ONE HUNDRED-FIFTEENTH YEAR—No. 41

PROFESSIONAL BUILDING PROGRESSES: Work on the new village Professional Center continues at a brisk pace despite this winter's bad weather. The center, at 515 S. Main St., is scheduled to open at the end of June or beginning of July, according to Steven A.

Yarrows, M.D., one of the building's five owners. The other owners include Ronald M. Biedron, DDS; Charles F. Krausse, M.D.; Raymond P. Howe, DDS; and Edward Curtis, M.D.

Only 109 Residents Cast Their Ballots In Village Election

One hundred and nine of Chelsea's 2,506 registered voters (4.3 percent) turned out for village elections Monday, March 11.

There was only one contested race, that for village treasurer. As of press time, victory could not officially be claimed by either incumbent William E. Storey or write-in candidate Kathleen Chapman because of problems with the write-in procedure.

According to Micki Crawford, director of elections for Washtenaw county, the problem arose when three votes for the write-in candidate were cast for "Kate Chapman" or Mrs. Chapman." Consequently, as of press time the Washtenaw County Board of Canvassers had not certified the results of the race.

However, according to Mrs. Crawford, even if the three disputed votes are given to Mrs. Chapman, she will fall six votes short of victory. Storey received 50 votes to an unofficial total of 45 for Mrs. Chapman.

In the uncontested races, Mrs. Rosentreter received 90 votes for a new two-year term. It was the highest number of votes received by any candidate.

Elected to two-year terms as village trustees were: Herman C. Radloff, 419 Madison St., 68 votes; Richard C. Steele, 211 Lincoln St., 83 votes; Stephanie M. Kanten, 560 Chandler St., 73 votes.

Elected to a one-year term as village trustee to fill a vacancy was Athel E. (Mac) Fulks, 405 Madison St., 78 votes.

Elected to three-year terms on the library board of trustees were incumbent John A. Groesser, 28 Sycamore Dr., 79 votes; and Anne E. Merkel, 158 Orchard St., 89 votes.

Nominating Petitions For School Board Are Due on April 8

Nominating petitions are due at 4 p.m. Friday, April 8, from candidates seeking four-year terms on the Chelsea board of education. The election will be held on Monday, June 10.

Two positions are open. The terms of Earl Heller and Anne Comeau are expiring. Both have taken out nominating petition forms and are considered to be seeking re-election.

The blank petitions are available in the school district administrative office at Chelsea High school. They must be circulated by a registered voter in the school district and must, when filed, list at least 20 names of qualified voters.

The Chelsea school district includes all of Sylvan township and parts of seven others—Lima, Lyndon, Dexter, Freedom and Sharon in Washtenaw county, and Waterloo and Grass Lake in Jackson county.

Anyone registered to vote in general elections in those townships is likewise registered for school elections, provided he or she lives within the school district boundaries.

Township clerks send the names of registrants to the school district, where they are recorded. School district officials issue and receive nominating petitions, check registrations, and conduct elections.

Deadline for new voter registrations is 5 p.m. Monday,

May 13. Would-be voters may sign up with their township clerks or at any secretary of state branch office. (There is one at 102 S. Main St. in Chelsea.)

Fred Mills, assistant superintendent of Chelsea schools, has been appointed by the board of education to administer this year's election.

Mills confirmed that Heller and Comeau have taken out petition forms and said that, to date, no other prospective candidates have come forward.

"I expect there will be others," Mills said. "To my knowledge, there has never been an uncontested school board election here. However, I don't know of any other candidates at this point."

Absentee ballots will be (Continued on page three)

Updated Recreation Plan Recommends Facility Improvements

An updated version of Chelsea's community-recreation plan was adopted unanimously by the village council following a scheduled public hearing at which no one showed up to comment.

The original plan was adopted in 1979. This was the first revision made by the recreation council, composed of nine appointed residents of the Chelsea school district, one member of the board of education and two members of the village board of trustees.

Jacqueline Schiller serves as Chelsea recreation director on a part-time paid basis.

The updated plan makes these recommendations:

1. Expand Veterans Park by developing adjacent village-owned land for picnicking and winter ice skating. The land in question includes three small, shallow ponds fed by storm water run-off. The ponds are not presently used for any purpose.

2. Acquire land for and develop a park near the center of town for picnic and playground use. The two existing village parks (Pierce and Veterans) are at the south and north ends of the community, and there is no park in the middle.

3. Obtain land on the west side of Dana Field to provide additional parking for both that facility and adjacent Veterans Park. The present parking lot has space for 50 vehicles and is frequently filled, especially during the summer softball season. The overflow spills onto the south shoulder of Sibley Rd. Fifty more parking spaces are suggested. The needed land is owned by Dana Corp., which donated 5.5 acres for construction of Dana Field.

4. Install lights for the two Dana Field softball diamonds. Many evening games played there are called because of darkness.

Besides those four specific proposals, the plan states:

"The need to expand park land and playgrounds in Chelsea is pressing. Only 12 acres of village land is allotted to parks. This is (Continued on page two)

Lenten Treat Offered By St. Mary's

St. Mary's church of Chelsea invites you to share with them a unique presentation entitled "The Heart of An Artist": Compassion in the Art and Letters of Vincent Van Gogh.

Miles McCabe who is the director of the Office of Peace and Justice Ministry in the Lansing Diocese will present the film, add his reflections, and then conduct open discussion with the audience. The hour-long program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in St. Mary's church at 14200 Old US-12, on Sunday, March 17.

While Micki and Ed Hurst, (the Large Group chaircouple of the Renew Program at St. Mary's), originally scheduled this event as one of the Large Group Activities for Renew's second semester in the parish, they believe that Van Gogh's legacy of compassion—of what it means to be fully human, sharing time and space and life with others—is so good that it must be shared. Won't you join us for a truly beautiful religious experience? No donation is expected.

High School Scheduling Underway

This week, the student scheduling process was begun at Chelsea High school.

According to Principal John Williams, the first step is for the students to request the classes they would like to take next year. The high school counselors began visiting students in their classes on Monday to explain their options and pass out course booklets and the sheets they need to make their requests.

The counselors visited junior classes on Monday, freshman classes on Tuesday and sophomore classes today. They will be explaining the scheduling process to eighth graders at Beach tomorrow.

Principal Williams stressed that it is very important for parents to take an active role in assisting their students to make the best course requests for them. It is very important that the parents and students take this part of the process seriously since next year's master schedule will be built upon the requests that are now being made. All students requests need to be turned in by Friday, March 15.

Once the student requests have been turned in, Principal Williams said that decisions can be made regarding how many sections of each class need to be offered to meet the needs of the student body and decisions regarding teaching assignments can also be made. The students will be making course requests for the entire year, not just part of it. Williams said that questions regarding appropriate course requests should be directed to the student's counselor.

Rod and Gun Plans Appeal Of Tax Status

Chelsea Rod and Gun Club, a non-profit organization, is preparing an appeal to the Lyndon Township Board of Review for property tax exemption. Taxes in excess of $3,100 a year are greater than the annual dues collected from the membership. Property maintenance and operation adds another $5,085, club spokesmen stated.

"We try to overcome the difference by means of hall rentals and fund raising activities similar to those used by churches and other non-profit organizations," said Fred Klink, club president and chief conservation officer, "but we fall short each year and some day may run out of funds. The main point is that we should be tax exempt under Michigan law because of our educational and scientific activities in the protection of wildlife and natural resources as well as of the quality of our environment," Klink added.

The club recently asked the Lyndon Township Board for tax exemption and was refused on the grounds that the club's activities did not "significantly lighten the state's educational burden."

"In view of the fact that the state's educational burden is $4 billion, and the tax relief amounts to $3,100, this is equivalent to relieving an elephant from the weight of a flea on its back," Klink added. "Basically, we were turned down by the township because our first plea to the township failed to include all the facts and viewpoints necessary to their decision. Also, the club has outgrown the original purposes stated in its 39-year-old charter. We have amended our charter to show that we are a full fledged conservation club which is making educational and scientific contributions to the protection of natural resources."

For 20 years the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club has given hunter-safety training to youngsters and adults for the public use of firearms. Members of the club who give this training are certified by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

In addition to hunter-safety training, the club's projected program for 1985 includes:

—"Tracks", an environmental magazine for school children

—"Michigan Outdoors" magazine for the Chelsea public library

—Establishment of the fourth Friday in April for the annual observance of Arbor Day

—Seminars in connection with the DNR and the Washtenaw Public Health Department in water quality and water testing

—Soil conservation lectures in association with the Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District

—Co-operation in the development of western Washtenaw air quality defenses

—Extended efforts with the DNR and Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) for wildlife protection, including forage, brush shelter, nesting and breeding conservation

—Dog control for the protection of wild and farm animals

—Home firearms safety

—Archery instruction

—Funding of about $700 to send two girls and two boys to the Mill Lake Summer Camps in 1985-86 for outdoor education under the direction of the MUCC

—Teaching-the-Teacher lectures by wildlife and fisheries biologists from the DNR (Continued on page four)

Cassidy Lake Pair Involved In Burglary

Two inmates at the Cassidy Lake Training Camp found themselves in the Washtenaw County Jail Monday, after an escapade in Lyndon township Sunday evening, March 10.

The pair were observed by security personnel at the camp to be in a location other than the expected one, and upon closer observation, were found to have old coins in their pockets, as well as to have a bottle containing pills in their possession. The label on the bottle identified with a Waterloo Rd. resident.

Deputies from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department checked out the residence and found that evidence indicated the place had been the target of a recent break-in. Neighbors told deputies the resident was working an afternoon shift, so deputies awaited his return. However, one of the pair decided to explain further, admitting to the unauthorized entry.

Investigation of the incident is continuing, under the supervision of Detective Paul Wade of the WCD.

Bad Weather Meeting Set On March 26

The approach of spring brings on the possibility of tornadoes and other severe weather, and therefore a "national weather meeting" has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 26, at the UAW Local 1284 Hall on M-52 south of Chelsea.

Sponsors are the union local and the Chelsea Communications Club. The latter organization is involved in the civil defense emergency communications network.

Speakers at the meeting, to begin at 7 p.m., will be Dan Harsh, Washtenaw county director of emergency management, and Robert Snider, meteorologist for the National Weather Service.

The program will include information on the signs, warnings, precautions and emergency procedures involved in severe weather.

Robert Schantz, Chelsea civil defense officer, encourages all interested persons to attend the meeting.

Bands Receive Top Ratings at District Meet

Chelsea High school Symphony Band and Freshman Concert Band were awarded First Division ratings at the District 12 Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association's Band and Orchestra Festival last Friday.

The bands participated with area bands from Washtenaw, Monroe, and Wayne counties this past weekend.

Each band performs three selections for a panel of three concert judges. Following this, they perform two selections they have never seen before (sight read) for a fourth judge. These four ratings are combined to give an over-all rating.

Both bands received a First Division from each of the four adjudicators.

This marks the 10th consecutive year the Symphony Band has received all First Division ratings.

"I am pleased with work our fine students produce," said Gourley, "and grateful for the community and administrative support the band receives."

NEW CHURCH: Although their sign is not yet completed, members of Chelsea's Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints held their first Sunday morning worship in their new building at 1330 Freer Rd. March 10. The service was held by President Way Winenz. The 70-member church previously used Rebekah Hall on M-52. As of Sunday, worshippers were using chairs until their pews arrive, and there was still some touch-up painting to do. The new building also has a satellite dish to pick up church-related broadcasts from Salt Lake City, according to church custodian Mrs. James Isberg. Services begin at 9:30 each Sunday morning and last until 1 p.m. The hall is also being used for church meetings and activities throughout the week.

State Government Improving in Affirmative Action Programs Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths, chairperson of the Michigan Equal Employment and Business Opportunity Council, recently reported state departments and agencies are doing a better job in promoting minorities and women, but most still have an over-all unsatisfactory rating for total minority and female employment at the highest levels.

Griffiths said she was delighted that all departments and agencies were doing better at promoting minorities and women to high level civil service posts.

Over the past year, six departments and agencies received outstanding classifications for their affirmative action hiring—Agriculture, Education, Labor, Licensing and Regulation, State, and Employment Security Commission—but all of those still carried an over-all unsatisfactory record for the total number of high level minorities and women employed, Griffiths reported.

No department or agency has an over-all outstanding record, according to the report cards, and only one, the Department of Civil Rights, has a "good" overall rating.

Deputy Attorney General Stanley Steinborn complained that the figures for hiring were incorrect.

The report card should have shown that the department has filled 60 percent of its high level vacancies in the previous year with minorities or women, but the report showed them with only 20 percent promoted.

An effort to correct employment figures put out by the Department of Civil Service to show the actual number promoted was ignored, he said.

Not rated was the Executive Office and Griffiths said that it had done a "great" job in promoting minorities and women.

She also said the figures showed that racism and sexism still existed in state employment, but she did not know how extensive a problem it was.

Small Businesses Report Improved Business Climate Michigan members of the National Federation of Independent Businesses say the state's business climate has improved.

NFIB Michigan Director Roger Haynes said a poll of the group's 18,600 Michigan members show 67 percent of the respondents are now willing to expand in their present localities or within the state.

The poll also showed the small business owners favor retaining the common-law concept of "employment at will" which allows non-union employees and companies to continue business relationships at either party's wish.

Some 83 percent said they were against the concept where equal pay would be awarded for equal levels of skill, knowledge, training, responsibility and risk as determined by an independent body.

Objections, Haynes said, centered on the high cost of such charges, creation of a new bureaucracy to set standards from about 23,000 jobs, the resulting escalation in prices and taxes and a philosophy that the market rather than government should set job rates.

The poll also showed that utility rate representation for small business was sought by 54 percent of the respondents. More than 73 percent of those responding to the poll provide health care coverage for employees and expressed concerns about rising costs of the coverage.

Akel Marshall Recognized for Volunteer Efforts

Akel Marshall of 416 Dale St. has been recognized by the Chelsea board of education for his volunteer contributions to the high school athletic program, especially in baseball.

During the past five years Marshall has served as an unpaid assistant in baseball, working with both the varsity and junior varsity teams.

Last fall, Marshall branched out a bit by volunteering to take motion picture films of high school football games.

The first sidewalk in the U.S. was laid in 1657 on a New York thoroughfare called Stone Street.

(Continued from page one) far below most standards which often suggest 10 acres per 1,000 people. At this rate Chelsea should have upwards of 40 acres of parks.

Another section of the plan lists needs for a community facility for adults and teen-agers, four more tennis courts (there are six in town at present), two outdoor basketball courts, eight handball or paddleball courts, four more ball diamonds, 25 more picnic units, a shelter at Pierce Park, and lockable storage for playground equipment.

The report recognizes that there are several thousand acres of state-owned recreation land close to Chelsea but adds that "these large recreational lands attract many people from distant areas who not only compete with local residents for state facilities but also compete with them for the use of Veterans Park and Pierce Park."

The Recreation Council stated that "indoor recreational activity has reached its maximum potential. The gymnasium facilities (high school and middle school) must serve the school system first, which does not allow sufficient time for the recreational program to expand."

"During the normal four-season recreation program, the available indoor facilities are often used until 10 p.m., and on weekends the gyms are occupied throughout the day. Careful scheduling is necessary to prevent time conflicts among the different groups."

Last year the village recreation program had 1,929 participants—1,408 children and 521 adults—who paid fees totalling $32,230. The fee income provided about 61 percent of the total budget of $51,915. Contributions from the village, the school district, the United Way and the four affiliated townships made up the difference.

The figure of 1,929 participants reflects only those persons who paid fees. It does not include, for example, people who used the two parks or who came out to watch softball games at Dana Field.

There is no accurate count of such "free" users, but it is many times more than the 1,929 fee-payers.

Traffic Detour Set Near Ypsi

Traffic on eastbound M-17 over US-12 east of Ypsilanti will be detoured beginning Monday, March 11, until mid-October, for replacement of the bridge deck, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) has reported.

While the existing bridge deck is being removed, westbound US-12 traffic also will be detoured, for approximately one week beginning March 11.

The primary detour for eastbound M-17 and westbound US-12 will be along US-12 Business Route (Michigan Ave.).

Local traffic on eastbound M-17 will follow a signed detour north on Ford Blvd. to Holmes Rd. then east on Holmes to Michigan Ave.

During the brief closure of westbound US-12, westbound traffic from General Motors plants and Willow Run will be detoured to M-17 then Michigan Ave. to Interstate 94 freeway.

After westbound US-12 reopens, there will be intermittent lane closures for the duration of the bridge replacement project.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

No sooner had the fellers settled around the stove at the country store Saturday night than Ed Doolittle waved this clipping he said had to be a joke, like them jampoon papers the college kids put out. Ed said he had read the piece up one side and down the other, and as far as he could tell it was serious.

surprise, Ed said, cause them muddleheads never have got past the idea that the way to deal with any problem is to throw money at it. If the old Democrats and even some of the new ones had their way, Ed went on, we'd be solving the marijuana problem by paying everybody with a plot of ground not to grow it, and we still might be paying farmers in Turkey not to grow poppies.

Bug Hookum sided solid with Ed. Going into the not farming business was big business for a long spell, Bug said, and for all he knows about old and new tax law we still might be paying farmers not to raise corn and hogs and whatever we got to much of. Bug Recollected we use to pay doctors that needed to lose money raising cattle not to raise em so they wouldn't glut the market for cattlemen that lost money trying to make a living raising cattle.

If that ain't strange solutions to problems that won't go away, Bug declared, you got to consider that we have been known to pay gentlemen gord farmers the market value of their tax write off gordes there weren't no market fer. The sad fact is, Bug allowed, human nature and greed being what they are, you can rest assured that every single girl of child bearing age in this country would sign up fer the not having babies program, especial since then the law won't let parents find out about their plans.

Personal, the not having babies plan makes sense the way Senator Helms' if you can't lick em buy em plan makes. Both are the wrong way to do the wrong thing.

Yours truly, Uncle Lew.

Weight Control Specialists Offer To Discuss Systems

There's a sure way to bridge the generation gap... just mention weight loss diets. Men and women of all ages are increasingly concerned about their weight and are on "diets." It starts early; one study of 13-year-old girls revealed 80% reported dieting at least once.

In response to this universal interest, Co-operative Extension Service is sponsoring an educational program called Weight Control... An American Growth Industry. Speakers from Overeater's Anonymous, Weight Watchers and the Weight Loss Clinic will explain the rationale underpinning their systems. In addition, Judy Tomer, a dietitian specializing in weight management at the University of Michigan Hospital will speak on the latest research.

The program will be held at the Co-operative Extension Service Building in the County Service Center at Hogback and Washtenaw, on March 13 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. It is free and open to all.

More information may be obtained by calling 973-9510.

Mill Creek Research Council Meeting Slated

The 20th annual meeting of the Mill Creek Research Council will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, March 26 at the Lima Town Hall. Business to be covered includes the usual reports and election of the board of directors.

The 1984-85 board has consisted of Charles Arnold, Dave Bacon, William Chandler, Barbara Eby, Wallace Fusilier, Betty Messman, Gerald Myers, Charlie Powers, Margaret Sias, Roger Storm, Janet Tarolli, and Linda White. Fusilier is current chairman.

This volunteer citizens group which has been active for 20 years was organized in 1965 in response to community-wide shock! The United States Army Corps of Engineers was planning a huge multi-purpose reservoir system for the Mill Creek basin. It had irregular boundaries depending on drainage patterns.

Planned land acquisitions would have reached east from near the Chrysler Proving Grounds to nearly Staebler Rd., in Scio township, nearly 13 miles, and from Island Lake Rd., on the north, south to beyond Scio church Rd., near Strieter Rd.

The seriousness of the news was reinforced by the presence of soil testing equipment studying soil conditions at proposed dam sites!

Local opposition was virtually 100 percent, although there was support in Ann Arbor, at the county level, and elsewhere.

The new Research Council's first goal was simply to learn about this proposal. One critical flaw was the relative shallowness of the impoundments. Several very different factors may have influenced the eventual abandonment of the proposal including the effect of strong local opposition and support of their representatives at various political levels. Also new methods of sewage disposal were being recommended and finally adopted in 1972 which depended less on the need for large amounts of water for dilution of sewage, one of the major purposes of the proposed reservoir system. What would Dexter, Sylvan, Lima, Scio and Lodi be today had the Corps of Engineers started construction as anticipated in 1971 and completed their project?

Almost as soon as the larger project involving some 14,450 acres was abandoned the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority announced their plans for a Mill Creek Park also on Mill Creek anticipated to serve up to 45,000 park users on a single summer week-end day. Due both to concentrated local opposition and lack of funds this proposal is still just a proposal. It also remains on the Washtenaw County Land Use Plan which is currently again being revised.

The Michigan state Highway Department in 1984 received a special federal appropriation for study of the Fletcher - I-94 interchange which is considered sub-standard. The possibilities of handling traffic for the proposed park, still on the plans, were being included in the interchange review. Results of the study have not yet been seen locally. Earlier design concepts had included redoing the interchange to handle both park and non-park traffic.

Another concept involved leaving the Fletcher Rd. interchange as is and adding a new interchange at N. Steinbach. Then the Fletcher interchange could have been set to handle park traffic only, with Steinbach handling the rest. Or Fletcher could maybe have handled other traffic and Steinbach been designed to handle park traffic with a special scenic entrance road in going west from S. Steinbach along Mill Creek.

Because this Mill Creek proposal has not been removed from plans, the MCRC board has continued to monitor most Huron-Clinton meetings.

It is now time for dues which are $10 per year for current and/or former members and $12 for initial first year. They may be paid to treasurer William Chandler, 765 Howard Rd., Chelsea.

Fair Market Lamb Exhibitors To Meet

A meeting for those interested in showing market lambs at the 1985 Chelsea Community Fair is scheduled Tuesday, March 19 at 7 p.m. at the Fairgrounds.

MARY ANN BROCKETT shown in photo above with her hand-painted dolls will be one of the many craftspeople appearing at the Pioneer Craft Fair, Saturday, March 16, at Dexter High school. Most of the artists and craftsmen will be demonstrating their special talent, in addition to selling their wares. A craft must date back to pioneer times to be eligible for entry in this fair, sponsored by the Dexter Area Historical Society. Each year since its first appearance the fair has grown in popularity, with patrons arriving from all over the state to see the many lovely items for sale, and to chat with the creators.

Pioneer Craft Fair Features 55 Exhibitors

Dexter Area Historical Society will sponsor the 12th annual Pioneer Craft Fair this coming Saturday, March 16. The fair will be held at the Dexter High school and will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Each year new craftspeople apply to demonstrate at the fair. It's always interesting to see whom the committee has chosen from the many applications received throughout the year. Never an easy choice, many months go into the decisions. The results have earned the fair a well deserved reputation and people travel great distances to attend.

Sometimes a person's career becomes sidetracked due to a number of factors. Occasionally this leads a craftsman off in a new direction. This happened to Mary Ann Brockett in September 1984. Brockett was an art instructor at Kent State College before marrying and moving to the Pinkney area. Two small children have taken priority over teaching at this time.

Wanting to keep her hand in the art field, Brockett attempted a doll's head with painted features. A request to make an entire cloth doll led to experimenting, rejecting, and trying again until she has created a charming doll with painted features.

Brockett makes both large and small dolls. Some are dressed in modern styles, but a good many of them are dressed in costume reminiscent of the Amish people. All of the dolls are dressed carefully, revealing a lot of experience with sewing.

A new doll now in the works is one based on the original Raggedy Ann, quite different from the ones now on the market. This is a beauty you will wish to stop and visit.

There are several newcomers joining the fair this year. Mairellen Zaleski will be painting thermos. Sharon Wold does beautiful cross stitch. Sara Oesterling will demonstrate the old craft of rug braiding. Rose Munro does unusual calligraphy. Patty Garber and Dawn Anderson will be bringing their handmade dolls and animals. Marla Braciszki will be making gold jewelry.

Glass etching, painting, wildlife carving, basketry, marquetry, lace making, teddy bears, weaving, whittling, and smocking are just a few more of the crafts to be demonstrated. There will be something of interest to everyone.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

A couple of weeks ago the Chelsea post office announced a new policy on mis-addressed first class mail. Instead of delivering letters carrying wrong addresses, the post office would return them to the sender with the correct address (if known) written on the envelope and require that they be re-mailed with a fresh 22-cent stamp.

That announcement didn't seem to be earth-shaking, especially because it was only a local application of a nation-wide policy adopted by the U. S. Postal Service. The new rule was to be followed everywhere in the country.

Nevertheless, the change stirred up a minor storm here, and Chelsea postal officials were forced to back off. They will continue to deliver wrongly addressed letters if they can identify the intended recipients, and try to educate the public to the whys and wherefores of the policy change before putting it into effect.

I have a mixed bag of feelings about all this, and will try to sort out and state them.

In the first place, the U. S. Post Office was not established with the idea that it should "break even" financially, let alone show a profit. As a matter of fact, it never has. The service has lost money from day one.

It has always been a subsidized service, with deficits made up from general tax revenues. The price of a stamp has never paid the cost of sending a piece of mail—first class, or any other class. Among the beneficiaries of that subsidy system is this newspaper. The Standard pays less to mail copies to subscribers than it costs the post office to deliver them. So does every other newspaper and periodical, and so do the senders who stuff your boxes with junk mail.

It is hard to quarrel with the idea that people who use the Postal Service—or any other government-furnished service—should pay the actual costs of what they buy. I suggest, however, that any such rule of thumb be applied to all government services—starting with the military and going on down through welfare, education, Social Security and the rest. Why pick on the Post Office?

If this country is ever going to get back on its financial feet, an essential first step is to eliminate the annual federal deficits which have risen to the level of more than $200 billion a year and have accumulated to something more than $1.6 trillion.

I find it strange, to say the least, that a conservative president (Ronald Reagan) has turned out to be the biggest spender of other people's money in all history, and is urging more yet.

It is long past time that somebody sat down and figured out what we can afford, and what we can't, and came up with sets of matching numbers, with maybe a little left over on the revenue side to make a start at reducing the national debt. The annual interest on that debt is higher than the federal budget was when I first started to pay income taxes.

That may seem far afield from the problem of how to handle wrongly addressed mail, but I don't think it is. If mailers can't be bothered to put correct addresses on envelopes, why shouldn't they have to pay the cost of doing it when they are caught in the act of failure?

Assistant Chelsea postmaster Bill Brenner tells me the major problem here stems from out-of-town businesses which refuse to correct their mailing lists, even when given the information they need to do it. Such lists are kept on computers.

It's time everybody recognized that computers are, at best, a mixed blessing, if indeed they are a blessing at all. One big problem with computers is that it takes time and costs money to change anything that gets into the information feed system. It's easier and cheaper not to do anything, and hope that somebody else will do it for you.

In this instance, mailers are relying on the Postal Service, and us taxpayers, to pick up the price of what the mailers should have done.

On the other side of the coin, I wonder if it is possible to draft policy that will apply equally to all United States post offices, from New York City down to the smallest.

In a town the size of Chelsea, it's relatively easy for postal workers to know who everybody is and where they live, and so send mis-addressed mail to the intended recipients. The extent of the problem here amounts to 30-40 letters a day. Correcting the addresses and sending them on to the right destinations takes some time and costs some money, and unquestionably is a nuisance.

However, eliminating that nuisance wouldn't save anything important, such as the cost of an employee. What we're looking at is at most a fraction of a working day.

The larger the city, the more significant the problem becomes. If the Chelsea post office receives 30-40 wrong-addressed first class letters a day, the Detroit post office must get several thousand, and it's unlikely that postal workers there know very many of the addressees. Some real savings might be made by cutting out the cost of correcting the addresses.

What's wrong with the idea of having one policy for big post offices, another for little ones? The situations and problems are very different.

Reading Council Panel To Discuss Children's Books

Washtenaw Reading Council is holding a panel discussion on Tuesday, March 19, from 4:30 to 5:30, at Lawton school in Ann Arbor. The subject is "A Daily Gift," presented by school and city librarians and media specialists.

Clare Canham-Eaton, from the Ann Arbor Public Schools, currently a Newbery Committee member, will present, "Criteria for Excellence: A look at Newbery Books."

Jean Sebestyen, a young adult specialist with the Canton Public Library, will discuss "Young Adult Reading Trends and High Technology," i.e. what kids are actually reading vs. what we want them to read.

Barbara Locks, the North School Media Specialist from Chelsea, will look at the "Elementary Perspective." She will give ideas on how librarians and media specialists can help parents and teachers in selecting books to read aloud.

Read-aloud books can be at a level much higher than a child could understand, reading on his or her own. It also gives a child attention, saying "You are important to me, and I want to share in your book adventures."

Why do you read to children? There are a multitude of reasons. Come and find how you can give your child or children this wonderful "daily gift."

Lawton school is on 7th St., south of Scio Church Rd. in Ann Arbor. Admission is $2 for parents and $3 for teachers.

Eddie Lauhon Recovering at Home in Iowa

Edward Lauhon was discharged from Franciscan Hospital in Rock Island, Ill. Feb. 6 to return home to Bettendorf, Ia., where his recovery continues.

Daily visits to the hospital for physical therapies will aid his steady improvement. Good physical health, and a positive out-look are contributing greatly to his recovery.

"He is very determined, anyone who knows him is aware of his ability to persevere," remarked his mother, Barbara.

The support and prayers from friends in Michigan, his co-workers at Augustana College, and people throughout the country have been encouraging to Edward and his family.

A fund to help cover medical expenses during his convalescence has been set up at Augustana College.

DAN EWALD, left, field service and project engineer, retired March 1 from the Dana Chelsea plant with 33 years service. Bill Heutteman presented Dan with a Dana blue blazer and retirement booklet along with the firm's congratulations and best wishes. Dan and his wife Clara plan to do some traveling, fishing, golfing and bird watching during retirement.

Health-O-Rama Slated March 30 at Hospital

Now more than ever before you hold the key to your good health. A healthy lifestyle, good nutrition and exercise habits, and periodic health checks are within your grasp.

To help reduce your risk of serious illness, Project Health-O-Rama will be held at Chelsea Community Hospital on March 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The project is sponsored by Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Michigan, WXYZ, Channel 7 of Detroit, and the United Health Organization.

Participants in Health-O-Rama will receive free health screening tests with the exception of the optional Blood Test Panel which will cost $7. The total health care savings is estimated to be over $150.

The basic, free tests offered include blood pressure, height/weight, vision, glaucoma, blood panel chemistry, hearing test, counseling and referrals.

Those presently taking prescription or non-prescription medications are urged to bring them along to aid in this free counseling service.

Many will volunteer services to insure a successful program and all those participating must be 18 years of age.

John Tracy Like of Ann Arbor, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, was named the new pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed churches at Roger's Corners and Francisco. He succeeded the Rev. Donald Voss who served as pastor of the two churches for the past two years. He came to Ann Arbor from McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., where he graduated in the spring of 1960.

Although in Coach Bob Taylor's words, "Chelsea Bulldogs played a wonderful game" in the tournament held at Bowen Fieldhouse in Milan, the Wyandotte St. Patrick's basketball team eliminated them from further tournament competition, defeating the Chelsea team by a heart-breaking score of 53-52. The half-time score had been 21-21, a close game all the way.

A student loan fund to be used by Chelsea High school students to further their education was set up in memory of Miss Mabel Fox and was to become known as the "Mabel Fox Memorial Loan Fund." Miss Fox died Dec. 23, 1960, after teaching for almost 37 years and was always interested in encouraging students to continue their studies following high school graduation.

Among four area students with the Eastern Michigan University players who had roles in the group's March production of Shakespeare's "Othello" was Donna Jean Osterle of Chelsea. She was enrolled as a sophomore at the university.

The Standard carried a full page ad of congratulations to the Chelsea Bulldog basketball team for their splendid record and winning of the District championship for the first time in 10 years. Local businesses sponsored the ad intended as community praise of the nine seniors completing their high school careers.

34 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, March 22, 1951—A new Dairy Herd Improvement Association was organized in Washtenaw county. At the organizational meeting Walter Wolfgang and Floyd Fowler of Chelsea were elected president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

Howard Flintoft was re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, Roland Spaulding, was named vice-president, Waldo Kusterer, treasurer, Clarke Parker, secretary, and Walter Harper, director for three years.

Chelsea High's Bulldogs, despite not going as far as hoped in tournament play, rang up the greatest year that the local high school had ever had, setting a record to challenge all future teams. In Dave Crocker, leading scorer and handy-andy on defense, Chelsea produced one of the finest scholastic ball players ever to come from this section of the state. Rounding out the usual starting five were Stan Knickerbocker, Marty Tobin, Jerry Lehman, and Ted Betts. In winning 18 and losing 1, Chelsea scored 1,058 points for a fine 55.7 average.

Leap year, due in 1952, would cost the taxpayers an extra $187,000 for the additional day's pay to federal employees, according to Michigan's Senator Ferguson.

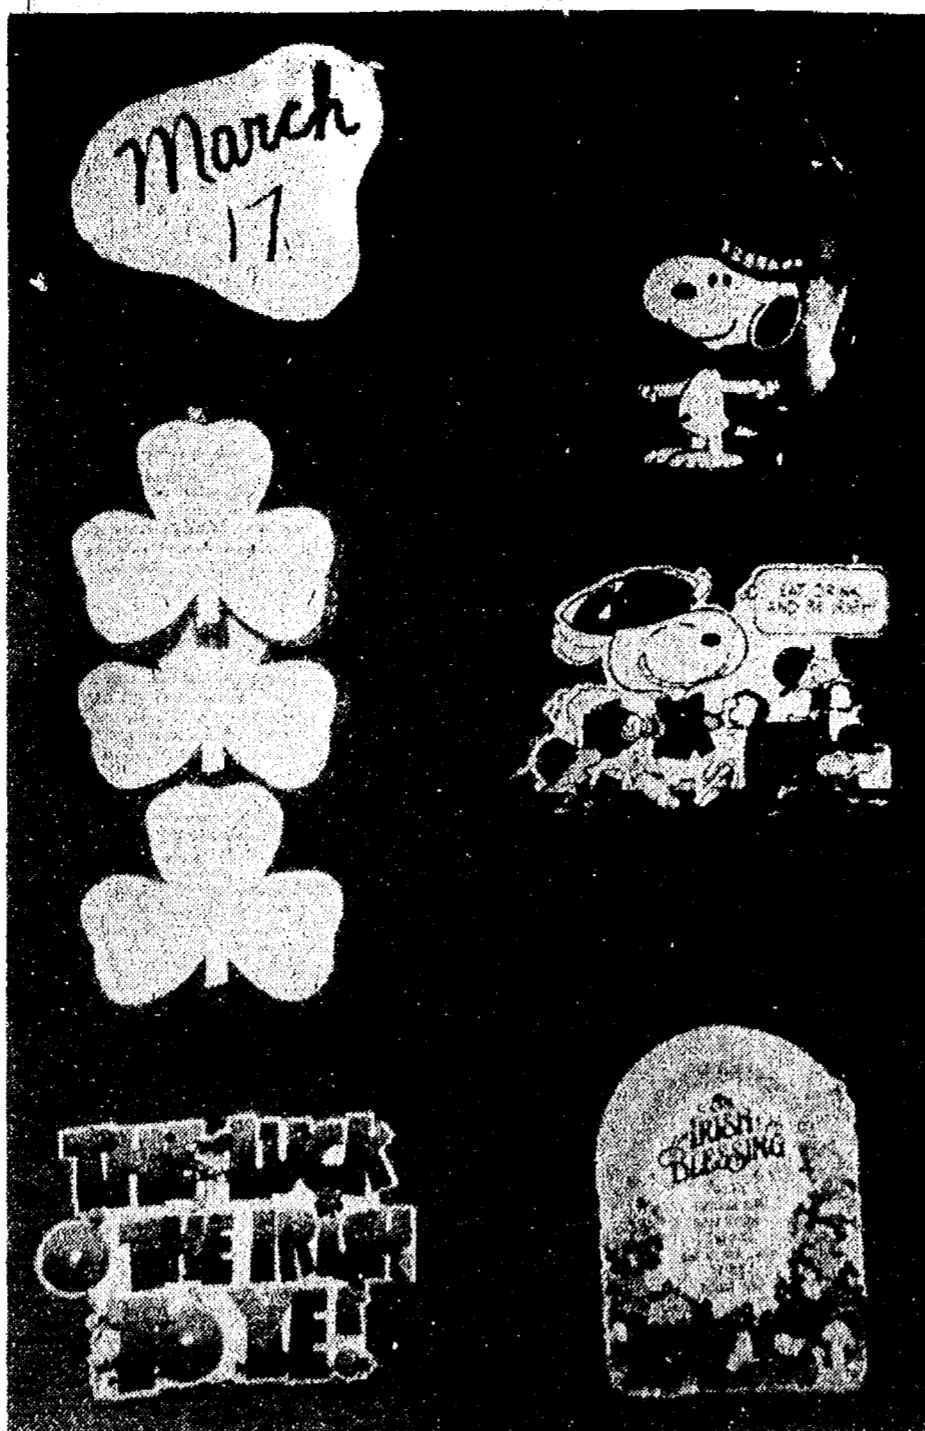

News reports that the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. had signed a contract providing for an increase in delivery of natural gas to the company resulted in concerns about the effect on local distribution and the possibility of additional conversions to gas for heating. Officials assured citizens that effects of the increased quantities of gas might not be felt until 1952 as increased supplies under the contract awaited the completion of a new pipeline from Louisiana to northern Indiana.

James J. Munro, of Ann Arbor, a former Chelsea resident, was one of 44 Highway Department employees who received certificates of service at the annual banquet held in Grand Rapids as part of the Michigan Highway Conference. The certificate was given in recognition of Munro's 20 years of service with the State Highway Department as a physical testing engineer at the department's laboratory at the U. of M.

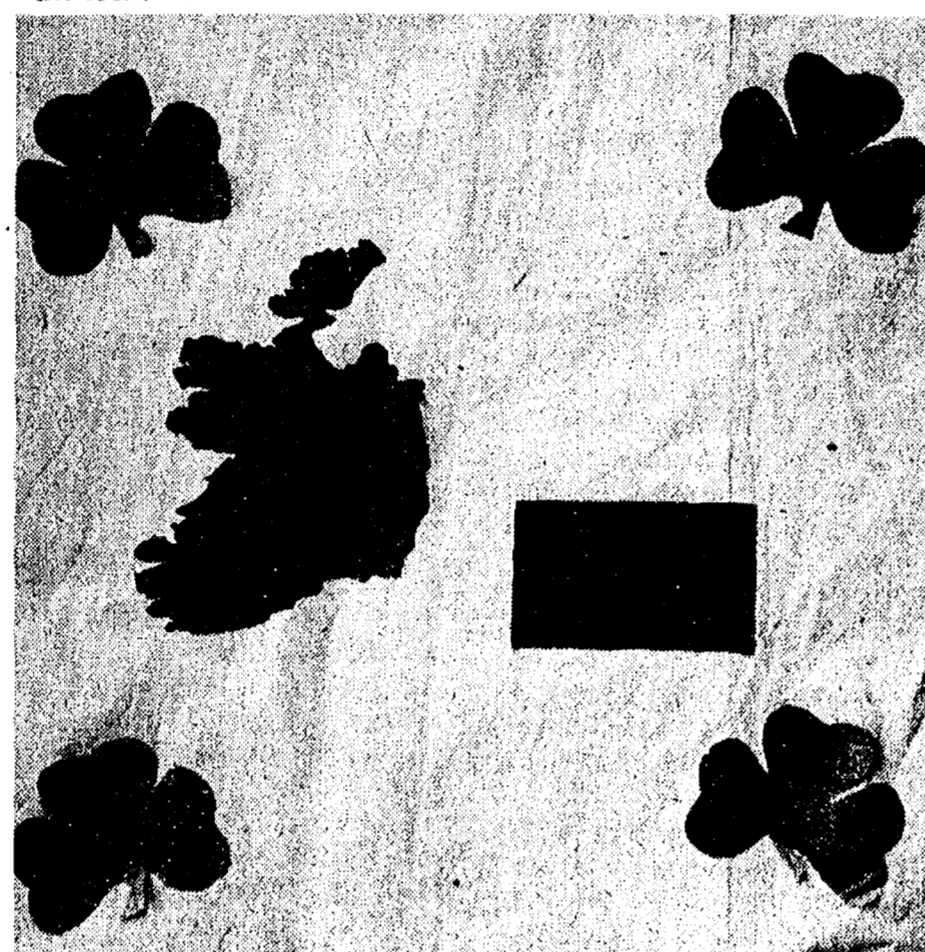

The Michigan Schoolmasters Club held its 64th annual meeting at the University of Michigan. About 3,500 teachers and school administrators attended.

Mrs. Roland Wenk received a letter from her son, Corporal Gerald Wenk, written in Korea, March 9, in which he told her that he had met S-Sgt. Louis Birch, another Chelsea boy, while in action along the Han river. The two boys were in different outfits but Corporal Wenk had learned that Sgt. Birch's battalion was to be in combat at the same time as his outfit and was on the look-out for him.

Chelsea Couple Tours Universal Studios

During a recent vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Boyer were captured by a space ship, attacked by the "Jaws" shark, caught in a flash flood, and torpedoed by a submarine. Healthy and happy again here in Chelsea, the couple live to relate the stories of their February tour of Universal Studios in Burbank, Calif.

The trip began Feb. 17 when the couple flew to Las Vegas, Nev. to meet his daughter, Pam and her husband Donald Woodring of Pine, Colo., at the Imperial Palace. The foursome enjoyed entertainment by Donna Sommers, Shirley Jones, and Jerry Lewis. They were especially intrigued with the magic acts featuring animals in dramatic disappearing acts and other slight of beast. After a few exciting days, the two couples traveled to Santa Ana, Calif. to visit Duane's son, Mike, his wife, Patricia and their infant daughter, Erin. It was during this visit that the tour of Universal Studios took place. Then it was back to Las Vegas for a few more days before the return trip home on Feb. 24 for a much needed rest.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
Congratulations to the National Honor Society students for the $1,000 earned through pledges at their Rock-A-Thon.

Somehow, its hard for me to comprehend why it is required of our most intelligent students to sit and rock for hours, and as long as 28 hours. The loss of sleep alone is unhealthy.

It seems to me they could get pledges for helping or just visiting our senior citizens or doing useful jobs within the community and better utilize 28 hours.

I am reasonably sure that our local merchants that donated food and drinks would also provide food and drinks for a lunch hour while doing something constructive.

Should the National Honor Society do something other than rock, next year, call me for a pledge.

Leila C. Bauer.

Severe Weather Training Session Slated March 26

The snow has not yet been banished for the year, at least in the minds of area residents who remember some of this part of the country has experienced blizzards of great note even in the late days of March, and a few times in April as well. However, the warm weather will be floating in to replace the chilly times before long.

With the advent of the warmth, comes the suspect tornado season. County and local officials dread the tornado season, partly because of the unpredictable nature of the tornado, and more directly because of the havoc and destruction the tornado leaves in the path it chooses.

"Spotter training for severe weather" training will be offered for the fifth consecutive year, with the session scheduled for Tuesday, March 26, at the Chelsea UAW Local 1284 Hall, located on M-52 just south of the village of Chelsea.

The training course is open to the public, without charge, and has drawn as many as 175 interested residents of the area to listen to Dan Harsh speak on "Severe Weather," and to be informed on procedures to be used by the "spotter," for more effective information relaying.

Harsh is the director of Washtenaw County's Office of Emergency Management. He is also a resident of the Dexter and Chelsea area. Explaining he is always delighted to be invited to give the "Severe Weather" lecture, Harsh noted that many of the people who have taken the severe weather spotter training class in past years may feel that "once is enough" and that the knowledge needs no update. He urges those who have attended the class in previous years to return again this year to update their information.

Presented for the first time this year is a brand new film which will be part of the information shared with area residents concerning procedures for recognizing severe weather, and for passing along that information to the necessary agencies and individuals. There will also be a representative from the U.S. Weather Service sharing information with those at the session.

Representatives of clubs or other organizations, local government officials, those representing industries or small businesses, as well as professionals and/or school groups and individual citizens are invited to take advantage of the opportunity to learn about severe weather habits, and how to spot severe weather. The more the citizenry is informed, the more chance there is a community will better survive a disaster such as a tornado.

Members of the United Automobile Workers from the Chrysler Proving Grounds have again this year allowed the use of the UAW Hall, rent free, for this training. Chelsea Communications Club members have joined the effort, and through the cooperative efforts of both groups, in addition to the many hours of planning and co-ordinating by Robert Schantz, director of civil preparedness for Lima township, himself a member of the Chelsea Communications Club, and a person who spends a great deal of time and effort trying to promote preparedness for both the Dexter and Chelsea communities, the program will not only be open to the public, but the public is invited and urged to participate.

Call Robert Schantz for further details, and to let him know you plan to attend the training session.

Dale Fisher Featured At Wildlife Art Festival

"Heliophotography," an art form created by Dale Fisher of Ann Arbor, will be a unique feature of the 1985 Michigan Wildlife Art Festival at the Southfield Civic Center, March 22-24. Fisher uses a helicopter as a flying platform for outdoor photos. His "birds-eye" view has given art and photography lovers a new perspective of wildlife.

Fisher fell in love with photography as a teenager in Ann Arbor and learned aerial photography in the Navy. Much of his enlistment was spent in Florida at the Pensacola Photographic School.

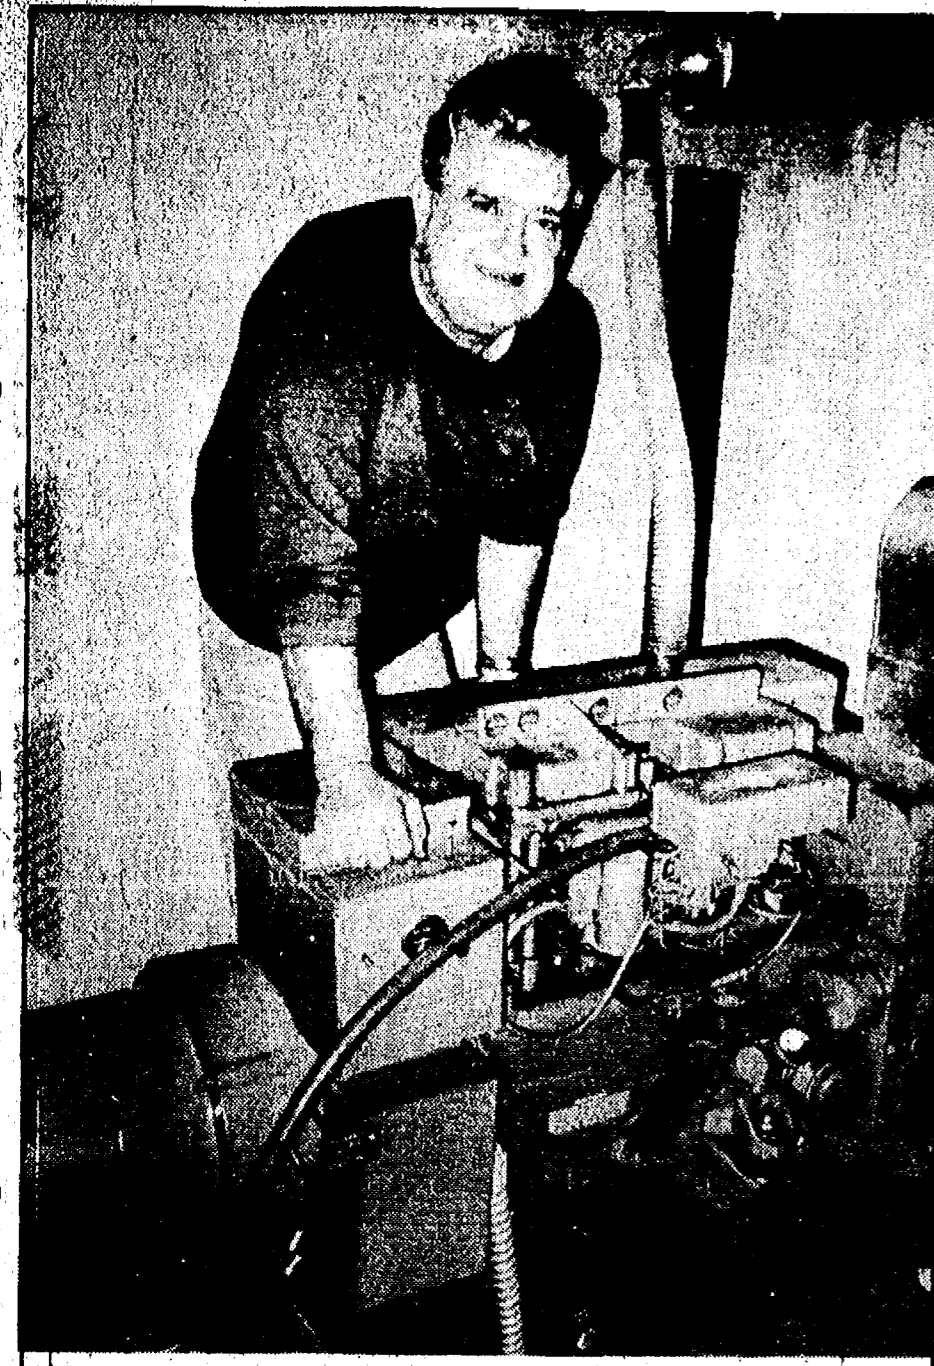

Fisher's heliophotography grew from his commercial work in photographing Great Lakes bulk carriers and private watercraft. His art is currently exhibited in galleries throughout the eastern United States.

For information about the 1985 Michigan Wildlife Art Festival, contact the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation at (517) 882-3110.

PROVIDING 5,000 WATTS, enough power to run most of the equipment in Chelsea's Municipal Building, this efficient generator is tested each week by Robert "Lefty" Schantz, one of the many volunteers who assist with needed services in time of disaster in the Dexter and Chelsea area. Schantz arrives at Chelsea Police Department headquarters once a week to run the generator housed there for at least 30 minutes, so that it will be ready in case of emergency. Schantz explains there is another generator of equivalent capacity, but portable, at his residence. He reports area fire departments, Chelsea Methodist Home and Chelsea Community Hospital have generators as well. March 26, Schantz reminds, there will be a training session at the UAW Hall on M-52, just south of Chelsea, at which "Severe Weather" and its implications will be discussed. The training is open to all interested resident and will begin at 7 p.m. For further information, phone 475-1795.

Chelsea Swimmers Take Fourth Place In State Competition

Chelsea Bulldog swimmers capped a fine state meet by finishing their undefeated dual-meet season with a fourth-place finish at the Michigan High School Athletic Association's combined Class B-C-D state swimming meet championships.

The meet was held at Michigan State University Friday and Saturday, with the preliminaries on Friday and finals on Saturday.

The Bulldogs scored 84 points, one point behind Alma. Finishing first was defending Class B state champion and Southeastern Conference foe Milan with 139 points. Saginaw Douglas MacArthur was second with 101 points.

The Bulldogs took seven swimmers and one diver to the meet. All seven swimmers placed and were on relays that were voted All-State. All seven had two or more lifetime bests. Five swimmers took part in breaking five school records. There were four second-fastest times in school history.

The meet started Friday with the medley relay team of Craig Miller, Mike Coffman, Scott Pryor and Mike Carignan improving its best time by 3.5 seconds, moving from eighth seed to fifth. They improved another .14 seconds in the finals to finish fourth and earn All-State.

Miller swam the fastest 50-yard backstroke in the school's history improving his time from 27.8 seconds to 26.0. Coffman swam breaststroke and had the second-fastest time ever, improving his time from :29.2 to :28.3. Pryor improved his best time from :25.5 to :24.9, and Carignan improved his best from :23.16 to :22.6. Chelsea coach Larry Reed said, "the medley relay was the biggest gamble and the most important swim in the meet. We had four swimmers who were great kids, but individually not outstanding, combine to swim the second fastest medley relay in the school's history and finish fourth in the state."

In the 200-yard freestyle preliminaries Jeff Nemeth was seeded 10th at 1:50.39. He swam the second-fastest 200 in the school's history and qualified fifth with a time of 1:47.5. In Saturday's finals Nemeth was leading for the first 100 yards but, "he was just too excited, went out too fast" Reed said. Nemeth finished sixth with a time of 1:48.5 to earn All-State.

In the 50-yard freestyle preliminaries Brent Bauer improved from 13th to 10th with the school's second-fastest time ever at :22.41. Don Skiff swam :22.45 to qualify 12th. On Saturday the tables were turned as Skiff broke Steve Ramsey's varsity record with a time of :22.19, which won the consolation heat and earned him seventh place with the fourth-fastest time in the finals. Bauer swam :22.48 to finish 11th.

In diving, Mark Westhoven was slightly off his normally good performance and, as a result of the stern competition, Mark didn't place.

The diving was followed by the 100-yard butterfly. Brent Bauer improved his time from :56.0 to :55.6 to finish 10th and Scott Pryor improved from :56.2 to :56.0 to finish 11th.

In the 100-yard freestyle, Skiff broke his school record for the third and fourth times of the year, becoming the first Chelsea swimmer to break 49.0 seconds. He swam :48.98 in the preliminaries and :48.71 in the finals to finish eighth.

Nemeth and Miller combined to score Chelsea's highest individual total in the 100-yard stroke. Nemeth broke his won school record and finished sixth with a time of :57.18. Miller dropped from 1:00.4 to :58.2, improving from 15th seed to 10th, which tied the second-fastest 100-backstroke in school history.

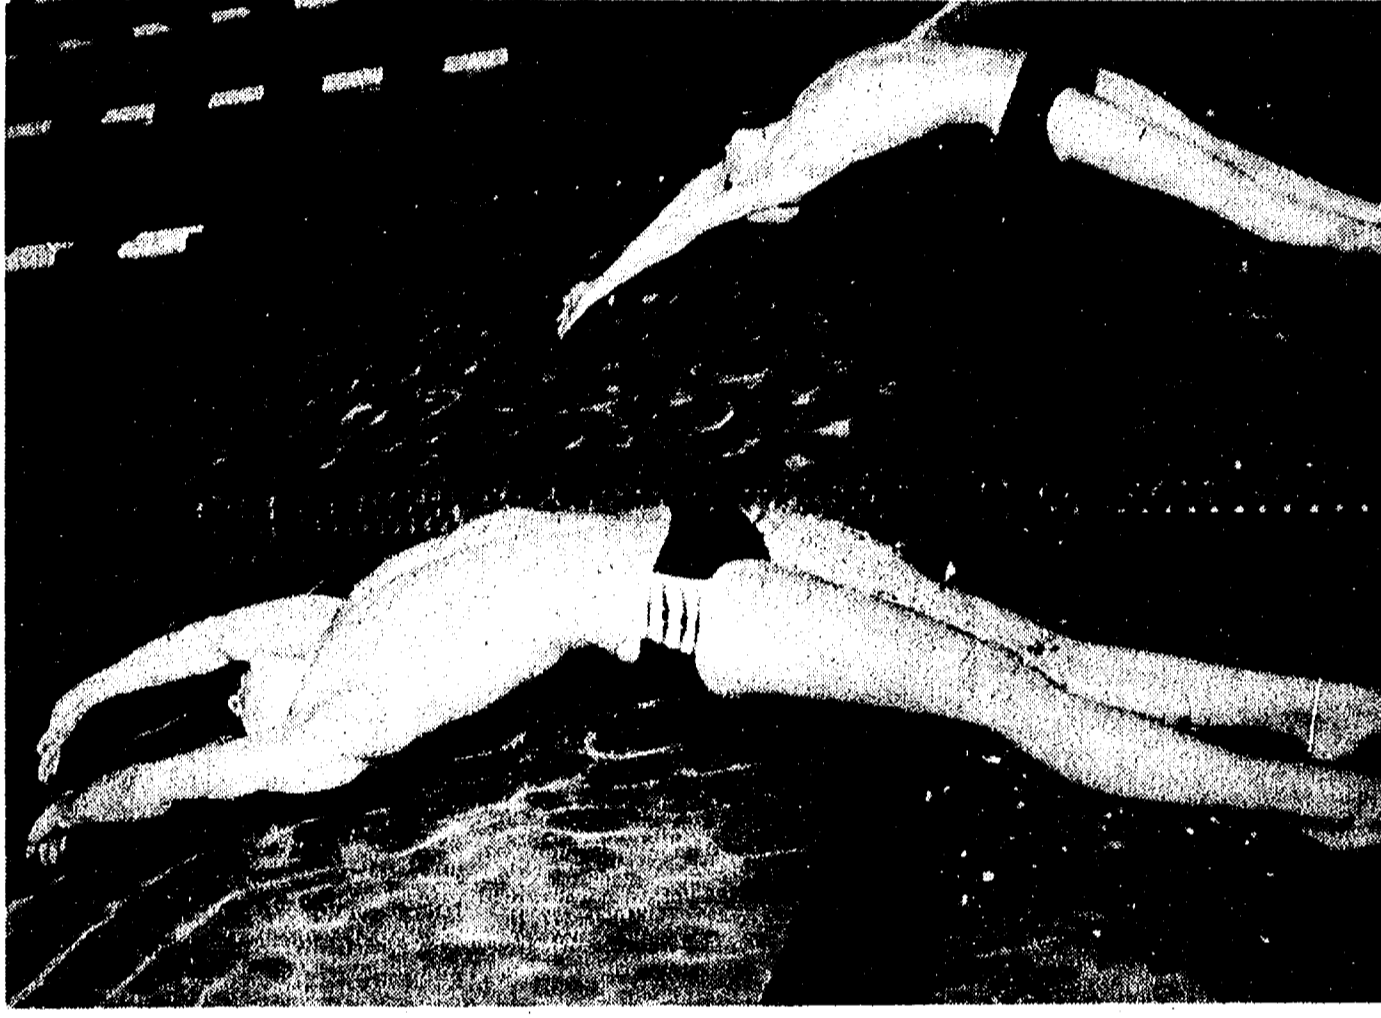

Mike Coffman swam a great race in the 100-yard breaststroke. He improved his time .2 seconds, becoming the second fastest breaststroke in school history. But the tough competition caused him to miss scoring by three places.

The freestyle relay had four lifetime bests from all four swimmers. The team improved its time by 6.4 seconds to break the school record. The relay improvements, including the preliminaries and finals, were as follows: Skiff, previous best :49.26, state time :48.69; Bauer, previous best :50.2, state time :49.2; Pryor, previous best :52.4, state :50.3; and Nemeth, previous best :50.0, state :48.8.

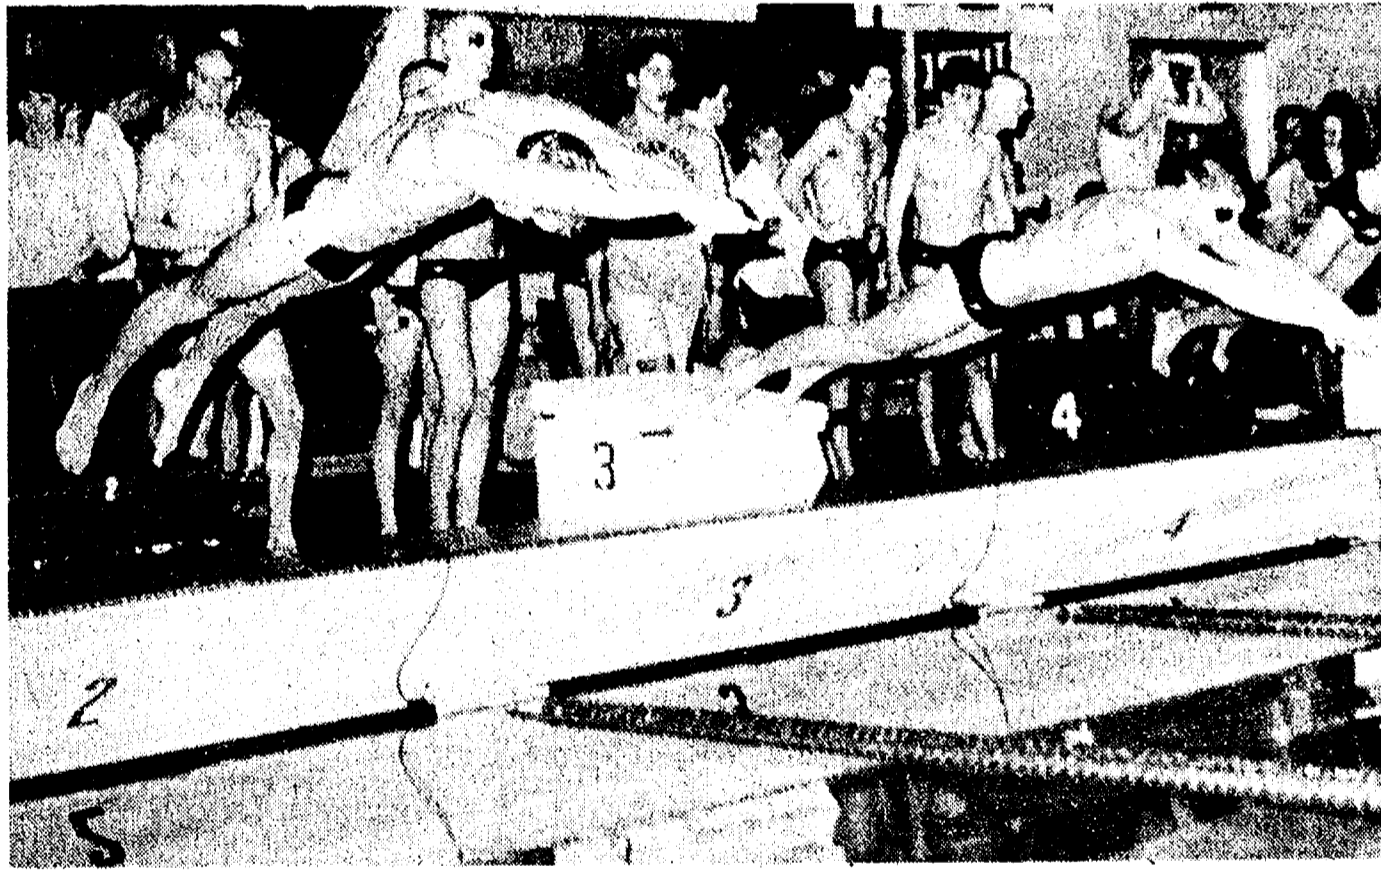

"What a great meet!", Reed said "we had lifetime bests from all our swimmers in all their events and the kids conducted themselves with true class. It was outstanding. And what may have been the best thing of all was the fact that Chelsea had the largest and most supportive crowd in the whole meet. When the last relay was swimming and Chelsea was ahead until the last 50 yards the cheering from our crowd was deafening. The support for Chelsea swimming was extremely gratifying and the team wishes to offer its sincere thanks."

CHELSEA'S SCOTT PRYOR begins the third leg of the 400-yard freestyle relay in which he swam his personal best time of 49.2 seconds. All Bulldog swimmers in the event set personal records.

THEY'RE OFF! Chelsea's Jeff Nemeth (foreground) lunges toward a new school record in the 100-yard backstroke. At the top is Harper Creek's Brian Heeter.

BULLDOG DON SKIFF (lane two) dives toward a personal best time on his leg of the 400-yard freestyle relay. In lane three is Milan's Don Greenleaf.

Titans Upset Saline, Win District Title

Jackson Lumen Christi was the surprise winner of the boys class B district basketball tournament held at Brooklyn Columbia Central High School last week. The Titans advanced to regional play by upsetting favored Southeastern Conference Champion Saline 61-44 in the finals. Saline had beaten the Titans by 26 points during the regular season.

Saline had previously beaten Tecumseh, 55-43 and Chelsea, 58-45 to reach the final game. Saline carried a 19-2 record into the final game with the Titans.

Jackson Lumen Christi was also the eliminator of the Dextera Dreadnaughts from the tournament, squeaking by overtime 69-65, after surrendering a 10-point lead with three minutes remaining in regulation play.

Chelsea Special Olympian Cagers Win at Livonia

On Wednesday, March 6 the Chelsea-Dexter Special Olympic basketball team traveled to Livonia Skills Center. Chelsea won, 88-80.

Standouts for the game were Kenny Smith with 42 points! Jay Curry scored 30 points, Bryan Santure 6, Dave Mytyk 6 and Dawn Stancato 2.

Ken was truly the high point of the game. He hustled and made some tremendous hook shots. Jay played great defense as well—blocking almost 10 of Livonia's shots.

The team feels ready for the big tournament at Eastern Michigan University on March 15. More than 12 teams are expected and Chelsea-Dexter has hopes of coming out on top. Other teams attending will be Beach Middle, St. Louis School, Dearborn, Livonia, Livingston County County Pathways, Pleasant Lake Day Treatment, and Community Mental Health Development Center. Three women's teams will also be competing in their own division. Chelsea-Dexter has both a men's and women's team.

Nancy Cooper is organizing the tournament and is still looking for volunteers. Call the high school for information.

Turkey Trapping Effort Fails, Reports of Sightings Sought

Department of Natural Resources biologists have given up efforts to live-trap wild turkeys in the Waterloo Recreation Area this winter.

Biologists tried to lure the birds into baited areas and capture them in nets. Attempts with both drop-nets and rocket-fired nets were unsuccessful. The wary birds either wouldn't come to the bait or dodged out of the way before the nets came down.

Purpose of the trapping effort was to fit birds with radio transmitters so their activities, including breeding and nesting this spring, could be monitored.

Thirty turkeys imported from Iowa have been released in the Waterloo Area during the past two years. They are believed to have increased to about 50-60, a toe-hold but not yet a secure breeding population.

About half the turkeys in the original releases were equipped with tiny transmitters secured by collars which fit around the bodies of the birds without hampering their movements. By monitoring the beeps from the radios, researchers can get an accurate fix on where the turkeys are and what they probably are doing.

The batteries on those first transmitters have worn out. The DNR hoped to replace them and also put radios on several other birds.

The upcoming nesting season is considered critical to whether the turkey introduction experiment will succeed or not. A doubling of the existing population is hoped for. If it occurs, a breeding base stock will have been established.

Because the trapping effort failed, biologists will rely heavily on reports from citizens. They will be especially interested in brood sightings. Hatching time is late spring.

Persons who see turkeys, young or old, are asked to report their observations to either the Waterloo Recreation Area headquarters, 16345 McClure Rd. (telephone 475-8307) or the Jackson district office (517 784-3188).

However, the public is urged not to go tramping around looking for turkeys, especially during the spring nesting season. Human disturbance has been one of the two principal causes of nesting failure in past springs. The other has been predation by free-roaming dogs.

One Bad Quarter Costs Chelsea Loss In District Tourney

Chelsea's basketball season ended on a sour note with a 58-45 loss to Saline last Wednesday night in a district tournament game played at Brooklyn Columbia Central.

The Bulldogs played three very good quarters of basketball. Unfortunately, they also played one bad period. They were outscored, 14-4, during the second quarter, and that turned out to be the difference.

Otherwise, it was a three-point game that either team could have won.

"We gave it our best shot," Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter said. "Our kids hustled and never quit, and I'm proud of the way they played."

"Saline was hot from the floor. Their shots were dropping, and during the second quarter ours weren't. Except for that eight-minute stretch, we played them even."

"Saline is good, and you can't afford to get behind them. When we beat them earlier, we did it by staying close and coming on strong at the end. That's what we hoped to do in the tournament game, but that bad second quarter killed us."

The first period was played at a fast pace and ended in a 16-16 deadlock. The Hornets pulled out to a 10-point lead at the half, thanks to the 14-4 second quarter, and Chelsea was unable to come back close enough to challenge Saline. "I won the second half, 28-25, to establish its 13-point victory margin."

The Bulldogs narrowed the Hornets' lead to seven early in the fourth quarter, but that was as close as they could get. Saline's all-county forward, Jim Goff, put in four straight baskets to kill Chelsea's hopes.

Saline sank 28 shots from the floor to Chelsea's 15. However, the Bulldogs converted 15 of 23 attempts from the foul line to Saline's two of five. The rebounding and turn-over statistics were about even.

The victory raised Saline's season record to 19-2 going into last Saturday's district tournament final against Jackson Lumen Christi. Chelsea finished the year at 11-10.

Goff led all scorers with 17 points. Pat Condron came off the Saline bench to get 10.

Mark Bareis topped the Chelsea scoring effort with 11, followed by Eric Schaffner with 10 and David Steinhauer nine.

"I expect Saline to go on and win the district," Rosentreter said. "They are a solid team and are playing well. They have played and won four games in seven days, and that is an accomplishment."

In ancient Greece, a boxing match began with two boxers standing face to face, their noses touching.

Mary Boylan Rewrites Cage Record Books at Siena Heights College

Senior Mary Boylan of Chelsea has completed an outstanding college basketball career after playing center three years for the Siena Heights Lady Saints.

An aggressive six-footer, Boylan was a team leader on both offense and defense and posted impressive statistics with 745 career total rebounds and 791 points in three years of collegiate competition. She broke the Siena Heights record for the most rebounds in a single game twice during the past season with 23 against both Kalamazoo College and Concordia College. She served as co-captain during her senior year.

"Mary Boylan is not only a fine team player but a great competitor," declared head women's basketball coach Sr. Jeanne Wiest, OP. "She provided awesome pressure inside for us. Her rebounding game can't be matched by anyone, male or female. Mary led NAIA District 23 in rebounds the past two seasons, beating out her closest rival by 70 rebounds. My only regret is that she is graduating after playing only three years," Wiest said.

Highlighting honors piled up during her years of leading the Lady Saints include being named Most Valuable Player in the 1983 Siena Heights Tip Off Tournament, being named to the All Tournament Team in 1984 and being selected as a National Catholic Academic All-American in 1985. She was also honored as recipient of Siena's Thomas Emmet Award as the outstanding junior female scholar-athlete.

The daughter of Agnes and Keith Boylan, 245 Park St., Chelsea, Mary is an art major at Siena Heights and will present her senior show "Mary F. Boylan, A Showing of Recent Works" on March 28 to April 11 at the college's Little Gallery. Featured will be work in ceramic sculpture.

Tecumseh Takes One from Beach Volleyball Teams

Chelsea traveled last Tuesday, March 5 to find a tough-serving Tecumseh team waiting for them.

After the serving help of Kim Roberts (33), Chris Tallman (34) and the serving aces of Barbara Scriven (22) and Stacey Scott (10) couldn't get the win in the close first game of the match. For the seventh graders, the next squad's servers earned a quick 11 winning points with Stacey Scott (10), Tiffany Moore (21), and Lori Johnson (20) putting on the power and Lisa McGlennen (32) and Tiffany Browning (41) giving defensive assistance.

Serving was the name of the match as Stacey Scott had an excellent all-around night serving as she earned 10 of the points necessary to win games four and five and give Chelsea the match.

Final scores for the seventh grade team were 9-11, 11-3, 1-11, 11-7, and 11-8.

The eighth grade team that had cheered the seventh graders on to victory couldn't get their defense going against Tecumseh. After they lost the first game with only the three serving points earned by Kim Ritter (35), and Jennifer Lewis on the scoreboard the second game slipped away quickly.

Danica Disbro (15) made seven straight serving points in an exciting rally and brought Jennifer Lewis (14) to service to earn the winning point of the third game with the serving assistance of Susie Neff (13), Amy Franklin (24), and Calisa Tucker (31).

Trying to use the momentum gained during the third game Kim Easton (12), Jenni Smith (25) and Mindy Ryan (23) earned three, one and four points, respectively, at the service line but were unsuccessful in their attempt to save the match.

Final scores for the eighth grade team were 3-11, 0-11, 11-7, and 8-11.

Deadline Is March 15 For Big Buck Contest

Early reports indicate that last fall's Michigan deer season was a banner year for trophy bucks, including what is believed to be a new state record for "typical" antlers, taken west of Dexter.

Commemorative Bucks of Michigan announced that the deadline for entries in its annual Michigan Big Bucks Awards Program is Friday, March 15.

One entry that will be made for sure is that of Mark Ritchie, 117 S. Steinhauer Rd., who last Nov. 16 bagged a buck that has been officially scored at 185 6/8. More than four points better than the existing state record.

It is possible, but not likely, that somebody will report an even better rack.

Entries must be measured by an official scorer for the Boone & Crockett Club (firearms) or the Pope & Young Club (archery) and the form sent to Commemorative Bucks of Michigan, 4365 S. Commerce Rd., Union Lake 48085.

There is no charge for having a trophy scored. Commemorative Bucks will provide the name of a near-by official measurer if called at (313) 363-8620.

Minimum qualifying scores are 125 for typical and 150 for non-typical racks taken by firearm hunters, 100 and 125 for archery trophies. All trophies meeting those minimums will be recognized with a certificate.

The top racks taken in 1983 measured out at 174 2/8 (typical) and 204 1/8 (non-typical). Both came from southern Michigan, where deer grow bigger bodies and heavier antlers because of abundant year-around food and relatively little winter stress.

Commemorative Bucks also recognizes trophy black bears (measured by skull size) and elk (measured by antlers). Minimum score for bears is 18 points, for elk 240.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

(Second in a series)

Time was, before cardboard technology took over, that products came packaged in boxes made out of wood, often well manufactured from good-quality lumber and therefore sturdy.

Fruits and vegetables were shipped in wooden crates and boxes of assorted shapes and sizes. If you sorted through the empties put out the back doors of grocery stores and produce markets, you could almost always find something of the right shape and size to suit whatever second-hand carrying purpose you had in mind.

The best boxes of all were those used by ammunition manufacturers to ship shotgun shells. They held 24 boxes of shells and must have been awfully heavy to lift when packed with their original contents. Even a single box of shotgun shells can get to be a load if you carry it all day in your hunting vest or coat.

I never lifted a full case of shells, simply because I never had enough money to buy that many in one bunch, but did have some affluent friends who bought shotgun ammo by the case. From them I obtained a couple of empty shell crates, and they turned out to be mighty useful in my outdoor life.

They were about the right size to handle easily when packed with stuff that doesn't weigh as much per cubic inch as shotgun shells. They had hand-sized slots cut into the ends to facilitate carrying. Placed on end, they could do double-duty as temporary seats in a duck blind, or next to an ice fishing hole. They could serve as camp stools if you didn't have anything better.

By the time I wore out those two shell crates, shotgun ammunition was being shipped in cardboard boxes, and replacements for the crates were not available. Nor were any other second-hand wood containers that would do what I wanted.

That's when I decided to make my own, even though I am about as unhandy with tools as anybody around. I'm left-handed and have the proverbial 10 thumbs. Unless you are among the four percent of the population born left-handed, you probably have never noticed that virtually all tools are made to be used by right-handers. For those of us in the minority, tools work more or less backwards, and in some instances don't work at all.

The point is, if I can make something, anybody in this world can.

My first effort was a replacement for the last shell crate. I built it more than 20 years ago. It is still substantially as good as new and will undoubtedly out-live me. I made it out of redwood, which is light in weight in proportion to its strength and is also rot-resistant, using odds and ends salvaged out of a lumber-yard scrap bin.

A friend who owned a table saw cut the pieces to size. I assembled them with screws after giving the lumber a good slushing of wood preservative. Carrying handles are short lengths of nylon rope threaded through holes drilled in the upper ends of the box and then securely knotted so they can't pull out (or at least never have). A couple of coats of dull marine varnish provided the finishing touch. (Gloss varnish will spook ducks if the sun reflects off it.)

That box was made to carry the many items of small gear that I take along on a duck hunting trip—binoculars, camera, calls, knife and shears, extra shells, coffee jug, lunch, spare cord and weights for re-anchoring decoys just in case one breaks away, rubber-coated gloves, boot repair kit, and miscellaneous other little things that can sometimes make the difference between a good outing and a bad one.

Fully packed, the box weighs about 20 pounds, easy enough to carry if you don't have to take it too far. It has proved useful also for ice fishing and camping, because it's the right size to handle and can be sat on safely. A foam cushion which packs into the bottom of the box makes the sitting more comfortable.

The temptation in designing containers for transporting outdoor equipment is to make them too big. I've built a couple that, when loaded, couldn't be picked up without risking a hernia or a ruptured spinal disc. Big boxes don't pack as well into tight corners as smaller ones do, and that's important when you have a large load to squeeze into limited space.

Once I just plain forgot to measure the depth of the car trunk before constructing a container intended to carry camp kitchen gear, and found out it wouldn't fit unless I wanted to drive with the trunk lid open. The box was too tall by just a hair, but that fraction of an inch made the difference between usable and not.

As suggested last week, this is a good time of year to think about needs for containers to hold outdoor recreation gear, and do something to meet them. A few dollars and a few hours spent constructing containers which suit your particular requirements will pay off in added enjoyment when the weather becomes fit to go outside and do something.

Footnote: Over the years I have bought a dozen fishing tackle boxes, and haven't found the right one yet. All have been either too small to hold what I wanted to put in them, or too big to be carried conveniently. My "solution" has been to use two boxes. That works unless you forget what is in which, and leave the wrong one at home, which I've done more than once.

A SMILE is assumed to be covered by the warm wool scarf over Candice Crombey's face as she and her sledding partner, Laura Borden relax a few short minutes at the bottom of the hill. Adults on the farm field trip taken by the North Lake Co-op Preschool children described the snowy slide as "wild," just the kind a child would delight in. The group welcomed hot chocolate and donuts following the icy excitement.

MUTUAL INTEREST seems expressed between children from the North Lake Co-op Preschool and a steer during a farm field trip taken by the group Thursday, Feb. 21. The excursion afforded the youngsters a closer look at the workings of a dairy farm in Munith followed by a slide down the hill also located at the farm. Among the 24 children attending were the three pictured from front to back, Candice Crombey, Rachel Bowers, and Jason Zatorch.

Grass Lake Community Choir Presents Cantata

1985 marks the sixth year of the annual Grass Lake Community Cantata. The cantata, "How Great Thou Art," by David T. Clydesdale, will be presented Palm Sunday week-end. The public's response to this musical inspiration necessitates two performances to be held at the Grass Lake United Methodist church: Saturday, March 30 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, March 31 at 3 p.m.

The community choir is comprised of members of the Grass Lake area churches, members of the Grass Lake school's junior and senior high choirs, and area residents who love the opportunity of participating in a mass choir.

The choir has benefited greatly from the outstanding teaching and conducting skills of director Suzie Macfarlane. Suzie is a Michigan State graduate and has taught for 17 years, 15 of which have been in Grass Lake. She has taught music for seven and one-half years: general music in grades 1 through 6; the new sixth grade choir; and the junior and senior high choirs. Next fall, she will add a fifth grade choir to her schedule. She has remarked that "my hobby is my life as well as my work," and the community choir is a beneficiary of her talents.

Behind the scenes, faithfully and skillfully co-ordinating each cantata, is Marlene Clark. This major undertaking is done in a gracious manner, creating an atmosphere conducive to praising our Lord.

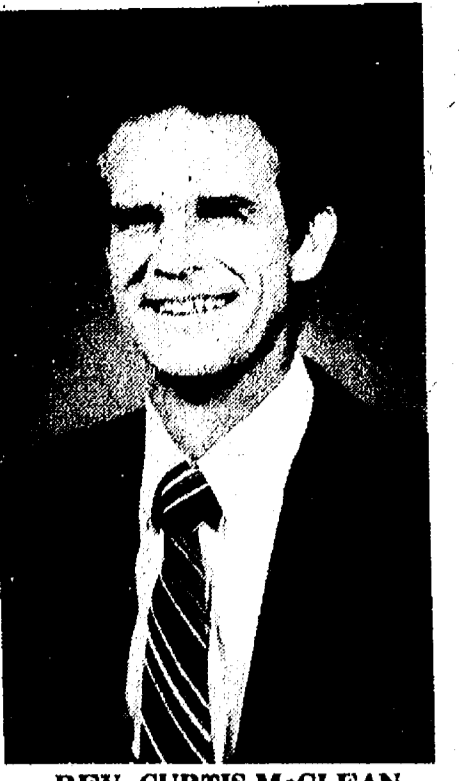

The community cantata has evolved to the point where it is now sponsored by the Grass Lake Ministerial Association. The association will be taping each performance, and will be selling the tapes to those who would desire a copy. The proceeds will help to fund the cantata. A free-

Famed Choral Group Coming to Zion Lutheran

First Light is the high school touring-performing choir from Prince of Peace Lutheran church, in Burnsville, Minn. The 150-plus member group is performing a new musical entitled, "Heartstrings" written by their directors, Handt Hanson and Paul Murakami. First Light has, over the past seven years, toured all over the continental United States, sharing their joyful presentation of music, comedy and drama. "Heartstrings" incorporates good music together with a timeless message. "Heartstrings" will remind us of all the ties that keep pulling us back; when we feel lonely, when we drift away, when we need a friend.

First Light will be performing the new musical "Heartstrings" at Zion Lutheran church, Ann Arbor, on April 4.

A free will offering will be received. Everyone is welcome.

Revival Services Slated at Christian Fellowship Church

He has pastored churches in three cities in Michigan, and toured with a family singing group named the McClean family singers. Presently he is a counselor, teacher and supervisor at the Teen Challenge facilities in Muskegon.

Teen Challenge is the ministry founded by David Wilkerson in the ghettos of New York City.

There will be special prayer for the sick, and special singing in each service.

Dear Members, Friends and Future Members:
Historical work is challenging; it bridges the generation gap. Chelsea history is rich and alive. We need new members to share it and preserve it.

The Chelsea Area Historical Society is committed to accelerating their activities in 1985-86 with the promise of acquiring use of the old train depot. A museum is becoming a reality!

At the Chelsea 1984 Sesquicentennial Parade. CAHC was honored with first place for our float featuring a scale replica of the depot and clock tower. Several members worked during this celebration many hours in the "General Store." Pictures and valuable data on our past Village Presidents were researched, compiled and framed. The beginnings of a Chelsea "Hall of Fame" recognizing outstanding Chelseaites was on display.

For a 1985 fund-raiser, members are finishing a second quilt—this one is hand-stitched in the "Sky Rocket" pattern. A fall home tour is in the planning stages.

Gradually we are working jointly with other Chelsea and area organizations such as the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce to complete projects that require resources and community co-operation.

Join us, or renew your membership. Visitors are welcome at all meetings which include informative programs. A recent topic from the Chelsea Preservation Project was "Stories of Chelsea."

We meet in the Crippen House, located on the Methodist Home grounds, the second Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. See the community calendar section of The Chelsea Standard for current notices.

Sincerely,
Kathleen J. Clark

GIRL SCOUT COOKIE SALE: Displaying a persuasive selling style are Margie and Eull Eddy of Chelsea Troop No. 82 pictured at Polly's Market Friday, March 8. Seven varieties of Girl Scout cookies at $1.75 per box added up to a healthy fund for support of the Huron Valley Council's summer camp program for scouts in a four-county area.

SEEMINGLY UNTEMPTED by the sugary treats, Skeets and Lily Worden help unload cases of Girl Scout cookies delivered in Chelsea on Thursday. It was a laborious job loading nearly 1,000 cases of cookies into waiting troop leader's cars. Lemon pastry cremes were added to the variety this year bringing the consumer's choice to seven.

Girl Scout Week Being Observed

The popular image of a typical Girl Scout of just a generation ago would be only a slight resemblance to the Girl Scout of 1985. Today's Girl Scouts are mastering computer technology, learning about the environment and the ecological balance, exploring the universe by telescope and getting on-the-job training through Girl Scouting's career education projects.

The Girl Scout program of the 1980's is rich and full but girls will still be girls so the accent is still on girl-sized fun.

The theme for Girl Scout Week this year, March 10-16, is "The Best Part's the Fun." "Fun is the lure that continues to bring thousands of girls in Washtenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and northern Monroe counties into Girl Scouting's worlds of new discoveries, expanded personal horizons, community service and happy friendships," said Pat

Levos, council president.

The value-centered Girl Scout program reinforces the parenting process by encouraging and assisting girls to become self-reliant, independent and self-confident. "All activities are carried out with support and supervision of caring adults," said Mrs. Levos.

A special fun Girl Scout Week promotion will be taking place at all hospitals in and around the council. All baby girls born between March 10 and 17 will be presented a special invitation to join Daisy Girl Scouts when they are five years old. In addition to the invitation, each baby girl will receive a newborn undershirt which says, "Future Girl Scout." Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts will be presenting the shirts to the babies and their moms at six of the 11 participating hospitals.

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council is a United Way Agency.

DEATHS

Erle L. Stewart

Dearborn
(Formerly of Ann Arbor)
Erle L. Stewart, 71, husband of Ruth Boyce Stewart, died suddenly Sunday, March 3 in Florida.

He attended the University of Indiana, Western Michigan University and graduated from University of Michigan, where he was a member of the marching band.

Mr. Stewart served as an officer in the China-India-Burma theatre in WWII and was awarded a Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster for meritorious service. He remained in the Army Reserve and retired as a lieutenant-colonel in 1955.

He worked for Ford Motor Co. as a product problem analyst and retired in 1977 after 25 years of service. Mr. Stewart was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Dearborn where he served as a deacon and a choir member. Prior to moving to Dearborn, he resided in Ann Arbor for 30 years where he was an active member of the First Methodist church.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Stewart is survived by a daughter Lynne of Ann Arbor; two brothers, Maurice of Port Charlotte, Fla., and Frederic of Clarkston; one sister, Shirley Bush of Benton Harbor; and several nieces and nephews.

Wealth of Health Day Slated at High School

Students at Chelsea High school will be taking part in Wealth of Health Day Friday, March 15 during the first three regular class hours.

An enthusiastic Mary Ellen Miller, hospital co-ordinator of the event, remarked, "We're calling it our 'first annual,' if all goes off well we'd like to continue every year."

The pilot program, sponsored by the Community Health Education Committee and the Washtenaw County Health Department was held last year at Whitmore Lake High school for a much smaller student body.

In place of the regularly attended classes during the first three school periods, students register for health related workshops conducted by volunteers from numerous fields.

Miller was surprised by the unexpected popularity of certain sessions. Choices reflected a sophisticated and practical trend among students. All workshops are restricted to regular classroom size to facilitate easy discussion and information exchange, and include stress management, weight loss and control, sports injuries, teen-age depression and suicide, headaches, pre-natal and infant care, the importance of seatbelts, CPR certification and drinking and driving.

Enthusiasm expressed by teachers has boosted student interest, Miller feels. Qualified volunteer instructors gladly accepted invitations or freely extended their services to the project. The time and energy of Chelsea Community Hospital nurse, Mary Ellen Miller, was just one generous gesture made in support of the educational event.

POETRY CONTEST WINNERS: Roses are red, violets are blue, poetry contest winners from Chelsea are two. A January and February poetry-writing contest sponsored by Jacobson's of Ann Arbor resulted in first-place honors for Julie Tobias and fourth place for David Oesterle. The two talented writers are in seventh grade at Beach Middle school.

Winners in Poetry Contest

Of the five winning places awarded in a poetry writing contest sponsored by Jacobson's in Ann Arbor, Chelsea Beach school students, Julie Tobias and David Oesterle took first and fourth places, respectively.

Announcement of the contest was printed in this year's first edition of "Collage," a newsletter published by Jacobson's specifically for teen-agers. The newsletter carries fashion news, recipes, beauty tips and a calendar of events scheduled to take place at the store's teen shop. A future release will also include the poems written by each of the five contest winners.

Jean Alfred, a Beach school teacher, discovered the contest announcement in a copy of the newsletter sent to her daughter and seized the opportunity for creative writing by her seventh grade students.

Her idea paid off when two Chelsea contestants placed in the competition. Julie Tobias won the first place prize of a $30 gift certificate for her poem, "On Being Late for School" and David Oesterle won the fourth place $15 gift certificate for his poetry entry, "Hercules."

Julie is the daughter of Judy Tobias, 18310 Cavanaugh Lake Rd., and David is the son of Summer and JoAnn Oesterle, 564 Chandler.

ON BEING LATE FOR SCHOOL

Dear Principal,
Something awful happened
That made me late for school.
I met this great big dinosaur.
I thought I saw him drool!
He said to me real friendly like,
"Climb on my back. We'll take a hike."

"Fat chance!" I thought,
"No way! Not me!"
But in his eyes
There was a plea,
Followed by a hungry slurp,
That I'd mistaken for a burp.
Once on his back,
I wanted down!
But he stomped through
Our little town,
And took me to his resting place,
(Which looked a lot like outer space!)

That big guy grabbed me
Quick as a wink,
And crammed me down.
His kitchen sink!

What could I do
But scream and yell?
And down that drain
I fell and fell!
And seeing that the end was near
I yelled a loud projected cheer!
Now out the bottom I sure shot,
And landed in a cooking pot!
I scrambled out as best I could,
And headed back the way I should.
Oh! How I ran all the way back!
(For running fast, I have a knack.)
I could have stayed home with the flu,
But instead I came to you.
I hope this doesn't seal my fate,
But this is why for school I'm late.

—Julie Tobias.

HERCULES

Hercules was strong they say,
The mightiest of his day.
Hera would shout,
"Get rid of the lout!"
But he would escape his own way.

—David Oesterle.

'Petal Pushers' Donate $300 for Planting Trees

Spring is coming, and the Civic Foundation of Chelsea is ready for some gardening, thanks to a group of women who call themselves "The Petal Pushers." They came together to celebrate the sesquicentennial.

They met at the Woodshed one morning a week for breakfast and decided they wanted to do something to beautify Chelsea's downtown area. They sold flowers on the street corners and raised $300, which was given to the Civic Foundation. They earmarked this money for trees in the downtown area.

The Civic Foundation has the $300 in its treasury, and the Petal Pushers' objective will be met, come spring.

Chelsea Hospital To Observe Poison Prevention Week

Chelsea Community Hospital will observe National Poison Prevention Week March 18-22. This year's theme is "Protect Your Children and Grandchildren from Poisoning." This means that adults must always be watchful when household chemicals or drugs are being used. Many accidents happen when adults are using a product but are distracted (by the telephone or the doorbell) for a few minutes. Children act fast, and adults must make sure that household chemicals and drugs are kept away from children at all times. Some tips to help "poison proof" your home are:

1. Keep household products and medicines out of the reach of children and locked up when not in use.
 2. When you use household products or medicines, never let them out of your sight, not even for a minute.
 3. Store all medicines separately from household products.
 4. Keep items in their original containers.
 5. Leave original labels on all products, and read the label before using.
 6. Always leave the light on when giving or taking medicines.
 7. Avoid taking medicines in front of children since youngsters often try to imitate grown-ups.
 8. Refer to medicine as "medicine," not "candy."
 9. Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically, and safely dispose of unneeded medicines.
 10. Use safety packaging properly by closing the container securely after use.
- Hospital pharmacists and technicians will visit kindergartners and pre-schoolers in Chelsea and Dexter schools and in the hospital's Children's Center this week to show a film, "Sniffy Escapes Poisoning," and to play a game with the children to teach them the difference between edible foods and potentially toxic substances found in the home.
- Janet Alford, district elementary school art teacher will be teaching students in grades 1-5 about poison prevention and the students will be making posters to be judged by hospital pharmacy personnel on March 11. The five winning posters, one from each grade, will be displayed during poison prevention week at Chelsea McDonald's. Each winner receives a free breakfast or dinner for themselves and their families and a blue ribbon.

Nine runners-up from each class will receive McDonald's coupons. Their posters will be displayed at the hospital.

Free ipecac syrup, which is used to induce vomiting in the event of a poisoning, will be given to all hospital employees and to others who ask for it. The pharmacy will display educational materials outside the hospital dining room such as pamphlets, telephone stickers with emergency numbers and plants that could be poisonous.
