VOTE IN DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS: Business was fairly brisk at the UAW Local 437 hall on S. Main St. last Saturday as Democrats indicated their preference for a party presidential nominee. Washtenaw county Democrats as a group heavily favored Walter Mondale, who received 2,834 votes to 1,510 for Gary Hart and 34 for the Rev. Jesse Jackson. The youngsters in the picture weren't voting, just watching.

Chelsea High Orchestra Rated Superior at District

Chelsea High Orchestra, directed by Carol Palms, received first division ratings from all four adjudicators at the MSBOA district 12 orchestra festival held at John Glenn High school in Westland Saturday, March 17.

Three judges heard the orchestra's concert performance. The fourth listened to the sightreading event that followed. The program consisted of the Allegro first movement from Borodin's Symphony No. 2, the intermezzo and jig movements from Holst's "St. Paul's Suite," and Daniel's "Cassation."

The orchestra was graded by the three concert judges in the areas of tone, intonation, rhythm, technique, interpretation, general spirit, selection and stage deportment. Of the 24 grades 21 were A's, with an A-plus in "interpretation."

Some of the judges' comments: on Borodin (Parker), "excellent changes of style throughout." On Holst, the string orchestra selection (Parker), "good tempo, spirit, style in the jig. I enjoyed your interpretation of the intermezzo." On Daniels (Reed), "good wind playing, good string fundamentals."

On the Chelsea school's music program (Bartlett): "There is some fine music being produced by this orchestra. It's wonderful that you have this tradition of orchestra in your school. I had the privilege of hearing your band at the Midwestern Conference and was thrilled with what I heard there; and to put an orchestra tradition alongside of that in a

Building of Addition To Methodist Home Will Begin in May

Construction is scheduled to start in May on the first phase of a $7.6 million expansion and remodeling project at the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home.

A contract has been awarded to Granger Project Management and Development Corp. of Lansing to build a 110-bed nursing home addition on vacant land west of the present main building, according to David Leech, chief development officer for United Methodist Homes, Inc., which operates the Chelsea home.

Work on the new building is expected to continue into the spring of 1985, when the second phase of the program—remodelling of existing facilities—is slated to begin.

When all is done, the home will be able to house 48 more nursing-home patients than it presently can care for, and will slightly increase its capacity as a home for the "aged" (elderly persons who are in good health and able to care for themselves).

Two floors of the present main building will be converted from nursing care to retirement home use. Some existing retirement home spaces will be renovated, a new boiler and laundry building will be erected, and some other existing space will be updated.

The home provides facilities for two general categories of persons: retirees who are in good health and able to take care of most of their personal needs, and school system is indeed a good comment on what a balanced attitude in instrumental music education should be."

On Friday evening, March 9, the Beach Middle School Orchestra participated in their district festival in Saline and received second division ratings from all four judges.

The next general membership meeting of the Chelsea Music Boosters is set for this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school band room. All parents and supporters are encouraged to attend.

Aeillo Suspended Without Pay, Calls The Move Unfair

Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo was suspended without further pay as of last Friday by order of village president Jack Merkel. Aeillo had been on paid leave since Jan. 6 when a probe was launched into his handling of traffic fine receipts.

The chief was charged on Feb. 10 with embezzlement of more than $50 in public funds, following an investigation by state police detectives and a special audit conducted by Icerman, Johnson & Hoffman of Ann Arbor.

Washtenaw county prosecutor William F. Delhey authorized the warrant, and Aeillo surrendered voluntarily. He was bound over to circuit court following a preliminary examination in district court. (See related story on this page.)

Merkel said he suspended Aeillo on the basis of a lengthy research letter prepared for him by the law firm of Keusch and Flintoft, village attorneys.

"Pursuant to my statutory authority as president of the village council, I have removed Robert Aeillo as chief of police and from any further duties as a member of the Chelsea police department because I deem it to be appropriate and in the public interest," Merkel said in a prepared statement.

Aeillo's reaction was to charge that Merkel's action in removing him was unfair.

"For the past 19 years as a police officer, I have worked under a judicial system based on the concept that you are innocent until proven guilty," Aeillo said. "Evidently if you are the mayor, you can make a judgment before a person has had his day in court."

Aeillo added that he has considerable vacation and sick leave time to use. "Since this matter started, I have experienced a recurrence of stomach ulcers," he said. "I believe that entitles me to claim sick leave."

In his first public statement since the investigation began, Aeillo said nothing about the details of the case other than to declare, "Eventually I will be found innocent."

He declined further comment on the advice of his attorney, so that his court case will not be prejudiced when it comes up for a scheduled June 11 trial before Circuit Judge William F. Ager, Jr.

"I do want to thank publicly all of those who have given me confidence and encouragement through letters, cards, phone calls and personal comments," Aeillo added. "Many of the people I don't even know, but I appreciate their expressions of sympathy and support."

Notified of Aeillo's statements, Merkel said, "During the course of being in business for many years, I have had to terminate many employees for one reason or another. None of them was happy about it, and I'm not surprised by his (Aeillo's) reaction. "This has been a very difficult matter, and I have agonized over it. However, I believe the proper course of action has been pursued. I felt it was my responsibility to follow through on a problem that arose during my term in office."

Suspending Aeillo was one of Merkel's last official acts as village president. His term ended last night when president-elect Jerry Satterthwaite was sworn in to take his place. Merkel did not seek re-election.

Defendant Acquitted On Slavery Charges

Michael J. Asam, 24, was acquitted last week by Ann Arbor federal district judge Charles W. Joiner on involuntary servitude (slavery) charges.

Asam was the fourth person to be tried in connection with the alleged holding of two farmhands as "slaves" on the Ike Kozminski farm in south Lima township. Previously, Ike Kozminski, his wife, Margarethe, and their son, John, had been found guilty, but their attorneys have asked Judge Joiner to overturn the jury verdicts, arguing they were contrary to the evidence.

Judge Joiner is expected to rule before April 11, the date set for sentencing the Kozminskis. If he rejects their plea, it is expected the cases will be appealed to a higher federal court.

Unlike the earlier trials, Asam's case was heard without a jury. Judge Joiner acquitted him after deliberating only 20 minutes following presentation of the evidence and lawyers' arguments.

Asam was employed for two years as a herdsman on the Kozminski's dairy farm and in that capacity had some supervisory responsibility over Robert Fulmer and Louis Molitoris, the two men allegedly held on the farm against their will.

Asam based his defense on the claim that he was only following orders in his treatment of the two.

In announcing and explaining his decision, Judge Joiner said he had heard no evidence to suggest that Asam "had any more knowledge than many other people" of the situation on the Kozminski farm, and that in any (Continued on page two)

Three Seek Re-election to School Board

Three members of the Chelsea Board of Education, whose terms expire in June, have indicated they will seek re-election.

Ann Feeney, presently completing eight years on the board, will seek re-election to a two-year term that was vacated when Dr. Daniel Snyder moved from the district.

Lloyd Grau, completing his first four-year term, will be seeking re-election to a four-year term.

Joseph Redding, who served one year by appointment to Dr. Snyder's vacated position, will seek a four-year term.

The balloting for the three school board positions will be held at the annual school (Continued on page two)

"I am confident that, working together, we can meet the need and help this splendid United Methodist agency serve—and serve well—into the next century," Bishop Ammons said.

Judge Sets Aeillo Trial For June 11

Police chief Robert Aeillo stood mute at his March 13 circuit arraignment on embezzlement charges, and Judge William F. Ager, Jr. set a trial for June 11.

By standing mute, Aeillo neither admitted nor denied the charge that he embezzled more than $50 from village traffic funds during calendar 1983. A special audit turned up an alleged discrepancy of $464.

When a defendant in a criminal case stands mute—literally says nothing—the judge enters a not guilty plea in the defendant's behalf and orders a trial to be held. That is what happened in Aeillo's case.

Aeillo voluntarily submitted to arrest on Feb. 10 following an investigation which began Jan. 8. He has been on leave with pay since Jan. 6 and is free without bond on his personal recognizance. He was bound over to circuit court following a Feb. 23 preliminary examination in district court.

AN "EATING OF THE GREENS": Third grade classes at North school celebrated St. Patrick's Day last Friday with an "Eating of the Greens" party. Every child was asked to bring something edible and green. They had celery, green peppers, pears, apples, green Jell-O, broccoli, pickles, olives, green Kool-Aid and green dip. The children, taught by Mrs. Klink and Mrs. Stein, dressed for the occasion in Irish costumes.

What Is The "Sudden-Infant-Death" Syndrome?

This is the occasion when a child, well cared for and robust, usually between the ages of three weeks and twelve months, is put to bed; a short time later the mother returns to the bedroom to find the child dead. There is no sign of struggle although the child may have changed position.

This type of death is often called "crib death." It is a particularly devastating experience for parents of the child. They suffer feelings of guilt which they shouldn't. If they have used normal care and precaution, there's absolutely no reason for them to blame themselves. In situations such as this, it is recommended that the parents consult their minister, doctor or psychiatrist.

Ongoing medical research has not yet been able to find any reason for this type of death; nor can they predict or prevent it. "Old wives tales" and much misinformation surrounds the sudden death of an infant under these otherwise normal circumstances.

Should this happen to someone you know, try to understand their own helplessness and the lack of knowledge now available.

State Given Poor Marks In Affirmative Action

State departments have done poorly on affirmative action programs during the most recent review period, according to a recent report by the Michigan Equal Employment and Business Opportunity Council (MEEBOC). Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths, chair of the council, said only four of the 24 departments or state agencies monitored received "good" or "satisfactory" and seven were rated "unsatisfactory."

Two groups—the Michigan Employment Security Board of Review and the department of State Police—were not rated as they had no opportunity to hire or promote during the period.

However, their past practices were also listed as unsatisfactory, according to the MEEBOC report.

No state department or agency received an outstanding mark in its affirmative action performance rating during the May 1, 1983 through Jan. 15, 1984 period.

Receiving a good rating were the Office of Service to the Aging within the Department of Management and Budget and the Department of Social Services. Satisfactory ratings went to the Department of Civil Rights and the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

The 11 entities which showed improvement but were still not satisfactory in the rating were the Departments of Agriculture, Civil Service, Commerce, Corrections, Education, Labor, Mental Health, Public Health, Transportation and Treasury and the Michigan Employment Security Commission within the Department of Labor.

Unsatisfactory ratings went to the attorney general, auditor general, the lottery bureau, and Departments of Licensing and Regulation, Management and Budget, Natural Resources and State.

The performance ratings were based on the number of opportunities for hires and/or promotions at level 16 and above (over $28,000 annual salary level) within the review period and current department representation of various minority groups.

Griffiths called the departmental affirmative action performance rating "unconscionable and said their records will be corrected. "The days for excuses are over," she declared.

New Money Pledged To Prenatal Care

Governor James Blanchard recently recommended the state spend 3.5 million over the next two years on a program intended to reduce infant mortality by offering prenatal and postpartum services to some of the 9,500 pregnant women a year, who otherwise cannot afford the services.

Total spending in 1984-85 and 1985-86 would reach $7.5 million if the governor succeeds in gaining $1.5 million in federal funds in the first year and $2.5 million the second.

Public Health Director Gloria Smith said the state-federal funding would enable the state in the first year to take care of about half the women unable to pay for prenatal care because they lack insurance or Medicaid coverage and to provide services to all of those women by 1985-86.

The program would provide medical, nutritional and other social services, laboratory services, education about the need for prenatal care, prescriptions and referral for other services.

A state-wide task force developed the plan following a study which identified lack of adequate prenatal care among impoverished pregnant women as a major contributor to infant mortality.

A national study in 1981 placed Michigan 36th among the states on mortality rates.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

After the session at the country store Saturday night, the fellers was full convinced that making a living in this country is limited only by ways folks can think of to make it. Zeke Grubb opened with a clipping where John Dwork recent got a degree in Frisbee throwing from Hampshire College in Massachusetts, and the bidding took off from there.

It ain't so much knowing that Dwork now is in whatever job market there is for sailing little plastic pot lids, Zeke allowed, as it is knowing that somebody at Hampshire College is making good money teaching him, as his diplomer reads, "flying disk entertainment and education." Natural, young people ruther study what they enjoy, Zeke went on, and if Dwork could of found a school that offered credit for sleeping he might of turned out to be a specialist in "horizontal positions of body rejuvenation" or some such.

Actual, Zeke said, he noted in the piece that Hampshire is an experimental college where 1,100 students do what they want and then try to convince the school that what they're doing is worth something. But it still holds that when full growned people call this education and convince the parents paying the bills that it is, you know they have come up with a lot of new ways of making a living.

Practical speaking, Bug Hookum said, he liked Estle Sanders' idee better. Sanders is 50 year old and he has reinvented the hoop in his machine shop in Chattanooga, Tenn. Not the plastic Hula Hoop, but the metal hoop him and his daddy rolled with a stick when they were boys. He calls his toy Click 'n Wheel, and he admits the design has been around fer a while. But Sanders figgers kids that git tired of jiggling handles and watching blinking lights on video games will enjoy gitting out in the sun and fresh air and rolling his hoop. Bug said he is probable right, and if he and his folks can make a living turning out new old hoops, more power to em, and maybe the Yo-Yo will be reinvented next.

puter expert that gathers daily temperatures from more than 200 cities and sells reports to study agencies that use them to study energy conservation in their buildings. His information goes to big outfits like J. C. Penny and General Mills that do business all over the country. One customer said the reports that cost $47 a year had saved the company $13 million, so it looks like everbody comes out ahead, Bug declared.

General speaking, the fellers would a heap ruther talk about work than work, but it was Clem Webster that said he was as much concerned about some of our hobbies as he was our work. He had saw where this feller in North Carolina says his hobby is nuclear weapons, and that he has come up with a better bomb. And, Clem went on, we got kids playing with home computers to break into Pentagon files and ICBM silos. What we got to worry about, Clem declared, is when these hobbies git to be work that goes to the highest bidder.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Stress Management Classes Offered By Chelsea Hospital

Everyone is under stress all the time. The stress may be relatively minor or the stress may be very serious. Whether minor or serious, stress has an effect on your body. According to the American Hospital Association, as many as 60% to 80% of the people who go to doctors may do so because of stress-related complaints. Some doctors believe that every illness is caused, at least in part, by stress.

As evidence grows that stress causes disease, ways to control stress are also being discovered. It is possible to reduce stress in your life and to learn to live a healthier, longer and happier life. Various health care professionals from Chelsea Community Hospital have teamed up and developed a series of classes to teach community members about stress and to suggest ways to prevent stress from overwhelming you.

A series of stress management classes will be held at Chelsea Community Hospital on five consecutive Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m., beginning April 3. There is a $25 fee for the five-week series. To register or for more information call 475-1311, ext. 282.

Reception Set Tomorrow For Senior Walking Group

The Chelsea senior citizens walking group will celebrate the rites of spring at their weekly walk. A reception in their honor will be held at the University of Michigan Family Practice Center tomorrow.

The walking group, which was formed last fall, has been meeting faithfully each week to share walking time. The seniors originally set a goal of walking 100 miles. A large wall graph was created, and each week about two miles are added behind each walker's name at the completion of the walk.

"When we talked about forming a walking group last fall," says Eunice White, one of the weekly walkers, "I worried that the cold weather would curtail our activities."

However, she added, "That has not been the case at all because we have been walking through the hallways of North school. It has been a wonderful way to exercise and socialize during the cold months."

As soon as the weather permits, the walkers hope to be able to take advantage of some of the trails in the area and schedule their walks outdoors.

All Chelsea seniors are invited and encouraged to attend tomorrow's special walk and party. The group will meet in the front lobby of Chelsea Community Hospital at 2 p.m. The next 45 minutes will be spent walking the basement hallways of the hospital. The walk will terminate at the Family Practice Center with relaxation and refreshments.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

If I were one of the winners in last Monday's village election, I would have to be wondering what kind of a mandate I had, or if indeed I had any mandate at all.

When fewer than 20 percent of the eligibles turn out to vote, and your share of the ballots amounts to about 10 percent of the electorate, it's not easy to figure out exactly whom you represent and what course of action you are expected to pursue in carrying out your responsibilities as an elected government official.

It would be easy to conclude that most people don't care and, therefore, you can do as you please without concern for criticism. That is a deceptively simple suggestion and is, I think, wrong as well. People do care, but for some reason they don't express their caring by going to the polls.

That is true not only in Chelsea but also in communities of all sizes the country over. For some reason which I don't begin to understand, few people bother to vote in separately conducted municipal elections. When a local election is piggy-backed onto a federal or state poll, it's a different story. The broader-scale contests bring people out, and most of them mark the local ballots while they are in the booth. Thus, for example, you get respectable totals of voters in county government elections.

Part of the reason, undoubtedly, is the appeal to partisanship. Most of us identify at least to some extent with one or the other of the major parties. We may call ourselves independents, but over time we tend to vote for more Republicans than Democrats, or vice versa, depending on our personal philosophy ("conservative" or "liberal").

Whether or not partisan labels are appropriate in local government, especially in small towns, is a question that has been argued for a long time, and as far as I'm concerned the jury is still out. In most cities—Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti are examples—candidates run as Republicans or Democrats (or something else). Appeals to party loyalty unquestionably get more people out to vote. The other side of the coin is that partisanship tends to polarize the electees once they are in office.

A system of purely local "parties" has been tested here in Chelsea and in many other places. In most instances it has been abandoned, as it was several years ago in Chelsea after one party dropped out of the picture and the other fractured itself with internal disagreements.

Although I wasn't around at the time, I suspect the problem was that the two parties never clearly defined any differences except for personalities, and then the personalities clashed.

Adherence to a "party line" is not easy. It invariably requires that you accept some party positions that you disagree with personally. That is why the percentage of people who declare that they are "independent" has increased over the years. As individuals with our own ideas and assumed ability to think for ourselves, we don't like to swallow "official" positions on specific issues that affect us personally.

Should Chelsea go back to a partisan system of politics? My tentative answer is yes, because I believe it might generate some interest among the 80-some percent of the voters who weren't attracted to get involved in the present local political process.

I suggest it should be Republicans and Democrats, recognizing as I write those words that a Democrat right now doesn't have a ghost of a chance to win a local election contest.

Returning to the old pattern of artificial local parties would be an exercise in futility. It didn't work before, so why go through it again?

The other suggestion I have, for what it's worth, is that campaigning for local office should cease to be a no-no. Every candidate I talked to before last week's election insisted that he wasn't conducting any kind of a campaign. That was helpful in a way because it made my job of covering the pre-election story easy.

Looking back, I have decided that it was too easy. All I had to do was call every contested candidate on the telephone, ask a few questions, write down the answers, and turn them in to be printed.

I'm not in favor of plastering yard signs and billboards and posters all over town, but do think there is value in having candidates solicit speaking appearances before local service clubs and organizations to make their views known and, more important, to answer questions that a news reporter might not think to ask.

I have an uncomfortable feeling that, as the only source of information on the candidates, I had more to do with the outcome of the election than I should have. People who run for office should get out front and speak for themselves.

Regardless of how they happened to be elected, village government officials face a bunch of problems and challenges over the next two years. That will be the subject of next week's View from the Clock Tower.

CHAIR CANCER CRUSADE: Shari Roberts, American Cancer Society's annual crusade in Chelsea, which will begin April 1.

Cancer Crusade Will Begin on April 1

The American Cancer Society will begin its annual door-to-door crusade on April 1, Chelsea co-chairpersons Dewey Ketter and Shari Roberts announce.

A daffodil sale at the Chelsea branch of Great Lakes Federal Savings on S. Main St. March 29-31 will kick off the campaign.

Goals of the drive are to reach every home in the village with cancer awareness literature; and to solicit funds. A training session for neighborhood captains will be held next week. They in turn will ask others to do the door-to-door canvassing.

"The door-knockers are the real backbone of the drive," Ketter and Roberts said. "The success we have will be the result of their time, effort and concern."

Included in the Cancer Awareness Kit to be distributed during the crusade will be a coupon redeemable at co-operating Radio Shack stores for a free computerized quiz test designed to help assess personal risks of getting cancer.

Persons who take the test will receive a confidential print-out which will suggest their potential for cancer and ways to lower their risk.

More than three million Americans with a history of cancer are alive today because of early detection and modern medical methods of treatment.

Funds collected during the crusade will be used to support and expand programs in education, service and rehabilitation sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Diabetic Education Classes Offered at Chelsea Hospital

Chelsea Community Hospital and the Department of Nursing were awarded a grant from the Michigan Department of Public Health to develop a comprehensive Diabetic Education Program for its patients and community.

A person who has Diabetes Mellitus is unable to turn certain foods into the heat and energy necessary for normal body function. His body does not have enough active insulin—a body chemical which comes from an organ called the pancreas—to properly use digested food sugars after they have entered the blood stream. Because of this insulin problem, extra sugar collects in his blood and some of this sugar may overflow into his urine. Too much sugar in the blood and urine are signs of diabetes. Diabetes is usually treated by medication and diet. Regular exercise is also an important factor in treatment.

The unique approach of Chelsea Community Hospital's program is the co-ordinated educational efforts implemented, not only in the hospital setting, but also in community physician practices. Patients in the hospital will receive a personalized education plan designed by a team of professionals including nurses, physicians, social workers, pharmacists, occupational therapists, the community nutritionist, and the dietician. Jean DuRussel-Weston, nurse coordinator of the program emphasizes the community focus, as well. "We realize that many people with diabetes will not benefit from education offered to hospital patients only. That is why our program will try to reach residents where they live in their own community."

Classes will be held in association with private physician practices as well as at Chelsea Community Hospital. Diabetic education materials and information about consultations with teaching staff are also available through private physician practices and Chelsea Community Hospital.

The first class series for the public is scheduled on four Thursday evenings from April 5-26 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Chelsea Community Hospital. The purpose of these classes is to provide knowledge, skills and behaviors necessary for people with diabetes to control their disease and its side effects. Interested family members and friends, are also encouraged to attend.

Program content includes: Anatomy and physiology of the diabetic state; control of diabetes—diet, exercise, and medication; personal hygiene—foot care and other complications; emotional aspects of diabetes and coping skills; and health resources.

For further information and registration, call 475-1311, ext. 354.

150th

June 30 to July 4, 1984

Ray Zor Burial Set for March 31

Although many men in the area have already begun growing their beards, mustaches, sideburns and goatees in anticipation of the Sesquicentennial, the official starting time for growth of facial hair will be Saturday, March 31, when Mr. Ray Zor will be buried with due pomp and circumstance at the McKune Memorial Library.

The funeral procession will begin at 2 p.m. at the municipal parking lot, and end at the library, where there will be an appropriate eulogy with Charlie Cameron officiating. John Keusch will then draw the winning tickets for the lottery. John Mitchell of Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home will be in charge of the burial of the Ray Zor proceedings. Mr. Ray Zor will be on display at Merkel's Home Furnishings from March 19 at noon until March 31.

An executive order issued March 31, 1840, by President Martin Van Buren established a 10-hour day for federal employees on public works without reduction in pay, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Coach Waller Predicts Another Fine Year For Softball Team

A high school coach who lost seven of nine starters through graduation from an excellent team last year might be expected to hedge a bit on prospects for the upcoming season.

Not Charlie Waller, coach of Chelsea's perennially strong girls softball team, who says flatly, "We're going to be very good again this year. Everybody who plays us will see us as the most important team on their schedule to beat. And I think they will be right."

Waller is speaking from a background of five straight Southeastern Conference softball championships won by Chelsea, a state Class B title in 1982, and a team that got into the final eight last year before losing a heart-breaker in the regional finals.

"We have an outstanding tradition established in girls softball here at Chelsea," Waller said, "and I don't see any reason why it shouldn't carry on this spring. We have a fine group of athletes. They are talented and enthusiastic, and I'm confident they will do very well."

Waller's confidence is based in large part on the fact that he expects to have two of Michigan's best high school pitchers—senior Margie Rawson and junior Beth Unterbrink—hurling for his Bulldogs.

"They both have the ability to be outstanding," Waller said.

County Board Seeks Applicants for Planning Commission Vacancy

Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners will, on April 4, make one appointment to the Metropolitan Planning Commission for a term expiring Dec. 31, 1986, left vacant by the death of Floyd Taylor.

One-page resumes should be addressed to the attention of Carol Hampton, Controller/Administrator's Office, County Administration Building, P.O. Box 8645, Ann Arbor 48107.

Recreation Wrestlers Do Well in Two Meets

In the third year of the Chelsea Recreation Wrestling Club, more than 60 boys and girls are competing. They have attended two tournaments and earned 12 medals.

On March 10 at Napoleon there were four medal winners. In the eight-and-under age group Christina Gibson took a second place. In the 11-12 group Matt Herter was second while Patrick Taylor and Alan Hanna each placed third.

Others participating at Napoleon were Gerrick Baize, Chris Kargel, Eric Hanna, Brant Synder and Paul Taylor. Leslie was the site of a tourna-

"Pitching is about 80 percent of the game, and those two have been throwing extremely well in practice."

"And we have a couple of sophomore pitchers—JoAnne Tobin and Kelly Hawker—who are developing fast. It's no accident that we come up with outstanding pitchers year after year. We work at it. The girls have each been throwing about 300 practice pitches a day since January. They are good athletes, and they work hard to improve."

Another bright spot is senior catcher Joyce Robards, an all-stater last year. Waller describes her as excellent on defense, an improved hitter and an outstanding team leader. "Joyce can be great this year," Waller said.

Besides Rawson and Robards, the only other returning senior is utility player and designated hitter Karen Wilson who "will play wherever we need her and do a good job," according to Waller.

"Our senior group is small in numbers, but they are fine players with the ability to provide leadership on and off the field," Waller said.

No coach is completely free of concerns, and Waller admits he faces a problem in rebuilding an infield whose four starters—three of them all-leaguers—graduated last year.

"We have the talent," he said. "It's a matter of putting it together. What really helps is that we have a great group of girls coming up from last year's junior varsity team that lost only two games. We need some help in the outfield, too, and I'm sure we will find it."

Waller mentioned Ann Weber, Shandy Heard, Chris Matloff and Lori Anderson as players who definitely will help, and added that Tobin and Hawker will probably play somewhere in the field when they aren't pitching.

Summing up, Waller said: "I think our pitching will be at least as good as it was last year, maybe better. I think we will hit ment on March 17 where the wrestlers earned eight medals. There were three first-place winners in the eight-and-under group, Bryndon Skelton, Mark Eder and Scott Koscielniak. Vince Stahl took a third and Ronnie Carter a fourth. In the 9-10 age group Colby Skelton earned a second. Eric Hanna placed fourth and Mike Eder was third in the 11-12 group.

Others participating were Adam Skyles, Lee Skyles, Paul Taylor, Patrick Taylor, Phillip Castillo, Jason Adams, Jeremy Wolf, Alan Hanna, Jeff Steele, David Steele and Doug Steele.

better and score more runs. We might not be quite as sharp on defense, at least at the start of the season."

All 31 members of the softball squad will make the spring training trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn., April 7-13. The season will get underway right after their return.

The team is working out indoors in the high school gym and may or may not get a chance to practice outside before leaving for Tennessee. Not being able to get outside, because of the cold and wet, doesn't bother Waller at this point.

"We have at least two more weeks of indoor work to do—conditioning and refining skills—before we go outdoors," Waller said. "This is the hard part of the practice season for the players, but it's the most important part. It pays off later on."

Boys Track Coach Looking For Sprint, Hurdle Strength

First-year track coach Bill Wehrwein has 25 boys on his spring squad and is hoping a few more, especially sprinters and hurdlers, will yet come out to bolster Bulldog hopes for a good season.

"Right now it looks like we will be fairly strong in the long and middle distances, the pole vault and the relays, including the two-mile relay which is a new event this year," Wehrwein said, "but we're thin in the hurdles, sprints and other field events."

"I'd like to find a few more boys who could give us some depth in those spots, but it's getting pretty late in the practice season."

Chelsea's boys track team finished third in the Southeastern Conference last year, behind Lincoln and Saline. Realistically, it will be pushed to duplicate that achievement this spring.

Graduated are ace distance runner Mark Brosnan and premiere pole vaulter Eric Buckberry, and performers at their level of talent don't come along every year.

"We don't have a Mark Brosnan on our squad this year," Wehrwein said, "but Allen Cole and Eric Green head up a very good group of long-distance runners. Tim Bowdish, Scott Cooper and Curtis Heard will do well in the middle distances."

"Dan Fenton and Ed Brosnan give us strength and some depth in the pole vault, and we have Gar DeYoe back in the shot put and discus. We need more depth in the latter two events."

"Scott Miller is our only returning hurdler as of right now, but I hope we may get back another boy who has excellent potential. All I can tell you about the sprints and long jump is that I'm looking and hoping for more boys to try out."

Wehrwein is enthused about Chelsea's prospects for the new two-mile relay, in which four runners each cover half a mile. "I think we can put together a strong team," he said, "and I also believe we will have a good mile relay team (four boys each running 440 yards)."

It should be noted that some high school track meets again this year will be run under the traditional system of yards and miles and some under the metric system, depending on the age of the track. Chelsea's new track, for example, will be marked in meters.

It's a problem for runners who must get used to covering two different distances which vary enough to be important. A 100-meter dash is longer than a 100-yard dash; a 1,500-meter "metric mile" is shorter than the 1,760-yard regular mile. Running strategy varies according to distance.

Right now as a matter of fact, Chelsea's new track isn't marked for either set of distances, and that has Wehrwein a bit concerned. "We're practicing on it," he said, "but we are limited in what we can do. Without lane markings, it's difficult to simulate competitive conditions, especially in the sprints and hurdles."

The new track was put in last summer as part of a program to rebuild Niehaus field. The old track was so cracked and pitted with holes that it could not be run on safely, and former coach Pat Clarke refused to let his squad even practice on it. All track meets—both boys and girls—were held away from home.

A new surface of rubber particles laid down over two layers of asphalt is in place, but some finishing work remains to be done. A final coating of polyurethane plastic has to be put down, to bind the rubber granules together and provide a smoother surface. Until that is done, the eight-lane markings can't be painted.

"The contractors say they need five days of guaranteed dry weather to finish the job," Wehrwein noted, "and a stretch of five rainless days doesn't happen very often around here at this time of year. We'll just have to wait and hope."

Wehrwein, a physical education teacher in Chelsea's elementary schools, is a former world record-holder in the 600-yard run and was NCAA champion at that distance while running at Michigan State University in 1969.

He took over as boys varsity track coach after Clarke resigned the position to ease his year-around coaching load. Wehrwein has been a teacher in the Chelsea system since 1971.

Largest Group of Girls Ever Comes Out for Track Team

Despite inclement weather, nearly 50 girls turned out for the start of track practice Feb. 27. Among that number, the Bulldogs largest girls track team ever, are 16 letter winners and 16 freshmen, coach Bill Bainton said.

Top returnees are seniors Carol Warren in the long sprints and high jump, Wendy Wolfgang in the middle distances, and Sue Young in the sprints and long jump. Each is a three-year letter winner, and all ran in the state meet last spring. They have assumed a major leadership role on a very young team which has three other seniors and two juniors.

The other seniors are throwers Kay Bauer and Shannon Morseau and exchange student Elizabeth Lindstrom, a hurdler. The juniors, both of whom have run well in early practices, are two-year letter winner Mary Ann Richardson, and Rachel Schmel who is returning after not running last year.

Other runners who have started out well are sophomores Amy Wolfgang, Laura Damm, Debby Tift, Kim Collins and Stephanie Roberts, and freshmen Melanie Flanagan, Maria Feldman and Robin Mock.

The cold weather hasn't yet had a major effect on the team's practices. They have been able to

Modern Mothers Club Donates $700 to Waterloo Nature Center

The Waterloo Nature Center has received a $700 gift from the Modern Mothers Child Study Club of Chelsea, money raised from an auction held last November and from the sale of cookbooks.

Part of the money will be used for general operating funds. The rest will be used to buy field guides, compasses for wilderness survival classes, food for bird feeders and beehives, and redesigning the "Birds of the Season" game board.

Also to be bought is a pair of wading boots so that staff members will no longer get cold, wet feet while capturing specimens in icy ponds for use in the early spring interpretive program.

Modern Mothers have contributed to the center in the past. Previous donations have been used to construct a predator-prey exhibit, erect benches along the hiking trails and purchase educational aids.

Nancy Gooding, 27, of Ypsilanti is the new director of the Nature Center, having replaced Carol Strahler in January. She earned a bachelor of science degree in natural resources from the University of Michigan and a master's in environmental geography from Eastern Michigan.

Ms. Gooding has worked at the U. of M. Exhibit Museum as a guide and lecturer and has taught children's classes in Ann Arbor on Indians and wildlife. Before joining the Waterloo Nature Center, she was a geologist at Bechtel Corp.

The center, formerly operated by the Department of Natural Resources as a facility in the Waterloo Recreation Area, is presently supported entirely by donations and entrance fees. The DNR withdrew its support because of funding problems.

Nancy Gooding will be introduced to the community at a wine and cheese social from 5:30 to 7 p.m. tomorrow in dining rooms A and B of Chelsea Community Hospital.

During the social, programs of the center will be explained and co-operative fund-raising opportunities with community organizations will be discussed.

Whitlock To Talk at TU Meet

The Ann Arbor chapter of Trout Unlimited (TU) announces that Dave Whitlock—famous fisherman, creative fly-tier, author, wildlife artist and creator of the Whitlock-Vibert trout egg incubator box—will headline the chapter's annual spring banquet.

The event is open to the public as well as to all members of TU. The evening will also feature a raffle of fishing equipment including rods and a variety of items from area stores, residents and other establishments. There will be an auction of wildlife prints and an Orvis graphite fly rod.

Whitlock has prepared a slide-talk about his 1983 Canadian experience fishing for giant brook trout and northern pike. This all-new show will offer Michigan outdoorsmen a chance to see what Canada has to offer and how Whitlock found best to take advantage of it.

The banquet will be on Friday, March 23, at the Ann Arbor Inn. The evening will start at 6:30 p.m. with cocktails followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. Reservations are $20 per person and must be received by Tuesday, March 20. Checks should be sent to:

Trout Unlimited
3098 Lakeview Dr.
Ann Arbor, MI 48103

Recreational Swimming Available

There WILL be lap swimming and recreational swimming tonight at the Charles Cameron Pool. There will also be lap and rec swimming Friday and Saturday at the regular hours.

This reverses a previous cancellation of these popular public swims because Coach Larry Reed has found qualified pool supervisors who have agreed to take over at these times.

Reed and all other members of the Chelsea aquatics supervisory staff are scheduled to attend a national aquatics meeting in Cleveland for three days beginning tomorrow.

Regular swimmers were disappointed by the announcement that the pool would be closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday. For many of them swimming is part of a faithful physical fitness regimen. After numerous phone calls over the past weekend, Coach Reed finally reached qualified supervisors who could and would take charge.

Fishermen Can Expect Good Steelhead Season

Michigan anglers can expect one of the most productive steelhead seasons in nearly a decade, reports the Automobile Club of Michigan.

More than 1.5 million steelhead averaging 7 to 8 pounds are expected to return to the 40 streams listed on the Auto Club's 1984 guide.

Sportsmen should prepare for peak runs in early to mid-April in Southeast Michigan and mid-April to mid-May in the Upper Peninsula.

"There are indications that this could be the best steelhead season since 1975," said James Drury, Auto Club's Travel Operations manager. "Last fall when salmon were being taken from weirs, excellent numbers of steelhead were counted, a very good omen for this spring."

In addition, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) planted 655,000 yearlings and 896,000 fall fingerlings in 1982, a 41 percent increase over 1981.

Best West Michigan steelheading should be on the St. Joseph River up to Buchanan and in the Grand River system as far as Lansing's Moore's Park Dam. Other good steelhead producers in West Michigan will be the Muskegon and Manistee rivers.

East Michigan top spots will include the East Branch of the Au Gres River near Au Gres and the Au Sable near Oscoda.

In Southeast Michigan, the best steelhead fishing should be on the St. Clair River for trollers and on the Huron River for shore and wading fishermen.

Upper Peninsula anglers should find good action on the Carp River along Lake Huron, the Chocoyay and Two-Hearted rivers along Lake Superior and on the Big Cedar and Black rivers along Lake Michigan.

The Auto Club advises steelheaders to check specific rules for individual rivers in the DNR's Michigan Fishing Guide.

Some rivers are open yearlong while others open April 1 or April 28, the start of the general trout season. The guide is free to anglers purchasing license passbooks.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

(Note: this is the second of two columns on making your own outdoor equipment. The first was printed last week.)

For some kinds of "do it yourself" home manufacture of outdoor sports equipment and supplies, it's a good idea to dip a foot in the water first before taking the plunge and diving in.

Examples are tying flies for fishing and hand-loading rifle and/or shotgun ammunition for shooting and target practice. Both require a substantial initial investment in tools and materials. That investment will pay for itself many times over—provided you use what you bought. If you lose interest and let the stuff sit around gathering dust, you will be considerably poorer in the pocket-book. The resale value is not enough to recover the original cost.

If you have a friend who is into fly-tying or reloading, chances are he will help you get started by giving instruction while letting you learn with his equipment. By all means offer to pay for the materials you use in the learning process. They didn't come free.

Other ways to get into fly tying and reloading are through sportsman's clubs and instructional classes. Joining a club may be the better way to go. In a large club you will almost certainly find someone who is skilled in doing what you want to learn to do, and who will be willing to help. Again, offer to pay your way.

A word of warning about hand-loading ammunition. If you are an absent-minded sort of person who has trouble concentrating on the job at hand, this activity is not for you. A double-dose of powder dumped into a rifle cartridge case or a shotgun hull can produce some dramatic—and traumatic—consequences. It's never happened to me, but I'm told that having a gun blow up in your face is a mighty unpleasant experience which you may not live to tell about.

I don't recommend building your own firearms unless you have considerable experience in gunsmithing. Making a gun is not a job for amateurs who don't know exactly what they are doing. The margin for error is small.

An exception to that rule is building a black-powder muzzle-loading rifle or shotgun from a kit. I haven't done it myself but have seen a couple of guns assembled and finished by persons who have no more "handy" skills than I possess. They were handsome, and they shot well in terms of the accuracy obtainable with black powder.

(Don't believe those old pioneer tales about long-barreled rifles that would invariably hit the eye of a squirrel at 100 yards. Davy Crockett on his best day with his Kentucky rifle wouldn't stand a chance in competition with modern tack-drivers. Almost any firearm you pick off the shelf today will shoot closer than you can hold it. They are marvels of technology, instances of tools better than the abilities of those who use them.)

A couple of years ago I put together a fly fishing rod. It was an instructive experience. I don't have a lot of patience, and I'm not especially handy with tools. The first lesson I learned was that I had to curb my impatience and take things slow and easy, one step at a time. I had to evaluate each successive task, decide exactly how I was going to accomplish it, practice the techniques and tools, and then do it, very carefully. Something that I figured ought to take maybe 15 minutes usually turned out to require several hours.

It was frustrating, but the results were rewarding. The rod is an addition to my fishing tackle that I'm pleased to use and proud to show to fellow anglers. It performs well and looks better than most off-the-shelf rods. Best of all, I can boast that I made it myself and customized it to suit my ideas of how a fly rod should look and, more important, how it should work.

I needed a rod that a strong-armed, stiff-elbowed left-hander could cast, and I made one. Every time I lay out 60 feet of line, I thank myself for having taken the time and trouble to build it after having gone through half a dozen factory-made rods that didn't perform right for me.

Similarly, I tried out a lot of store-bought shotguns and never found one that put the pattern where I thought I was pointing it. In desperation I put together specifications for a gun that I figured would fit me and assembled it with the help of a couple of gunsmiths. It accommodated my long arms, skinny neck and near-sighted eyes, and didn't penalize me for being left-handed. It cost me a bundle at the time—all of $200—but that shotgun served me well for more than 30 years.

The gun brought several hundred pieces of game to bag and broke heaven knows how many thousands of clay targets. Had I not "made" that shotgun, I probably would have quit shooting. It's no fun to go out there and not hit anything.

I figure that if I can do it—make some of my own outdoor equipment and supplies—almost anybody can. I'm not a skilled craftsman by any means. I know how to read and follow directions and diagrams, and I've learned how to take my time and do things right, one slow step at a time. That really is about all you need to make your own outdoor equipment.

Huron Creek Party Store Robbed and Also Sold

Lottery tickets, beer and magazines worth an estimated total of $750 were stolen from the Huron Creek Party Store, 6100 Dexter-Pinckney Rd., sometime between 7 p.m. last Friday night and 8 o'clock Saturday morning. Ironically, the break-in and theft occurred just two days before store owner Milo Vogel of Chelsea sold the business to Ron and Ellen Cook of North Lake. The transfer became effective on Monday.

Vogel also owns Vogel's Party Store on M-52 north of Chelsea and said he intends to continue operating it.

The break-in at the Huron Creek store was made through a back door. Stolen were $245 worth of state lottery tickets, several cases of beer, and magazines.

At an average value of $14 per case of beer and $2.50-$4 per copy for magazines, it doesn't take long to carry out and load up $500 worth, Vogel noted.

Sheriff's officers are investigating the theft.

Vogel said he decided to sell the Huron Creek store, even though it is and has been a successful enterprise, "because operating both places just got to be too much for us."

He and his son, Jeff, and their wives have been running both establishments without additional help. Both are open long hours seven days a week. "We were putting in 96-hour work weeks and decided it wasn't worth it," Vogel said.

He added that the Chelsea store has been "very successful" since he opened it last year. "Now that we can concentrate on just one place, we expect to do an even better job with it," Vogel said.

Faith In Action Raises $1,800 at Annual Dinner

Despite threatening weather the third annual Faith In Action, Inc. fund-raising dinner on March 12 was a success. Eighty-eight guests enjoyed a prime rib dinner provided by and at the Chelsea Community Hospital, and the Gaslighters Band added an air of festivity with their music.

Proceeds of $1,800 represented support from the Chelsea, Manchester, Pinckney, Gregory, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti areas. Winners of a door-prize drawing received a weekend for two at Weber's, Ann Arbor; a $25 gift certificate at Winans Jewelry, Chelsea; dinner for two at the Wolverine and Woodshed Restaurants, Chelsea, and $10 from Archway Cookies.

Faith In Action is a non-profit community organization which has been operating since Feb. 14, 1983. It is the result of a combined effort of the Chelsea area churches to provide more effective services to people in need.

Services are offered by phone or walk-in and include food, clothing and financial assistance, transportation, information and referral, advocacy, free health clinic and family support through the Parent To Parent Program and Parents Anonymous Group. Those services are available to residents of Chelsea, Dexter and Manchester.

Faith In Action has an active and supportive relationship with the Chelsea Community Hospital and U. of M. Family Practice Center, and has provided services to patients and clients who do not necessarily reside in the tri-village service area.

Support to Faith In Action, Inc. has come in many forms. The five-member board and staff are volunteers from the community, who also provide legal and accounting services. Food and clothing are donated by area churches and individuals, or are purchased through local donations. Support has also been received from area churches, local agencies and organizations, Chelsea Civic Foundation, Chelsea United Way, and other private foundations and individuals.

The Faith In Action House is located on the Chelsea Community Hospital campus across from the Outpatient Surgery Center. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Speakers are available upon request.

Fire Department Receives Approval To Solicit Funds

The fire department has been given a go-ahead to solicit funds for purchase of fire prevention printed materials to be used in Chelsea schools.

Fire chief Paul Hankerd said the amount of money involved is fairly small, amounting to about $1 per child through the fifth grade, and promised that the solicitation will cease as soon as the needed sum is raised.

The village council approved unanimously.

Between the fourth quarters of 1982 and 1983, median wage or salary earnings for married-couple families ($537 a week) continued to be about twice as high as those for families maintained by women ($278) and 25 percent greater than those for families maintained by men ($436), according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
 I wish to express my frustration and disappointment in reading about the landfill rate increases soon to go in effect. I feel the rates are so exorbitant that the only thing generated by it will be an increase of trash bags, old tires, etc., being tossed in ditches along sides of back country roads.

$7 for a pickup load is "greed" and then to add $2 extra for this and $3 for that makes a person feel like going to the dump is somewhat like going to a market, where the overall is scrutinized, tallied up and we are presented with a computer printout, but in this case at the entrance to the landfill. How ridiculous!

And Dexter township residents who already paid $25 for an annual permit to use the landfill and which expires 6-30-84, don't even receive the benefit for one full year, but only nine months due to the April 1st effective date. Do you think the township will refund three months of "non-use" on the current permit?

 I wonder how many residents of Dexter township have permits that are entitled to a refund of $6.25, which should not be requested or petitioned but just granted outright.

G. J. Gallas.

Storm Cuts off Power In Area West of Village

About 500 Consumers Power Co. customers west of Chelsea, almost all of them residential, had their electricity knocked out of service at about midnight last Thursday when a violent thunderstorm moved through the area.
 The outage was centered close to the intersection of Cavanaugh Lake and Pierce Rds., a Consumers spokesman said, and apparently was caused by a lightning bolt hitting a main transmission line.
 Power was restored before noon on Friday, Bob Holliday of Consumers' public information office in Jackson said.
 "It wasn't a major problem from the standpoint of damage to key equipment, so our crews were able to come in and restore service quickly," Holliday said. "There were no lines down or transformers blown out. It was a surge of overload that tripped circuit-breaking fuses."
 The storm hit hardest in Jackson, where 4,400 Consumers customers were affected. The worst of it passed north of Chelsea and then apparently skipped back south to bring heavy rain and temporary flooding on some roads in the Dexter area and on toward Ann Arbor.
 Chelsea experienced some gusty winds and a moderate amount of rain, but no major damage was reported in the village.

It's "plausible" the Arctic may have been the birthplace of life, says National Wildlife magazine. New fossil evidence indicating a high abundance of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere 50 to 100 million years ago means the region was probably much warmer there than today. The Arctic's long summer daylight hours and the area's large land mass would also have made the Arctic suitable to evolve horses, redwoods, even alligators.
