

Merkel Recalls His Years As President

Jack Merkel served two years as Chelsea village president in 1982-84. He unquestionably could have been re-elected but decided not to run for a second term.

When Merkel left office last March, he promised Standard reporter Bill Mullendore that he would sit down someday and talk on the record about his experiences "after I've had a chance to think about them for awhile."

The interview took place last week, and what follows is the question-and-answer context.

Q. Jack, when you announced last winter that you wouldn't seek re-election, you cited business and family reasons. Did you know at the time that the problem in the police department was coming up?

A. When I made my announcement, my reasons were sincere. I wanted to devote more time to my business and my family. I had made that decision in my own mind several months before, and was just waiting for the right time to announce it. Yes, the parking fine money accounting problem was starting to develop. I had some very disturbing information and decided I had to do something about it.

Q. What do you mean when you say that you "had to do something"?

A. There was enough evidence to convince me there was something wrong with the way the fines were being processed and accounted for. I don't see how I could have sat on the information and tried to keep it a secret. You or somebody else would have found out about it, and I would have been rightly criticized for trying to hide the problem. I believe I did the only proper thing I could do, which was to ask for an impartial investigation by an outside agency. Right or wrong, that's what I did.

Q. How do you feel about the way the investigation came out?

A. First, let me say that I personally like Bob Aiello. I respect him as a man and admire his courage and devotion as a police officer. The only problem I ever had with him is that he wasn't very "coachable." He didn't accept suggestions that I felt he should have at least considered. Without going over all the details, I'm satisfied with the outcome. The final settlement was the best that could have been arranged under the circumstances, and I support it.

Q. The letter you delivered to Aiello last March wasn't clearly worded. Did you intend to suspend him or fire him?

A. I admit the letter was ambiguous. I didn't draft it, and should have read it more carefully before I signed it. My intent was to terminate him, and that should have been definitely stated.

Q. Why did you want to fire him?

A. I felt then, and still do, that we had enough information to justify terminating his service in the Chelsea police department, and that it was really the only thing we could do. Why don't we go on to something else? It's an unhappy memory, and I don't enjoy talking about it.

Q. One more question, and we'll leave the subject alone. Was that the worst problem you had to cope with as village president?

A. Definitely yes. Back when I was thinking about running in the 1982 election, John Popovich (former trustee) warned me that if I was elected, I would sooner or later have to deal with something unpleasant. I got through most of my term and thought I was home free. Then this thing in the police department came up. My last three months in office weren't very happy ones. I wish I could have left on a brighter note.

Q. Let's go on to something positive. What do you think was your greatest achievement as village president?

A. I honestly don't believe that I had any "great achievements," and I say that in all humility. If I accomplished anything, it was to change some attitudes and get people thinking positively. We began to look at what we have in Chelsea, and what we can do with it. We began to think about the possibilities for development.

When I came into office, we had a lot of closed-down plants, a lot of empty houses. Our tax and utility revenues were down. I like to think I helped turn that situation around. If you want to give me credit for something, that's it.

Q. What about the tangible things, like the industrial park?

A. I feel very good about the industrial park. It's part of the turn-around I was talking about. It couldn't have happened without a change in local thinking. I also feel good about the progress we've made on the landfill, the wastewater treatment plant, the sewer system, our village electric system. We are establishing a base for growth. By buying into Detroit Edison's Belle River plant, we have assured a future supply of relatively cheap energy, and that's very important.

Q. Speaking of energy, does it worry you at all that Chelsea presently buys most of its electricity from Consumers Power, which looks like it might go bankrupt?

A. I guess what worries me most is that I own some shares of Consumers Power stock, and wish I didn't. Consumers won't go out of business in the sense of shutting down its power plants. Somebody will continue to operate them. What I do foresee is higher rates. In a situation of this kind, the stockholders and the customers end up paying the price. Under the circumstances, Chelsea's buy-in to Belle River (Continued on page seven)

SWAMP DE-WATERED: Employees of the E. W. Garlick Co., Ann Arbor, have begun work on development of Chelsea's industrial park. First order of business is to de-water a swamp at the southeast corner of the site so a sewer line can be laid. Six shallow wells have been dug, and water is being pumped out into Letts Creek at a rate of 3,500 gallons per minute. Watching the water flow are Jerry Hall and John Schwiderson.

Construction Starts On Industrial Park Development Work

Work has begun on development of Chelsea's industrial park on 70 acres south of Sibley Rd.

E. W. Garlick Construction Co. of Ann Arbor moved in men and machines last week to start construction of streets, and water and sewer lines. Consumers Power Co. began installing poles for electricity.

After clearing a semi-road to the south end of the industrial park site, Garlick employees set up headquarters in a grove of oak trees and went to work.

Their first order of business is to de-water a swampy area through which a sewer line has to be laid. "We've got to pump it out before we can go in and lay the sewer pipes," Garlick spokesman said. "We can't get our heavy equipment into the swamp."

Water was being spewed into Letts Creek from two large hoses directed into a temporary ditch leading to the creek. "After we get the water out and lay the sewer line, we'll have to put in a lot of fill dirt to raise the land contour," the spokesman said. "We won't disturb the creek itself, but we will change some drainage into it."

The sewer line will be constructed from Sibley Rd. south across Letts Creek, and connect with an existing trunk sewer which ends at the creek.

Branch lines will be constructed to serve businesses which locate in the park.

Before the new line could be installed and industrial park development allowed to go ahead, the village had to agree to remove at least an equal amount of waste water from its present sewer system.

The Department of Natural Resources has decreed that Chelsea cannot increase the volume of waste presently going through the village sewage treatment plant. For every "new" gallon put in, an "old" gallon must be taken out.

Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout, consulting engineers, developed a plan to remove 33,000 gallons per day from the sewer system by plugging leaks of surface water into sanitary sewers. The first phase of industrial park development is expected to generate 21,000 gallons of waste per day, leaving a 12,000-gallon cushion for future development.

The Chicago-based National Power-Rodding Corp. has been awarded an $8,638 contract to patch up the sewer system.

BookCrafters' fulfillment house will be the first occupant of the industrial park. Ground was broken on July 16. The firm hopes to have the facility built and operating this fall.

Sam Vogel Leaves Administrative Post At Chelsea High

Sam Vogel has resigned as assistant principal of Chelsea High school, effective July 20, to become the owner-operator of a drapery business in Jackson.

Vogel worked in the Chelsea school district for 14 years, the past seven as assistant high school principal primarily in charge of attendance and discipline.

Before that, he was a social studies teacher and a wrestling and tennis coach. He had previously taught at Cassidy Lake Technical School for three years.

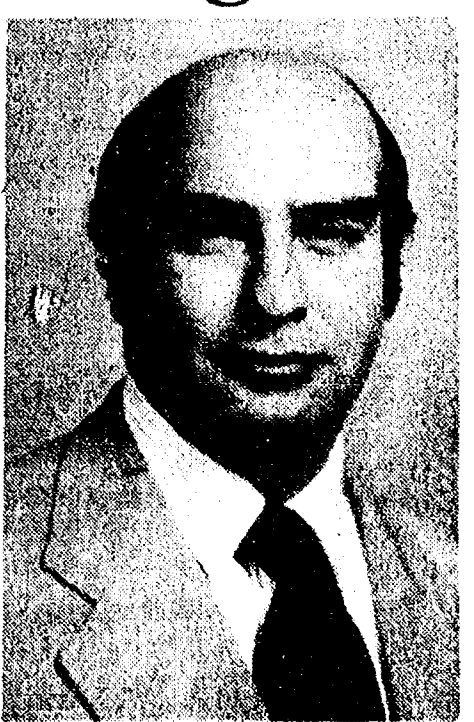

"I feel it's time for me to make a change," said Vogel, 36, who lives at 13875 Island Lake Rd. with his wife, Cheryl, and their three children. Mrs. Vogel is a physical education teacher at Beach Middle school and will retain that position. The Vogel family will continue to live at their present address, and he will commute to Jackson.

Vogel has bought the Kennedy-Bell drapery shop, a firm that has operated in Jackson since 1927. It specializes in making and hanging custom draperies for commercial and educational institutions, and also handles wallpaper, folding doors and similar products.

"I'll admit I don't know a whole lot about the drapery business, but I will have some long-time employees of the firm working for me," Vogel said, "and I expect to learn from them. It's an old, well established, respected company. Kennedy-Bell has done a lot of business with the Chelsea schools, and that's how I first found out about it."

Vogel acknowledged that not receiving appointment as principal of Beach school played a big part in his decision to resign. "When that happened, I figured I was dead-ended. I didn't want to go on being an assistant principal for the rest of my working life."

The appointment went to Darco Stielstra of Perry, who has been a middle school principal there for the past four years.

Vogel has bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan, and worked part-time for the Frito-Lay Corp. while going to school.

"I guess you could say that's the only experience I have in private business," he said, "but I did keep some accounts in the Chelsea schools and also for a teachers credit union. I've got a lot to learn, and it's a challenge. I'm young enough to change career directions, and I'm looking forward to it."

Council Approves Block Party and Three Banners

A block party and three banners across Main St. were approved by the village council last week.

Residents of W. Summit St. were given permission to hold a block party on Aug. 5. Banners were approved for the Knights of Columbus chicken barbecue on Sept. 9, the Chelsea Community Fair on Aug. 28-Sept. 1, and the St. Mary's Catholic Church Fall festival on Sept. 16.

Art Fair, Sidewalk Sale Set Aug. 3-4

If you would prefer to avoid the heat and crowds of the Ann Arbor Art Fairs, just wait for Chelsea's own art fair on Aug. 3 and 4th.

The Chelsea Sidewalk Festival will run in conjunction with the Chelsea Merchants Association annual Sidewalk Days.

The festival will feature 35 booths of artists from around the state including Detroit, Dearborn Heights, Garden City and Mount-rose. Eight exhibitors are from Chelsea and two from Dexter.

Only hand-crafted items are allowed at the fair which will be held on South St. Festival hours are Aug. 3, 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Aug. 4, 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Bill Coelius, a Chelsea High school teacher, will exhibit wooden toys. Art school teacher Kerry Kargel will return with

Board Takes No Action on Police Post

The village council took no action last week to name a permanent police chief, and Sgt. Lenard McDougall remains in command as temporary chief.

Former chief Robert Aiello was in the audience but did not participate in any discussion during the meeting.

Still undetermined is whether the village will advertise the position and seek applicants or will name a present member of the police force.

There likewise was no move to name a new trustee to replace Ed Harris, who resigned on June 11, three months after having been elected to the post.

copper trees. Both have exhibited at the festival for several years.

New to the festival this year from Chelsea are: Janice Manning's soft sculpture dolls, wood craft by Doug Brink, Bill Eisenbeiser's doll houses, wooden toys by Ron Hubbel and hand thrown ceramics from Mary Boylan.

Bonnie Basso from Dexter will exhibit candlewicking. Dexter's Ervin Witzke will feature country items such as stenciling and stuffed animals.

The festival will include hand-etched marble, silk flowers, jewelry and stained glass.

Festival co-ordinator Marcy Stump will exhibit wooden folk art.

Antique, Classic Car Parade Being Organized

Anybody with a car they want to show off can enter the fifth annual Antique and Classic Car and Truck Parade. The parade will leave the Parts Peddler Auto Supply Store, 1414 S. Main, at 1 p.m., then drive down Main and Middle Streets with a landing at Palmer Ford.

Parade organizer Dick Kolander expects close to 100 cars and trucks this year, although only 40 were lined up at press time. In its first year, the parade featured 45 cars and trucks. Last year, that number almost doubled to 80. "A lot of them are Model Ts,

Drought Persists In Local Area

Dark clouds rolled up, thunder muttered in the distance, and it probably rained somewhere yesterday morning, but not in west Washtenaw county where moisture is badly needed.

The familiar signs of drought—parched lawns, curled corn leaves, low lake and pond levels, stream-flow trickles—are showing up again. It hasn't rained in the area to amount to anything since July 9.

Local corn fields are showing another sign—early tasseling of short stalks.

The moisture deficiency for the year is about 2.5 inches. More important is that both June and July—the first two months of the growing season—are far below normal.

June precipitation was about half of the normal three inches. July has been a disaster so far, with rainfall about one-third of normal to date.

Being village president confers no special privileges when it comes to zoning matters.

The board of trustees last week unanimously turned down a request to rezone property at 682 W. Middle St. owned by president Jerry Satterthwaite.

All four of the council members present—a bare quorum—voted against the rezoning, which would have allowed an eight-unit apartment building to be constructed on the property.

The negative votes were cast by Richard Steele, Joe Merkel, Stephanie Kanten and Herman Radloff. Jim Finch was absent from the meeting, and Satterthwaite left when the rezoning hearing began.

Sitting as the zoning board of appeals, the board heard objections to the proposal from several neighboring residents who were mostly concerned about increased traffic that the apartment house might generate.

The summer drought has followed a cool, wet spring which allowed field crops to get off to a good start. They have been living off that "borrowed" time and moisture ever since.

Recent hot, rainless days have dried out the soil. A reporter for this paper had to dig more than two feet in his back yard before finding any sign of moisture.

Forecasts for the next several days are not encouraging. They call for more hot, sunny days with little or no rain.

Village Board Denies Middle St. Rezoning

The specific question was whether the village should grant a variance to permit the project even though the property has only 109 feet of frontage on Middle St. The zoning ordinance calls for a minimum of 120 front-feet.

The odd-shaped lot contains the required square-frontage and is more than wide enough at the rear.

The zoning request was filed by Jack Thams of Gregory, who had offered to buy the property from Satterthwaite contingent on village approval of his apartment proposal.

Satterthwaite is moving his J & M Oil Co. from the Middle St. site to 107 Hayes St.

Village zoning inspector Carl Sanderson, in a report to the council, said the Middle St. parcel meets the minimum requirements for a two-family building, but nothing larger without a variance from the zoning ordinance.

The Chelsea Girls Softball team won the regional title with three consecutive wins this weekend at the regional championships and earned a berth at the national play-offs. The event, bringing together the best 16- to 18-year-old softball players in the nation, will take place Thursday, Aug. 7, through Sunday, Aug. 10 in Sioux Falls, S. D.

It was business as usual in the area following a brief earthquake that struck a large part of the Midwest shortly before 3 p.m. Sunday, July 27. The quake, which lasted approximately 10 seconds, was centered some 40 miles northwest of Lexington, Ky., with shock waves felt as far north as northern Ontario, Canada. Seismologists at the University of Michigan placed the magnitude of the disturbance between 5.7 and 5.8 on the Richter scale.

In the Chelsea area, floors rumbled and crockery rattled, but most residents seem not to have noticed the movement. Baseball fans in Detroit's Tiger Stadium felt the grandstand swaying beneath them, and even announcer Ernie Harwell told listeners of WJR radio that his broadcast booth was shaking.

It's a tough year again for the wheat farmers, according to Ron Satterthwaite of Blaess Elevator Co. Recurrent rain in the area has delayed harvesting and lowered the quality of the wheat that is coming in.

At Blaess Elevator, only 60 percent of the estimated total amount of wheat is in so far, and it has been almost three weeks since the first load was brought in. This abnormally long harvesting period is due to all the recent rain. Satterthwaite says the area has not had four good combining days since July 18 when Irving Battendorf of Stockbridge, brought the first load of this season's crop to Blaess. Ideal weather to combine is hot and dry.

Patrolmen Peebles and Ringe of the Chelsea Police Department arrested and confiscated a British 303 rifle from the car the deserter was in on Friday night, July 24, at 11:25 p.m. on Van Buren St.

The deserter, Gordon Allen Gray, from the Manchester area, had left the Army exactly one year previous to the arrest, on July 24, 1969. Gray was turned over to Military Police by the Chelsea Police Department.

The rifle belonged to Gerald Karpis of Clinton, who was driving the car in which Gray was a passenger. A disturbance alerted the patrolmen to investigate the car and its passengers.

HOW CAN I HELP A CHILD UNDERSTAND THE REALITY OF DEATH?

It is important to realize that children differ in their ability to understand and accept the fact of death.

When the death is a member of the immediate family, a child should be included in the activities and preparations for the funeral. The way in which adults react during this time is the greatest influencing factor in teaching the child the accepted manner of learning to live with death.

Questions often arise in their minds. These are to be encouraged and answered with a loving concern for the sensitivities of the child. Explain that it is alright to feel sad and to cry, to feel lonely and hurt. Point out, however, that death is real and irreversible. Avoid the fairy stories and white lies which will only confuse and disillusion the child.

Re-living the happy memories involving the deceased should be encouraged. Statements of sincere religious beliefs can offer comfort to a child with a religious upbringing. Your pastor, priest or rabbi wants to be of help at such times.

Sometimes we can be of personal assistance. Remember, your concerns are ours, too.

Petitions Filed for Voter's

Choice Tax Amendment

Petition signatures were recently delivered to the office of the secretary of state as supporters of the so-called "Voter's Choice" amendment met the filing deadline in an effort to get the question on the November general election ballot.

A state-wide commission immediately voted unanimously to oppose the initiative should it earn a slot on the ballot.

The petitions arrived in Lansing under guard by private security personnel and held in two separate vans until they were delivered to the secretary of state's office for filing.

Jim DeMar of Mt. Clemens, presiding officer of the Voter's Choice Committee, said they filed 351,684 signatures although they had collected over 400,000 signatures, but they had culled questionable signatures before filing.

Of the 351,684, some 12,126 are immediately in doubt because they were collected on petitions where unauthorized changes were made by a California firm after the petition language had been approved by the State Board of Canvassers.

The board later denied a formal request to approve the petitions.

DeMar said without those petitions, the group had 339,558 signatures which were "more than enough" to cover any challenges to gain the requirement of 304,001 valid signatures to qualify for the ballot.

Elections Director Chris Thomas said there was no specific cushion figure that needed to be met to survive such challenges.

He noted, however, that the higher a group gets in the 80 to 90 percent range, the more difficult it is to qualify.

Thomas noted that in 1982 the Michigan State Troopers Association only needed to validate 67 percent of a total of 425,000 signatures to qualify while the group calling for capital punishment filed 310,000 signatures and needed 93 percent to qualify.

The troopers easily qualified while the capital punishment question was denied a slot on the ballot because of insufficient signatures.

With 339,558 signatures filed by the Voter's Choice people, 90 percent would have to be valid to qualify for the November ballot.

The Voter's Choice amendment would roll all taxes back to their 1981 levels and disallow any tax increase unless approved by the general public.

The amendment would also limit all non-resident city income taxes to .5 percent, affecting the current 1.5 percent rate on non-residents of the City of Detroit.

Meanwhile, the Commission of the Future of Higher Education voted to oppose the initiative.

James K. Robinson, chairman of the commission, said the initiative would obviously lead to a substantial decrease in state support for higher education.

"At a time when a great system is in jeopardy, such a decrease would be disastrous," he said.

Robinson said voter approval of the proposed amendment would force the curtailment and revision of major efforts now being considered by the commission to retain and enhance the quality of the higher education system.

He further suggested the amendment would allow a small minority of the governing board of an institution of higher education to "Paralyze an institution and use votes on financial matters to leverage policy in other areas."

I can make changes that will benefit the merchants and the exhibitors," she said.

Stump asked merchants to say what they dislike about the festival and asked exhibitors to fill out a questionnaire.

"I always feel in order to make a successful craft display and have a repeat of a successful show, you have to first please the exhibitors because if they're not happy, they won't come back," said Stump.

Greater weather protection and a discount lunch are among the changes Stump hopes to make. She has co-ordinated the fair which is sponsored by the Chelsea Merchants Association for two years.

Last Sunday, as Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Duerr and their son, Adolph, Jr., were ready to leave for an evening at the Cascades in Jackson, they had a surprise caller whose name they still don't know, but one whom they do know is really an honest and appreciative young man. He called for the express purpose of repaying Mr. Duerr the sum of five dollars which the latter had loaned him on a train on which both were traveling from Frankfort to Rotterdam, Holland, last year.

Duerr was on his way home from a visit with relatives in Germany and the young German fellow was on his way to Oklahoma, where he was planning to make his home with an uncle. The young man was evidently traveling with a minimum amount of money because, at the Holland border, when his papers were found to be not exactly in order and authorities demanded the five dollars required as a fee to put them in order he was unable to pay for it. If he had gone back home to try and raise the money he would have missed the freighter on which he had booked passage and was frantically but vainly trying to get permission to continue on his way when Duerr offered to pay the five dollars. The young man promised to repay him as soon as possible after reaching America and took Duerr's name and address.

Tests Offered For Pressure Canner Gauges

With the vegetable harvest and preserving season coming on, home canners are invited to bring their pressure cookers in for testing to be sure the gauges are working right.

Free tests will be conducted at Hackney Hardware in Dexter from 10 a.m. to noon and at Gambles in Chelsea from 1 to 3 p.m., both on Saturday, Helen Fairman, Co-operative Extension Service home economist, said.

"Pressure canners are perfectly safe to use if the directions are followed and the gauges are registering properly," Fairman said. "Otherwise, they can be dangerous and blow up."

"The purpose of our program is to check out the gauges so people can be sure their pressure canners are working properly."

Persons desiring the free test need bring in only the lid of the utensil, with the gauge attached. The test takes only a few seconds.

BARNES-SIGNORELLO: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barnes, of Maple Ct., have announced the engagement of their daughter Julie Kaye to Paul Signorello. Signorello is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Signorello of Harper Woods. The couple plan a Sept. 22 wedding. ## Students Attend Orientation Session at WMU

Orientation at Western Michigan University made a favorable impression on at least two prospective freshmen. Chelsea's Marjorie Rawson and Charles Hager both thought the University was "great."

"I thought the student leaders were really friendly. They acted more like they were our friends than our leaders. I was really impressed with how they make you feel like you belong," said Rawson.

Rawson is the daughter of Robert and Alice Rawson. A Chelsea High school graduate, she intends to major in music and performance with a minor in theater and dance.

Hager said he liked the school a lot. "It's not that big but it's not too small. It's pretty much the right size. The dorm rooms are good and everything's close by," said Hager.

Hager, a Chelsea High school graduate, is the son of David and Geraldine Hager.

Also attending orientation were Dan Pennington of Chelsea and Karen Pietras of Pinckney.

Early Treatment Will Control Most Glaucoma

While glaucoma is the leading cause of blindness in this country, it can usually be controlled. Early detection and treatment can prevent it from leading to blindness.

The exam for glaucoma is simple, and it only takes a few minutes. The Food and Drug Administration has a reprint from its magazine, FDA Consumer, that explains the procedures of testing for glaucoma, the methods of treatment, and the warning signs to watch out for. For your free copy of Glaucoma, send your name and address to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 567M, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Within the eye, there is a liquid called aqueous humor that circulates providing nourishment to the tissues. Glaucoma is caused when there is an excess of that liquid because the circulation system is impaired and the fluid has no place to go or it drains too slowly. When that happens, the increased pressure in the eye slows down the blood supply to the optic nerve. Without blood, the optic nerve becomes damaged, resulting in a loss of the victim's field of vision. If the damage continues, the optic nerve dies and blindness results.

Glaucoma is often hereditary, and it is more likely to occur after your 40th birthday. Glaucoma can also be caused by a blow to the head or eye, infection, or cataracts.

Most people with glaucoma are placed on maintenance drugs for the rest of their lives. Some of the drugs come in eye drop form while others are taken orally. Although most of them cut down on the production of fluid, some actually increase the outflow.

Right now, the most popular of the glaucoma drugs is Timoptic (its generic name is timolol maleate). It comes in the form of drops and widely used because of its lack of side effects.

The most common form of the disease (and the one that can most easily be controlled by drugs) is called open angle or chronic simple glaucoma. It most often affects both eyes and because it is painless, can sneak up on you. Some signs of glaucoma may be loss of side vision and delayed ability to adjust to semi-darkness or low light levels.

Since it is sneaky, keep an eye on your eyes. Have regular checkups with an eye doctor since simple glaucoma can be painless for a long time. Regular tests, which are also painless and quick, are especially important if other family members have glaucoma or if you are over 40.

To learn more, including a list of the various glaucoma drugs available and their side effects, send for a copy of Glaucoma (free). At the same time, you will also receive a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. General Services Administration, the Catalog lists more than 200 other free and moderately priced federal booklets on a wide variety of subjects.

The Chesapeake Bay supports some 2,700 species of animal life, say wildlife experts. Some of the most notable edible bay creatures are: oysters, clams, crabs, flounder, bluefish, eels, sea trout, croakers, shad, striped bass and herring.

Senior Citizens Invited to Meet on Medicare Details

If you are a senior citizen with Medicare as your primary insurance, chances are you have questions and could use help in understanding your Medicare benefits, as well as concerns about co-insurance to pick up what Medicare does not.

Medicare itself is very complicated for the best of us to understand. Part A is automatic and covers inpatient hospital care. Part B is optional and must be purchased, which covers doctor expenses. And then there is a deductible and 20% which is not paid by Medicare. What is available to cover these expenses?

The Washtenaw County Council on Aging, with the help of other groups and organizations, has implemented a new program to deal with these issues. Volunteers have been trained to meet with senior citizens, by appointment, to help them understand regarding co-insurance coverage. Appointments are made by calling the Washtenaw County Council on Aging at 665-3625.

Today's Investor

By Thomas E. O'Hara
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Assoc. of Investment Clubs
& Editor, Better Investing Magazine

I went into a broker's office and asked for someone that I could talk to about IBM. I'm not much of an investor, but I figure if you invest in the leader you should do better than average. This broker turned out to be a real nut on IBM. He said I couldn't go wrong, and that his guess was that the stock would sell over 200 in less than two years. I was looking for good advice, and I like IBM, but it seems to me that instead of good advice I got a lot of optimism. Do you think there is a chance that IBM will sell above 200 in less than two years?

A. Let's look at some of the things that are going for IBM and that affect the price of its stock. IBM seems to be on a roll. It is introducing new products, and its whole industry still seems to have a great future. Revenues in the past year were up 17% and earnings per share were up 22%. The stock, while it is currently selling at only 106, reached a high of 134 1/2 in 1983. It sold at 15 times earnings at its high.

A number of security analysts who follow IBM, and whose reports I have read, estimate that IBM's earnings per share for 1984 will be up 15 to 20%. That suggests that IBM's earnings per share for 1984 would be in the range of $10.40 to $10.80 a share. It is now only seven months to the end of the year in which those earnings are anticipated. If you add another year of that kind of earnings growth, you could see IBM's earnings per share in the range of $12.02 to $12.96.

If the 20% rate gave us $12.96 earnings per share and the stock sold at 15 times earnings, it would sell at $194. If the stock market continues its long term upward trend, as I believe it is likely to do, then I believe it is likely that a stock with the record of IBM will sell at a PE higher than 15. If the average high PE at which all the stocks in the Dow Industrials sell should move up to the 14-16 range, then it would be likely that IBM would sell at a higher range, perhaps in the 18 to 20 area.

That kind of PE applied to the earnings estimated at a 15% growth rate would put the company's shares between 216 and 244. If the 20% gain in earnings happened and the higher PEs prevailed, we could see the stock selling between 233 and 259.

None of us can be sure that will happen. In the next year and a half, the company might do better, or it might do worse, but at the moment the company is doing very well, and the prospects seem to be for continued progress for some period of time. There is no certainty that the stock will sell at the high PEs I have shown, but the figures we have suggested should be within the realm of possibility if the company continues to move ahead, and if we have a period of strong confidence in the stock market. I think your broker was pretty well informed.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Elsewhere in the paper is a report of an in-depth interview with Jack Merkel, former village president. I commend it to your careful reading, and not just because I wrote it. I believe it is an important statement by a man whose perception, intelligence and courage who possesses a lot of insight into Chelsea's challenges for the future and how to deal with them.

All I did was ask questions, write down answers and try to make an accurate record of an hour-long conversation which ranged over a very broad range of issues. During all my 40 years in the news business, I have never found a source more candid or responsive. I threw some tough queries, including a few deliberately nasty curve-balls. He didn't duck any of them, and he hit them all solidly.

Let me say right here that I am prejudiced in the sense that I like Jack Merkel. Newsmen are supposed to be neutral about the people they deal with, but it doesn't work that way in the real world. Some people you like, some people you don't. I have despised some of the best news sources I ever had.

More than once I've come back from an interview feeling that I needed to take a shower and get clean before writing the story. I'm a newcomer to Chelsea, and settling in hasn't been easy. My wife and I have not exactly been welcomed with open arms. That may be partly because of the work I do. A newsmen worth his salt is going to rock some boats, and I get the feeling that people here don't want their boats rocked. They are comfortable, perhaps too comfortable. Jack Merkel spoke to that problem when he told me, "We may have too much of an inward look, and maybe don't realize that people from outside have something to offer the community if they are given the chance."

He went on to note that much of the work done to make the Sesqui-centennial celebration the huge success that it was, was performed by newcomers. "I hope that all of us born-here residents took notice of what those outsiders did, appreciated it, and understood what it means in terms of Chelsea's future. We need this new blood. It's not only good for us, it's vital."

Jack Merkel's outlook is optimistic. He sees Chelsea coming on strong, and wants to contribute to continued progress.

"I feel good about the way things are going," he told me. That is partly because my business is up. I looked at red ink for three years, and that was very disturbing because it had never happened before in all of our time of doing business in Chelsea. Our business has turned around, and we're in the black, and I like to think that the whole village has turned around along with us."

Merkel's expressed desire to play an active role in redevelopment of the downtown business district strikes me as an offer that ought to be taken up by those in charge of the project. He possesses the personality, energy and business leverage to get things done.

Above all, Merkel comes across as a conscientious soul who means it when he says that he has an obligation to public service. He honestly believes he has a duty to try to leave his town a little better than he found it. A devout Catholic, Merkel has a strong sense of discipline.

It was interesting to me that, when I put the question to him, Merkel did not rule out the possibility that he might someday volunteer to serve again in public office.

"If I saw an opportunity to accomplish something important, I might do it," he replied after thinking a long time. "It would depend on the situation and the circumstances. But I certainly would never say never."

Low Interest Loans Available To Low Income Householders

A rural homeowner whose house needs fixing to remove health or safety hazards may be eligible for a 1% interest loan or grant from FmHA. Grants are made only to low income homeowners, 62 years or older who are unable to repay the loan at the 1% interest rate.

These funds can be used for removing health hazards by repairing roofs, providing sanitary water and waste disposal systems that meet local health department requirements, installing screens, windows or insulation. Other repairs to make the house safe are also allowed such as solving furnace, electrical and plumbing problems.

Homeowners can obtain up to a maximum of $7,500 from this program. Elderly applicants can obtain a maximum of $5,000 in the form of a grant if they are unable to repay all or part of their requested funds. Loan portions must be paid back in a 10-, 15- or 20-year note depending on the size of loan granted and homeowners' ability to pay. Income requirements for this program vary across the state. Homeowners in this area (Wayne, Washtenaw, Oakland counties) must have an adjusted household income of $11,500 or lower.

C. Pursell Seeks 5th House Term

U. S. Rep. Carl D. Pursell has officially announced that he will seek a fifth term representing Michigan's 2nd District.

The Republican Congressman said his campaign will stress "experience, independent leadership," and his extensive work for diversified business and job opportunities. Pursell will also emphasize his growing leadership role in Congress, his belief in limiting taxes and spending, and continued "excellent service" to constituents.

Rep. Pursell is a member of the influential House Appropriations Committee, and a key spokesman for the Midwest in congressional and administration policy deliberations. A former State Senator and County Commissioner, Pursell was first elected to Congress in 1976, and has been returned to office by wide margins in the last three elections.

"Experience, plus ability, equals leadership. I'll outline my record in those terms during the campaign," Pursell said.

"I believe I can make a strong case that I've represented the 2nd District effectively, and will be even more effective in coming years. My broad experience in state and county government has been a distinct asset in working effectively in Congress."

"I enter the campaign with confidence that our hard work on behalf of the district will lead to success at the polls," he added.

CARL D. PURSELL

The 2nd Congressional District includes major portions of Washtenaw, Jackson, and Lenawee counties, the Northwest corner of Wayne county, all of Hillsdale county, and two townships in Branch county.

"Small businesses are a prime hope for future job creation. So I'll continue working as a catalyst to meld our universities and private sectors in efforts to nurture small businesses and high technology companies."

"I continue to believe that we can't tax Michigan or the nation to prosperity," Pursell asserted. "I think higher taxes have the opposite effect and I'll persist in opposing broad tax increases. The large budget deficits must be eliminated. The best way to do it, for the nation's long-term economic health, is through budget restraint and economic development."

"Our 2nd District boundaries were extensively revised two years ago. Working in this 'new' district has been an enjoyable challenge. I believe we've provided the new areas with an extra measure of representation; the kind of extra effort the older sections of the district have come to expect. The sincerity of our effort has been reflected in a very positive response from people throughout the district."

"If we're successful in November, the 2nd District can be assured that this level of service and strong representation will be maintained," Pursell stated.

The Pursell family lives in the 2nd District (most congressional families move to Washington), as they have throughout the Congressman's seven-plus years in office. Peggy Pursell has continued her career in teaching. Their daughter and two sons are all in college, two at Eastern Michigan and one at U of M.

"Extensive time and work in the district form the foundation of my approach to representation," Pursell said. "Close contact with the people and problems of the district remain indispensable. If re-elected, I'll continue to give equal importance to my responsibilities at home and in Washington."

Chelsea Charms Seek National Championship

When the baton National Championships and Miss Majorette of America opened in Notre Dame, Ind., on July 24, 13 Chelsea Charms were ready for it.

Chelsea Charms is a local baton group of 40 members founded by Rita Howard, a former Miss Majorette of America in 1959.

The 12 girls and one boy will compete with 4,000 to 5,000 youths from around the country. The contest is the largest national baton championship with 46 lanes in three gyms going all times. The contest runs from July 24 to July 28.

To compete, the Charms had to rank in the top five in the state championships.

Competing in the national tiny tot dance twirl team category are the Sugar Shakers: Richelle Jones, Heather Wynn, Nikki Schultz, Kate Steele, Kori White and Tracey Wales. Sugar Shakers have won three dance twirl championships.

The other six girls will compete in the dance twirl team Kaleidoscope. They are: Susan Schmunk, Josie Krzeckowski, Michelle Graflund, Christine Dunlap, Laurie Honbaum, and Amy Weir.

The girls will also compete in the World Solo, World Strut and Fancy Strut categories. Rita's son Winston is competing in Boys National Champion Solo and Military Strut.

The Charms should practice at least an hour a day, said Howard. Ten-year-old Weir averages 60 hours per month.

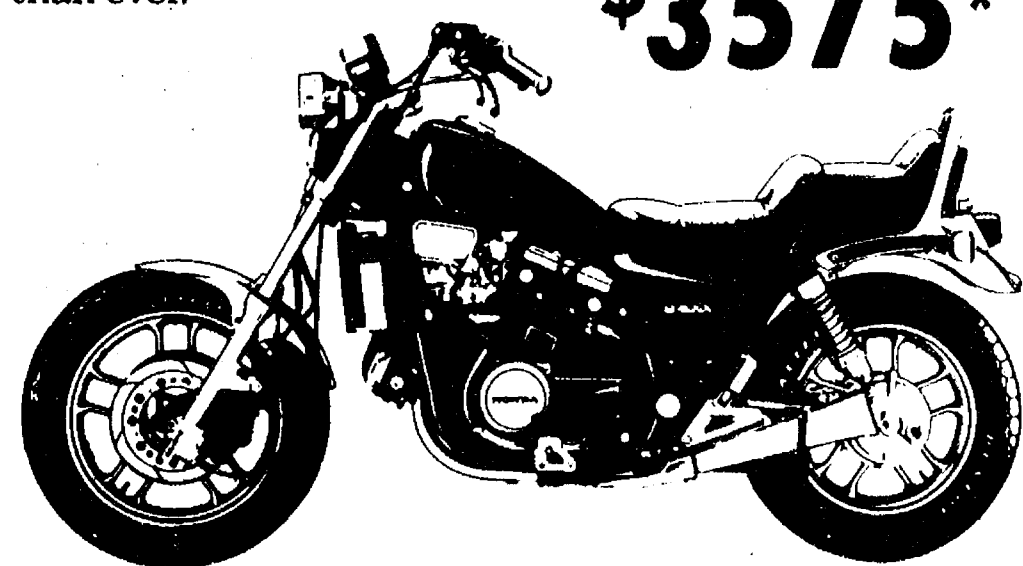

"It's a very complicated sport. Most people have no idea what is involved. It includes gymnastics, ballet, jazz dancing, marching as well as the ability to handle a baton," said Howard.

The idea for a Huron-Clinton Metropark system started in Washtenaw county as the result of a National Youth Administration survey of recreational needs for the county sponsored by the University of Michigan through Professor Harlow O. Whittemore, still a resident of Ann Arbor, using college students under the direction of Dr. Henry S. Curtis in 1934. Whittemore, a professor of architecture at U. of M., and Curtis, a former playground director at New York City, promoted the idea that there were many recreational opportunities in the valleys of the Huron and Clinton Rivers. This eventually led to the formation of the Huron-Clinton Parkway Committee under Harry B. Earhart in 1937. Curtis is now deceased.

PHILIPPE YON became an exchange student from France to learn about life in the United States. So far, he enjoys our roller coasters, cable movies and video games.

Exchange Student Here for Summer

Hosting an exchange student is something Joy and Jim Stacey wanted to do for a long time. On July 5, they got their chance to try it through the Nacel Cultural Exchange program.

Phillipe Yon, 14, arrived on July 5 with 126 French young people at Metro airport where they were greeted by their Michigan families. Yon, who is from Versailles, will stay with the Staceys until Aug. 1.

Yon joined the exchange program so he could learn better English and see what life in the United States is like. He studied English for three years before coming here. According to Mrs. Stacey, he has learned many new words.

Some activities, the Staceys have exposed Yon to is camping in a trailer, water slides, an amusement park, roller coasters, and Greenfield Village. He also visited the homes of the Staceys' friends.

According to Mrs. Stacey, Yon especially enjoyed a stand-up roller coaster called the King Cobra, video games, cable movies, and Thomas Edison's laboratory at Greenfield Village. The Staceys have two children Julie and Jeff. Julie wants to join the exchange program in a few years after she learns more French.

Merkel Recalls His Years As President

looks better all the time. We might want to switch over entirely to Detroit Edison once future comparative costs are known definitely.

Q. What else makes you think positive about Chelsea's future?

A. Many things—the industrial park, Chelsea Milling's new plant, the Methodist Home expansion, Chrysler's comeback, Hatch Stamping's move into town. When you add it all up, it's pretty exciting, and there aren't any negatives. We're going to get more jobs, increase village revenues. Chelsea has a lot going for it right now.

Q. Was joining the Washtenaw Development Council a good move for Chelsea?

A. You bet it was, and the dividends are just starting. Some people worried about the annual dues of $4,500 a year or so, and it was one of them. We've gotten our money back already. We're receiving a lot of inquiries from businesses interested in locating here, and the Development Council has generated most of them. I can't tell you who the prospects are, but you are going to have some good stories to print in your paper pretty soon.

Q. With all those things in place, what's next for Chelsea in terms of economic expansion?

A. I would like to see the downtown redevelopment plan get off the ground and going, and I want to help. It's our biggest need, and it has to be pushed. Chelsea's downtown has to be made more attractive, a nicer place to shop and do business. Johnson, Johnson & Roy (Ann Arbor architectural engineering firm) has provided a lot of good ideas. I don't buy all of them, but they are mostly right. I intend to give this program my personal attention, because I believe it is very important. Every downtown businessman should get behind it and push. A couple of promoters can't do it all by themselves.

Q. In that connection, a recommendation has been made that through traffic be removed from Main St. What do you think?

A. I know it's a controversial issue, but I'll stick my neck out and say that I believe M-52 should be routed around Chelsea. We don't need the through traffic. It causes congestion downtown. Those people don't stop here and buy anything. They just make it uncomfortable for the people who do want to stop and buy. Chelsea should be a pleasant place for pedestrians.

Q. Would re-routing M-52 hurt your business?

A. I don't think so. We (Merkel's Furniture and Carpets) get 70 percent of our business from Ann Arbor now. The people who want to shop at our store don't seem to have any trouble finding it, even if we are off the freeway. M-52 doesn't do anything for us. It's a nuisance.

Q. Let's change the subject. Have you missed public life?

A. Yes and no. I enjoyed the challenge and the sense of accomplishment, and I miss that. I don't miss some of the other things.

Q. Like what?

A. The unbelievable amount of time that serving as president took, and the mental fatigue. Frankly, the job was hard on me. Some of those meetings were gut-wrenching. I lost sleep worrying about them the night before and the night after. Maybe I took it too seriously but, frankly, it was getting to me.

Q. Do you have any regrets about not running for a second term?

A. None. My life has been better, as I expected it would be. Mary Ann and I have time to do things together that we didn't have before. We've done quite a bit of traveling and enjoyed it. I've had more time to devote to my business, which is also important. After looking at red ink for the past three years, I felt I needed to make some special efforts to get things turned around. I don't take any special credit for it, because I think the general improvement in the economy is mostly responsible, but the fact is that we are making a profit again, and that's a nice piece of personal news for me as a businessman. I want to see every Chelsea business make money. I'm not interested just in our store. I want the whole town to prosper. If business is good all over town, we'll get our share.

Q. Do you see yourself ever running for public office again?

A. I won't flatly rule it out, but I don't see any possibility in the immediate future. I think I'm probably pretty well qualified through my two years of experience as president. I had to learn a lot about many different things. It was a cram course in local government. It's conceivable that I might seek office again, but I would have to feel that I could make some special contribution, do something that nobody else could do as well. I have a strong sense of responsibility, a belief that I should do something in my own small way to make the world a little bit better place while I'm living it. You and I go to the same church (St. Mary's Roman Catholic), and I think you know what I mean. I try to live by the teachings of our faith, and they include stewardship and discipleship, which comes down to responsibility. If I see a way that I can help, I'll do it.

Q. You say you had to learn about a lot of things. Can you be more specific?

A. There are six or seven major categories of knowledge about village government—solid waste disposal, sewage disposal, water, public works, police, fire, general administration. Until you know quite a lot about all of those, you can't be very effective in public office, either as president or as a trustee. It takes time and hard work to learn, and I tell you in all honesty that I didn't learn nearly all of it during my two years as president even though I tried. I think I did make a good start. It was hard, but there were rewards when I began to understand what people were talking about. I was forced to grow, and that was good.

Q. There are rumors around town that petitions will be circulated to recall at least some members of the village board. Do you see that as an opportunity for you to get back in office?

A. Absolutely not. I think the recall idea is outrageous, and I hope the people who are thinking about it will think again and give it up. The idea that you should remove somebody from office just because you disagree with something that he's done, some decision he's made, is ridiculous, and I feel very strongly about that. I certainly will play no part in any recall movement other than to oppose it. After all, the people in office were legally elected by a majority of the voters who bothered to vote. They deserve the chance to complete their terms and show what they can do over two years. It takes time and courage to serve in public office. I respect the people who offer to do it. I know what the problems are. I've been there.

Q. What about village employees? Do you feel the same way about them?

A. Generally, yes. They are a very dedicated group of people, and I admire them. They do good work. I won't list them all, but I would like to mention (village administrator) Fritz Weber. I think he may be the most under-valued person in the community. He has a background of experience and knowledge that make him kind of indispensable. If I accomplished anything as president, it was largely because of Fritz. He's a low-key guy, but he's a treasure of information. When you ask him a question, he knows the answer, and it's right.

Q. Is there anybody you don't like?

A. Not really. There are a few people who gave me trouble while I was in office. I won't name them. They caused me some worries, but I respect them regardless. Just because somebody disagrees with me doesn't make me dislike that person, as long as the discussion can be conducted on a decent level. I don't like personal insults and shouting matches. I don't think anybody does.

Q. How did you feel about the Sesqui-centennial celebration?

A. I thought it was great, and let me say that I may be prejudiced because my daughter-in-law (Anne Merkel) and some other members of my family were heavily involved in it. It was a first-class show all the way, a real shot in the arm for the community.

S. Mich. Railroad Society Buys Clinton-Adrian Track

A two-year-long drive to bring back the railroad to this southern community of Clinton and to nearby Tecumseh, has at last been fulfilled.

Directors of the Southern Michigan Railroad Society, Inc., comprised mostly of amateur rail buffs, announced today that an agreement has been reached for the group to purchase about 13.5 miles of abandoned track. A negotiated price of $100,000 was settled with the seller, Conrail.

Earlier, an SMRS contingent consisting of president, Jim Patterson and board members Robert Camburn, Celia Davison, John Shaw, and Dale Pape met with Conrail officials in Livonia where the purchase price was negotiated. The amount had been decreased from an original asking price of $425,000.

What impressed me most were the contributions by some of the newcomers to Chelsea. I know that Chelsea has a reputation as being a hard place for new people to come into and feel welcome. The idea that if you weren't born here you don't belong here is stupid but, let's face it, it exists. I wish we could get rid of that feeling of hostility toward outsiders, and I think the work done by some of our new residents to make the Sesqui-centennial program such a big success ought to open some eyes and some hearts.

Q. Is there anything else you would like to say.

A. Yes, and it's kind of difficult to express, and it may seem to contradict what I just said about reaching out to newcomers but it really doesn't. When I was a kid growing up in Chelsea, the roads to and from Ann Arbor were mostly gravel. The community focused on itself because it was the center of interest for people who lived here. Today, people perhaps see Chelsea as part of a larger entity, a suburb of Ann Arbor. That is true in an economic sense. As I mentioned earlier, our store gets 70 percent of its business from Ann Arbor, and we couldn't survive without it. What I would like to see is renewed interest in developing Chelsea as a very special local place, a great place to live and work in, not only for us natives but for everybody regardless of how long they have been here. We have excellent schools, a great hospital facility, good stores, fine churches, a pretty town, a good government—a whole lot of advantages. Our people are honest and God-fearing, and they pay their bills. They are people of substance. We have a lot going for us, a lot to build on. Maybe we need to take better advantage of what we have.

New Doctor Joins Staff at Hospital

Dr. Brian Chodoroff, a specialist in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, has joined the practice of Lawrence Handelsman, M.D., P.C., as an associate. He will work primarily at the Chelsea Community Hospital site although services will also be rendered at Saline Community Hospital.

A native of Detroit, Dr. Chodoroff received his M.D. degree from Wayne State University in 1981. While completing his Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Residency at the University of Michigan, Dr. Chodoroff was chief resident of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation. His practice includes general rehabilitation, electrodiagnosis, and problems of pain and motion.

When not practicing medicine, Dr. Chodoroff enjoys long-distance bicycle riding and is an active member of the Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society. He also enjoys sailing and other outdoor activities. Dr. Chodoroff's twin brother, Gary, is also a physician in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation and is currently practicing at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Kiwanis Club Funding Fairgrounds Restrooms

Kiwanis Club of Chelsea has recently approved a grant of $10,000 to the Chelsea Community Fair Board. The Kiwanis Club wanted to aid the promotion of the Community Fair.

In discussions with Fair Board officials, there appeared to be a need for construction of public restrooms and a concession stand. The $10,000 grant from the Kiwanis Club will be used for the construction of those facilities.

There is a possibility of state reimbursable monies which would rebate $5,000 back to the Kiwanis Club.

Kiwanis Club President Ron Walter, speaking on behalf of Kiwanis membership, said "the Kiwanis Club was appreciative of the opportunity to aid the Chelsea Community Fair. Chelsea Kiwanis has had a long-standing involvement with the Fair and continues to support the Fair as an outstanding community project. The ability of Kiwanis to give funds results from the many opportunities that Kiwanis has had to participate in community programs."

Fair Lane Powerhouse Being Restored for Tours

Imagine a home that generates its own energy, more than enough energy to provide its occupants with all the comforts of home—heat, electricity, refrigeration, a water supply, as well as maintaining an automotive garage and private laboratory.

Think it's too good to be true? It is not. It's simply part of the majestic, incredible estate of Henry Ford I.

Dubbed "Fair Lane," by its owners, the estate was jointly designed by Thomas Edison and Henry Ford. The four-story limestone structure provided total energy needs to Ford and his wife Clara until her death in 1950.

The house consists of two separate buildings connected by a tunnel 16 feet underground at its lowest point. One building was the actual living quarters of the Fords, while the other is called the Powerhouse, which housed all the energy supplies for Fair Lane.

Ford spent a lot of time in the Powerhouse. He loved to conduct tours of the building, and occasionally even held dances in his private laboratory on the upper level. It was in the Powerhouse that Ford displayed his huge collection of watches and grandfather clocks.

After Fair Lane was closed in 1950, the estate was severely neglected until 1977, when a program was initiated by a University of Michigan-Dearborn student, Burt Burley, to restore the building.

The restoration process has been an on-going effort, and has attracted many dedicated volunteers and a few contributors along the way to its present day near-completion stage.

On Father's Day of this year the first public viewing of the estate was permitted. A visitor center is now open on the third floor of the Powerhouse, and a restaurant, aptly named "The Pool" because it is in the middle of the area where the pool used to be, offers tourists a break for lunch.

The Powerhouse has five rooms which tourists can view. The lowest level of the Powerhouse houses the turbine room, which can only be viewed through a trap-door as it is flooded in high water. The wheel room, one floor above the turbines, has 1½-ton flywheels, which used to produce the even flow of energy necessary to power the generators.

The generator room, directly above the wheel room, holds two 55-kilowatt generators which provided enough electricity to meet the needs of the entire estate. An additional steam-powered generator was kept in this room as well in case there was an electricity blackout and an alternative source of energy was needed.

Other rooms open to the public include the boiler room, where the original coke-fired boilers provided heat for the estate are displayed. It was on one of these boilers that President Hoover's hat, which got soaked during a quick rainstorm, was dried off as he toured the Fair Lane estate.

The third level of the Powerhouse contains the pump room, which performed a variety of duties. Pumps operated ammonia compressors which were used for refrigeration and ice-making, and a swimming pool pump, cistern pump and feed pumps were also housed here.

Ford's private garage, which was large enough to store 14 automobiles, is also available for tourists to look at first-hand.

Clara Ford reportedly used to walk through the tunnel to the Powerhouse with a white-gloved hand to make sure all the power cables were clean. The only surviving worker of the Fair Lane estate, Floyd Apple, said, "The place was so clean we could open our lunchboxes and eat off the floor."

Henry Ford died at Fair Lane on April 17, 1947. Ironically, just a few days before his death, all the machinery and back-up systems in the Powerhouse were inoperable due to a massive flooding of the Rouge River. Floyd Apple said Ford asked him to please try and get the electricity operating so he could listen to his favorite radio program. Apple couldn't no matter what he tried to do, and Ford died that night by candlelight.

Summer tours of the incredible Fair Lane estate, which stands as a larger-than-life symbol of Ford's genius and accomplishments, are conducted Monday through Friday at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., 1:30 and 2:30 p.m., and on Sundays at 1 and 4:30 p.m.

An improved national "help wanted" job bank listings system will allow job seekers to get in touch directly with employers anywhere in the country without delays and without fees. The computerized system now becomes the basis for improved interstate exchange of job-availability information, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

2 Chelsea Residents Attend Madonna College Drug Abuse Workshop June 25-29

Two Chelsea residents recently attended a one-week workshop on "Chemical Dependency and Youth" at Madonna College in Livonia from June 25-29.

R. Phillip Radant, a teacher at Plymouth-Canton community schools, and Cheryl Wells, a teacher employed by Dexter community schools, attended the workshop which addressed different methods of assessment and intervention of substance abuse.

The workshop also covered issues related to the development and structure of a school-based program for early recognition of problems related to drug and alcohol abuse.

The week-long drug abuse workshop was organized and presented by the Fairlane Health Services Corp., a subsidiary of Henry Ford Health Care Corp.

HOME DESTROYED: A few hours after the flames had been extinguished, a team from the Chelsea Fire Department, along with investigators from the Washtenaw County Fire Inspection Bureau, survey the ruins of the home of Walter Jarvis, 2690 McKinley Rd., Lima township. In the absence of the owner, fire broke out very early Sunday morning from causes which have yet to be determined.

Fire Destroys McKinley Rd. Home Early Sunday Morning

Fire destroyed a home and contents at 2690 McKinley Rd. north of Chelsea early Sunday morning. Cause of the blaze is undetermined and remains under investigation.

Chelsea fire chief Paul Harker estimated the loss to owner Walter Jarvis at "probably about $70,000."

The alarm was called in at 2:07 a.m. Sunday, Harker said, and the first truck was dispatched within three minutes. "I could see the light in the sky when we turned the corner from Dewey onto McKinley."

"We sent out five trucks and every man we had, and called in the Dexter fire department to bring more water. We pumped more than 12,000 gallons, but we couldn't get on top of it. The fire had one helluva start."

Nobody was home when the fire broke out, Harker said, adding that, as of Monday afternoon, he had been unable to contact any member of the Jarvis family who apparently are away on vacation.

"I'm afraid they are in for a terribly bad shock when they do come home," Harker said. "I won't speculate about the cause of the fire, because we have no evidence to point to anything in particular."

"I do know the fire must have gone unnoticed for quite awhile. Maybe that's not unusual at that hour on a Sunday morning."

Most of the walls of the dwelling were left standing, but everything inside was destroyed. "I guess you can say we didn't save anything," Harker said. "It's a total loss. We tried our best, but there's not much you can do in a situation like that."

"We were called way too late to make a save. We worked 10 hours and still lost it."

Large Farm Machinery Display Set for Ag Expo

More than 350 farm machinery manufacturers from 18 states and Canada will practically blanket 40 acres with exhibits and displays during Ag Expo, July 24-26 at Michigan State University.

The three-day free event, primarily intended for farmers and agriculture advisers, is Michigan's largest farm equipment exposition. It will include daily field demonstrations and tours of the MSU agricultural research center. Expo will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

"Because of the interest shown by farmers, several exhibitors have requested additional exhibit space this year," says William Bickert, Ag Expo chairperson. "So there will be, in many cases, an even broader line of equipment shown than last year."

Just about every kind of machinery or supply needed for most types of farms in Michigan will be shown during Ag Expo. The lineup ranges from the largest tractors and tillage equipment currently on the market to new grain seed hybrids and irrigation equipment.

Accompanying the displays and activities at the main exposition site will be 12 MSU educational clinics that will essentially function as problem-solving centers for farmers.

These will be staffed by agricultural researchers and Co-operative Extension Service specialists and agents, who will have recommendations on topics ranging from animal nutrition and health care practices to farm pond management and field crop insect and disease control.

Free bus shuttles to agricultural research sites will operate out of the visitors' parking lot every 15 minutes from 9 a.m. to noon daily.

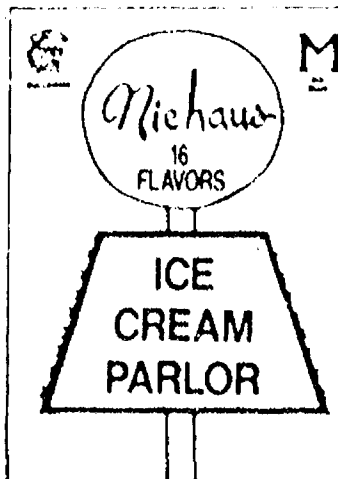

During the tour, participants will learn how remote sensing can be used in agricultural production, inspect weed control experiments in soybeans, try their hand at weed identification, learn about animal diagnostic services at the MSU Veterinary Clinical Center, see the MSU dairy barns and visit the endocrine research center.

A variety of aerial and ground spraying demonstrations will be held each afternoon from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Visitors wanting to bone up on current developments in field crop, vegetable and fruit crop protection may catch the free bus shuttle to the demonstration site at the visitors' parking lot. A bus leaves every 15 minutes.

Ag Expo will be located on MSU's south campus at Farm Lane and Mt. Hope Rd. The route to Ag Expo from I-96 and I-69, which border the MSU campus, will be clearly marked.

Howdy Holmes Walks Away Unhurt from MIS 500 Accident

Howdy Holmes escaped injury in a crash on the 201st lap of the Michigan International Speedway 500-mile race at Brooklyn last Saturday.

"He's perfectly all right," said his father, Howard Holmes, president of Chelsea Milling Co. "I was at the race and saw the accident, and I consider it a miracle that he got out of the car and walked."

Holmes' machine crashed into a car driven by Gary Bettenhausen, which had hit the wall and spun back into the middle of the track.

"Howdy tried to go around but couldn't see through the smoke, and collided with Bettenhausen's car. Fortunately, he had a chance to hit his brakes and stop his engine. Otherwise, the crash would have occurred at better than 200 miles an hour."

"The other car was lifted into the air and came down on top of Howdy's car. Howdy ducked down into his cockpit and so avoided a head injury. He had to let go of the steering wheel in order to save himself."

The two cars stayed locked together for several seconds, before Bettenhausen's racer rolled off, luckily landing right-side-up. Bettenhausen likewise was unhurt.

Two drivers coming up from behind, Bobby Rahal and Al Holbert, collided while braking to avoid the crash scene in front of them. Rahal suffered a bruised shin. Holbert was unhurt.

The accident-marred race apparently was won by Mario Andretti, although Tom Sneva (Holmes' teammate) and Rick Mears, who finished second and third, planned to file protests charging that Andretti made illegal passes while the yellow caution flag was out.

There were 12 accidents altogether, and two drivers—Chip Ganassi and Phil Wilfred Lane, II, Attends ROTC Basic Summer Camp

Wilfred C. Lane, II, son of Wilfred C. and Donna E. Lane of 636 N. Main St., Chelsea, has completed training in fundamental military skills at the Army ROTC basic camp at Fort Knox, Ky.

The basic camp is designed to give junior college graduates and college sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. The camp also qualified high school graduates for the ROTC program at any of the nation's six military junior colleges.

During the encampment, cadets received training in basic rifle marksmanship, military drill and ceremonies, communications and individual and small unit tactics.

Lane plans to enter the ROTC program at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

Kreuger—were badly hurt. Both suffered serious head injuries.

The winning speed was relatively slow 133.462 miles per hour as the racers were repeatedly forced to heed the yellow flag while wreckage was cleared from the course.

"I have to wonder about that track and whether it's safe for Indy-type cars going at better than 200 miles an hour," the elder Howard Holmes said. "My son had told me before the race that the track was bumpy and dangerous to drive on. All those accidents proved to me that he was right."

"I'll tell you, it's terrible to sit and watch anybody get into an accident, and it's even worse when your son is involved. Mrs. Holmes and I are still shaking, and we both wish Howdy would give it (auto racing) up. The risks are too high."

Holmes' car was not totaled and can be repaired, his father said, and he has a back-up car to drive while his March-Cosworth machine is being put back together.

"Howdy was lucky in that way, as well as in not being hurt," Howard Holmes said. "Some of the other cars wrecked in the race literally had to be swept up with brooms. There was nothing left but little pieces. It was frightening."

Howdy Holmes Makes Big Hit in Appearance Here

It's easy to understand why Ann Arbor's Howdy Holmes is one of the most popular drivers on the big-car automobile racing circuit.

This reporter met him for the first time last Tuesday afternoon when Holmes brought his racing car and himself into the Chelsea Milling Co. parking lot for a personal appearance.

The visit had not been publicized in advance, yet well over 200 persons turned out to look at the race car and talk to its driver. Holmes had a supply of 175 pictures which he patiently autographed and passed out to the long line of people who wanted to meet him and take home some memento. He ran out of pictures but kept on signing any piece of paper put into his hands.

A sudden thunderstorm came up, complete with hail, heavy rain and lightning. Holmes took time out to help his crew members put his racing machine under cover in the boxcar-like truck trailer used to haul it from one track to another, then came back to talk to more people and sign more autographs. He was sopping wet when he finally called it quits.

"I like doing this," Holmes said. "I like meeting people of all ages, from little kids on up. It's part of the fun of being a driver. People give me their support, and I try to give them something back."

It was a difficult interview, as Holmes tried to answer questions in between his chats with autograph-seekers. He talked to everybody and managed to handle a difficult situation with people crowding around him.

Howdy is the son of Howard Holmes, president of Chelsea Milling. He made his appearance in Chelsea while on his way to compete in a race at the Michigan International Speedway track near Brooklyn.

Some excerpts from a somewhat disconnected interview:

"We're doing well. We're among the top 10 on the circuit this year, and I believe we can stay up toward the top."

Holmes uses the word "we" deliberately, crediting his crew for preparing the car to run. "All I do is drive it," he said. "If it wasn't ready to go, I couldn't do anything with it. You feel kind of silly sitting out in the middle of the track with a dead engine."

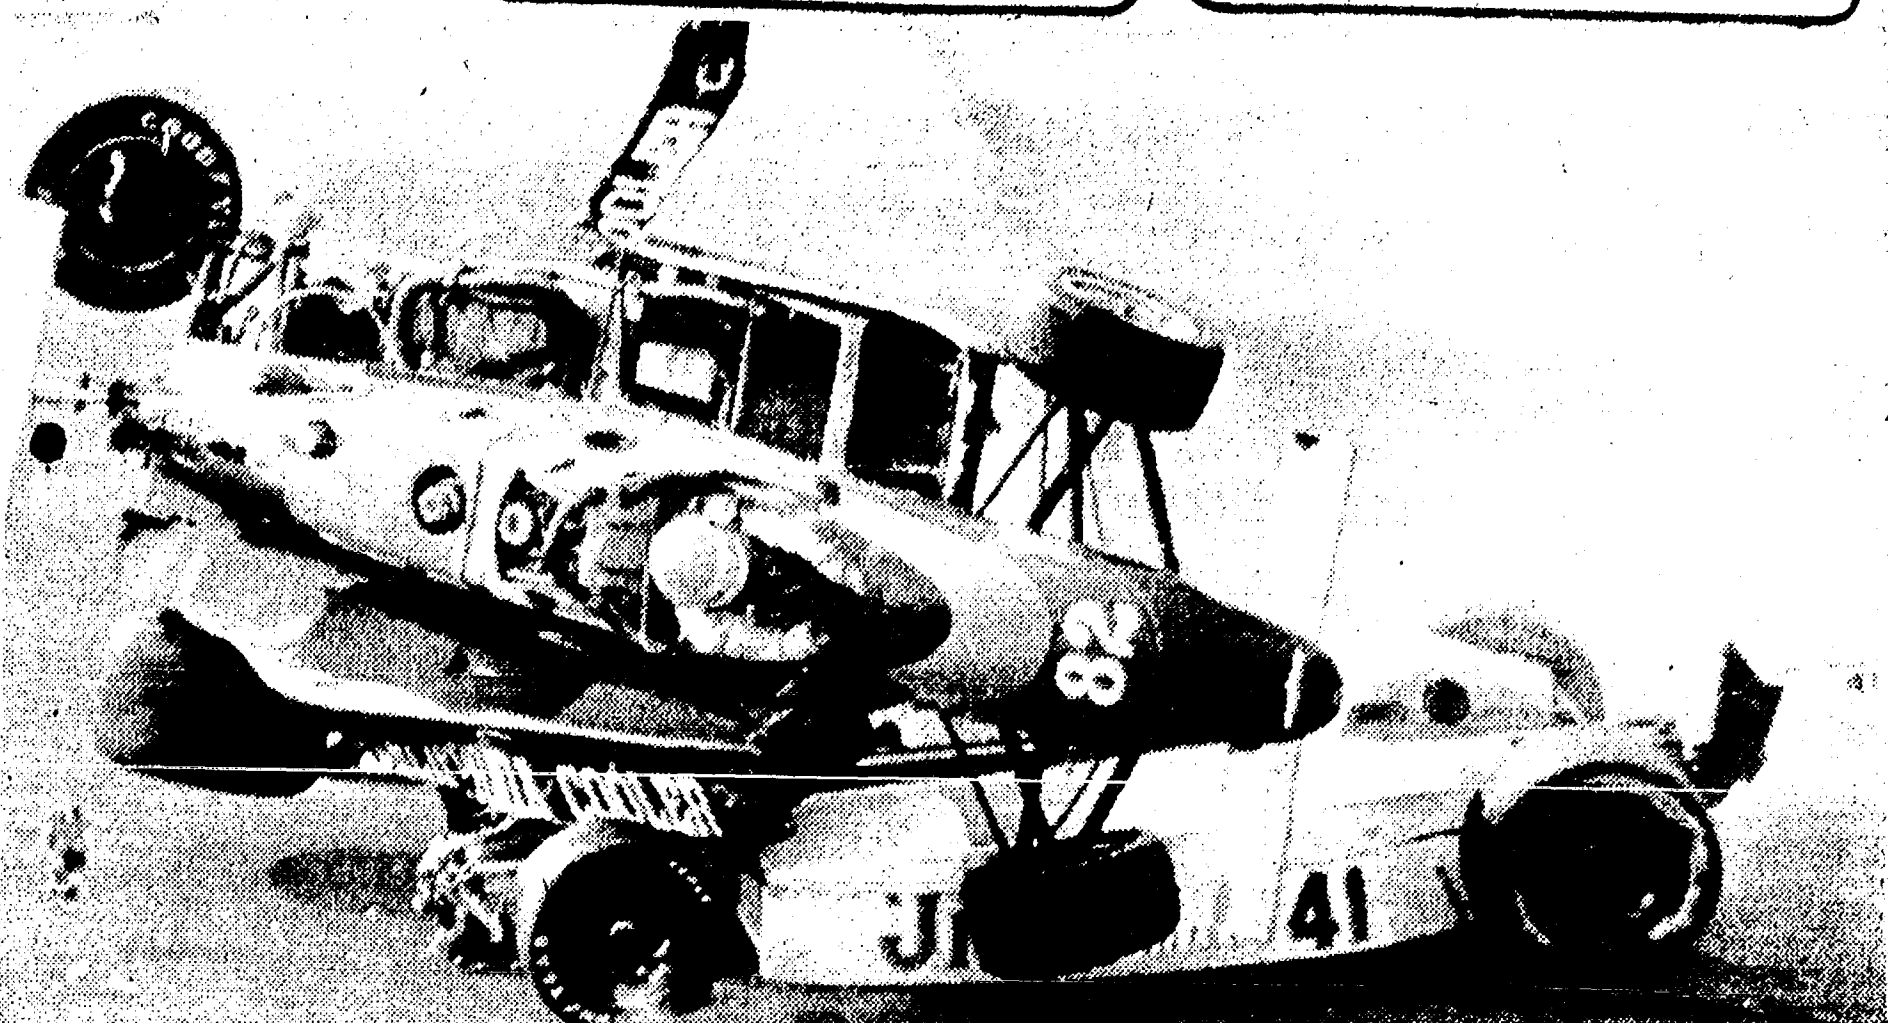

"The car I'm driving now isn't the same one that I drove at Indy (the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on May 28) but it's similar."

"The car at Indy just plain didn't run right. It handled very badly. I was lucky to finish. We had some last-minute ignition and steering problems, and we couldn't get them fixed right in the time we had."

Holmes qualified the car in the front row but dropped back right after the start of the race and pulled into the pits after five laps.

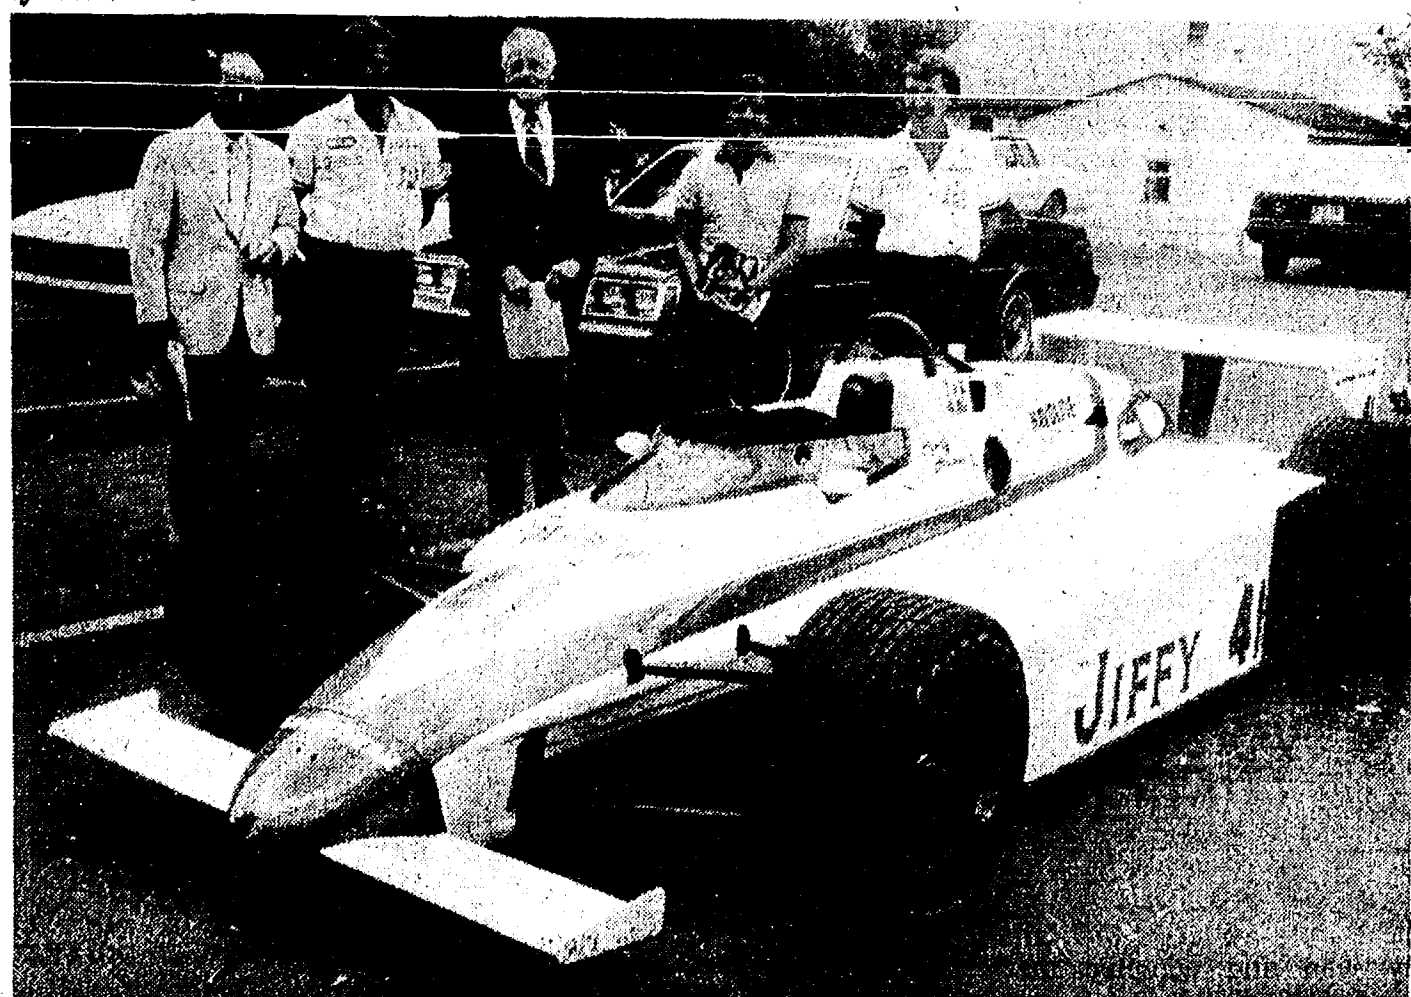

"We made some adjustments, but they took 15 minutes and cost nine laps," Holmes said. "There was no way I could catch up. I just kept on driving and wound up 13th. I'm kind of surprised that I was still running at the end. I sure wasn't going to gain on anybody."

Chelsea Baseballers End Losing Streak

Chelsea's week-day baseball team finally stopped its losing streak at five on July 17 in its only action of the week, defeating Morgan Insurance, 6-2.

Chelsea was out-hit, 6-5, but Morgan Insurance helped out with six walks and a hit batsman.

Chelsea took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the second as Don Bellus led off with a double and Rob Murrell walked. Jeff Larson singled Bellus home and Charlie Koenn singled to score Murrell.

In the fourth Chelsea gave Morgan Insurance their two runs on a bases-loaded throwing error. Chelsea bounced back with three runs in their fourth on one big hit—an inside the park homer by Dave Boote. Tony Hammerschmidt and Ray Spencer scored in front of him.

In the fifth, Larson hit his second single of the game and eventually scored on a bounce-out by Spencer, to make the final score 6-2.

Dan Bellus did an excellent job on the mound for Chelsea as he evened his record at 4-4. He allowed six hits while walking two and hitting one batter. He struck out 12, a season high.

Bellus also picked off two base-runners.

Chelsea committed five errors to put Bellus in a couple of jams, but he pitched his way out and should have had a shut-out.

With the win Chelsea raised its record to 4-7 with one game remaining on the schedule.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

I'm sorry and may be dumb besides, but I just plain can't follow the logic of those who insist that Eastern Michigan University must keep its football program in order to maintain its standing as an educational institution.

EMU is under an order to either drop football from its athletic program or get out of the Mid-America Conference. The MAC wants to maintain its status in Division I-A, and EMU can't meet the requirement of 17,000 average attendance for home grid games.

Eastern has attracted about 6,000 spectators per game over a disastrous period of four years during which the Hurons have won exactly three times. They were 0-11 last year, and their prospects for this fall are little if any better.

EMU likewise has had trouble winning in basketball, but has sponsored excellent teams in baseball, swimming, track, softball and several other sports.

One question from this observer is, why not keep what is working and drop what isn't? A corollary question is, why worry about membership in the MAC and division I-A status?

I really get lost when the discussion turns to whether EMU can maintain its standing as a good school if it gives up football. I just plain don't see any connection between academics and athletics. They are separate functions of a university, and they have nothing to do with each other except that athletes are required to go to classes and earn passing grades.

The University of Michigan has recognized the distinction by establishing an athletic department which is entirely apart from the rest of the institution. The athletic department runs its own show, hires its own staff, administers its own budget, recruits its own athletes. The program is enormously successful, especially in football which is the big money-maker.

I suggest, however, that the U. of M. would retain its recognition as one of America's top 10 academic universities if it dropped its entire athletic program tomorrow and never got back into the sports business. I happen to have academic degrees from two outstanding schools—the U. of M. and Columbia University. The stories of Michigan's Saturday football games are front-paged in the sports sections of just about every Sunday newspaper in the country. It's hard to find the score of a Columbia contest in the fine-print listings.

The fact that Michigan year in and year out plays an excellent brand of major-college football, and Columbia doesn't, in no way diminishes the value of my Columbia diploma. I didn't go to Columbia to play or watch football. I enrolled because it had—and still has—one of the three best journalism schools in the nation, and I wanted to earn a master's degree there.

Memories go back to 1940 when the University of Chicago gave up football following an 85-0 pasting by Tom Harmon and teammates from Ann Arbor. Chicago has gotten along very nicely ever since without benefit of football.

Regular readers of this column know that I am not anti-sports. I used to love to play games of all kinds, still do participate in some, consistent with my age and physical abilities, and enjoy watching athletic contests of almost every kind. Sports are in my blood.

What bothers me is the implication, expressed by some news reporters and even by some EMU administrators, that Eastern Michigan will go down the tube as a university if it quits playing inter-collegiate football at the division I-A level.

I can understand the concern of coaches who will have to find new jobs if football is dropped, and also that of the 100 or so athletes attending EMU on scholarships which require that they play football as a condition of attending the school. Those scholarships, offered and accepted in good faith, should be honored for their duration. Possibly some special transfer opportunity should be offered to those athletes who want to go on playing football somewhere. A waiver of the rule that costs transfer students a year of athletic eligibility might be in order.

Meanwhile, Eastern should get on with its primary job of educating students who are there for reasons other than football.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Unless I am badly mistaken, a bumper crop of wildlife is being raised around here this spring and summer.

I can't recall ever having seen so many young animals of so many kinds—cottontail rabbits, fox squirrels, gray squirrels, raccoons, opossums, woodchucks, chipmunks, you name it.

It's difficult to drive around without running over some young critter that hasn't learned to dodge the hazards of traffic. I've been lucky so far this year and have managed to avoid hitting anything, but my brakes have taken a lot of punishment.

Birds seem to be doing well, too. Never before have I observed so many mourning doves, a mixed blessing. The doves wake me up at the crack of dawn every morning when they sound off with their coo-coo cry, a noise I could do without when I'm trying to catch an extra few minutes of sleep before rising and going to work.

There are other birds around my Chelsea home. I can distinguish the calls of cardinals, wood thrushes, robins, and a couple of species of sparrows. The squawks of blue jays and the caws of crows are unmistakable—and loud. Starlings, blackbirds and grackles add to the din that wakes me up about 5:30 every morning. I wish they would all wait awhile before trumpeting the arrival of a new day. I'm not quite ready that early.

The rabbit population is astounding. I've seen as many as six at a time in my back yard, where they come out to nibble on the clover late in the evening, and re-appear early in the morning while I sit drinking coffee and looking out my patio door.

Squirrels come around and drink from the bird bath which my wife gave me as a birthday present, and one managed to tip the bowl over, a rather remarkable feat considering that the bowl weighs at least 20 pounds. For some reason, the birds ignore the offering of water to bathe in and drink. I keep hoping they will accept and use it, as they did my feeder last winter. I enjoy watching birds.

Driving around the nearby country-side, I see rabbits all over the place, and also woodchucks. The latter seem to like sitting in the middle of gravel roads. A couple of times I have had to stop the car, get out, and shoot young woodchucks away before proceeding. In no way will I kill anything needlessly if I can avoid it.

The waste of wildlife that I see along the roads—birds and animals that have been hit and killed by motor vehicles—is a wanton waste that could largely be avoided. During 44 years of driving I have hit a few wild things, and regretted every such accident, but I have missed a lot more by driving slowly and carefully along roads edged with obvious wildlife cover.

Raccoons can be a nuisance. They love to get into garbage cans and are perfectly capable of tipping them over to uncover the contents. Back when I owned a cottage in northern Michigan, I vowed a vendetta on coons that came up on the back porch and crashed my trash cans.

On the first night of my declared war, a female raccoon led four little ones into the yard. I turned on the lights and could have wiped out the whole family with a couple of loads from the 12-gauge shotgun that I held in my hands, but didn't have the heart to do it. Thereafter, I kept the garbage cans inside, and never had any more trouble. Live and let live.

I had a similar vexing experience with cowbirds, parasitic birds which lay eggs in the nests of other, more desirable species. The young cowbirds grow faster, and bigger, and crowd out or kill the rightful nestlings, usually song sparrows, chipping sparrows or yellow warblers.

I diminished the cowbird population somewhat, but there were always more. I finally concluded that it was a waste of time. Nature's way is best and cowbirds are part of the natural scheme. We never seemed to lack for sparrows and warblers of all species.

I wish I would see more pheasants in the mix of otherwise abundant wildlife that appears to be prospering this year. Pheasants are few and far between, but I have spotted a couple of broods and enough adults to reassure that the birds are hanging on hereabouts.

I still haven't seen or heard a quail, but some other people have, and so I am convinced that bobwhites have not been wiped out locally.

As for deer, they are all over the place, including my backyard which they regularly use as a walkway and sometimes stop to feed in. Just about every doe appears to have borne twin fawns.

The whole spectacle testifies to the remarkable ability of wildlife to triumph over adversity, given decent habitat. Last winter was the coldest since records have been kept, but the wild things survived and are replenishing their numbers at a remarkable rate.

Starting in the 1600s, it was the beaver pelt that lured Europeans to most of North America's wild reaches, say wildlife experts.

SPURTING YELLOW PAINT along the centers of roads throughout Washtenaw county this week and last, was this monstrous truck from General Pavement Marking Company of Leamon.

Gulls Everywhere in Michigan

The white body, gray wings and black wingtips of the seagull are familiar to most of us.

For many people, seeing a gull or hearing its familiar cry brings to mind pleasant images of blue water, blue sky and sunny vacations by the shore.

People who live with the gulls all the time, however, may see another side of this handsome bird. And people who see gulls only now and again under a variety of circumstances may find them a source of confusion.

The confusion begins with the seagull's name. These attractive gray and white birds are found around the Great Lakes, near inland lakes and ponds, in city playgrounds and shopping mall parking lots, and in freshly plowed fields far from any lake. Gulls are—but not necessarily seagulls.

Obviously gulls are extremely adaptable. Though they are true water birds, they are quite at home on land. Though we think of them as fish eaters, they will also eat worms and insects, fruits and fleshy vegetables, garbage, and scraps from a backyard cookout or picnic in the park.

Adults of the several species of gulls that live in Michigan look very much alike. The young, however, tend to look less like their parents than their parents look like other kinds of adult gulls. Young ringbill gulls, for example, have a pink bill and legs and plumage mottled in gray, brown and white the first year. Only after three years do these birds develop the adult's yellow bill with a black ring around it, yellow legs and snow white head and breast, gray wings and black wingtips.

The ringbill is about the size of a crow, so people who are familiar with it have the impression of the appropriate size for a gull. When they first encounter the herring gull, which is the size of a mallard duck or bigger but is superficially the ringbill's twin, they become confused just as I first did. "I had no idea gulls were so big!" is a typical comment.

Another gull just moving into Michigan from the north is even bigger than the herring gull. The great black-backed gull is so dark on its wings that it looks black. This gull and Bonaparte's gull, which has a jet-black head, are easy to recognize as adults, but except for size, their young and the young of other gulls can be quite confusing.

Becoming familiar with the habits of gulls may further alter an idealized image of the gull.

Though we think of gulls as fish eaters, we tend to think of them swooping down to snatch live fish from the waves rather than scavenging dead fish on the beach, but gulls play an important role in cleaning up dead or injured and dying fish in the lake and on the shore. They will scavenge garbage, too, as well as leftover fish bait.

They are also predators that prey on smaller birds. When gulls prey on newly hatched ducklings or cygnets where viewing these waterfowl is a local attraction, the white-wings-soaring-against-the-blue-sky image that so many people have of gulls often has to be revised.

White droppings-on-the-dock is a more down-to-earth problem that lakeshore dwellers often have to deal with. The droppings are abundant and, because much of the gull's diet consists of fish, very smelly. Gulls can make a slippery, smelly mess of any boat, pier, dock or raft on which they roost. In places like the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, gull droppings on catwalks pose a hazard to lock operators and engineers. When the droppings dry and oxidize, they become corrosive and can damage metal, wood finishes and cloth.

All this is not to suggest that gulls are devils rather than saints. It simply shows that they are adaptable, complex birds doing what they can to make a living. Sometimes that puts them in conflict with people, who

Ellis Pratt Seeking Commissioner Post

Ellis J. Pratt, of 11663 Pleasant Lake Rd., Freedom township, Manchester, is a Republican candidate for District I Commissioner.

District I takes in the townships of Lyndon, Sylvan, Lima, Sharon, Freedom, Lodi, Manchester, Bridgewater, Saline and York.

Pratt, a former farmer in Sharon township for 28 years, is presently a licensed realtor and appraiser with Spear & Associates, Inc.

Pratt has been active in the community, a life-time member of the Farm Bureau, serving as county chairman for two terms, and two-term president of the Township Zoning Board. He is a member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Manchester Fair Board, serving as president for several years. He and his wife are members of St. John's United Church of Christ, Ellis serving on the church council for 12 years and two years as president.

Ellis and his wife, Doris, have three children and six grandchildren.

ELLIS J. PRATT
In announcing his candidacy, Pratt feels that living in the middle of his district will be an asset. Pratt pledges to fully represent the people of his district by keeping spending down, keeping tax dollars local, reducing county spending and waste, helping to maintain local government and control.

O'Connor Supports Amendment Requiring U. S. Balanced Budget

State Representative Margaret O'Connor formally announced her support of the Federal Balanced Budget/Tax Limitation Amendment in a ceremony at the Capitol.

Rep. O'Connor said "The time has come for a constitutional solution to the problem of continual federal deficits. That we have had only one balanced federal budget in the last 25 years leads me to conclude that Congress will balance the budget regularly only if required to do so by a constitutional amendment. The Balanced Budget/Tax Limitation Amendment is an excellent solution, and should be adopted."

Paul Finney, Michigan coordinator for the National Tax Limitation Committee, hailed Rep. O'Connor's support of Senate Joint Resolution E—the Balanced Budget/Tax Limitation Amendment Resolution now pending in the Constitutional Revision and Women's Rights Committee of the Michigan House of Representatives. "I am delighted that Rep. O'Connor will be voting to petition Congress to approve the amendment. Her support is essential if we are to clean up the deficit mess in Washington once and for all. She will do Michigan and all America a favor as the Amendment, when ratified, will bring back single digit interest rates."

Senate Joint Resolution E passed the Michigan Senate April 18 by a vote of 23 to 15. Approval by the House of Representatives will bring to 33 the number of states petitioning Congress to approve the amendment or be faced with the need to call a constitutional convention under Article V of the U. S. Constitution.

The Balanced Budget/Tax Limitation Amendment requires Congress to balance the budget unless 60% of the whole membership of both Houses vote otherwise, or if a declaration of war is in effect. The Amendment passed the U. S. Senate in 1982 by a vote of 69 to 31; two more votes than the required two-thirds. The Amendment gained majority support in the U. S. House the same year, but fell 44 votes shy of the two-thirds required.

Action by the Michigan House will leave the country one state short of the 34 necessary for a constitutional convention. Finney said, "Historically it is at this point that Congress bows to the will of the people and approves the proposed Amendment. If the Michigan House acts this fall, Congress will act. Already we have signals in Washington from a number of past opponents in the House that they are ready to vote for the Amendment. We need only Michigan to tip the scales nationally."

Your Health Options

By Beverly Chethick
Director of Health Education, Washtenaw County Health Dept.

I've heard dumping oil pollutes our environment so I want to find a way to recycle my motor oil. Can you help me?

Dumping motor oil does contaminate the ground water and can be carried into our food. Even five parts per million gives our water a funny taste and smell and, according to the Ecology Center, less than 300 parts per million can ruin the taste of fish. Used oil should be recycled. It can be re-refined and reprocessed. Two local collection sites are Fletcher's Friendly Service in Chelsea and Dick's Place in Dexter.

It's easy to recycle your motor oil if you follow the following steps.

—First, drain your oil into a reusable container, like a gallon milk or cider jug, with a lid.

—Keep the container steady when it's being transported to the collection site. You can put the jug in a box and stuff newspapers around the jug.

—Bring the jug to one of the service stations or other businesses in this area that have agreed to recycle oil.

—Ask at the station where you should deposit your oil.

—Take your reusable container home with you so that you can fill it up when you drain the oil the next time.

It isn't difficult to recycle oil, and it is a good way to save energy and preserve the environment. If you have any additional questions, please call the Health Department at 973-1488 or 994-2492.

AGRICULTURE IN ACTION

★ Where Does The Money Go?

When consumers read the recent headline, "1983 Food Prices Rose the Least in 16 Years," some probably said, "Who are they kidding?"

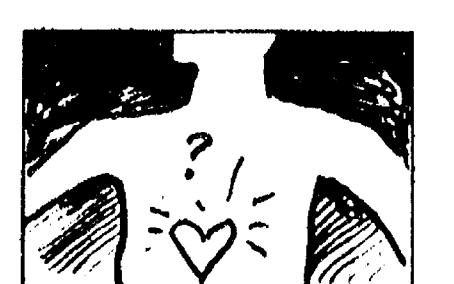

But according to a report from the National Economics Division of the Economic Research Service, it was the fifth consecutive year that food prices rose less than other prices.

Compared to the 2.1% rise in food prices, other major items in the Consumer Price Index increased more. Clothing rose 2.5%; housing, 2.7%; transportation, 2.4%; and medical care topped the list at 8.7%.

When we go back to the base year of 1967 and make a 16 year comparison, the trend is the same. While a half-gallon of milk increased 122%, the cost of a hospital room went up 485%!

While you're thinking about those health cost increases, add these facts about the other major item that is eroding your budget—taxes. Since 1973, federal taxes increased 158%, state taxes went up 152% and local taxes rose 108%.

When we look at these budget item increases, where's food? At the bottom of the list.

In ancient times, people believed that love resided in the liver, and not in the heart, as some say now.

VOTE AUGUST 7th RE-ELECT H. DOUGLAS SMITH Dexter Township Trustee

REPUBLICAN

For the past two years DOUG has demonstrated his concerns for constituents as a member of the Board.

He is township representative to the Washtenaw County Health Department. He attends monthly meetings of the Board of Health and monitors appeals of Dexter residents for variances from current regulations.

He is representative to the Upper Huron Preservation Group. This two-county, four-township group is studying alternatives to assist those who live in high density areas to reconstruct their septic systems and to utilize water saving equipment in an effort to conform to today's standards.

He is a member of the Huron River Area Association Steering Committee.

Doug believes in equal and uniform consideration for those constituents requesting appeals at hearings before the Dexter Zoning Board and the Dexter Board of Appeals.

He supports a specific NO to selective enforcement of the township's rules and regulations.

He is very involved in efforts to preserve recreational and ground water quality and has been successful in raising funds to provide for laboratory testing of water samples.

If re-elected to the Board, he will work to improve the relationship of the Board with all constituents.

Work Experience:

Retired from Ford Motor Company after 32 years performing administrative and accounting responsibilities. After retiring from Ford was self-employed as auditor for a Westland 750 unit Federal Housing Cooperative.

He has owned property in Dexter Township since 1952 and has lived permanently at his present residence since 1971. His daughter and son also live in Dexter township.

HOUSE CALL

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Chief Medical Executive

★ Low Level Radioactive Waste . . .

Michigan has taken the lead in dealing with a problem caused by the need to dispose of waste material contaminated by low levels of radiation. Such materials are generated by hospitals and other medical care facilities, universities, and industry, and pose a potential threat to health.

Recognizing a need for proper disposal of this kind of waste throughout the country, Congress in late 1980 adopted what it called the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act. This was enabling legislation under which the Michigan Legislature in 1982 passed a law establishing the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact.

Michigan Farmer To Head European Trade Mission

Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton R. Smith is heading a group of farm leaders on a trade mission, Aug. 13-20, in an effort to resolve agricultural trade barriers between the United States and the European Economic Community. Smith and a delegation of other state Farm Bureau presidents will visit with key agricultural leaders in Denmark, Germany, Belgium and France.

"This is a working group trying to stem the rising tide of protectionism. We'll be talking to producers and others interested in resolving the trade problems between this country and the EEC," Smith said.

"One of the biggest differences is philosophy between the U. S. and the EEC is that we're spending a lot of money in this country on farm programs to take acres out of production while the EEC is spending a lot of money to subsidize their products on the world market.

"It's hurting us with our markets and we've got to resolve those differences. The farmers of this nation can compete with farmers from any other nation in the world, but they can't compete with the treasuries of foreign countries," Smith said.

Smith said the group is concerned about the "wave of protectionism" in the U.S. "Everybody's looking toward quotas and tariffs and this is no way to expand world trade because other countries will retaliate against us if we go in that direction," he said.

In addition to meeting with government agricultural officials, the group will also visit with leaders of farm organizations in each of the countries.

Although an African hippopotamus is attractive to poachers for its ton of meat, and the ivory in its teeth, the ultimate threat facing hippos is the competition for living space with people. Africa's present human population of 460 million people is projected to reach 2.2 billion before it stops growing.

Laid-Off Workers May Be Eligible for Low Cost Health Care

Laid-off workers and their families living in Washtenaw county, may be eligible for primary health care and prescriptions at a reduced cost through a program based at the SOS Community Crisis Center. Entitled "Project Health Care," the program is accessible by calling 485-2299 between 8:30 a.m. and 12 noon, Monday through Friday.

The low-cost primary health care and prescription program is available to persons who are recently laid-off, without health insurance and are ineligible for Medicaid, Medicare, or General Assistance.

Project Health Care's Washtenaw County Health Services Referral Network is comprised of a panel of physicians, community service organizations, and area hospitals, who have agreed to provide low-cost health care to the recently unemployed.

In addition to the provision of low-cost primary health services, Project Health Care, with the cooperative efforts of the Monway Family Health Center, (the recipient agency for Federal Jobs Bill monies in Washtenaw county), may also provide discounted prescriptions, through participating pharmacies. The prescription assistance will run until Sept. 30, or until the designated Federal monies are exhausted.

All prescription drugs are included, except diet and fertility medications, and will be filled with generic equivalents wherever possible. No "over-the-counter" drugs are covered, except insulin. Patients will be responsible for a percentage of the cost of each drug prescribed (as determined by the Federal Poverty Guidelines), but not less than $2 per prescription drug. Prescriptions may be filled at designated local pharmacies.

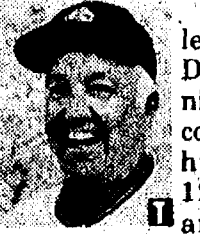

To be eligible for Project Health Care, recipients must be:

(1) a resident of southeastern

Michigan; (2) recently laid-off, or reside in households where the head of household is unemployed; (3) have no health insurance; and (4) be ineligible for Medicaid, Medicare, or General Assistance.

Project Health Care was formed in late 1980, to ensure that health care services be available to the residents of the metropolitan Detroit area who have recently been laid-off. In addition to the Washtenaw County Referral Network, there are four other Health Services Referral Networks, serving Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, and St. Clair counties. The Project receives support and direction from a special Task Force, comprised of representatives from area medical and osteopathic societies, community human service agencies, labor unions, hospitals, businesses, and many others. The S.O.S. Community Crisis Center is a Washtenaw United Way Agency.

Today's Investor

By Thomas E. O'Hara
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Assoc. of Investment Clubs
& Editor, Better Investing Magazine

Q. I have heard people talk about the "Beta" of a stock. I don't understand what that term means. Would you explain what it means and tell me if it is an important consideration when you are buying a stock.

A. The term "Beta" is well known to professional investors, but is not a common term to most of the public. The factor is listed by the Value Line Investment Survey for stocks that it covers.

The concept of the Beta is not hard to understand. It is an effort to measure the volatility of a stock. That is, does the stock move as much, or more, or less than the market in general. It has been observed that if the market goes up 10%, a particular stock may move up 15%, another may go up only 5%, while another may go up 20%. The reverse may be true when the market goes down. Thus the beta is a way of estimating the extra opportunity of a stock on the upside and the risk on the downside. The higher the beta of a stock, the more volatility.

The calculations are done in reference to the market averages. Therefore, the beta of the market is set at 1.0. A stock's deviation from the market is studied over a period of time, based on weekly prices. If the tendency of the stock is to move up or down more rapidly than the market in general, the beta will be larger than one. A beta of 1.25 means the stock has had a record of moving 25% more than the market in general. Should another stock have a beta of 0.90, it could be expected to be 10% less volatile than the general market. There is no guarantee the stock will move the same way in the future as it has in the past.

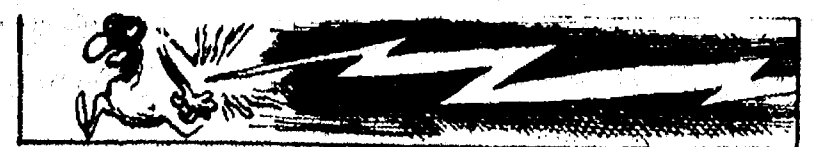

The investor should keep in mind that the beta changes with experience. As with many measures of the market, it helps to try to develop a broad understanding and recognize the principles at work. The beta tells you about past experience, and while that is important information, it is not a guarantee of the future.

CONRAIL WORKING CREW strengthens bridge at the main drain of Mill Creek along Dexter-Chelsea Rd. A steady stream of water, particularly active in the spring months, erodes the concrete of this bridge, upstream, and workers are now building a new floor and adding a 12-inch vertical wall to the overflow channel on the easternmost section of the bridge. Top photo shows Jesse Hammond adding fuel to the pump used to temporarily re-route the water as the men build forms and add the new concrete. In center photo, Don Leatherman, at left, and Juan Jacobs, prepare to rewind the hose from the pump, and Mike Soltis tosses a pair of short waders back on the Conrail truck, in lower photo. The project will keep the work crew busy at least another week.

Cyclists Order Green Bananas For a Reason

Ever hear of a "bicycle banana"?

A news reporter never had either until he talked to John Hillemonds and his daughter, Carol, of Ann Arbor early one recent morning at Veterans Park in Chelsea.

The Hillemonds were in charge of providing refreshments for bicyclists participating in "One Helluva Ride" sponsored by the Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society.

They were dropping off part of a car-and-trailer load of food which included 75 cases of assorted fruit—bananas, nectarines, plums—plus 100 pounds each of roast beef and cheese.

The reporter noted that the bananas were green and therefore not very appealing to the eye and appetite.

"Those are 'bicycle bananas,'" Hillemonds explained. "We order them green."

"You can take one of those green bananas and put it inside your shirt, and your body heat will ripen it during a couple of hours of riding. Then you can take it out and eat it. If the banana was ripe to start, it would be rotten in two hours."

You learn something new every day.

Facetious and abstemious are the only two words in the English language that contain the vowels a, e, i, o, and u—in that order.

Model T Ford Club Tour Scheduled July 26

The Model T Ford Club will sponsor a tour on Thursday, July 26, which is scheduled to pass through Chelsea between 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. and through Dexter between 3 and 4 p.m.

The tour will begin and end at the Holiday Inn at the corner on I-275 and Six Mile Rd. in Livonia and will cover about 140 miles. About 200 cars are expected.

Other check-points include Manchester between 2-3 p.m. and Hudson Mills Metropark, 3:30-4:30.

Ford Motor Co. built the Model T from 1909 to 1927. Some changes were made, but it remained the same basic car during the 18 years. More than 15 million of the vehicles were produced, and it is estimated that 200,000 or more still exist.

Nobody knows how long a Model T Ford will last, because the old ones that have been taken care of are still running. They outlast their owners and pass on down. Parts are being re-manufactured and are available.

Given the average three-year lifetime of a modern automobile, the Model T stands as a monument to the designing and engineering skills of Henry Ford. He built his cars to last, and they have.

Postal Inspectors Warn on COD Misrepresentations

Numerous complaints nationwide are being received concerning vacation packages being offered by various firms through use of COD Service.

The Postal Inspection Service has reported initial contact with the public is made via the phone or postcard to notify the recipient that they have been selected by computer to receive an exciting three-day, two-night vacation in "one of 32 different major resort areas including Atlantic City, Mexico City, Canada or the all new Disney World Epcot Center."

They are promised first class accommodations for four and as a further enticement to accept the package, a coupon for a lifetime supply of Kodak color film and several hundred dollars of vacation discount books is offered. For their part, recipients are asked to accept a COD package through the mail usually costing $39 to cover the expenses incurred in the processing and handling of the vacation package.

Investigation by U. S. Postal Inspectors disclosed recipients were led to believe no other additional payments or fees would be necessary. Upon receipt of their free gifts, however, customers noted the packages did not include transportation to or from the resort areas, many additional fees and surcharges were required, and the free film and vacation discount books were only available if additional payments were made for processing and handling.

Based on early inquiries about the travel offer, thousands of victims nationwide are losing money to this scheme. With summer approaching, similar schemes may appear. Consumers are asked to check the legitimacy of the advertisement and company before accepting a COD. The U. S. Postal Service allows customers to read and copy the name and address of the mailer from COD mail while the mail is in the possession of a postal employee. The addressee always has the option to refuse or accept delivery of a COD article.

The majority of business people who use the mails are legitimate and ethical in the conduct of their businesses, Postal Inspectors say. To avoid problems, consumers receiving COD's through the mail should deal with reputable firms known to the consumer. If COD merchandise is unsatisfactory, the consumer should first correspond with the sender. If consumers believe a mailer is involved in blatant merchandise misrepresentation, they may refer the information to their local postmaster.

Manchester Superintendent Given High Grade

During a recent evaluation session the Board of Education of the Manchester Community Schools gave Superintendent Gene Thompson an over-all grade A- on his performance during the past school year.

Thompson who has been superintendent of the Manchester schools since 1979 was cited as doing excellent work in the area of board relations, information dissemination, fiscal management, facilities management, curriculum development, management of student services, and his own professional development.

Thompson commented, "The board felt that we need to do more work in the area of long range planning. They indicated that this is an area upon which I should concentrate during the coming year. I agree wholeheartedly. On my self evaluation I indicated that I felt this was an area in need of attention. I am extremely pleased with my board's assessment of my work. We have developed a close working administrative unit in the Manchester schools. It is always nice to have one's work appreciated and supported. Comments such as I received from the board motivate me to double my effort."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I am tired of seeing old yard-sale signs on telephone poles long after the sale has ended.

Can't the persons having the sale be gracious enough to remove the sign after the sale has ended?

It amazes me that a person can keep an old sign up for more than two weeks (I've seen one) and not be fined for littering.

So what can be done about old signs so as not to confuse the yardsale goers? Since fines are not practical for Chelsea's police then people have to be responsible, and courteous to take down the signs after the sale.

Some suggestions:
Don't put the signs all over town. You may forget where you put them.

Run an ad in the local newspaper. You'll get great results, lots of customers. But most of all, be responsible, when having a sale and make sure your signs are taken down at the end.

Adams To Teach at Purdue University

Ronald Adams is one face you won't be seeing in Chelsea for the next few years. Adams landed a teaching assistantship at Purdue University where he plans to pursue his doctorate.

The job begins Aug. 15. Adams is selling his house to make the move to Lafayette, Ind.

To enter the five-year PhD program, Adams had to score in the top 10 percent on the entrance exam.

Adams' doctorate and teaching position will concern English rhetoric and composition.

Adams' wife, Kathleen Adams, will also make the move. She just completed her bachelors of science in nursing.

Carl Lesser is GOP Candidate for Supervisor

According to Carl Lesser, government is by the people, for the people, and he's willing to listen to the people before making decisions if he's elected Dexter township supervisor.

"I am a candidate not because I need another job but in a Democratic Republic all qualified citizens have the civic duty to make themselves available for public office. I have been asked by my neighbors to be a candidate," said Lesser.

Lesser has lived all his life in Dexter township including 33 years at his present residence, 8521 Island Lake Rd. He is a Dexter High school graduate and of Michigan State short course in agricultural economics.

If elected, Lesser would bring plenty of civic experience to the job. He currently serves on the Washtenaw Farm Council, the Advisory Board to the First of America Dexter branch, and as secretary to the Manchester branch of the Michigan Livestock Exchange.

Past honors include the presidencies of the 4-H County Council, 4-H County Service Club, Washtenaw Farm Council and Washtenaw County Farm Bureau. He was a board member of the Washtenaw County Fair Society, Washtenaw Farmers Oil Co., Washtenaw County Livestock Association, Michigan Farm Policy Development Association and Dexter Cooperative Co., currently Dexter Mill.

Lesser was also a delegate to the Republican State Convention. A former trustee of the Dexter township board. He has been a self employed farmer all his life.

"I don't believe the issues on a township level need a lot of specialized training but they do need expertise and my guidance is common sense. Where I'm not capable and don't know, I try to find someone who does know. I admit I don't know everything but I'm capable of learning," said Lesser.

Lesser would not speculate how he will solve Dexter township's problems until he has studied the issues of the office, although he says there doesn't appear to be any emergency problems.

"The office became vacant and I allowed myself to become a candidate, not because I'm against how things have been done or because I have some program I would like to see initiated. I have no axe to grind," he said.

"I've been a resident of the township all my life. I believe I have something to contribute. I stand for fair and equitable distribution of the township funds as well as enforcement of township ordinances. I don't believe in accepting favors and having to give favors in return," he said.

"The pollution of the lakes is not a problem Lesser will be able to solve overnight, he said. He will study the problem and leave the solution to the people involved.

"I think the pollution of the lakes problem is a concern of the property owners around there and the people that use the lakes more than the resident at the other side of the township. Where you have a common problem, it's a problem of the whole township and where you have a sectional problem, I think it should be treated as sectional," said Lesser.

Lesser's work as township supervisor if elected will be governed by two philosophies.

"One, that government which governs least governs best. Two, if you want a job done right, do it yourself," he said.

Kidney Foundation Denies Stories of Label Campaigns

Throw away those cigarette wrappers, computer price codes and pop can tops. The rumors are wrong. The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan, Inc. is not sponsoring a campaign to save these items in order to buy kidney patients time on a dialysis machine.

But if you still want to help kidney patients, you can sign an organ donor label to will your kidneys after death or you can help the foundation in their public education efforts.

According to Lili M. Donaldson of the Foundation, any kidney patient who needs dialysis or a transplant can get the treatment without fear of personal cost. The federal government pays 80 percent of dialysis or transplant costs for most patients. The rest can be covered by private health plans and other government programs.

For further information about the foundation, call 1-800-482-1455.

Fire Dept. Calls Up from Last Year

Chelsea's fire department is 64 alarm runs ahead of last year, according to statistics compiled through June by chief Paul Hankerd. The comparable numbers are 215 and 161.

June runs totalled 38, compared to 26 in the same month last year.

In accord with the recent pattern, fire alarms during June were few, but calls to respond to medical emergencies and automobile accidents were many, accounting for 23 of the 38 summonses.

Twelve of the 38 calls originated in the village of Chelsea and nine in Sylvan township. Lima township contributed five and Lyndon four. The rest were scattered.

No seriously damaging fires were reported during the month.

Bankruptcy Law Changes Designed To Protect Farmers

Congress has passed and sent to President Reagan a compromise bill reorganizing U. S. bankruptcy courts, with a provision protecting farmers who have grain stored in bankrupt elevators.

"The new law is just about everything we lobbied for," said Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau. "We are especially pleased with the provision allowing courts to establish a 120-day timetable for the disposition to receipt holders of grain stored in bankrupt elevators."

When assets of an elevator are divided, the first $2,000 of individual farmers' claims will be awarded before any other claim.

'Food for Peace' Program 30th Anniversary Marked

Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton R. Smith was a guest of President Reagan at the White House on July 10 to celebrate the 30th anniversary of PL 480, the nation's Food for Peace program.

The idea for PL 480, an ongoing humanitarian effort that has supplied more than $33 billion in food aid to more than 100 countries since its inception, originated from a community Farm Bureau discussion group in Michigan. The group's proposal made its way through Farm Bureau's grassroots policy development process to become a policy of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The organization actively supported the legislation when it was introduced in Congress and PL 480 was signed into law in 1954 by then-President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

During the Food for Peace anniversary celebration, President Reagan announced his plan to create a $50 million fund for emergency food aid to needy countries, with the money coming from budgeted foreign aid resources.

To speed delivery to drought-stricken African nations, President Reagan proposed to warehouse supplies in selected Third World countries. This move would cut delivery time to as little as two weeks, compared to the current response time of three to six months, he said.
