The fluoroscopic equipment in the foreground is part of the new equipment being installed in the radiology department at Chelsea Community Hospital.

DR. JANET K. BAUM of the radiology department at Chelsea Community Hospital, shows how the new table tilts vertically to aid both the comfort and evaluation of the patient. The procedure she demonstrates is just one very obvious advantage that the newer equipment provides.

Chelsea Hospital Radiology Equipment Being Replaced

Replacement of the radiographic/fluoroscopic equipment is underway in one room of the radiology department at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Request to replace the 10½-year-old existing equipment was made to provide better diagnostic capabilities possible with the more updated machine. Fluoroscopic studies made during certain tests, such as GI's, will show clearer detail for technician viewing over a closed circuit screen, and the different sized film used will cut the already minimal radiation exposure even more.

The equipment has been purchased by the hospital from Picker Corp., based in Cleveland, and will take approximately three weeks to properly install.

The supplier was chosen over others because of a history of reliability, a reasonable warranty, and an exceptional future service policy. Fast, trustworthy repair is especially important to smaller hospitals with limited available equipment.

When the initial installation is completed, a company inspector will be sent as a follow-up check before the State Department of Health inspects to make sure all is operating within safe range.

The equipment is expected to benefit all patients and faster exposure capabilities will be especially beneficial to sicker or more elderly patients who have the most difficult time cooperating with technicians during x-ray taking procedures.

Depot Lease Issue Remains Stalled While Building Is Neglected

The proposed village lease of the Amtrak depot remains under the study of lawyers for both sides while the half-painted building continues to sit there and slowly rot away.

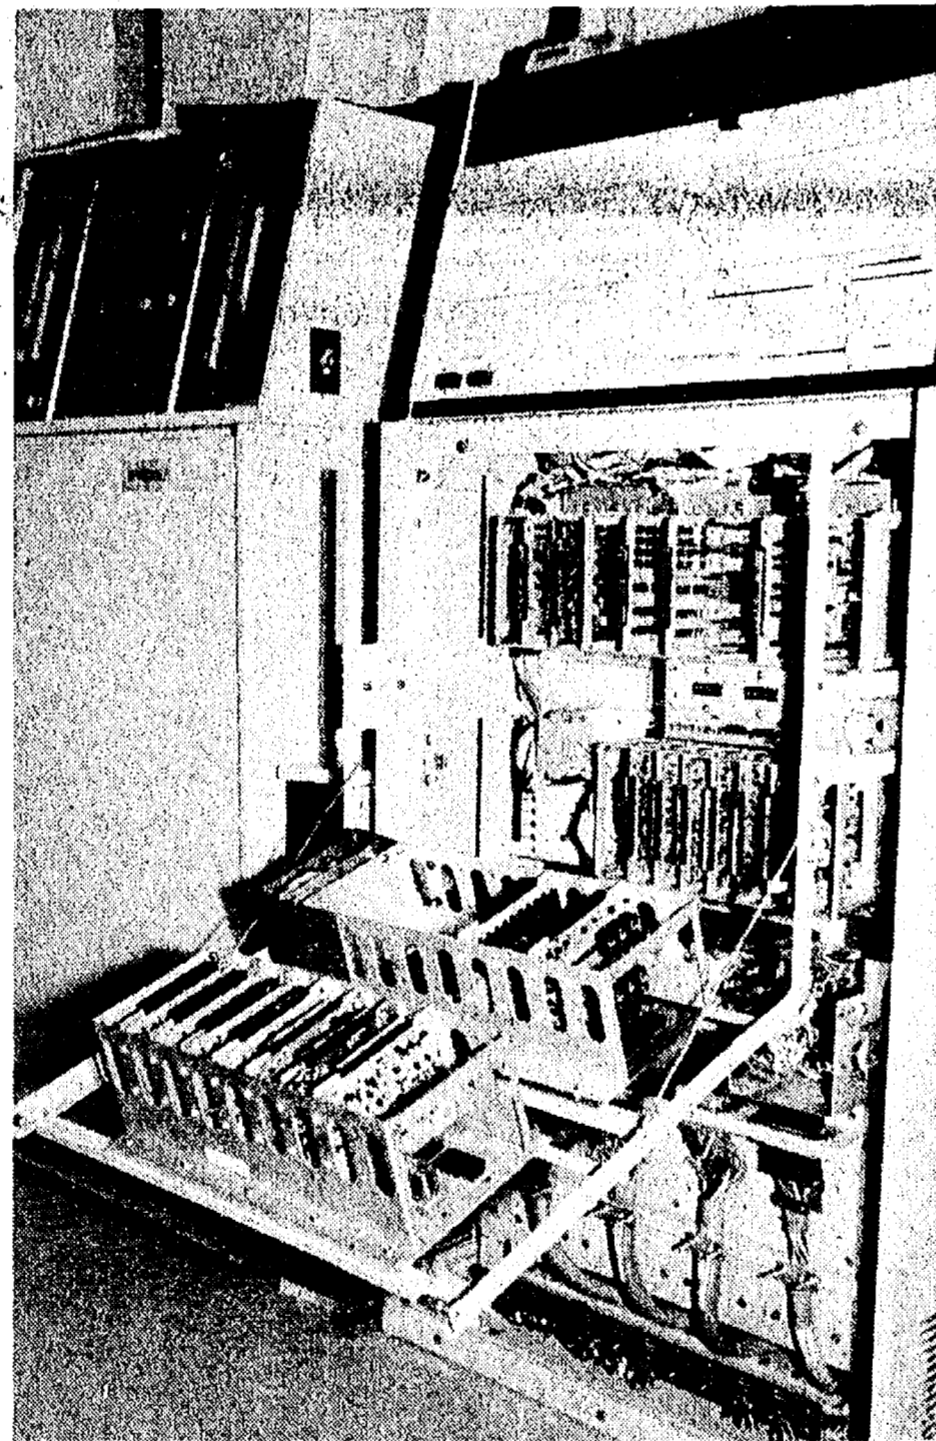

A news reporter's question asked at the Feb. 5 meeting of the Chelsea board of trustees brought this response from president Jerry Satterthwaite:

'We're still working on it. We've gone back to them (the backers of the proposed lease agreement) and asked them to come up with something different that we can agree to. We're still interested and hope to come to terms. That's about all I can tell you right now.'

A further complication which has arisen since is the President's budget proposal that a federal subsidy—amounting to $35 per passenger nationally—be withdrawn from Amtrak.

If Congress approves that suggestion, Amtrak will go out of business, and the future of its properties, which include the Chelsea depot, will be clouded in bankruptcy proceedings. The building is already mortgaged, according to informed sources.

Last December Amtrak offered to lease the Chelsea depot for $1 a year for 30 years, insisting that the village government be responsible as the only legal entity guaranteed to be in ex-

Postage Rates Rise By About 10 Percent On All Kinds of Mail

Rates for all classes of mail, box rentals and other post office services went up an average of 10 percent effective last Sunday, Chelsea postmaster Larry Williams said.

'It's extremely complicated,' Williams added. 'I have a 47-page booklet of fine print from Washington announcing all the increases. In general, everything is up.'

For most users of the postal service, the two most important increases are:

1. An increase in the cost of a stamp needed to mail an ordinary letter first-class, up from 20 to 22 cents.

2. An increase in the postcard mailing rate from 13 to 14 cents.

Rates for other classes of mail went up by approximately the same percentage amount, Williams said, although there are some variations. For example, the cost of mailing a letter internationally increases from 40 to 44 cents.

Williams said the post office has 22-cent stamps available for sale. They don't show the 22-cent price but are marked with the letter "D."

Two-cent stamps can be bought to match up with left-over 20-centers, he added.

Commemorative stamps showing the new 22-cent first-class letter rate will be coming out soon, Williams said.

He noted that the postal increase is the first in three years and is less than the rate of inflation over that period. 'Inflation was about 14 percent, and our rates are up about 10 percent,' Williams explained. 'I think the higher charges should be considered in those terms.'

All post offices were closed last Sunday and also on Monday (Washington's Birthday observance), first two days of the new, higher rates.

'I suspect that anything mailed at the old rates and postmarked by 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon went through,' Williams said. 'Some mail posted after that time may be returned for additional postage.'

Farmers' Economic Plight Not Disaster Yet, But Could Be

Predictions of economic disaster for Washtenaw county farmers as a group are probably premature, although there undoubtedly are a few individuals in deep financial trouble.

That is the consensus of area officials who are in touch with the situation.

Of Washtenaw's 2,000 or so full-time farmers (as opposed to persons who cultivate a few acres in their spare time while working at other jobs) perhaps 50 are in deep enough trouble to cause them to declare bankruptcy and go out of business, said John Woodworth, supervisor of the Washtenaw county office of the Farmers Home Administration.

County farmers as a group have lost money during the past four crop-years, largely because of low market prices for field crops and livestock. The last profitable year for most was 1980. That is a generalization. Many farmers who had not gone heavily into debt to buy land and machinery, practiced good agriculture, had some luck with the weather, and broke even or better.

Last summer's June-August drought created a situation serious enough that Gov. James Blanchard proclaimed Washtenaw and 14 other Michigan counties "crop disaster areas," qualifying farmers for loans at 5 percent interest, well below the current borrowing rate of 12-13 percent.

It is common for farmers to take out loans in the spring to obtain money for seed, fertilizer and other planting costs. Such loans are customarily paid off when the crops are harvested and sold.

That strategy did not work very well last year, thanks to the drought. Yields ranged from 30 to 70 percent of normal and in many instances could not be sold for enough to pay off loans.

The drought was spotty. In general, the northern and western areas of the county suffered more than those to the south and east. Local showers in the nick of time saved the day for many farmers, and the difference between rain and no rain could often be measured in yards rather than miles.

A repeat of last summer's dry weather could create the kind of disaster that farmers in such states as Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska are already experiencing. Farmers in those states have been hurt badly by dry weather for two years in succession.

Woodworth estimated that Washtenaw farmers lost $30-$40,000 on average last year, and some were in the red by as much as $200,000.

Farmers in financial trouble are those who have already gone heavily into debt and no longer have enough equity in their land, buildings and equipment to guarantee repayment of new loans.

The 5 percent loans under the disaster-area declaration may not be available in such situations, Woodworth said.

'Some farmers just don't have security for any more loans,' he explained. 'Neither the Farmers Home Administration nor any other lending agency can loan money if there is no reasonable prospect of repayment. We have to stay solvent.'

The agency is prohibited by law from foreclosing in the case of an unpaid loan, and so must be especially careful about weighing risks.

A good crop year in 1985 could solve part of the problem, but it could also work the other way. If farmers plant heavily in hopes of recouping past losses, and overproduction results, market prices will be driven lower yet and income will not meet expectations.

Chelsea Schools Have Unexpected Long Vacation

Chelsea school district students got an unexpected long vacation this past week, thanks to a combination of bad weather and a scheduled "Patriots Week-end."

School was cancelled last Wednesday and Thursday because rural roads were unsafe for bus travel. Friday and Monday were holidays—a combination of Lincoln's and Washington's birthday observances.

'We've had that Patriots Week-end observance in our contract with the teachers for the last 10 or 12 years, assistant superintendent Fred Mills said. 'I don't know how many other districts in the area observe it, but it has become a tradition here.'

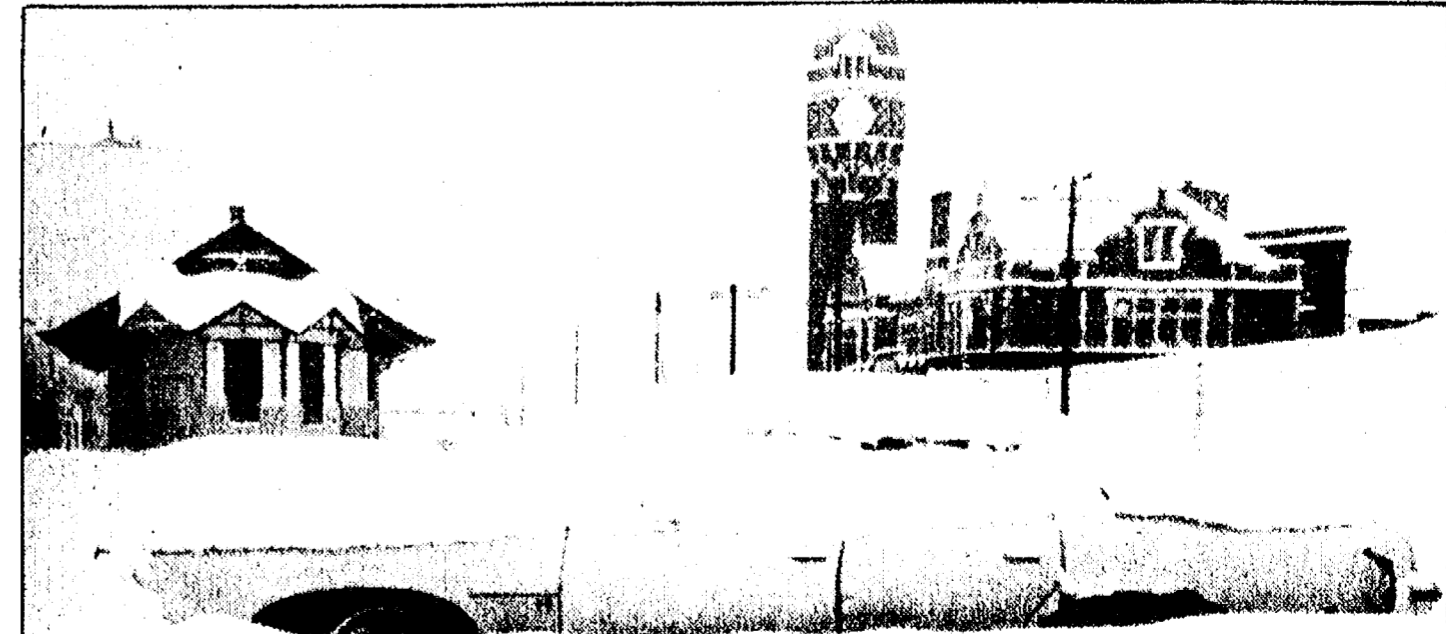

The weathered-out days will not be made up, Mills said, but that will change beginning next year under a new state law requiring a minimum of 180 days of school regardless.

Present law also prescribes a normal school year of 180 days but allows "snow days" to be subtracted. The new law requires that the lost days be made up.

'I'm not sure that is a good idea,' Mills said. 'It may tempt some schools to run their buses when they shouldn't, just to avoid a make-up day later on. We won't do that, I assure you. We won't take chances.'

Among Mills' duties is to check out road conditions early in the

Project Self Reliance Places Participants in Permanent Jobs
A final report from Project Self Reliance indicated the program succeeded in placing at least 37 percent of its participants, all welfare recipients, into permanent employment.

Department of Commerce Director Doug Ross, who headed the program which expired Jan. 31, said changes are needed in both the welfare system and in the private sector to encourage persons to seek work and provide them with available jobs if the program is to have "radical" reductions in welfare rolls.

Under Project Self Reliance, which began in April, 1984, 7,000 community service, minimum wage jobs were made available to welfare recipients. Ross reported some 20,000 recipients applied for the openings.

The number of applicants showed "the work ethic is alive and well," he said.

When the project was complete, some 2,600 of the 7,000 applicants, or 37 percent, had found permanent jobs in either private corporations or municipal governments.

Ross said the jobs tended to be better paying than he had expected. For example, Self Reliance participants who found jobs in the Detroit downriver area were being paid an average of $5 an hour compared to the $3.35 an hour minimum wage jobs the project provided.

Approximately 25 percent of those in the program had a strong motivation to work, but lacked marketable skills, and they have enrolled in job training programs, he said.

But a large share of the program's participants, 38 percent, were unable to convert their work experience into permanent jobs and through them the program discovered a number of barriers to reducing the over-all welfare rolls, Ross said.

One barrier is that many recipients have grown dependent on welfare and lost their confidence to pursue jobs.

Ross said he did not think welfare assistance was too high, but that the combination of benefits and "their leisure" means that lower skilled jobs "are not competitive" enough to compel recipients to leave welfare.

The second phase of Project Self Reliance will need strengthened work incentives to encourage more recipients to get off welfare, Ross declared.

Along with those problems, he said another problem is that the private sector has been converting the low skill jobs that welfare recipients must depend on—in such places, as supermarkets, restaurants and hotels—into part-time jobs without benefits.

Those changes make the job difficult for a primary wage earner to hold, he said.

Ross said the second phase of the project would serve more people, even though it would be budgeted with less money.

The first project was budgeted approximately at $21.5 million and Ross said he expected the project would only be budgeted at some $10 million in the upcoming fiscal year.

But, the project would be able to help more people by helping them into the permanent job market without having them work on community service jobs, he explained.

State Chamber To Back Income Tax Rollback

Officials with the State Chamber of Commerce will back an accelerated income tax rollback to 4.6 percent before Jan. 1, 1986 and a constitutional amendment permitting voters the right of referendum on all tax legislation.

Chamber President James Barrett said the best way for state government to provide working men and women of the state with tax relief is not to collect the money in the first place.

Currently, the 5.35 percent income tax rate is to revert to 4.6 percent in October, 1987, and Governor James Blanchard has opposed any proposal to roll the tax back before that date.

House and Senate Republicans, however, have called on the Governor to support a rollback to at least January, 1986.

Barrett said adoption of a constitutional amendment granting the right of referendum on tax legislation could help relieve voter frustration which has led to legislative recalls and attempted "radical" tax proposals such as the Voters Choice proposal which was defeated in the last election.

New Special Ed Teacher Joins Beach Faculty

As of January, Pauline Koski was appointed by the Chelsea Board of Education to teach Beach Middle school's special education classes. She has 1½ years previous experience teaching for the special education department in the Willow Run school district, Ypsilanti.

Prior to working as a public school teacher, Koski was employed by the Michigan state hospitals for 15 years in positions as a recreation therapist, art therapist, and in child care management.

She has earned an undergraduate degree in recreation and a master's degree in special education from Eastern Michigan University.

Koski lives in Saline with her son and enjoys movies, theatre, soap operas, travel, popcorn and French pastries.

"I'm glad to be teaching at Beach. I am most appreciative of all the staff, being so friendly and supportive," she said.

Depot Lease Stalled...

(Continued from page one) would cost a substantial but unestimated amount of money. A figure of $50,000 has been mentioned for starters.

That sum would be raised in a drive conducted among local organizations and individuals. Beyond the expense of putting the building into usable condition, there would be annual operating and maintenance costs.

Meanwhile, the 140-year-old depot continues to sit and suffer from neglect. It is unheated, unlighted and un-maintained in any way. If the legal squabble goes on much longer, the issue will become moot. The building won't be worth trying to save.

On Dec. 4 the village board promised to take some kind of action in a couple of weeks. Nothing has happened since.

Methodist Bishop To Speak Feb. 26 at Lenten Program

Bishop Judith Craig of the Michigan Area of the United Methodist Church will speak at a Lenten program hosted by the churches of the Chelsea-Dexter-North Lake Co-operative Ministry Group on Tuesday, Feb. 26, at 6 p.m. in the Chelsea High School Cafeteria.

Bishop Craig, the third woman elected to the episcopacy in the United Methodist Church, was elected at the Jurisdictional Conference in Duluth, Minn., last July. She began her term in Michigan Sept. 1, 1984.

The program will begin with a fellowship time. Following the dinner which will be served at 6:30 p.m., a short slide presentation introducing the three churches in the Co-operative Ministry Group will be made. Musical numbers will be sung by a Children's Choir under the direction of Mrs. Ann Lee and an Adult Choir directed by Mrs. June Warren. Bishop Craig will conclude the program with a Lenten meditation.

Other United Methodist churches in the area have been invited to join the Chelsea, Dexter, and North Lake churches for this special evening.

Reservations for the dinner must be made in advance. Persons having questions about the evening may telephone the Chelsea First United Methodist church at 475-8119 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Co-operative Ministry Group began working together in February, 1983 to strengthen the witness of all three churches in their communities and to develop fellowship between the congregations.

Engineering Firm Requests Delay in Waste Plant Plans

The waiting game over construction of Chelsea's proposed new wastewater treatment plant continues.

Latest development is an advisory letter from the Toledo, O., engineering firm of Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout, consultants to the village, stating that the Aug. 1, 1985, deadline for state approval of final plans cannot be met because the plans won't be ready for submission by then.

The letter from the engineers, signed by Linda S. Benham, declared, "We can negotiate changes with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources as long as the improvements are constructed and operational by July 1, 1988."

That date is supposed to be the absolute final deadline for having the new plant in operation. The village is operating its present treatment plant under a conditional permit which is scheduled to expire on July 1, 1988.

That permit states, among other things, that construction of the new plant is supposed to begin no later than April 1, 1986. The engineers suggest that be changed to April 1, 1987, leaving 15 months to complete construction.

Meanwhile, the village is hoping to obtain a grant from the state and/or federal government to help finance the project. No grant money is presently available from the state, and the proposed new federal budget includes nothing for the purpose.

The Chelsea project, as presently planned, would cost $4.5 million, and the price is likely to go up with continuing delays in getting started.

The village has retained the Detroit legal firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone to prepare a plan for financing.

Consumers Power Pays $111 Million in Taxes

If you think you have problems getting ready for tax day this year, consider this: Consumers Power Co. paid nearly $111 million in property taxes during 1984 to 1,375 individual taxing authorities in Michigan.

Actually, the paperwork is no problem because taxes paid by the company are listed on a computer. The money, however, is a great benefit to school districts, cities, counties and townships around the state.

"We pay a big tax bill on our property because our electric or gas systems stretch through all but one county in the lower peninsula," William Holtgreive, region general manager for Consumers Power, said. The region Holtgreive manages paid $13 million to more than 175 taxing authorities in all or part of 11 south central Michigan counties last year.

"Taxes are a cost of doing business today, and we can measure the amount due and paid," Holtgreive said. "What is more difficult to measure are the many ways those dollars improve the communities in which we do business. That's why we are proud to do business in so many communities across the state."

The major share of the utility's property taxes goes to counties where electric generating plants are located—including Luna Pier in Monroe county—and to cities where Consumers Power has its general office, region and district headquarters—including Lansing, Jackson, Adrian and Charlotte.

The utility's tax bill increased to $110,904,509 in 1984, up about 5 percent over the $105 million it paid in 1983.

Taxes paid to various units in Washtenaw county totaled $460,851.20. These included the following: Sylvan township, $114,953.26; Lima township, $52,284.36; Lyndon township, $44,202.87; Manchester township, $39,774.94; Dexter township, $38,213.75; Northfield township, $32,760.70; Sharon township, $22,824.68; Webster township, $6,864.45; Scio township, $6,845.36; Village of Manchester, $4,806.64; Village of Chelsea, $4,332.35; Bridgewater township, $2,271.95; Freedom township, $2,114.40.

Jackson county payments totaled $4,416,898.23.

Included among others were the following units: City of Jackson, $1,555,462.24; Grass Lake township, $119,373.15; Waterloo township, $42,039.50; Village of Grass Lake, $7,704.13.

Farm Co-Op Assoc. Receives Training Grant for Seminars

Farm co-operative managers and directors will benefit from a series of training seminars, sponsored by the Michigan Association of Farmer Co-operatives and partially funded by a $1,000 training grant from the Mutual Service Insurance/Co-operative League Fund.

According to Charles Buchholz, executive secretary of the Michigan Association of Farmer Co-operatives, the training seminars will be held in March and December. Emphasis of the spring seminar, he said, will be on tax and financial management for farmer co-ops, and the December seminar focus will be on co-operative principles, business trends and objectives, and promotion of co-operatives' involvement in community development.

Mutual Service Insurance, with home offices in Arden Hills, Minn., has been donating the co-operative grant program since 1974 and has supported a wide variety of projects including education, developmental and training programs.

STUDENT OF THE WEEK: North Elementary school is taking a positive approach to working on school discipline this year. The school staff is recognizing a student from each classroom throughout the school year for good citizenship. The "Student of the Week" will be eating lunch with the principal, have their pictures posted in the cafeteria, and receive a small treat from the office. Parents of the students will be informed that their child is being honored by a short note from the principal, Bill Wescott. "We have many students who obey school rules and do help to make this school a good one. Our staff wants to show support for these students," explained Principal Wescott.

24 Years Ago . . .

The Rev. Fr. Francis Maliszewski was the guest speaker at the February meeting of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce. He gave a resume of the history of St. Mary's Catholic church and told of proposed plans for replacing the present church with a new building on the same site. The present church building was 90 years old.

A milestone for which 1960 was sure to be remembered was the election of the late Thomas Alva Edison to the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, the world-famous national shrine that commands the summit of the New York University campus. Edison joined eight other inventors, Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Franklin, Stephen Foster, Daniel Boone and some 80 others who had also received the honor.

34 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, March 1, 1951—Donald Alber became Chelsea's new civil defense director, having been appointed by Village President M. W. McClure to replace Willard Guest who resigned. One of his first objectives, he said, was to contact all organizations in the community and acquaint them with civil defense methods and plans.

High School PTA voted a contribution of $100 toward a chorus robe fund. The group had grown to include 56 members.

Chelsea Bulldogs defeated Milan clinching an undefeated season in which they won 16 consecutive games to annex Chelsea's first Huron League crown. Members of the "Victory Squad" were Stanley Knickerbocker, Jerry Lehman, Dave Crocker, Marty Tobin, Ted Betts, Don O'Dell, Dick Merkel, Ted Slane, Buddy Johnson, George Heydlauff and Stan Walker under coach, John Magiera and manager, Victor Gauthier.

Oil company heads predicted that barring total war, there would be gasoline aplenty next summer.

There was a large attendance of members and friends of the Salem Grove Methodist church, Feb. 25, for the dedication service of the new Hammond organ. Young people had raised money for the project in less than a year.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

The Ann Arbor News put out a "brag edition" a few weeks ago in celebration of its 150th anniversary as a newspaper. I read it with more than casual interest because it brought back many memories. I lived in Ann Arbor for more than 20 years, worked at the News for 18, and am now back living in the city. My wife was born and raised there, and our daughters were born there. Ann Arbor has been an important part of my life, and still is.

As a journalist whose career in the business is stretching out close to the 40-year mark, I span the time of drastic change in the technology of newspapering, and I suspect that readers of papers don't realize, let alone understand, what has happened.

I left the Ann Arbor News in 1962, shortly before it converted from the "hot metal" to the "cold type" production process. There is no way I could go back to work there, because I just plain could not adapt to the present way of doing things. I don't know the "new" skills and techniques, and am not much interested in learning them.

Technological advance is bought at a price, and the price in this instance is a slow-down in production. The new technology is cheaper, because it requires the work of fewer people, but the result is an inferior product of terms of up-to-date news content.

The News used to have a 1 p.m. deadline for going to press. It's now 10 a.m. What you get in the paper is, for the most part, a bunch of mailed-in material that is several days old. There is little live news, reports of events that happened during the previous 24 hours. Most of the content is what we old-timers used to call "boiler plate" or "time copy," stuff that was lying around and would be set in type whenever you got around to doing it.

In its anniversary edition the News chose to tell the story of how its Tuesday, Jan. 15, edition was produced. When I finished wading through it, I concluded that exactly five that-day local stories of major importance had been printed. The rest of the paper had either been done in advance or ripped off the wire services.

The paper is beautifully designed and printed, but there isn't a whole lot in it.

Just for fun, I took the Tuesday, Feb. 12, edition of the News and did a quick analysis. Some of my numbers may be a little bit wrong, but not by much. The paper had 36 pages in a basic six-column format. Columns are 2 1/2 inches deep by two inches wide. That multiplies to a little over 4,600 column-inches.

The paper included about 2,400 column-inches of non-advertising material—news, pictures, editorials, columns, comics. That's about 52 percent of total content, which means the News lost money that day. A 60-40 ratio of advertising to news is the standard rule of thumb for profitability in publishing a daily newspaper.

In that sense, News subscribers got a bargain on Jan. 15. Tuesday is normally the slowest day of the week for advertising. Editions later in the week are heavier with ads, climaxing with the swollen Sunday paper which is mostly advertising.

Going back to the Jan. 15 issue, and giving the benefit of the doubt in every questionable instance, as nearly as I could figure out just about half of the news matter was fresh in the sense that it reflected happenings since the previous day's edition. The rest was time copy.

Local stories written by News reporters that day amounted to something less than 15 percent of total content. It may have been a dull news day. If there is anything that can't be predicted, it is the ebb and flow of news. Sometimes you scratch and come up with nothing, sometimes you are overwhelmed. It is that uncertainty which has continued to fascinate me throughout my working life. No two days are alike, and you never know what is going to happen next.

I'm set in my ways sufficiently to believe that the "good old days" of hot metal and late deadlines were better, and that those of us who worked in that era were privileged to have had the chance. Journalists, along with a lot of other groups of people, have become semi-slaves to the new technology. We can't do what we would like and want to do because machines have taken over.

Here at The Standard we have three old hot-metal typesetting machines in the back room. They look like something invented by Rube Goldberg. I couldn't begin to describe how a Linotype works. Standard publisher Walt Leonard is one of a fast-vanishing breed of craftsmen who can operate a Linotype, and he still does it every once in awhile for certain custom printing jobs.

Whenever he starts up one of those machines, I react to the smell of melting lead and the clink and clatter of matrices falling into place, get up from my desk and go watch and enjoy for a few minutes.

Maybe that means I'm getting old. Or just maybe it means that, for a few minutes, I'm reversing the wheel and getting young again.

Bullard Issues Free Booklet on Hazardous Waste

An introductory booklet explaining some of the ins and outs of hazardous waste is now available to the public, courtesy of Ann Arbor State Representative Perry Bullard.

Entitled "A Citizen's Guide to Hazardous Waste," the booklet takes the reader through an examination of the hazardous waste problem, defines the terms a citizen often confronts in reading about the issue, and explains the state and federal programs enacted to address the problem. It ends with a compilation of local, state and federal agencies citizens can turn to with their concerns about hazardous waste.

"Increasingly, many people are faced with this dilemma of the industrial age—hazardous waste, what's it doing to our environment and what citizens can do about it," said Representative Bullard. "I hope people will take this opportunity to learn about the problem in order to deal with it constructively."

The booklet was prepared for Representative Bullard by the Center for Public Interest Research in conjunction with the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM).

Copies of the Hazardous Waste brochure are available from Representative Bullard's office by calling (517) 373-1289.

Farm Co-Op Assoc. Awards Scholarship

A Michigan State University junior, David Horny of Chasaning, has been named the first recipient of the recently established Glynn McBride scholarship. Horny, who is a third-year student majoring in crop science and agricultural education, will receive a $500 scholarship for spring term educational expenses.

The Glynn McBride scholarship was established by the Michigan Association of Farmer Co-operatives (MAFC) in 1984 to honor the contributions of MSU professor Dr. Glynn McBride to co-operative education and research. McBride served in MSU's Department of Agricultural Economics from 1954 until his retirement in December, 1984.

Since the scholarship was established, MAFC has received contributions from 16 ag co-operatives totalling $25,000. Scholarships will be awarded annually from this fund.

Alcoholism Education Program Continues at Brighton Hospital

Brighton Hospital's Community Education Program on chemical dependency continues on March 5 with a discussion of how alcoholism affects family members.

The free program begins at 6 p.m. with a filmed lecture by Fr. Joseph Martin. Afterwards a trained counselor will answer questions from the audience and discuss how family members can obtain help for a loved one who is alcoholic and for themselves.

"This evening's program should be especially helpful to those who are concerned about the drinking habits of either a parent, a child, or another family member," says Ellen Ayers, associate director of counseling services at Brighton Hospital. According to Ayers, many of the people who attend the monthly education series realize that a loved one has a problem with alcohol or other drugs but are not sure how to get help.

The Community Education Program is held on the first Tuesday evening of each month and is currently concentrating on providing family members with basic information about alcoholism and substance abuse. Brighton Hospital is located on E. Grand River, near Exit 151 of the I-94 Freeway.

For additional information and a schedule of Community Education Programs, contact the hospital at (313) 227-1211, ext. 276.

Birds sleep in many different places, says National Wildlife's Fanger Rick magazine. Most sleep in old nests close to where they feed. But sea birds snooze while floating on the water and a ruffed grouse will dive into a snowbank to catch 40 winks.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
It was 10:30 p.m. on Feb. 6 when our smoke alarm started blaring. As our home began to fill with smoke, we noticed the wood structure inside the wall had been smoldering for quite a while from our fireplace below. Afraid of the fact that our home could be up in flames at any moment, my wife alerted the Chelsea Fire Department.

Chelsea firemen had arrived at our house, discovered the source of the fire and within minutes our problem was now history.

I am proud to say that my family and I have lived in Chelsea for over 25 years and to know that we have the valiant team of the Chelsea Fire Department gives me great satisfaction.

In short, I would just like to give a big thank you to those courageous fire fighters!
Winston E. Boyer.

Michigan Farmers Urged To Co-operate In USDA Survey

Nearly 600 Michigan farmers will be asked to provide information for the U. S. Department of Agriculture's "Farm Costs and Returns Survey" currently underway and Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton R. Smith has encouraged them to respond. The Michigan farmers will be part of a nation-wide survey of 25,000 farmers to develop statistical data on the current financial condition of Michigan and the nation's agriculture.

"We are all aware of the difficult economic realities and problems now faced by many farmers," Smith said, "so this survey is critically important. All farm organizational leaders agree that accurate costs and expenditure data is absolutely required by policy makers of every persuasion. The new farm bill and debt relief strategies are but a few of the problems which require this data."

Smith urges farmers to provide "complete and accurate data" to interviewers from the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service, and assured them that the data would be confidential, used only to develop totals for all producers by state, type and size.

USDA Farm Credits Plan Necessary Says Farm Bureau Leader

American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano praised the administration's solution to the farm debt crunch, announced by U. S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block on Feb. 6. The plan allows lenders to write down interest rather than principal to qualify for federal loan guarantees, sets up credit hot lines and financial advice teams, and creates an emergency credit assistance program for farmers who were served by a filed institution.

President Robert Delano called the plan "utterly necessary to farmers with nowhere else to turn than the Farmers Home Administration." He said the move was in line with an appeal made by Farm Bureau two weeks ago to President Reagan to modify his debt restructuring program for financially-stressed farmers.

Brochure Tells How To Protest Assessment

Michigan Consumers Council is again reminding Michigan property owners that they may protest their property tax assessments. To assist those consumers, the council has available a brochure outlining how to review property tax assessments, what to look for in determining the accuracy of the assessments, and how to proceed through an appeal process.

The pamphlet is one of the most popular informational items published by the council this time of year as property owners receive their tax assessment notices. While many consumers feel that their tax assessments are unfairly high, many are reluctant to "fight city hall" because they feel it's hopeless.

"Many assessment changes simply reflect inflation in the housing market," according to Consumers council director Kent S. Wilcox. "However, errors are made frequently. These can range from incorrectly computing the tax to an actual error in judging the property's value."

The first thing consumers need to do is check the appraisal records in the assessor's office for accuracy," said Wilcox. "It's possible that the appraisal may have been based on assumptions that are simply incorrect, such as stating that the house has a finished basement or fireplace when it doesn't. The appraisal may have also missed defects that might tend to reduce the house's value such as settling or shifting on the foundation."

The council advised discussing any errors with the assessor first. Some assessors may be willing to adjust the appraisal, saving the consumer and themselves the nuisance of a formal protest. If the consumer finds it necessary to proceed with a protest, the brochure outlines information that may be useful in documenting a case before a local Board of Review.

The importance of deadlines is also stressed as each township and city has a functioning Board

Consumers Council, 414 Hollis Building, 106 W. Allegan St., Lansing 48933; telephone, 517-373-0700 (TDD for the hearing impaired only, 517-373-0701). Copies are available in large print for visually impaired.

According to EPA's latest estimates, U.S. industry generates more than 300 gallons of toxic waste for every person in the country each year, says the National Wildlife Federation. It told, that adds up to 71 billion gallons of toxic waste. This is 10 percent higher than EPA's figures released last year.

Extension Program Set To Study Dairy Outlook

Several years have held more uncertainty for Michigan's dairy industry than 1985 does, and area dairy producers will need a keen perspective on economic conditions to maintain a stable business.

Producers can sharpen that perspective during a special meeting Feb. 21 at Bullinger's Fine Food and Cocktails restaurant, 501 Longfellow, in Jackson. The program will be offered from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The session is part of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service program, "New Economic Realities in Michigan Agriculture," a series of 13 meetings being held throughout the state.

The dairy meetings are part of our effort to equip all farmers in Michigan with information that will help them find solutions to complex economic issues facing their operations," says Frank Brewer, assistant director of extension for agriculture and marketing programs.

The meeting will forecast the economic climate that dairy producers can expect during the next several years and detail the kinds of assistance that will be available to farmers for extension agents and specialists. Topics will include:

—Projected interest rates and prices for supplies and the effect of the economy upon the dairy industry.

—The dairy portions of the 1985

Farm Bill and their implications for Michigan farmers.

—The options available for farmers who will need to adjust their herd management to ensure survival of the farm business.

—Various ways to control farm operation costs.

Details of the meeting may be obtained by contacting William Bivens, extension agricultural agent, in Jackson, or call (517) 788-4292.

USDA Launches Major Farm Survey

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has launched a survey on 1984 farm production expenses, debts and assets, crop and livestock sales, and costs of production.

About 24,000 farmers representing a broad cross section of American agriculture will receive questionnaires (which are confidential and will be destroyed, the USDA assures farmers) and will be personally interviewed.

When the survey results are compiled and analyzed, the findings will be reported to Congress, farmers and the general public.

If you're interested in the survey, contact Howard Holden, USDA Statistical Reporting Service (202-447-4214).

Eight Area Students Achieve CMU Fall Semester Honors

Several Central Michigan University students who reside in this area were listed by CMU this month as having achieved fall semester honors.

Chelsea area young people who were recognized by officials at Central Michigan included Scott A. Chapman, son of the Larry Chapmans of Freer Rd., and Beth A. Depping whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Depping of 11 Sycamore.

Students from the Dexter area on the semester honors list are Mary Kay Ervin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Ervin of E. Loch Alpine Dr., and Kim Gehringer, whose parents are the Michael Gehringers of North Trioritorial Rd.

Three Grass Lake area residents were also among the names on the honors list. They are Melissa J. Igoe of Hoffman Rd., Eric J. Roberts of 435 E. Michigan, and Elizabeth Straub of 6760 Baldwin Rd.

From Manchester, Nicholas Krzyzaniak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Krzyzaniak of 12600 E. Austin Rd. was also one of the students achieving fall semester honors.

Scott Chapman was graduated with the Chelsea High class of 1981, is currently a senior at Central Michigan, and is completing requirements for graduation from CMU in May, 1985. He is majoring in business management, with a minor in journalism, and has the distinction of being the first president of the Central Michigan Management Club, a club he was instrumental in initiating on the CMU campus.

Beth Depping is a junior this spring at Central Michigan, having graduated from Chelsea High in 1982. She is pursuing studies toward a teaching career in elementary education. She has served as a member of the sexual assault task force on the campus, as well as being an active force in W.H.I.P. (CMU's Women's Health Information Project), and serving on the Student Council for Exceptional Children.

Kim Gehringer is studying electrical engineering at Central. She was graduated from Dexter High in June, 1983. She has been actively involved in the athletic activities scheduled in her dorm residence, and has participated in campus church activities.

Mary Kay Ervin was graduated with the Dexter High class of 1982, and she is majoring in journalism at Central.

Nick Krzyzaniak completed his high school studies at Manchester High, graduating in 1981, and is working toward a bachelor's degree with a double major, in business and in accounting. He has been a member of Central Michigan's baseball team in all but his first year on campus, when an injury sidelined his baseball participation for the season. Nick is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor fraternity.

In all, 1,003 CMU students made the honors list. Total enrollment at the university for the semester was 15,922. Honors students are chosen from the top 10% of each academic class. In addition, to qualify for honors, a student must complete 12 or more letter-graded hours of on-campus credit during the semester and have a grade point average of no lower than 3.5 out of a possible 4.0.

For the fall semester, 218 freshmen made the list, 261 sophomores, 259 juniors and 265 seniors.

Each of the students with whom this newspaper was able to make personal contact, (whether directly to them or to a family member), confirmed they were appreciative of the atmosphere on the campus of Central Michigan University, and they were busy with productive academic lives in addition to participating in many extra-curricular activities.

CHS Class of '75

Addresses of the more than 200 graduates have been updated and an information letter will be sent to each class member within the next few weeks.

Various committees have been formed and plans are to include a family picnic on Sunday, July 7.

Those interested in receiving more information or volunteering to help may call Terri [Gilbreath] Saarinen, 475-8285; Jan [Hopkins] Knieper, 475-3686; or Don and Lindy [Minix] Messner, 475-9687.

The next planning meeting is Thursday, Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Wolverine Bar.

Young Men Nominated To Military Academies

Two young men from Chelsea have received nominations to military academies from Congressman Carl Pursell, putting the first major step in order for application and acceptance to the military schools.

Brent Bauer, son of Joseph and Jill Bauer, 11300 Jerusalem Rd., has received nomination to the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

Kipp Bertke, son of Robert and Duwana Bertke, 5700 Stofer Rd., has been nominated to the U. S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Brent, a senior at Chelsea High school, explained that he began the long process of filing for nomination after counselor, Susan Carter, mentioned that as one option available to him following graduation.

Co-captain of Chelsea High's swim team, he hopes to continue competitive swimming at the academy and to major in aviation. He does stress, however, that Pursell's nomination only opens the door for acceptance consideration. Formal application must still be made and a physical examination is necessary.

Brent feels no hesitancy about leaving home for the first time and is obviously pleased that his parents are "pretty excited" about the nomination.

Kipp Bertke, a sophomore at Michigan State University, received a nomination prior to the naval academy to train as a jet pilot.

Having received a scholarship for ROTC at Michigan State, he has spent the past two academic years in preparation for his eventual acceptance. Kipp has earned a number of distinguished awards during both his freshman and sophomore years.

As a freshman he was given a "Distinctive General Military Corp" award, a "superior performance" award and honored as "Outstanding Freshman."

This year, as a sophomore, he was "Officer of the Year" for the Philip L. Beck Squadron of Arnold Air Society, commander of the society, and honored as "Outstanding Sophomore."

Kipp also became interested in missing POW's of Vietnam and under his own initiative organized meetings with the families affected, and speakers, motivated interest in organizing a parade to re-kindle public interest in the continued problem and did TV interviews to educate the public. Kipp received a letter from President Reagan concerning his active interest and was given an award for the Arnold Air Society Area 9, Outstanding POW-MIA project of which he was the commander.

Nine is enough.

If you're paying more than $9 a month for your business checking account, your bank is giving you the business.

Average Available Business Checking Balance	Monthly Service Charge
$2000 or more	$0
$1000 to $1999	$7
$1 to $999	$9

How much are you paying for a business checking account at your bank? As much as $20 some months? Thirty? Fifty?

If you open an account at Citizens Trust, you'll pay no more than $9 a month. Any month. And you could, with ease, maintain your account for free.

You see, we charge you only if your available balance falls below $2000. If you keep an average available monthly balance of between $1 and $999 in your account, you pay just a $9 monthly service fee. Between $1000 and $1999, just a $7 monthly fee. And a balance of $2000 or more in your account means you pay no service charges at all.

That's a welcome change from the policies of some area banks who charge you for each deposit you make, every check you write, and a monthly service fee to boot.

Next month, when your monthly statement arrives, sit down and figure out how much your account is costing you. Then move your money to Citizens Trust. Because we feel nine dollars is enough.

Legion, Rod-Gun Club Plan Monte Carlo Night

Huge fortunes will be won and lost on the night of Saturday, March 2 as high stakes gamblers gather at the American Legion Home on Cavanaugh Lake for Monte Carlo Night. A total of $800,000,000 in "fun money" will be risked by men and women players at blackjack tables and high roller dice games.

Play will begin at 8 p.m. and end in the wee hours of Sunday with an auction of donated prizes.

Big winners, clutching millions in their hands, will bid against each other for coveted items of merchandise, as well as valuable services and liquid spirits contributed by local merchants.

The gala event is the third Monte Carlo celebration, jointly sponsored by the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club and American Legion Post 31.

Donation tickets at $5 may be obtained at the door or in advance at Strieter's Men's Wear and Chelsea Lumber Co. Each ticket holder will receive $1 million in Monte Carlo money for use at the gambling tables or for food and beverages. Refreshments will be cheerfully delivered to compulsive gamblers who dare not leave their favored positions at the tables.

Monte Carlo Nights are a revival of similar events held years ago in Chelsea. Proceeds (in real money) from the celebration are used to support conservation, civic, patriotic and charitable causes in the community.

The affair, which may be enjoyed for all or part of a six-hour period, will involve approximately 30 volunteer workers from both sponsoring organizations. Bob Bauer and Rollie Spaulding will head the team from the Rod and Gun Club. Leaders for the Legion will be Commander Don Doll and Pat Merkel.

Community Groups To Study Substance Abuse

A community-wide meeting of agencies and organizations will consider a community-wide approach to the problem of substance abuse on Thursday, Feb. 21, 7:30 p.m., at St. Paul United Church of Christ, 14600 Old US-12. The program has been organized by the Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship.

Groups to be represented will be: Chelsea Senior High School and School Board, Chelsea Community Hospital, Chelsea Citizens Against Drug Abuse (CCADA), the Police and Fire Department, Village Council, VFW and American Legion, the Ministerial Fellowship, Kiwanis, Lions, Modern Mothers, the Fair Board, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Faith in Action, Kresge

House—Alumni Association and Advisory Board, and the Civic Foundation. Representatives from Dexter and Manchester will also be present to inform the group of what their communities have done together in a "community awareness" program. Interested citizens are welcome to attend.

Substance abuse, it is felt, is a disease which affects the community as a whole, so everyone whose expertise can be utilized needs to be sought for advice and support. Much is being done in the community already, and co-ordination of efforts and possible new programs of help and education is a possible outgrowth of the meeting.

Manchester Schools Budget 'Very Tight'

Manchester Board of Education recently took action to amend the budget for the current school year. As amended the budget calls for a fund balance of one tenth of one percent, or about $3,500.

Superintendent of schools Gene Thompson called the budget, "The tightest I have proposed in the five years of my administration in Manchester." Increased labor costs and the costs associated with increasing graduation requirements are noted as two of the significant items in the 1984-85 budget. Energy savings realized as a result of the recent renovation work enabled the balancing of the budget.

"Having a tenth of one percent balance is equivalent to managing a $20,000 income household with $1.67 left each month to meet unforeseen expenses," said Thompson. "We are very nervous about his entire situation but felt that it was preferable to reducing the educational program we are currently offering. It is my opinion, and that of the board, that the Manchester community feels that we should include items such as increased graduation requirements, computer opportunities and other unique learning situations."

Preparation of the 1985-86 budget has begun. It is the goal of the administration to present budget decisions to the board at the regular February meeting in order to allow maximum time for decisions.

FUN FAIR PREPARATIONS: South school students helping prepare for the fun fair include, left to right, Tara Baker 5, Erin Baker 6 and Ruth Neustifter 6, meet the giant Weepul to be offered as the prize at South school Fun Fair to the person who gives him the best name. Erin and Ruth are first graders at South school. This Weepul's smaller cousins will be offered for sale at the fair, March 2.

South School Parents, Students Prepare for Giant Fun Fair

Saturday, March 2 is a day to look forward to. The posters are in the windows of local merchants. Sign-up sheets for volunteers are hanging in South school halls. These are sure signs that preparations for the annual Fun Fair are underway.

An interview with Dave Baker, this year's co-chairperson, along with Gloria Mitchell, gave an idea of the amount of work necessary to put together one of the largest fairs of its kind in this section of the state.

Baker, who also was chairperson of the 1984 Fun Fair, states that this year's plans are going together easier than ever. He credits his co-chairperson with a special enthusiasm and spirit that are the winning combination to make it happen.

Other factors that contribute to this fair have been the "phenomenal response by the local merchants" who have donated time, money and interest as never before. Enthusiasm of parents in all areas is also great. At last count more than 150 parents were involved in preparations.

To give an idea of the growth of the Fun Fair, Baker points out that the first records to be found were for 1978 and indicated a profit of $400. The fair in 1984 yielded a profit of $2,600 after expenses, which was used to purchase South school video equipment. Last year's attendance was more than 3,000 which, in a community of approximately 4,500, indicates the importance of the event.

Baker feels the popularity stems from the fact that the fair is "One of the few places where everyone can get together in the spirit of pure fun. The fair is community oriented with two goals, fun and 'quality,' otherwise it's just not worth the effort."

Activities offered at the fair change with interests. Games that have lost popularity are retired and new ones added. The Pinewood Derby has been changed to include adult divisions. There will be the traditional limited division in which the cars are constructed with only the materials in the kit box. The unlimited division involves cars that must meet the weight requirements and fit in the box but can otherwise be unlimited in construction.

Something new this year is the Flying Turtle Roller Scooter which is the first ride to be offered at South school. It is a self-propelled ride built for children and adults up to a weight of 200 pounds. More games than ever have been added to appeal to all ages.

The Heritage Room began in 1984. This popular area is being organized by Annalisa Gray-Lion and promises to be bigger than ever. Along with the arts and crafts booths, Dr. Biedron and representatives of Chelsea Community Hospital will be offering free blood pressure checks. Cub Scout Pack 455 will be there to explain scouting in the community. The police will provide security and traffic control to guests. A display by the Chelsea Community Development Committee will explain plans for the business area.

Ronald McDonald will appear with the fun and fitness show. This is a special honor to the fair since the restaurant donates the time spent by their characters. Demand is great and to qualify the fair had to meet strict standards for community service, efficiency and quality. Jody St. Andre, regional representative for McDonald's complimented the fair last year during the visit of the Hamburger for both its size and efficiency. Ronald will also present the drawing from the North and South school coloring contest with a new 20-inch bicycle.

Other prizes include a "name" that giant Weepul" contest open to everyone at the fair. The winner takes home the foot-high ball of fur with two big eyes, two feet and a party hat. There is also a "penny guess" for the students of south school. The lucky guess wins a glass piggy bank filled with pennies.

Success of the fair is attributed by Baker not only to the efforts of the volunteers and merchants, but to the community itself which has responded generously to what has historically been South School's only yearly "FUN-raiser."

January Thaw Arrives, Late and So Far Little

The January thaw finally arrived—about a month late.

It began more or less officially on Monday, Feb. 11, when the temperature rose above the 32-degree freezing mark for the first time in 38 days. That "warm spell" didn't last long and, in fact, gave way to a really nasty stretch of weather.

Snow fell every day from last Tuesday through Saturday, creating cruel driving conditions which tested both road maintenance crews and the skills of motorists.

School was called off both Wednesday and Thursday as back roads became impassable under piles of heavy, drifting snow. By Thursday morning, the level snow depth measured at more than a foot, and there were drifts of three feet or more in some spots.

Several athletic events were postponed, in one case twice. The Chelsea-Lincoln basketball game, scheduled for last Tuesday, was put off until Thursday and then finally played on Saturday when officials of both schools decided that travel between the two was safe. Dexter games with Milan on Wednesday and Lincoln on Friday were both played on schedule.

Sunday brought a bit of moderation and a small amount of melting with mid-afternoon temperatures in the 30's.

Monday dawned bright and clear, with the sun shining in all its glory for the first time in several weeks, and more thawing occurred. There were puddles of melted snow all over the place.

By late Monday afternoon, the weather had reverted to its typical form this winter with clouds and snow squalls. It was another example of the saying, "If you don't like the weather around here, just wait a minute and it will change."

The high temperatures yesterday was about at the freezing point, and the mercury wasn't supposed to get much above the mid-20's today.

The thaw is supposed to resume tomorrow with a high temperature near 40, with seasonable temperatures forecast into the weekend. This long, cold spell of severe weather may be breaking at last, but it isn't giving up without a struggle.

To prevent heat loss, keep your damper closed when you're not using the fireplace.

Boy Swimmers End Unbeaten Year with Win Over Jackson

Chelsea High boy swimmers ended their season with a 112-60 victory over the Jackson High Vikings. The win ended the Bulldogs' season with 10 wins and no losses, their 16th in a row over the last two years. They are ranked second in the state.

Highlights for Chelsea included three more state qualifying performances: Mark Westhoven in diving, Don Skiff in the 500-freestyle and Jeff Nemeth in the 100-backstroke.

Chelsea took first, second, and fifth in the 200-medley relay.

These relays included Nemeth, Mike Coffman, Brent Bauer and Skiff on the first relay; Craig Miller, Dan Degener, Scott Pryor and Mike Carignan on the second relay, and Matt Doan, Howard Merkel, Kevin Brock and Tyler Lewis on the fifth.

The 200-yard freestyle found Paul Robbins winning with a best time, Darren Girard third and Brad Doan sixth with a best time. In the 200 individual medley Matt Doan finished first, Jeff Mason second, and Merkel fourth. The 50 freestyle saw Chelsea finish 1-2-3 with Bauer winning, Nemeth second, and Skiff third. Westhoven won the diving with Lewis second with a best score, Eric Bell sixth and John Platt seventh.

In the 100-yard butterfly Jackson won, but Chelsea garnered second, fourth and fifth from Degener (who had a best time), Mason and Girard. The 100 freestyle found Brock first, Lee Riemenschneider fifth and Brad Doan sixth. The 500 was won by Skiff with Pryor second in a best time and Carignan third in a best time. The 100 backstroke was won by Nemeth. Miller was second and Paul Robbins fourth with a major time improvement. The 100 breaststroke was won by Coffman with Bauer third and Degener fourth.

The last event, the 400-yard freestyle relay, was won by Jackson with Chelsea finishing second, third and fifth. The second-place relay team included Matt Doan, Brock, Lewis and Merkel. Finishing third were Mason, Robbins, Girard and Riemenschneider. Fifth were Carignan, Brad Doan, Coffman and Miller.

The team now has qualified the following swimmers for state:

Brent Bauer—50 and 100 free, 100 fly and both relays.

Mike Carignan—both relays.

Mike Coffman—medley relay and 100 breaststroke.

Don Skiff—50, 100, 200, 500 free, 100 fly and both relays.

Tyler Lewis—diving.

At least two other swimmers will qualify as alternates on relays.

The swimmers' last competition before the state meet will be tomorrow's Chelsea Invitational, including the third and sixth ranked Class B teams plus Class A Adrian and always powerful Sturgis. Diving will begin at 3 p.m. and swimming at 3 p.m. at the Cameron Pool in Beach Middle school.

SEC ROUND-UP:

Saline Clinches Tie With Two Big Wins

Saline clinched a tie for the Southeastern Conference varsity basketball championship with a pair of important victories last week, and can win outright by beating either Lincoln or Dexter in one of its remaining two games.

The Hornets blew out Pinckney, 82-58, and then edged Milan, 49-47, in what may have been the most important game of the season so far. Milan had been playing very well of late and was in position to challenge.

Lincoln kept its hopes for a share of the title alive with wins over Dexter and Chelsea, the latter by a one-point margin in the closing seconds.

The Railsplitters would have to win their last three SEC games, including a showdown clash with Saline, and pray that Dexter can defeat Saline. That scenario is not impossible, but it's unlikely.

Saline is in first place at 9-1, followed by Lincoln at 6-3. Milan is in third at 6-4.

Chelsea and Dexter both had bad weeks, each losing two games, and dropped into a tie for fourth and fifth at 4-5. Both of Dexter's losses were league contests. Chelsea had one defeat in the SEC, a narrow 62-61 decision to Lincoln. Dexter likewise lost a couple of close ones—47-45 to Milan and 67-60 to Lincoln. The latter game was tighter than the final score.

Tecumseh improved its SEC mark to 3-6 by squeezing out a 51-49 win over improving Pinckney, while Pinckney continued to bring up the rear at 1-9. The Pirates have been close in several games and are better than their record.

The vagaries of a schedule involving seven teams leave three schools with two games to play and four with three left. That can get a bit confusing, but the overriding fact is that Saline needs only one more win to lock up the title regardless of what anybody else does.

Results of last week's games: Saline 82, Pinckney 58; Milan 47, Dexter 45; Adrian 65, Tecumseh 50; Saline 49, Milan 47; Lincoln 67, Dexter 60; Howell 47, Chelsea 45; Tecumseh 51, Pinckney 49; Lincoln 62, Chelsea 61.

PETE HANNA

Pete Hanna Qualifies for Region Meet

Pete Hanna qualified for this week-end's regional meet at Sturgis by placing second in the 112-pound division in last Saturday's district competition at Jackson County Western.

Otherwise, it was a disappointing day for Chelsea's wrestlers. Coach Kerry Kargel hoped to qualify as many as five for the regional, and was definitely looking for more than one.

Advancing to the regional tournament requires placing in the top four in the weight class entered. Hanna was the only Bulldog who accomplished that.

"We just plain had a bad day," Kargel said. "We didn't wrestle well. For some reason we don't do well when we wrestle at Western, either in dual meets or tournaments. I don't know why."

In what was said to be the toughest Class B district meet in the state, Dexter advanced six wrestlers to the regional while finishing fourth in team scoring. Chelsea trailed the nine-school field.

Eaton Rapids won with 168 points, followed by Western with 159, Hillsdale 135, Dexter 126½, Marshall 85½, Hastings 72, Jackson Northwest 51½, Tecumseh 28 and Chelsea 25½.

Saline Joins Chelsea, Dexter in District Meet

There will be a new look to the local Class B district basketball tournament next month.

Jackson Northwest is out, and Saline is in. The tourney will be played in the Brooklyn Columbia Central gym.

Saline will join Chelsea, Dexter, Columbia Central, Jackson Lumen Christi and Tecumseh in the six-team district field, and will be heavily favored to win.

It's a break for Saline, in a way. The Hornets have previously been in a district which included Willow Run and Milan, and haven't had much luck against either in recent years.

The re-alignment of districts came about because Ida has moved up from Class C to Class B, thus forcing a couple of moves. Ida will host a district tournament also including Milan, Lincoln, New Boston Huron and Carleton Airport.

Jackson Northwest will go into another district in Jackson county.

The changes were made by the Michigan High School Athletic Association, which calls the shots on the annual "March madness" line-up.

For Chelsea and Dexter, the switch diminished hopes for a district championship. Both appeared to have a good shot until Saline came into the picture.

Jackson Lumen Christi, winner of the tournament the past two years, is not up to par this season, and neither is Columbia Central. Chelsea does own a victory over Saline, and is the only Class B team to beat the state-ranked Hornets so far this season. Saline will be favored on a neutral court.

For both Chelsea and Dexter fans, the selection of Columbia Central as the site for the district tourney presents some travel problems. Brooklyn, in the southeast corner of Jackson county, is not an easy place to get to. It's 27 miles from Chelsea and another 10 from Dexter, and there are no freeways on the route.

Suggested travel paths will be published as the tournament dates approach.

Manchester School Superintendent Named To State Committee

Manchester School Superintendent Gene Thompson was recently appointed to the Conference Planning Committee of the Michigan Association of School Administrators. The conference which will be a joint effort with the Michigan Association of School Boards is scheduled to be held in October, 1986.

MASA meets twice annually for the purpose of providing school superintendents with the opportunity to stay abreast of the latest developments in public education. The Mid-Winter Conference recently concluded meetings in Dearborn.

Thompson commented regarding the recent meetings. "The opportunity to meet and discuss problems with other superintendents and state officers is invaluable. The emphasis on the recent conference was the development of co-operative programs. For school districts such as Manchester co-operative programs are the key to the future. With rising costs and declining enrollments small districts must constantly work to eliminate the duplication of efforts with neighboring districts. Based upon some of the ideas gathered at the conference meetings are scheduled in the near future with other local superintendents."

Beach Volleyball Teams Win Opening Matches

Beach Middle school's girls volleyball teams won their opening matches.

The seventh grade team opened the 1985 volleyball season with an excellent rally after losing the first game of the match to Dexter's aggressive team.

With coaching support given by Bev Martin, and outstanding play by Stacy Scott, [11] the team won the best three of five games to take the hard earned match on the home court.

Final scores for the seventh grade team were 0-11, 11-5, 3-11, 11-5, and 11-5.

The eighth grade girls were not to be out-done. Dexter's strong team served power over-hands to the Chelsea girls who volleyed with excellent team work.

After dropping a first game, the eighth graders came on strong with Kim Easton power serving to win the third game.

Minday Ryan, [22] kept the pressure on, consistently serving to win the second and fourth games for the Chelsea Bullpups which won the thrilling match in only four out of five games.

Final scores for the eighth grade team were 5-11, 11-3, 11-9,

National Kidney Foundation of Michigan has announced the availability of a new publication entitled "Drugs and the Kidneys."

This new brochure, written by Dr. Stephen Midgal, co-director of nephrology at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit and a member of the Kidney Foundation Scientific Advisory Board, briefly outlines some of the side effects of over-the-counter medications, alcohol and prescription drugs on the kidneys. Of particular interest is the effect these drugs could have on persons already suffering from kidney disease.

Junior Varsity Basketball Team Wins Two Games

Chelsea's junior varsity basketball team continued to recover from its mid-season slump with victories last week over Howell and Lincoln, boosting their record to 10-6. The JV's have won three in a row after four straight losses.

Last week's scores were 46-44 over Howell in a squeaker and 56-48 in a come-from-behind effort against Lincoln.

"We played excellent defense in both games, and also handled their defensive pressure well," coach Ted Hendricks noted. "Actually, we won both games at the foul line by getting more opportunities and making the most of them."

The Howell contest was close all the way, with Chelsea clinging to a narrow lead during the final three minutes. Leading Bulldog scorers were Todd Starkey (13),

Varsity Cagers Lose Another Close One, 62-61, to Railsplitters

Chelsea's varsity basketball team needs just one more win to improve on last season's 9-12 record, but that 10th victory is proving awfully hard to come by.

The Bulldogs lost two games last week by a combined total of three points, running their losing streak to three and dropping their season record to 9-7.

The latest loss was 62-61 at Lincoln last Saturday night in a game finally played after being postponed twice because of bad weather. The Bulldogs had been defeated the night before by Howell, 47-45.

As against Howell, Chelsea had its chances to beat Lincoln but was unable to take advantage of them.

"We played much better against Lincoln than we had against Howell," coach Rahn Rosentreter said. "Our shooting average was close to 50 percent, and our defense held Lincoln below its season average. With statistics like those, you normally expect to win."

"It was a close game all the way, and when it came down to the last minute, it became a matter of which team was going to have a little bit of luck. Lincoln got it, we didn't. We made a couple of mistakes that Lincoln capitalized on. Our execution in the final seconds was not good."

For the second time this season the Bulldogs had to play two games in as many nights, a tough assignment for high school cagers. That couldn't be used as an excuse for the Lincoln loss, however, because the Railsplitters had to do the same thing.

"I think both teams were probably a little tired on Saturday," Rosentreter remarked, "but it didn't show in the play. There was a lot of intensity out there on the floor. It was a good ball game. From our standpoint, it's just too bad that we lost it. We had our chances to win, but didn't quite get there."

Chelsea was ahead by a point with a little more than a minute to play, but a turnover and ensuing foul gave Lincoln the opportunity to make good on a couple of free throws and take the lead.

The Bulldogs came back on a basket by Eric Schaffner to go in front again, but a Chelsea foul on the Railsplitters' next possession resulted in two more successful free throws and the eventual 62-61 score.

A travelling call as Chelsea brought the ball upcourt for the last time killed the chance for a last shot and a possible victory.

Schaffner had a hot hand and led all scorers with 20 points. Todd Doering had 11 and David Steinhauer 10.

Lincoln's 6-9 center Joe Ross was effectively neutralized by the Bulldog defense and fouled out near the end of the third period.

Encephalitis Alert

The waiting game. That's what we're playing in Michigan right now. We're waiting to see what this year's crop of mosquitoes may bring in the way of the viral disease encephalitis, sometimes called sleeping sickness.

Until now—and for what reason we don't know—we have been lucky.

after scoring 12 points.

Chelsea was to play neighborhood rival Dexter last night, and Rosentreter said he frankly didn't know quite what to expect.

"We could bounce up or down after those two very close losses," he said. "So could Dexter. They lost a couple of tough ones last week, too. It will be an interesting test of the character of both teams."

"From our standpoint, we badly need to get that 10th win and break our losing streak. I suspect (Dexter coach) Jim McCormack feels the same way."

Missed Opportunities Cost Chelsea Defeat By Howell

Chelsea had plenty of chances to win its varsity basketball game against Howell here last Friday night but didn't capitalize on its opportunities and so lost a close one, 47-45.

Because of the weather the Bulldogs lost two days of practice last week, and that could have made a difference. They appeared to be flat as they turned the ball over 26 times and missed some high percentage shots late in the game.

"We expected to have some turn-overs," Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter commented, "because Howell plays a full-court pressing defense, but we certainly didn't expect to have 26. We just didn't execute very well, and we showed a lack of intensity."

"Maybe the lay-off and the fact that it was a non-league game has something to do with it, I don't know. I do know we're capable of playing much better basketball and that we should have won the game."

The outcome was decided on a controversial foul call in the final seconds. With the score tied at 45 and the clock winding down, Howell elected to play for a last shot.

The Highlanders' Tim Olszewski drove the lane, and Chelsea was whistled for a blocking foul which could just as well have been called the other way for charging.

The Bulldogs protested too vigorously and were assessed a technical. Olszewski made one of two shots on the blocking foul, and Jim Schulte sank the technical shot. That left Howell with a two-point lead and possession of the ball with two seconds to go, wrapping it up.

"It was one of those judgment calls," Rosentreter said of the blocking foul. "I don't blame the boys for being unhappy about it because I was, too, but they shouldn't have lost control and drawn the technical. That's something you can't afford any time, and especially in a close game."

IT'S BEEN A LONG WINTER, but birds that stay around during the coldest of weather have helped to make it a little cheerier. Among the hardest of birds is the black-capped chickadee, which doesn't seem to mind how cold or blustery it gets. Chickadees appreciate hand-outs on feeders and are especially fond of sunflower seeds.

The game was indeed close all the way, with the widest margin being four points. Chelsea led, 12-8, at the end of the first period, but Howell came back to close the gap to one, 23-22, at the half. The visitors went ahead for the first time early in the third quarter and never again trailed although Chelsea managed several ties.

Ken Martin's long jumper produced the last tie at 45 with a little over a minute to play. The Bulldogs had three chances to go in front but blew them all before the foul call in the last seconds finally decided things.

David Steinhauer led Bulldog scorers with 15 points. Nobody else got into double digits. Martin and Eric Schaffner each produced eight, and John Jedeled six.

The loss left Chelsea with a 9-6 season record entering Saturday night's twice-postponed game at Lincoln. Howell is 14-2 and chalked up its 10th straight win.

DNR Tries To Trap Waterloo Area Turkeys

Efforts this winter to trap wild turkeys released during the past two years in the Waterloo Recreation Area have so far been unsuccessful, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

The DNR seeks to catch about 10 hens and equip them with radio transmitter collars so that nesting and brood-rearing efforts can be monitored this spring.

So far, the birds have eluded the baited traps set out for them.

Thirty wild turkeys imported from Iowa and Missouri have been released in the Waterloo area beginning in the winter of 1982-83. Indications to date are that the birds have been able to "hold their own" but have not increased substantially. The rates of reproduction and loss have just about cancelled out. The turkeys have a toe-hold, but that's all. There are still about 30 birds out there after two years of trying to increase the population.

The remaining birds are reported to be very wary, which could be a good sign. This spring's nesting and rearing season could possibly tell the story whether the introduction effort will succeed or not.

About half the birds turned loose in the initial releases were equipped with radio transmitters. The batteries have worn out, and the turkeys can no longer be tracked with monitoring devices.

This winter's trapping effort is intended to replace batteries on birds from the original releases, if they are ill around, and to put collars on keys hatched since.

Pinckney Area Youth Completes Air Force Management Course

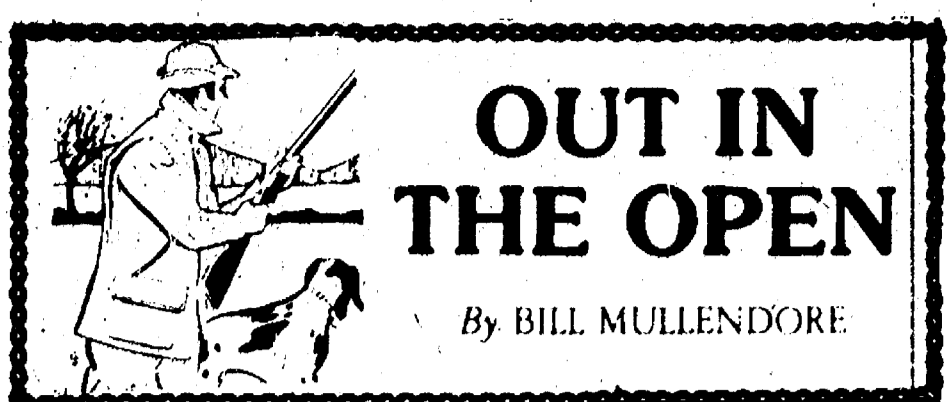

Airman Ronald J. Gotte, son of Frederick J. and W. Juna Gotte of 1619 Darwin Rd., Pinckney, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force inventory management course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

During the course, students were taught property accounting, customer support, stock control and equipment management for a base supply system. They also were taught to inventory supplies using electronic data processing machines. The graduates earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Gotte is scheduled to serve with the 6505th Supply Squadron at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

His wife, Deanne, is the daughter of Bruce Muir of 70 Lakeview Dr., Whitmore Lake.

Gotte is a 1980 graduate of Pinckney High school.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Old friends in the out-of-doors die, and with the passing of each one I lose a little bit of myself. For some reason most of my outdoor companions over the years have been men older than I, so it is only natural that they should precede me in death. That doesn't lessen the hurt in the least little bit when one of them passes away.

The latest to go was Dr. Otto K. Engelke who died on Feb. 8 at the age of 75. Doc Engelke directed the Washtenaw County Health Department for 32 years and did a darned good job. He was an environmentalist before very many people knew that there was such a word, a pioneer in public health. Had more people understood what he was talking about years ago, we wouldn't have some of the messes that we are trying to clean up today.

I remember him telling me while we sat together one early morning in a duck blind, "Bill, some of these things we're doing are going to come back to haunt us someday. We're just burying the problems and turning our backs on them."

How right he was. Otto was one of my best news sources during my 18 years at the Ann Arbor News. I take pride in the fact that he refused to talk to anybody else at the paper during the years I was there, even after I had climbed the promotional ladder into a supervisory job and wasn't supposed to be reporting and writing news.

"You get it right and you write it right," he kept insisting, "and I can't trust anybody else to do that." He was a stickler for accuracy, as befits a medical man, and he had a horror of being misquoted on matters important to public health.

Enough of that.

Otto was one of the finest outdoorsmen I have ever known and been privileged to hunt and fish with. Among other accomplishments, he could call ducks better than anyone else in my experience. When he put the calling instrument to his lips and began to make music with it, ducks couldn't resist. They might be half a mile off and apparently headed for parts unknown, but they would swing back and come to the decoys. He knew the language of ducks better than ducks do.

Otto had a blind on the west shore of Four Mile Lake, and I spent many a memorable day in it with him. One early morning a bunch of six canvasbacks flew in and sat down at the far north end of the lake, about 200 yards from the blind.

"I'll bring 'em in," Otto promised as he went to work with his call. It took him half an hour to coax the birds to swim within range. We jumped up, flushed the cans, and between us brought down all six. Those were the only canvasbacks I ever shot, and I am grateful for the memory. The species is now in trouble, and that morning I contributed my little bit to their precarious plight by killing three. At the time, however, canvasbacks were considered to be abundant and were included in the 10-duck daily limit.

Conventional wisdom has it that diving ducks—cans, redheads, bluegills, broadbills, whistlers and the like—can't be tailed by calling. Very few callers ever master the art. Otto Engelke was one who did. (Mallards, blacks, teal and other "dabblers" are relatively easy to call. Otto could bring them in, too.)

Doc was a bass fisherman. He could handle a plug-casting rod as well as I ever saw anybody do it. He used just one plug—a cigar-shaped affair with spinners at both ends—which he twitched and jerked in a tantalizing way that big bass couldn't seem to resist.

My own preference was for a fly rod and bass bugs. Otto and I fished together out of the same boat many times, taking turns casting and rowing. It usually turned out that I caught more fish, but he latched onto the largest ones. He was one of those anglers who called it a good day if he managed to land one lunker, and I netted several mighty big bass that he brought up to the boat. One that I remember weighed in at five ounces over six pounds.

When we would finish up at the end of an outing, Otto would lad me about the 10-14 inches that I had caught. "You've got your sor-dines. I've got a real fish."

I impressed him just once. We went onto a lake in June when the bluegills were spawning in shallow water, and I picked off an easy limit of big males that averaged better than nine inches, one of the best catches of bluegills that I have ever made. Otto's plugs were useless for that game.

"Teach me to do that," he asked, and I tried. He just plain couldn't master the fly rod casting stroke, and his efforts got to be scary after awhile. We had hooks flying all around us. He caught one in the back of the neck, and another hit me in the ear. (If that kind of thing has to happen, it's nice to have a doctor around to handle the emergencies, which Otto did quickly with a minimum of travail.)

He wanted a few bluegills to eat, so I bent the law a bit and caught some for him. So far as I know, the statute of limitations on that "crime" has run out. It happened more than 30 years ago.

Otto Engelke was quite a guy, one of my all-time favorite people. He's up there somewhere, calling ducks and catching bass, and cleaning up pollution problems in between.

Sixty million Americans who spend more than a half-billion dollars a year on birdseed are doing it all wrong, say some wildlife experts. Like people, birds are often very fussy about what they eat and so much of the commercial birdseed mix sold goes uneaten. Different birds like different foods. For instance, blue jays prefer peanut kernels, and woodpeckers prefer beef suet.

Area Deer Beginning To Show Winter Stress

Deer don't have any problems coping with a normal southern Michigan winter, but they are starting to show signs of stress during this unusually harsh season, the Jackson district office of the Department of Natural Resources reports.

The signs include heavy damage to nurseries, orchards, and fields of unpicked corn as the hungry animals search for any food they can find.

Severe low temperatures and snow depths of a foot or more have caused deer to bunch up and "yard," a rare occurrence in this part of the state.

Whitetails are feeding during the daylight hours, a departure from their normal winter habit of eating only at night.

Winter deer starvation seldom occurs in this part of Michigan, according to DNR biologists, and examination of highway-killed deer shows it isn't a problem yet. Nor is there any indication that does carrying fawns scheduled to be born in June are about to lose them for lack of nutrition.

The weather during the next six weeks will tell the story. Unless there is some moderation, losses to both adults and unborn fawns could happen.

A tough job ...your feet are comfortable!

Manchester School Board Sets Goals

In a recent special meeting the Manchester Board of Education through consensus discussion established short term goals for the school district.

Identified as high priority goals for the 1984-85 school year were the development of a 1985-86 budget by Feb. 18, the development of a comprehensive marketing plan with special emphasis on non-parents and continued work on curriculum development.

Identified as medium priority goals were the following: 1. Development of a proposal for capital improvement of buildings, including the completion of the athletic field complex. 2. A study of the need for additional counseling staff at all levels. 3. The development of a proposal for a comprehensive/cohesive computer education program. 4. Development of a proposal linking teacher evaluation, motivation, and merit rewards.

High school accreditation has also progressed during the current year. A high priority for the Manchester schools is the achievement of North Central Accreditation.

A copy of the board of education goals may be obtained by calling the office at 428-7300.

More than two million students are enrolled in private career schools.

Winter Guard Competes in Mt. Clemens

The Chelsea Winter Guard performed along with 10 other groups at L'Anse Creuse High school in Mt. Clemens Saturday, Feb. 16. They placed third in auxiliary class, with a score of 37.4. The group placing first over-all was St. Charles Winter Guard, with a score of 57.1.

The group is a girls' flag group connected with the band, orchestra, or choir at Chelsea High school, but are not sponsored by the school. Phil Jones, high school English teacher, is the advisor and director for the group. Some members have performed as a flag team during the fall season with the high school band at football games.

The guard is composed of girls from Chelsea High school. Seniors include Phoebe Strong, captain; Karen Moore, Dede Petsch, and Missy Young; juniors are Jackie Kelly, assistant captain; Susan Jacques, and Kathy Monaghan; sophomores are Heidi Apostle and Amy Dunlop; freshmen are Laura Walton, Kristi Jachalke, Meredith Johnson, Erin Haywood, Debbie DeVoe, Jill LaCroix, and Karen Paulsell. Runners are Alicia Dalton and Kristen Muncer.

The group has four future performances scheduled. The next competition will be held Saturday, March 2 at C. S. Mott College in Flint at 7 p.m. The public is welcome.

The largest rooftop garden in the world—with over 5,000 plant species—is atop a seven-story department store in downtown London, England, reports International Wildlife magazine. The garden attracts a variety of wild visitors, including flamingos and pheasants, which simply fly in.

GOING UP DESPITE THE WEATHER: This hasn't been the kind of winter to favor outdoor construction, but work is going ahead on the new Professional Center just north of the west entrance to

SCHOOL WAS OUT because of a "snow day" last Thursday, and it was indeed a good day for playing in the snow if you were young and energetic enough to enjoy it. Igloos were built and

Stable Farm Supply Prices Expected for 1985

Michigan farmers can expect stable prices for agricultural supplies during 1985, primarily because they can't afford to buy as much as they did in previous years.

"Depressed farm income has reduced the demand for supplies, and that has caused supply prices to fall," says Jack McEwen, Michigan State University agricultural economist. "The high value of the dollar has made those supplies that are imported less expensive, adding further pressure to the near-term farm supply price picture."

The prices of energy, fuel and related products are expected to remain stable during the first part of 1985, then begin to decline. "OPEC members decided to reduce production to maintain its crude oil prices. This policy will leave them with large supplies that will depress prices for a long time," McEwen says.

Nitrogen products will drop in price because they are products of natural gas.

"It will be a while until oil prices indirectly affect the costs of producing synthetic nitrogen, but the pressures for price reductions in nitrogen will become stronger during 1985," he says. "but this won't occur in time for spring planting."

Farmers can expect to see more imported fertilizer appear on the market.

"The strong dollar makes potash, phosphates and some forms of nitrogen, like urea, less expensive from foreign suppliers," McEwen says.

Nature from Your Backdoor

By Glenn R. Dudderar

A bird that looks like a junco except that its back is almost black; a squirrel with a black belly, legs and other trim dominating its orange-tinted coat—new species in Michigan? No, only individual variations within species.

The mystery bird is a junco. Because of its size and the description I received over the phone—white belly, light-colored bill and dark back—that's all it could be. But it doesn't match the picture in the caller's bird identification book. That's because the book can show only one representative member of the species—it can't show the whole range of color that's possible. Juncos, for instance, range in color from light gray on the back to a charcoal gray that's almost black.

The fox squirrel with the black markings was seen at a bird feeder. This is another species that shows a great deal of individual color variation. Fox squirrels range from yellow-brown to orange like a fox, and the amount of black trim can be negligible to predominant. Local populations of fox squirrels—such as the one in East Lansing—can be totally black. But all the varied individuals are still members of the same species.

Another frequent visitor to winter bird feeders that shows a great deal of individual color variation is the goldfinch. Male goldfinches, of course, lose their vivid yellow color in the fall. The color difference between the males and females is much less in the winter than during the breeding season. The variations in color among the males in the winter is almost as great as the difference between male and female. They can range from light gray through gray-green to olive or yellow-green. An individual that's quite a bit different from the rest of the local finches can easily be mistaken for a member of a different species.

These color variations are more significant, however, than the natural variations in human hair color. They can make identifying some birds or animals difficult, of course—some of the variations within a species are more obvious than the less conspicuous marks that distinguish some species of sparrows from one another, for instance.

Crossbreeding between species adds still another level of complication to the problem. The best example of this in Michigan occurs among sunfish. Bluegills as a species show tremendous variation, but when these hybridize with other sunfish, it often takes some close looking at fine details to identify individuals by species.

Variations within species are often more noticeable in winter because birds are migrating in and out and many mammals move considerable distances to find food. Adding these migrants to the local population means you are seeing more individuals of any given species, and that increases your chance of seeing greater variation within the species.

Noticing and learning to recognize both the consistency and the variety in nature is one of the pleasures of observing nature from your backdoor.

Cong. Schuette's Appointment Called Good Farm News

The appointment of Congressman Bill Schuette (10th District) to the House of Agriculture Committee is "good news to Michigan farmers," according to Jack Laurie, Tuscola county dairy farmer who heads Michigan Farm Bureau's Agri-Pac.

"This is the first time in many, many years that Michigan has had a member of its congressional delegation appointed on a full-time basis to this important committee," Laurie said.

"Because Congressman Schuette's district is largely rural, with a very diverse agriculture, his input in the Farm Bill '85 debate will be especially valuable."

"We believe he will be a key contributor to the committee and to the development of the kind of farm program agriculture needs today," Laurie said.

Schuette was designated a "Friend of Agriculture" by AgriPac, which supported him in his race against incumbent Don Albosta for the 10th Congressional seat in the 1984 election.

Improved Management Can Increase Yields

Improving management practices can increase corn and soybean yields without raising production costs.

"Although the optimum level of such inputs as fertilizer is necessary for maximum economic yield, there are some management practices that can increase yield, and thus lower cost per bushel, with little or no additional cost input," says Oran Hesterman, Michigan State University extension agronomist.

Implementing a corn-soybean crop rotation is the first step toward reducing costs and boosting yields.

A five-year study of continuous corn cropping systems in the Saginaw Valley showed corn yields declined 13 percent from the first to the second year of planting, and 21 percent the third year. Conversely, rotating crops raised corn and soybean yields 12 and 11 percent, respectively, over yields produced using a continuous two-year system.

Corn-soybean rotation can also save producers up to $24 per acre by lowering nitrogen fertilizer and tillage requirements and eliminating the need for corn rootworm insecticide, Hesterman says. This savings is on top of the added returns from increased yields.

Planting top performing varieties adds little extra cost, but can substantially increase the return per acre. For example, the difference between an average yield corn variety and the highest yielding hybrid was 26 bushels per acre, Hesterman says. If the seed costs are equal for average and top performing hybrids, a producer can realize an additional $72 per acre net return.

"In addition to yield, evaluate a variety's maturity, lodging and disease resistance characteristics when making a planting decision," Hesterman says. "And remember, the best variety is the one that yields the best on your farm."

Planting corn early maximizes grain yields, Hesterman says. Planting corn in Michigan between April 20 and mid-May produces shorter plants with better standability, allows plants to mature before seasonal summer dryness can damage growth, and enables earlier harvest and lower moisture at harvest. Fewer than half of the days within the optimal planting range in Michigan are suitable for field work, so growers need to get equipment ready well before planting time so they can take advantage of good weather.

Studies at MSU show that the optimal corn plant population is about 19,000 plants per acre. Corn should be overplanted about 10 percent to achieve recommended plant populations and top yields. Planting 23,100 seeds per acre of corn instead of 19,900 seeds adds only $6.30 to seed costs but can increase income by $40 per acre, resulting in a net profit of $33.70 per acre.

Plant population in soybeans is not as critical as in corn. Best yields result when seeding is based on beans per foot rather than pounds planted per acre. A seeding rate of 4 to 5 seeds per foot of row is best for a 14- to 16-inch wide row, but seeding rates change with different row widths.

Scouting fields during the growing season can increase yields and reduce costs by detecting insect, disease and weed problems before they are widespread. The Extension Integrated Pest Management (IPM) scouting program at MSU provides access to trained scouts and a scouting training program, Hesterman says.

Crop consultants can also provide soil testing and fertilizer recommendations that will enhance crop yields.

Minimizing harvest losses is another important step in raising grain production. Adjusting operating practices and machinery, measuring losses, and knowing where losses occur reduce harvest losses to 1 to 2 bushels per acre for both corn and soybeans, Hesterman says.

Farm Co-Op Assoc. Receives Training Grant for Seminars

Farm co-operative managers and directors will benefit from a series of training seminars, sponsored by the Michigan Association of Farmer Co-operatives and partially funded by a $1,000 training grant from the Mutual Service Insurance/Co-operative League Fund.

According to Charles Buchholz, executive secretary of the Michigan Association of Farmer Co-operatives, the training seminars will be held in March and December. Emphasis of the spring seminar, he said, will be on tax and financial management for farmer co-ops, and the December seminar focus will be on co-operative principles, business trends and objectives, and promotion of co-operatives' involvement in community development.

Mutual Service Insurance, with home offices in Arden Hills, Minn., has been donating the co-operative grant program since 1974 and has supported a wide variety of projects including education, developmental and training programs.

Agriculture Can't Make Rapid Transition, Farm Leader Warns

While the nation's largest farm organization has long supported a move toward a more market-oriented agriculture, the transition can't be made overnight, according to John Datt, director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office.

In response to President Reagan's state of the union address Feb. 6, Datt said, "The proposal which the administration is recommending involves an immediate, major reduction in federal farm program funding, which would make the market adjustment very rapid."

"We believe that this kind of transition should not be made overnight. Given a few more years, agriculture could better adjust to a market-oriented industry," he said.

Manchester Schools Okay Agri-Business Curriculum Proposal

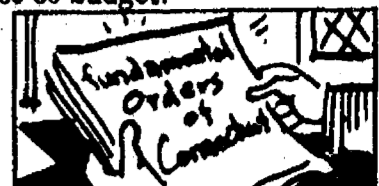

At its regular meeting on Monday, Jan. 21, the Manchester Board of Education discussed and took action to approve a proposal for an Agri-Business Curriculum which was presented by the administration.

Following direction from the Board of Education leadership and at the urging of the Manchester agriculture community, superintendent of schools Gene Thompson and high school principal William Bushaw have worked to develop a proposal to meet the needs of students interested in studies regarding careers in the agricultural industry. In his memo Bushaw noted that the FFA was the most active of the extra curricular organizations. Sponsors Gary Weidmayer and Mark Blumenauer who were present at the meeting noted that the agriculture industry is the second largest in Michigan.

During discussion board members echoed the need for such a program at the introductory ninth and tenth grade levels and were concerned only that sufficient numbers of students would enroll. Following discussion the board took action to direct the administration to continue to work on the project with final approval pending the development of the 1985-86 budget.

The first written constitution in history is believed to have been the Fundamental Orders of Connecticut.

Church Official from Ethiopia To Speak Here

The Rev. Gustav Kuether, world service secretary for the division of world service of the United Church Board for World Ministries, will speak Sunday, Feb. 24, at services at St. Paul United Church of Christ. He has recently visited drought-stricken areas of Africa and has seen firsthand the refugee camps in Ethiopia, where so many people are dying daily, and where shipments of food are all that is keeping thousands of people alive.

Following the service at 10:30 a.m., there will be a "Soup and Sandwich Luncheon" in the Fellowship Hall during which the Rev. Kuether will show slides of what he observed. The public is welcome to attend the service and the luncheon. A free will offering will be received.

The Rev. Kuether served as a missionary in San Pedro Sula, Honduras for 15 years and as regional secretary for Latin America and the Caribbean. He is the grandson and son of pastors of the Evangelical Synod of North America and the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

He has traveled extensively throughout the world, particularly in Latin America, Africa, and the Middle East. He did graduate work in communications at Michigan State University in 1969, and is a graduate of Elmhurst College, Elmhurst, Ill., and Eden Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. The program is being sponsored by the Department of Church and Mission, St. Paul UCC.

Aging Council Joins Study of Mental Health for Elderly

Washtenaw County Council on Aging has been selected by the Office of Services to the Aging and the Department of Mental Health to participate in a mental health and aging project.

The project, known as Building Ties, is co-sponsored by OSA and DMH in co-operation with the Area Agency on Aging Association of Michigan.

The Washtenaw County Council on Aging is one of the agencies selected state-wide to participate in this initiative.

As part of the project, a local interagency committee has been formed to address the mental needs of the elderly in Washtenaw county. The members include: Washtenaw County Community Mental Health Agency, Mercywood Hospital Child and Family services, Turner Geriatric Clinic, Catholic Social Services, Neighborhood Senior Services, Community Councils Association, Washtenaw County Community Services Agency and the Area Agency on Aging 1-B.

Older adults have been underserved by the public mental health system. This project will assess the mental health needs of the elderly locally and develop a plan of action to meet those needs.

The committee/task force will be meeting monthly for the next two months to develop co-operation and co-ordination between the many human service resources in this area. The committee will also be addressing new program development in this area.

For more information, contact: Chris Brail, Washtenaw Council on Aging, 665-3625.

Michigan Voters OK 70% of School Millage Requests in Past Year

Michigan voters approved 70% of the school millage proposals in 1983-84, a record high for the decade, according to figures from the Michigan State Department of Education.

The increased number of voter approvals is seen as a positive reaction to efforts by school personnel in addition to a turn-around in the national economy. As a manufacturing state, Michigan is highly dependent upon automotive related industry.

Through this period school officials in Michigan have worked hard to increase expectations for students as well as to provide specialized programs and tougher graduation requirements.

All of these factors together are seen as being reflected through voter approval.

Ash Wednesday Events Slated at St. Paul Church

Ash Wednesday, Feb. 20, will see a variety of programs for young and old at St. Paul United Church of Christ. The day will begin with a 7 a.m. breakfast for all youth from seventh through twelfth grades, served by Mrs. Pat Whitesall, senior high advisor. Speaker for the event will be the Rev. Robert Welkart, pastoral consultant/ethicist at the Chelsea Family Practice Center. His topic will be "Self Image."

The young people have been asked to bring a special offering for the African famine, which will begin a congregation-wide effort to send a major contribution for famine relief in Africa, to be received on March 17, One Great Hour of Sharing.

That evening at 7:30 p.m., holy communion will be observed. Two segments of a filmstrip will be shown depicting the life of Christ as painted by some of the world's greatest artists such as Rembrandt, El Greco, Dali, Raphael, Rubens, and others. These masterpieces are on display at the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C.

Special readings will enable worshippers to "meet Jesus" in the "Breaking of Bread" and in the "Mission of the Church."

Readers will be Kathy Frisinger, Carol Ghent, Wynni Kanten, and Don Young. The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Pat Stirling, will sing a special Lenten anthem. The public is cordially invited.

Tourist Assoc. Offers New Guide Book

Southeastern Michigan Travel and Tourist Association has announced a totally new design for its 1985 Travelfun guide to activities in the area.

Travelfun, which is distributed without charge to prospective travelers in the area, is a comprehensive publication describing the many attractions in the 11-county Southeast Michigan region. 100,000 are distributed each year at locations throughout Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Ontario.

The new book will be greatly improved over previous editions with a new "glamour" section and room for individual business listings.

Sid Baker, president of the Association, says advertising and listing space is available to area businesses who would like to reach the traveling public. Anyone interested in advertising may call 585-8220 for information.

Baker notes that the current Travelfun is still available to the public. They may be obtained by sending $1 to cover postage to Travelfun package, P.O. Box 1590, Troy 48099 or by stopping at the TTA office, 64 Park St., Troy or at local Michigan Travel Information Centers.

Beach School Quiz Bowl Competition Seeks Top Team

All you trivia buffs jump-start those gray matter cells and try your expertise at these questions.

[1] For photosynthesis to occur a plant takes in water through its roots, it also must take in CO<sub>2</sub>, however, how?

[2] What are the names of five groups of barbarians to invade the Roman Empire? [Giving in to the semi-humorous temptation to name your neighbors and friends will only result in a wrong answer, so control is the key.]

[3] What is a poetic term called that gives human qualities to things, ideas or animals?

[4] Which French explorer is known as the "Father of New France"?

Salivating for a math question, aren't you? Try this one, What is the solution to the question -3+(-5)=12?

Now, if this entire set of questions has not been ego-shattering enough to those adults accepting the challenge, it may help the insult along a bit to know that those are just a few taken from a file of questions used in the Beach Middle school's quiz bowl competition. And most came from the seventh grade level, at that.

Darcio Stielstra, principal at Beach, explained that sixth, seventh and eighth graders have competed over the past weeks to narrow the eight grade-level teams down to a championship winner.

Questions were prepared by classroom teachers and each team was questioned for a harrowing 15-minute session in all areas of academic discipline including math, social studies, English, art, typing and science.

Championship teams from all grade levels will compete Wednesday, Feb. 20 during the first school period. Those three teams will be narrowed to two winners which will compete with county level league schools, Lincoln Consolidated, Saline, and Dexter.

If not knowing the answer to any of the above questions is driving you to distraction, ask an eighth grader, or even a sixth grader. Painful, isn't it? ... last question.

Albert Schiller Will Observe 93rd Birthday

Albert Schiller, 1236 S. Fletcher Rd., will celebrate his 93rd birthday Thursday, Feb. 21. He presently resides at the Geriatric Center of Stockbridge.

Schiller is the son of Michael and Christine Schiller, and grew up at the homestead farm on Fletcher Rd., where he spent most of his life.

He married his neighbor and childhood sweetheart, Eda Koch on April 18, 1917 at Rogers Corners, St. John's church. Eda Koch Schiller died in June 1969, after many active years running a home for the aged on Jerusalem Rd.

He has one living son, Arthur of Chelsea, and one daughter, Marian Packer of Ann Arbor. Edward, the younger son, died in 1966. There are six grandchildren. The family plans a private celebration for Schiller at the Geriatric Center and he will also share in the February birthday celebration there with fellow residents.

Gemini Concert Slated Friday at Beach School

The Gemini, twin brothers Sandor and Laszlo Slomovits, will give a folk music concert on Friday, Feb. 22, at 1:30 p.m. at Beach Middle school.

The brothers sing and play original and traditional folk music from many different parts of the world on nearly a dozen instruments including guitars, fiddle, pennywhistle, ocarina and several percussion instruments. They involve the children in the music making and their concerts are educational and highly entertaining.

This year Gemini has been selected to be one of only 16 groups from North America to perform for Showcase '85—the most prestigious gathering of sponsors of the performing arts series for young people.

They have three recordings available. Their appearance schedule is available for those who would like to share the experience with others.

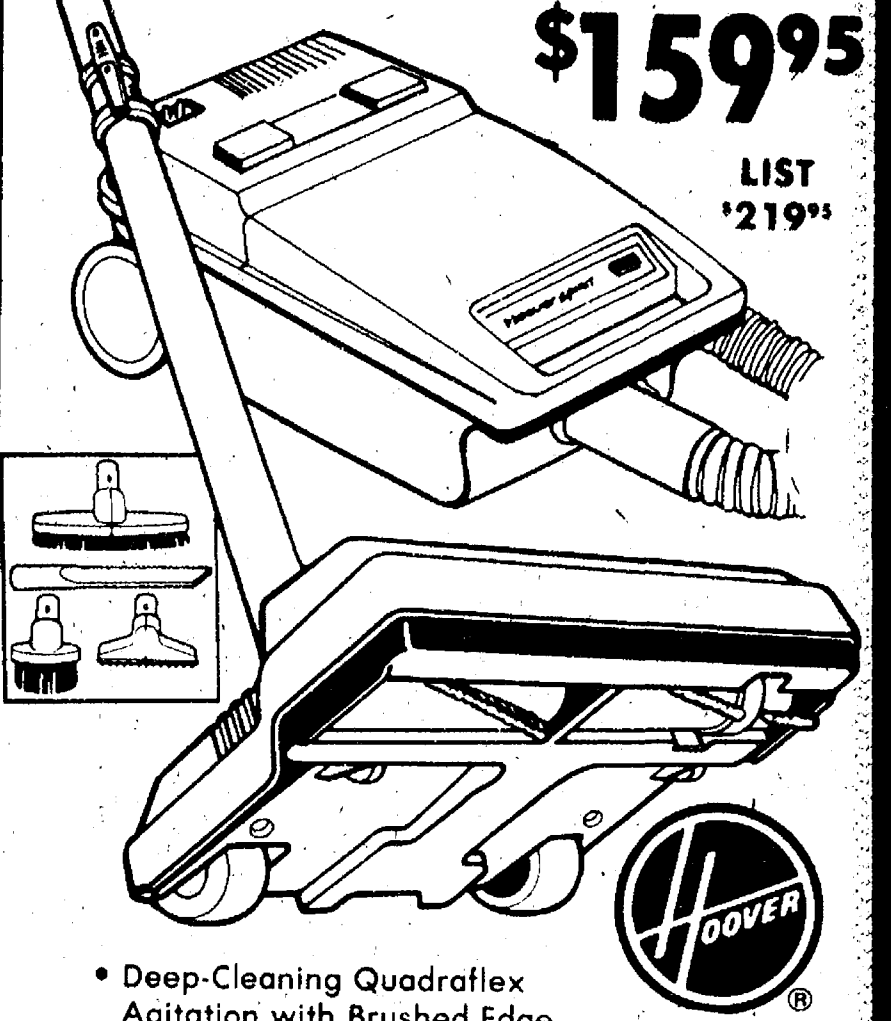

The acre was originally the area a yoke of oxen could plow in a day.
