Jeff Daniels Acclaimed for ·Starring Role in Hit Movie

By Patti Eddington

In less than one week it seems that every film critic on every major newspaper and news magazine across the country has exaulted the holiday season movie release "Terms of Endear-

Already the film, which follows the usually turbulent, often hilarious, always loving, 30-year relationship between a mother and daughter is being talked of in terms of the number of academy award nominations it will garner. Shirley McLaine as Aurora, the mother, Deborah Winger as Emma, her daughter, and Jack Nicholson who portrays a womanizing ex-astronaut who becomes Aurora's lover, have all received accolades.

And so has former Chelsea resident Jeff Daniels.

While his name isn't yet listed in newspaper advertisements for the movie, his role as Flap Horton, the ne'er-do-well English professor husband of Emma, is a far cry from his first dramatic, non-speaking, role as a sailor in the Chelsea High school production "South Pacific."

It's hard to love Flap Horton. The man is what is known in most circles as a loser, a wimp. But through Daniels' portrayal, viewers of "Terms of Endearment" are more likely to come away from the movie understanding than disliking Flap.

"Jeff has the least sympathetic part," says his mother, Mariorie Daniels. "But you just feel for, him. You realize that he does love his family and his wife-but things just didn't work out."

While local residents have been following Daniels' progress through the theatrical spectrum of high school plays, community University productions, offpresentations, since "Terms of Endearment" was released.

preview of the film at the Ann Arbor theatres, the seats were filled with area residents anxious to see the home town boy in a movie.

"People are so genuinely responsive," Marjorie Daniels says. "They thoroughly enjoy the fact that they know him.' Mother-in-law Daphne Hodder agrees that the reaction of local people has been heartwarming. "It really is exciting," she says. "We're all just sort of flying high over it." Hodder is the mother of Daniels' wife, the former Kathleen Treado, also a graduate of Chelsea High school.

Although Daniels, 28 and a 1973 graduate of the school, graduated four years before Kathleen, 24, she had always admired him while he was the star of the plays she had small roles in, her mother says. It was when Daniels was in New York performing in the highly acclaimed off-broadway play "The Fifth of July" that the couple next had contact. Kathleen was attending Western Michigan University and kept running into a student who lived in her dorm who bore a striking resemblance to Daniels. That coincidence sparked her to write Daniels a letter. He visited her on his next trip home and the couple was married in July, 1979.

Kathleen recently graduated from New York's Fordham University with a degree in social work. But her desire to spend some time with her husband during this exciting, but unpredictable time in his career has so far prevented her from beginning her own work, her mother says.

"She is staying loose right now, waiting to see where his career takes him," Hodder says. "Eventually she'll do something, but right now she's on hold and enjoying the excitement."

Water Main Break Repaired on Monday

A broken six-inch water main on the south side of Chelsea-Dexter Rd. between McKinley St. and Freer Rd. caused the road to be closed for several hours Monday while repairs were made.

No residents went without water at any time, Chelsea public works superintendent Charles (Bud) Hafner said, although there may have been some temporary lowering of pressure in some homes on the northeast side

Village crews were able to fix the break without shutting off the water line, which would have caused "backing up" problems. Hafner said the rupture apparently occurred some time Sunday afternoon. Water came bubbling to the surface at the edge of the Chelsea-Dexter Rd. and eventually created a puddle too deep to drive through. At least two motorists drowned their engines when they ignored warning signs and tried to traverse the foot-deep pond.

A Chelsea fire department pumper truck eventually lowered the water enough so that village utility crews could get to the trouble spot, which looked like a flowing spring, and dig a three-footdeep hole down to the main.

The excess water was sprayed south over the Conrail tracks through a high pressure hose. The pumping operation was hampered by leaves which repeatedly clogged the pump intake until a makeshift wire screen was rigged.

Working in cold, thigh-deep water, village utility crewmen fixed a patch on the six-inch cast iron pipe. The road was reopened shortly after noon on Monday.

Hafner said the broken main was 60-70 years old.

MOVING OUT OF TOWN: Ted Badgerow. coowner of the Real Ale Co., 320 N. Main St., demonstrates some of his firm's products while announcing that the company will move out of Chelsea because it needs room to expand and can't find it here. Real Ale will relocate in Lansing if the necessary permissions can be obtained.

Real Ale Co. Announces It Will Move from Chelsea

The Real Ale Co. at 320 N. Main St. will move out of Chelsea, probably to Lansing, by the first of the year, co-owner Ted Badgerow announced.

Badgerow said he and his partner, Gordon Averill, hope to lease a vacant bottling plant in Lansing and be in business there by the first of the year.

"We have outgrown our space here (on the second floor of the Chelsea Industries building) and have to move somewhere," Badgerow explained. "We really wanted to stay in this area, and looked around, but just couldn't find any space suited to our needs at a price we could afford."

Among other things, the brewery needs ground-floor space for a bottling assembly line. It has been carrying on filling, capping and labelling operations by hand "and losing money on every bottle," according to Badgerow.

The Lansing plant has a bottling line in place and ready to go," he said. "That will cut our production costs by about $5 per (24-bottle) case," he added. We will be able to wash and re-use returned bottles, something we can't do here, and that will reduce our costs substantially."

There was no way that bottling equipment could be elevated and installed in the present location, Badgerow said.

Real Ale can lease 12-15,000 square feet of ground-floor space in Lansing for about $1,000 a month less than it is presently paying for 2,500 square feet of second-floor space in Chelsea, a further saving for the small, struggling brewery.

"With the lower rent and the savings on production costs, we

Talking it Out

IS IT WISE TO PLAN MY OWN FUNERAL?

It was the Earl of Warwick who said there is nothing more certain than death and nothing more uncertain than the time of dying. He would be prepared for death at all times, he states, and his preparedness would not make him die the sooner, but the better.

This individual insight is very enlightening and practical. We have pre-planned funerals with many members of our community who share some of these same sentiments. Many have expressed great relief in their foresightedness. They say it's a comfort to know everything will be wellhandled, and will cost no less and no more than you want it to be. Rather than permit a third party to arrange things or cause your loved ones the anguish and painful burden of funeral details, you may wish to plan your own funeral down to the smallest details.

PROFESSIONAL ASSISTANCE

There are no amateurs on our staff. We are professionals in funeral service. Our experience provides you with advance counsel in your own best interests. Our aim is your comfort: Call or stop by for details—we can provide you with a variety of plans to suit your cost and personal requirements.

Blanchard Unveils

Food Processing Proposals Governor James Blanchard has unveiled a series of initiatives to promote and expand Michigan's food processing, industry, including establishment of a food industry institute at Michigan State University, an interdepartmental unit "to respond to the industry's concerns," and increased promotional efforts both nationally and international-

The food processing inititatives are the first of a series of proposals dealing with so-called "targeted industries" that the governor said have "competitive advantages and identifiable opportunity to create new jobs or to retain jobs at risk."

Targeted industries—the other two industries are forest products and auto parts supplies—were discussed last month in Blanchard's economic address to the Legislature.

Enlarging Michigan's food processing industry could mean thousands of new jobs for Michigan and prevent existing jobs from vanishing, the governor said. Already expansion efforts in food processing are underway in places like Detroit, Grand Rapids, Holland, Traverse City, Remus and other locations.

Blanchard added that the Department of Agriculture "has identified five companies that are considering expansions in Michigan."

Out-of-state food processors provide products for approximately 90 percent of the state's consumer market, and between 1979 and 1981, some 40 percent of all the raw commodities grown in Michigan were shipped out of

In addition, Michigan has a large diversity of agricultural products-more than 50 commercial food crops, second only to California—and is within "easy access to major markets within 500 miles of half the population of

Currently the state has a "trade deficit" in food processing but almost limitless possibilities of programs that could be enacted using the state's current agricultural base.

The specific proposals include: -Creation of a food industry institute at Michigan State University that would be a partner with the state's effort by serving as a central source of assistance to processors. The institute would have to be paid for by a "significant commitment of support" from industry along with the possiblity of state monies.

-A permanent, interdepartmental unit consisting of directors of Agriculture, Commerce, Natural Resources and Transportation will be formed to help evaluate and respond to problems in the industry.

-Agribusiness projects will now be eligible for grant monies from the state research fund and from the Michigan Strategic Fund which is still going through the legislative process.

-Promotion of state agricultural business will be expanded by attending various exhibits and conventions throughout the world.

-Endorsement of a "conducive regulatory environment" to develop congeneration facilities to help cut energy costs for food processors.

-Newly appointed business ombudsman, David Haynes, will "take an immediate special interest" in the problems of food processors and a food processing executive will be named soon to the state's Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Board to help balance competing interests in marketing.

The governor said the new budget costs of the actions will be minimal as many of the proposals were a matter of "doing more and doing better of what has been a state activity for a long time."

PODIATRIST OR CHIROPODIST

Many people are unaware that there is a special profession to administer to their foot ailments. Those that are aware of this, are often confused by the two terms-podiatrist and chiropodist.

Basically, there is no difference. Both terms are used properly to designate the modern foot doctor. Chiropodist has gradually fallen into disuse, however, because it derives from the treatment of both feet AND hands, as it was once practiced. Podiatry, which literally means "healing the foot," is therefore more commonly

The podiatrist must pursue special courses of study before he is qualified to practice. Only after successfuly completing a four-year program at a professional school is her awarded a degree in podiatry. In addition, the doctor must take a state-board licensing examination in the state where he plans to practice. As for any specialty, such as foot surgery, this requires additional training after which the podiatrist must pass a rigorous examination.

U-M Family Practice Center Offers Well Baby Care Special

University of Michigan's Famiy Practice Center at Chelsea is ndw offering a special reduced rate package for well baby care. Just as the physician cares for the mother during the pregnancy, the infant needs routine visits to the physician after birth for the same reason.

The physical examination, parent education and immunizations for the child given at regular intervals will prevent some illnesses, lead to the detection of some diseases at an early stage, and generally improve the chances for optimal, physical and emotional growth.

Physicians at the Family Practice Center can provide pediatric care for the newborn as a part of Any Change in Address the care they provide for the entire family. It is recommended that between the ages of 2 weeks and 18 months the babies are examined and given the appropriate immunizations. This usually comprises eight visits, and is available for a total price of $130: a savings of 35%.

Physicians are on call 24 hours a day at the Family Practice Center and are ready to accommodate any emergency care that might be required. Contact the Family Practice Center's Assistant Manager at 475-1321 ext. 251 for more details on the enrollment in the program.

If you've longed to sing something other than the "Hallelujah Chorus" from George Frederick Handel's popular christmas season oratorio "Messiah," your time is coming. The 19th annual Ann Arbor Community "Messiah" sing is scheduled this year for Sunday afternoon, Dec. 18, beginning at 1 p.m. in St. Clare's Episcopal Church/Temple Beth Emeth at 2309 Packard Rd., Ann Arbor.

The "Mesiah" sing is an unrehearsed three-hour performance, accompanied by a volunteer orchestra. There is no charge for musicians or singers, and the Schirmer "Prout" score will be furnished. All participants are asked to bring, if possible, a plate of baked goods or other food to share at intermission.

Conductor for this year's sing is Martin Werner, a German choral conductor now studying at the University of Michigan and director of the U. of M. Arts Chorale and the Chancel Choir of the First

COMMITTEE TO FENCE OR CLOSE CASSIDY LAKE PRISON

P. O. Box 43, Chelsea, Michigan 48118

Bill Mullendore

Dexter's loss is Chelsea's gain, and it's too bad that neighboring communities 10 miles apart have to switch an industry, but that is what is happening with the move of Hatch Stamping Co.

It's great news for Chelsea, which badly needs a boost after a decade of steady economid decline marked by a series of plant closings. and job losses. It is bad news for Dexter, which is losing a factory that has been there since 1955 and presently provides 33 jobs.

Good news all around is that Hatch Stamping decided to stay in the area rather than move out of the vicinity, perhaps even to another state. Hatch had to expand, and there was no room to grow at its Dexter location. It's nice they are staying around here.

In a way the news is doubly good for Chelsea, because it means that a perfectly good plant which has been standing around for three years will be put back into production. Credit goes to Chelsea Milling Co., which has been using the former IPSCO building as a warehouse, for maintaining it in such shape that it attracted a buyer. Abandoned buildings have a way of deteriorating fast if somebody doesn't keep them up.

During my 14 months at The Standard I have seen a lot of ups and downs, hopes and dismays, bubbles that blew up and then burst on the local economic front. Now, finally, something positive and tangible has happened. A new industry is coming to town.

I am optimistic about the long term effects because there have been more pluses than minuses, and I see some more good things happening soon. Chelsea Milling definitely will start construction of its new mixing plant next spring. The site is being cleared now. The United Methodist Retirement Home also will begin its expansion program in 1984.

Both projects have taken longer than expected to get off the ground, but they are going to come about. Some increase in local employment will result from each.

Chelsea's industrial park strikes me as a sure winner, once it's ready for occupancy. That, too, has been distressingly slow to get started, as govenment projects almost always are, but it's moving along and should be ready for tenants some time next year.

Chelsea has so many natural advantages—those that persuaded me to move here—that I have to believe others will see them as I have. The village has a competitive edge over other communities hereabouts just because of what it is, a very pleasant place populated by nice people.

Maybe more important than any other factor is the changed attitude of local government. Under the leadership of president Jack Merkel, Chelsea is putting its best foot forward in seeking to attract new business and industrial enterprises. A selling job is being done.

In that context recognition should be given to William J. Bott, manager of the Chelsea branch of the Ann Arbor Trust Co. I've known Bill since the day he came into Ann Arbor as executive secretary of that city's chamber of commerce a lot of years ago. He was then, and still is, a natural-born promoter, a guy who has ideas and knows how to get things done. Much of Ann Arbor's economic growth can be traced directly to his work.

How Bill wound up in the banking business I'm not quite sure, but economic development and promotion still runs strong in his blood. He is one of Chelsea's most valuable "natural resources," and I hope his bosses continue to support his efforts. Simply by arranging meetings and getting people in the communitwito sit down and talk and listen together. Bill has performed a valuable service.

Jack Merkel and Bill Bott, of course, have axes to grind in the gise that growth in Chelsea is bound to help their businesses. If there is anything wrong with that, it escapes me.

The year 1984 has been anticipated with some dread by readers of George Orwell's doleful book, which turned out to be pure garbage. The upcoming year looks pretty good to me, and I apricipate that it is going to be a good one for Chelsea. Let's hope warrant has been issued for a 4 of $1,500 for an "unpaid bill" of second, and a third is under some sort and threatening harm suspicion in connection with an to his wife and young daughter if extortion scheme directed the money was not paid. Otheragainst a Grass Lake man who owns a business near Ann Arbor.

The name of the victim is being witheld at the request of the sheriff's department, which has the case under continuing investigation.

Arrested, arraigned in district court and free on $1,000 personal bond is Theron D. Garner, 34, of Jackson, a twice-convicted felon who was recently released from arranged for a friend to make two Southern Michigan Prison at payments of $1,000 and $500 to a Jackson. Garner is also known as "Cave Man."

A warrant is out for a 34-yearold Grass Lake man, and detective Paul Wade of Chelsea of the sheriff's department said he hoped to make the arrest late yesterday, after The Standard's news deadline.

A third person, who lives in Waterloo township, Jackson county, is listed as a suspect in the case, but no warrant had been issued as of noon yesterday.

Wade and fellow sheriff's detective Dave Combs of Ann Arbor are jointly conducting the investigation into the bizarre case.

"It's a complicated matter and we still have some important unanswered questions," Wade said. "It involves extortion of money, but we don't know why. It could be a drug deal, it could be something else. We just don't know for sure at this point, but we intend to get to the bottom of it."

As Wade described it, the case developed this way, starting about two weeks ago:

The victim received a tele-

One man has been arrested, a phone call demanding payment wise, the caller said, the bill would be turned over to a collection agency.

A few days later members of the Avengers Motorcycle Club, based in Jackson, showed up at the victim's home. The front door of the house was "rattled" several times and a shot was fired through a picture window.

The victim got the message and man "in colors" of the Avenger Motorcycle Club. The money was delivered at a restaurant-bar southeast of Chelsea.

A day later the victim received a phone call demanding another $1,000 as a "collection fee." At that point he called the sheriff's department and asked for help.

WAITING

IN LINES

"There is a history of drug dealing (marijauna) among some of the individuals involved," Wade said, "but I can't say that is the reason behind the extortion. I honestly don't know at this point what the problem was. We are still trying to find out. I do know for sure that money was collected under threat of violence, and that is the basis for our moves so far."

From the

SUPERINTENDENT'S DESK

By Raymond E. Van Meer Superintendent of Schools

* Beach and North School Principalships . . .

At the conclusion of the school year, Al Conklin will be retiring as principal of the Beach Middle school after 21 years in that position. Syl Wojcicki also will be retiring after 19 years at South Elementary school.

Bob Benedict, the present principal at North school in which post he has served for 16 years, will assume the principalship at South school.

I would like to take this opportunity to keep the community apprised of how the administration is viewing possible replacements prior to the end of the school year. When I announced that these retirements would be effective in June, 1984. I indicated that candidates from inside the system would be welcome to apply. Prior to the conclusion of the 1982-83 school year, 17 candidates from within the system made application for those principalships-seven candidates for the Beach school principalship and 10 candidates for North school.

We wanted to look at internal candidates early because we wanted to set up meaningful internships to further evaluate them. On Aug. 29, 30 and 31 an interview team, consisting of three administrators, a board member, one teacher and one parent, interviewed the candidates. The number of candidates for internships was reduced to three for each school. The candidates for Beach Middle school were Barbara Brown, Sam Vogel and Bill Wescott. The candidates for North Elementary school are Bob Bullock, Sally Burchfiel and Bill Wescott. Barbara Brown since has withdrawn as a candidate because she felt she was not ready to leave the classroom.

The internal candidates for each position are being given additional opportunities by which we can further evaluate them. They have made presentations to the school board and to the faculties at North and Beach schools. They have been introduced to and questioned by members of the Superintendent's Dialogue and ACATS. Additionally, they have met with all district administrators.

I have posted these two positions with major universities and will be soliciting interested candidates from outside the school system. This would enable us to make further judgments. We have had very capable leadership at these schools and want to continue with exemplary leadership. It is our hope to have the replacements named by approximately April 15.

Stockbridge Man Injured in Crash

A 19-year-old Stockbridge man, Dale Allen, was extricated from his wrecked car early last Wednesday morning and flown by helicopter to University Hospital where he was reported to be in fair condition.

Sheriff's deputies said the accident occurred at M-52 and North Territorial Rd. at 1:15 a.m. Allen's car, northbound on M-52, left the highway, hit a culvert, struck a tree and rolled over.

Allen was pinned in the vehicle and was freed by sheriff's deputies and Huron Valley Ambulance Co. paramedics.

Walking with groups is so much more interesting than walking alone," Viola Gary said. "Gary is one of several Chelsea people which have joined a week.

We walking club sponsored by the Chelsea Senior Citizens Club.

$Chelsea physician Jonathan Henry, of the Family Practice Center, told the seniors during thier first meeting of the new club that frequent walking offers mumerous benefits.

"Walking will improve your own well being," he said. "Walking is also one of the best exeroses. You don't have to have fancy equipment, like a bicycle or iogging shoes.''

Members of the new club plan to meet at the senior citizen conter at North Elementary sphool at 2 p.m. every Thursday and walk for about an hour. During the winter months the group will walk inside various buildings in town, including the schools and Chelsea Community Hospital.

Henry, who specializes in gerontology and the care of the elderly, said walking is partigularly important for senior

'Older adults sometimes don't feel as active, not necessarily just because of their age, but because they are not as physical-Mactive as they were when they were younger," he said. "Walking helps the general sense of well being, helps control weight and can make people with specific medical conditions, such as arthritis, actually feel better." Senior citizens should not be afraid to exercise, but should check with their physician before beginning any exercise program,

Members of the new walking club take their pulse before, during and after walking. Henry said the walking should be brisk enough to provide good exercise, but not be overly strenuous.

"We're not even talking about really rigourous walking," he said. "We're not going to make marathoners anyone-probably."

Because the club is so new members are still being recruited. Jackie Rogers, Chelsea Community Education

He knew after that first mute role in "South Pacific" that he wanted to act, Marjorie Daniels says. Next he had roles in high school productions including "Guys and Dolls" and "Oliver." When his mentor DiAnn L'Roy organized the community theatre in 1973 he continued to hone his acting skills. Then came college and more theatrical productions and then New York and still more

"One thing just led to another," his mother says.

And now Daniels, who lives in Manhattan, is on the big screen with big stars.

The investigation is continuing in the area and further arrests are expected according to Del Vero.

Mezamotto, Barkley and Fink are in the Livingston County Jail awaiting examination. They were unable to post a $40,000 bond.

They could receive life sentences in prison if found guilty

Don Blair Is New Dana Plant Head

Don Blair is the new manager of the Dana Corp. plant here, replacing Tom Green who has been promoted and transferred to Reading, Pa., as head of its Parish Frame division.

Blair, 46, was the manager of Dana's distribution center in Hagerstown, Ind., before coming o Chelsea. A native of Butler, nd., and a graduate of Tri-State University, he has been a Dana mployee for 21 years. He and his wife have moved to he Chelsea area and are living n Stofer Ct. off Stofer Rd. south North Lake in Dexter townnip. They have a son living in exas and a daughter in Califor-

Blair started with Dana as a Blant controller at Churubusco, and., and rose through the ranks t that location until going to lagerstown.

He was out of town and unavailable for an interview or photograph at The Standard's press time this week.

A Dana spokesman, Genevieve Baczynski, said the Chelsea plant has been working full months plus some overtime during the fall, and that a full month is scheduled for December. Earlier, the plant had been shut down one week a month.

The plant manufactures power take-off and drive-train components. Assembly and warehousing operations formerly done here are being transferred to a new plant in Memphis, Tenn., but Dana insists that there are no plans to shut down the facility

Before he left, Green predicted a substantial increase in employment at the Chelsea plant by the middle of next year.

Vehicle-deer accidents are not uncommon in west Washtenaw county, especially at this time of year, but a collision between a motorcycle and a deer at high noon definitely is unusual.

It happened a week ago Tuesday noon on Cavanaugh Lake Rd., about 100 feet inside the Washtenaw county line, where a cycle driven by Steve Motts, 20, of Grass Lake hit a large doe broadside.

Mott was thrown to the pavement and suffered a broken collarbone. His motorcycle sustained considerable front-end damage. The deer was killed, and

With a work force of four fulltime and six part-time employees, Real Ale produces about 900 cases per month of English-style brews-porter, ale and stout. The company plans to add a "pale" ale to its product line and get into private-label brewing after mov-

"We probably will employ fewer people after we move because we will be more mechanized," said Badgerow, adding that he personally plans to continue living in Chelsea and commute to work.

The move to Lansing is contingent on approval of a rezoning request to allow brewing of alcoholic beverages in what formerly was a soft-drink bottling plant. Also required are transfers of various permits from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission and the state Health Department.

Real Ale began operations here in November of 1981 and started marketing its products locally in September of 1982. Considering that the national trend in the brewing industry has been toward fewer and bigger breweries, the local firm's success in establishing a market is unusual. Real Ale is one of just six breweries in Michigan today. There used to be more than 50.

Badgerow said his company will continue to use the name "Chelsea" on its labels, noting that it has strong English connotations and thus reflects the character of the firm's products.

However, a tentative plan to call a new product "Wolverine ale" has been dropped. "I don't think that would go over very well in Lansing," Badgerow said with a chuckle.

Christmas Walk Offers Tour of Eight Chelsea Homes

Traditions are an important part of the holiday season—every family seems to have a few very special customs.

On Sunday, eight Chelsea families will share their Christmas traditions with participants of the Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary Christmas Walk.

Participants of the walk may visit any or all of the homes, which will be decorated for the apcoming holiday, said Gloria Mitchell, chairperson of the auxliary's ways and means commit-

Tickets for the event are available at the Chelsea State Bank, both the main and branch offices. Chelsea Pharmacy or Chelsea Community Hospital. Tickets may also be purchased from Christmas Walk committee members Jeanene Riemenschneider, Pat Whitesall, Marsy Doan, Ann Lee, Gale Johnson, Marge Daniels and Mitchell or may be purchased at any of the participating homes during the Christmas Walk.

The Christmas Walk will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday and run until 8 p.m. Participants may visit the homes in any order they wish. Mitchell said.

The Christmas Walk has always been a popular and wellattended holiday event, Mitchell said. Proceeds will benefit many hospital and community services which the auxiliary committee provides.

"We're very pleased with it," Mitchell said. "It is a super money maker and hopefully we can continue it for many years to come."

The following families will have their homes featured during the Christmas Walk:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattoff, 634 Flanders St.

First Grader Returns to Class 2 Weeks After Heart Surgery

At 6, Rebecca Vanderbilt loves to run and play just like any of her contemporaries in her first grade class at South Elementary

But Rebecca is different.

She will never be able to compete in strenuous sports, like softball, and her life expectancy is almost 20 years shorter than that of her classmates. Still, for the first time in her short life she can get through the day without a headache, walk short distances without becoming fatigued and when she looks in the mirror her creamy skin shows none of the various shades of blue coloring it had always displayed until a few weeks ago.

And best of all, Rebecca can now do all of that running, jumping and playing she loves.

On Oct. 26 Rebecca underwent lengthy open heart surgery at Boston Children's Hospital. She was back in JoAnne Thornton's first grade class exactly two weeks later.

Rebecca, the daughter of Jackie and Keith Vanderbilt, a pharmaceutical sales representative, of Chelsea, has often been called "remarkable," unbelievable and unexplain able," since she was diagnosed as having tetrology of Fallot, a congenital heart disease, when she was six months old.

Tetrology of Fallot is a disease in which blood does not receive enough oxygen because of pulmonic stenosis, a valvular blockage between the right ventricle of the heart and the lungs and a ventricular septal defect, which is an abnormal opening

"blue." Until her recent surgery her fingertips and lips were always varying hues of purple. Because she was only receiving an estimated 45 percent of the oxegyn her body needed, she had other symptoms as well, her mother said.

"She had a headache every day of her life, she really knew no other way of life," she said. "She really thought life was a bum-

Rebecca would get tired after a short period of exertion and had to be driven the two blocks to school. She has also always been very thin, her mother said.

But suprisingly, Rebecca did not have many of the symptoms of tetrology of Fallot that physicians thought she would suffer.

Children with similar heart problems are usually small in stature since their hearts are not functioning normally. Some also exhibit a tendency to squat on their heels close to the ground when they become fatigued. But, although she is thin, Rebecca, at over four feet, is easily the tallest child in her class, her mother says. She has never exhibited the "squatting" tendency and her activity level has always been higher than her physicians said was normal for a child with tetrology of Fallot.

"I've seen children with this who don't lead one half of the life she did and they weren't as severely ill,"her mother said.

"She should not have wanted to go out and play and ride her bike, even for the short periods of time she did. But, she is a very determined person."

Jackie Vanderbilt believes that it was her daughter's steely determination that helped her recover so rapidly from her recent surgery.

During the procedure, which took several hours, doctors broke Rebecca's sternum, hooked her up to a heart-lung machine and did a total heart repair. She was in the intensive care unit for 48

"Doctors said she should have Rebecca was born cyanotic, or hours and in the hospital only tour additional days:

"It was phenomenal," her mother says.

"She certainly had great results," said McDonald Dick, III, Rebecca's pediatric cardiologist at Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor. "She certainly had a serious and life limiting disease which looks to have been corrected."

While she was in the hospital her classmates sent Rebecca many cards and letters and even halloween napkins to use with her dinner on Oct. 31, knowing that she would be homesick for the local trick-or-treating and costume party.

Since she has been back in school, Rebecca has described her operation to her classmates with the aid of a special cloth demonstration doll given to her at the hosptial following her surgery.

On her first day back at school she received a big hug from Thornton and a standing ovation from her young classmates.

"I couldn't help it," her mother said, "I cried."

Although doctors don't anticipate further surgery in the near furture, Rebecca still has a slight narrowing of the pulmonary artery. But her mother feels the worst is over.

"The first time she was in the hosptial I was feeling sorry for myself, then I met a mother whose child had a life expectancy of three, and I realized we didn't have it so bad.

"It's hard on us, but it was even harder on her."

Tetrology of Fallot is not a hereditary disease. The Vanderbilts have another daughter, Victoria, 2, who was born without any heart problems.

"But it doesn't make any difference," Vanderbilt said "If I would have known ahead of time (about Rebecca) I would never have said 'no thanks, I don't want this child'."

Chelsea Cagers To Play Napoleon On Friday, Here

Chelsea High school's basketball season will open at home against Napoleon Friday night, instead of at East Jackson, athletic director Ron Nemeth announced yesterday.

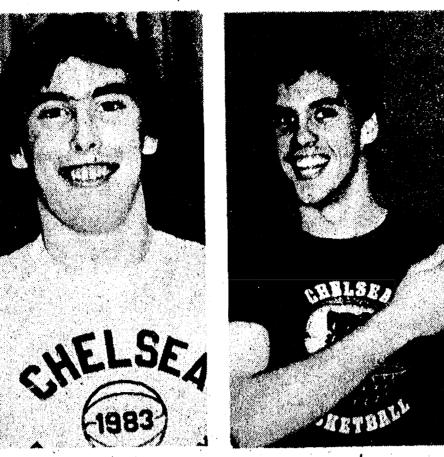

Nemeth said East Jackson cancelled its contract to play the Bulldogs after someone at the school discovered the team had been scheduled to play 21 games, one more than Michigan high school rules allow during the regular season.

There followed a long series of phone calls as Nemeth sought to line up a substitute opponent for the season opener.

"The people at East Jackson were very helpful in finding us somebody to play," Nemeth said. "They had made an honest mistake, and were sorry about it.

"I'm grateful to them and also to the people at Napoleon who agreed to come over here and play us on our home court on very short notice. Napoleon is a big Class C school with a fine athletic program. I'm sure they will give us a good ball game."

The junior varsity contest will start at 6 p.m. in the Bulldog gym, with the varsity teams taking the floor at 7:30.

Bulldog Cagers Show Run-Gun

Judging by what was shown during the Blue and Gold intrasquad game last Wednesday, Chelsea basketball will be played at a picked-up pace this fall.

Coach Paul Ash had his players "running and gunning" on offense and swarming all over the court on defense. It's an exciting brand of basketball when it works, and whether it works depends on the players who execute it.

Despite two bandaged knees. co-captain Marty Steinhauer looked especially good in the freeflowing offense, repeatedly getting open for good shots from the left side, and canning them. He has the touch to make up the outside shooting gap left by the graduation of Dave Wojcicki.

Center David Kiel, the other cocaptain, was obviously favoring the elbow he dislocated during the football season and tended to stay out of the heavy traffic under the boards at both ends. The guess is that he is saving himself and continuing to heal in order to be ready for games that Jeff Martin, Jerry Hammerschmidt, Chuck Hager and Glenn Prinzing, the other seniors on the squad, all performed well in spots, each showing a lot of improvement over a year ago.

Juniors Eric Schaffner, David Steinhauer, Jason Pierson, Tony Hammerschmidt, John Harris and Keith Neibauer also showed flashes but played rather tentatively. Schaffner, who has a chance to be the point guard and chief play-maker, was a bit hesitant to assert his ability, which is considerable. He has the talent to be very good.

The impression left was of a squad with considerable depth which won't suffer much when substitutes go into the game at any position except center, where Kiel at 6-6 is all alone as a potential dominant force.

Frequent substitution will have to occur if Ash intends to play "run and shoot" offense and fullcourt pressure defense. That kind of constant all-out pace demands

Council. An organizational meeting will be held Monday, Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Chelsea High School cafeteria. Men who are over 30 and interested in playing basketball or team managers who already have an over-30 team organized are invited to attend. "There is a real need for a men's basetball team for those over 30," said Mary Picklesimer, spokesperson for the Chelsea Recreation Council. "A lot of men would rather play for fun and exercise than to be competitive." Bob Jaques will run the program, Picklesimer said. Jaques has been in charge of the recreation council's regular men's basketball program for three

The season is scheduled to begin in January. All games will be played at Beach Middle school on Sunday afternoons. There will be a minimum of six and a maximum of 12 players on each team. Cost is $175 per team, plus individual fees of $10 for players from Sylvan and Dexter townships, $12 for players from Lima and Lyndon townships and Bulldogs will be interesting to $15 for players from all other

Sgt. Wenk repeated the oftengiven advice:

Drive slowly and carefully at night, especially on secondary roads, and keep a sharp look-out for deer. Their red eyes glow 2-3 feet off the ground when reflected in vehicle headlights.

SPORTS NOTES BY BILL MULLENDORE

I get excited at this time of year because the basketball season is coming on. Maybe it's because basketball is the only team game that I ever played reasonably well, but the fact is that I love it. To me, basketball represents what team sports are all about.

Basketball is a fast-flowing game with a purpose and some strategy behind it. Ice hockey and soccer players move up and down the playing surface even faster, but my feeling about both is that points are scored more or less by accident. They remind me of the games of "shinny" and "kickball" that I played when I was a kid. Both were a continuous scramble, and every once in awhile somebody got lucky and hammered home a football and baseball leave me relatively cold, and the latter especially tends to put me to sleep. In football there are short spurts of action lasting about six seconds, followed by a 25-second period of unpiling, deciding what to do next, and getting ready to do it. In baseball, it's mostly a matter of waiting for the pitcher to make up his mind whether and when to throw the ball.

One of my early tutors in the sports writing game taught me the hard way that there is a small but steady income to be earned by betting "a nickel it's a foul" at 2-1 odds on every two-strike pitch. Foul balls really aren't all that much fun, even if you are making money off them. (If you don't believe that is a sure bet, try it sometime if you can find a sucker to take it.)

I go back to the time when basketball was a far different game than it is today. We "jumped center" after every field goal, shot two-handed from the floor, put up our free throws under-handed. If as many as 10 fouls were whistled during a game, the contest was considered to have been rough. Basketball was acknowledged to be a body-contact sport, and was played that way. You can't put 10 energetic athletes into a rather small, confined space and expect them not to bump into each other.

Thirty points were almost always enough to win a high school basketball game, and 40 would do it in college. I once put in seven points in a high school game and was the top scorer in a 25-22 victory.

Yes, the game has changed, but in many ways it has remained the same. The basic strategies are still there. The old familier patterns of offense and defense are easily recognizeable to anybody who played the game 40 years ago. There are only so many ways you can bring the ball down the floor and set up on offense. Defense is even simpler. You basically play man-to-man or in a zone. There are variations of both, and combinations of the two, but I have yet to see anything really new.

What is new is the vastly improved caliber of athletes, techniques, skills, coaching, equipment and playing facilities. In that sense basketball today is indeed a different game, and a far better one than it used to be.

My only negative is the whistle-blowing that turns too many games into free-throw shooting contests. Officials must keep things under control, but I think they can do it without calling every brush and bump. There are deliberate fouls and there are accidental fouls, and referees should be able to tell the difference. They often don't.

I come from a basketball background. My dad was born and raised in southern Indiana. He wasn't a great player, but he was good enough to captain a team of barnstorming Hoosiers who introduced the game to California in 1920. What he and his mates started caught on, as evidenced by the showings of such teams as UCLA in later years.

Dad also was instrumental in launching the career of Robert (Fuzzy) Vandivier, who has been called by John Wooden the greatest basketball player of his or any other time. Wooden unquestionably is one of the three all-time best coaches of the sport (the others are Tony Hinkle and Red Averbach), and has seen all the truly great ones—Bill Russell, Oscar Robertson, Bob Cousy, Wilt Chamberlain, Kareem Jabbar, Julius Erving, John Havlicek, Larry Bird, and a flock of others. So who was Fuzzy Vandivier? You probably have never read or heard the name before. He was a distant relative of mine, among other things, and later on this winter I will tell you something about him. Let it be said for now that he was the dominant player on a high school team that won the Indiana state high school championship three years in a row—a feat never since accomplished—and went on to lead the legendary "Franklin Wonder Five," a coilege team that didn't lose a game in four years of playing anybody willing to take them on. They won by scores like 60-8, and just may have been the best collegiate cage team ever.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

By this time there are several million pounds of venison-maybe as many as 10 million-stored in refrigerators and freezers throughout the state. That's a lot of meat, and you can figure its value roughly at $2 per pound, which is the average going price for beef and pork these days.

Most articles on preparation of venison for the table stress the need for careful field careprompt dressing-out and cooling, good butchering—and well they should. A distressing amount of deer meat is ruined before it ever gets to the point of cooking, and no amount of kitchen magic will make it fit to eat.

Let's assume, however, that a deer has been brought down with one shot into the heart-lung rib cage, has been cleaned within minutes and taken to a cooler within an hour, has been properly hung and aged, and has been butchered by someone who knows how. If the animal was a typical southern Michigan buck, it yielded something over 100 pounds of "eating meat"—chops, steaks, roasts, stew chunks, hamburger.

If you are the cook, what do you do to make the eating a pleasure instead of something to gag on?

First of all, don't expect venison to taste like beef, pork, lamb or any other meat. It has a distinctive flavor of its own. That flavor is not "strong" or gamey" if the meat has been handled right, but it's definitely different from that of any domestic meat.

The conscientious cook will trim every speck of visible fat off a piece of venison before putting it into the pan. That takes some time and careful work with a sharpbladed knife, but it's well worth the trouble. Any off-tastes that the meat might have are concentrated in the fat.

That means substitute fat must be added before the meat is cooked. In the case of hamburger, for example, beef or pork fat should have been ground into the mixture. My frierd Genershoemaker at the Jiffy Market adds beef suet to lean deer meat in about a 30-70 ratio, and the result is excellent.

When roasting venison, put in some fat. The easiest way is to lay bacon or salt pork strips over the roast. Or vou can skewer on chunks of suet. If you want to get fancy, try the all-but-forgotten process of "larding," which involves making shallow cuts in the meat, inserting dollops of lard, and sewing up the incisions with a special needle and thread.

By and large, you can substitute venison in any beef recipe. The one exception in my experience is dry roasting. Cooking a venison roast in an uncovered pan with no water added resulted in a dry, tough piece of meat both times that I tried it years ago, and I gave up the idea. You might get away with it using a standing rib roast, but that portion of a deer is normally sliced into chops which are excellent if properly broiled.

I prefer venison over beef for chili, spaghetti sauce and most stews. The meat adds a different—and, to me, better flavor to those recipes. The taste comes through the spices and seasonings, which is more than I can say for beef. Beef is really kind of bland.

To prepare venison chops and slices of loin, I prefere pan-broiling to broiling in the oven or on an outdoor grill. The meat should be cooked quickly over high heat, and a heavy frying pan is the best tool to achieve the required smokinghot temperature. A couple of minutes on each side for inch-thick cuts is plenty. Cook them one per person at a time, and eat them quickly. Broiled venison that has been allowed to cool even a little bit is pretty bad. It sticks to the roof of the mouth and gets to be like trying to chew and swallow wads of cotton.

Venison roasts should be potroasted, which means putting them in a large pan with a tight cover, adding some water, and cooking for several hours under low heat. A dutch oven works very well. Don't drown the roast in onions, garlic or any other seasoning. A sprinkling of garlic salt and a couple of onions put in with other vegetables such as potatoes, carrots, parsnips and celery will produce a flavorsome result. The gravy made from the pot is & cellent. Whisk in some flour, and add a little sherry if you like the taste of sherry, which I do.

I don't know of any meat better than good venison properly cooked. Nor do I know of anything less edible than deer meat that has been poorly taken care of and then further mangled in the kitchen. If you have a bunch of butchered-out venison in your freezer or life somebody has given you a couple of packages, follow my tips and you will have some excellent eating, provided the meat was handled properly in the field.

Kenneth Bauer Bags Big Buck

One of the better trophy buck eer taken in the Chelsea-Dexter rea this year was shot by Keneth A. Bauer, II, of 991 S. Lima enter Rd. at 10 a.m. on Nov. 22. Bauer scored on private land orth of Chelsea, he said.

His buck, an obviously older eer, was at least 41/2 years old ecording to an unofficial estimate by a reporter who has had some experience in aging deer. but not enough to be certain of his

The buck was a 10-pointer with a wide beam and heavily knurled antler bases, both signs of a buck that has lived for several years. Its back teeth were heavily worn. It dressed out at 175 pounds. It was a big buck.

Unfortunately, one of Bauer's shots clipped off an antler point, and another point had been broken off earlier. Otherwise, it would have been a 12-point rack.

DANDY BUCK: Kenneth A. Bauer, II, of 991 S. Lima Center Rd. brought down this big buck while hunting north of Chelsea on "Nov. 22. The rack "scored" at 10 points, but could have been 12. Bauer clipped off one tine with a shot, and another had been broken off in an apparent accident.

Bauer said he first spotted the buck early in the morning, fired a shot, and missed. He watched the animal, saw it lie down in a fence row, and followed up. He jumped the deer, unloaded a charge of buckshot at close range, and brought it down so that he could finish it with a slug. It was his first deer taken with a gun, Bauer said.

Despite occasional success stories like Bauer's, the local deer hunting story is still "down" as poor hunting weather continues to plague hunters, especially on key days. In a weather sense this has been the poorest season perhaps since 1965, which was the worst on modern record. It rained on 12 of 16 days that year.

This fall's bad news could turn into next November's good news. A lot of bucks will escape to be bigger a year from now.

Swim Team Alumni Compete With Varsity

Chelsea boys swimming coach . Larry Reed couldn't resist a good-natured jest on the computer print-out of the scores of last Wednesday's match between the Chelsea High school swimming team and alumni swimmers:

"Final score: varsity 64-alumni 62. It must be noted—the alumni have protested this meet to the B.O.G.W. & P.O.A. (Bureau of Good Will and Preservation of Alumni.)"

The idea behind the second annual meet between Bulldog swimmers and swimming alumni is to have a good time and see old friends, Reed said.

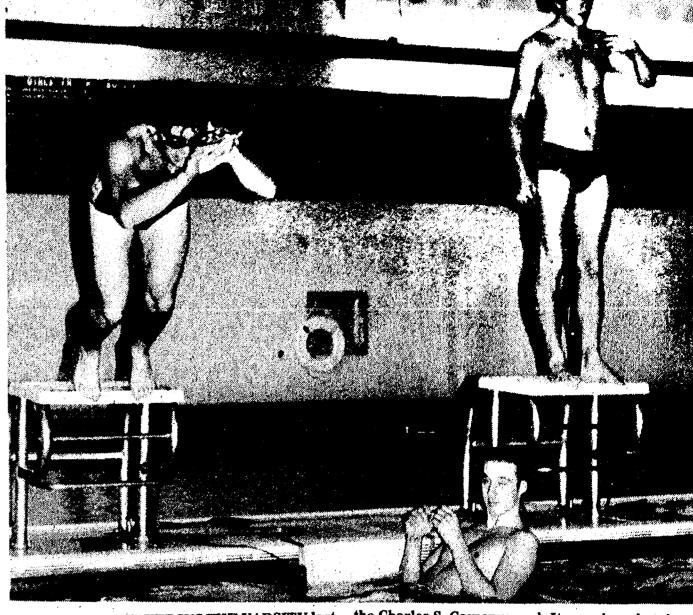

"It is really a lot of fun. A lot of parents show up."

A lot of alumni show up too. This year 20 former Chelsea swimmers, representing every graduating class since 1978, competed in the meet, Reed said. The event is purposefully held the evening before Thanksgiving since more alumni are likely to be at home for a holiday visit. Reed said.

who competed in the meet currently swim at the university level. Jon Oesterle, who is coach of the Chelsea Swimming Club and also the middle school swimming team, acted as coach for the alumni competitors.

It's time to get reacquainted with your phone bill.

When you go to your mail box and find your next phone bill, you'll notice it's changed in some ways. For example, there'll be more pages because the billing information will be more extensive and listed differently. These initial changes are the result of Michigan Bell's upcoming separation from AT&T on January 1, 1984.

We'd like to explain these changes. Probably the first and most important thing to understand is that after January 1, 1984, your Michigan Bell bill may include charges from Michigan Bell and AT&T or other long distance service companies, but you'll continue to pay the total bill to Michigan Bell.

Your billing information will be in three general categories:

Basic Service.

In the future, Michigan Bell will continue to provide and bill your basic telephone service, as well as your local and zone usage. Included in your monthly service could be Custom Calling, Touch-Tone® Service, or optional calling plan charges. Michigan Bell will also bill you for any directory assistance charges you incur.

Long Distance.

Your long distance calls will be separated between those provided by Michigan Bell and those that after January 1, 1984, are provided by other long distance carriers but may be billed by Michigan Bell. They will appear on separate pages.

Telephone Equipment Charges.

In the past, your telephone equipment charge was added into your charge for basic service. Now it will be itemized on a separate page. Ownership of the equipment Michigan Bell now provides you for a monthly fee will soon be transferred from Michigan Bell to AT&T.

Phone numbers will be listed on your bill to call if you have questions about your billing or service. And when you receive your new bill in December, a bill insert will clarify the various pages of the bill in much greater detail.

We want to do whatever we can to help you understand the changes that are taking place in your phone company. Please remember...

IT'S AT&T
WE'RE SEPARATING FROM... NOT YOU.

Facts down the line. We suggest that you continue to watch your monthly telephone bills for any additional changes in the billing format, repair service or procedures for establishing or changing telephone service. Also, because your telephone business office is busily engaged in normal day-to-day telephone service matters, this toll-free number is a source for answers to your questions about your changing telephone company. 1 800 555-5000.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS

Dear Mr. Fletcher: Thank-you for welcoming us so on our field trip to your service station. "Ralph Fletcher's Friendly Service Station." We enjoyed learning about the car engine, watching the gas pumps, seeing your tools in action, and riding up and down on your hoist. (Our moms liked their ride on the hoist, too.) We particularly enjoyed our "once in a lifetime" opportunity to jump up and down on your hose that makes the bells ring. You are indeed very friendly. Love, The children at North Lake Co-Op Nursery School

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone for flowers, cards and calls since I came home from the hospital. Our church family and the Rev. Strobe from North Lake United Methodist church and the Rev. Truran and the church family from the Chelsea United Methodist church for their prayers and concerns. I would especially like to thank our daughter, Gloria, John Mitchell and children for all the loving care for me and their dad. May God bless you all.

Rose Mary DeGrow.

Ford Offers Lifetime Service Guarantee

A revolutionary customer satisfaction program called Lifetime Service Guarantee was announced today by George Palmer of Palmer Motor Sales. Inc., 222 S. Main St.

"We're now giving our service customers positive assurance that they'll never have to pay twice for any repair covered under the Lifetime Service Guarantee as long as they own the vehicle," Palmer said. "This guarantee applies to new and used Ford-built cars and light trucks, regardless of when or where purchased or of model year or mileage. It includes virtually thousands of repairs involving genuine Ford and Motorcraft parts.

"We are offering this program to demonstrate our confidence in the quality of our repair work and Ford's parts," he said.

The guarantee covers repairs made on virtually all functional parts and components that fail in normal use, including cooling and electrical systems, engine, transmission, other powertrain components, steering, suspension, factory-installed options and dealer-installed accessories.

Coverage does not include maintenance parts that are replaced routinely-such as filters and belts-parts damaged by accident or abuse, or such components as sheet metal, upholstery, paint, bright metal or

"With each paid repair covered under the Lifetime Service Guarantee, the customer receives a copy of the guarantee," Palmer said. "This is the customer's guarantee for as long as he or she owns the vehicle, for both free parts and free labor on repeat repairs.

"It assures customers of our dedication to try to provide quality service throughout their ownership experience with a Ford, Mercury or Lincoln car or Ford light truck. Furthermore, we're offering Lifetime Service Guarantee free to our customers."

"I believe that the Lifetime Service Guarantee will help increase loyalty between Palmer Ford and our customers . . . and that's vitally important today because never before has there been so much customer concern about good service," Palmer

Dairymen May Apply Now For Assessment Refund

If dairy producers reduced their September commercial milk sales by 8.4% from their sales in September 1981 and 1982, they can qualify for a refund of the second 50-cent assessment that was levied Sept. 1 of this year, according to Michigan Farm Bureau's dairy specialist, Michael Kovacic.

"There are two separate refund periods a dairyman can apply for," Kovacic said. "The base period for the first refund would be Sept. 1981 and Sept. 1982. For the second refund, it would be fiscal years 1981 and 1982. To qualify for the 50-cent assessment refund, the producer would have to reduce, by a total of 8.4%. his commercial sales for those base periods."

Producers may establish their base marketings at their county ASCS office by presenting such documentation as payment receipts or statements from their milk handlers that show the amount sold monthly during the base period and the refund period

Standard Building Burglarized

The Chelsea Standard building at 300 N. Main St. was burglarized sometime last Saturday night or early Sunday morning, police chief Robert Aeillo said.

A preliminary investigation disclosed that camera equipment worth about $1,000 and a small amount of cash were stolen. Office files and desk drawers were ransacked and their contents scattered over the floor in an apparent search for money.

Aeillo said entry was made through a basement window and that at least two and possibly three persons were involved.

"We are checking out some possibilities, but we have no definite suspects at this time," the chief said. "We would appreciate any information that anyone might have."
