Cassidy Lake Movement Gains More Momentum

The "Fence It Or Close It" committee formed to do something about security at the Cassidy Lake Technical School is now more than 1,000 members strong and continuing to grow, organizer Ron Olmsted reports.

The Lima and Sylvan township boards and the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce have added their organizational support to the campaign by passing resolutions demanding that the facility be either fenced or closed.

Meanwhile, there were two more walk-aways from the institution during the past week, bringing to 46 the number for the year so far in 1983. One was recaptured almost immediately. The other is still at large.

"The response has been even greater than I had anticipated," Olmsted said. "I knew that many people shared my concern, but I didn't realize how widespread the feeling of fear and anxiety is."

Olmsted, who is public affairs director for Chelsea Community Hospital, launched the "fence it or close it" drive after his Ivey Rd. home was broken into and robbed by three escapees from the school on Aug. 24.

Membership on the committee has been solicited through local newspaper publicity and sign-up sheets left in local business places.

There was no news from the Department of Corrections in Lansing, which operates Cassidy Lake and is continuing to "stonewall" the situation. A "policy auditor" reportedly has been assigned to investigate and prepare a report, but that could not be confirmed.

The official comment from both Lansing and Cassidy Lake was "no comment."

Olmsted released excerpts from letters he has received. Among them:

"I have recently purchased land north of Chelsea and intended to build a home there. I now have second thoughts about the safety of my family, should I build there as planned. . . . The recent rash of escapes, or walkaways as the media tends to say, has me very upset. Not only is the facility overcrowded, but it is housing the more serious criminal types. I'm sure the original idea of a minimum security prison like Cassidy Lake was well intended, but now that the harder-core criminals are being housed there, the ease and frequency of escapes is terrifying. Sooner or later someone is going to be seriously hurt or killed. Whether it is a prisoner, because the people living in the area are scared to death, or an innocent citizen because the criminal knows he has nothing more to lose, it is still a death."

"Citizens of the Chelsea/Sylvan township area are indignant and alarmed at the frequent escapes of inmates from the Cassidy Lake Technical School. The facility was originally intended to provide a wholesome transition for mild offenders before they return to a free society. Today, the name of this institution is a grim euphemism. The Cassidy Lake convict population now includes a large number of dangerous, multiple offense felons who walk away from this unwall, fenceless 'school' and threaten the community."

"We moved to Chelsea to avoid the kinds of problems like break-ins, living in fear of strangers walking along our road, and

Township Supervisors Present Case Against Summer Tax Collection

Several township supervisors, hoping to dissuade the Chelsea Board of Education from collecting summer property taxes in 1984, were among about a dozen people to attend a public hearing on the topic Monday night.

Each of the supervisors asked the board not to levy a summer tax next year, saying such a collection would cause hardship to area residents and cost more to conduct than has been projected.

Whether to split the yearly levy of school taxes, collecting half in July and half in December, has been a topic of dispute between Michigan school districts and townships since last Dec. 16 when then Gov. William G. Milliken signed the bill into law.

Theoretically, state law has always allowed summer tax collection, however, it prohibited districts from collecting the levy if local municipalities refused. Under the new law, school districts can conduct the collection themselves or hire outside firms if townships refuse.

School districts have traditionally had to borrow money to start the school year, since their fiscal year begins in July and taxes have not been collected until December.

Chelsea assistant superintendent for finance Fred Mills said that the cost to levy the summer tax in 1984 would be approximately $17,500 if the district paid townships $2.50 to collect taxes on 7,000 parcels of property. Chelsea would probably still have to borrow a half million dollars next year, but that figure is substantially lower than the three million the district borrowed this year, he said.

Savings to the district could be as much as $15,000 if a summer tax were to be instituted in 1984, Mills said.

Muriel Pluck, Waterloo township supervisor, asked the board not to levy the summer tax. Pluck said her township collected the tax this summer on residents of the East Jackson and Jackson school districts and that the response was "very poor." Not only did people resent the tax, but payments have been slow coming in, she said.

John Savage, supervisor of Sharon township, agreed and said the projected costs for a summer collection are unrealistic.

"I can tell you right now Sharon township can't afford to do it for $2.50 a parcel," he said.

Savage estimated that approximately 40 percent of Sharon township is agricultural and could be exempted from paying a summer tax.

Under the law full time farmers and senior citizens would not be required to make the 50 percent summer payment, but could continue to pay their taxes in December.

"It would even cost to execute the exemption certificates. It is not just salary, but postage receipts and accounting," he said.

"It doesn't help your public relations any to collect summer taxes," Savage added.

Mills said that while it is hard to determine the number of exemptions for farmers and senior citizens in the district, preliminary figures show about 10 percent of local residents would be allowed to skip the summer payment and pay the full amount of their taxes in December.

Slavery Investigation Reportedly Being Made

A Lima township dairy farmer is reported to be under investigation by federal authorities for holding two elderly men in involuntary servitude (slavery).

As of Monday, no charges had been filed in the case. The farmer's name is known but is being withheld from publication until and unless a formal presentment is made to a federal grand jury.

Washtenaw sheriff Tom Minick launched the investigation originally, but turned the matter over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation office in Detroit after discovering there is no Michigan law against slavery.

Under federal law, slavery is an offense punishable by a fine of up to $5,000, five years in prison, or both.

Other than to confirm that they have the matter under investigation, FBI officials made no comment.

The investigation is said to involve two men who allegedly worked on the farm for long periods of years without pay and in squalid conditions under threat of punishment if they tried to leave. The men have been removed from the farm by state and local law enforcement officials.

Robin Raymond Quits Chelsea Coaching for Ann Arbor Pioneer Job

Robin Raymond, the popular varsity basketball coach who led the Chelsea cagers to a tie for the Southeastern conference championship last season, has resigned to become head coach at Ann Arbor's Pioneer High school.

Superintendent Ray Van Meer made the surprise announcement during a Board of Education meeting Monday evening.

Raymond said that while he and top Chelsea administrators have known for several weeks that he was in the running for the position, a formal announcement has not yet been made in Ann Arbor.

"It's unofficially official," Raymond said.

The ongoing Ann Arbor teachers strike has delayed the announcement, he said.

Before coming to Chelsea, Raymond was an assistant varsity basketball coach in Ypsilanti for four years.

During his six year tenure with the Bulldogs he led the squad to two first place conference titles. The team also finished second in the conference twice.

Raymond said that while he will be coaching in Ann Arbor, he will continue to teach high school math at Chelsea.

While Raymond said he has enjoyed coaching at Chelsea, he decided to accept the Pioneer position to advance his career.

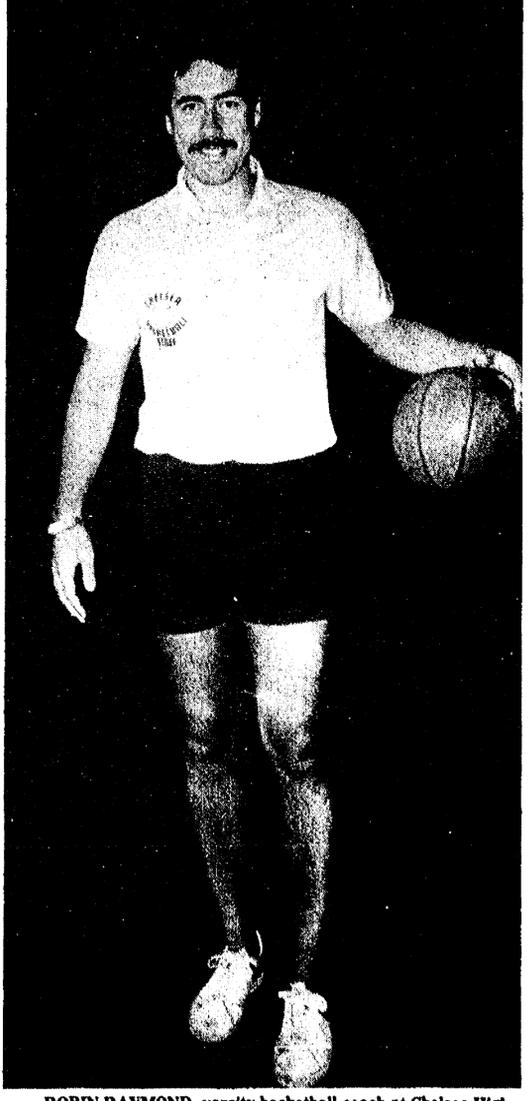

"My original goal was to coach at a good Class A school," he said. "As far as a career move it is definitely a promotion."

Raymond and his wife, Jan, and children, Chad, Nicole and Robyn, will continue to live in Chelsea.

"We've enjoyed our stay here and have always had a great amount of support from the school community and the community as a whole," Raymond said. "We appreciate everything that has been given to us."

To fill the vacancy, Van Meer said the school will probably hire an interim coach for one year.

Commission Wants Full Authority Over Officials' Pay

The chair of the State Officers Compensation Commission has recommended the panel be given full authority, without any legislative review, to annually set pay and other compensation levels for elected officials.

Former Michigan State University President Edgar Harden made the proposal at a hearing by the House Appropriations Committee on a bill to extend the time the Legislature has to reject commission set pay levels.

Harden's proposed amendment would expand the commission's authority to include compensation for the attorney general and secretary of state, whose pay is now set by the Legislature, provide for the commission to meet annually rather than once every two years and give it authority to determine not just salary and expense levels, but direct and indirect compensation and fringe benefits as well.

The Legislature now sets its own retirement and health care plans.

Harden told the committee the pending legislation to extend consideration time treats the symptom and not the cause of the regular pay issue debates "by facing up to the real issue, we ought to put this all in the hands of the Legislature or with the State Officers Compensation Commission. As it is, we are all losers," Harden said.

The proposal was welcomed by many members of the committee, including Rep. Thomas Mathieu (D-Grand Rapids) who said the dual authority under the current system of authorizing the Legislature to reject commission determinations "leads to all kinds of mischief" by legislators trying to get political mileage out of opposing pay raises.

The meeting was marked by several sharp exchanges between Democratic committee members and Republican proponents of the bill, including criticism by committee Chair Rep. Dominic Jacobetti (D-Negaunee) to Sen. Harmon Cropsey (R-Decatur) that he was illegally trying to amend the constitution by a bill.

"The constitution says the Legislature must reject the recommendations by Feb. 1. It is very specific on that," he said.

Actually, the constitution only authorizes the Legislature to reject the recommendations, while a state law, which the bill would amend, sets the Feb. 1 deadline for taking the action. The bill would extend that deadline, which critics say does not give legislators time enough in a new organizing session to consider the matter, to 90 days after submission of the executive budget.

Executives Assigned to State Government Posts
 Corporate executives will soon start appearing within state government to lend their expertise in streamlining government and aid in opening new markets.

Seven corporate executives, part of Governor James Blanchard's so-called executive corps, are on leave from their corporations to work in state government on high-priority projects related to the state economy, assisting state officials in analyzing and developing policy initiatives.

The state will retain the services of the executives for $1 per year, but individual participating companies will continue to pay the salaries of the executives.

Blanchard said the Executive Corps is an example of the kind of co-operation that can take place between business and government. He said the program will serve to close the gap between business and government.

Companies participating in the program include Burroughs, Detroit Edison, Dow Chemical, Kellogg, Federal Mogul and General Motors.

ON YOUR FEET

TREATING AN INGROWN TOENAIL

If you have an ingrown toenail that's causing you pain and discomfort, avoid the myths about self-treatment. For example, maybe someone has advised you to cut a wedge out of the top edge of the nail so the nail will grow toward the center. This won't help because a nail grows forward from an area called the matrix. The matrix is located behind the point where the nail emerges from the toe. As it grows forward, the nail attaches to the nail bed. This appears normally as the pink area showing through the larger portion of the nail. The part that is cut when you trim your nails is the white part. This is the free end of the nail that grows beyond the nail bed. It takes about 120 days for a normal nail to develop from the matrix to the end of the toe.

When a toenail becomes ingrown, the flesh around the nail is forced close to the sides of the nail. This makes it appear as if the nail was growing out of the flesh, which is not the case at all. Ingrown toenails, however, can be very painful and may become infected. Have this condition treated by your podiatrist.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle reads everything. Some folks say if they got time to stop they got time to sit down. If Ed's got time to sit down he's got time to pick up somepun to read. It might be a five year old fishing magazine in the doctor's office, or a five month old newspaper from another state his wife's new cut glass candy dish come wrapped in. He has been known to bring clippings from these and stranger places to the session at the country store.

So it was a suprise to hear Ed bad mouthing the printed word Saturday night. He brung his clippings as usual, but some of em was to back up his case that print is leaning away from informing and to heavy to entertaining. His first exhibit was samples of surveys that has been reported in the papers recent. He reported where one of them magazines that come in the Sunday papers had made a big deal out of a study of what kind of patients doctors. like.

A survey by a feller with a federal grant at Michigan State University discovered, Ed said, that doctors like some and don't like others, which tells us nothing but practical all doctors are human beings. They don't like patients that smell, complain all the time, come in sloppy drunk, have somepun wrong they can't cure and don't pay their bill. They like patients that make interesting conversation, pay attention to what the doctor says, have insurance companies that don't hassle over the paperwork and git well so he don't look bad.

What it all come down to declared Ed, is that this research didn't come up with a blessed thing that does anybody any good to know, even if they ever had give the matter any thought. Just last week, Ed said, he saw where some outfit had spent 73,000 Federal dollars to come up with statistics showing that union labor don't cut down perduction on construction jobs. Ed said he couldn't help but wonder what contractors would do if this research had showed it does.

The fellers was general agreed that reader Ed was out of their league, but Bug Hookum reported he is having trouble of another kind with his farm journals and USDA pamphlets. Use to, he said, you could order a booklet on how to put up a grapevine and you'd git more advice than you could foller. Now you git the runaround. Fer instant, Bug said, he was reading a pamphlet the other night full of askericks where you look at the bottom of the page and another one tells you to look somewhere else. By the time he got through follerling them stars from appendix to drawings and back where he was, Bug said, he had fergot what he was looking fer.

Zeke Grubb was of a mind the problem was in Bug's head more than in the pamphlet, but the wonder to him is how the Government keeps up with all the printed material it puts out. Zeke had got a copy of U. S. Government Books that lists alphabetical more than 16,000 publications. Anything you want to know about anything is yours fer the orderings, Zeke said, even if you got to wade through the askericks.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

What Is The Value Of A Full-Service Funeral?

Since the beginning of time, man has publicly viewed and buried his dead with dignity and ceremony. Although rituals differ, the funeral service meets the needs of the survivors, the living, as well as providing for the deceased. What are some of these needs and how does a full-service funeral fulfill them?

Realization: First, it declares that death has occurred and it offers testimonial to a life well-lived. Denial of a death is common. The very fact of a funeral and the viewing of the body (or casket) facilitates the realization of that death.

Emotional expression: The full-service funeral is of deep psychological significance to the living. Sorrow-shared is sorrow-diminished. The full-service and the facing-of-facts is the first step toward emotional adjustment after bereavement.

Workshop Series Offered on Cooking With Whole Foods

Learning to cook with whole foods can be quite a challenge, especially with all of the conflicting information about the nutritional value of our foods. Come join Teresa Freed, editor of The Foodletter, as she presents a series of workshops designed to put that information in perspective while participants explore cooking with whole grains and fresh produce.

The workshops are being offered by Chelsea Community Education and will take place on the specified dates from 9 a.m. to noon in the Chelsea High School Home Economics Room. Many delicious recipes will be made and sampled during the workshops, and recipe reprints will be included in the workshop fees.

"Rice Is Nice" is the first workshop in the series, and it will be held Saturday, Oct. 8. Brown rice is a delicious and exceptionally nourishing food, but is sometimes difficult to work into your diet. This workshop will focus on methods for cooking brown rice, ways to combine rice with other foods to form a complete meal without using meat, and many ideas for using rice in side dishes, salads, desserts, etc. Anyone who has had problems with cooking brown rice will find this workshop very helpful.

The second workshop is named "It's Soup" and will take place on Saturday, Oct. 29. Hearty soups are warming and satisfying, besides being very thrifty. Participants will learn how to make flavorful soups using leftover odds and ends that normally would be thrown away. Watery soups will be a thing of the past once you know how to extract the flavor and nutrients like Grandma used to do.

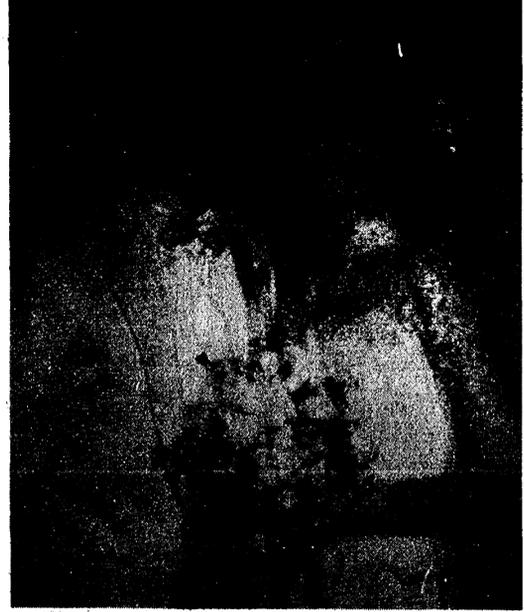

The third workshop, "Breads!" will explore making good whole grain breads. Making your own delicious bread is a wonderful way to raise the nutritional content of your meals and to lower your food bills. Participants will have a fragrant loaf of bread to take home. This workshop will meet Saturday, Nov. 12.

"Christmas Bakeshop" is the final workshop in the series, and will meet Saturday, Dec. 3. Baking is an important part of Christmas tradition in most households, but usually centers around making highly processed treats that deplete instead of nourish the body. This workshop will show how to substitute whole grain flours and other nutritious ingredients in baked goods. Participants will bake up a sampling of treats that are nourishing as well as festive.

You may register for the workshops through Chelsea Community Education at 475-9830. They are $7 each, or you may register for the series of four for $28. Learning about cooking with whole foods is a very individual thing, and you may have ideas for workshops or other activities that are more suited to your needs.

Let the Chelsea Community Education Office know what your needs are.

Woman's Club of Chelsea Begins Its 53rd Year

The Woman's Club of Chelsea held its kick-off meeting for the year on Tuesday, Sept. 13, at the home of President Myra Colvin. Twenty-one members and one guest, Glenna Biddle, enjoyed a pot-luck dinner and silent auction. During the business meeting, the president expressed hope that each member present would make a concerted effort to bring new members into the club this year. Any woman who is interested in meeting new people, enjoying good fellowship and participating in projects and activities which are aimed at bettering life in Chelsea is welcome in the club.

Old Clothing Sought for Historic Fashion Show

Cobblestone Farm will be the setting for an Oct. 30 showing of fashions from the collection of the Washtenaw County Historical Society. The Society's collection is noteworthy, spanning more than 100 years. Many of Ann Arbor's founding families will be represented among the outfits displayed.

Clothing of this age is fragile and care is being taken in the restoration process. Farm volunteers have been busy preparing the clothes for viewing. Many of the dresses are covered with beadwork, lace and ribbons. Ordinary repair methods are inadequate.

Cobblestone Farm is looking for additional pieces of clothing to be borrowed for the showing. Anyone willing to loan clothing should contact the farm office at 994-2928. Tickets to the showing are available at $4 for adults, $2 for seniors/youth from Kathy Sutton (994-5196) or at the farm office, 2781 Packard Rd., Ann Arbor.

The Woman's Club of Chelsea has always been strong in its support of school projects, community needs and other activities for Chelsea and the surrounding areas. It was founded in 1931 by a small group of young women who wanted to start a library in the village. That dream exists today as the McKune Memorial Library, located on Main St.

The club has been dedicated in its support of the library, the Chelsea Social Services, United Way, the Chelsea Methodist Home, the Chelsea Community Hospital, C.A.T.S., and the Girl Scouts. The club has also sponsored various scholarships.

Funding for the club comes from several areas. The Marathon Bridge Club is a major source of funds. Members also make contributions and a fall fund-raising project is held each year.

The Woman's Club meets twice each month. Programs are varied and often include topics of state, national and local interest. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m., at the McKune Library. Please call 475-2857 if you are interested in attending a meeting and learning more about the Woman's Club of Chelsea.

Altar Society Will Install New Officers

Evelyn Hale will be installed as president of the St. Mary's Altar Society during a meeting Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m., in the rectory basement.

Theresa Doll will also be installed as vice-president and Gertrude Drouyor will be installed as treasurer at that time.

The women were nominated for the positions during a Sept. 12 meeting of the Altar Society. Following the regular business meeting, refreshments were served by Katie Chapman. Entertainment followed, under the direction of program chairperson Gertrude Drouyor.

All women of the parish are welcome at the Oct. 3 meeting.

An estimated 116.3 million persons worked at some time during 1982 and 28.5 million encountered some unemployment, according to data from the annual work experience survey reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Chelsea Co-Op Nursery Begins Another Fall Term

Chelsea Co-op Nursery, located in the one-room schoolhouse at 11000 Dexter-Chelsea Rd., has begun another year of activities. Continuing a tradition, which began in 1957, a full calendar of field trips, special classroom events and thoughtfully designed learning experiences, has been planned for the upcoming year. A good bit of time has been spent this past summer strengthening the nursery curriculum in an effort to expand the social, personal and educational awareness of each student.

Marilyn Van Gunst designed both the school's award winning Fair Booth and Fair Parade Entry. She was assisted by Debbie Hutchinson, who handled Fair Week activities.

Working together, the co-op members have assured that the school, its program and building, has lived up to its designated status of a memorial to Florence Howlett. Mrs. Howlett was a teacher in the Chelsea school system during the first part of this century. She was widely known for her dedication to the principles of education.

Openings are still available for those who wish to choose the co-op pre-school option. The three-year-old class meets on Tuesday and Thursday 9-11:15. The four-year-old class meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9-11:15. Questions may be directed to Janet at 475-9370 or Karen at 475-7161.

Driverless Car Backs Down Street

A car left with the automatic transmission in the "park" position and the motor running jumped into reverse gear on S. Main St. last Thursday morning and travelled nearly a block down the street before hitting another vehicle and coming to a stop.

The run-away car, owned by Robert Rawson of 13351 Island Lake Rd., had been parked in front of the mail boxes outside the post office. It took off north, crossed the Park-South Sts. intersection, and halted after it hit a Federal Land Bank Association vehicle parked in front of Day-spring Gifts.

Damage was minimal, and no tickets were issued. "I've heard and read a lot of stories about some makes of cars jumping out of gear and running away, but this is the first one in my experience," Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo said. "Luckily, nobody got hurt." "I guess the lesson is that you should always shut the engine off before you get out of your vehicle. You never know what may happen while you're gone."

Summer Tax Collections Opposed

Superintendent Ray Van Meer said the district decided not to initiate a 1983 summer collection "because the timing was not right."

Of 10 districts in the county, Whitmore Lake, Ypsilanti, Willow Run and parts of the Ann Arbor district opted for a 1983 summer collection. Other schools will probably follow suit this year, he said.

Dexter and Saline are, like Chelsea, as yet undecided, he said.

Van Meer said the board hopes to reach a decision on the matter sometime in October.

"If it causes hardship on people then we ought not do it," he said. "We're trying to be receptive. Our mind is not made up."

There has been a 25 percent increase in enrollment over the last two years in private career schools.

Emergency Medicine Week Being Observed

"We have very high standards, and because our standards are so high we can provide very good care," she added.

The Chelsea emergency room treats patients from Jackson, Ann Arbor and Detroit as well as Ingham, Jackson and Livingston counties. Sweeten said people often come to the hospital from other areas because they know they will receive good medical care.

The emergency department at Chelsea Community Hospital has four examining rooms, one which is equipped to handle severe trauma cases, and three overflow rooms. Whenever possible the staff allows relatives to remain in the room with the patient, Sweeten said.

If patients are being transported by ambulance, hospital personnel are able to communicate with the vehicle and prepare for the patient through a Hearst Radio, Sweeten said. The hospital's Advanced Life Support system also transmits important information such as EKG tracings from the ambulance to the emergency room. The system is designed to give patients the fastest and best treatment possible, she said.

In addition to regular emergency care, the hospital offers various other services, such as the Vial of Life program. The vial is a prescription bottle containing a sheet of paper which lists medical history, medications, and any information which may be important in case of an emergency. Participants of the program carry a vial at all times and have another in their home, Sweeten said.

The hospital also offers the Lifeline program. Devices located in the homes of participants are activated to alert the hospital in case of an emergency. The devices can also measure the amount of activity in a home and alert the hospital if there is none. Operated through phone lines, the Lifeline allows many people the freedom to remain in their own homes, when they otherwise might have had to go to a nursing home, Sweeten said. The service costs approximately $15 a month.

"A lot of people think that Lifeline is just for the elderly and it's not," she added. "It is for anyone, the handicapped or even the temporarily ill."

Wright said the services provided by the Chelsea Community Hospital emergency room are "extraordinary for such a small community."

Normally a town the size of Chelsea, which is located in a county which has five major hospitals, would not have 24 hour emergency room service, he said. But financial support from the community makes the operation possible.

"The fact that the hospital is supported very well by the community is a reflection of how well it is respected in the community," he said.

Cage Coach Quits

"There are experienced people at our command who would be willing to take this position for one year," Van Meer said.

"I think our number one consideration is doing justice to our kids. We feel we have a good team coming up."

Cassidy Lake Changes Asked

sounds in the night. What have we got? Everything we fled from.

"Right up the way we have a jail with an open-door policy and the inmates take full advantage.

"Since 1980—our most recent break-in—we have added four extra doors with locks and chains and posts with a chain across the driveway.

"You have no idea the feeling one has to come home and find someone has been there going through your personal belongings. You feel violated. Then the fear of the next time when you might encounter the criminal."

"We feel that a state recreation area is hardly the place for an obviously unsecured prison. Escapes are almost a daily occurrence, and the residents are tired of living with vandalism, assault, and fear!

"The situation has long been out of control, and we are encouraged by the community's commitment to get something done. Please help us."

"These escapes and subsequent robberies have our whole town up in arms. I myself am terrified. I happen to be deaf and live alone. I've taken as many precautions as I can, short of buying a gun. At night I have to sleep with the windows closed and locked, which has been unbearable in this summer heat. I moved to Chelsea three years ago from Ypsilanti because of the peaceful atmosphere, and now I am petrified to walk outside my own home after dark. . . . It is our right as citizens and taxpayers to have peace of mind and to feel safe in going about our daily lives here in Chelsea. The present situation is intolerable and must be corrected now."

"We have children who are at times alone in the house, due to the fact that we both have outside jobs. I do not want to have to worry about them being scared, hurt, or killed by a convicted felon who is given the freedom to walk out of this so-called prison. Please do something about this situation immediately."

"We are both nearly age 80. With so many escaping from Cassidy Lake Prison, I am protecting ourselves with both a shotgun and a pistol. Never before have we considered a loaded gun in the house. Fence or close Cassidy Lake Prison."

"My family has lived in Chelsea for eight years. We love the community. . . . I spend a great deal of time in behalf of the Chelsea community. Consequently, I abhor the negative impact of the current and worsening situation at Cassidy Lake. I also abhor the conscious changes the problems there have caused in our personal lives. . . . wondering if our home is safe when we return. . . . locking the patio doors upstairs when we go downstairs to the family room. . . . fearing to leave our 14-year-old daughter alone. . . . listening for sounds at night, etc. Why should good citizens have to live with these fears on a daily basis? To date there has been total disregard for the opinion or safety of the Chelsea community who are affected. I have attended meetings in the past, listening to excuses and promises. The only thing that has materialized is a much worse situation. How can you expect the people of Chelsea to just take it?"

Technology Impacts Educational Change . . .

For most of our history, we Americans have been in love with change with newness. A change in progress has been a marked trait of Americans through most of our history. We Americans, however, have not only believed in progress to be inevitable; we have embraced it, for we have taken for granted that our country could always be in the very vanguard of change.

Today, however, our faith in change and our faith in ourselves as the world's supreme innovators is being shaken. Japan, West Germany, and other relatively new industrial powers have challenged America's position on the leading edge of change in technology and technical invention. In the 1970's, productivity in manufacturing industries grew nearly four times as fast in Japan, and twice as fast in West Germany and France as in the United States. The possibility that other nations may outstrip us in inventiveness and productivity is suddenly troubling Americans.

Cities, towns and communities all over the United States are depressingly familiar now with what the experts call technological or structural unemployment—joblessness that occurs because our workers or factories and our techniques are suddenly obsolete. To many Americans, change today seems a dark and threatening force rather than a bright confirmation of our national genius. Where change was once welcome, many of our people today are beginning to fear it. Yet the conditions that concern us today—swiftly advancing technology, economic competition in a global arena, the sudden obsolescence of skills—will be even more intense tomorrow.

Highly skilled human capital has always been important to our economy. In the future, it will be even more important. And in the future that is quickly emerging, not just people in the scientific and technical occupation, but virtually all workers, will face new demands. Some of these new demands, in fact, are already clearly visible in offices all over America: typewriters are being replaced by word processors—devices which increase productivity but which also require new training and new skills. In the armed forces, sophisticated weapon systems require more sophisticated skills. In shops and warehouses across the country, work that once was unskilled and purely physical—lifting, moving, hauling—is increasingly performed today by mechanical devices and even more sophisticated systems. In one sense, the advance of technology in the workplace makes work easier by reducing physical demands. But inevitably the advance of technology makes other intellectual and psychological demands. Even those inventions that make calculations faster and easier. Computers, for example, require a high degree of adaptability.

Our future success as a nation, our national defense, our social stability and well being, and our national prosperity will depend on our ability to improve education and training for millions of individual citizens.

Lima Supervisor Attends National Town Meeting

Lella Bauer, Lima township supervisor, was among nearly 1,000 local government officials who heard President Reagan address the nation's biggest town meeting. The president spoke before the Sept. 10-13 conference of the National Association of Towns and Townships, in Washington, D.C.

The president saluted the officials for the ways they have kept grassroots government strong in the communities they govern across the country and stated he supports keeping government at its grassroots.

Large concern for the local units of government was the repeal of Federal Revenue Sharing, "with no formula change." Federal Revenue Sharing had passed the House prior to the conference, although no formula for distribution was affirmed. A formula change could have meant a large decrease in Federal Revenue Sharing for local townships. During President Reagan's address he pledged his support in the renewal of Federal Revenue Sharing, for a three-year period, with an increase of $450 million and no formula changes for small units of government. Mrs. Bauer stated the increase could mean an additional 9% for Lima township.

Mrs. Bauer also heard presentations by a number of other influential Americans at the educational conference. Featured speakers included Department of Urban Development secretary Samuel R. Pierce; Sen. Charles H. Percy, Ill.; House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, Ill.; and Rep. Timothy J. Penny, Minn.

A reception on Capitol Hill gave Mrs. Bauer a chance to talk with Sen. Carl Levin and Rep. Carl Pursell, from her district. In addition she was invited to have dinner with Rep. Pursell.

"We analyzed local banks closely before we chose Ann Arbor Trust."

In 1969, a group of entrepreneurial scientists and engineers from The University of Michigan founded a think tank called Sensors, Inc. Their "product" was high-tech research for commercial applications.

Today, about the only thing that hasn't changed at Sensors is the name.

In the interim, the company has passed through several different phases of ownership. In 1972, Sensors became a subsidiary of DeKalb AgResearch. Ten years later, ownership of the company was transferred completely to a group of five Sensor employees.

The product focus of the company has also changed dramatically. During the mid 70's, Sensors moved away from pure research to concentrate on the design and manufacture of infrared gas analyzers—devices that measure the concentration of specific gases. These devices found wide application in automotive diagnostic equipment and emissions analyzers, as well as breath alcohol detectors.

In 1978, the Sensors management team made a decision to diversify its product line and expand into the medical field. One of the first products to emerge was an End Tidal Carbon Dioxide Analyzer used for measuring lung efficiency.

This year, Sensors, Inc. will design, assemble, test and ship nearly 10,000 units from its headquarters on South State Road. With a solid customer base and an aggressive marketing strategy in place, the company is looking forward to expanding its applications and moving its product line into even more markets.

"When we were looking for someone to facilitate our purchase of Sensors, Inc. from DeKalb, we considered a number of local banks. We chose Ann Arbor Trust for several reasons. First of all, we valued their common-sense approach to banking. They impressed us as fair, open-minded, practical people who understood business as well as banking. Also—since the sale promised to be extremely complicated—we were looking for good negotiators.

"As it turns out, Ann Arbor Trust proved to be the right choice. It took a year of negotiating, and the basic structure of the arrangement changed several times in the process. The fact that we closed the deal within the allotted time period was due largely to the bank's persistence and effort.

"We've had a lot of experience with a lot of banks—both corporately and individually—and we continue to be impressed with the down-to-earth, capable business approach of Ann Arbor Trust."

Clinton Fall Festival Will Open Friday

Isn't it great to know that there are still "fun places" to spend the entire weekend and not even spend a dime! Be sure to mark Sept. 23-24-25 on your calendar for Clinton's 10th annual Fall Festival.

Featured this year will be a full Saturday (12 noon to 9 p.m.) of Bluegrass Music. Country-western singer Kathy Kitchen will be performing Friday evening and again on Saturday.

You'll also want to "relive" an old-time war when the Black Powder Shoot gets underway Saturday morning and continues until evening.

There will be well over 100 arts and crafts booths lining Clinton's streets the entire weekend.

The lost arts exhibit this year will feature such items as spinning, quilting, bread making, macrame and several others too numerous to mention.

There will be a "fun run" Saturday morning.

New to Fall Festival will be a horse show on Saturday. Also on Saturday and Sunday there will be an Antique Car Show.

The Grand Parade will get underway at 2:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon. It was estimated there were more than 35,000 people in Clinton last year to view "one of the best parades in Michigan." You'll want to get there early to find just the right spot!

If you think you'll be hungry, there will be a fish fry, pig roast, chicken barbecue, pancake breakfast and numerous food booths and church groups selling their "fantastic" foods.

You'll have to stretch your neck on Saturday and look to the skies to see the super air show that will begin late afternoon (weather permitting). Not only will there be ultralights and parachutists this year, but several hot air balloons. Also on hand will be the Ann Arbor Falcons.

Did someone mention cost? There is none! Just pay for whatever you might want to "munch on." This weekend promises to be one that you'll be remembering for a long time.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Editor,

This letter is written in response to a statement made in the Sept. 14, issue of The Chelsea Standard by Ron Olmsted implying that the Cassidy Lake Liaison Council "will vote in favor of fencing or closing the place."

The Council recognizes the efforts of the Fence It Or Close It Committee but does not and has not in the past aligned itself to any other group or committee concerning a position or stance in relation to the situation at Cassidy Lake Technical School.

At this point the Cassidy Lake Liaison Council is actively investigating a number of areas concerning solutions to the present situation. The council is requesting from the State Department of Corrections information and data and cannot make recommendations to the State until all such information is received and reviewed by this Council.

The State Department of Corrections is cooperating with our requests.

The Council, whose members represent the surrounding townships and the community of Chelsea, are concerned, as you are, about the recent number of escapes and are optimistic that solutions to the problems at Cassidy Lake will be reached in the very near future.

Mary Beth Dettling,
Chairperson
Cassidy Lake Liaison Council.

Dear Editor:

I am referring to an article in the Ann Arbor News of Sept. 14, entitled "Gay Rights Proposal To Be Introduced."

We have always known that the Democratic Party is much more liberal than the Republican Party. But now there is a Republican Representative from Holland, Mich., who is considering co-sponsoring an amendment to outlaw discrimination based on sexual orientation.

Let's refer to our Bible. True, the National Council of Churches, (NCC) and the World Council of Churches, (WCC) are both working for the same thing. In contrast, the fundamentalists, Catholics and most Christians all condemn the practice of homosexuality and lesbianism. For Bible condemnation, read Lev. 20-13. 1 Cor. 6-9. Romans 1:28-28, and verse 32.

Survival Skills Course Offered By Parks Dept.

A course in basic survival skills will be taught from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25, at Park Lyndon South by Linda Wade of the Washtenaw county parks and recreation department. The $1 fee is payable at the start of the course.

Persons enrolling will be instructed in survival techniques for families or campers caught in "ordinary" emergencies such as a car breakdown on a back country road at night.

The advanced skills necessary for wilderness survival will not be covered.

Interested persons may call 994-2575 for further information.

Educational workshops focused on a variety of policy issues and concerns for communities; safe transportation of hazardous materials, computers in the town hall, federal financing of rural transportation, cutting costs of local government, and funding programs for community development.

Community Choir Organizing Meet Scheduled Tuesday

The Chelsea Community Choir will hold an organizational meeting with new director Jack Bittle, Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Bittle is new in Chelsea, but has had many years of musical experience. He majored in music at the University of Michigan, where he played in the percussion section of the U. of M. band.

Bittle previously taught band classes for 11 years at Sturgis high school. He also spent 15 years as a church choir director and served in 1966 as director of the Musical Youth International Band.

While in Sturgis, he organized and directed the community's choir, which toured Europe four consecutive years through the People to People program.

The new community choir director plans to perform Broadway musical selections, folk songs and spirituals. Rehearsal times for the choir will be set during the organizational meeting.

HUNTING SEASONS have opened, and local sportsmen are out in the woods trying their luck on squirrels, ruffed grouse and woodcock. Ed Fleming of Guinan Rd. lines up his shotgun on a fleeting target disappearing among the trees. Hunting will improve when the leaves drop.

Police Dept. Reports Quiet Month

The month of August was a quiet time for the Chelsea police department. Police made a total of 329 radio runs, but little of a major nature was involved except for assistance in tracking down escapees from the Cassidy Lake Technical School and Camp Waterloo.

Traffic violations were up over the same month a year ago—52 to 28—but parking violations were down, 37 to 80. Otherwise, there was little variation in the statistics as recorded by chief Robert Aello, and there were no major crimes reported.

Fair Party Scheduled Sept. 24

The annual Chelsea Community Fair party will be held beginning at 8 p.m. at the Fair Service Center.

Members of the fair board, superintendents, gate personnel and others closely interested in the fair are invited along with their spouses.

Persons attending are asked to bring their own table service and a dish to pass. Meat and beverages will be furnished by the fair board.

Huron River Assoc. Protests Plans for Hudson Mills Park

The Huron River Area Association is continuing its plight against the development as planned for the Hudson Mills Park despite announcements by the HCMA of the commencement of construction of the activities building.

Representatives of the group have met with both the Dexter and Webster Township Boards and the Washtenaw County Planning Commission and the HCMA in the hopes of posing alternatives to the HCMA plan for a regional park.

Word of the Hudson Mills renovation first came to the attention of the Washtenaw County Planning Commission last May, according to Tom Fagan, director of the Commission. The county has been paying the equivalent of ¼ mill annually to the HCMA since the early 1940's. This ¼ mill equals about $800,000 per year in recent years.

The County Planning Commission requested that the HCMA reinvest some of these funds back into the county. It was at this time that the Hudson Mills plans were brought to their attention.

According to Dan Duncan of the HCMA, any further plans for the development of the park will be reviewed with both the county and the Huron River Area Association. A meeting has been set for the beginning of October to review the various outdoor activity areas.

One of the primary concerns of the association according to Karen Keller, is the elimination of all private property from their master plan.

The group also hopes to protect and preserve the rural quality of the park. "They're making it an urban park. They're not taking into account the rural quality of Dexter and Webster townships," says Ms. Keller.

Adequate roads and community support services such as police and fire protection are also being studied by the group.

The group has also requested some concrete reasons, based on studies, for the parks expansion when the population of the county is decreasing.

A general meeting for the Huron Area Association is set for Wednesday, Sept. 28 at the Dexter Township Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Cassidy Lake Escapee Caught Within Minutes

Beefed-up sheriff's department patrols and a new communications system paid off last week in the speedy recapture of a walk-away from the Cassidy Lake Technical School.

Arnold S. Wright, 19, was caught outside the school grounds.

Washtenaw sheriff Tom Minick has assigned five deputies to special patrol duty in the Cassidy Lake area, following a wave of escapes and a resulting demand from local citizens that the institution be either fenced or closed.

Radio equipment has been changed so that deputies on car patrol and security personnel at the prison can communicate directly with each other, which they couldn't before. Messages had to go through a relay station.

Deputies spotted a man running across Waterloo Rd. and saw him get into a car. They radioed the school, learned that an inmate was missing, and shortly afterward arrested Wright, who had arranged a meeting with his girlfriend outside the school grounds.

Another escapee, Davy D. Hall, who left the prison on Sept. 13, is still at large. He was serving 24 years for larceny.

The count on walk-aways from Cassidy Lake for the year to date is now up to 46.

Top Contenders Named for Beach School Principal Post

Three top contenders for the position of Beach Middle school principal were introduced to the Board of Education, Monday.

The candidates, all teachers or administrators in the district, have been chosen out of seven people vying for the position. The school may also interview outside candidates for the position before reaching a decision in April, Superintendent Ray Van Meer said.

The new principal will take over for Al Conklin, who is retiring in June.

Also retiring is Sylvester Wojcicki, principal of South Elementary school. Bob Benedict, currently principal at North Elementary school, will take over Wojcicki's duties. The board will also be hiring a principal to fill the vacancy left by Benedict at North Elementary.

The three candidates for the Beach Middle school position are:

Barbara Brown, currently an

Krichbaums Win Award in Taxidermy

Jim and Joel Krichbaum, owners of Jim and Son's Taxidermy in Chelsea, recently won a third-place ribbon for their large-mouth bass exhibit during a contest sponsored by the Michigan Taxidermists Association.

The competition, held Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 10 and 11 in Grayling, featured the work of taxidermists from around the state.

The father and son, who have operated their Chelsea business for 16 years, often enter such competitions. In February 1983 they were awarded fourth-place for a deer head entry in a competition held at Michigan State University.

The Krichbaums are members of the Michigan Taxidermists Association and the National Taxidermists Association.

instructor in the seventh grade block program. Brown is a graduate of Albion College and Michigan State University. She has a bachelors degree in education and specialized in teaching junior high school while at MSU.

Hubcap Theft Hits Close To Home

Ronald Olmsted, who is leading the local campaign to have the Cassidy Lake Technical School fenced or closed, uses the phrase "hubcap stealers" to describe the type of criminal intended to be housed at the institution.

He makes the point that such offenders are seldom sentenced to prison any more because of overcrowded conditions. Judges tend to punish such minor offenses with probationary sentences, rather than add to the pressure on scarce prison space.

However, hubcaps are still stolen. In fact a set of four was recently ripped off from a car in the Chelsea Medical Center parking lot. Olmsted is public relations director at the hospital.

The car wasn't Olmsted's. The thief has not been caught.

Electrical Problems Call Out Firemen

Minor electrical fires caused alarms from St. Barnabas Episcopal church and a dwelling at 110 Hayes St. last week, the Chelsea Fire Department reported. Damage was negligible in both instances.

Sam Vogel, now in his sixth year as assistant principal at Chelsea High School. Vogel has a bachelors degree in political science and a masters degree in secondary education from the University of Michigan.

Bill Wescott, a Chelsea teacher and the coach of the junior varsity softball team. He has a degree in elementary education from Central Michigan University and a masters degree in administration from Eastern Michigan University.

In other business, the board voted to renew insurance on all school district fleet vehicles, such as buses, with State Farm Insurance.

Assistant Superintendent Fred Mills said the school has insured its vehicles through the agency for 11 years. For the first time there will be a decrease in premium payments, he said. The school will pay 28 percent less for coverage this year.

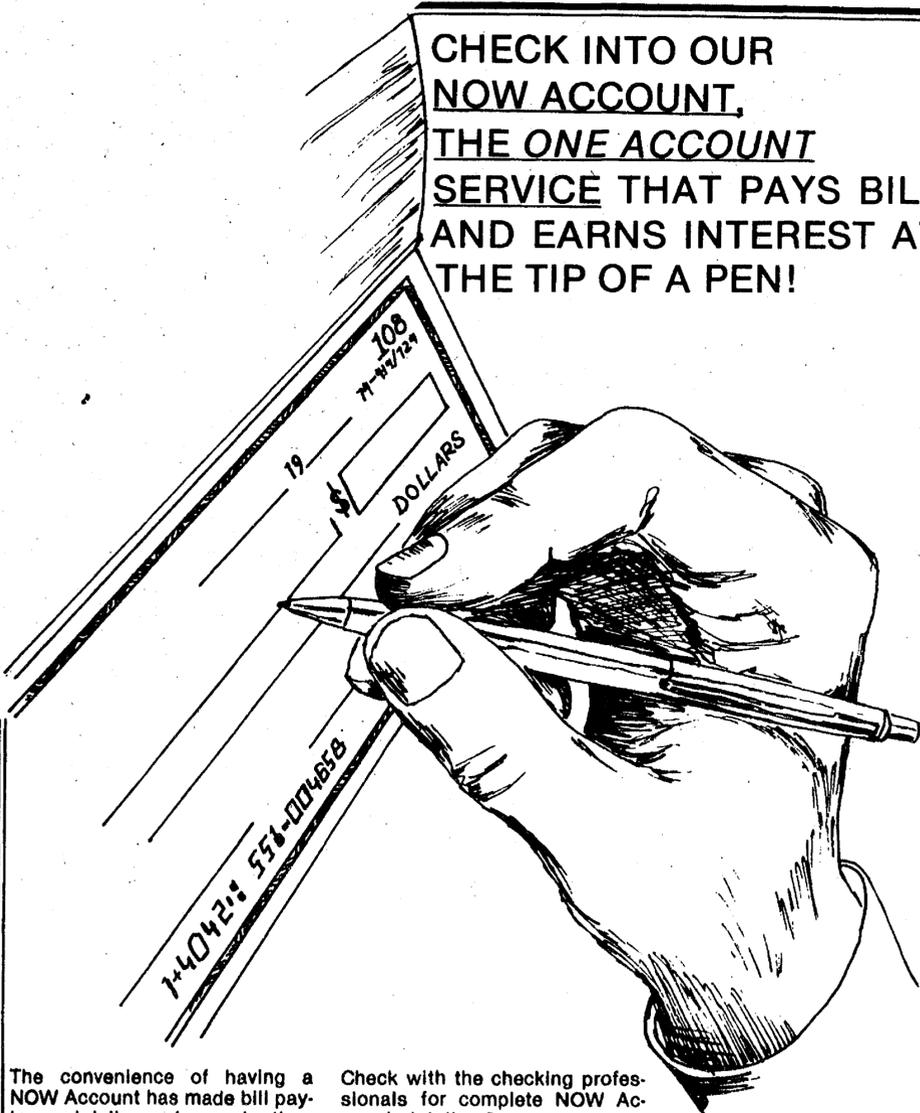

"Competitive rates are the order of the day," Mills said.

Nature Center Plans Work Bee

Waterloo Nature Center will hold a Work Bee Saturday, Sept. 24, beginning at 10 a.m. The Work Bee will be a continuation of the session held last Saturday.

The event is open to the public. Participants should bring a lunch. Snacks will be provided. The Work Bee is the third event on the Nature Center's fall calendar. The Center will feature various programs and events through Nov. 19. There will be a 50 cent charge per person for each program.

Bulldogs Come Back Strong To Defeat Western, 14-7

One key play out of the hundred or so that are run during a football game quite often turns the contest around, and it can sometimes make the difference between a winning and a losing season.

There definitely was a pivotal play in last Friday night's Chelsea-Jackson County Western contest at Parma, which the Bulldogs won the hard way, 14-7, by coming from behind after it looked like they might be soundly thrashed.

The Bulldogs badly needed the victory. A loss would have put them at 0-2 going into Friday's key contest against the high-flying Saline Hornets, and it could well have ruined their season. Losing can get to be a habit.

Chelsea was in deep trouble midway through the second quarter. Western had dominated the game, scored a touchdown and kicked an extra point, and was driving toward a second TD that figured to put the game out of reach.

With a first and goal on the Bulldog five-yard-line, the Panthers made what turned out to be a fatal mistake. A solid hit by Chelsea's David Steinhauer knocked the ball loose, and Rob Beckwith pounced on it at the three.

The momentum shifted right there. From that point on Chelsea was in command. Western never came close to scoring again as the Bulldog defense asserted itself and throttled the Panthers the rest of the way.

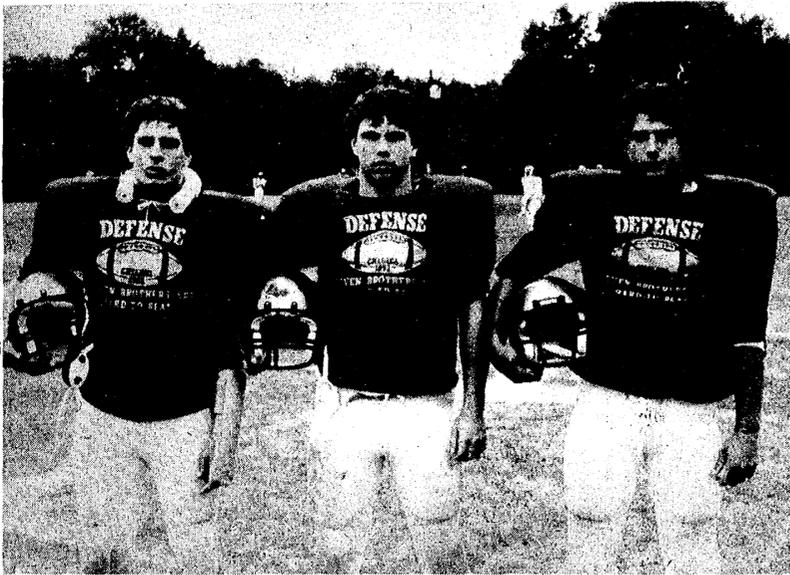

After the fumble recovery quarterback Marty Steinhauer hooked up with brother David on a 31-yard pass completion to get the Bulldogs out of field-position trouble, and another Steinhauer-to-Steinhauer pass took the ball down to the Western eight. Two plays later hard-running halfback Jay Marshall banged over from the four to put Chelsea on the scoreboard for the first time this season. A two-point conversion attempt went awry.

Chelsea had a chance to go ahead just before half-time as David Steinhauer, who was all over the field doing everything but taking tickets throughout the evening, intercepted a pass and ran it back to the Western 17 with seven seconds left on the clock.

Each team proceeded to take two consecutive time-outs, creating the longest interval between plays that this reporter has witnessed in more than 40 years of watching football. Chelsea coach Gene LaFave chose to go for a touchdown instead of a field goal try, and a pass play failed as time expired.

The second half wasn't easy for the Bulldogs. Western has a very big and very tough football team. The Panther roster lists 12 players at weights between 191 and 242 pounds, eight of them over 200. You won't see many physically bigger high school football teams. They gave ground grudgingly.

The third quarter was

SPARKLE ON DEFENSE: Chelsea's defense has excelled in the Bulldogs' first two football games this fall, and this trio of players—team captain Glenn Prinzing, Chris Gallas and Jay Marshall—have been sparkplugs. All three play on offense as well and have done excellent work in that phase of the game, too. Marshall is Chelsea's leading ball carrier, averaging better than 80 yards a game from his work-horse left halfback position.

scoreless, and so was the first half of the fourth. That one-point Western lead looked bigger and bigger as the clock ran down.

With a little over five minutes to play, the Bulldogs got possession on their own 30 after stopping a third-and-inches play and forcing a punt. The Steinhauers put their passing act together for a 20-yard completion to midfield, and Marshall churned out a couple of nifty runs to take the ball down to the 22.

Marty Steinhauer then lofted a pass toward wide receiver Dave Walter in the end zone. Walter was double-covered but out-jumped the two defenders and grabbed the ball, a great clutch catch.

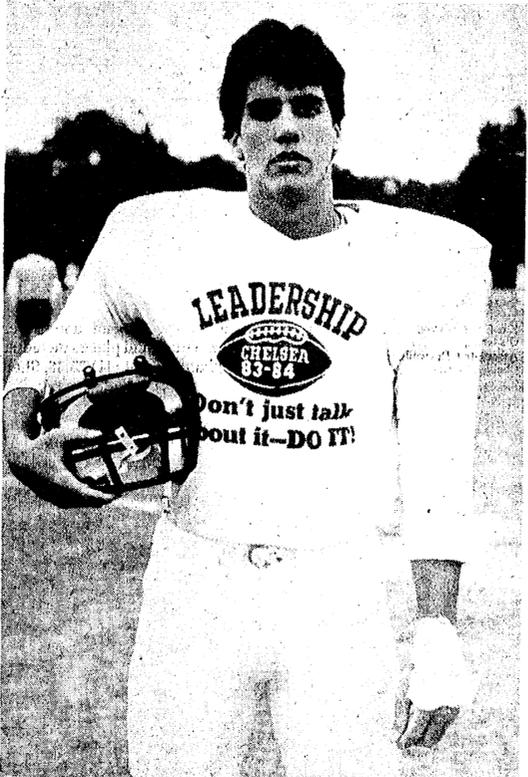

Marty Steinhauer, who showed that he can run when he has to, converted for two on an option play, and Chelsea had the 14-7 lead that stood up.

Western had two more chances with the ball, but David Bushway and David Steinhauer saw to it that there would be no last-minute heroic comeback by Western, each intercepting a pass.

A happy and relieved LaFave called it a "must" victory for the Bulldogs. "We needed it badly," he said. "This is a young team, and it was important that they have the experience of winning to find out how good it is."

"This game will build our confidence. The boys know they can come back and win after being down and almost out."

David Steinhauer had himself quite a night, with three pass catches for 77 yards, his critical role in the fumble play, two interceptions, and 14 tackles from his defensive back position. He was all over the place, especially on big plays.

MARTY STEINHAUER completed nine of 15 pass attempts last Friday night as the Chelsea Bulldogs came from behind to defeat Jackson County Western, 14-7. He also did some fine running from his quarterback position. A senior, Marty is a three-sport athlete—the others are basketball and baseball—and is a national champion water skier besides.

Brother Marty came into his own as a quarterback, completing nine of 15 passes attempts and picking up important yardage on the ground. Twice he got the needed yard on quarterback sneaks for first downs, following the blocking of center and captain Glenn Prinzing, who can be guaranteed to open up some kind of a hole with his blocking ability.

Marshall turned in his second consecutive fine all-around performance, gaining 84 yards on 20 carries from left halfback and participating in 14 tackles as a defender.

Walter had two other catches besides his winning touchdown reception.

The Bulldogs again played outstanding team defense, and the blocking on the offensive line was much improved over the previous week. Considering that they were conceding 20-30 pounds per man, they did an excellent job of holding their opponents at bay so plays could develop in the backfield. Among other accomplishments, the Bulldog blockers gave Marty Steinhauer the time he needs to set up and throw, and Marty proved he can deliver the ball on target given the opportunity.

Golfers Lose to Saline By Stroke, Beat Dexter

Chelsea golf coach Ken Larson's worst fears were realized last week as his team dropped a match to Saline that was decided by a single stroke.

Larson says he has the best group of Bulldog golfers that he has coached during his five years here, but quickly adds that Saline, Milan and Tecumseh are also very good. The visiting Hornets turned out to be just a little bit too good over the demanding Inverness Country Club course.

Chelsea appeared to have a comfortable lead going into the last two holes of the match, but then began spraying shots, picking up 14 penalty strokes on out-of-bounds hits. Saline's linksmen, meanwhile, were keeping the ball in play.

Result was a 162-163 loss. Chelsea's four top scorers turned in two eights and two sevens on the final hole, and that made the difference.

Eric Schaffner led the Bulldogs with a 40, and Doug Otto, Jim Ritter and Kurt Eisenbeiser each had cards of 41. "You don't dare get careless on that course," Larson commented. "Any time you hit a ball off line, it's going to cost you something."

Chelsea's JV's salvaged some consolation by winning, 185-196. The four scores that counted were Brian Ackley's 44, Chris Tarasow's 46, John Mitchell's 46 and Steve Kropf's 49. Freshman Tom Roth shot 52.

The Bulldog varsity came back with a vengeance last Thursday to defeat Dexter, 163-179, over another tough course, Ann Arbor Country Club at Loch Alpine.

"I think our 163 was a record for a high school team over that course," Larson said. "I know it was the best we have ever shot there. The boys were determined to come back from the loss to Saline, and their play showed it."

Schaffner posted a 38, Otto 39, Eisenbeiser 40 and Mike Carignan 46.

The JV's likewise won big, 177-232. Scores include Mitchell, 43; Tarasow and Ackley, 47 each, and John Harris 49.

The last three holes of the match were played in the rain. All of that action left both the varsity and JV teams with 3-1 season marks. However, the varsity is 1-1 in Southeastern Conference play, while the JV's are 2-0.

JV Gridders Lose Second Game, 14-6

Chelsea's junior varsity football team is 0-2 on the season following a 14-6 loss to Jackson County Western last Thursday night, but coach Ken Sullins continues to believe his group will be "all right" by the end of the fall.

"We're young, and it's going to take us some time to learn," Sullins said, "but the potential is there. We have some good football players, but we're not playing well as a team yet."

As in their opening game against Novi, a 20-6 defeat, the Bulldogs had trouble moving the ball, coming up with only 103 yards of total offense. They were one for 16 in the passing department, and that has Sullins bothered a bit.

"We found every way there is to fail to complete passes, and we definitely have to get better in that phase of the game before we can be winners," Sullins said.

One of the fouled-up pass plays cost Chelsea a chance for a tie. With Western ahead, 14-6, in the third quarter, the Bulldogs completed what appeared to be a touchdown toss, only to have the play nullified by an interference call.

Western got on the board early in the first quarter, but Chelsea came back in the second period to tie things at 6-6. Brian Robeson gave the Bulldogs excellent field position by recovering a fumble at the Panther 36, and they drove in from there with Chris Herter covering the final nine yards.

Western tallied what turned out to be the winning touchdown in the third quarter on a 72-yard sustained drive. Besides the apparent TD pass that was called back, Chelsea had two other good chances to score and get back into the game, but turned the ball over both times, at the Western 12 and 32.

Robeson had another fumble recovery and eight tackles while playing a fine game on defense. Fred Esch picked up a fumble and was in on 14 tackles, and Steve Wingo contributed to 13.

"We played well over-all on defense," Sullins said. "They gained 280 yards on us, but that figure is misleading because about half of the total came on three long plays that we should have stopped but didn't. We missed tackles on each of them."

Sullins pointed out that three players from last year's freshman team, who normally would be on the JV squad this season, made the jump to the varsity as sophomores. They are Rob Beckwith, Chuck Downer and Mark Mull.

"They are three outstanding athletes, and the boys who are now on the JV team got used to having them carry a big part of the load. All three are gone now, and adjustments have to be made. It puts pressure on the rest of the players, but I still think they will come together and be a good football team."

Doug Otto Records Sparkling 73

Doug Otto fired a one-over-par 73 to win medalist honors at the Pinckney Invitational golf tournament held Monday at the Lakeland Country Club course near Hamburg. He was four strokes better than his closest competitor.

As a team the Bulldogs finished second, with a four-man combined score of 330. Pinckney won its own meet with a total of 321.

"It's a very nice, very difficult course, probably the best we will play on this season," Chelsea coach Ken Larson said. "Any score under 80 is excellent, and Otto's 73 was truly outstanding."

Mike Carignan shot an 83 and Kurt Eisenbeiser an 85. Eric Schaffner, Jim Ritter and Brian Ackley all had 89's.

In finishing second Chelsea beat out Class A Charlotte, South Lyon and Brighton, among others, in the 12-team field.

Chelsea-Saline Clash May Decide SEC Crown

Saline has emerged as the clear favorite to win the Southeastern Conference football crown following its 15-7 victory over a very good Brooklynn Columbia Central last Friday night. The Hornets are 2-0 in pre-conference play, having beaten Class A South Lyon a week ago.

Saline and Chelsea will meet on a neutral field at Dexter on Friday in a game that could decide the championship. The winner could take it all.

Chelsea evened its record at 1-1 by battling from behind and defeating Jackson County Western, 14-7, at Parma and showed signs of maturing into a solid football team.

Dexter proved that it can't be counted out of the title picture by beating a tough Mason team, 7-6, coming from behind in the final three minutes. Defeating Mason on its home field is an impressive accomplishment that doesn't happen often. The Dreadnaughts got the tying touchdown with just 13 seconds left in the game, then kicked the all-important extra point.

Milan and Lincoln, meanwhile, ran into all kinds of trouble after having made impressive showings a week earlier. Milan was whopped by Romulus, 40-9, and Lincoln was blown out by Dearborn Heights Robichaud, 47-0.

Tecumseh lost to Jackson Northwest, 15-6.

Girl, Boy Harriers Split Against Jackson Teams

Chelsea's young and potentially outstanding girls cross country team defeated Jackson Northwest handily last Thursday, 24-35, but couldn't match up with Jackson Lumen Christi, which was No. 1 in the state last year, and lost, 21-38.

times over the course. Freshman Robin Mock and sophomore Kim Collins defeated for fourth place in 20:48, their best times over the course by nearly a minute.

Other Chelsea placers in the double-dual girls meet were Laura Damm (9) 21:31, Mary Ann Richardson (14) 22:05, Amy Wolfgang (17) 22:27, Wendy Wolfgang (19) 22:33, Melanie Flanigan (21) 22:38, Shanda Friday (25) 23:05, Debbie Tiff (26) 23:06, Stephanie Roberts (27) 23:16, Stephanie Grant (28) 23:22, Jill Schaffner (32) 23:55, Crystal Porath (34) 24:22, Jennifer Colvin (35) 24:24, Cathy Burkel (40) 24:53, Cris Neuman (42) 25:07 and Kathryn Morgan (50) 28:11.

Senior co-captain Allen Cole and sophomore Jared Bradley ran especially well in the boys double-dual meet. Cole was fifth in 17:37 and Bradley ninth at 18:06. Both times were big improvements over their last outings.

Scott Cooper was sixth (17:42) and Eric Green eighth (17:50).

Other Bulldog placers in the boys meet were Craig Maciag (15) 18:35, Steve Hunn (16) 18:45, Damon Creffield (17) 19:06, Lee Riemenschneider (19) 19:15, Jason Creffield (21) 19:23, Mark Spayd (23) 19:37 and Kyle Kemmish (24) 19:37.

The girls are now 2-1 on the season, the boys 1-1.

The quadruple dual meet was run over Chelsea's home Inverness Country Club course.

Bulldog coach Pat Clarke was pleased with the performance of both teams. "We're coming along," he said. "Our times are getting better. Two of the girls cut 50 seconds off their best-ever times, and a couple of the boys also ran especially well. We're getting into shape and showing improvement, but we still have a lot of work to do."

Clarke was especially pleased by the girls' showing against Jackson Northwest, which was among the top 10 in the state last year and has most of its runners back. "It was a good win for us," he said. "The girls showed the same kind of spirit and determination that they have demonstrated all season in practice."

Lumen Christi was just a little bit too much to handle at this stage, Clarke said, adding that "we might be able to run with them later on." Eight of the Bulldog girls ran personal best times over the course.

Whether playing on familiar turf might have altered the outcome of the 7-0 loss to Novi is one of those things that can only be guessed at. The strange surroundings certainly didn't help the Bulldogs.

That is in no way a knock at Dexter's stadium, which is excellent, with good grass, bright lights and the best bleachers this reporter has sat in since starting to cover Chelsea football a year ago.

However, there is an intangible factor in playing at home which tends to bring out the best in athletes, and the Bulldogs definitely did not perform up to their capabilities last Saturday.

The crowd was estimated at somewhere between 1,200 and 1,500, depending on who did the guessing. A turn-out of at least 2,000 could have been expected had the game been played at Chelsea.

Whether it was the fact that Chelsea fans had to travel 10 miles to see the game, or that some potential spectators had been "footballed-out" by the University of Michigan home contest and televised college games earlier in the day is another imponderable.

The hot weather didn't help either, although conditions were comfortable for sitting and watching at the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Chelsea paid for lighting and other costs associated with putting on a football game, and sacrificed concession income.

Net result was that playing at Dexter on Saturday cost Chelsea several hundred dollars in revenue.

Any football coach will tell you that he would rather not have to play an opening game. First games fall into the category of necessary evils, because strange things can happen and very often do. Things get especially antsy when you open against a team that already has a game under its belt.

Just ask Bo Shembecher. His Michigan Wolverines, tabbed by some as potential national champions, were lucky to win against Washington State, a team they were supposed to beat by plenty. The visiting Cougars deserved at least a tie, and missed it by the margin of a couple of feet on a field goal attempt that went wide.

Washington State had played a game before coming to Ann Arbor, had won it, and had gained some experience and confidence. Michigan had earned a lot of raves for its performance in practice, but hadn't been tested in the place where it counts—on the field against somebody else.

Football teams almost always show their greatest margin of improvement during the season between their first and second games. Those in charge of setting up schedules ought to keep that in mind when picking first-game foes. You give away a lot when you take on a team that has already played once.

Chelsea High's Gene Lafave is probably still having bad dreams about his team's opening-game showing against Novi. His Bulldogs had worked hard and looked sharp in practice. If Gene had a worry, it was about his defense, which appeared to have some potential weak spots. The offense seemed to be ready to move the ball and put points on the scoreboard.

So what happened? The defense played excellent football. The offense made just about every mistake in the book. It was an unexpected showing both ways. Result was a 7-0 loss to Novi, and those seven points weren't the fault of the defenders.

Opening game outcomes should be viewed with considerable skepticism and taken with the proverbial grain of salt. Once first games are out of the way, for better or worse depending on how your favorite team fared, the real season begins.

Injuries are an unfortunate but inevitable part of football, which is a fast-moving game of violent body contact. What is really distressing is an injury caused by just plain bad luck.

That is what happened to Chelsea's David Kiel, who was hurt on a play that he had no part in. Playing defensive left tackle, Kiel made his charge as he was supposed to. The play went wide to the other side, and there was no way he could get to the ball. He was nevertheless blocked, put down his arm to break his fall, and dislocated his elbow.

It could have been worse. As such injuries go, Kiel's is relatively not too bad. He will miss the next 3-4 games, according to Lafave, but will be back for the second half of the season. That is good news. Elbow injuries, like knee hurts, can be nasty and very slow to heal.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

The forced experiment of playing a "home" football game on a Saturday night, instead of the traditional Friday, on a field 10 miles away was not a huge success for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs lost both on the field and at the gate.

The contest against Novi was moved to Dexter because Chelsea's field wasn't ready, and it was played on Saturday because Dexter had a home game on Friday night.

Whether playing on familiar turf might have altered the outcome of the 7-0 loss to Novi is one of those things that can only be guessed at. The strange surroundings certainly didn't help the Bulldogs.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Mourning doves have had a very good breeding year in Michigan, which is great news for sportsmen in states to the south but doesn't mean much here.

The doves produced in Michigan will be hunted as they migrate, and will provide the sportiest wing-shooting to be found in this country. Unfortunately, Michigan hunters won't have a chance to participate unless they go south and intercept the birds somewhere down the line.

Despite repeated efforts, Michigan sportsmen have never been able to push a dove hunting season past the legislature. So-called bird-lovers have killed every attempt. It's a shame in a couple of ways. Michigan-raised doves are going to be shot at somewhere, but Michigan shotguns are denied their share of the action.

Several years ago John Madison, the best outdoor writer I have ever known, told me: "I just hope you people in Michigan will go on being dumb and keep on producing doves for us hicks to the south to hunt, without taking your share of them. We owe you a lot. You raise them and send them down to us."

John at that time lived in Illinois, and most of the doves he hunted had flown south from Michigan on their annual fall migration. "We wait to hear about a cold spell in your state, and then we get ready to go dove shooting," he explained. "We know the birds will be coming through in a couple of days."

About 40 million doves are harvested every fall in the United States, by far the most of any game bird or animal species. That crop is perfectly safe in the sense that doves keep on increasing. They feed about as fast as cotton-tail rabbits, raising three or four broods every year.

Despite the fragile nests they build, mourning doves are highly successful parents.

Their 2-3 offspring per brood usually survive and grow up to breed more doves. Birds hatched in the spring produce young before fall. That plaintive "coo coo coo" cry you hear from March through August is a mating call, and it works. The birds get together.

Doves are a little smaller than their relatives, the European rock pigeons which we have around here in numbers that border on being a nuisance. They are a bit bigger than quail, and are excellent table fare. Doves stuffed with wild rice and baked in sour cream and sherry are about as good as anything that I have ever eaten. (If you should chance upon some dressed doves and are shocked by the price of wild rice, substitute a packaged mixture of long grain and wild rice. It isn't quite as tasty, but almost.)

For the shotgunning who thinks he is pretty good, a dove hunt is a humbling experience indeed. Never mind how well you score on other game or clay targets, you are not going to hit very many doves your first time or two. They are deceptively fast flyers, and they change direction—up or down, left or right—with every flap of the wings.

Shooting a dove is a matter of leading the bird about three times farther than you think you should, guessing which way it's going to juke before the shot charge gets there, and trusting to luck. In most dove-hunting states the limit is 10, and the gunner who gets that many without expending more than a box of 25 shells has had a very good day.

I have been fortunate enough to be invited to participate in a couple of southern-style dove hunts, in which 10 or more shooters take positions around a "grain field" where the birds fly in to feed. There can be dozens of birds in the air at once, all of them darting, dipping, side-slipping, soaring, diving. You shoot and shoot until your shoulder is sore, and are amazed at the skimpy weight of your bag when it's all over.

Shooting over a water-hole is another variation of dove hunting, and it's just as difficult. For that exercise you need either a dog that will retrieve from water, or a person's willingness to wade or swim depending on the depth of the water.

The backyard of my home in Chelsea butts up to a woods and features several large shade trees. It abounds with wildlife, including doves in numbers that I would have found hard to believe had I not observed them. Aside from the fact that their cooing calls awakened me at the crack of daylight every morning during the summer, I liked having them around. They have been fun to watch out the patio door while I drink my morning coffee.

I'm sending my share of doves down south this fall, for sportsmen there to enjoy. That bothers me only because I think Michigan hunters should be able to share in the crop. There will be plenty more around next year.

Girls Swim Team Loses To Okemos

Despite exemplary performances by several swimmers, the Chelsea girls team dropped its first meet of the season to Okemos high school, 89-64, last Thursday.

Coach Von Acker said his team did its best, but could not surpass the power of the Okemos women, who finished second in state Class B competition last season. Chelsea finished 13th in state finals last year, but Acker hopes to end this season in the top 10.

"Okemos is a very strong team," Acker said. "We knew it was going to be tough, so we went in to swim fast—and we did."

Despite the loss, Chelsea swimmers finished first in six events.

Senior Dawn Borders, captain of the team, had an excellent evening, taking first place in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard backstroke and as a member of the 400-yard relay team. Other members of the four-person team are Susan Schumuk, Becca Lee and Paula Colombo.

Colombo, a sophomore, also finished first in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:43.29. Her performance qualifies her for the Class B state meet.

Schumuk, a freshman, finished first in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 1:01.28 and second in the 200 freestyle with a 2:17.12.

Sophomore Amy Oxner finished first in the diving competition. Acker called her performance "very good."

The Chelsea swimmers were scheduled to compete at Novi high school last night. Their next meet will be at home with John Glenn high school, Thursday, Sept. 29.

Varsity Cagers Defeated By Pioneer

Coach Jim Winter called it "their best performance this season", but the Chelsea girls varsity basketball squad still lost to Ann Arbor's Pioneer, 71-57, last Tuesday.

Despite the loss, Winters said he sees improvement in his young squad.

"I was pretty proud of the way we played," he said. "We had a few bad minutes, but the kids pulled themselves back pretty well."

Except for a short time in the second quarter when the Bulldogs pulled ahead, the Pioneers kept the lead throughout the game.

Winter puts the brunt of the blame for the Chelsea loss on the skill of Pioneer.

"They were trying," he said of the Chelsea team. "But Pioneer is really good this year."

Beth Unterbrink, a junior, was high scorer, with 18 points, for the Bulldogs. Other high scorers were: Joann Tobin, 14; Samantha Collinsworth, 13; and Kelly Hawker, 7.

Leading rebounders were Joann Tobin, with 7 and Samantha Collinsworth with 6.

The loss brings the Bulldogs' record to 0-3 for the season.

The team was scheduled to meet Manchester at home last night. They next travel to Gabriel Richard in Ann Arbor, Thursday.

22 Charged with Illegal Trafficking In Wildlife Species

A 16-month, multi-state investigation conducted jointly by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) and the Indiana Department of Natural Resources ended with the arrests of 22 persons charged in Indiana with illegally trafficking in wildlife parts and products—specifically bald eagles, hawks, owls and other migratory birds.

More than 80 federal and state conservation officers and special agents made the arrests in southern Indiana, centering on a national convention of primitive weapons hobbyists at Friendship, Ind., a small community in the southeastern corner of the state.

The investigation extended into Pennsylvania, Maryland, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Missouri.

Frosh Gridders Win Big in First Game

Chelsea's freshman football team got off to an impressive start last week by shellacking Jackson Northwest, 32-8, in a game that was even more one-sided than the score.

"I suppose we could have shut them out," coach Jim Tallman said, "and maybe scored another touchdown or two," but I wanted to give everybody a chance to play. I'm happy about the fact that every one of our 35 boys got into the game."

Halfback Scott Frisinger opened the scoring for Chelsea with a

Tennis Team Dominated By Richard

In the wake of last Wednesday's disappointing 0-7 loss to Gabriel Richard, Chelsea girl's tennis coach Terry Schreiner says she doesn't want to play that team anymore.

"Chelsea was completely outclassed, as usual," Schreiner said. "It's just no fun playing Richard anymore."

Playing tennis for only two months each year doesn't prepare the Chelsea women to compete with teams who have a lot of experience, she added.

Gabriel Richard boasts tennis talent such as state champion Ruby Olegario who won over Chelsea's Sarah Wenk in number two singles during Wednesday's match.

Chelsea's Chris DeFant, playing first singles, was able to take only one game away from Richard's Anna Schork.

"They have completely swamped Chelsea for six years," Schreiner said. "Their experience just overwhelms us."

The girl's tennis team will host Colombia Central tomorrow.

JV Cagers Defeat AA Pioneer High

An excellent defense and a lot of ball stealing led the Chelsea girl's junior varsity basketball squad to a 65-37 victory over Ann Arbor's Pioneer High school Sept. 13.

Coach Paul Terpstra said he was thrilled with his team's performance.

"They couldn't handle our pressure defense in the third quarter and we got a lot of baskets from stealing the ball," he said.

The win is the second in a row for the squad and brings their record for the year to 2-1. After losing the season opener to Stockbridge they turned their game around to defeat South Lyon.

Leading scorer in the game against Pioneer was sophomore Kristi Headrick, with an impressive 31 points. Kris Matloff followed with 11 points. Also having good scoring games were Jennifer Cattell, nine points, Chandy Hurd and Chris Zerkel, each with two points.

Leading rebounders were Zerkel, with seven, and Headrick and Matloff with five each.

The Committee To Fence Or Close Cassidy Lake Prison Wants You To Know About Cassidy Lake Prison

It was designed 40 years ago to accommodate youthful, first offense "hub-cap stealers."

There aren't any "hub-cap stealers" in the Michigan prison system today. With overcrowding, "hub-cap stealers" simply aren't sent to prison these days.

Assaultive, armed robbery, and multiple offense prisoners are being placed now at Cassidy Lake. All Cassidy Lake prisoners who obviously should be fenced in.

The Department of Corrections is using Cassidy Lake—a minimum security facility—for medium security type prisoners who obviously should be fenced in.

Forty-five escapes have taken place so far in 1983. That's 16% of the prisoners at Cassidy Lake!

Escapes have committed rape, murder, assault, auto theft, and break-ins.

The Department of Corrections is not fulfilling its responsibility to keep these prisoners at Cassidy Lake Prison. They send prisoners there but don't keep them there!

Cassidy Lake prisoners have more freedom than we do. We have to lock ourselves in. They aren't locked in!

Thousands of us who live in the Chelsea-Cassidy Lake area are frightened to death.

We're angry that the Department of Corrections doesn't seem to give a damn.

We need to do something about it! We need to get the attention of the Governor, our legislators, and the Director of Corrections.

Write to them now!

Tell them how you feel about Cassidy Lake Prison. If you're frightened to death, say it. If you can't sleep at night, say it. If you have a loaded gun now and never did before, say it. If you have children and you're frightened for their safety, say it. If you're angry about the lack of concern and action by the Department of Corrections, say it. If you're scared as hell and aren't going to take it anymore, say that too.

Your letter doesn't have to be formal or long. The important thing is to write something!

If you can, please send copies of your letters to the Committee, P.O. Box 43, Chelsea. If not, please drop us a note that you've written so we can tally the number of letters written.

Continue to write. Once won't be enough. Clip news articles about escapes (or even this page) and send them to the above. Keep letting them know you're concerned and scared and expect a solution.

Sheriff's Deputy Tells of Talk With Cassidy Escapee

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Gov. Blanchard and local legislators by Joseph J. Vesikulis of 234 Buchanan St., Chelsea, a Washtenaw county deputy sheriff. It has been edited slightly to conserve space.)

I am writing to express my concerns over what is becoming a very volatile issue in the community in which I am presently residing. That community is Chelsea, and the issue is the Cassidy Lake Technical School on Waterloo Rd. west of M-52 and that facility's inability to keep their inmates from escaping into the neighboring community. I believe I can speak with a little bit more authority about his situation than most, because I happen to be a deputy sheriff employed by the county of Washtenaw, and became personally involved with two of three prisoners from Cassidy Lake who stirred this quiet little community into action following their escape on the night of Aug. 24.

On the night of the recapture of these escapees, I transported two of the escapees to our county jail. The trip didn't end there, however, as one prisoner was injured after cutting his hand when he put it through a pane of glass while breaking into the home of a citizen living on Ivey Rd. and had to be transported to a nearby hospital for treatment before he would be accepted at the jail.

I spent an hour and a half with this prisoner and eventually engaged in conversation with him. What I learned from him was absolutely appalling! It seems that he was in our prison system serving a sentence for unarmed robbery, however, admitted that his actual offense was armed robbery of a bank. The sentence was, of course, plea-bargained away and he was sent to Jackson prison for a short time. Since he caused little trouble there, he was asked if he would like to go to Cassidy Lake. He claims that he adamantly refused, and even threatened them with an escape if he was sent there. After escaping, his plans were already laid as to how he was going to plea-bargain away his two break-ins and the additional charge of escape from prison that night.

Additionally, I learned from him that he and a fellow escapee had actually made it into Chelsea village, and the location which he described to me was no further than one block away from my own home, where my wife and two infant daughters were by themselves while I was working that evening. That they were that close to my home and family raises my ire more than any of the callous statements that this individual could have made about our porous criminal justice system.

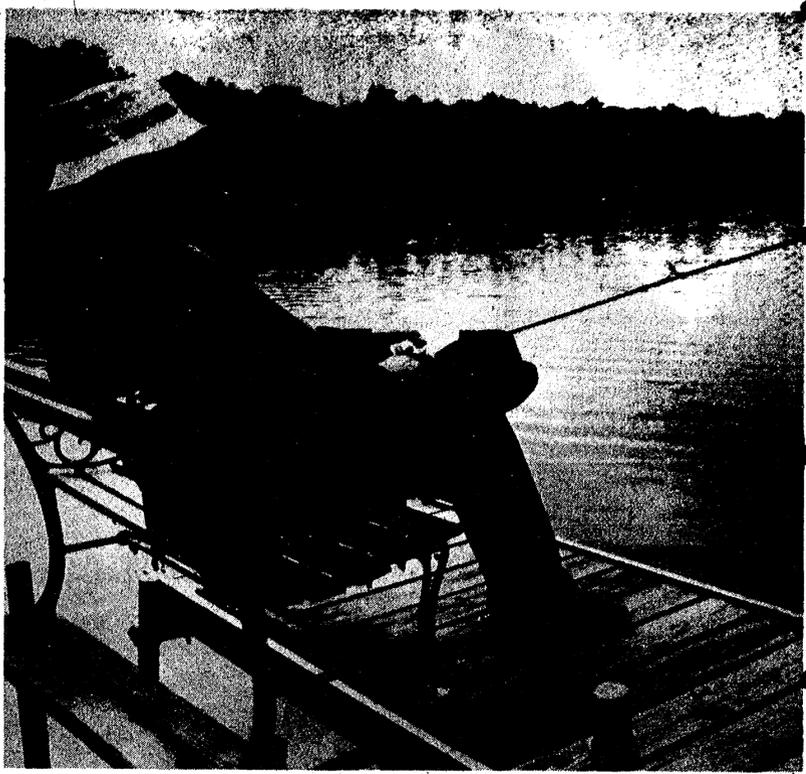

The point of relating this incident to you is to give you some perspective from one who is a member of this state's law enforcement community, as well as some insight into the type of prisoners that are being lodged in this minimum security "summer camp" facility north of Chelsea. This prisoner was in reality an armed robber who was at Cassidy Lake as an indirect result of plea-bargaining which made his actual conviction appear much lighter than what it really was.

I have been in law enforcement long enough to recognize that our state and local correctional facilities are overcrowded and understaffed. However, that does not mean that the overflow of prisoners should be shipped out to facilities such as Cassidy Lake where they are allowed to escape and be returned to the system like a revolving door. The state's legislators are going to have to wake up to the undeniable fact that the breed of prisoners being sent to Cassidy Lake in 1983 is not the same as those for whom the facility was designed for in the early part of this century.

As a member of Chelsea community, I am sick of these escapes occurring 2-3 times a week, posing a potential threat to my family, friends and neighbors. As a taxpayer, I am tired of seeing the hundreds of law enforcement man-hours being spent by the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Dept. and Chelsea Police Dept. attempting to recapture these escapees who are technically the responsibility of the State of Michigan. This local manpower is expended because the State Police and Department of Corrections simply do not have the manpower to properly deal with this situation.

If the State of Michigan wishes to continue operating this facility with current manpower levels, it is going to have to fence its property in the interest of the health, welfare and safety of the Chelsea community. With daily published reports of a large budget surplus now in existence in the state's treasury, I see no reason that you, as an elected official, would not support appropriating the necessary funds for this purpose. The residents of Washtenaw county have accepted more than their fair share of federal, state and local corrections and mental health facilities. The least you can do is ensure their protection.

I support the Chelsea area "Committee To Fence It Or Close It," its organizer Ronald Olmsted, Sheriff Thomas R. Minick, and every one else in this community who is attempting to make you aware that we are sitting on a powder keg. I sincerely hope action is taken before we see more innocent citizens hurt or a prisoner killed by a community up in arms.

THE JOYS OF LATE SUMMER: On a warm late summer day there is nothing finer than going fishing. You can bask in the sun and wait for the fish to bite, as they are inclined to do at this time of year. Paul Gustafson caught a nice mess of perch off his Sugar Loaf Lake dock one recent afternoon.

Ann Arbor Trust, Citizens Bank of Saline OK Merger

Shareholders of both the Ann Arbor Trust Co. and Citizens Bank of Saline have voted overwhelmingly to merge into a new independent bank to be known as "Citizens Trust." Assets of the consolidated bank are expected to exceed $200,000,000.

Approval by shareholders leaves only regulatory endorsement by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Justice Department, both of which are anticipated by mid-November, according to George H. Cress, president of Ann Arbor Trust. He said the effective date for the merger would likely be as of Jan. 1, 1984.

"We are delighted that our shareholders have indicated their strong approvals for this action,"
