

Pre-Christmas Business Much Improved

Chelsea merchants are upbeat about business conditions in general and this Christmas shopping season in particular. That conclusion came out of a survey made by a reporter who walked both sides of Main St. and talked to owners and managers of about a dozen business places.

One positive sign was that the stores were busy with customers on a Thursday mid-afternoon, and cash registers were ringing up sales. Several merchants said they detect a different attitude among shoppers this season than that which had prevailed during the past three years. "They are more optimistic, more willing to buy, more confident about their ability to pay," one summed up, asking that his name not be used.

"I'm not saying business is really good, because we're building on an awfully low base, but it's a lot better than it was a year ago. We're going to show a profit in 1983, and it will be the first one in four years. We have been through a very tough time."

Jack Merkel, village president and co-owner of Merkel Furniture and Carpet store, said his business has shown "a nice gain" over 1982. "We trimmed some fat and tightened our belts during the lean years, and those steps have paid off now that sales have turned upward," he said.

Merkel noted that furniture and carpets are not traditional Christmas gifts, and so he does not anticipate a big surge in sales this month as a result of Yuletide shopping. "Our business is pretty steady around the calendar," he said.

What encourages him, he added, is that some chickens are coming home to roost. "We put out some estimates as long as four years ago, heard nothing back, and more or less forgot about them. Now we're getting calls from some of those people telling us that they have the money and are ready to go ahead. I'm just glad we kept their names on file."

George and Mark Heydlauff of Heydlauff's appliance store told a similar story in a different way.

"Few people buy somebody a new refrigerator or range for Christmas," George Heydlauff commented. "We sell some microwave ovens and small appliances during the Christmas shopping season, but December isn't an especially big month for us. Our business is pretty constant the year around. When an appliance wears out and has to be replaced, people don't have a whole lot of choice but to buy a new one, and that happens throughout the year."

He and Mark Heydlauff both, however, noted an upsurge in "elective" purchases. "We see more customers coming in and buying appliances because they want to, not because they have to," Mark Heydlauff said. "People are doing more remodeling, more upgrading. They are not so worried about obligating themselves to make payments."

Laurie Smith, owner of Dayspring Gifts, was especially enthused about results obtained from a mailing of 10,000 catalogs to area residents.

"This is the first year we have sent out a catalog, and we were frankly worried," Ms.

Smith said. "It cost a lot to print and mail. The response has been excellent, far beyond our hopes. We have a lot of mail orders and also many people coming into the store with prepared lists of marked catalog items that they want to buy. Our business definitely is going to be up over last year."

Dave Strieter, proprietor of a men's wear store, said the Christmas shopping traffic is up so far, and added: "They're not just coming in and looking, they are buying, and they are buying better grades of merchandise. People aren't as price-conscious as they were a year ago. They are more willing to pay for quality."

Sam Johnson of Gambles commented that "things are definitely looking up. Our business has picked up during the past 2-3 months, and the early days of the Christmas season have been good. We're coming off a very bad time, but I think the worst is behind us."

A spokesman for Vogel's and Foster's said that "everything looks pretty good so far. We have had increased customer traffic, and our sales are up over a year ago."

Similar sentiments were voiced by a representative of Grove's, who said that business is "up and better."

A Dancer's representative said the store is "keeping busy and doing better than last year."

Barbara's Needlearts was so busy with customers that a reporter seeking to ask "how's business?" finally gave up trying. Obviously, sales were going well.

At Chelsea Hardware, a salesperson who was not authorized to speak for the absent owner did say that "we have been busy and people seem to be more willing to spend money."

Laurie Smith offered an interesting comment. "I get many customers, Chelsea residents, who tell me they have seen some item in Ann Arbor but have come back to Chelsea to try to buy it here. If we didn't have that kind of loyalty to the village and its merchants, we couldn't survive. It's a very important, very precious attitude that we business people must protect."

CONCENTRATING ON COMPUTERS: The Association for Creative and Academically Talented Students (ACATS) donated profits from the button-making booth at this year's Chelsea Community Fair to purchase software for computers at North and South Elementary schools. The software purchased is a word processing program, a computer language for children program, LOGO and a

"Mind Bender," which has puzzles to challenge young minds. Pictured are, standing: Ben Havens, Richelle Jones and Jason Szostak. Seated are: Todd Watson, Brooke Pitts and Chris Dunham. The youngsters are students in Mrs. Crouch's class at South Elementary school.

Snowstorm Closes Schools, Cuts off Electrical Power

A three-inch fall of heavy, wet snow on Monday night and early Tuesday morning closed Chelsea and Dexter schools and left about 475 homes in the Chelsea area without electricity.

A Consumers Power Co. spokesman said the electrical outages began to be reported from an area north and west of Chelsea in the Cavanaugh Lake area at about 3:30 a.m. yesterday. Power was restored to most by 9 a.m., and the rest were expected to be back in service by noon, he said.

"We're not yet entirely sure exactly what did happen here," she added, "but the problem obviously was caused by heavy snow collecting on power lines and breaking them down."

Schools were closed because rural roads had not been cleared by the time buses were scheduled to start their morning runs. While main roads had been salted and/or plowed, secondary routes were snow-covered and slippery.

All Chelsea school activities were cancelled for the day and officials were to make a decision early yesterday afternoon, after The Standard's press time, whether to go ahead with the Chelsea-Pinckney basketball game scheduled last night in the Bulldog gym.

Santa Return Visit Promised

By popular demand, Santa Claus will be back at Longworth Plating Service, 110 Jackson St., from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. His return to Chelsea was scheduled in response to a large turn-out last Saturday.

Dexter was slated to play at Gabriel Richard in Ann Arbor and no problems were expected in going ahead with the game. As at Chelsea, all Dexter school day-time events were cancelled.

A winter storm watch was issued for later yesterday, with a possible accumulation of 4-6 inches of additional snow beginning in late afternoon. The storm warning was put out by the U. S. Weather Service.

Chelsea public works superintendent Charles Hafner reported no problems other than the work of clearing streets. "We received one report of a telephone line down, but that was all," Hafner said. "We had no problems with electric lines." Dexter officials likewise reported no unusual incidents.

The sheriff's department station and village police logged no traffic accidents attributable to the snow and slippery roads.

The snow followed brief ice storms on both Friday and Saturday nights which caused temporarily hazardous driving conditions. Again, no major accidents were reported, although several vehicles skidded off roads.

All in all, it was a rather nasty week of weather with precipitation of some sort every day, even though winter isn't officially here yet and won't arrive until Dec. 21. Already this fall there has been almost as much snow as fell all last season, the mildest since weather records have been kept.

Game Postponed

Last night's basketball game scheduled here between Chelsea and Pinckney was called off because of the weather. It will be played at a later date to be announced.

Lessons & Carols Festival Slated

Eleven area ministers and several choirs will participate in the seventh annual "Festival of Lessons and Carols," Sunday, Dec. 11 at 3 p.m. at St. Paul United Church of Christ.

Lessons and Carols services originated more than 50 years ago at Kings College Chapel, England. The service includes ten passages of scripture, from both the Old and New Testaments. In addition to the scripture readings, various area choirs will perform.

The Chelsea Community Choir, directed by Jack Bittle, will sing "Christmas Lullaby of Joy." The Chelsea High school Contemporary group, under the direction of June Warren, will perform "Three French Carols." The combined children's choirs, directed by June McArthur, will sing "Sing Ye, Sing Noel."

In addition, the Bell Choir of First United Methodist church will play Christmas hymns.

To close the program, the choirs and congregation will sing Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," under the direction of Warren Mayer.

There will be a reception following the program.

The "Festival of Lessons and Carols" is sponsored by the Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship. Music committee members for the event are the Rev. Erwin Koch, the Rev. David Truran, Donna Palmer, June Warren and Debbie Friauff.

St. Paul United Church of Christ is located at 14600 Old US-12.

Science, Computer Curriculums OK'd

The Chelsea Board of Education Monday approved K-12 science and computer curriculums.

Superintendent Ray Van Meer said the science curriculum has been under study for two years. Teachers and administrators wrote the curriculum. It was then reviewed by teachers and department chairpersons at Beach Middle school and the high school. The science curriculum was then approved by a central curriculum committee.

The computer curriculum was also written by teachers and administrators and followed the same steps as the science curriculum. Van Meer said since the use of computers in schools is relatively new, the committee will continue to meet to monitor the curriculum.

The study of the science and computer curriculums are only two of several which have been done in the past six years, Van Meer said.

In other business Monday evening the board:

—Accepted with regret the resignation of Mary Kathryn Weber. Weber, a South Elementary school teacher, has taught for 21½ years in the Chelsea district. She will retire Jan. 27. Van Meer said Weber is a "master teacher and we will feel her loss. We were very fortunate to have had her."

—Approved an unpaid maternity leave of absence for the second semester for Janeen Messimer, a high school special education teacher.

—Approved a six week maternity leave and an unpaid leave of absence until April 9 for Barbara Locks, a media specialist at North Elementary school.

Village Bakery Sold To Baker's Dozen Firm in Manchester

The Village Bakery at 103 W. Middle St. has been sold to Charles and Sandy King of Manchester, effective Saturday, present owners John and Phyllis Muncer announced. The Kings own the Baker's Dozen at 118 E. Main St., Manchester.

Mrs. Muncer said the decision to sell the Village Bakery was dictated by a change in her husband's flying schedule. He is a senior pilot for Republic Airlines, which recently underwent a major reorganization.

John Muncer has been transferred to a flight route between Minneapolis and Los Angeles, which means he must commute by air between his Chelsea home and his Minneapolis base. He formerly flew the Detroit-Minneapolis run.

"We expect to continue to live in Chelsea, because we love it here, but the change in John's schedule means major adjustments in our personal schedules. What it comes down to is that we won't have time to operate the bakery together, and I don't want to continue doing it by myself. We have two teen-aged children, and we want to devote more of our time to them."

Mrs. Muncer said she expects to remain active in community affairs and "be part of things here."

"We had several inquiries from people interested in buying the bakery after it became known that we might sell it," she said. "We decided on selling to the Kings because we have been buying our baked goods from them and feel confident they will continue to run the business as we have."

Price of the sale was not disclosed.

Mrs. Muncer said Loydell Keezer, a present Village Bakery employee, will manage the business under the new ownership.

The Muncers purchased the bakery on Dec. 1, 1982, from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steinaway. Six weeks later, on Jan. 14, 1983, a disastrous fire gutted the interior of the shop, closing it for six months while a total remodeling job was done inside and out. The bakery reopened last July 15.

"It has been a profitable enterprise," Mrs. Muncer said. "We have had a loyal staff and many good customers, and we are appreciative. We didn't want to give up the business, but personal considerations required that we do it. We are very grateful to the people of Chelsea for their patronage and consideration."

Christmas Concert Slated By Schools Music Groups

"Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature was stirring—not even a mouse: The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there . . ."

That famous Christmas story, written many years ago by author Clement Clarke Moore, will play an integral part of the Chelsea music department "Christmas Concert" at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The concert, which will spotlight the combined musical talents of 450 Chelsea students, will revolve around a skit featuring the mouse from that famous Christmas tale.

This is the second year that the four bands, three orchestras and five choirs of Beach Middle and Chelsea High schools have combined efforts to put on one spectacular Christmas concert, high school band director Bill Goulet said. Previously there were

FUNERAL HOME

WHAT CAN I SAY? WHAT CAN I DO?

If you've avoided visiting the home of a terminally ill friend or relative because you don't know what to do or say when you get there, you're not alone. But here are some things you can consider.

DO IT NOW

Visiting them now shows them you're still a friend. Visiting at the funeral shows the widow (er) and family the same thing, but also that you waited too long. Do it now, and show you care.

WHAT TO SAY AND DO:

Say that you've been praying for him and mean it. Say that you've brought a book that might help. Say you've arranged to take that friend to the hospital (or doctor's office) for the regular visit next Thursday, so the spouse can tend other chores. Take his wife's grocery list along with yours when you go marketing next week. Offer to fix a lunch, wash a car, drive the kids or any other special little chore as needed. But, do it now.

DON'T STOP THERE

After the funeral, all of the above are still good examples to follow—and may aid in comforting the family.

Waste Site Ranking Sets Basis for Funding Cleanup

The first 218 sites ranked by the Department of Natural Resources under Michigan's new environmental response law has been released and department Director Ronald Skoog called it a "significant step forward because we now have the basis for the Legislature to provide funding for cleanup."

The ranking, however, does not indicate the order in which the sites will be addressed, he said.

The sites are among over 900 which have been screened with the remaining 700 yet to be scored under a 2,000-point system assessing various environmental and health hazards.

Skoog said the DNR has identified all the hazardous sites in the state and laws are on the books to control waste dumps sufficiently to take care of the problem from now on.

Skoog said cleaning up the top 49-ranked sites would probably cost in excess of $1 billion, but officials have not really tried to put a price tag on the effort.

The director said it depends on how much federal money is available from the "Superfund" and whether a responsible private party can be made to pay for the cleanup.

Following public hearing, the funding priorities will be established by the governor and the Legislature and such things as superfund eligibility could mean some lower-ranked sites will get attention sooner than higher-ranked ones.

Larry Holcomb, executive director of the Toxic Substances Control Commission, said the real issue facing the state is developing sites and facilities to dispose of the identified hazardous wastes and not many sites will be cleaned up until that is done.

Skoog said the top 20 or 30 sites "have more or less some risk" to human health and another 30 percent of the sites are affecting groundwater supplies.

However, Public Health Director Gloria Smith said none of the sites are yet making people sick. Officials said attention will be focused first on sites where drinking water supplies have been affected or sites where human exposure to toxic materials is known to be occurring.

On the 2,000-point scale, the officials said there is no magic number which is considered the point where potential human health problems become so diminished that cleanup is no longer mandated, but said any site with at least a 900 score requires work.

The highest ranked site with a 1,063 score is Steven's landfill in Monroe county, which contains organ pollutants.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Zeke Grubb announced at the start of the session at the country store Saturday night that video games had played out their string. He had saw by the papers where Atari had lost more than $500 million this year and that Pack Man had been listed as a dangerous species. Zeke said there had even been scattered sightings of kids reading books at drugstores instead of feeding quarters into machines.

This ought to be enough to calm folks that are allus crying about never gitting any good news, Zeke declared, because if the video game goes the way of the Hula Hoop and reading makes a strong comeback there's no telling all the good that can come from the change.

Clem Webster noted that play computers is a way to interduce kids to working computers that can take them a long way in the world they're growing up into. Clem had this clipping where the vice president of Control Data Corp. said within 10 year folks without basic understanding of computers will be as helpless as folks today that can't read or write.

Ed Doolittle stopped well short of endorsing the idee of more and more faster and faster forever and ever. He offered evidence that the more things change the more they stay the same. Fer instant, he noted where airplane builders are looking at the advantages of the propeller over the jet. Just when we were ready to toss the propeller plan aside with the ox cart, Ed said, comes word that screw-type propellers have been developed that go just as fast a heap quieter on half the fuel. Farthermore, Ed went on, the last he heard the explorer Jock Cusstow was at sea testing a boat run by a windmill. Cusstow says it works better than sails and it would help a ship with a engine save up to a third in fuel.

General speaking, the fellers were with Ed. Bug Hookum was of a mind that we outsmart ourselves as often as not by throwing away the old in favor of the new without first looking to see if we can make the old better. Bug said he had in mind a piece he had saw recent about what was called household technology.

The woman that wrote it claimed that instead of freeing wimmen, all the appliances and gadgets in the house have done is make more work fer em. Now, with the technology, Bug said, a homemaker is expected to do what it took four of her to do at the turn of the century. And what's worst fer wimmen, Bug went on, is that the same technology that give them more to do done away with men chores like rounding up wood for the cookstove and grinding flour fer the biscuits, so it's the men gitting the benefits.

holiday concerts presented by choir, orchestra and band students.

In addition to the Christmas skit, which was devised by Warren Mayer, middle school band director, the concert will feature the traditional Christmas concert sing-along with all of the musical groups providing the music, Gourley said.

A special presentation this year will be the performance of the senior high choir and orchestra of two movements of Handel's "Messiah." The movements which will be performed are "The Glory of The Lord" and "The Hallelujah Chorus."

On a more secular note, there will be a special pre-Christmas visit from a jolly old man dressed in red to conclude the concert.

"The public is welcome, we encourage them to come," Gourley said. "The Christmas concert is always a real crowd-pleaser."

ON YOUR FEET

BEWARE OF HOME DOCTORING

Many people are fond of diagnosing their own foot problems, and even those of other family members. Inevitably, this leads to self-prescription and home doctoring. This can be dangerous.

The most common self-treatment is the application of over-the-counter "remedies" for corns or blemishes. To do so without the professional recommendation of your foot specialist can be risky. Such commercial products may contain aggravating ingredients. And chemical removal of thickened tissue does not cure the problem. The corn or blemish will only grow back.

Caustic chemicals dissolve thickened skin but also normal skin. If you have diminished circulation or sensation, as with older people, you run a high risk of injury. You should also refrain from cutting growth with any sharp instrument yourself. This may cause difficult bleeding or precipitate infection.

Even a simple self-diagnosis of athlete's foot may be incorrect. It might be psoriasis; or the dry skin may be indicative of diabetes. PLEASE, leave foot doctoring to your podiatrist.

Pre-Kindergarten Program Offered at Children's Center

The pre-kindergarten program being offered by the Children's Center of Chelsea Community Hospital is scheduled to begin the week of Jan. 16.

The pre-kindergarten experience offers the children an atmosphere to discover and thrive in a flexible, creative, pleasantly relaxed and busy atmosphere where there is a minimum of do's and don'ts and much to do. The program organizes the work and play in such a way that children gain more satisfaction and eventual self-control. It also provides a place where children can have opportunity to learn to sit and listen, to follow directions, to achieve as part of the group, and finally become a known and adequate self. The abilities of young children sometimes unfold slowly and differently for each child, this is recognized and therefore not forced.

Program hours will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday 9:30 to 11:30, for a 14-week semester. For registration and more information, contact Anne Daniels at 475-1311, ext. 405.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Satterthwaite

Sunday Open House Will Honor Satterthwaites on Anniversary

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Satterthwaite of Chelsea will be celebrated with an Open House on Sunday, Dec. 18 at the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club.

The event will be hosted by the couple's sons, Darrel, Ronald and Jerry, their daughters-in-law and their nine grandchildren. It will begin at 1 p.m. and end at 4 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Satterthwaite were married Dec. 28, 1933 at St. Johns church, Rogers Corners, and have lived in Chelsea since that time.

He is retired after working for 40 years for the Washtenaw County Road Commission. He enjoys farming, gardening and wood-working. She was employed for five years by Mack, Mack and Gudeman's and is currently a homemaker. She enjoys knitting, crocheting and sewing.

They are members of the First Congregational church, Chelsea.

Parent to Parent Program Offers Help in Troubled Times

The Parent to Parent Program is a fairly new concept in providing support to parents, in their homes, using community members who are also parents. The primary focus is to provide information and education around child development, parenting skills, parent/child relationships and use of community resources. Home visitors visit weekly and initiate activities with the parent and child focusing on these issues. In addition, home visitors provide a warm, friendly and non-threatening source of emotional support around other issues which may be causing problems or concerns for the parent.

The purpose of this program is that of prevention, education and support. During times of prolonged stress and anxiety, the Parent to Parent Program provides a friend to share concerns with and to provide emotional support through "the rough times." Through this type of support and educational information, inappropriate behavior patterns may be prevented. It is very easy for behavior problems to be established and quite often, without intervention they continue until the pattern is too firmly rooted, complicated or involved to change.

Who might benefit from this program? The Parent to Parent Program is flexible to meet the needs of those who ask for it. Any parent who feels they are having difficulty coping will benefit from this program; any parent who could use a friend to share concerns with; any parent who feels their relationship with their children needs improvement can benefit from this program. Young parents who feel unsure of themselves with a first child can benefit from other parents' experience raising their children as well as the education around child development.

How does one go about getting into this program? Call 475-3305 (Faith In Action) and ask for Jo Ann, supervisor of the Parent to Parent Program. Referrals may also come through other agencies or organizations. Referrals are now being accepted for 1983/84.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Leslie Spence

Tresa M. Wahl, Michael Spence Are Wed at St. Mary's Church

Tresa Marie Wahl became the bride of Michael Leslie Spence in a Nov. 11 ceremony at St. Mary's Catholic church.

The Rev. Fr. Philip Dupuis performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wahl of Grass Lake and the son of Mrs. Beverly Spence of Jackson.

The bride wore an organza gown with a high neckline, bishop sleeves and lace train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, carnations, baby's breath and ivy.

Maid of honor was Susan Schramm of Grass Lake. She wore a rose-colored gown of taffeta with a lace jacket and carried white and pink carnations with silk streamers. She wore flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Spence of Jackson, sister of the bridegroom; Tamara Kies of Chelsea, cousin of the bride, and Lissa Cole of Grass Lake. Rachael Burns of Grass Lake was the flower girl.

Best man was Bud Wahl, brother of the bride. Ushers were John Dakin, Tom Zenz and Mike Willis, all of Grass Lake. Michael Klink, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception was held at the Dexter Knights of Columbus hall. Esther Whitaker and Joan Eastman, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake. Jane and Trisha Wahl of Manchester served the punch and coffee. Anne Eastman was in charge of the guest book.

Following a trip to northern Michigan the couple is residing in Grass Lake.

VFW Post and Auxiliary Present Flag to Jury Room

Chelsea VFW Post 4076 and its auxiliary have presented an American flag and standard for use in the jury assembly room of the Washtenaw County Building.

Price Incentives Approved for Use of Zip-Plus 4 Code

The Postal Service Governors have approved price incentives for ZIP + 4 on qualified First-Class mail. The incentives are a half-cent per piece for at least 500 pieces of pre-sorted mail and .9 cents per piece of at least 250 pieces of non-presorted mail.

This will lower the first ounce of presorted mail from 17 cents to 16.5 cents and the first ounce of mail not presorted from 20 cents to 19.1 cents. There has been no announcement of costs of the second ounce.

In Ann Arbor. The ceremony took place on Nov. 28.

The presentation was conducted by Carl Heldt, Dorlene Cozzens and Eulahlee Packard. Accepting the flag were circuit judges William Ager and Edward Deake.

The local VFW post had been contacted several weeks ago by an employee of the county clerk's office who reported there was no flag in the jury room.

The VFW post plans to present a flag for display at South Elementary school in Chelsea as soon as arrangements can be completed.

Exchange Students Unanimous About Enjoying Chelsea Stay

They come from all around the world and are, without exception, from cities much larger than Chelsea.

But the five Chelsea High school exchange students are unanimous in their opinion of their adopted city:

"I love it."

"I come from a city with 600,000 inhabitants," said Olaf Meyer from Bremen, West Germany. "But Chelsea is great. Everybody knows each other. It is really a great thing."

Meyer, a 16-year-old senior, says he is particularly enjoying the ability to join extra-curricular activities at school. In his school in West Germany, sports and clubs are strictly for after school hours.

Since he came to Chelsea, at the beginning of the school year, he has joined the band, where he plays trumpet, and will compete as a diver on the boys swimming team this season.

Meyer is staying with Ann and Richard Lee of Chelsea.

Elisabeth Lindstrom, a 17-year-old senior, has also become active in Chelsea High school extra-curricular activities. Lindstrom, from Angelholm, Sweden, will appear in the upcoming stage and drama class production "My Sister Eileen."

Like Meyer, Lindstrom is from a city much larger than Chelsea.

"I find Chelsea really small," she says. "But I enjoy all the wildlife. I've seen a lot of animals, and birds."

Lindstrom says she finds school in Chelsea much different from school in Angelholm.

Students do not choose their own subjects, but instead are enrolled in a particular area of study. Had she gone to school in Sweden this year, Lindstrom would have been enrolled in the "science" tract of classes.

Transportation is also different, she says. At home Lindstrom would take a private company bus, like a Greyhound, to her classes instead of a school bus.

Lindstrom has a twin sister who is an exchange student in Scranton, Pa., this year. She is staying with Bill and Marybeth Rosenberg of Chelsea.

Fenton Van Reeseema, 14, is staying in Chelsea with his aunt and uncle Dr. Fred and Carol Van Reeseema.

A freshman from Australia, Van Reeseema says he is also enjoying classes and extra-curricular activities.

"The classes I've got are all a lot of fun," he says. "And I have become involved with the FFA."

"I'm used to living in a slightly bigger town, but I like it (Chelsea) he says."

One new experience for Van Reeseema was a recent hayride. In Australia the closest thing to a hayride occurs when the backs of large trucks are filled with hay and driven down the road, he says.

Sabine Kuhl, 16, a senior from Papenburg, West Germany, says one of the major differences between going to school in Chelsea and at home is the method of transportation.

"At home we would bicycle or walk to school," she says.

Kuhl is from a town with a population of about 30,000, but says she is enjoying her stay in Chelsea.

She is staying with Phil and Joyce Vogel.

Eddie Clarke is an 18-year-old senior from Belfast, Northern Ireland. He is staying with Rita and Gerald Grohnert of Chelsea. Clarke says he feels students "learn better" at Chelsea than they do in his hometown, and is enjoying his classes. He has also joined the wrestling team.

"Most of all, the people here are really cool, really nice," Clarke said. "They are friendly and they make everyone welcome."

YOUR BACK & YOUR HEALTH

Posture and chiropractic

Every year the International Chiropractors Association supports National Posture Week with special educational materials written for school children. Chiropractors, probably more than any other group, know the importance of good posture. Bad posture and out of condition muscles probably contribute as much to what is generally called a "bad back" than any other single cause.

Your spine has twenty-four movable segments, or vertebrae, stacked one on top of the other. Extending out from between the vertebrae are nerves which carry messages between body organs and the brain. It's easy to see how one or more of the vertebrae ending up out of position can interfere with the ability of the nerves to carry their messages. You can see how the chain works: a vertebra out of its normal position affects a nerve which in turn affects a body organ.

Bad posture can contribute to this chain reaction. While your chiropractor can help restore a vertebra to its rightful position and thus give the nerve a chance to work as it should, bad posture can bring the same condition about again — or even similar conditions.

Standing straight, sitting straight and walking straight isn't just a matter of good appearance. It's a good start on achieving and maintaining good health.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Cime.
It's a nasty word. It's especially nasty when it hits close to home, as it has for me in the past couple of weeks.

Items:
The wife of a fellow newsman, Don Faber of the Ann Arbor News, was murdered for the measly sum of $15 after she left a supermarket and sought to get into her car and drive home with a bag of groceries. I didn't know Faber at all, and have met her husband only once, but her senseless death hurts.

There is a close comradeship among those of us in the newspapering business even though we may work for rival papers. We compete for news, but it's friendly competition. We like and respect each other as professionals in a demanding craft.

My heart goes out to Don Faber and the two children whose wife and mother have been taken away in a brutal act of violence. A murder of an innocent woman for 15 bucks? What in hell is this country coming to?

My daughter and son-in-law live in Detroit. A lawyer, he came home early a few nights ago to take care of my four-month-old grandson while Mary went out to do some shopping. He was upstairs changing a diaper on the baby when somebody came in through the back door and stole his briefcase off the kitchen table. I'm glad it ended that way. There could have been a confrontation had Larry come downstairs and, knowing him, it probably would have been violent. A briefcase can be replaced. A son-in-law who is the father of my only grandchild can't be.

A week ago Monday I came into The Standard Office to find that it had been broken into over the weekend. A camera, a couple of lenses and some cash were stolen. Every desk in the place, including mine, had been pawed through, along with the business files.

My personal loss was very small—three 20-cent stamps. Otherwise, all I had to do was pick the papers off the floor and put them back in the desk drawers. The loss of 60 cents is trifling, but I am outraged by the idea that somebody came in here and rummaged through things that are mine.

I haven't quite come around to the idea of taking the law into my own hands, but I'm getting there. I don't really want to start packing a pistol, although I am familiar with firearms and know how to use them. I'm not enthused about keeping a loaded shotgun under my bed or behind the front seat of my car. Personal protection measures like those strike me as admitting to anarchy, a breakdown of law and order.

But, by golly, if I'm going to behave myself and live by the rules of society, I expect others to do the same.

The word has gotten back to me that some readers have taken exception to statements made in this column. Great. My intent is to raise issues and get people talking about them.

Publisher Walt Leonard has given me the freedom to say what I think. He doesn't censor what I write from the Clock Tower. The views expressed are strictly mine, and they are printed under my name. I am the sole person responsible.

Please feel free to disagree, and let me know if you do. Better yet, write a letter to the editor stating your point of view. The more that local problems are discussed, the better eventual solutions will be. I sure don't pretend to have all the answers, only opinions which may or may not turn out to be right.

The one thing I don't want is for this column to be ignored.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

A recent conversation with a staff member at the Cassidy Lake Technical School would suggest that your extensive coverage of last summer's walkaway problem may not have been followed by an equally thorough job in reporting what has been done about it. The deliberate and systematic way in which we must go about solving problems of this nature does not lend itself to catchy headlines but, as a public agency, we have a responsibility to be certain about our facts first.

What has been accomplished to date is a tribute to the dedication and persistence of those area community leaders who have been willing to serve on the institution's Community Liaison Council. They have patiently examined relevant statistics and information during lengthy meetings, asked many questions and made a number of constructive suggestions. The executive committee of the council also met with Corrections Director Perry Johnson at Lansing and discussed the community's concerns. The talents and resourcefulness of these unpaid volunteers have made it possible for the Department of Corrections, through Superintendent Staten and his staff, to implement several significant improvements at the facility.

A car is now patrolling the perimeter of the institution around the clock, seven days per week. We have identified the days and times during which walkaways have occurred most frequently and have rescheduled some of the staff to provide better coverage during these critical periods. Both the frequency and the method of counting prisoners during the afternoon and evening hours have been improved. Prisoners are counted hourly so that the prisoners know that absences will be discovered more quickly. Since most walkaways have taken place within the first month after a prisoner's arrival at Cassidy Lake, all new residents are initially assigned to a centrally located, well-supervised housing unit. An instant radio communications system with the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department has been put in place. Working closely with the psychologist, counselors and their staff have instituted intensive group counseling programs for Cassidy Lake Technical School youthful offenders. Finally, we have rescreened the entire Cassidy Lake population and confirmed that they are the least dangerous group of prisoners we have in the system, as far as risk of violence to the public is concerned.

These measures seem to work because walkaways have been drastically reduced. However, we will continue to look for additional methods which might help us to manage this minimum security prison in the best way possible. One promising approach we are working on is a more sophisticated system of assigning prisoners to the living units so that the weaker individuals are not driven to escape by more aggressive ones.

Despite the claims of some, the Department and the Institution have not been unresponsive to the community's concerns and we remain committed to work with the Community Liaison Committee co-operatively and constructively.

Department of Corrections
Rudolph H. Stahlberg
Regional Administrator
Bureau of Correctional Facilities.

Editor's Note: The following letter has been sent to Gov. Blanchard, State Senator Pollack, State Representative Margaret O'Connor and Corrections Dept. Director Perry Johnson.

Dear Gov. Blanchard,
Please close Cassidy Lake Prison and make it into a place for city children deprived of the pleasures of the country.

Those people who are in the prison do not appreciate the advantages that the state is trying to give them. There are many underprivileged children that could use that as a camp to learn about our state and maybe prevent them from becoming like those housed there now.

Those people that are there now cause all the residents of the area to live in fear. Reason should tell you that this is not helping those young people placed there. When they escape the whole community is in prison and we never know when they have gotten away. Will one of our children die before you do something to help us.

We are deaf, we have a hard time understanding when people speak to us. It is our experience that bad people are very dangerous to us because they do not understand that we do not know what they are saying.

Please help us,
Mr. and Mrs. W.

Dear Mr. Editor:
Unless one has been involved in fighting for a just cause, for truth, for right, it probably would not matter to them, but for me, it was like a breath of fresh air in a smoke-filled room. The people's recall of the Senate members of this State of Michigan.

Plain, ordinary people who had

All Manchester School Buses Pass Police Inspection

The school buses of the Manchester Community schools were submitted to an annual inspection required by the Michigan State Police. This process insures a fleet of safe buses for all school districts in the state.

For the second year in succession all Manchester buses passed the inspection. None of the buses were taken off of the road by the police inspectors.

Rusty LeFurge, transportation supervisor, stated, "The success we have had during the inspections is due to the year around maintenance program we maintain on the fleet as well as to the special care given the buses by our drivers. Our mechanic, Howard Poley, works as a team with the drivers to spot problems at an early stage, diagnose them and take quick maintenance action. In this way we are able to avoid most major problems. I am extremely pleased with the work done by Poley and would like to congratulate the drivers for their efforts in maintaining fleet conditions."

something to say and whose message was falling on deaf ears in the Michigan Legislature—until not one but two victories of recall. It's far beyond words in this day and age of "taking the easy way out" of situations rather than to push up the hill to the top and see the "impossible dream" come true. The thrill that people are using their voting power to correct errors.

How many along history making events have given their very lives for that precious freedom—the right to vote—the right to hold an election? We need to thank God for those who sacrifice so very much and have the guts to lead others out of the maze of blind submission to the establishment and the much worn adage "You can't fight City Hall" . . . Oh yes you can! And you can win!

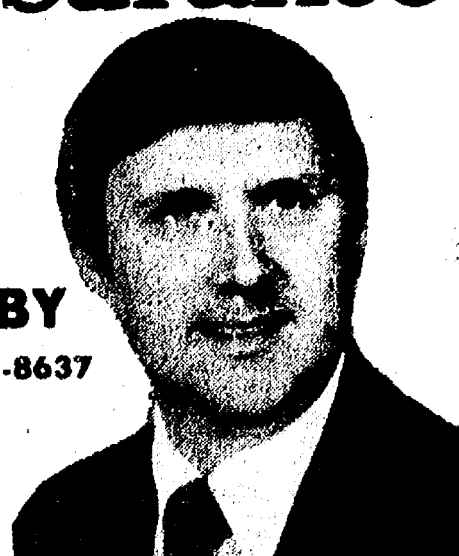

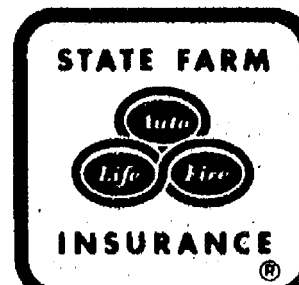

The bottom line is—the voted in official is representing the people who put him or her, in a particular office or that representation ceases to exist. The other line is: Keep your hands out of the voter's paychecks, wallets, and purse! Hurray for the "Little guy" with the voting power—he just grew to 10 feet tall.

Millie Warner.

Area Residents' Help Sought in Faber Killing

The chances are slim that anyone from the Chelsea or Dexter areas was in the vicinity of Plymouth and Green Rds. in northeast Ann Arbor when Nancy Faber was murdered on Nov. 22, but local police agencies are pursuing all possibilities in trying to track down the slayer.

Rewards totalling $13,215 have been posted for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person who shot Mrs. Faber in her car after she left a Plymouth Rd. grocery store. The murder occurred a short distance away on Green Rd. The murder robbery netted the assassin about $15, police say.

Mrs. Faber, the mother of two young children, was the wife of Donald Faber, chief editorial writer for the Ann Arbor News.

Anyone with a shred of information which might help Ann Arbor police in their search for the murderer is asked to call the Mafor Crimes Unit of the Ann Arbor Police Department at 994-2850 or a special "tip line" at 996-3100. Callers need not reveal their identity.

No far, police have uncovered no significant clues or leads to the killer, nor has any motive other than random robbery been established.

Mrs. Faber was shot in the neck and left for dead in her car while trying to drive home with a bag of groceries. She died three days later without regaining consciousness.

"You can think up all kinds of theories as to exactly what happened and how it happened," said Sgt. Donald Wenk of the Chelsea sheriff's department sub-station. "All I know for sure is that every policeman, including me, would like to catch him. It was a brutal crime that makes no sense at all. It makes me sick."

Educational Excellence Is Goal of Committee

Positive thinking is the norm in the Chelsea school district.

It's the philosophy of school administrators and the reason Superintendent Ray Van Meer decided to change the name of a new committee approved by the Board of Education Monday evening.

In the planning stages the new group was called the "School Improvement Committee." But with the positive thinking philosophy always in mind, Van Meer decided to change the name to the "Committee for Educational Excellence."

The purpose of the committee, which will get underway after the first of the year, will be to "tap in on the goals and expectations of education in Chelsea," Van Meer said.

The committee will be comprised of a cross-section of Chelsea residents including students, board members, teachers, parents, senior citizens and Chamber of Commerce members, he said.

While specific goals of the group haven't yet been defined, Van Meer said graduation requirements and promotion and retention policies are examples of items that should be reviewed by the committee.

"In other words, we want to be able to say 'here is the direction we're going,'" Van Meer said.

The idea for the committee is not new to the Chelsea district, but grew out of ideas from the Michigan Association of School Administrators and the Michigan Department of Education.

"With the national and state reports recently released, education is currently in the limelight," Van Meer said.

While Van Meer doesn't envision the committee meeting frequently, it will probably meet more often at the onset to chart the goals for coming months, he said.

Anyone interested in being a member of the "Committee for Educational Excellence" should contact the superintendent's office at 475-9131.

School Board Honors Three for Contributions

Chris Craig, 11, a fifth grade student at South Elementary school received special recognition from the Chelsea Board of Education Monday for his efforts to keep the grounds of the school neat.

He is the youngest person ever to receive the special honor from the board.

Chris has been spending parts of his recess time and lunch hour to pick up litter around the school since he was in third grade.

He is the son of Rodney and Sue Craig of Chelsea.

Also receiving special recognition from the board were Chelsea teachers Patti Rogers and Betty Cox.

Rogers, who teaches art at North and South elementary schools, was recognized for her promotion of art among students and adults in Chelsea. She has created murals at both elementary schools, conducted art shows, created an elementary school art calendar, placed art displays in downtown store windows and been involved in art fairs in Ann Arbor and Manchester.

Cox, a math teacher at Beach Middle school, created the Academic Games Club four years ago. During the first two years Cox worked without compensation to organize the group. During the 1982-83 state tournament

Beach school was the state champion in the "On Words" competition, took fourth place in the "Equations" competition and received an honorable mention in social studies competition. The school also had four students finish among the top 40 out of 250 competitors. This year there are 23 students in the Beach Middle school Academic Games Club and the team is currently ranked fifth in the region.

Teachers Prepare Thanksgiving Dinner For Third Graders

Pleasant memories of the Thanksgiving dinner recently enjoyed by North Elementary school third grade students should last for many years.

Tuesday, Nov. 22, the third grade classes at the school re-enacted the first Thanksgiving dinner.

Teacher Gina Klink organized the event with the help of the two other third grade teachers, Alberta Stein and Eric Smith.

Students brought the ingredients for the vegetable soup. Stein assisted them with cutting, peeling and cooking the apples for the apple sauce. Smith baked the bread with the help of his class and Klink made the traditional pumpkin pie.

Manchester Schools Receive Donation of Copier Machine

Manchester Community Schools have received from the 3-M Corp. a donation of a Secretary III copier. The copier was valued by the donating corporation at $7,000.

Approximately one year ago the school district joined NAEIR (National Association for the Exchange of Industrial Resources) which is an agency co-ordinating donations from the private sector to public schools. The initiation fee was $250. Since that time smaller donations have been made.

Last summer the school district was advised that the 3-M Corp. had donated 500 copiers to be distributed across the nation. Superintendent Thompson enrolled the district in the lottery which was to be held to determine winners of these copiers. The Manchester schools were advised in September that the district had been a winner in the lottery.

Thompson stated, "The copier is a beautiful piece of hardware which we would not have been able to afford. It will enable us to do all of our paper work at a much faster rate. Our $250 initial investment in the program certainly paid off very well. Anytime I can invest $250 and receive a $7,000 return I am more than happy to do so."

Police Recover $1,850 Worth of Stolen Property

Items worth a total of $1,850, which were stolen from the Huron Valley Ambulance Co. office on Nov. 18, have been recovered, Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo reported, and an arrest has been made.

Aeillo declined to reveal the name of the suspect pending his arraignment in district court.

A scuba tank and diving vest, valued at $450, and a $200 sound mixer were found in the trunk of a car left in the municipal parking lot for more than 48 hours.

Subsequent investigation by patrolman David Dettling led to recovery of a $1,200 reel-to-reel stereo player from an employee of an Ypsilanti music store. The employee had bought the device from a person who came into the store and offered to sell it for $250.

"We asked for a warrant against the store employee for receiving stolen property, but the prosecutor's office refused to authorize it," Aeillo said. "I can't believe the buyer didn't know it was stolen merchandise. A $1,200 appliance for $250 is a real bargain, too good to be true."

As you take a seemingly solitary stroll in a typical one-acre field, you may be watched by as many as 40 million ants, beetles, wasps and other insects. The eyes of 100 mice, a squirrel, some rabbits, a few songbirds, and maybe a hawk circling overhead might also be watching you.

Cassidy Lake Escape Rate Shows Dramatic Drop Since September

Whatever the reasons, there has been a dramatic drop in the walk-away rate from the Cassidy Lake Technical School during the past three months.

There has been just one escape since Sept. 13. That one occurred on Nov. 6 and, although reported to local police agencies by Cassidy Lake officials, was not released to the press. Neither the sheriff's department nor the Chelsea police department included the item in information made available to news reporters.

For the record, Jeffrey M. Buggs, 19, of Genesee county ran off on Nov. 6 and is still at large. He was serving 32 months to four years on a charge of larceny from a building. He is believed to have gotten away in a motor vehicle whose driver picked him up by pre-arrangement on a road outside the camp boundaries.

Buggs was the 48th person to escape from Cassidy Lake so far this year.

Security was tightened drastically in September following protests generated by a local "Committee To Fence It Or Close It," formed after three escapees broke into two area homes.

The committee, chaired by Ronald Olmsted, has 1,350 members and has demanded that the institution either be secured or shut down.

State Department of Corrections officials responded by enacting tougher measures designed to keep inmates inside the facility.

Head counts are being made every hour instead of every two hours. The perimeter of the 110-acre facility is being patrolled around the clock seven days a week. Some new screening and segregation procedures for inmates have been put into practice.

The sheriff's department has co-operated by stepping up patrols around the prison.

"I believe the measures we have taken have proven effective," Cassidy Lake superintendent John Staten said. "The record shows it."

Assistant superintendent John Andrews, whose primary responsibility is security, likewise expressed a degree of satisfaction with the new security set-up. "I think we are on the right track," he said. "We have some more things to do, and it's mainly a matter of getting the personnel to carry them out."

Andrews said his goal as chief security officer is to reduce the walk-away rate to zero. "We probably won't achieve that because it is very difficult to prevent all escapes from a minimum-security prison," he explained. "We have a lot of acreage out here, a lot of buildings, and many miles of surrounding roads to cover. There are all kinds of ways for determined inmates to escape. We are going to come as close to zero as possible. I promise the people of the community that we will make the effort."

Staten said that he and other officials, including Washtenaw sheriff Tom Minick, have conducted intensive discussions with Cassidy Lake inmates, pointing out to them the relative advantages of confinement to a minimum-security institution.

"We tried to tell them that being here is a lot better than being in a walled prison with armed guards, and that continued public pressure brought on by a high escape rate could eventually force drastic changes in the way we operate here," Staten said.

"You can't really measure the effectiveness of such an educational program, but I hope and believe at least some of our inmates got the message. We weren't threatening them, just explaining the facts."

Andrews said that most of the men who escape from Cassidy Lake do so because of some home or family problem that motivates them to try to go out and take care of it.

"The records show that the large majority of our walk-aways head for their homes as quickly as possible. A big percentage of them escape with the assistance of family members or friends who pick them up in cars."

"The incident last August when three of our inmates escaped and broke into two area homes, including Mr. Olmsted's, definitely was unusual. Most escapees try to get out of the (Chelsea) area as quickly as possible."

Both Staten and Andrews acknowledged that the reduced rate of walk-aways since mid-September can be ascribed in part to the onset of colder weather. Past history shows a decline in escapes during the fall and winter, followed by an increase in spring and summer.

"Actually, we have had some pretty nice weather during September, October and November, when it wouldn't have been at all uncomfortable to be out in the woods in light-weight clothing," Andrews pointed out. "The fact that we have had only one walk-away since Sept. 13 suggests to me that our new security measures are working. We are committed to keeping them up."

Corrections Department Trial Slated Jan. 9 Breaks Bottle Law In Kozminski Case

The Michigan Department of Corrections has been accused of violating the state law against buying and selling beverages in throw-away bottles and cans, but the Cassidy Lake Technical School apparently is not involved in the scandal.

"We get our beverages in bulk and dispense them in styrofoam cups," superintendent John Staten said. "We don't get involved in bottles and cans."

An investigation launched upon complaint of Michigan United Conservation Clubs, which was the prime mover in obtaining voter passage of the law which prohibits throw-away beverage containers in Michigan, disclosed that at least two facilities operated by the Corrections Department have been dispensing soft drinks in non-returnables.

They are Camp Cusino in the Upper Peninsula and Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson. There could be others.

Evidence compiled to date includes that the Department of Corrections contracted with a Fort Wayne, Ind., firm to haul truck-loads of soft drinks packaged in throw-away containers into Michigan. At some prisons bottled and canned soft drinks are sold to inmates.

The so-called "bottle bill" enacted by referendum in 1976 allows only one exception to a general ban on non-returnable beverage containers. Airlines may serve passengers in planes flying over the state with drinks poured out of throw-aways. Otherwise, it's deposit containers only, according to Michigan attorney general Frank Kelley.

"It is very disappointing to find a state agency violating the law," MUCC executive director Thomas L. Washington said. "Agencies of government are not above the law and should set an example by scrupulously obeying the law."

Just why a Michigan government agency decided it was necessary to go out of state to buy pop was not immediately clear.

Jan. 9 has been set as the trial date for three members of the Ike Kozminski family, who live on Peckins Rd. in Lima township, on charges of holding two farmhands in involuntary servitude (slavery).

The trial is scheduled in the court of U. S. District Judge Charles W. Joiner in Ann Arbor.

Defendants are Ike Kozminski, his wife, Margaret, and their son, John. Each is charged with one count of conspiracy to violate civil rights and two counts of holding persons in involuntary servitude.

A fourth person named in the federal indictment, Michael J. Asam, a former employee of the Kozminskis, has not been arrested and is considered a fugitive. U. S. district attorney Leonard Gilman said.

The case grew out of charges originally made by county authorities that Robert, Fulmer and Louis Molitoris were kept at the Kozminskis' dairy farm against their will and were mistreated while there.

Among the most prolific creatures on earth is the aphid—an insect responsible for a third of all viral disease transmitted to plants. A French biologist once calculated, if all the young survived, the number of descendants resulting from a single aphid over the course of one summer would total nearly six billion. Fortunately millions of aphids are eaten by predators before they ever hatch.

Dickens Program To Be Featured By Manchester Historical Society

The public is invited to the annual Christmas party of the Manchester Area Historical Society at the Manchester Mill on Monday, Dec. 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Featured will be Bert Hornback, the "Dickens" of Ann Arbor and the state, who will present his dramatic readings from "A Christmas Carol."

Professor Hornback of the University of Michigan's English department, is known throughout the state for his portrayal of Dickens during the past seven Christmas seasons. He has appeared at the Earle and the Clements Library in past years and will give two readings at the University's Museum of Art in Ann Arbor this season, as well as performing for private groups throughout Michigan. Though there is no admission charge, proceeds from a voluntary collection will be divided between the free meals program of the Ann Arbor Hunger Coalition and Manchester Family Services, Inc.

Members and guests are invited to complete the evening by joining in singing carols (with Howard Parr at the piano), trimming a Christmas tree for the birds with items contributed by Manchester merchants, and partaking of seasonal refreshments.

Doors to the Mill will open at 7 p.m. and residents are encouraged to come early. Music by Mary Sue Moore, pianist, and Michelle Cartier, violinist, will precede the program.

Local Man Beaten Severely by Four Intruders in Home

Four men entered the home of a 30-year-old Hayes St. resident last Wednesday and beat him up to the point where he required 40 stitches to close his wounds, police chief Robert Aeillo reported.

The chief said the four men came to the door of the residence at 11:10 p.m. and were admitted inside. After a brief conversation, the intruders attacked the occupant with "a blunt steel instrument," he added.

Upon leaving the house one of the quartet picked up a stack of record albums, but later discarded them while running to a car parked a block and a half away, Aeillo said. Police tracked the fugitives through the snow to the car, but lost the trail there.

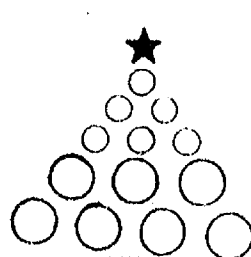

The victim was treated at Chelsea Community Hospital and released. His name is being withheld by police request.

"We're investigating, but so far have not been able to discover any motive for the assault," Aeillo said.

Rehabilitation Support Group Meeting Today

During rehabilitation an entire team of health care professionals surround a patient, attending to many needs as he tries to achieve independence. After discharge, however, the patient has fewer and fewer contacts with the hospital staff which supported him during the crucial in-patient phase.

Many new experiences await the former patient during the post-discharge phase. Some of the experiences are handled easily, some are not. In an effort to provide support for former rehabilitation patients during the post-discharge time, Chelsea Community Hospital is offering a support group on Dec. 7. It is open to any person who has had a stroke, head injury or other neurological problem requiring rehabilitation. It is also open to the families of such patients: families share in coping with stroke or head injury, just as patients do.

The meeting will be held in Conference Rooms A and B, from 4 to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Please contact Lori, at 475-1311, ext. 262 for further information.

Needy Families Will Receive Christmas Help

Once again Chelsea Social Service is attempting to make the Christmas season a little more pleasant for needy area families. Linda Ormsby, of Chelsea Social Service, said there are 50 families who need assistance this holiday season.

"There seem to be even more families this year than in previous years," she said.

Chelsea Social Service will provide each child under 13 with a new outfit, pajamas or underwear and a new toy.

Mothers and fathers will each receive small personal items, she said.

Donations are badly needed, Ormsby said. Individuals may also sign-up to "adopt" a family or child and provide them with Christmas gifts.

To make a donation call Chelsea Social Service at 475-1581.

Cassidy Lake Council Argues Over What To Do Next

Members of the Cassidy Lake Community Liaison Council went round and round for nearly two hours last Tuesday night, discussing what to do next in the wake of local demands for tighter security and assignment of "non-assaultive" criminals to the institution.

The free-ranging discussion, which was unfortunately marred by several exchanges of personal insults among members, appeared to produce a consensus that:

1. New security measures effected at Cassidy Lake seem to be working and should be enforced and increased. (See separate story.)

2. The Michigan Department of Corrections should make a stronger effort to communicate with local residents, and the Liaison Council should help bridge the gap and end the "stone-walling" which has characterized communications between the Corrections Department and Chelsea residents.

In that connection, Cassidy Lake superintendent John Staten agreed to produce and release an "open letter" describing the prison's policies and procedures.

"I will write it, I will get it cleared through Lansing, and it will be official," Staten promised.

A Standard reporter present pledged that the letter will be printed in full in the first issue of the paper following its receipt, provided it comes in time to meet publication deadlines.

That agreement was worked out following accusations by some council members that local news media, including The Standard, have been "one-sided" in coverage of the escape problem at Cassidy Lake.

The facts are that the Liaison Council has not issued a single news release during the controversy which erupted last August after three Cassidy Lake escapees broke into two Chelsea area homes and caused the 1,350-member "Fence It Or Close It" local committee to be formed.

Staten provided one brief statement, which was printed verbatim. The "Fence It Or Close It" committee, headed by Ronald Olmsted, has furnished a steady stream of news releases and letters to the editor.

Otherwise, there was no agreement among the council members on the central issue of whether the council should continue to press its recommendation that Cassidy Lake be returned to its intended purpose as a rehabilitative educational and vocational training institution for young first offenders who have committed non-violent crimes.

Council member Phil Boham, reporting for a three-person committee which met in Lansing with state corrections director Perry Johnson, said he "came away dissatisfied with the type of prisoner being sent to Cassidy Lake."

"The impression I get is that Cassidy Lake is no longer a minimum-security facility because of the types of convicts being assigned here," Boham said. "At last official count we had 43 percent assaultive prisoners here, and I was told the ratio could conceivably go up to 100 percent. That bothers me, because I don't think that is what Cassidy Lake was established for."

Other council members took issue, arguing that the nature of Michigan's total prison population has changed and that there are no longer enough young first offenders convicted of non-assaultive crimes to fill the 270 spaces available at Cassidy Lake.

"I think they (Corrections) are sending us (Cassidy Lake) the best of what they have," said council member Walter R. Zeeb. "We have to face the fact that things have changed. The boys we used to get aren't being sentenced to prison any more. They are put on probation. There is such a shortage of space in the prison system that mostly assaultive criminals are being put into it. I think the Corrections Department and director Perry Johnson are doing the best they can under the circumstances."

Boham said that Johnson was "strong" in his insistence that criminals convicted of assaultive offenses are less likely to try to escape than non-assaultive criminals, and are no more likely to commit violent crimes if they do get out.

"I'm not sure about that," Boham said, "and I'd like some more information. In any case I don't think the concerns of local people have been satisfied. I need more answers."

Staten pledged that he and his staff are committed to tighter security "forever or at least as long as I'm here."

"We in Corrections agree that, no matter what type of person is sent to Cassidy Lake, our first responsibility is to keep him here until he's ready for release," Staten said.

Olmsted, who is a member of the Liaison Council, said he was happy with the tighter security measures and the results achieved so far, but made it plain he was not happy with the idea that assaultive criminals will continue to be sent to Cassidy Lake.

"I think it's time you people realized that the 'Fence It Or Close It' committee has more than 1,300 members, which is a BREUNINGER FARM on Parker Rd. is the latest Saline Valley Project participant in the area. An animal waste management system is under construction that will help clean up Mill Creek which feeds into the Huron River.

Concrete Animal Waste Pit Built By Breuninger Farm

A gigantic concrete waste pit is the most recent attempt of the Saline Valley Project to clean up the area's major drainage systems.

The site is the Breuninger farm located on the corner of Marshall and Parker Rds. The farm is situated on Mill Creek which feeds into the Huron River.

Robert Breuninger along with his son, Bruce, operates a dairy farm with about 120 milking cows.

The Saline Valley Project is one of the Rural Clean Water projects sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture under the Rural Clean Water Program. The program was enacted by Congress in 1979 to provide solutions to the problem of water pollution from agricultural sources.

The target is the sediment, fertilizer, manure and pesticides which run off the land.

Construction began last week on the animal waste pit. It is about 110 ft. by 80 ft. in size.

According to Breuninger,

"This is one of the better ways of saving the nutrients."

The pit will hold at least six months worth of waste.

"Then once in spring and once in the fall, we'll pump it out and truck it to the other parts of the farm and knife it into the ground," said Breuninger.

The Saline Valley Project is a federally financed program with nearly $2 million dollars allotted to the counties of Washtenaw and Monroe. The Saline River, River Raisin, Macon Drain, Honey Creek and Mill Creek are the major drainage ways in the project area. Although not included in the area, the Huron River is directly affected by activities on Mill Creek, which flows into the Huron near Dexter.

There is a $50,000 funding limit per participant in the project.

Breuninger estimates that the total cost of the concrete drainage pit will be about $85,000, not including the trucking equipment to remove the waste. The cost with this bi-annual trucking is estimated to be about $100,000.

All the waters in the Saline Valley project area are muddied from eroded soil. Soil loss from wind erosion is a considerable problem in southeast Washtenaw county.

More than 20 percent of the soils in the project area have the

Varsity Cagers Win Easily Over Napoleon in Opener

Paul Ash made his Chelsea varsity coaching debut a successful one last Friday night as his Bulldogs stormed to a 49-20 half-time lead over visiting Napoleon and then coasted to a 75-50 victory in the season opener.

"I'm always nervous before a game, but I was a little more nervous than usual before this one," admitted Ash who was pacing the floor like an expectant father during the pre-game warm-ups.

"I'm glad to have this first game behind me, and especially happy that it was a win."

Actually, the outcome was never in doubt once Chelsea got rolling. Held to a 6-6 tie at the end of two minutes, the Bulldogs stepped up their pace and pulled away decisively, scoring 19 points during the next six minutes to the Pirates' two. That outburst put the game away, and from there it was just a matter of what the difference would be in the final score.

Chelsea kept the pressure on throughout the second period, compiling a 24-12 advantage to take a 29-point lead into the locker room.

The Bulldogs played very well during that first half, making few mistakes while forcing Napoleon into error after error with a smothering man-to-man defense.

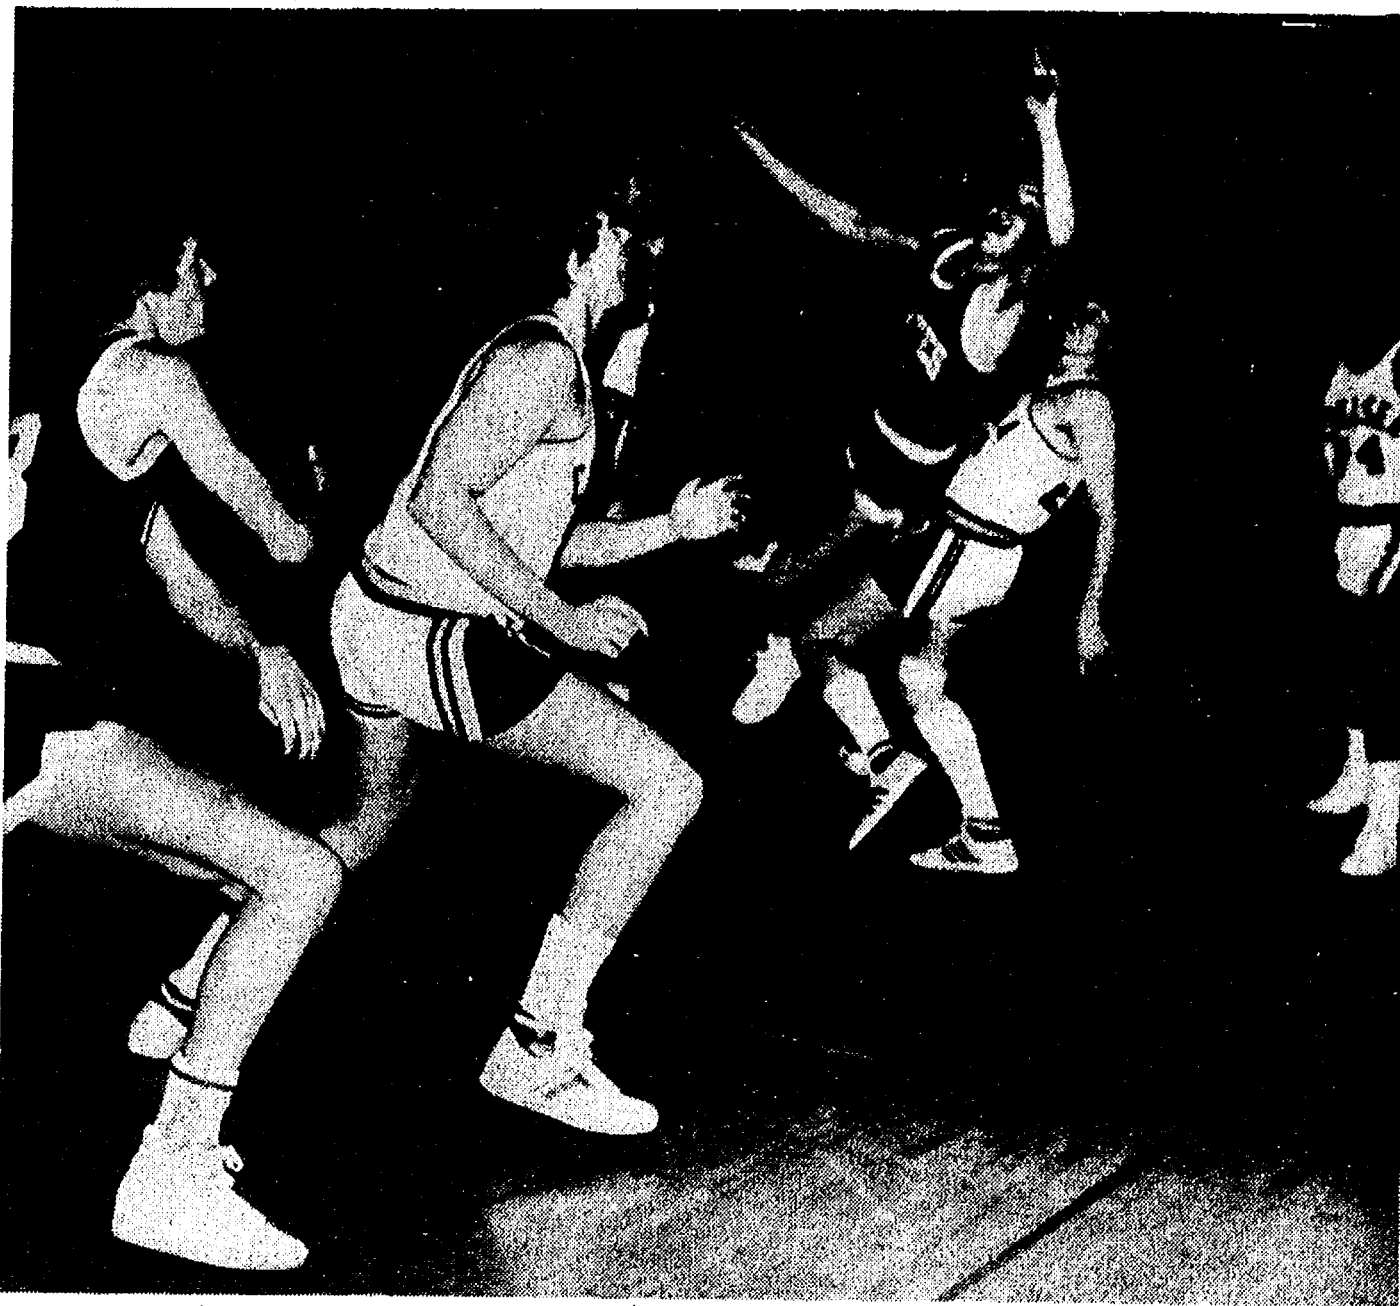

Meanwhile, Chelsea was getting good shots and making them, led by senior co-captain Marty Steinhauer who canned eight field goals on a dazzling display of shooting from long, short and in-between.

The Bulldogs relaxed during the second half and were content to trade baskets with the visitors, who had a four-point scoring edge during the final 16 minutes. To their credit the scrappy Pirates never gave up although outclassed by the bigger, stronger and quicker Bulldogs.

"We lost our intensity at half-time," Ash said. "It's difficult to keep digging when you have a big lead and know you have the game in hand. I really can't blame the kids too much for letting down and getting a little careless and sloppy."

Napoleon was a last-minute substitute for East Jackson as Chelsea's opening opponent. East Jackson cancelled out after school authorities discovered they had scheduled one more than the allowable number of 20 games. The Class C Pirates certainly did not disgrace themselves and earned plaudits for their never-say-die spirit which prevented what could have been a total blow-out.

All 12 Chelsea varsity players got at least several minutes of playing time, and each scored at least one point. Ash substituted freely and put a number of different combinations on the floor.

BASKETBALL ACTION: A shot has been launched and everybody is looking toward the hoop during this moment of action in last Friday's Chelsea-Napoleon basketball game, won easily by Chelsea, 75-50. Identifiable Bulldogs are Jeff Martin (foreground), Chuck Hager (behind Martin), David Steinhauer (being bumped) and Eric Schaffner. For some strange reason a foul was called on Steinhauer.

David Kiel, the other senior co-captain, came on strong in the second half and tied Marty Steinhauer for scoring honors. Each had 18 points. Also in double figures were Chuck Hager with 11 tallies and David Steinhauer with 10.

Ash was especially happy with the play of the younger Steinhauer, who made his first varsity start at floor guard and showed a lot of hustle to go along with his considerable talent. He rounded out the starting five which also included brother Marty, Kiel and Hager across the front, and Eric Schaffner at point guard.

The coach was likewise pleased with the performance of Kiel, who during practice had been favoring an arm injured during the football season but got well in a hurry once the opening whistle blew. He played a strong game on the boards to complement his scoring, using his 6-6 height and 225 pounds to good advantage.

Coaches are never fully satisfied, however, and Ash had some criticisms of his charges. "We didn't get the ball inside as much as we should have," he said. "We had openings underneath that we didn't take advantage of. We have to work on that."

He was also unhappy with his team's mediocre 11 of 26 free throw shooting, including numerous misses on one-and-one opportunities. The poor performance from the line didn't matter against Napoleon but could be fatal in a close game.

The Bulldogs were to face another set of Pirates—those from Pinckney—in a home contest last night.

JV Cagers Open With Big Victory

Last Friday night was a good one for new basketball coaches at Chelsea High. Tutoring has first game ever above the "club" level, rookie junior varsity coach Marlin Wilson saw his team rack up a resounding 62-21 victory over the Napoleon JV's.

"I was proud of the way we played, especially in the fourth quarter when we hit 50 percent of our shots and blew the game wide open," Wilson said. "The kids were tight at the start, but gained confidence and loosened up in the second half. We got our fast break in gear, and played outstanding defense."

The Bulldogs used a 1-3-1 half-court trap defense to excellent advantage, committing only eight fouls during the game while holding their foes to a meager 21 points. It's not an easy defense to execute, even for experienced players.

Another key to Chelsea's success was excellent rebounding despite giving up an average of four inches per man in height. Dan Bellus was especially effective on the boards, picking off 10 caroms. Kevin Maynard had seven despite limited playing time because of a hurting back, and Ray Spencer had six.

Kevin Maynard led the scoring with 13 points, followed by Maynard with eight, and Bellus with eight. All 11 members of the squad got into the scoring column.

"I'm looking forward to some good things from this group of boys," said Wilson who set some kind of a style precedent by wearing a three-piece suit on the sidelines. "They have worked very hard and have improved a lot since the start of practice. We don't have much size, but we have several other things going for us. The fact that we committed only eight fouls and had just eight turn-overs for the game shows that we can play disciplined basketball."

Girls Participate in Fitness Program

Fifty-six Chelsea High school girls completed an intense five-day fitness program conducted last week by girls athletic coaches.

The program had previously been offered to male athletes through football coach Gene LaFave, but had never been made available to female athletes, said Cathy Vleck, girls volleyball coach.

The purpose of the program was to teach students how to get into shape and which muscles need which types of exercises, Vleck said.

For the first three days of the program participants did warm-up exercises, then spent 15 minutes lifting weights, 15 minutes running, 15 minutes jumping rope and ended with push-ups. The final sessions were spent doing relay races.

Vleck said the program was vigorous and strenuous, but only four students dropped out. Several girls who participated had never played competitive sports, she said.

"The girls who finished should feel really proud of themselves."

In addition to Vleck, Jifn Winter, girls varsity basketball coach; Bill Bainton, girls track coach; Charlie Waller, girls softball coach, and Terri Schreiner, girls tennis coach, combined their talents to run the program.

TYPES OF DEER ANTLERS

Hunters Urged To Enter Bucks

Every deer hunter's goal is to take a trophy buck with antlers large enough to be classified and ranked in Michigan's top ranks. Those records are compiled and maintained by Commemorative Bucks of Michigan, Inc.

C.B.M. is a non-profit group composed of sportsmen who classify, evaluate, recognize and award Michigan trophy bucks "free of charge."

Pictured are the various types of whitetail buck antler formations. These types are broken down into typical and non-typical classes. Most Michigan bucks grow typical antlers. Typical antlers are those forming a symmetrical shape. Non-typical antlers have bush-type formation.

This year there will be an estimated 300 bucks taken that qualify for Michigan's record buck ranking. To qualify, the buck must attain C.B.M.'s minimum point requirements. Scoring is done according to the Boone and Crockett Club's method. This method is different than the one used by Michigan's Department of Natural Resources, but is the recognized scoring system determining North American big game records.

Every Michigan hunter taking a trophy buck in 1983 should have the deer scored by an official C.B.M. scorer to learn if it qualifies for ranking. All scoring must be done after a 60-day drying period. The score assigned the buck will indicate the caliber of the trophy.

All bucks that meet C.B.M.'s minimums will be added to the rankings. The hunters who took them will receive a certificate recognizing the accomplishment.

Hunters who take the largest bucks in 1983 and meet the C.B.M.'s verification criteria in the following divisions will receive plaques and added recognition. There will be typical and nontypical classes in the following divisions: biggest, archery, black powder, woman, youth (17 years and under).

The hunter taking the biggest deer, (most points over the respective minimum), can have the head mounted by taxidermist Jack Gumbetter, Jr., of Troy, free of charge.

All entries for the 1983 competition must be

Chelsea Wrestlers Win One, Lose One In Opening Meets

Chelsea's varsity wrestlers opened their season last Thursday night by splitting a pair of dual meets, losing to Pinckney, 43-27, and then coming back to defeat Stockbridge, 45-29.

"We improved a lot between the two meets, even though they were run on the same evening," Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel said. "We were rigid tense against Pinckney, relaxed and loose against Stockbridge, and the difference showed in the scores."

"I don't want to take anything away from Pinckney, which has a good team, but our two opponents were pretty equal in ability. We were a lot better against Stockbridge."

Kargel quickly added that his team has to get a lot better yet if it is going to be competitive during the rest of the season. "We have a rough road ahead," he said. "The Southeastern Conference will be very tough, and so are the other teams on our schedule. We will have a lot of close meets, and it will come down to how badly our kids want to win."

As last year, the varsity grapplers scored well in the lower weight classes but ran into problems at 155 pounds and over, suffering nine pins in 10 matches. The 10th was won by a forfeit.

Kargel said he was pleased by the performances of newcomers Bob Torres (119) and Tom Nemeth (132). Torres lost both of his matches "but he wrestled aggressively and will get better," Kargel commented. Nemeth earned a decision and a fall in his two outings.

Results of the Pinckney meet:

98 pounds—Doug Hargen won 8-5 decision.

105—Pete Hanna won by pin, 1:36.

112—Mark Rosentreter, won by forfeit.

119—Bob Torres lost by pin.

126—Jeff Morgan won by pin, 3:14.

132—Tom Nemeth won 4-2 decision.

138—Tim Folsom lost by pin.

145—Eric Stofflet drew 2-2.

155—Steve Dotson lost by pin.

167—Steven Wingrove lost by pin.

185—Dave Gipson lost by pin.

198—Dave Shoemaker lost by pin.

Heavyweight—Rick Proctor lost by pin.

Results of the Stockbridge meet:

98—Doug Harden won, opponent disqualified.

105—Pete Hanna won by pin, 1:12.

112—Mark Rosentreter won by forfeit.

119—Bob Torres lost 20-5 decision.

126—Jeff Morgan won 12-2 major decision.

132—Tom Nemeth won by pin, 1:38.

138—Tim Folsom won 20-6 decision.

145—Eric Stofflet won by pin, 4:32.

155—Steve Dotson lost by pin.

167—Dave Gipson won by forfeit.

185—Steve Wingrove lost by pin.

198—Dave Shoemaker lost by pin.

Heavyweight—Rick Proctor lost by pin.

In case you are wondering how Steve Wingrove and Dave Gipson

INVITATIONAL MEET WINNERS: Jeff Morgan (left) and Mark Rosentreter both won individual championships in last Saturday's Chelsea Invitational wrestling meet. Morgan was selected as the tournament's outstanding wrestler after placing first in his weight class for four straight years.

Dexter Grapplers First, Chelsea Third in Invitational

Dexter won last Saturday's 11-team Chelsea Invitational wrestling meet, and the host Bulldogs came in third. Jackson Northwest finished second.

The Dreadnaughts racked up 154.5 points to Northwest's 144 and Chelsea's 121.5. Other teams in order of finish were Linden, Lake Region, Rochester Adams, Napoleon, Gabriel Richard, Vandercook Lake, South Lyon and Albion.

Chelsea wrestlers who placed fourth or higher included:

Pete Hanna, 105 pounds, first; Mark Rosentreter, 112, first; Jeff Morgan, 126, first; Tom Nemeth, 138, second; Eric Stofflet, 145, third; Steve Dotson, 155, fourth.

Dexter placers in the top four were:

Dave Feldkamp, 119, first; Scott Hollister, 138, second; Todd Coy, 155, first; Jeff Ulrich, 185, second; Mark Columbo, 112, fourth; Steve Maurer, 126, third; Greg Swersky, 145, fourth; Paul Fletcher, 167, fourth; Mark Hicks, 198, third.

switched weight classes, it wasn't a matter of sudden gains and losses of poundage. Both weighed in at 167. The rules of wrestling allow a contestant to step into a higher weight division. Moving down is not permitted. If you weigh 167 pounds, you can wrestle in that bracket or a higher one, but you can't drop back to 155.

"I saw some improvement in our team," Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel said, "and I'm hoping for some more. I think we can be contenders with Dexter and Saline for the Southeastern Conference championship if we keep getting better. We have the potential to score upset."

Jenny Cattell Most Valuable JV Cager

Chelsea High school sophomore Jenny Cattell was named Most Valuable Player of the 1983 girls junior varsity basketball team during year-end ceremonies Friday evening.

Cattell, a Bulldog co-captain, led the team in scoring, stealing and the most minutes played and was third in rebounding for the season.

Coach Paul Terpstra said Cattell played her best game against Milan when she scored 25 points, shot 12 of 24 from the freethrow line and had five steals.

Freshman Cindy Stirling was named Most Improved player and sophomore Kris Mattoff received special recognition for having the most team spirit.

The junior Bulldog hoopsters finished their season in fourth place in the Southeastern Conference with a 5-5 record. The team was 9-8 over-all.

Terpstra said highlights of the season were his team's victories over Ann Arbor Pioneer, 55-37, Tecumseh, 44-20, and Milan, 46-27.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

My personal qualifications for writing this column about the special muzzle-loading rifle deer season which opened last Friday are zero. I've never so much as fired a front-end loader, much less hunted with one. Handed a black powder firearm and told to get it ready to shoot, I wouldn't know what to do.

Granting my ignorance of the subject, let me proceed to make a few comments which may be pertinent and (I hope) accurate. My information comes from persons who hunt with primitive weapons and have passed on some of their knowledge to me.

Muzzle-loading rifles (and shotguns) have always been legal to use in Michigan hunting, as long as they are .44 caliber or larger. Rifles must shoot a round ball propelled by a charge of black powder.

In 1975 the Legislature enacted a special 10-day deer season, following the regular firearm season, during which primitive weapons are the only guns that may be legally carried and used. Bows and arrows are also allowed during the period.

The muzzle-loading sport has grown to the point where more than 33,000 persons participated in it last year. They bagged 2,600 deer, an eight percent success ratio. That is about half the scoring rate racked up during the Nov. 15-30 regular firearm deer season.

The special 10-day post-season gives black-powder hunters an extra week and a half to fill their deer tags. It's a fun time. There aren't many hunters out in the woods, so the competitive factor—which has no place in hunting but unfortunately exists during the regular season—is eliminated. It's a one-on-one contest between hunter and game, and that is the essence of the sport.

In southern Michigan the only rifles that may legally be used to hunt deer at any time are muzzle-loaders. Otherwise, it's shotguns only. Folklore tales to the contrary, front-enders won't drive tacks at 200 yards. If reborn today with their long rifles, Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett wouldn't have had a chance in a match against any off-the-shelf modern rifle that has been properly fine-tuned and sighted in. You can drive tacks with some of those, especially if they are equipped with good telescopic sights.

Black-powder rifles are more accurate than slug-loaded shotguns and have a longer effective range. A good one will reach out as far as 150 yards and put its bullet into the heart-lung area of a deer with enough velocity to make a clean kill. No shotgun that I know of will do that.

Hunting with a muzzle-loader is a one-shot proposition, and so compares to bow-hunting. No deer is going to stand around and wait during the half-minute or so that it takes to reload a primitive rifle after a shot has been fired. You either hit the first time or else the game gets away.

An extra bit of excitement comes from the fact that an explosion of black powder produces a cloud of dark-gray smoke, which has to clear before you can see whether you have scored a hit or a miss.

Muzzle-loader enthusiasts tell me that part of the charm of the sport comes from the opportunity to build your own rifle and adapt it to your personal shooting habits and skills. Some of the best ones may be bought in kit form and assembled on a home workbench using ordinary household tools. Once put together, the gun may be taken to a shooting range and played with until it hits where you want it to. The "little things" adjustments are easy to make if you are at all handy.

Some black-powder specialists go a step farther and get into the nostalgia act by clothing themselves in coonskin caps, buckskin jackets, fringed leggings and the like. That's all fine so long as the law which requires that a vest, jacket or cap of blaze orange be worn in the field is obeyed.

A bright orange garment may spoil the effect of a pioneer costume, but the law is a good one. Hunting accidents in Michigan have been cut by more than half during the years since the rule was adopted.

Volleyball Team Starts Rebuilding

Chelsea Volleyball Coach Cathy Vleck doesn't like to say it is going to be a "building season"—but it will be.

"I hate to hear coaches say that," Vleck says. "But sometimes it is just true."

After losing 11 seniors from last year, and with no returning players, Vleck says it will be hard to predict the outcome of the upcoming season.

"It was painful when the team came out last year and I knew I was going to lose all of them (the seniors), she says. "As for this season I really don't know what to expect. It will be a young team... it could be rough."

Tryouts for the team began Monday and will conclude today, Vleck said. Team rosters for both varsity and junior varsity will be posted Thursday.

Thirty-four girls are vying for 27 spots, 12 on varsity and 15 on junior varsity, Vleck said.

The team will begin practicing Friday and will host its first match, against Stockbridge at 7 p.m. Jan. 3. That game will be followed by a match at Saline Jan. 5 and the Chelsea Volleyball Invitational on Jan. 7.

Girl Swimmers Lose in State Meet

They put forth a valiant effort, but there were no scorers among the four members of the Chelsea girls swimming team who competed last week in the state Class B swim meet at Grand Rapids Junior College.

"Paula Colombo swam her best time this season (at the state meet) but was unable to make it in," coach Von Acker said.

Colombo ended with the best time of the four Chelsea competitors, finishing 13th in the 200-yard I.M. with a time of 2:25.28 and 13th in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:40.11.

Susan Schmunk finished 17th in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 59.24.

In the same event Dawn Borders finished in 20th place with a time of 59.96. Borders finished in 18th place in the 50-yard freestyle.

The team of Missy Young, Borders, Colombo and Schmunk finished in 20th place in the 400-yard freestyle relay with a time of 4:05.77.

The Class B state championship was awarded to East Grand Rapids High school with Zeeland High school taking second place.

The event was very competitive this year, with exceptional swimming times, Acker said.

"The meet as a whole saw nine state records broken. It was very fast, but had fewer entries than in past meets."

If interested in participating in either or both count periods please contact Charles Steinbach, Ph. 426-4363, David Baker, Ph. 665-4578, or Dick Wollinski, Ph. 428-3323.

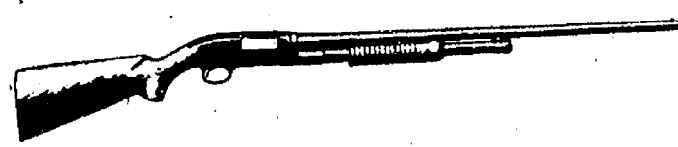

The Christmas bird count is a nation-wide recreational activity for United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean Islands. In addition to its very interesting recreational value, it is a very good aid to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service as well as state, provincial and territorial governments. It tells the population of ducks, geese, shore birds, and mourning doves so that hunting seasons may be set for states and flyways and to tell what species are becoming scarce. For instance, black ducks and canvasback ducks are quite scarce so they are 100 point ducks in the sportsman's bag. A few years ago bluebirds turned up scarce. A campaign to erect nesting boxes in favorable locations was undertaken locally and nationally. Bluebirds responded favorably and a large increase in bluebirds has been observed.

FUR TRADE: The fur business isn't what it used to be, according to Richard Hadley of Lyndon Township, but it is still good enough to keep him buying and selling hides and pelts. In top photo he stands by a pile of 700 deerskins that will be sold to a Pennsylvania tannery. Below, he holds up some choice fox and coyote furs taken by trappers throughout Michigan.

Fur Market Prices Are Down, But Hadley Stays in Business

The market for wild furs isn't what it was a few years ago when pelt prices reached all-time highs, but it remains good enough to keep Richard Hadley of 9850 Beeman Rd. interested and occupied for four months every fall and winter.

Hadley buys hides and furs from hunters and trappers all over Michigan, then re-sells them to tanneries and clothing manufacturers. He has been in the business for the past eight years.

"Prices are down by half or more from what they were a few years ago," Hadley said. "There isn't a whole lot of money in the business, but I enjoy handling furs and decided to keep on doing it."

Hadley is a carpenter who has worked in the local area at that trade for 21 years. From October through January, however, he puts his tools aside and works full-time on furs and hides.

When interviewed last Friday, Hadley had 700 deerskins piled up in front of his shop and was awaiting delivery of 300 more before loading the whole bunch into a truck for shipment to a Pennsylvania tannery.

"They (the hides) came from all over the state," Hadley said. "I paid an average of $5 apiece for them. I'll make a dollar or two on each one, depending on how they grade out at the tannery."

Grading is the tricky part of the fur business. Hadley inspects each pelt as it comes in and decides what it's worth in terms of what he can sell it for. If he's right, he makes money. If he's wrong, he loses.

"I look over each skin, feel it, smell it, then make a judgment on the price," Hadley said. "What I can't know is how the person who buys the fur from me will grade it out. He and I may differ."

Fur prices soared out of sight about five years ago when natural furs enjoyed a vogue of high popularity in both women's and men's fashions.

Prime fox pelts, for example, sold for $75-$80 back then. They are now going for about $35. Prime coyote furs are down from around $100 to about $40. Prime muskrats bring $3-$3.50 today, and used to be worth twice that much or more.

Prime raccoon skins are still in good demand and go for about $25 each. Wild mink, however, are down to around $18, about one-third of their former value.

There is no market whatever for opossum hides which used to be worth about $8 each, Hadley said, and he no longer deals in either squirrel or rabbit skins which formerly were saleable. "You can't give them away now," he noted.

Despite the ups and downs, Hadley likes the fur business and hopes to stay in it, even though it's a 16-hours-a-day job seven days a week for four months. "I can make more money as a carpenter," he said, "but this is more fun."

pretty big chunk of the local population," Olmsted told the council. "We have some real concerns, and we're going to continue to press them until we get some satisfaction. The problem isn't going to go away. You'll be hearing more from us."

The only unanimous agreement reached all evening was on a motion to meet again on Jan. 31, and adjourn.

Breuninger Farm

unhappy combination of steep slopes and erodeable soil texture which lead to excessive soil erosion rates.

Mill Creek, River Raisin and the Saline River all have shown nutrient levels high enough to be damaging to water life.

The Saline River and Mill Creek have fecal coliform counts in excess of state standards. Fecal coliform counts are measures of the amount of untreated manure in water. Because of these high counts, full body contact of these waters is restricted by the Washtenaw County Health Department.

Improved water quality in the area will increase the water value for wildlife, recreation and urban uses. This is especially true of Mill Creek which enters the Huron River just upstream of Dexter-Huron and Delhi Mills Metroparks and the city water supply inlet for Ann Arbor.

The Breuninger waste pit is the largest thus far in the Dexter area.

A number of other farms have been using the same concept with a great deal of success. The Nixon farm on Daly Rd., the Guenther farm on Dexter-Townhall Rd., and Van Riper farm on Jerusalem Rd., have concrete waste pits. The Sullivan farm on Pitt Rd. has two manure waste pits, an open earthen pit as well as a below the ground concrete pit.

Participation in the Saline Valley Project is voluntary and with the available financial assistance, technical help and continual monitoring and guidance, the water quality of the area will become vastly improved.

Gasoline Storage Tank Bid OK'd by Manchester Board

At its regular meeting the Manchester Board of Education took action to award the construction project involving the purchase and installation of a gasoline storage tank to the R. W. Mercer Co. of Jackson at a cost of $12,000.

The tank which is to be installed to service the bus fleet will hold 10,000 gallons of fuel.

Presently the school district storage capacity is only 1,500 gallons. It is anticipated that by purchasing gasoline on a bulk bid basis the district will be able to save approximately 10¢ per gallon on the purchase price. The annual savings will be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Superintendent of schools Gene Thompson commented, "We expect to pay for the storage tank in approximately two years. After that any cost reduction on gasoline purchases will be clear savings to the school district. This is the type of investment we have been attempting to make for the past several years."

CINDY BRADBURY

ROBERT GERMAN

New Directors Named to Chelsea Hospital Board

Cindy Bradbury of Dexter and Robert German of North Lake have been elected to the Board of Trustees of Chelsea Community Hospital. James Peggs, M.D., has been re-elected to the Board of Trustees.

Cindy Bradbury is a teacher in the Chelsea School System, serves on the Board of Directors of the Ann Arbor Women's Bowling Association and edits its newsletter. Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury were chosen the District Outstanding Young Dairy Couple for the Michigan Milk Producers Association in 1982.

Robert German is president and a member of the Board of Directors of D & C Stores, Inc., with corporate offices and warehouse facilities located in Stockbridge. German has served on the Policy Committee and as treasurer for the Michigan Retailers Association and has served as the director of the Association of General Merchandise Chains in Washington, D.C.

James Peggs, M.D., is director of the Family Practice Center in Chelsea and is Professor of Family Medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School. Dr. Peggs has served as vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees of Chelsea Community Hospital since June.

Christmas Walk Termed Successful

If success were based only on the number of tickets sold and the amount of money raised, then the 1983 Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary Christmas Walk held Sunday was an undisputed success.

Early estimates show that approximately 300 tickets at $6 each were sold for the Yuletide event.

But what makes auxiliary members really happy is that so many people said they enjoyed the Christmas walk so much.

"Everyone said that each home was so unique," said Gloria Mitchell, chairperson of the auxiliary's ways and means committee. "Participants said they got a real sense of the family that lived in each home."

"It was very, very successful." The Christmas Walk, held from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m., featured the homes of eight Chelsea families. Each home was decorated in the individual holiday style of each family.

A newly organized "gift committee" of the auxiliary is looking into the possible uses of the funds raised by the event. Mitchell said that the group is considering the purchase a large piece of equipment for Chelsea Community Hospital, paying for it through fund raising events over the next three to four years.

Manchester Schools Set Up Downtown Display for Public

In honor of National Education Week the Manchester Community Schools once again took the schools to the main street of the Village of Manchester on Saturday, Nov. 19. The project which is in its second year is designed to create community awareness of the many different programs available to students in the school system.

Co-ordinated by Ms. Yvonne Henry, the effort is in its second year. Ms. Henry arranged for a model classroom to be set up in the store formerly occupied by the Clothes Line. Computers, text books, filmstrips and educational material were available for review by the public. All interested persons were invited to stop by for a chat with school district teachers and a free cup of coffee.

Recognition Night Ceremony Honors 4-H Members, Leaders

"Sharing our Traditions" was the theme for the annual 4-H Recognition Night ceremonies held Monday, Oct. 17 at Scarlett Intermediate school in Ann Arbor.

Select 4-H members were recognized for their outstanding participation in the 4-H projects through the 4-H Tel-Award Program and County Medals and for representing the youth of Washtenaw county on judging and quiz bowl teams in the areas of horse, livestock, and dairy.

Washtenaw county 4-H leaders were also honored for 1, 5, 10, 15, and 20 years of service to the program by the Award of the 4-H Clover. This year's recipients for 10 and above years include the following. For 10 years—Laurel Lichlyter of Willis, Jack Phillips of Ypsilanti, Kathy Sweet of Ann Arbor, and David Wolfgang of Chelsea; for 15 years—Donna Hughes of Ann Arbor; for 20 years Clinton Fisk of Manchester and Bill Lutz of Saline; and for 25 years of service, LouRene Ableson of Ypsilanti received recognition. Newly certified Challenge instructors Jon Luker and Thomas Gomez of Ann Arbor were welcomed as 4-H leaders and presented with Certificates of Recognition.

Each year, Recognition Night provides the opportunity to thank friends of 4-H for their enthusiastic support of the program. Those recognized as a "Friend of 4-H" included: Dunbar Food Locker of Dexter and Milan, Estech, Washtenaw County Farm Bureau, Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners, and the Washtenaw County 4-H Horse Leader's Association.

Always a highlight of the evening, the Don Johnson Memorial Scholarship was presented to Dee De Starling of Saline. Dee De is currently enrolled at Texas A&M University and is studying Agricultural Engineering.

The evening's entertainment was provided by 4-H Goal Getters, a county 4-H group specializing in many facets of the performing arts. They are co-ordinated by Kenneth and Karen Coe of Ypsilanti.

Washtenaw County 4-H Service Club and the Townline Workers 4-H Club provided the refreshments.

Farmers Urge Spending Freeze, Not Tax Reduction

While "freeze government spending" proponents and "freeze scheduled tax reductions" forces square off in Washington, D. C. to seek a solution to the federal deficit problem, farm families across the nation are concerned about their stake in the outcome of the battle.

According to Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau, a comprehensive tax package, H.R. 4170, currently under consideration contains amendments of special concern to farm families.

Recognition Night is a function of the Washtenaw County 4-H Council and is planned and facilitated by 4-H volunteers. The planning committee was made up of Shana Burke, Robert Poet, and Russell Fuller of Manchester, Judy Wardle of Ypsilanti, Mark Stapish of Chelsea, and Marge Lozier of Grass Lake. Laurie Heller of Chelsea served as Mistress of Ceremonies. The opening ceremony was led by Amy Wolfgang of Chelsea and Tricia Horning of Manchester. Planning committee members served as announcers and presenters along with team coaches, advisors, 4-H members, 4-H leaders and 4-H supporters.

COUNTY PROJECT MEDALS

Kenneth Baldus, Dexter, achievement and dairy; Kerri Bristle, Manchester, public speaking; Marty Heller, Chelsea, sheep; Tricia Horning, Manchester, achievement; Jeff O'Mara, Saline, agriculture; David Weidmayer, Ann Arbor, leadership.

County Project Medals recognize 12-14-year-old 4-H members who have shown outstanding work in various project areas. Up to four project medals may be awarded in each project area and a member may not receive more than two medals in one year. A member may not receive a medal in any one project area more than once.

4-H TEL-AWARDS

Kelly Bristle, Manchester, leadership and personal appearance/clothing; Shana Burke, Grass Lake, crafts and horse and pony; Jan Ennis, Whitmore Lake, achievement and rabbits; Laurie Heller, Chelsea, gardening and personal appearance/fashion; Jeff Horning, Manchester, agriculture and wood science; Lori Nixon, Dexter, beef and sheep; Peter Sutherland, Ann Arbor, veterinary science; Wendy Wolfgang, Chelsea, dairy and foods/nutrition.

The TEL-Award program recognizes older 4-H members in 35 national project areas and five state project areas. Four levels of participation are possible, beginning with county, then district, state, and national. To be eligible, members must be at least 14 and have completed at least three years in the project areas.

ANNOUNCERS & PRESENTERS

Lori Nixon and Diane Braun, Dexter, award of the 4-H clover; Judy Wardle, Ypsilanti, county project medals; Robert Poet, Manchester, challenge program;

Chris Cook, livestock judging; Donna Roehm, Clinton, citizenship/A.C.T.; Barb Wolfgang, Chelsea, citizenship/A.C.T.; Jane Sias and Diane Ottoman, Chelsea, dairy judging; Diane Horning, Manchester, dairy bowl; Janet Weidmayer, Ann Arbor, dairy bowl; Dolores Long, South Lyon, horse judging; Clinton Fisk, Manchester, horse bowl; Shana Burke, Grass Lake, Tel-Awards; Kevin Johnson, Don Johnson Memorial Scholarship; Anna Heath, Manchester, congratulations to '82 4-H graduates; Mark Stapish, Chelsea, conducted 4-H Council elections.

BOB AND BECKY BRUNTON, a husband and wife vocal duet team from Eaton Rapids, will present a concert of Christian music at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11 at Chelsea Free Methodist church. The concert will include songs written by many of today's contemporary composers as well as some of their own compositions. Bob Brunton is a former director of payroll for Michigan State University. Becky Brunton is a former music teacher at the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing. The couple resigned their positions in 1979 to devote all of their time to singing. They have released five albums on the Pinebrook label. Their latest is "Take Ten with Bob and Becky" and includes 10 of their compositions.

Two from Chelsea In Albion Choir

Members of the 65-student Albion College choir include two students from Chelsea. They are Margaret Lewis, daughter of George W. Lewis of 3801 Queen Oaks Dr., and Michael Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denham E. Smith of 133 Orchard St.
