstering Job Returns Large Dividends

A couple of years ago, a customer at Shepherd's Upholstering Shop at 13350 Trist Rd., Waterloo, couldn't come up with the money to pay for a chair re-covering job.

In lieu of money he brought a small female pig and asked if the animal would be acceptable as payment. The Shepherds agreed to take her, and named her Judy-Judy (after a character in an old TV show).

Judy-Judy grew, as pigs will do, and became a 400-pound adult. A farmer down the road had a male hog, and the Shepherds decided to have their pet bred.

On Tuesday, Aug. 23, Judy-Judy delivered dividends—16 of them—as the Shepherds watched.

"The little pigs just kept coming and coming and coming," said Mrs. Georgia Shepherd. "We kept telling her, 'Stop, Judy, stop!' but she went right on delivering until there were 16 babies with her in the pen."

That posed a problem. A sow is equipped with 12 natural nipples. Each piglet latches onto one as soon as it is born and can crawl into place, claims the feeding faucet as its own, and fights off its litter-mates for possession.

15-born members of any litter over 12 find no place at the table and will starve to death within a couple of days. Commercial hog farmers either dispose of the excess runts or try to place them with another sow that has unused feeding stations. (A normal litter is 7-10.)

The alternative is to hand-raise the extras by bottle-feeding them around the clock with a special formula of supplemented milk. Sow's milk is much richer than cow's milk. It's a laborious task that costs a lot of sleep. Little pigs are voracious eaters. During their early days of life they nurse almost constantly.

The Shepherds don't have another lactating sow, and so decided to try to keep Judy-Judy's four runt offspring alive by hand-feeding them, and at last reports were succeeding. The task has been divided among Mrs. Ruth Shepherd, daughter of Georgia, and her three children, Jessie, Carla and Mike.

The good news is that young pigs can be weaned and taught to eat on their own at the age of six weeks. They grow fast and quickly become independent. They are also among the most trainable of all animals. Swine rank right next to dogs on the scale of animal "intelligence."

The Shepherds wondered if Judy-Judy's litter of 16 had set some kind of a record. Although her performance was impressive, it wasn't close to the world record of 34 piglets born to a sow in Switzerland. History doesn't tell what happened to the extra 22. Hand-feeding that many would be a chore for a sizeable group of people.

HE'S TRYING TO RAISE THEM: Nine-year-old Jessie Shepherd holds two of the little pigs he is attempting to raise by bottle-feeding them, because their mother just plain had too many babies.

A meeting has been called to consider combining the downtown "Chelsea Days" and the Community Fair into a single event. Chelsea Days are presently held in late June and the fair in mid-October.

Hopes of the Chelsea Independents for a championship in the Tri-County Baseball League took a nosedive as ace pitcher Harold "Lefty" Barth pulled a muscle in his throwing arm during a victory over Michigan Center.

Nothing new came out during a public hearing on closing five roads in the Sylvan township "mystery project" area, where Detroit real estate agent has bought more than 3,000 acres of land. One "reliable" source said, he "has it straight that General Motors will build a diesel engine plant out there." Another said he "knows for sure" that a giant nudist camp is planned.

Chelsea won the state Kiwanis softball title for the second year. St. Mary's school will open on Sept. 8. The Rev. Fr. Lee Laige, said the schedule will be kept in harmony with the public schools.

Escapees Caught . . .

... almost everything was recovered "except for one case of beer which they apparently drank."

The chase continued until 7:30 p.m. when it was temporarily called off because the tracking dog had worn out and was too tired to go any farther.

Five members of the Chelsea police department had joined in the pursuit and a tracking dog owned by patrolman Pete Graves brought in. He took the track for about an hour before losing it.

Meanwhile, the fugitives had broken into a home on Waterloo Rd. by going through a sliding glass door. The owner was at home and confronted the trio, who asked him to give them a ride. Instead he went to call police and get his shotgun, and the three men took off again.

At about 8:30 p.m. a resident on Angane Rd. spotted two suspicious-looking men in a grove of evergreens on a neighbor's property, and called police, who closed in and captured Clifton and Szelepski, who had split away from the others, was not captured until about 1:30 a.m. Friday, when he was found just outside the Cassidy Lake institution grounds.

Sgt. Wenk estimated that the hot chase covered at least 30 miles, most of it in circles in a relatively small area covering parts of Sylvan and Lyndon townships.

Both Wenk and Wade paid tribute to the co-operation of Chelsea Village police and also to Richard Sober, Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority park ranger, who came out voluntarily to assist.

Contrary to some news reports, no members of the state police or Corrections Department assisted. That led one sheriff's deputy to comment:

"The state runs this prison out here, but when they can't keep the inmates inside and they get away, we have to catch them. I don't know how much this chase cost the county and Chelsea in time and money, but it was a lot. It's kind of disgusting."

The three captives were formally charged with breaking and entering, and secured in the county jail. They will be prosecuted, Wade promised, and not simply turned back to prison authorities as is sometimes done with escapees.

stuff and dripped blood all over my floors.

"What really bothers me is that they had armed themselves with a couple of my butcher knives and were in the house when my son came home. It scares me to death to think what might have happened if he had confronted them."

Olmsted emphasized that he retains full respect for John Staten, Cassidy Lake superintendent, and his staff. "John is caught in the middle. They (the Corrections Department) are sending him a different class of prisoners, and he has to try to deal with them in an institution that has no security. It's the department's fault, not his. They've tied his hands."

Reminded that the official concept of a minimum-security prison requires that there be no fences or walls around it, Olmsted replied, "That is pure bull-bleep. If you have to fence a prison to keep the inmates inside it, then you should do it. And if you are not willing to do it, you should close it down. That's what this committee is saying."

Olmsted also made it clear that he has nothing but praise for the police agencies and individuals who worked on the case. "They were all very professional," he said. "They did everything they possibly could. It's a tribute to their persistence that they caught the escapees. They were working under very, very tough conditions."

Having already received "dozens" of phone calls and listed 200-and-some names, Olmsted is looking for more support. He has placed notices in several local business places asking for enlistments. Interested persons may send their names, addresses and telephone numbers to Post Office Box 43, Chelsea.

Among those who have offered their personal help, Olmsted said, is Sheriff Tom Minick, who pledged "the 100 percent support" of his department.

To kick off his "fence it or close it" campaign, Olmsted is urging an outpouring of letters to Gov. Blanchard, State Sen. Lana Pollack, State Rep. Margaret O'Connor and director Perry Johnson of the Department of Corrections. He suggested that readers clip this and related stories from this edition of The Standard, make copies, and mail them "as a starter."

Three More Escape; Two Later Arrested

While echoes of last Thursday's crime spree committed by three walk-aways from the Cassidy Lake Technical School continued to reverberate through the community, the merry-go-round went right on spinning.

Local police agencies reported the escape and recapture of two felons from Camp Waterloo and still another run-off from Cassidy

Lake. Chelsea police officers John Dettling and Rick Walter caught up to the escapees from Camp Waterloo and returned them to custody. Arrested were John K. Helm, 20, serving 2-4 years for larceny, and Phelix Reyes, 23, doing 5-15 years for unarmed robbery.

Village police chief Robert Aeillo said Helm and Reyes were reported missing from Camp Waterloo shortly after midnight Sunday. They made their way to the Mobil service station at the M-52 interchange on I-94 and there called a taxi.

The attendant became suspicious and called police as soon as the taxi had picked up the two and headed east on I-94 toward Ann Arbor. Dettling and Walter overhauled the "cab" near the Baker Rd. interchange and made the arrests at 5 a.m.

Late Saturday evening Donald G. Cole, 18, serving 2-10 years for a Montcalm county burglary, walked off from Cassidy Lake. As of Monday morning he had not been seen since and is believed to have left the area.

BOB GILBERT, Dexter's local Dahlia expert shows off his prized entries for this week-end's show at Arborland. The 35th annual Dahlia show will have an exhibit many gorgeous blooms from the

All teachers in the Chelsea School District are scheduled to report for work tomorrow morning, and there is no reason to believe they won't even though they technically do not have a contract.

Bulldog Gridders Aiming At Third Straight Crown

"Our primary goal is to win the Southeastern Conference championship for the third year in a row, and I'm optimistic we can do it."

That was the summary statement of Gene LaFave, head football coach at Chelsea High, as he reviewed the accomplishments of two weeks of Bulldog practice.

"Our practices have been very good," LaFave noted. "The boys reported in excellent physical condition, and they have worked hard despite the generally awful hot and humid weather. This hasn't been an easy time to practice football. The boys are watering the field with their sweat."

It's difficult to maintain enthusiasm in the face of such conditions, LaFave said, but the Bulldog varsity gridgers have done it. "Give them a lot of credit, they have stuck with it and kept their spirits up. They've done everything I've asked them to do."

"The best thing that could happen for us right now would be cooler weather while we get ready for our opening game. Everybody—players and coaches—would appreciate a chance to work out under conditions where you don't feel like you are standing in a shower. I've never seen anything quite like this."

The Bulldogs will open their season on Saturday, Sept. 10, against Novi in a game that was supposed to be played at Chelsea but has been shifted to Dexter because the home football field won't be ready for play.

LaFave said he has not eased up on the physical demands he makes on his players, despite the heat and humidity, and has not had any problems with heat prostration.

"Naturally, you watch the boys more closely, and if you see somebody beginning to suffer, you send him to the sidelines for a breather and make sure he's all right before you put him back into the drills. We always do that."

"We base our whole program on conditioning. If you let up on that, you are asking for injury problems later on. It's in the best interest of the kids that they be in top shape, and that is what we stress."

Of the 39 varsity candidates who reported for practice on Aug. 15, 35 are still on the squad. Three are on crutches with injuries which are unrelated to the weather.

The most serious hurt so far was suffered by Richie Slater, who had been tabbed to handle the placekicking and punting duties. Slater broke a bone in his foot during a routine running drill, a freak injury. He will miss at least the first half of the season while the bone mends.

Chuck Hager will take over as kicker. He has a strong left leg and did the kicking-off last fall, but will be handicapped by lack of practice in front of goalposts. There are no goalposts available at the high school while Niehaus Field is being renovated.

A good guess is that the Bulldogs won't try many field goals or single-point conversions during the early part of the season.

David Bushway, who had the inside track at one of the two wide-receiver spots and also figured to start at cornerback, will be sidelined for at least two more weeks with a knee injury and almost certainly will miss the opening game. Hager may fill in there, too.

Hager could be a pleasant surprise: A late-blooming athlete, he is one of the three biggest boys on the squad (the others are David Kiel and Marty Steinhauer). He came out of the reserve ranks last winter to earn a starting spot on the basketball team at mid-season, and showed a lot of improvement while playing first base on the baseball team last spring.

The other injured player is back-up quarterback Evan Roberts, who has a leg problem unrelated to football. The date of his return to active duty is unpredictable. If starter Marty Steinhauer stays healthy, the quarterbacking will be in good hands. Steinhauer has had some knee and shoulder problems in the past, but has been running and throwing very well in practice.

Should anything happen to Steinhauer while Roberts remains unavailable, the Bulldogs would be hurting badly at the key quarterback position.

Glenn Prinzing Captains Bulldogs

Football linemen don't get a lot of headlines. The blocking and tackling that linemen do doesn't attract the attention of most spectators, whose eyes are on whomever has the ball.

Yet anybody who has ever played the game will tell you that it is the linemen who make things go on both offense and defense. They are football's private soldiers, the men in the trenches who do the hard and dirty work.

Glenn Prinzing, Chelsea High's grid captain this year, is one of those unsung heroes. He plays both ways on the line and will be on the field almost all the time regardless of which team has the ball.

The fact that his teammates chose him to be their field leader tells a lot about both his ability and his character. He is a quiet young man, of good but no exceptional size—5-10, 180 pounds. Most important, he is quick and has the instinctive reactions that an outstanding lineman needs.

"Glenn isn't spectacular, but he gets the job done," says his coach, Gene LaFave. "On offense he makes his block. On defense he is usually somewhere around the ball. This will be his third year as a starter for us, and he has shown steady improvement from year to year. He works exceptionally hard and sets an example by his effort and dedication. He will be a fine captain and leader."

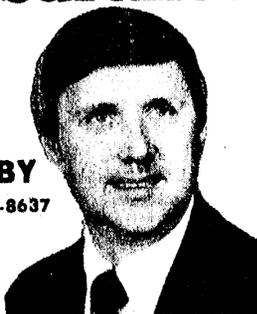

Prinzing was an All-Southeastern Conference selection last year, earning honors as first-team center on offense and second-team end on defense, a rather rare combination of positions.

He definitely is a candidate for all-state honors this fall.

Sod Arrives, But Lights A Problem at Grid Field

It's one problem after another on the reconstruction of Chelsea High school's football field.

The long-awaited sod was delivered yesterday, and athletic director Ron Nemeth insisted there is still time enough to get it down and rooted in time for the scheduled home game against Saline on Sept. 23.

"I have absolute guarantees from the contractor that we can play on it, provided we take care of it," Nemeth said. We are going to have to water it every day, and we will have the irrigation system to do that.

"If any of the sod comes loose, the contractor will replace it at no cost to us. I have that written promise in my pocket."

Meanwhile, another problem has arisen—the lights that are to be installed on Niehaus field.

"The anchor supports for the light poles haven't been delivered, and nobody seems to know where they are," Nemeth said. "They are on a back-order somewhere. The supplier says they have been sent out, but we don't have them. They should have been here by now."

"If anything keeps us from playing on the night of the 23rd, it will be lack of lighting. It's possible we could play an afternoon game in daylight, but I'm not even thinking about that right now. I'm assuming the lights are going to be up and ready, but I can't guarantee it until I see them in place and working."

Nemeth has been working far above the call of ordinary duty to get the field ready, helping to pull electrical cable through conduits and otherwise making himself available as an extra worker to assist the contractors. If the Saline game isn't played here on Sept. 23, it will not be his fault.

That brings up the question of who, if anybody, is to blame for the delays in work on the new $211,000 football and track complex. The best and most honest answer is, probably nobody and certainly nobody locally.

An impartial review of events to date reveals the following record:

The decision to go ahead with the project was made late last winter, and contractors' bids were solicited, including specifications that the job should be started by May 1 and completed by July 1.

It was an attractive proposal to contractors who had little other work scheduled during those months, and so the bids came in below estimates. Chelsea was going to get the job done early and cheap.

The bid solicitation was based on a calculated guess that a half-mill tax levy for special maintenance would be "automatically" renewed at the June 13 school election. Most of the money to pay for the construction program was to come out of that renewal.

The financial picture changed in a hurry. Chelsea's State Equalized Valuation (SEV) was unexpectedly reduced, which meant that the school district would have to ask for extra operating millage to maintain programs at present levels. Given the mood of the taxpayers, renewal of the special maintenance millage no longer looked like a sure thing.

The Board of Education decided to hold up on letting contracts for the football and track project until after the votes were counted on June 13, to make certain the money to pay for them would be available, a prudent financial decision that cannot be faulted.

The low bidders agreed to hold their price quotes firm, at considerable cost to themselves, but wiped out the performance date clauses. In no way could the earlier timetable be met.

The special maintenance millage renewal was approved on June 13 by a 2 to 1 margin, and contracts were let on June 14. Meanwhile, however, the Chelsea project had lost its place at the head of the line of jobs to be completed. The contractors had taken on other summer work, some of it as far away as Chicago. Chelsea had to take its place in the middle of the pack of work clamoring to be done.

Result has been that Chelsea's project has gone in fits and starts. There have been periods of feverish activity when manpower and equipment have been available, interspersed with long and frustrating periods of nothing happening.

"You can't blame the contractors," said a Chelsea school official who asked that his name not be used. "They bid on the job on one set of dates, then got it on a completely different set. They bent over backward to accommodate us, and they probably aren't going to make a whole lot of money as a result."

"You can't blame the school board or the administration either. It's not smart to commit yourself to spend money until you are sure you are going to have it. Let's face it, things changed in mid-course, and we're paying a price in delays although not in dollars."

If a scapegoat had to be identified, it would have to be the state and county officials who reduced the Chelsea district's SEV. There are many knowledgeable persons who insist that local property values have not declined and that the SEV slash was unwarranted.

However, the taxing officials have offered solid evidence, in terms of real estate sales prices and volume, to back up their assertion that property values did indeed drop substantially during the past year.

The Chelsea school board, administrators, athletic officials, contractors and the public got caught in the middle of all this through no fault of their own.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Recent news stories quoted University of Michigan president Harold T. Shapiro, as saying he wants U. of M. "academic interests" to have much greater control over intercollegiate athletics than they now possess.

Shapiro has joined presidents of 26 other major universities—interestingly including Michigan State's Cecil Mackey—in demanding a much stronger role for themselves in shaping the policies of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) which right now is dominated by athletic directors who run things pretty much to suit themselves.

It's interesting because it reminds me of the time that the same wheel turned full circle back during the 1950's when the U. of M. Faculty Senate rose in revolt against the athletic department. The result was a period of de-emphasis of sports on the Ann Arbor campus that lasted for more than 15 years until Don Canham was hired as athletic director and Bob Schembachler was brought in as head football coach to restore Michigan to its place in the sun as a national collegiate football power. That there were abuses 30 years ago is beyond doubt or argument. I was a party to some of them. A double standard of academic admission and performance requirements existed. Athletes who could barely read and write were being enrolled, and all too many finished out their four years of eligibility without having achieved functional literacy. They took "physical education" classes that gave academic credit for attending practices, and were steered into cushy courses taught by professors friendly to the athletic department. When they had to pass some "hard" subject like freshman English, people like me were hired to do the academic work for them.

Writing those English themes was one of the more challenging professional experiences of my life. They couldn't be good, because that would have betrayed the fact that they had been ghost-written, but they had to be barely passable. It's not easy to write poorly if you have learned how to do it well and take some pride in your work.

I remember one All-American football player who boasted that he had never attended a class in four years at Ann Arbor. I suspect he exaggerated a bit but, judging by his inability to express himself in any other than unprintable four-letter words, he certainly never went to very many. His professional football career was cut short after a couple of years by injuries, and I wonder what happened to him. He wasn't equipped to do anything except block on the line of scrimmage if somebody pointed him in the right direction. He was quite possibly mentally retarded.

After the mid-50's faculty revolt, football and other sports were down-graded at the U. of M. Spokesmen for the university began talking in terms of having "representative" teams rather than championship teams. Break-even seasons came to be accepted as normal, until alumni rose up in anger and exerted the pressure which ushered in the Canham-Schembechler era.

The U. of M. athletic department today is independent of the rest of the university. It has its own self-financing budget, derived primarily from football gate receipts. Paying the bills requires that every home football game be a 100,000-plus sell-out, and that means Michigan had better win almost all the time. Crowds of that size don't turn out at $13 per ticket to watch losers.

Michigan State was mentioned earlier because its situation is different. At East Lansing the university administration does have considerable control over the athletic department, and many Spartan sports boosters blame that relationship for MSU's gridiron misfortunes in recent years.

MSU has gone out and hired George Perles to turn its football program around. Perles is being paid $95,000 a year, which places him either second or third nationally on the college coaching salary scale, depending on whose figures you want to believe. He makes considerably more money than president Mackey, who has joined in the national effort to give academic interests more control over athletics.

Michigan State wanted Perles badly enough to settle for more than half a million dollars a lawsuit filed by the professional team from which he jumped his contract to come to East Lansing.

It all makes you wonder what is going on, and who is calling what signals, at MSU.

More on this subject next week.

LITTLE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS: The Pirates won this summer's Chelsea Little League title with an 11-1 record. Cross Country Girls Team Looks To Be Strong Chelsea High school's girls cross country team should be strong this fall. With 24 girls out for the team coach Pat Clarke will not be troubled with depth problems.

Lost through graduation was Sandra Frame, who regularly led the Chelsea girl harriers home last year, but there are a lot of good runners coming back.

Senior co-captains Wendy Wolfgang and Sue Young will lead the Bulldog pack into the fall campaign. Both have put in a fine pre-season of hard work and appear ready to have fine seasons.

The top returning runner is junior Mary Ann Richardson, who was an all-league state qualifier in 1982.

Other letter winners who return are junior Stephanie Grant and sophomores Laura Damm, Debby Tift, Jill Schaffner and Shanda Friday.

Runners who could help are sophomores Crystal Porath, Julie Thompson, Susan Jaques, Jennifer Colvin, Sue Grant and Kim Fenton.

Newcomers who will be counted on include sophomores Kim Collins, Amy Wolfgang, Stephanie Roberts and Cathy Burkel, and freshmen Marla Feldman, Robin Mock, Melanie Flanigan, Kathryn Morgan, Edie Harook and Chris Neuman.

"We have many runners with talent who are hungry to accomplish something," Clarke said. "It's not a bad situation for a coach to be in. I'm looking forward to seeing what the girls can do this season."

The SEC race looks to be wide open, Clarke said.

Tecumseh will return a veteran team with a good deal of talent.

Defending champion Dexter had heavy graduation losses, but will have a premier runner in Krissy McKillen, sister of the graduated state champion Kelly McKillen.

Saline will return a pair of fine runners and could challenge for the title.

Milan faces a major rebuilding task, but the tradition-rich Big Reds will be competitive.

Chelsea team will be deep, talented and should be a strong contender for league honors.

Boy Harriers Face Rebuilding Job This Year

As the 1983 Chelsea High school boy's cross country team approaches its fall season, it faces a major rebuilding task.

Gone is two-time all-league runner Mark Brosnan, now running for Eastern Michigan; two-time all-region runner, Dave Kies; and varsity veterans Kevin Richardson, Randy Krichbaum and Ernie Brisstle.

"We graduated a lot of experience and talent," said coach Pat Clarke. "It's going to be one of those wait-and-see seasons. We have a very hard-working group of young men who could surprise some people as the season progresses."

Returning to lead the defending SEC champion Bulldog harriers are senior co-captains Allen Cole (all-league and all-region in 1982) and Eric Green. Both have looked impressive in early season workouts.

Two other senior lettermen who will be counted on heavily are Tom Nemeth and Mark Spayd.

Junior letter winners returning are Jared Bradley, Steve Hunn, Damian Creffield and Kyle Kemish. Sophomores who could help are Craig Maciaz, Jeff Wheaton and Greg Jalynski.

Newcomers who have looked good are senior Scott Cooper and freshmen Lee Riemenschneider, Jeff Nemeth and Jason Creffield.

In the Southeastern Conference it looks to be the year of the Hornets. Saline returns almost everyone from a state-ranked team, including two-time all-star Mark Pogliano.

Dexter will field its strongest team ever, led by all-region runner Matt Parks, and could challenge Saline.

Lincoln returns four lettermen from their regional championship team of last fall and should be tough.

Milan will have a premier runner in Ty Chatell but they must build some depth to move up in the league.

Tecumseh will not field a boys team due to a lack of interest.

The local Bulldog harriers could surprise if they continue their hard work and dedication, Clarke says.

Volunteers Sought for Meal Service

Volunteer drivers are needed on Tuesdays for the Chelsea Home Meal Service, according to co-ordinator Mary Ann Merkel. Also needed are substitute drivers for all days of the week.

Drivers work about one day a week, picking up cooked and packaged meals at the Methodist Home and delivering them to persons who are home-bound. About 20 persons presently receive the service.

Persons interested in volunteering are asked to call Joyce Manley at 475-2795 or Anne Feeney at 475-1493.

Good Time Singers To Perform Twice At Chelsea Fair

One of the attractions at the Chelsea Community Fair is the Good Time Singers.

The group consists of Mark and Carol Palms, Chris Tait and Sheila Mignano. They will perform at the Keynote Music fair booth located in the merchant's barn on Saturday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., presenting an hour of folk music and songs at each time.

Mark Palms will be teaching guitar at Keynote Music Center beginning in September. Carol Palms is the string teacher and orchestra director for the Chelsea schools.

The group recently performed in the Hootenanny production in Ypsilanti.

Farm Equipment Sales Decline

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that the sales of tractors, self-propelled combines and forage harvesters have declined more than 50% since 1975—while their prices have more than doubled.

Tractor sales, at 160,900 units in 1975, dropped to 77,100 units in 1982. Sales of self-propelled combines, at 33,000 in 1975, declined to 16,200 last year.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

The news on the pheasant front is not cheering. Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologists in Lansing, who look at things from a state-wide standpoint, say that, over-all, there is little if any increase over last year which was the poorest in modern times. District biologists at Jackson say the same for the area they cover.

There was hope last spring that the pheasant population, which has been in a state of steady decline for more than 20 years, might turn around this year. That cautious optimism was based on two facts: the unusually mild winter of 1982-83 and the federal Payment-in-Kind (PIK) program which temporarily retired a lot of acreage from crop production.

By thinking positively, you could conjure a pattern of high over-winter survival of breeding stock, followed by outstanding nesting success in the fields not planted to cash grain crops.

It didn't happen that way and, by hindsight, it is not hard to figure out why. The breeding stock was even lower than suspected. While the birds undoubtedly had a relatively easy time making it through the winter, there weren't very many of them around to survive.

Last spring was not a good one for pheasant reproduction. It was cold and wet, the worst possible combination of weather conditions for ground-nesting birds. Hen pheasants have an unfortunate habit of locating their nests on low land where the eggs can be flooded out by a drenching rain of the kind that fell on southern Michigan several times last spring. Hens that lose their first clutch of eggs usually will try again, but the second effort is almost always less successful.

The mild winter was not only good for pheasants, it was also good for skunks, raccoons and opossums. Judging by the number of road kills observed during the past six months, these animals are present in astonishing numbers. While one person's observations are not conclusive, as will be illustrated later in this column, they may be suggestive. I suspect the large predator population took a heavy toll of pheasant eggs and young.

The PIK program didn't produce much good pheasant nesting habitat this year. The bare fields harvested last fall didn't have time to grow the ground cover to attract broody hens at the time they were looking for it. The impact of PIK may be realized next year, provided the program is continued—and it may well not be because of this year's short corn and soybean crops. Economic pressures may force farmers to convert their idled acreage back to cash grains, which means the fields would be plowed this fall and planted in the spring, leaving no room for pheasants.

By a memory count, which probably is not entirely accurate, I recall having seen just six pheasants since the first of March during more than 2,000 miles of driving in Washtenaw county. I remember times years ago when you could observe many more than that by driving a random 25 miles.

Photographer Steve Worley reports he has seen a couple of pheasant broods on his daily commuting drive between East Lansing and Chelsea. That is good news in that it indicates some amount of reproductive success.

While I was discussing the pheasant situation with biologists at the DNR's Jackson district office, I mentioned that I had never before seen so many cottontail rabbits as I have this year, and that is true. Rabbits have been all over the place, including my Chelsea backyard where there have been as many as six at a time nibbling on the clover.

To my surprise, I was told that cottontails appear to be down somewhat this year on a district-wide basis, and that what I am seeing is apparently a purely local phenomenon in and around Chelsea. Having dodged dozens of rabbits darting across the road in front of my car—and luckily avoided hitting any, which is kind of a minor miracle in itself—I find hard to believe the prediction that this fall's cottontail crop will come up a little bit short.

However, I do believe it. Individual observations, by themselves, are not worth much. Put together with the experiences of a whole lot of other people, they provide a pretty good index to wildlife numbers.

THANK YOU
I would like to thank everyone who helped us get the Sesquicentennial quilt done by Fair time. Without a lot of hard work on the part of all the ladies who helped quilt, we never would have made our deadline. Thank you to: Louise Altenberndt, Karon Bernhard, Mildred Collyer, Cheryl Ford, Norma Graflund, Donna Harsh, Loni Hughes, Marion Krieger, Dorothy Lentz, Lynda Longe, Maudie McGuire, Janet Phipps, and a very special thank you to Treva Winans, who was very supportive and helpful through the entire project. Without Treva the quilting project would not have gotten off the ground as smoothly as it did. Treva, you have truly been a Godesend. Thank you also to the Senior Citizen Center for the use of their facilities; Minnesota Fabrics for their guidance in choosing the fabrics, and to the Chelsea Cleaners for cleaning our quilt, once it was done. Again, thank you to all of you; and now we have a beautiful Sesquicentennial quilt.

Public Announcement

Superintendent Raymond E. Van Meer today announced its policy for Free Meals and Free Milk or Reduced-Price Meals, for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, Special Milk Program, and U.S.D.A. Donated Foods Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size and income criteria for determining eligibility.

Table with 3 columns: Total Family Size, Scale for Free Meals and Free Milk, Scale for Reduced-Price Meals. Rows for family sizes 1 through 8.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. This information may be verified at any time during the school year. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: Names of all household members; social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one; total household income; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year decreases in household size.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms contain a statement above the space for signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct. An additional statement is added to warn that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of Federal funds, that school officials may verify the information in the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of information may subject the applicant to prosecution under applicable State and criminal statutes.

In most cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, it should contact the school.

Children of unemployed parents may qualify for free or reduced price meals if total family income including welfare payments, unemployment compensation and sub-pay benefits fall within the prescribed family income guidelines.

Under the provisions of the policy the building principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he or she may make a request either orally or in writing to Fred A. Mills, Asst. Supt., Chelsea School District, Washington St., Chelsea, Mich. 48118, 475-9131, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an Outline of the hearing procedure.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap.

If any member of a household believes he/she has been discriminated against, he/she should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Your Health Options

By Beverly Chethick
 Director of Health Education, Washtenaw County Health Dept.

I am going to college this fall. Do I need any special shots? Check your records. If your immunizations are up-to-date, you will not need additional immunizations. To be sure they are current, before you go off to school, review your own records or check with your family doctor or clinic.

If it seems as though you do not have all the shots you need, it is a good idea to update them before you leave home. However, some universities—for instance, the U-Michigan—will provide you with shots free-of-charge when you arrive on campus. It's up to you, however, to get down to the Health Service for your vaccinations. Take your records with you so the Health Service staff will know which shots you need.

College age students sometimes think they have outgrown the chance of catching one of those "childhood diseases," but that's not the case. College students are still coming down with a variety of these diseases, and some cause serious complications.

Measles, for instance, can lead to pneumonia and encephalitis. It can cause deafness, permanent brain damage, or even death. In 1980, measles cases were reported from at least 36 colleges; in 1981, 19 colleges reported measles, and in 1982, 14 colleges made reports. Closer to home, during the first two months of 1983, the majority of cases in the United States were reported among students attending Indiana's two largest universities.

Mumps, too, may have serious effects. Mumps leads to sterility in 20% of the men who develop the disease during or after their teen years.

Rubella (German measles) is a serious problem for the unborn babies of pregnant women who have the disease. If a pregnant woman has rubella, her unborn baby—if it survives—may be born with a hearing loss or impaired vision. The baby may also have heart or mental complications. In 1982, there were 2,290 cases reported nation-wide, a 10% increase over 1981; many of the cases involved adults at universities or in the workplace.

Before you get off to school, it pays to take the time to check your records and get any shots you may need.

Your Health Options appears monthly in this paper. If you have a health related question, please write to this paper, Attn: Your Health Options or directly to the Washtenaw County Health Department, Health Education Office, P. O. Box 8645, Ann Arbor 48107.

Foster Care Homes Needed for Children

Reported cases of child abuse and neglect have increased dramatically in Washtenaw county over the past two years. This has resulted in a corresponding increase in the number of children who must be placed in out-of-home care. The Department of Social Services is in need of more family foster homes to provide care for these children and to work with the agency regarding their return home.

Children who come into care are all ages and come from all racial and ethnic groups. Especially needed are families who are willing to care for children ages 10-17, groups of brothers and sisters, emotionally impaired children, pregnant teens, sexually abused children, and black children of all ages.

Foster parents work with the Department as members of a team. They need to be able to provide love, security, and patient understanding for children who are suffering the traumatic effects of being separated from their families. Foster parents arrange for the child's medical and dental care, work with schools, and plan recreational activities. They also provide transportation for visits with biological families and, when appropriate, work directly with the child's family in the interest of reuniting the child with his or her family.

Three orientation classes are offered to help prepare families for the foster care experience. The next series starts on Sept. 13, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Department of Social Services, 2350 W. Stadium Blvd., Ann Arbor. If you would like to attend or know more about our program, please call Pat Ruby at 994-1694.

County Democrats Plan Labor Day Picnic

For the 21st time in a row, Democrats of Washtenaw county will celebrate Labor Day with an outdoor picnic barbecue, featuring Jazz music by Rich Browne, and an auction of donated items presided over by auctioneer Richard Bailey.

The picnic will be held again at the Knights of Columbus picnic grounds on Dexter Rd., west of Wagner Rd., from 1 to 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 5.

The Labor Day Picnic is the County Democrats' biggest social event and fund raiser. The idea of this as a fund raiser, though, is to attract "all of our friends, regardless of wealth," according to picnic chairperson Angie Jones Veigel, of Ypsilanti. The $7.50 ticket price, according to Veigel, insures that people get their money's worth, and still help to buy stamps for our newsletter.

Auction manager Gretchen Tarchinski, of Ann Arbor, describes the auction as a chance to catch a bargain, as well as to enjoy the entertainment of seeing Bailey occasionally auction off a watchamacallit. "At this point," says Tarchinski, "we are still in need of donated items, in good condition—all items except clothing." Tarchinski invites "auction addicts" to attend the auction at 3 p.m., regardless of whether they attend the picnic.

Auction information may be obtained by calling Tarchinski at 662-9120. Picnic information may be obtained by calling Veigel at 482-1824.

The picnic admission entitles the attendee to barbecued chicken, cooked by long-time barbecue chef Lloyd Quicksey, as well as fresh corn on the cob; salad, and a drink. Pre-picnic ticket sales are more than double what they have ever been, according to Veigel, who is expecting a record turnout at the picnic itself.

The Price of Bread

The price of a one-pound loaf of white bread increased a little over a cent, from 53.23 cents to 54.30 cents, from January-March 1982 to January-March 1983, according to the USDA. During that same time, the farm value of wheat declined from $3.75 to $3.57 per bushel, while the retail price of 100 pounds of flour moved up from $85.59 to $87.31.

A breakdown shows that the farm value of wheat in that loaf of bread declined from 4.70 cents in Jan.-March 1982 to 4.42 cents this year, and that the farm value of other farm ingredients in the bread also declined. The total farm value of all farm ingredients in the bread was 5.04 cents this Jan.-March period, down from the 5.35 cents a year ago.

Faith in Action Offering Clothing For School Children

School will start soon now and it is time to consider what children need in the way of clothing.

Faith in Action has used clothing and shoes available to Chelsea residents in need, including families on assistance, unemployed or low income families, and senior citizens. It would be helpful if people call 475-3305 before coming, as the facility is limited on space.

Clothing is donated locally to Faith in Action, and there is a good supply right now.

Todd Haselschwerdt earned second place in the Michigan 4-H Tractor Operators' Contest held Aug. 17 at St. Johns High school.

Haselschwerdt was judged on his ability to demonstrate safe tractor driving, to back a two-wheeled implement and a four-wheeled wagon through an obstacle course, to identify parts of a tractor engine and to correctly complete a written test.

BIG ZUCCHINI: It may or may not win a prize, but the zucchini squash entered in the Chelsea Community Fair by Chris Haugen of Chelsea was a mighty big one, about half the size of a watermelon. As you can see, he was mighty proud of it.

Various Ideas Offered To Fix Fire Hall Roof

Whatever is done to fix the roof on the Chelsea fire hall is going to cost considerable money, possibly $25,000 or more. That ball-park estimate does not include repairing the front overhang on the building which has been chewed up by carpenter ants and further damaged by water leakage.

Those facts emerged from a lengthy report submitted to the village council by trustees Richard Steele and Joe Merkel, who make up the council's fire department committee.

Repairing the overhang will cost between $8,000 and $10,000, the report stated. Whatever is done about the roof will be an added expense, and estimates received from contractors range up to $25,000 without provision for contingencies.

The fire hall roof has been a periodic problem during its 20-year existence, the committee report said. Options include trying to repair the present roof, or removing it and starting over.

The committee recommended that in any case there should be enough insulation installed to reduce the cost of heating the building. "Members of the fire department have tried different cost-saving measures, and even with last year's mild weather the cost of heating was high," the report states.

Three roofing contractors proposed various methods of repairing the present roof and providing additional insulation.

The fire department itself came up with an idea to replace the roof and construct a hose tower, meeting room and storage area on the second floor. Several members of the department have volunteered to help do the work, and fireman Doug Eder has drawn a set of detailed plans.

The hose tower would save money in the long run. Present methods of drying hoses are both costly and time-consuming.

The full council is expected to take up the matter at its Sept. 6 meeting.

Two Businesses Combine into One

A new downtown business, Barbara's Needle Arts, has opened at 103 N. Main St., the result of a combination of two previously existing separate enterprises.

Barbara Branch, who owned the Chelsea Craft Co. at 105 S. Main, has bought the Country Craftique shop across the street and will operate the combined businesses at the latter location.

The former Chelsea Craft Co. location is temporarily vacant.

Mrs. Branch said all employees and craft teachers from both shops will be working in the new business. Seven persons are involved in total.

"We will continue to offer all services and materials that the two shops previously provided separately," she said. "It is business as usual, except that everything is now in a single location."

Jennie Hemingway is the former owner of Country Craftique.

Classes will still be taught in various needle arts and crafts, including quilting, crocheting, knitting, stenciling and candlewicking.

Store hours will be 9:30 a.m.-8:30 p.m. on Monday, 9:30-5:30 Tuesday through Friday, and 9-5 Saturday.

The U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration conducted more than 70,000 investigations and resolved over 46,000 complaints during the 1982 fiscal year, according to the department's annual report.

Chelsea Milling Again Postpones Start of Building

Construction of the new Chelsea Milling Co. mixing and packaging plant has been postponed until next spring, a spokesperson for president Howard Holmes has announced.

When plans for the new plant were revealed last October, a starting date of June 1 was included. That was later changed to Sept. 1.

The delay is said to have been caused by problems in working out design details for the new plant, which is to house a gravity-flow system for mixing the ingredients that go into Chelsea Milling's nationally marketed line of Jiffy mixes.

The spokesperson who announced the new postponement, until the spring of 1984, declined to discuss reasons why. "That's all I can tell you," she said. "We will not have any more information until the first of the year."

She did acknowledge "it's a pretty good guess" that the design is still not finalized and it is getting late in the year to begin a major construction project in Michigan weather which can normally be expected to turn nasty in November.

Holmes was not available for comment.

The plant is to be put up on the former Chelsea Lumber Co. property fronting on the west side of N. Main St. north of the Conrail tracks. The initial announcement prescribed a building 225 by 100 feet in its base dimensions, 4-5 stories and 70-90 feet high, with 130,000 square feet of floor space.

Chelsea Milling has secured tax abatement approval from the village council on improvements to the old lumber company site. The tax break will not take effect until the improvements are made.

Palmer Ford Joins in Service Sweepstakes

"Customers of Palmer Motor Sales, 222 S. Main St., are receiving announcements notifying them that they are winners in the $11.5 million 'We're At Your Service' Sweepstakes," George Palmer said today.

"Everybody wins a prize in the nation-wide program," said Palmer, "and the grand prize is $70,000 in cash plus the services of a professional investment manager."

One hundred seventeen cash and merchandise prizes valued at more than $170,000 are being given away in the nation-wide program. First prize is a 1984 Lincoln Town Car, plus a personal chauffeur for one year plus $10,000 in cash. Second prize is a professional housekeeper for an entire year. Four third prizes will feature the use of either a new 1984 Ford Thunderbird or Mercury Cougar for a full year. Ten fourth prizes, each a Sterling Silver service for six, will be awarded.

One hundred fifth prize winners will receive complete engine tune-ups to keep their Ford-built vehicles running their best. In addition, there are 2,900,000 sixth prizes, Rand McNally's Custom Trip Routing Guide to any destination in the United States, Canada or Mexico, a regular $5 value.
