ONE HUNDRED-FIFTEENTH YEAR—No. 40

CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1985

18 Pages This Week

THIS WINTER DRAWING of the Chelsea railroad depot was recently made by local artist Cathy Muha. The building is considered to be an architectural and historic treasure. Built in 1880, it is expected to be admitted soon to the National Register of Historic Places.

Railroad Depot Sale to Local Civic Group Said Near

Amtrak has decided to sell the Chelsea Railroad depot outright to local civic interests as an alternative to further leasing negotiations with the village council.

The decision was revealed in a letter to Congressman Carl Pursell by James English, Amtrak's vice-president for government affairs.

The price of $10,000 for outright sale of the depot building and land was suggested in a letter by Will Connelly as an alternative to Amtrak's proposed 30-year leasing agreement which was rejected by the Council.

Connelly said the purchase being negotiated will include all the right-of-way land on the south side of the railroad tracks between N. Main and East Sts.

Connelly and Dudley Holmes,

Jr., vice-president of Chelsea Milling Co., have been serving as community negotiators to acquire the 105-year-old depot so that it may be rehabilitated for use as a civic center and historical museum. Confirmation of many details of the deal was made this week in telephone conversations between Connelly and four executives of the National Railroad Passenger Corp. (Amtrak), including vice-president English.

"We cannot be sure of cost details, land measurements and special provisions until we receive Amtrak's purchase proposal in writing," Connelly said, "but we are coming closer to the point of getting that dear old depot. Our community wants to save the station while it is still preservable. On the other hand, Amtrak has problems of survival and needs every friend it can get."

President Reagan in his State of the Union address recommended withdrawing $600 million in federal assistance to Amtrak as a means of reducing the federal deficit. Railroaders say it would be a death blow to Amtrak and leave the United States as the only developed country in the world without a national rail passenger system.

Legal efforts are underway to incorporate the Chelsea Depot Association as a non-profit civic organization. Directors of the corporation in its formative stage will be Scott Tanner, Marjorie Hepburn, Gloria Mitchell, Lynda Longe, Mark Heydlauff and Will Connelly.

Roberts Auto Shop Planning To Build In Industrial Park

A possible third tenant for Chelsea's Sibley Rd. industrial park is in prospect. James and Gerald Roberts, owners of Roberts Paint & Body Shop, 20416 Old US-12, have taken an option on 1.63 acres of land in the park priced at $15,000 per acre.

"If everything works out the way we hope it will, we will start construction of a new building in the park in April or May and move our business into it late this summer," James Roberts said.

"Our business is growing, and we need more space and more modern facilities. We've been in the building that we now rent for nine years, and we've outgrown it. Our business has been good, and we look for it to expand."

The shop, which does auto body repair, frame straightening and painting, presently employs six persons. Some increase in jobs is possible, Roberts said, depending on future business.

Preliminary plans call for construction of a 60 by 100-foot prefabricated metal building in the industrial park.

The Roberts option on the property is for one year.

BookCrafters has opened a new fulfillment house in the industrial park, and Lewis Publishers has taken a two-year option on a 1.3-acre parcel.

In actions related to industrial park development the village council has voted to increase option fee from $100 to $500 and has approved the final plat for the park.

Rock-A-Thon Funds Go to Scholarships

The National Honor Society sponsored rock-a-thon was held Friday, March 1 and Saturday, March 2. Chairperson, and NHS treasurer, Laura Koepele reported that the fund raiser was a huge success.

Over $1,000 was earned through pledges in the marathon rocking chair event and will provide scholarships for some NHS seniors.

Sixty-four participants rocked during some period of the 28-hour marathon, beginning Friday night at 7 p.m. and nine rocked for the entire duration. The 28-hour insomniacs were Maryann Richardson, Veena Vadlamjdi, Stephanie Grant, Jeff Messman, Martha Koernke, Rick Proctor, Rod Satterthwaite, Ravi Vadlamjdi, and Doug Jankuski.

Homework, TV, radios, card games and monopoly were the most popular distractions from sleep.

Ice on Local Lakes Not Safe for Fishing

If you feel the urge to get in some last-minute ice fishing before the local season ends, the best and safest advice is, simply, don't do it.

Area lakes were still covered with ice late last week, with thicknesses ranging up to a foot. However, the ice was rotten, the kind you can punch through with one stroke of a heavy spud—or a step of a heavy foot.

The late-February thaw has not only melted the winter's accumulation of snow but also has honey-combed the ice. The ice may look safe, but it isn't.

So-called "late ice" traditionally offers the best fishing of the winter season, as the water beneath begins to warm and fish step up their feeding in anticipation of spring and spawning.

Shanties should be off the lakes by now. Any still out there might better be left at the risk of a fine for failure to remove them.

The ice fishing season was unusually short this year. Warm (Continued on page three)

Village Election Set Next Monday with No Contests on Ballot

There will be a village election on Monday, March 11, and the only question is the size of the voter turnout. The betting is that it will be less than 100.

It's difficult to pump up enthusiasm for an election in which there are no contests. Eight offices are open, and there is one candidate for each.

If anybody is trying to generate a write-in campaign for any of the posts, it is a very well kept secret.

Village clerk Evelyn Rosentretter has predicted that fewer than 100 voters will turn out to mark the pro forma ballots. Nevertheless, there will be 10 voting machines set up in the Sylvan township hall, 112 W. Middle St., and the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. State law requires that there be one machine available for every 200 registered voters.

Mrs. Rosentretter is a candidate for re-election and so won't be able to supervise the balloting that she is required by law to set up.

Last year, with the village presidency and three posts on the board of trustees contested fewer than 400 ballots were cast.

Here, for the record, is the lineup of candidates, all running without party labels of any kind:

Village trustees, two-year terms: Herman C. Radloff, 419 Madison St.; Richard C. Steele, 211 Lincoln St.; Stephanie M. Kanten, 560 Chandler St. All are incumbents.

Village trustee, one-year term to fill vacancy—Athele E. (Mac) Fuls, 405 Madison St. He is also an incumbent, having been appointed to fill the seat that he seeks to confirm by election.

Village clerk, two-year term—Evelyn Rosentretter, incumbent.

Village treasurer, one-year term to fill vacancy—William E. Storey, 216 Jefferson St. He is an incumbent, having been appointed to fill a vacancy created by a resignation.

Library board of trustees, three-year terms. John A. Groesser, 28 Sycamore Dr. (incumbent) and Anne E. Merkel, 158 Orchard St. Mrs. Merkel's is the only new name on the ballot. She is running for the post being vacated by Jean L. Eaton.

About the only possible surprise would be if nobody bothered to vote. That isn't likely, but long lines aren't expected at any time during the 13 hours that the polls will be open.

Rezoning Approved On N. Main Site

Chelsea's village board has approved rezoning of property at 405 N. Main St. to pave the way for a new retail business enterprise.

The property, owned by Chelsea Milling Co., fronts on the west side of Main St. and is bounded by Buchanan St. on the north and North St. on the south. It included a building that was a showroom for the former Spaulding Chevrolet agency.

It is an open secret around town that Dale R. Richardson of 744 N. Freer Rd. plans to start up an auto parts store on the site, but neither village officials nor Richardson confirmed that.

The village board voted to rezone the property from industrial to commercial without officially knowing the proposed use.

Nobody showed up at a Feb. 20 public hearing on the zoning change. Richardson is understood to be on vacation. Chelsea Milling has stated in writing that it has no objection to the zoning change and is willing to lease the property to Richardson.

A new production plant which Chelsea Milling plans to construct on the former Chelsea Lumber Co. site fronting on N. Main St. can be built without removing the building Richardson proposes to lease.

A FRONT-END LOADER operated by village employee Ellsworth Petsch works to remove snow from the village parking lot

Monday morning. The snow was heavy and wet, and picking it up was slow going.

Alice Steinbach Named Outstanding Science Teacher

Chelsea Middle School teacher Alice Steinbach has been named Outstanding Middle School Science Teacher of the year by the Michigan Science Teachers association (MSTA). Presented in recognition of exemplary performance in teaching science, the award is also based on innovation in teaching methods and materials, creativity, initiative, and adaptability.

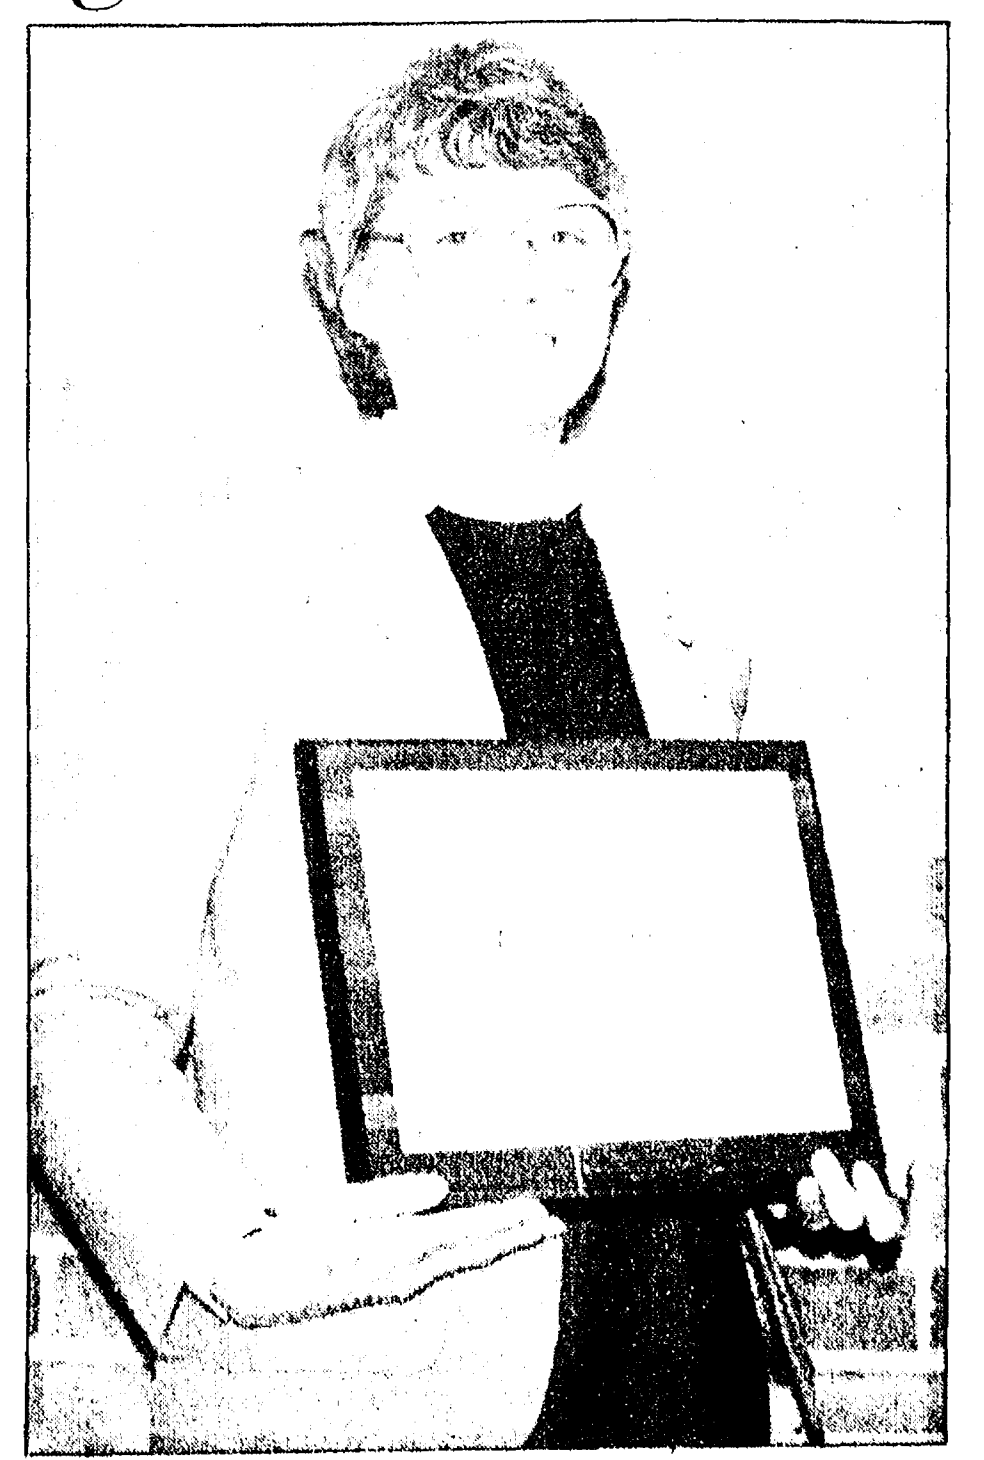

Steinbach, who teaches at Beach Middle school, is effective with levels of students, MSTa officials said. Her teaching reflects her belief that science must reflect the ongoing quest for understanding the natural world and our role in that world. The ultimate goal must be scientific literacy.

Among Steinbach's classroom initiatives have been the use of group dynamics in problem solving in environmental problem as well as the development of an Environmental and Conservation curriculum for the middle school. For her colleagues Steinbach has implemented in-service to share her methods and materials with staff members.

Steinbach is active presenting materials and methods on Environmental Education throughout the state as well as in other states.

Darcio M. Stielstra, principal at Beach Middle school, nominated Steinbach for the award. Nominees are screened by an awards committee on performance and evaluated through classroom visits.

More than 1,000 science teachers from across the state attended the annual convention of the MSTa in Lansing Friday. (Continued on page five)

ALICE STEINBACH holds the plaque presented to her by the Michigan Science Teachers Association naming her this year's Outstanding Middle School Science Teacher. Steinbach teaches sixth and eighth grade science at Beach Middle school and is commended by MSTa officials as being effective with all levels of students. She feels her job is made exceptionally easy by community involvement and staff competency.

4 Years Ago . . .

Tuesday, March 10, 1981—

It was an emotional, loud and crowded night. Chelsea hosted the District 37 basketball championship taking to the court to face "dark horse" Tecumseh. It was the Tecumseh Indians who ended the night with a 49-48 last minute win to clinch the district crown. Six Chelsea cagers played their last high school game. They were Jeff Dils, Jeff Price, Sean Peterson, Jon Riemenschneider, Mark Steinway, and Chris Tobin. Beach Middle school orchestra traveled to Forsythe Junior High school, Ann Arbor, to compete with a total of 14 area orchestras in the District Junior High Orchestra Festival. The group received 17 "A's" and 3 "B's", coming home with the first I rating earned by the full symphony orchestra.

Chelsea High school symphony and 9th grade bands competed in the District 12 Band Festival and walked away with superior ratings for the fifth consecutive year.

Fire Chief James Gaken submitted his resignation to the Chelsea Village Council following 34 years of service on the Fire Department, the last 18 of which he had served as chief.

The board of directors of Western Union Space Communication Co., Inc. confirmed the appointment of William J. Koseika, former Chelsea resident, as vice-president of operations.

At a membership drive meeting held at Sylvan Town Hall, the Chelsea Area Jaycees signed up five local men as new members of the group. They were Steve Bergman, Terry Cordett, Randy Dougherty, Charles Thompson, and Chris Todd.

14 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, March 11, 1971—

Elaine Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Burnett, 109 Grant St. was pictured hard at work at Palmer Ford where she was employed part-time through the Chelsea High school Co-op Program. She was working 25 hours a week doing bookkeeping, filing, and typing.

One week was left for rehearsal before opening night of the Chelsea High school production of "South Pacific." Smooth scene changes were causes of the greatest headaches.

Members of the Southeastern Conference All-league team were announced. Jim Wojcicki, Chelsea's senior co-captain was named to first string along with Greg Ianni of Dexter. Named to the second team were Ron Sweeney of Chelsea; and Mike Kinaschuk of Dexter.

A winter storm caused the Monday closing of Chelsea area school bringing the number of school closings that winter to six, the highest number in recent years, school officials claimed.

The Public Service Commission of the Michigan Department of Commerce approved a $19 million rate increase for the Detroit Edison Co. The April rate increase, the first in 21 years, was based on revenue and costs for the year of 1968.

Five Jan. 9 birthdays were celebrated within the Ed Lantis family by Ed Lantis, 42, John Lantis, 17, Jeff Lantis, 7, a nephew, John Hafner and his son, Randy. On an impulse, Mrs. John Hafner clipped a Standard news item on the up-coming celebration and sent it with an invitation to President Richard Nixon. She received a letter of regret that he could not attend.

Three Chelsea area youths and a school counselor braved cold rains to clean up Chelsea on a campaign drawn up by the boys. The Beach Middle school students were Jerry Carpenter, Jim Collinsworth, and Ron Joseph. They were joined by school counselor, James Thompson. (Continued on page seven)

HOW CAN ONE FACE THEM?

Having failed to attend a friend's funeral service, one may experience great difficulty in facing members of the bereaved family without embarrassment.

So, too, may members of the deceased's family find it hard to face some one who did not pay their respects at the funeral service, the wake or other form of visitation.

To avoid such embarrassment, a person who could not attend the service ought to make a personal condolence call afterwards. He should also explain to the family why he could not attend.

Although one must make these decisions individually, as the situation requires, it must be pointed out that funeral attendance and condolence calls are social responsibilities. We occasionally observe this "loss of friendship" when a simple phone call might have prevented the hurt feelings.

If you are not clear about visitation etiquette or duties, feel free to call on us for assistance. We will be pleased to help you at any time.

Budget Cuts Could Devastate Transit Programs, Officials Say

President Reagan's proposed 1985-86 federal budget "would be devastating to Michigan's public transit programs," the head of the state public and urban transportation said.

The budget cuts, if adopted, could cost the state's bus systems as much as $38 million, threaten railroad passenger service and track rehabilitation as well as cut subsidized air service to two cities, Carol Norris, deputy transportation director for urban and public transportation said.

If threatened federal cuts go through, it is unlikely state or local revenues would be available to state's outstate urban bus monies, she said.

In analyzing the impact of the federal budget, Norris said the state's outstate urban bus systems could lose as much as 24 percent of their operating budgets, while the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) could lose up to 16 percent.

Non-urban bus systems could lose up to 18 percent of their budgets, she noted.

The state's two subsidized Amtrak services—from Grand Rapids to Chicago and from Port Huron to Chicago—could be eliminated under one budget proposal, Norris said, affecting some 200,000 passengers annually and train service to 10 cities.

A second Amtrak proposal calls for modest reductions in subsidies over four years, and while that would not significantly affect passenger service, she said, it could eliminate train station and track improvement programs.

And freight railroad rehabilitation projects could lose funds as well under the budget, she said.

"Given the magnitude of the state's trackage in dire need of immediate rehabilitation, any action other than continuation of or an increase in program funding would have a negative impact on the rail freight program," she added.

And Jackson and Manistee could lose their air carrier services if subsidies provided under the essential air service provisions of the 1978 airline deregulation act are cut, Norris concluded.

In a related transportation item, SEMTA intends to cap total construction costs for the controversial downtown Detroit People Mover project at $200 million, more than 45 percent over the original cost estimate of $127.5 million.

Appearing before the House Urban Affairs Committee, Acting SEMTA Director Albert Martin blamed much of the cost overruns on insufficient preliminary engineering and additional contract stipulations required by the federal government.

And he also asserted that the project could not be abandoned, as some people have suggested, because it was already more than 50 percent completed and would "catapult Detroit into the 21st century."

The People Mover Project is scheduled to open in October, 1986.

Martin said SEMTA would resist efforts by the People Mover's construction company, the Urban Transportation Development Corporation-USA, the American subsidiary of a Canadian corporation, to claim costs over $200 million.

Engineers have studied the project and have advised SEMTA that any costs over $200 million are "unwarranted," he said.

The U. S. Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) required SEMTA to supply it with a "firm and final" cost figure before obtaining further federal funds, Martin said.

UMTA paid for 80 percent of the initial $127.5 million cost, but has resisted paying for 80 percent of the cost overruns.

The remaining 20 percent of funding, Martin said, was to come from the state.

Currently, the State Transportation Commission has approved an additional $9.2 million, originally slated to go to the now-shelved Detroit-Pontiac light rail line, to help finance the cost overruns.

In 1769 Patience Lovell Wright was known as the first American sculptor. Mrs. Wright began her career by making bread dough sculptures of family and friends as toys for her five children. She eventually opened a very popular wax museum in New York, which was filled with her creations. Most of her work was destroyed by fire in 1771.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers were kicking around first one thing and then another at the country store Saturday night, and somebody tossed out the old line about the right way, the wrong way and the military way. This brought on a short discussion of the latest order that there'll be no umbrellas in this man's Army. Wimmen in all the services can have em, but only the Air Force lets men wear the uniform and carry umbrellas at the same time.

Late last month the Army chief of staff ruled that his branch will hold to a 210 year policy. What was the chief thinking about? Maybe he figured wimmen don't have sense to come in out of the rain. Or that men in combat situations would have trouble carrying rifles, umbrellas and saluting under attack? Could be he had visions of some visiting head of state trying to review ranks of raised umbrellas.

Actual, Clem Webster saw some reason in rules that keep wimmen dry and leave men all wet. The chief of staff knows that the strongest, bravest general would break and run from a swarm of mad, soaked wimmen with droopy hairdos.

The plain truth probable is, Zeke Grubb offered, that men that run the Army just ain't convinced that real men carry umbrellas. That's the way conventional male wisdom goes, civilian and military. This wisdom holds that when you see a pickup tooling down the road with a male at the wheel and a umbrella in the back winder gun rack you see a sissy sending a message. It's allus been that way, Zeke went on. Not long back, that conventional wisdom had it that a real man didn't wear a wrist watch, Zeke said, and he ask if anybody recalled how recent the television and sports magazines went all out to show that real men used hair spray.

Right now, Zeke noted, we got a run on gold necklaces that wives and girlfriends give their men for Christmas. He swore he was in a supermarket week before last and saw a feller old as he is in bib overhauls and two strands of a flat gold necklace around his neck with more wattle than any turkey. Zeke said he didn't have the heart to see if the pore devil had a ring in his nose or in one ear.

Practical speaking, Ed Doolittle said, the Army has got to be conscious of its image. If they let everybody walk around with a swagger stick under his arm you'd git the impression that everybody is a chief and there ain't no Indians.

Speaking of images, Clem was of a mind that OPEC has got a humdinger. What he wanted to know, Clem said, is how you can go broke perducing a product for 29 cent and selling it for $29. He had saw it cost them countries about 30 cent to pump a barrel of oil, and now they have run up a $18 billion deficit making $29 a barrel offers nobody in the world can refuse.

OPEC comes as clost as you can git to have a franchise on air, Clem said, so them countries are having the devil's own time git-ting any sympathy from their customers that know worldwide inflation rates drop one point for ever dollar drop in oil prices.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

B. Sharp Receives National Citation for Volunteer Service

Chelsea resident Bessie Sharp received a national citation for her volunteer work at the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Medical Center.

American Legion Auxiliary Central Division recognized Sharp for devoting 2,257 hours of her time to volunteer service. "This is the largest number of hours volunteered by a member of the American Legion Auxiliary in a nine-state area," Volunteer Service Chief Peter Oestreicher said. "The hours Bessie dedicated to volunteer work over the past year equals the hours worked by some people at full time jobs," Oestreicher added.

For the past nine years, Sharp has visited patients, organized parties, and assisted in recreational programs at the 368-bed medical center. She has accumulated over 5,800 hours of volunteer service.

Currently, Sharp is a deputy representative for the American Legion Auxiliary to the VA Voluntary Service, the commander of Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary Chapter 13, Ann Arbor, and a member of American Legion Auxiliary No. 46, Ann Arbor. She is a former president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary No. 4076 in Chelsea.

In addition to volunteering at the medical center, Sharp works full time in the facility's cafeteria.

BESSIE SHARP is the recipient of a national citation from the American Legion Auxiliary for volunteering 2,257 hours last year to the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Medical Center.

SIGN OF SPRING: Before a snow and sleet storm hit the area last Sunday night, there were signs of spring around Chelsea.

Bicycles were brought out of garages and ridden to school. These were parked in a rack outside North school.

Cobblestone Farm Offers Maple Sugar Harvest

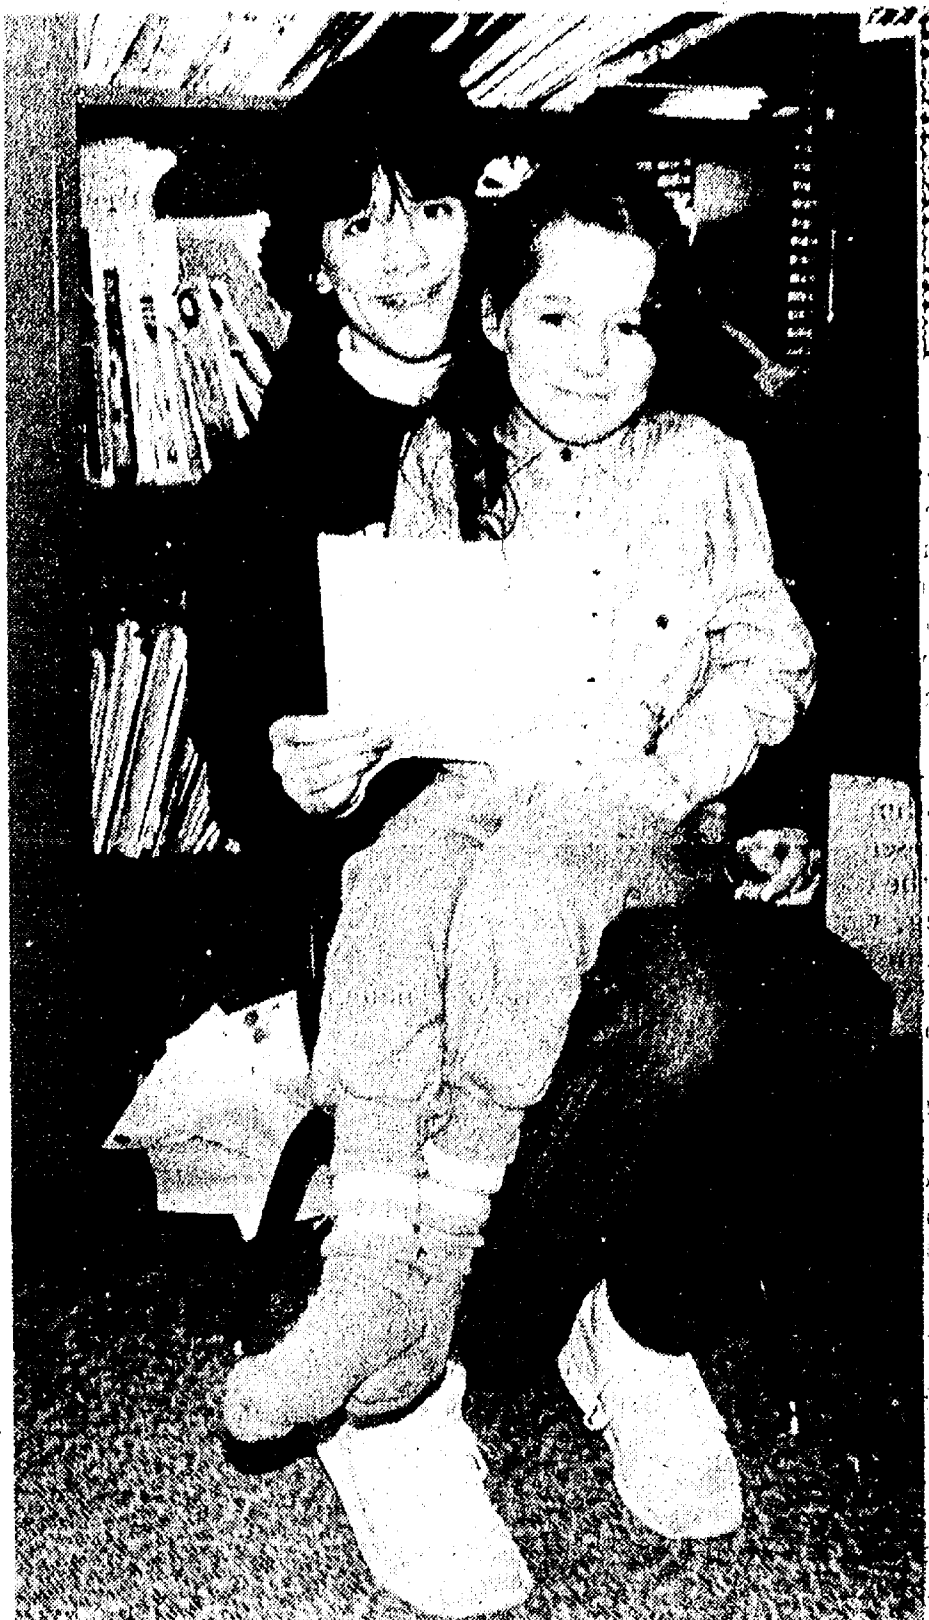

The coming of spring was eagerly awaited by Michigan's early settlers who looked forward to the end of winter's isolation and the beginning of the maple sugar season.

Traditionally the work of men and young boys, the sugar harvest was an opportunity to escape the confines of their homes and camp out in the dense woods. The work was tedious. Wood had to be chopped, the fire kept going and sap collected several times a day. Evenings were spent around the campfires where stories were told late into the night.

Women and young girls would visit the sugar camps, on warm sunny days to deliver food and sample the hot syrup. The children especially looked forward to a taste of jack wax, a candy-like treat made by pouring the hot syrup onto clean snow.

The Cobblestone Farm will recreate this special time of the year on Sunday, March 24 and 31 from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Costumed interpreters will demonstrate the evaporation process, including syrup and sugar making.

For further information please call the farm at (313) 994-2928.

Students Organize SADD Chapter

PREP Program Offers Help In Preparing Child for School

Announcement has been made of the formation of a Students Against Drunk Drivers (SADD) chapter at Chelsea High school. The project was entirely student initiated and meets Tuesday mornings before first hour in the high school library under the supervision of advisor Roderick Janich.

At last Tuesday's meeting the group elected its first officer body. Those elected are Debbie Bolanowski, president; Gary Johnson, vice-president; Mark Henson, secretary; and Kelly Hawker, treasurer.

Purpose of the national organization is to educate people about deaths resulting from drinking and driving. Chelsea's student chapter hopes to raise money to invest in films and literature in accordance with the educational goal.

President Debbie Bolanowski points out that the Chelsea community has been fortunate enough not to lose any high school students so far to accidents resulting from drinking and driving, unlike surrounding communities such as Saline. It is the hope of her group that their efforts may prevent any future loss of life to the problem.

She also explained that the present trend for teen-agers is that drinking and driving are not "cool" but that the American culture still romanticizes the usage of alcohol, clouding social pressure concerning the matter. Better education is hoped to remedy the conflict.

Community support and donations are requested by members of SADD. Plans are presently underway to organize a morning-after breakfast to raise money following senior prom night. Help is seriously needed by the group to complete plans and to ensure the continuance of the group's efforts.

Anyone interested in making a donation or offering other assistance may contact Janich at the high school.

Parents of pre-school aged children are aware of the Parent Readiness Education Project in Chelsea established in 1976. The program resulted from observation by school principals of a similar program in Redford and the idea that Chelsea children would benefit greatly from a local program.

Induction begins when a child reaches four years of age and notification is sent to parents of a scheduled pre-kindergarten screening to focus on readiness skills.

Testing takes approximately 30 minutes and enables program coordinators, Susan Lovejoy and Linda Hiatt to make helpful recommendations concerning immediate goals for preparing individual children for next year's public school experience.

Specific pre-school programs may be recommended including a half-day preparatory class held at North school under the direction of the two teachers.

The class is designed to give certain children and parents an extra boost. The first hour is spent with children working on language skills, play interaction, clean-up, art, group games and story time while parents observe through a two-way mirror unseen. Although children are aware that parents are in a position to watch, the distraction of activities allows candid glimpses at behavior.

The second hour is designed for support and sharing among parents. Various child-rearing topics are discussed such as discipline, divorce, sibling rivalry, death, nutrition and learning disabilities. This is where the key part of the program is initiated. Home activities cement a true partnership between home and school and provides consistency which will make the real difference. Three to five hours of designated home activities are required by the program and those parents who cooperate dependably report the most improvement in the child's weaker areas.

"We tell parents, you're the best teachers, we're here to guide you along," Susan Lovejoy explained. "It is what the parent and child do together that makes the difference."

Many times additional pre-kindergarten education is recommended in conjunction with the North school based program.

Lovejoy and Hiatt run similar programs in Dexter, Chelsea, Manchester and Whitmore Lake. A questionnaire filled out by parents teamed with the special qualifications of both teachers enables assessment of each child's individual needs. Testing results and clues such as biting, tantrums, thumb-sucking or bed-wetting may indicate special attention is necessary to prevent later developmental problems and hopefully prevent the necessity of special education. It is important to note, however, that children are placed in different programs for a variety of reasons and it is important that only those qualified make final judgments.

Lovejoy and Hiatt bring just such special qualifications to the screening process.

Linda Hiatt has a degree in speech therapy and a masters in elementary counseling. She previously worked as a public speech therapist in Ypsilanti and Manchester and taught in Ypsilanti pre-school program.

Susan Lovejoy has degrees in speech therapy and elementary education and a masters in learning disabilities. She has worked as a speech therapist in public school and at High Point and has taught pre-school.

The two are a well-matched team claiming that their approaches are similar and they enjoy working together. They also express uncertainty over how well they could function without Kathy Hagerman, their aide and secretary since the establishment of the program.

The three complete a team of vast referral resources, practical solutions and supportive understanding.

Three To Be Sentenced April 3 On Alcohol Charge

Three west Washtenaw young persons accused of furnishing intoxicants to minors will be sentenced April 3 by District Judge Karl V. Pink.

The three pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to the furnishing charge. A second count of contributing to the delinquency of minors was dismissed.

Sheriff's deputies say the trio—James D. Coval and Carl Weidmayer, both of Freedom township, and Brenda Sott of Sharon township, all 18—staged a beer party in a Sharon township gravel pit last Sept. 8.

Three Saline youths who attended the party were later involved in an automobile accident on Pleasant Lake Rd. in Freedom township, and two were killed.

Scoliosis Screening Slated at Beach School

In conjunction with the Washtenaw County Health Department, the Beach Middle school administration and staff will be conducting a scoliosis (curvature of the spine) and kyphosis screening program for eighth graders.

During the first week in March science classes will be conducting units to explain the crippling deformities, and the following week will be dedicated to training the physical education staff in screening methods.

Actual screening of students is scheduled Wednesday, March 20 and will involve a very simple process not requiring x-ray. If a child is suspected of suffering from the affliction, parents will be notified and encouraged to consult a qualified physician for further investigation and treatment.

A Health Department report explains that screening in other states has exposed spinal variation in four percent of those tested and two percent required active treatment or on-going observation.

Early detection and treatment can prevent pain, breathing difficulties, short stature, and obvious chest deformities resulting from progression of the problem. Correction is possible with body braces and through other methods. Allowed to progress without medical attention, however, correction often requires surgical procedures.

It is the hope of the Beach school staff that the screening program will prevent later problems from scoliosis or kyphosis for all students participating.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

I just missed being a farmer. It was all set up. My dad was a farmer's son, my mother a farmer's daughter, both from the south-central Indiana corn belt. Both families owned substantial acreages of excellent agricultural land, and both prospered with hard work and husbandry. They made it through good times and bad, including the Great Depression of the 1930's.

Dad was born with physical allergies to hay, dust and livestock. All he had to do to bring on an attack of asthma was step into a barn. The medical techniques now used to de-sensitize allergies weren't known then, and so he had to go to "the city" (it turned out to be Detroit) to find a way to earn a living, which is why I happened to be born and raised there. The farms that the Mullendores and Gastons owned were sold and passed out of the family before I was old enough to take one over and run it.

My knowledge of farming is, therefore, a long way back in time, gleaned mostly from summers spent with grandparents. I remember doing a lot of hard work but deriving much satisfaction from having done it. The fruits of your labor were there to see and touch—the hay in the mow, the corn in the crib, the fodder in the silo—the animals ready for market.

It certainly wasn't an easy life, but it had rewards which can't be measured entirely in money.

That bit of nostalgia brings me to the subject of this column, which is that family farmers apparently are an endangered species and may become extinct. I certainly hope that isn't so, but what I read and hear tells me that it may be.

I don't pretend to understand all the complexities of agricultural economics. From what I can gather, a combination of high costs and low prices, muddled up with well meant but unsuccessful government policies and programs, is driving small farmers to the bankruptcy wall.

The problem apparently is worse in such states as Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and Illinois than it is in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio, but it's bad enough all over. People in position to know have predicted that at least a few Washtenaw county farmers will go belly-up this year. That will be a shame if it happens.

The endangered farmers are those who have gone heavily into debt to buy more land and bigger, better machinery, lured by the prospect of an ever-growing inflation-fed economy. That strategy worked during the 1970's when prices for farm products were going up, up, up, as were land values, and money could be borrowed "cheap" in the sense that loans could be repaid with discounted dollars.

Beginning about 1981, the economy changed. Prices and land values stabilized, and in many cases dropped. Farm land today is worth a lot less on the market than it was five years ago, and in some instances can't be sold for enough to cover outstanding mortgages. Markets for farm products have shrunk, and therefore so have prices.

Bad weather has made matters worse in many areas of the country. Last summer's drought was a disaster for a lot of Washtenaw farmers. The year before, 1983, my cousin, Gaston Edelman, who is my only relative still actively farming, harvested just 2 percent of a normal crop from his 260 acres 50 miles southeast of Indianapolis. During one stretch, that area went 38 days without rain.

In the late 1970's Gaston had an opportunity to buy 120 acres of choice cropland adjacent to his present holding. He wanted that piece of land badly because he felt he should "get bigger" and increase his production. His end products are livestock, mostly hogs but also some beef cattle and sheep. Meat prices were soaring, he was making a lot of money, and the temptation was strong to try to make more. Grain prices were rising, too, and in good growing years he had considerable surplus corn, soybeans and wheat to sell after taking care of his stock feeding needs.

The land was to be sold at auction, and the minimum bid was $3,000 per acre, a total of $360,000 for the parcel. (It eventually went for more than $400,000.) Very few farmers have that kind of money in the bank, but Gaston could have arranged the financing and swung the deal.

He and his wife (who does the bookkeeping in the family) sat down one evening, and she figured out what the payments would be over the term of the loan they would have to take out, the expectable value of what they could grow on those 120 acres, and concluded that the purchase didn't make sound financial sense. Somebody else bought the land, and the mortgage has since been foreclosed. The bank is trying to sell it for $1,800 per acre and so far has found no takers. If the price drops low enough, Gaston may buy it yet. The bank is losing money renting it out to him.

Gaston's two tractors are old, but he keeps them in good repair and they work. Most of his other machinery dates back 10-20 years. He rents a truck to take his livestock to market, figuring it's cheaper than buying one and having it sit around unused for all but a few days a year.

The last three years haven't been good ones, but he has survived because he doesn't owe anybody anything and had stashed away some of the surplus that he earned during the good times of the late 1970's.

That is one individual small farmer's story, the only one I happen to know much about. There's a moral in it somewhere. Gaston says the smartest decision he ever made in his life was not to let his ambition overcome his wife's good sense, and to forget about buying those 120 acres that he coveted. He stayed debt-free. Times will get better again for farmers—such things run in cycles—he will still be in business and will make money.

Washtenaw's Farm Future Forum Scheduled Saturday

What impact has the current farm crisis headlining the news had on local farmers? What about the emergency loans for last summer's draught? A special program entitled "The Future of Food and Farming in Washtenaw County" will address this question as well as other problems facing local farmers resulting from recent budget cuts.

Speakers at the forum will be Bill Ames, Washtenaw Co-operative Extension Service agricultural agent and member of the Extension Management Assistance Team (EMAT) for southeastern Michigan; Bill Fishbeck, member of Washtenaw County's Agricultural Lands Committee and Superior township farmer; Carol Misseldine, director of the Michigan Farmland Project of the American Farmland Trust; Don Pennington, Washtenaw county planner, and John Porter, dairy farmer. Gil Whitney will serve as moderator.

The program will be held Saturday, March 9 from 9:30 a.m. until noon in Piper Hall at Zion Lutheran church, 1501 W. Liberty, Ann Arbor. It's being sponsored by the League of Women Voters, the Ecology Center, local Sierra Club and the Land, Food and Justice Committee of the Interfaith Council for Peace.

Preceding the special program on Friday evening, March 8, historic Webster United Church of Christ, 5484 Webster Church Rd. in Webster township will host a "seasonal pot-luck." A film "Farming and the Land" will be shown followed by discussion. Those attending are asked to bring their own table service and a dish to pass prepared from Michigan grown food. Coffee, tea and Michigan cider will be provided.

Both programs are free and the public is encouraged to attend.

For further information call the Interfaith Council for Peace office, 663-1870.

Pioneer Craft Fair Is One of Earliest Spring Arrival Signs

Two signs of spring in the Dexter area are mud and the Dexter Pioneer Craft Fair.

While you cannot do much about the mud, you can give yourself a mental lift by attending the 12th annual Fair on Saturday, March 16, at the Dexter High school. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

As 55 craftspeople gather to demonstrate their skills, pleasure and excitement will be very much in evidence. Compliments for this show are heard from people all over the area.

Returning this year will be several of former artist exhibitors. Doug Van Aken will demonstrate wood carving.

Sharon April and Evelyn Posegay will show how to do quilting, as will Pat Kooiman and Carol Rob. The Iretons family will work on their wooden toys.

Delightful aromas wafting throughout the room will be from the Elizabethan herbs prepared by Pat Russell and the Herb Craft of Edith Saylor. Don't miss the booth of Lyle Sweet who demonstrates the age-old craft of marquetry. Philemon Frisbie will return to show how he does hair weaving.

A stop at the Museum gift shop display in the hallway may uncover that one book you have been seeking. New this year is stationery bearing the logo of either the Dexter Craft Fair or the Dexter Heritage Guild. Luncheon will again be provided by the members of the Dexter Heritage Guild. A bake table will have items for sale and the cookie table will be a popular stopping place.

The drawing prizes will be on display throughout the village. Stop at Great Lakes Federal to see the corn husk doll donated by Mary Rush. Village Frame Shoppe will have the wooden toy train set in their window. Then take a walk across the street and see the charming floor covering stencilled and donated by Gloria Brigham. Tickets will be on sale at the Fair for a donation.

David Bacon and Keith Bradbury were appointed to the Lima township planning commission by supervisor Leila Bauer at the February board meeting. Ken Burkhalter chairs the commission. Other members include Harold Trinkle, and Vicki Connell. Serving as secretary to the planning commission is Miriam Klemmer, although she is a non-voting participant.

Supervisor Bauer advised Settlement Day for Lima township will be Friday, March 15, with the township budget hearing held that evening.

award of Outstanding Middle School Science Teacher of the year at the Friday night banquet held at that time. She received a plaque, paid membership dues to both the Michigan and National Science Teachers Association for one year, and various class materials, equipment and money certificates for purchases from various publishers represented at the convention.

"I was greatly honored," Steinbach said. She mentioned how much community support and concern has meant to her as a teacher in Chelsea and feels that her job is made easier here than in other school districts because of community involvement and staff competency.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Editor:

My family appreciates Chelsea, its people and all it has to offer. We have descended from relatives who vacationed here before 1920, and bought our present home on Cavanaugh Lake about 1925. We like it so much, we plan to stay. The following is an observation, not a complaint.

Chelsea is showing signs of growth again. We see it documented on the pages of The Chelsea Standard most every week. The latest, right on the heels of the Methodist Home addition, is a new professional building on Main St. When you stop to count the new and improved businesses in the last few years, you are almost convinced Chelsea is developing into a well-rounded modern, convenient small town.

Three new bank branches, Chelsea Lumber Co., McDonald's, A & W, Niehaus Foods, Sir Pizza, Poma's Pizza, Woodshed Eatery, Big Boy, Polly's, Movieland, Kinetico, Body-Glo, Chelsea Eyeglass, Chelsea Bakery, Dayspring Gifts, Chelsea Office Supply, three renovated law offices (minus one old restaurant, a couple of apartments), Gemini, three party-convenience stores—some industry is growing—BookCrafters, Chelsea Milling, and Chrysler is back on its feet. Several years ago we became the home of Chelsea Community Hospital. We even had our own brewery for a short time in the clock tower building.

Chelsea is a thriving town, and has not been "quaint" for many years. Some of us, however, are feeling a few enterprises to add to the well-rounded character of Chelsea are being overlooked. First, let's look back at a few things we used to have.

There was the movie theatre—now housing UAW Local 437—it was complete with lighted marquee, billboard on "coming attractions," popcorn, etc., concessions inside, an organ (later a piano) at the foot of the stage for intermission entertainment. Forget that flickering thought that it might be restored as a movie theatre someday—the sloping floor was filled to a flat level with tons of cement.

There was the Chelsea Dairy Bar on Park St. about where the Chelsea Cleaners is now; and another dairy sort of "hang out" for students or anyone where the F&M restaurant now stands slowly, sadly decomposing. When I walk by there I can almost hear the juke boxes playing hits from the 50's and picture some now classic automobiles "tooling" by, and hear laughter inside. Nobody was drinking alcohol or smoking pot; they were just young kids socializing over ice cream, hamburgers or Cokes, and listening to music. At the Chelsea Pharmacy you could also have lunch and those soft drinks with cherry, lime, or grape syrup added in them. A co-worker recently reminisced about that very memory. Students walked from the old high school on their lunch hours to these places, or spent many free evenings after ball games or dates there until curfew.

Do any of you middle-aged Chelseaites remember learning to bowl in the basement bowling lanes of the Sylvan Hotel? It was part of our gym class and we had a great time, even taking turns to set up pins, and maybe only getting to roll a couple of balls before hiking back to school. Think of the TV hit "Happy Days" to get a mental picture of these places if you did not grow up in Chelsea.

roller-rink type music disappeared when I-94 came through.

Way before my time, I've been told, there was recreation in what is now The Chelsea Standard building—or as it is named—The Welfare Building. Years ago there was a swimming pool in the lower basement, and basketball games and dances were some activities held on the upper floor. It was originally built specifically for socializing and recreation by Frank Glazier for employees of the Glazier Stove Works. Isn't it a grand-looking building? If Frank Glazier were around today, he might be nagged about Chelsea's lack of total participation in the physical fitness national phenomena.

It's almost as if we are out of synchronization with what Chelsea once had, and some people want now—this is the future, and that one futuristic plan of Frank Glazier's is long gone. Those hang-outs for our young people are gone, our movie theatre and roller rink are gone. They all would have thrived now!

That sign on Old US-12 next to St. Paul church has advertised: "Future home of the Chelsea Tennis and Fitness Club," for over five years. It is tantalizing those of us who are wishing and waiting to join an advanced fitness club, complete with whirlpool, racket ball, sauna, exercise equipment, etc., and don't want to trek to Ann Arbor to the over-crowded Vic Tanny or the like. Many of us drive out of town to attend diet classes in an early attempt at fitness.

Is Chelsea a town half on wheels to socialize, shop, exercise, play video games, see out-of-home movies? We drive to Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Brighton, Jackson many miles each week to go to activities we used to have right in town. Do our teen-agers head out of town as soon as they get their license? I don't know, but guess they do. (I have two small boys presently). What happened to the game room at Chelsea Lanes?

Chelsea does have much recreation available. Look at the sports section of this paper to get an inkling of how many enjoy bowling at Chelsea Lanes once or twice a week. We have recreation all around us—the Waterloo area has lakes, fishing, skiing, hunting, canoeing, camping, snowmobiling, nature hikes, etc. Everyone's family has access to it. In summer, competing ball teams are organized for those adults so inclined. We even have an over-30 basketball league going this winter for those still able. The C. Cameron pool gets plenty of use. So, we all have it waiting at our back door, ready to be used, a boon to all of our families.

So what's the observation you say? We can't have it all? Or can we? Maybe the wheels are turning in some of our enterprising minds to include in Chelsea's future something akin to that mentioned above.

Has anyone wondered what might surround the fine-looking, but lonely Chelsea Bank branch office across from the Wolverine? How about what will end up in the F&M restaurant building? The clock tower building is huge and vacant.

At least the old depot has plans, friends and a bright future.
K. Clark.

Dear Editor,

I was not sure where to send this letter but I felt a need to voice my opinion where others could hear it.

As I sat waiting for my child several other South school mothers and I began discussing the upcoming Fun Fair. I mentioned having to take a day off work so I could bake for their bake sale and work at a concession stand, and would have to work overtime next week. The response of each one was that they were too busy to bake or work at the Fun Fair. Not one of these mothers work or has more than two children (all over the age of 5). I began to do a slow burn. I have two children, one a baby who requires much care due to a health problem from birth, my other child is involved in many outside activities. I also bake for and attend. I work full time, keep up investment properties and maintain a large home. I'm not busy?

The South School Fun Fair provides educational equipment such as computers and large recreation items. If Chelsea school system could not provide these advantages and needs through their budget I'll bet these "mothers" would be the first to complain and the first at the polls to vote against the following millage increase.

Signed,
"A mother who will always find time!"

If I signed my name it would create animosity I wish to avoid, which is why I wrote to you instead of telling these mothers what I felt.

Delivery within approximately two weeks of a Hough Payloader, a four-wheel drive, rubber tired, front end loader to use as a compactor and covering machine, was to pave the way for Chelsea to begin operation of its new land fill project for the disposal of garbage and rubbish. The Village Council decided on the Hough Payloader, Model H-30 as the one best suited for use at the land fill site between Old US-12 and I-94, east of Chelsea, and also for various Public Works Department uses within the village.

CHELSEA DAY, Saturday, Feb. 16, in Hudson, Fla., found 110 wandering Chelseaites gathered for food and fellowship in the Hudson Community Building. This year's chairpersons were Lawrence and Laureta Boyer. Next year Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bolanowski will be in

Burglars Caught Unloading Cargo From Semi Truck

Deputies from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department were called to Wolverine Truck Plaza on Baker Rd. just north of Jackson Rd., at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, March 2, after intruders cut bolts on at least two large trailers parked at the truck stop and began to help themselves to household furnishings being transported in the tractor-trailers.

Driver of one of the vans was sleeping in the trailer when he heard voices close at hand, and upon investigating, found someone had cut the locking bolt and opened the back of the trailer, beginning to unload the household furnishings being transported from Buffalo Grove, Ill., to Farmington Hills. The driver alerted his partner and authorities were notified. Another trailer, parked nearby, showed evidence of having a bolt cut, as well, but that vehicle was carrying no cargo. Bolt cutters were found near the scene.

The case remains under investigation, deputies advised.

Main St. McInchak, who was serving concurrent sentences for five felony convictions, was found missing at 10:20 p.m. and was apprehended about 50 minutes later. He apparently had walked into town.

Thomas Mull Has Role in NMU Stage Production

Thomas Mull of Chelsea a freshman at Northern Michigan University, has been cast in the part of Miles Gloriosus in the musical "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

The play is about Pseudolus, a shrewd-minded slave who creates an uproar as he tries to gain his freedom by catering to the yearnings of his master and the master's old father for the most desirable piece of merchandise in the collection of a nearby girl trader.

Mull, a theatre major, has had previous theatre experience at NMU in "Fantasticks," "Fool for Love," "Scrooge," "Elephant Man," and "School for Wives."

He is the son of Betty Mull, 333 Elm, Chelsea.

Chelsea Post Office Backs Away from New Policy

Chelsea's post office will continue to try to deliver first-class mail which carries incorrect or insufficient addresses.

That is a modification of a new policy announced last week under which such mail would be returned to the sender with instructions to address it correctly and put a new 22-cent stamp on it.

"We received many complaints after the new policy was announced," said William Brenner, superintendent of postal operations at the Chelsea office, "and we are changing it to some extent."

"We aren't abandoning the policy, which we think is a good one, but we will phase it in over a longer period of time. Among other things, we will send a written notice to every one of our customers explaining the new policy and why we favor it.

"Basically, it's a matter of keeping costs down. When we have to take time to look up a correct address on a piece of wrongly addressed mail, in order to deliver it, we are spending money unnecessarily."

"People object to increased postal rates, and this is one area where we can cut costs if we can get public co-operation."

For the time being, however, persons served by the Chelsea post office will continue to have first class mail forwarded to them if the recipient can be identified and a correct address put on the letter.

"Among us (employees in the Chelsea post office) we know most everybody in our mail delivery area and so can usually figure out where a wrongly addressed letter should go," Brenner said, "but it takes time to do it."

"We may be able to handle the problem here, because it's relatively small. We get an average of 30-40 first class letters a day with incorrect addresses. Every one of those has to be hand-corrected before it can be delivered."

"Imagine the situation in Ann Arbor, let alone a city the size of Detroit, where you're talking about thousands of pieces of mail every day."

Brenner emphasized that the problem originates with senders and not receivers, and that it traces primarily to out-of-town.

Beach Spikers Split Two Matches at Dexter

The Bullpups volleyball team met the Warriors at Dexter Thursday, Feb. 28 for a well attended match.

After the seventh grade lost the opening game of the match despite the six serving points earned by Tiffany Moore (21) and the serving support given by Lori Johnson (20), Lisa McGlinnen (32), and Kim Roberts (33), they took the second game with the serving talents of Lisa McGlin-nen (32), Tiffany Browning (41) and Tiffany Moore (21).

Even with Barbara Scriven (22) and Tiffany Browning (41) scoring with individual serves, Dexter's serving prowess overpowered the Beach squad's defenses and took the third game, which charged up the team for the fourth game. Chris Tallman (34) served up the win for Chelsea with five points. Stacie Guenther (12) had a good all-around night, earning four service points, including an ace and good defensive playing.

Dexter rallied and took the fifth game and match with good serving.

Final scores for the seventh grade team were 10-12, 11-2, 2-11, 11-8, and 3-11.

The eighth grade charged into the first game of their match after winning the coin toss for the serve. Kellie Kanten (20) served six consecutive, strong, side-arm serves to launch the first game win. Kay Miller (30) delivered a timely punch volley on Dexter's first serve to regain service for the Bullpups. Susie Neff (13) scored and Jenni Ghent (21) dug one out of the net and then served a point to increase Chelsea's lead. Jenni Smith (25) scored two points, including an ace, for the win.

Jennifer Lewis (14) put on the pressure with eight points, including one ace during her two times at service. After a good saving volley Mindy Ryan (23) earned a point at service followed by Sarah Schaeffer (42) who power served the two winning points with the defensive help of Kim Easton (12) and Danica Disbro (15).

The momentum was strong and Kim Easton (12), Stacy Norris (11) and Meredith Hall (34) earned six points. With the good defensive support of Danica Disbro (15), Kim Easton (12), and Meredith Hall (34), Jennifer Lewis (14), who had the best all-around night, served the match winning four points.

Final scores for the eighth grade team were 11-4, 11-8, and 11-4.

Despite not feeling well, Bev Martin coached very effectively and summed up the match by saying, "The teams were equal in skill level with good serves. The serves are what saved us."

Scores for the match against Tecumseh, Tuesday, March 5 are forthcoming. The next matches will be with Saline on the home court Thursday, March 7, and at Milan Tuesday, March 12.

Beach Team Attends Science Convocation

Washtenaw Area Science Convocation was held Wednesday, Feb. 27 and Thursday, Feb. 28 at Eastern Michigan University with the theme "How Will Technology Affect Our Lives?"

Seven-member teams were chosen on the basis of class contributions and interest in science upon application by students. Representing Beach Middle school were Judy Bareis, Marty Heller, Tim Mayer, Robert Read, Kim Ritter, Matt Harter, and Todd Redding.

Twelve teams from area middle and junior high schools attended the event working as investigative units in workshops and touring university science laboratories. Each team prepared a presentation to be delivered during the convocation concerning future effects of technology in such fields as communications and education.

Interaction between the various school representatives was encouraged by re-grouping students during workshops, mixing those from different schools into new investigative teams.

The event was organized by Washtenaw Intermediate School District under the direction of Anita Todd Parks, and local sixth and eighth grade science teacher, Nola Borders accompanied the seven students on the field trip.

ACLU Schedules Forum on Equal Pay for Women

Washtenaw County Branch of the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan has announced a Friday Night Forum, the fourth of the 1984-85 season. It will be held Friday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m. The subject is "Comparable Worth," and the speaker will be Patricia Curran, director of the Office of Women and Work of the Michigan Department of Labor. March 8 is International Women's Day, an international holiday observed by the organizations of the United Nations system.

American women are currently being paid 63 cents for every dollar received by American men, even when part-time status, work experience, and training are kept even. Paying women the same as men for work of comparable value is one of the primary objectives of the women's movement. Ms. Curran is perhaps the best informed person in Michigan on the subject.

Ms. Curran will be introduced by Professor Helen Graves of the Political Science Department of the University of Michigan—Dearborn, who is chair of the Branch's Friday Night Forum Committee. The forum will be held in the Faculty Dining Room at the University of Michigan Law School near the Law Club Lounge at the corner of State and S. University in Ann Arbor.

The forum is co-sponsored by student groups including the Women Law Students Association. The public is invited.

Snowmobiles Taken from Lima Home

A pair of Kawasaki snowmobiles were driven away from a Steinbach Rd. address in Lima township Tuesday, Feb. 19, after intruders knocked in boards in a storage shed to gain entry to the building.

Deputies from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department listed Bernard William McEvoy, III, of Livonia, as the owner of the machines, which were said to be nearly new, registering approximately 200 miles. Value of the snowmobiles was estimated at $7,200, with another $50 damage listed at the location.

No specific suspects have been identified, but deputies request anyone who might have knowledge of the incident to contact the W.C.S.D.

Under the Occupational Safety and Health Act, employers have the general duty of providing their workers with employment and a place of employment free from recognized hazards to safety and health, and they must comply with OSHA standards according to a Labor Department fact sheet.

business firms which, for whatever reason, do not update and correct their mailing lists.

"We get three or four letters in a row to the same wrong address. We send the mailer an 'Address Correction Notice' every time, but somehow the correction doesn't get made. We want to stop those repeated violations. Requiring that the letter be re-mailed with a proper address and new postage seems like a good way to get the sender's attention."

"We're not trying to hurt people. We're just trying to solve a problem and reduce costs, and we think that is what the public wants."

In any event, mis-addressed first-class mail will be delivered in Chelsea for awhile yet if post office employees can determine who is supposed to get it.

West Washtenaw Escapes the Worst Of Nasty Storm

West Washtenaw residents who hadn't stayed up late last Sunday night awoke to a rude surprise Monday morning to find four inches of heavy, wet snow on the ground and a combination of snow, sleet and freezing rain coming down.

The storm began shortly after midnight Monday and reached near-blizzard proportions during the early-morning hours before subsiding about daylight.

Gradually warming temperatures changed the mixture of precipitation until it finally turned into just plain rain on Monday afternoon. Fog rolled in briefly and then lifted as temperatures dropped.

There was a prediction of late-afternoon thunderstorms, but they didn't develop. Instead, the melted slush froze into ice overnight and presented a new set of problems Tuesday morning.

It was typical early March weather in southeastern Michigan. Almost anything can

Citizen Alert Out for Burglary Suspects

Citizens of the Dexter and Chelsea area are asked to be alert for a blue Chevrolet pick-up truck with a white older looking cap which has been spotted at or near the location of several burglaries in Washtenaw county recently. Although those break-ins were in York, Augusta and Lodi townships, deputies theorize the perpetrators may be generally roaming to burglarize homes, and would like to stop the activities of the suspect or suspects. The truck is thought to be a 1973-1976 model. Another vehicle on which information is sought for the same reason is a 1981 green Ford window van.

Anyone noticing a vehicle fitting either description is asked to jot down a license plate number and location, and to relay that information to the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, phone 971-8400.

Lieutenant Mark A. Ptasek of the WCSD warns citizens to take extra precautions to make their homes appear occupied, and to make sure to lock doors.

The burglaries have occurred as early as 4 a.m., at noon, and as late as 6:30 p.m.

On three of the occasions, burglars entered homes by way of an attached garage, and on another incident, entry was gained through a sliding glass door, Lt. Ptasek warned.

One of the methods the department is able to utilize in putting a stop to many criminal activities is citizens' input, explained Lt. Ptasek, they can be invaluable, since they obviously can cover a lot of territory.

Rosentreter Appointed Boys Tennis Coach

Rahn Rosentreter has been appointed head coach of the boys tennis team starting this spring. He is presently varsity basketball coach.

He will be assisted by Theresa Schreiner, who has previously been in charge of the boys tennis program. Schreiner will continue to coach the girls tennis team in the fall, with Rosentreter assisting.

"I think it will work out in practice that we will be co-coaches of both teams," Rosentreter said. "I really haven't had much time to think about it because I've been pre-occupied with basketball."

"Right now I'm tired and don't really look forward to coaching anything, but that will change when the weather warms up and the time comes to go outdoors and play tennis. I like the game and know a little something about it. It's a fun game to play, and it will be fun to coach. I think I can help the program."

Rosentreter was an assistant to Schreiner in last fall's girls tennis program and said he was encouraged by the improvement shown during the season.

Rosentreter played three years of tennis at Adrian College and worked one summer as an assistant professional instructor at a private club. He still plays the game for recreation.

Chelsea Assures Winning Record by Defeating Dearborn

Chelsea's varsity cagers assured themselves a winning regular season a week ago Tuesday by defeating Dearborn, 71-58. The victory put the Bulldogs at 11-8 with one game to go.

It was the last home game of the season and also Parents Night, and coach Rahn Rosentreter recognized the occasion by starting an all-senior lineup.

Todd Doering and Jason Peirson joined senior tri-captains David Steinhauer, Eric Schaffner and Keith Neibauer on the opening five. Seniors Tony Hamerschmidt and Jorge Castillo got playing time later.

It was a ding-dong game for a half. The visitors led by a point after a quarter and were down by only three, 27-24, at the intermission. Chelsea came back with a strong second half, scoring 44 points to win going away.

"I'm happy with the way our offense played," coach Rahn Rosentreter said after the game. "We shot an excellent 65 percent (38 of 58) from the floor, and I'll take that any time. We were getting good shots and making them. We haven't shot that well in quite awhile."

The defense was something else, according to Rosentreter. "There is no way we should have let Dearborn score 58 points. That was too many. We will have to play better defense against Pinckney and in the district tournament if we hope to win."

Part of the problem on defense may have been that Rosentreter was shuttling players on and off the floor, giving everybody a chance once it became certain that the Bulldogs were going to win. The regular starting five didn't play many minutes together as a group.

Rosentreter was also in an experimental mood as he kept switching defenses. The Bulldogs used a couple of types of zones, a half-court man-to-man and a full-court press at various times during the game. It was hard to tell which worked better than the others.

Steinhauer bowed out in a blaze of glory before the home crowd, scoring a career-high 25 points. He connected on 10 of 16 attempts from the floor and was a perfect five-of-five from the foul line. The all-county forward once again showed why he is considered to be one of the best players in these parts. When Chelsea needed points, he got them.

Schaffner finished with 12 on five-of-10 shooting from the floor and two free throws, while playing his usual fine floor game at guard. Neibauer didn't score a lot from his center position but pulled down 10 rebounds, tops for both teams. He has been a bull on the boards all season long, usually giving away height and making it up with desire and good positioning.

Junior Ken Martin came off the bench to score 14 points on seven of 11 tries from the floor. He will be back next year and will be one of the better guards in the area.

Mark Bareis, a sophomore who has improved a lot this season, chipped in six. Neibauer, Doering and John Jedele four each. Castillo got the last two on a pair of free throws, again making his cheering section happy.

The Bulldogs wound up their regular season last Friday night at Pinckney, always a tough place for a visiting team because of its unfamiliar arena-type gym. They will play their first district tournament game tonight at Brooklyn Columbia Central, meeting the winner of Monday's Saline-Tecumseh clash.

Chelsea Will Play Saline In Tourney

Weather improved enough last Monday night so that the scheduled opening district basketball tournament game at Brooklyn Columbia Central could be played, and Saline defeated Tecumseh, 53-41.

That means Chelsea and Saline will match up at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Brooklyn gym, with the winner advancing to the title clash on Saturday.

Saline lost just twice this winter while running up an excellent 17-2 regular season record. One of those losses was to Chelsea in a 52-50 thriller here on Feb. 1. The other Hornets' defeat was inflicted by Class A Monroe Catholic Central.

Bulldog coach Rahn Rosentreter was hoping that Saline might be a little bit weary tonight. It will be the Hornets' fourth game in seven days, a schedule that takes a lot of basketball players at any level, even the pros.

"They are quicker than we are, and we can't let them get into a running game," Rosentreter said. "Just maybe they won't be ready to run after what they have been through. We have to shoot well, play good defense and control the tempo. That's how we beat them before."

Varsity Basketball Team Loses Final Game to Pinckney

Chelsea's varsity basketball team saved its worst for the last, losing its final regular season game last Friday night at Pinckney, 57-49.

The Bulldogs turned the ball over 30 times, were out-rebounded 54-26 and shot a meager 48 percent (13 of 27) from the foul line. They hit a respectable 42 percent (18 of 43) from the floor, but the figure is deceptive because they threw away 30 opportunities to shoot.

Chelsea coughed up the ball on each of its first six possessions and was behind 9-0 before attempting its first shot.

The Bulldogs clawed back to a three-point deficit at half-time, 26-23, put in a good spurt in the opening minutes of the third quarter and went ahead, 30-28. That turned out to be their last gasp as Pinckney quickly re-took the lead and kept it comfortably the rest of the way.

"I can't understand or explain it," an exasperated coach Rahn Rosentreter said. "I thought we were ready to play, but we weren't. We were coming off two pretty good games, and our practices had been good."

"Why everything fell apart all at once is something that just can't be explained. Nobody played up to par."

"The remarkable thing is that, as poorly as we played, we had a chance to win until the last four minutes. I kept hoping somebody would get hot, take charge and pull it out, but nobody did."

To give credit where it is due,

Pinckney is a better team than it 7-13 (2-10 in the Southeastern Conference) season record suggests. The Pirates have improved a lot under the direction of new coach Dave Ebersole, as shown by the fact that they won three of their last four games.

One big reason the Pirates won was a boy named (Dan) Reason, a 5-11 senior guard who poured in 24 points despite playing most of the game in foul trouble. He scored from outside, inside and everywhere in between.

Another problem for the visiting Chelsea team may have been the Pinckney gym, the most unusual this reporter has ever seen. It has bleachers on only one side of the floor, and a running track hangs over the backboards, creating shadows on an otherwise brightly lit court.

It was also Parents Night at Pinckney, and the game was delayed several minutes both at the start and at the beginning of the second half while the ceremonies were carried on. The pumped-up home crowd was noisy and got more so as it became evident the Pirates were going to win.

Rosentreter was disinclined to accept any of those excuses.

Todd Starkey Leads JV Cagers to Win

Todd Starkey was doubtful because of an ankle sprain suffered the previous week, but he got well in a hurry and led the Chelsea junior varsity basketball team to a 50-42 victory over Dearborn last Tuesday here.

Starkey scored 13 points and didn't limp at all. "He's a very tough and dedicated young man," coach Ted Hendricks said. "I'm sure the ankle hurt at times but he didn't let it bother him. He went out and played a fine game."

As they have in most of their victories this season, the Bulldog JV's won from the foul line, making 16 of 30 to Dearborn's

He is a 1984 graduate of Grass Lake High school.

OUTDOOR BASKETBALL: The players were bundled up, but these North school fourth-graders found the weather pleasant enough to play basketball on an outdoor court late last week, before Sunday night's blizzard hit.

JV Cagers Commit Only One Foul in Beating Pinckney

Some time, somewhere, some basketball team, and probably several, have gone through an entire game without committing a foul. Available record books don't show such oddities.

Therefore, let it be credited to Chelsea's junior varsity cagers that they came awfully close to tying a record that can't ever be beaten as they were whistled only once during their 61-52 victory over Pinckney last Friday night.

The one call against the Bulldogs was clear-cut, an unquestionable reaching-in violation. It occurred early in the first quarter, which means the JV's played more than 28 minutes without a foul.

"In all the games I've played and watched, I've never known a team to go all the way without a foul, but I'm sure it has happened," coach Ted Hendricks said.

"I talked to an official who has been refereeing for more than 20 years, and the fewest number of fouls he could remember being called against a team was five."

What made the virtually foul-free performance even more remarkable was that it occurred away from home. Officials tend to call things closely against visiting teams.

The Bulldogs needed the advantage. As they have done in almost all of their 13 victories this season, they won the game at the free-throw line, sinking 17 of 23 attempts while being out-pointed, 52-44, from the floor.

"That's part of my coaching philosophy," Hendricks said. "There is no sense in sending the other team to the line, especially in one-and-one situations, unless you are behind late in the game and have to foul to get the ball. Kids these days shoot free throws too well to give them a lot of cheap chances."

Pinckney jumped out to an early lead and was ahead, 26-23, at the half, but the Bulldog JV's took charge early after the intermission and moved steadily to their eventual nine-point margin. They were helped mightily by their ability to can free throws while Pinckney was kept away from the line.

Jeff Harvey led the way with 20 points and 11 rebounds. Matt Steinhauer and Greg Haist had 12 points and six carsoms apiece. Todd Starkey scored eight and handed out five assists.

The last-game victory gave the JV's fine 13-7 season record, 7-5 in the Southeastern Conference. The SEC mark was good for third place behind Tecumseh and Saline.

"We have several boys who will contribute to the varsity next year," Hendricks said. "I'm not going to single them out, because everybody on the squad has contributed, and it wouldn't be fair to mention just some of them. I've worked with them for two years now (he was freshman coach last season), and it has been a great experience. They are a fine group of kids, and I'm proud of what they have accomplished."

SEC ROUND-UP:

Lincoln, Milan Tie For Second Place

Before the basketball season opened, Saline, Lincoln and Milan were predicted to be the three best teams in the Southeastern Conference, and that forecast turned out to be correct.

Saline, the odds-on favorite, breezed to the championship with a record of 11-1. Lincoln and Milan tied for second and third at 7-5. Milan gained the tie by beating Lincoln, 68-62, last Friday night.

Dexter finished in fourth place at 6-6 with a final-game victory over Tecumseh, while Chelsea sank to fifth (5-7) thanks to an upset defeat at the hands of last-place Pinckney.

Tecumseh wound up sixth at 4-8 and Pinckney seventh at 2-10.

Results of last week's games: Dexter 53, Ann Arbor Gabriel 39; Chelsea 71, Dearborn 58; Lincoln 65, Harper Woods Notre Dame 64; Pinckney 50, Stockbridge 46; Saline 62, Adrian 60 (overtime); Pinckney 57, Chelsea 49; Milan 68, Lincoln 62; Dexter 54, Tecumseh 47.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Notes from the sports beat:

Congratulations to Chelsea's David Steinhauer and Dexter's Dan Schlaff for being selected to the all-county basketball squad chosen by the 13 head coaches in Washtenaw high schools. Both deserved the honor.

Schlaff caught my eye three years ago when, as a sophomore making his first start, he was assigned the unenviable task of guarding Chelsea's Dave Wojcik, who was averaging about 18 points a game. Schlaff held Wojcik to eight, and Dexter won.

(In fairness, it should be said that Wojcik came back strong in a couple of later match-ups and proved his mettle as an outstanding high school basketball player, one of the two or three best I've watched during three seasons of covering the local sports scene.)

Schlaff is one of those players who is always working out there. You never catch him standing around and waiting for something to happen. He handles the ball without losing it, shoots and scores, gets his share of rebounds, and is mighty tough on defense—an excellent all-around player.

Steinhauer is a natural guard and played at that position last year. This season he was moved to forward out of sheer necessity. Chelsea's 13-boy squad included 10 guards and three forwards, and somebody had to go up front. Steinhauer made the switch.

He probably is the shortest forward in the county, but he is also husky, strong and reasonably quick. Above all, Steinhauer is a competitor. The tougher the going gets, the better he plays.

There is a streak of fire in the Steinhauer family. Older brother Marty had it, David has it, and I'm told that younger brother Matt also has it. They come to play, and they compete.

This is to acknowledge a mistake made in this column a couple of weeks ago, when I wrote that the Big Ten is using a 35-second shot clock in this winter's basketball play. It should have read 45 seconds.

The error was mine and not the typesetter's fault. To be honest, I got confused because different conferences are playing under their own self-chosen rules this season. Some are using shot clocks, some aren't, and the allowed time for those that varies.

What I'm wondering about is what rule is going to be followed in the upcoming NCAA tournament. It has no doubt been decided, but I haven't read or heard any announcement.

Whatever the tournament rule, teams that have been playing under something else all season will be at a disadvantage because they will have to adjust to a different style and tempo.

The hope here is that the NCAA will get together on a standard set of rules before next season. Everybody ought to be playing under the same regulations.

Personally, I favor a 30-second clock. That is plenty of time to bring the ball up the floor, work a play and set up a shot. It is also plenty of time for defenders to get into position and try to thwart the offense. Thirty seconds is a long time in basketball.

One of the marks of an outstanding team in any sport is the ability to win while playing a bit below par. Michigan's basketball team, ranked third in the nation as this is written, passed that test with a couple of two-point victories over Minnesota and Michigan State. The Wolverines were far from their best in both games, but they won, and that's what counts.

I agree with the Ann Arbor News columnist who wrote recently that it would be a shame if Michigan State doesn't get into the NCAA basketball tournament, because guard Sam Vincent deserves the opportunity to show off his remarkable talents at the national level.

A couple of weeks ago I mentioned Earvin Johnson and Robert Henderson as two outstanding basketball players to come out of Lansing high schools in recent years. Vincent should have been included on that list.

Although their playing styles are very different, Johnson and Vincent may be close to equal in ability. Johnson is flamboyant; spectacular, at times seeming to be in another world. Vincent is solid, steady, the kind of player you don't really notice until you add up the statistics at the end of the game and see what he's done.

On a better team ranked in the mythical "top 10" Vincent would be an All-American this year. As it is, he will probably have to settle for selection to the second or third team. The scouts who evaluate talent for the NBA, and aren't prejudiced by the hype and hoopla, say he will be either the first or second guard chosen in the upcoming pro draft. That tells you something about his ability.

Finally, I still don't like the format of Michigan's high school basketball tournament which gives some schools a home-court advantage in every district. All games should be played on neutral floors, and that's that.

Good wishes to the Chelsea and Dexter teams, and coaches Ken Rosentretter and Jim McCormack, as they go into district play at Brooklyn Columbia Central. I hope they meet in the final game, although that isn't likely.

Hundreds of Gamblers Enjoy Annual Monte Carlo Night

Hundreds of gamblers crowded the gaming tables at the American Legion Home last Saturday night to enjoy the third annual Monte Carlo festival.

Each player began with a million dollars worth of Monte Carlo chips, hoping to increase his or her holdings for use in auctions of prizes offered by local business people and other donors.

The event was presented under the joint sponsorship of the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club and American Legion Post 31 to raise funds for charitable causes. Managers of the affair were Pat Merkel for the Legion and Bob Bauer for the Rod and Gun Club. Play began at 8 and lasted until well after midnight. Thirsty and hungry players were served a variety of refreshments.

Auction prizes and their donors were as follows:

- Family airplane ride—Jim Myning.
- Family airplane ride—Paul Wackenhut.
- $25—Chelsea State Bank.

Chelsea Sending 13 Boy Swimmers To State Meet

Thirteen Chelsea swimmers will go to Michigan State University Friday and Saturday to compete in the Michigan High School Athletic Association state championships. They will be competing against as many as 90 other schools.

Chelsea will have 10 swimmers and three divers in the meet.

"We will have two more entries in the meet than any other team," coach Larry Reed said. "We will enter the meet in about fifth or sixth place based on seed times and hope to improve our performances to the point where we can challenge for one of the top two positions. We must improve more dramatically than our competition, and that will be the challenge."

Chelsea's entrants include Craig Miller, Mike Coffman, Scott Pryor, Mike Carignan, Matt Doan, Kevin Brock, Lloyd Brown and Dan Degener in the 200 medley relay; Jeff Nemeth in the 200 freestyle and 100 backstroke; Brent Bauer, in the 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly; Miller in the 100 backstroke; Mark Westhoven, Eric Bell and Tyler Lewis in diving; and Skiff, Pryor, Bauer, Nemeth, Degener and Carignan in the 400 freestyle relay.

The preliminaries of the meet will begin at 3 p.m. on Friday and the finals at 2 p.m. on Saturday. The meet will be held in the intramural pool located between Spartan stadium and Jenison fieldhouse. The team and staff encourage interested students and community members to go and encourage their highly successful team, which was undefeated in dual meets this season.

Hanna Disappointed In State Mat Meet

Pete Hanna, Chelsea's lone qualifier for last weekend's state Class B championship tournament at Charlotte, ran into some bad luck and did not finish among the top six in the 112-pound weight class.

"He was awfully close, but he couldn't get a break when he needed one in his last match," coach Kerry Kargel said. "He lost a one-point decision, 8-7, and that made the difference between sixth and 12th in the final standings."

Along the way Hanna had defeated the wrestler who eventually finished fourth.

Hanna was a state champion at 98 pounds last year but had to move up two weight classes this season because he grew.

"The competition was very, very tough," Kargel said, "maybe the best I've ever seen at a state meet. There were a lot of good wrestlers and a lot of close matches."

"Pete wasn't the only former champion to be disappointed. One former two-time champion didn't place, and another one-time winner also didn't make it. Several other boys who finished high last year lost out."

"Except possibly for the heavyweight division, the competition was super. It looks to me like the quality of wrestling in Class B schools is getting better every year."

Hanna, a junior, will have another shot next winter.

Freshman Cagers Close Season On Upbeat Note

Chelsea's freshman basketball team ended its season with a 6-8 record, dividing a pair of games last week. The frosh lost to Tecumseh, 50-44, and beat Pinckney, 46-45.

Coach Dave Quilter's squad had two games cancelled because of bad weather in early February, and they were not rescheduled.

The loss to Tecumseh was frustrating because it was a game that Chelsea could and should have won, Quilter said.

"We played well enough to win except in one area—free throws. We were 6 of 18 from the line and that wiped out a good effort from the kids."

"We out-rebounded them, 33-32, and out-shot them from the field. Their full court press didn't bother us as much as our's bothered them."

Tim Anderson led the club with 15 rebounds. Clay Hurd pulled down seven and Greg Boughton five.

Hurd scored 15 points. Tim Anderson and Greg Boughton had seven each with Kevin Flanigan at six and John Cattell at five.

Questionable officiating that took away points scored and key possessions was noted by Quilter but not accepted as an excuse for the loss.

"You have to learn to play over that as a team or you have an excuse every time you lose. We came very close to winning but our missed free throws hurt us."

The freshmen finished the season on a bright note by defeating a Pinckney team that had beaten them by 24 points earlier in the season.

Coach Quilter cited four reasons for the victory.

"We shot 49 percent from the field, hitting 19 of 39 shots while holding them to 35 percent from the field. That is great shooting for us." Good team play was shown on defense and rebounding along with balanced scoring. Cattell had 11 points, Hurd nine and Kevin Flanigan and Phil Thomson eight each.

Anderson and Hurd had 10 rebounds and Flanigan five. Chelsea out-rebounded Pinckney 33 to 31.

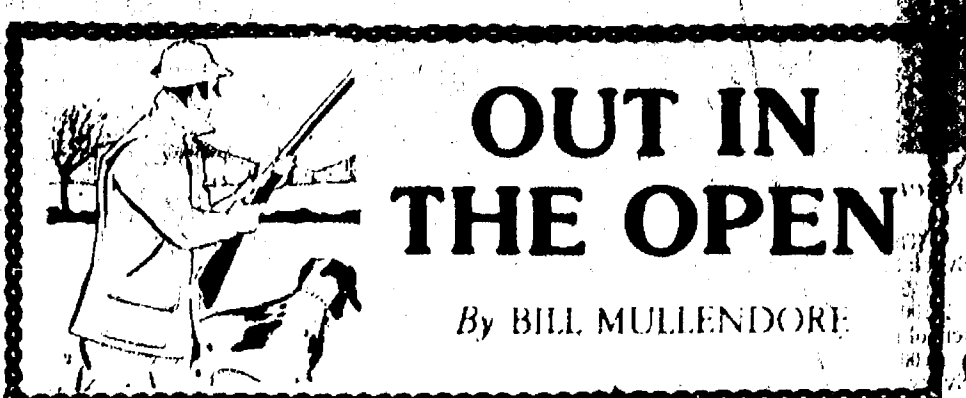

Chelsea had to play much of the second quarter and almost all of the fourth without Anderson who had foul trouble.

The freshmen twice lost 10-point leads, but Cattell and Flanigan made clutch free throws. Flanigan's two foul shots at the end proved to be the difference. "The kids played with pride," Quilter said. "They overcame the Tecumseh disappointment and proved Pinckney was not a 24-point better team."

Ann Arbor Schools Rec. Dept. To Present Comic Fairy Tale

Ann Arbor Public Schools Recreation Department's Junior Theatre Company will present "Many Moons" on March 22-24 in Pioneer High School's Little Theatre. This adaptation of James Thurber's comic fairy tale is about a princess whose father promises her the moon.

By BILL MULLENDORE

This is that unhappy time of the year when there just plain isn't much to do outdoors. Winter is ending, spring hasn't arrived yet. If ever there was an in-between season, this is it.

It's a good time to think and plan ahead, and carry out the thoughts and plans. That brings me to the subject of this column, containers. A few hours spent right now building boxes to hold and carry your outdoor gear will pay off big when the time comes to go fishing, camping or hunting again.

Whatever your favorite outdoor recreational pursuit may be, you have to take along a bunch of stuff in order to enjoy it. The amount of freight varies with the sport, but there invariably is some quantity to transport.

A camping family may have to pack and lug several hundred pounds of gear. The minimum load for my wife and myself on a week-long camping trip weighs out at more than 200 pounds. That may seem high, and it did to me until I put everything on a scales one day and read the number. Granted, we don't go light. When we camp, we do it in comfort, which means we carry a car full of gear.

I was similarly surprised when I weighed the pile of equipment that I take on a duck hunting excursion. Even after leaving out the canoe, outboard motor, motor mount and paddles, I was carrying more than 100 pounds of assorted stuff. Maybe it isn't all necessary, but there is nothing I would want to get along without. Perhaps I could make do with three dozen instead of six dozen decoys, but I would rather have the six dozen, even if they do weigh a pound apiece.

When I go fishing, I take along about everything I own in the way of tackle, because I'm never sure what I might need before the day is over. The rod, reel, tackle box, rain jacket, extra waders or whatever that you left at home turn out to be exactly what you wish you had with you.

Decide not to carry on extra box of shells, and that will be the day you shoot up all the ammunition in your hunting vest and have to quit for lack of more. Leave the spare gun at home, and the one you took will jam and you won't have the tools to fix it.

Murphy's Law operates in the out-of-doors. If anything can go wrong it will, at the worst possible moment. On the basis of long and sad experience, I guarantee that. About the only way you can ease the hurt of Murphy's Law is to have enough extra gear with you to make replacements, substitutions and emergency repairs.

That means you have to take along a lot. It further means that you must—or at least should—put everything in something, which gets us back to containers.

I'm not an especially tidy person, and am inclined to just throw everything together in a jumble when I start out on a trip. The trouble with that approach is that you have to sort out the mess when you get to where you're going. Ever try to find a small box of fishing lures buried somewhere in a pile of tackle? A duck call in a mound of hunting gear? A can opener in a car trunk jammed with camping equipment? A roll of toilet paper stashed among the miscellany, when you urgently need it?

I have. Those and many similar experiences are among the least pleasant memories of my outdoor adventures.

What I finally taught (forced) myself to do was sort things out, and pack them into appropriate containers with the contents labeled so that I had a fair chance of finding what I was looking for.

There are all kinds of containers. The most common (and worst) are grocery bags. These bags serve a purpose. They are designed to hold your supermarket purchases long enough to get them home. They are not intended to be re-used, except as wastebasket liners. Packing outdoor gear in a second-hand grocery bag is just plain asking for trouble, unless you enjoy the experience of having the bottom drop out and the contents spill around your feet.

Plastic bags are a little better, but not much. Put anything with a sharp point or even a square corner into a plastic bag, and it will puncture. After it punctures, it will rip. After it rips, you will spend some time picking up whatever was in it.

Next up the scale are cardboard cartons. Just about everything is packaged and shipped in cardboard boxes these days. The empty boxes are easy to obtain—usually for free—and they come in just about any size you could wish for if you look around long enough.

Cardboard boxes have their uses, and also their limitations. They are not especially sturdy and so wear out quickly under rough handling. They self-destruct when they get wet. My experience has been that I am continually seeking replacements for cartons that start to show signs of giving out, and occasionally try to squeeze one trip too many out of a box that has begun to show its age.

Helpful hint: The best cardboard cartons are those used to package fresh fruit, which has to be protected against bruises in order to be marketed. They are made of extra-heavy material, have lids if you want them, and can take a certain amount of abuse.

I've had pretty good luck with boxes manufactured to carry bananas, citrus fruits, cantaloupes, peaches and tomatoes. They generally will survive several trips before beginning to fall apart. Eventually, however, they wear out at the corners and have to be replaced.

So much for the negative news. I'll write about "good" containers next week.

St. John's Church Holds Annual Meeting

St. John's United Church of Christ, Rogers Corners, heard a report from the pastor search committee at their annual meeting. Two candidates have requested consideration for the position. While the church is conducting the pastor search, two people are serving at the church, both with the Covenant Association which assists during the time a church is seeking a new pastor. The two are the Rev. Ted Wimmer of Jackson and the Rev. Iva Mae Foster of Brighton.

Doris Pratt chairs the pastor search committee, and members include Joseph and Ruth Ann Steele, Richard Buss, Lodema Buss, Donald Bauer and David and Marsha Chartrand. The membership decided to have a Spring Luncheon and Salad with this year's Bazaar. Helping Hands ladies group will sponsor the event.

Refugee Sponsorship Eyed By Church Women

At the November World Community Day celebration of Chelsea Church Women United, Pat Hepp, director of Refugee Services for Catholic Social Services in Lansing, explained sponsorship programs to aid those refugees who legally qualify to enter the United States. As a result of the meeting the executive board of Chelsea CWU is considering sponsorship.

Representatives from all area organizations are encouraged to attend an organizational meeting Monday, March 11 at 10:30 a.m. in the Literat room at the First

A new committee was formed to review the church constitution. Brenda Buss, Donald Steele and Joseph Steele serve on the committee, and Marsha Chartrand is the chairperson.

Leila Bauer was elected to a five-year term on the board of trustees for the church. She fills the post vacated by Arlene Fisk whose term was completed.

Following the annual meeting, church members agreed to fill a variety of assignments, as follows: Joyce Eiseaman, janitor; Walter Hinderer, groundskeeper; Clinton Fisk, organist; Joe and Ruth Ann Steele, Communion stewards, and David Chartrand, bell ringer. Sunday school teachers will be Lodema Buss and Debbie Trinkle, and Jeffery Steele will serve as assistant Sunday school instructor.

United Methodist church. Sponsorship and support by other organizations is being sought and Gene Goodman will serve as sponsorship co-ordinator.

Thousands of people are waiting in refugee camps in Vietnam, Laos, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Africa, for sponsorship required to enter the United States. Hepp explained in her November address that group sponsorships are the most successful, enabling each member to donate only what they can comfortably afford.

Organizational Changes Told By Citizens Trust

Organizational changes at Citizens Trust have been announced by George H. Cress, president and chief executive officer.

All bank lending and service delivery systems for the business, personal and public accounts banking have been centralized and are under the supervision of Michael F. Nold, senior vice-president.

Lionel R. Korb, vice-president and lending officer, has been advanced to head the business banking area. Korb served for 23 years at the National Bank of Wyandotte, most recently as senior vice-president, business development, before beginning his association at Citizens Trust in 1983. He is a certified public accountant and received his degree in business administration from Michigan State University.

Joan C. Smith has been promoted to the position of second vice-president and branch administrator with general supervisory responsibility for all eight of Citizens Trust banking offices and the bank's automatic teller machine system.

An eleven-year member of the Citizens Trust organization, Joan Smith has most recently held the position of staff attorney and compliance officer. She earned a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University, a master's degree from the University of Michigan, and a law degree from the University of Toledo.

Cress also announced the appointment of two new officers at Citizens Trust. They are Daniel J. Ringsred, assistant vice-president and trust officer in the personal trust area; and Ronald C. Crater, assistant vice-president and lending officer in the business banking area.

A Dartmouth College economics degree graduate, Ringsred joined Citizens Trust following several years of service at First Duluth Bank, Duluth, Minn. His most recent assignment there was that of trust investment officer. Previously he was associated with Villume Industries in Egan, Minn.

Crater has been assigned to the Saline office of Citizens Trust, coming here from First-Cannellton National Bank, Tell City, Ind. His banking background includes associations at Litchfield State Savings Bank and Hillsdale State Savings Bank. He is a alumnus of Hillsdale College and has attended the ABA National Commercial Lending School and various credit seminars and classes.

Jack Merkel To Head WEMU Fund-Raiser

At the Capital Improvement kick-off meeting Monday, Jan. 21, Jack Merkel of Chelsea was appointed Western Washtenaw county's fund-raiser for Eastern Michigan University's public radio station WEMU, 89.1 FM.

The fund-raiser seeks to raise $100,000 for capital improvements over the next two years. The funds will enable WEMU to replace aged equipment in order to upgrade its broadcast facilities. The station's top equipment needs include seven Crown D-75 amplifiers, a rack mounted cassette mastering recorder, and two rack mounted tape recorders. These are just three out of 16 types of equipment, totaling $221,350, that WEMU needs.

When asked about the job Merkel said, "I think more people in this area have attended EMU at some time in their lives than any other college or university. It has served us well. I prefer public radio because it is more responsive to public needs while commercial radio responds more to its advertisers.

"I like WEMU personally. It has the best county news, good music, and many of the best NPR programs, including All Things Considered and Prairie Home Companion."

The human body consists of about 60 trillion cells, and each cell has been said to have 10,000 times as many molecules as the Milky Way has stars.

Violent Brief Storm Hits Early Monday

happen at this time of year, and it quite often does. The forecast for yesterday afternoon was for snow flurries and colder, with the temperature descending into the teens overnight. Improvement was predicted for today, with a warming trend and the possibility of some sunshine.

Fortunately, an earlier heavy accumulation of snow had melted and drained away before the Monday morning storm hit. Otherwise, there could have been some serious flooding in low-lying areas.

As it has all winter, west Washtenaw escaped the worst effects of the weather. Conditions on Monday morning were more severe in all directions in what was officially described as the "most savage" storm to hit Michigan this season.

The big problem locally on Monday morning confronted residents trying to get out of their driveways through the deep and slippery going. Many had to shovel to clear a path to streets and roads which were treacherous but drivable.

The snow took a long time to plow and move because it was unusually heavy, placing a strain on equipment. Salt was put down on paved roads to hasten melting. That strategy backfired in some instances where water accumulated and froze in low spots, creating patches of glare ice by yesterday morning.

Back-country gravel roads which had not been plowed froze into rutted ice.

Chelsea and Dexter schools were closed on Monday because of bad road conditions. Both were in session yesterday, and representatives reported no problems.

"I'll tell you, I was very happy to learn that all of our buses had travelled their routes and arrived at school safely and on time," Chelsea assistant superintendent Fred Mills said.

"It was kind of a fingers-crossed situation, but the road crews had done a real good job of opening up the bus routes. Some of those back roads are bad, but they can be driven with care. Our drivers did a real good job, and I'm proud of them."

A Dexter school system spokesman said that all buses completed their routes yesterday morning without incident.

Local police agencies reported no serious accidents as a result of the storm. There were many instances of vehicles skidding off roads, and some fender-bender bumps, but no injuries to persons.

"People handled it very well," a sheriff's deputy said, "They slowed down and, if they got in trouble, they called for help. I think they are used to driving in winter weather. We get most of our weather-caused accidents at the beginning of the season when drivers are adjusting to snow and ice. By now, they are used to it."

Smith's Service on Jackson Rd. had about 20 calls to tow cars out of the snow. Broderick's Tower Shell reported a dozen.

"Most of the people who got stuck apparently worked their own way out of it," said Ron Satterthwaite of Smith's Service. "It really wasn't all that busy a day for us."

Citizens Trust Expands Trust Services Division

The Trust Division of Ann Arbor based Citizens Trust, Washtenaw county's largest independent bank, has been renamed as the "Trust and Financial Services" unit to reflect a program of new business development for services offered by that area of the bank.

George H. Cress, president and chief executive officer, noted that Citizens Trust has enjoyed a long history of leadership and expertise in investment management, estate management and other special financial service delivery which had its origins with the former Ann Arbor Trust Co. Ann Arbor Trust and the former Citizens Bank of Saline merged on Dec. 31, 1983, to form Citizens Trust.

"Our Trust and Financial Services group will, of course, continue to administer the traditional trust accounts just as we have since our founding in 1925," Cress indicated. We will be providing a variety of associated services to our customers which complement the core services of investment and estate management," he added.

Earl H. Miner, senior vice-president and senior trust officer, who heads the Trust and Financial Services group, expanded on the significance of the name change.

"This is more than a superficial modification of our organizational structure. It represents a broadening and a redefinition of the scope of services which our officers and staff are qualified to perform. We want the community to know that highly specialized financial services are available as well as the traditional trust and estate management services," miner explained.

The new business development program for the Trust and Financial Services group at Citizens Trust is being directed by Sandra Kirtley Campbell, vice-president and trust officer. Ms. Campbell joined Citizens Trust in 1979, following a nine-year association at a bank in Grand Rapids.

"We have embarked on an aggressive new business approach to translate the unit name change into tangible efforts to satisfy the needs for these services," Miner said. "There are marked changes in the marketplace; the public is inundated with financial advertising and jargon. We believe that Citizens Trust is uniquely positioned to deliver an ideal blend of banking and trust related services in all the communities we serve," he concluded.

The first letter boxes were erected in Paris in 1653. They probably consisted of nothing more than a wooden box with a slit on top of it.

In early England, land was measured by how much an ox could plow in a day. These measurements were known as oxgangs and averaged about 15 acres.

Spring Hockey Registration

The sign-up deadline will be March 23. Games will be played March 31 through May 16.

Only the first 90 players registering will be accepted. The individual fee is $79, which covers all costs, including ice time, officials, and "loaner" jersey.

Registration forms are available at Veterans Ice Arena, Stein and Goetz Sporting Goods, College Shoe Repair, and the Department of Parks and Recreation, located on the 5th floor of the City Hall building.

WILLIAM GEDDES

ANDREW KOSZEGI

Two Boys Become New Eagle Scouts

Two Chelsea High School seniors received Eagle Scout ranking at a Court of Honor held Saturday, Feb. 23 at St. Paul United Church of Christ.

William Geddes, 1573 Sugar Loaf Lake, son of Jill Geddes of Chelsea and William Geddes, Sr., of Pennsylvania, and Andrew Koszegi, 17800 Waterloo Rd., son of Ronald and Marylou Koszegi, are both members of local Boy Scout Troop 476 headed by scoutmaster Donald Oesterle.

After years of hard work earning a minimum of 21 merit badges in the Boy Scout program it becomes the task of any Eagle Scout candidate to choose and coordinate a community service project to be completed before his 18th birthday.

Upon reading an article explaining that bluebird populations had dropped 90 percent within 50 years, Koszegi decided to design a project to aid number growth. He researched bluebird box construction and habits and solicited local contributions of materials. It is a requirement that all labor and materials be donated for all undertakings and he found willing help from the Lions Club and community businesses.

The 40 birdhouses were mounted on the necessary six-foot poles and 23 were erected in the Chelsea Nature Center and the rest on private property.

William Geddes co-ordinated the clearing and cleaning of a Freedom Township cemetery. It was necessary to solicit help from troop members and their families, receive permission, secure needed equipment, schedule the work to be done, and make eating arrangements for those involved. A representative from Washtenaw County Historical Society provided an educational tour of the very old graveyard where most stones are engraved in German.

Vocal Music Concert Slated Next Tuesday

Chelsea High school vocal music department will present a concert Tuesday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the High School Auditorium.

The Chelsea Choir will be singing "Give Me the Splendid Silent Sun" by Butler, and "I'd Enter Your Garden" by Brahms. These two numbers are the songs the choir will present at the District Choir Festival on Friday, March 15 in Monroe.

Lighter selections by the choir for the concert include John Denver's "Annie's Song," "God of Love We Look to Thee" by Hopson, and "It's a Wonderful, Wonderful Feeling" by Besig.

The Contemporaries and Madri-Guys, who just recently returned from the District Solo and Ensemble Festival, will be performing both festival music and some lighter numbers.

The Contemporaries will sign "Praise Ye the Lord" by Saint-Saens, arr. Ehret, "Peter Gray" by Nelhybel, "All Alone Without You" by Kunz, and "Day Is Done," by Yanow.

The Madri-Guys will present "Away for Rio" by Cookson and "There Is Nothin' Like a Dame" from South Pacific. The groups will combine for "Green, Green" by Sparks and McGuire. Sophomore, Bob Gimney, will be singing his festival songs which were judged a 1, "Below in the Valley" by Brahms, and "The Song of the Drummer," by Hopson.

The concert is open to the public, admission is complimentary.

Investigation Continues Into Lima Death

State police detectives from the Ypsilanti post are continuing to investigate the death of a 31-year-old Ann Arbor man whose body was found on Feb. 26 in a cornfield off Scio Church Rd. near Steinbach Rd. in eastern Lima township.

Preliminary findings are that Jeffrey S. Crowley of 327 S. Division St., died of natural causes and that there was no foul play. An autopsy report gave the cause of death as hypothermia (exposure to cold).

Crowley's body was spotted from a state police helicopter which was on patrol on another mission. The body was fully clothed, and there were no marks of violence. A wallet containing identification papers and about $20 in cash was found on his person.

Crowley was last seen by friends in Ann Arbor on Feb. 16. The date of his death has not been determined.

One aspect of the incident that police are continuing to investigate is how Crowley got to the Lima cornfield. There was no abandoned vehicle nearby.

"He could have walked," a state police detective said. "We have learned that he did a lot of long-distance hiking, and the place where his body was found is about 10 miles from his home. He could have hitch-hiked. We're not sure, and we hope to clear up that point."

"We don't know why he went into the cornfield about 200 feet off the road, but there is absolutely no reason at this point to believe a crime was committed. It appears to be a case of accidental death due to exposure."

Night-time low temperature on Feb. 16 was nine degrees above zero, and it got down to 10 the following night, cold enough to cause hypothermia.

Seals sometimes swim 6,000 miles over a period of eight months without once touching land.

BEVERLY YELSIK

RODNEY WORDEN

'Pride in Schools' Committee Honors B. Yelsik, R. Worden

The "Take Pride in Your Schools" committee has chosen two 15-year Beach Middle school employees to honor this week.

Beverly Yelsik is the sixth grade art teacher and the seventh and eighth grade speech and drama instructor.

Rodney Worden is the day maintenance person who, to quote principal Darcio Stielstra, "makes everyone's life a little easier."

Mrs. Yelsik was graduated in 1970 from Michigan State University and started the 1970-71 school year at Beach under former principal Alan Conklin. Since that first year her cohort in the art department, Judy Parker, says, "She tries to remember what it is like to be a kid and treats the students differently than others do. They come to her and put their faith in her, especially children who may be experiencing difficulties."

She lives in Chelsea with her husband, John, who manages the Chelsea Hardware store. Their interests are varied, but hers center on environmental concerns, a commitment she demonstrates by being an active recycler and by working at the Recycling Center in Ann Arbor during summers. Because of his job John Yelsik is aware of the needs of older people who cannot find someone to install new shelves, change storm windows, or shovel the walk, so he has become a willing volunteer.

Mrs. Yelsik has been a positive influence on her students for 15 school years, opening up for them the joys of artful expression, whether on paper or in a stage and drama presentation. She prides herself on providing an atmosphere where children can feel good about themselves, and it works.

Judy Parker concludes, "Beverly is very much in touch with her students, with herself and with the world around her."

Rodney Worden takes pride in his school by taking pride in his job. For the first time in his 15 years at Beach school he has day-time maintenance duty. He is able to do much of the work he formerly did after the students and teachers left for the day, plus lightening the burden of the staff who may need help doing anything from setting up chairs for a mid-morning assembly to cleaning up after a sick child. He is there to do the dozens of things that need taking care of in any building that serves hundreds of people every day.

Worden keeps a low profile, but for the first time he is meeting the staff and talking with the junior high students, an age group he enjoys. Before being scheduled to the day shift, he said, he would "go years without ever seeing a teacher."

A 1967 Chelsea High school graduate, Worden lives with his parents on Taylor St. According to science teacher Alice Steinbach, he can often be seen at local estate auctions searching for antiques to add to his collection. He likes what he is doing at the middle school and plans to remain at his post indefinitely.

Stielstra, Worden's supervisor since taking over the principal position in July, was enthusiastic in his praise of his positive attitude, willingness to help wherever needed, and his initiative in seeing things that need attention without having to be asked.

The "Take Pride in Your Schools" committee is happy to recognize citizens, students and staff persons who demonstrate their pride in the schools, schools which belong to everyone in Chelsea.
