Paul and Dan Ellenwood. All those attending the outdoor demonstration during the afternoon session were invited to try operating the Hurst tool.

Agriculture Safety Seminar Draws Many Eager Persons

Chelsea Fairgrounds was crowded with people eager to learn ways to prevent farm accidents as well as methods of effecting rescues of victims involving farm machinery accidents, Saturday, April 13, at the day long program.

Members of the Grass Roots Gang Farm Bureau Group hosted the Saturday program, with many area businesses and individuals assisting in sponsoring the event. The training seminar was open to farmers, emergency medical training personnel and fire and law enforcement officers, as well as other interested people.

Doing a lot of work in setting up the program, and a lot more work on the day of the Farm Accident Rescue Training were Jerry and Sue Huehl, Dennis and Carol Huehl, Ted and Linda Hinderer, and Rod and Kathy Powers. More of those who helped to make the event a success with their work were Dan and Kathy Grau, Loren and LuAnn Heller, Bruce and Louise Breuninger, and Doug and Robin Welshans. Trent and Barb Satterthwaite, Jean and Jerry Kuhl, Jim and Melody Bristle, and Jeanne and Dennis Trinkle added their work to the remainder of the group's to make it a banner day for the Grass Roots Gang.

During the morning session, the instructors presented a host of information, and gave booklets to those attending the training. Participants agreed it was well worth the time spent, and commented it was a shame there couldn't be more such worthwhile programs as farm accidents claim a goodly number of victims each year, whether it be an injury or a fatality.

The Grass Roots Gang brought Birger Anderson from Mason to instruct the course at the fairgrounds. Anderson is a first lieutenant with the Mason Fire Department as well as serving as director of student services at Mason High school and instructor of the auto extrication class at Lansing Community College.

"My co-instructor was originally a student at Mason High and we make a fine, congenial team," explained Anderson as he introduced Roger Garner, also a member of the Mason Fire Department. Garner, in addition, serves as the co-ordinator of a hazardous materials seminar, working out of the Kellogg Center through community education services at Michigan State University.

Handouts on Fire Department Procedures for Agricultural Chemical Fires were distributed to those in attendance, and forms on which information on accidental incidents might be recorded so that valuable facts would not be overlooked. These forms were provided by Chemtrec.

Poison control information was part of the discussion by those assembled at the fairgrounds building, and personal protective equipment including rubber or neoprene gloves, boots, turn-outs

Gasoline Prices Rise Rapidly After Drop During Late Winter

Gasoline prices are rising rapidly again, advancing a cent or two a week after hitting a late-winter low which saw self-serve regular gas dip below a dollar a gallon and 87-octane lead-free drop under $1.10.

Pump prices posted yesterday in Chelsea ranged upward from $1.139 for regular and $1.219 for unleaded. Most were at $1.159 and $1.239. So-called super lead-free, a premium gasoline, was priced at eight cents more than ordinary lead-free.

If there was any consistency, it was the eight-cent mark-up from regular to unleaded to super unleaded, a differential that is being maintained even though the manufacturing costs of all three grades are about the same.

Gasoline prices in Dexter were generally a couple of cents lower than in Chelsea. Dexter dealers tend to stick close to prices charged in Ann Arbor.

"I can't tell you why the price is going up," one Chelsea dealer said. "All I know is that my supplier is charging me a penny or two more a gallon every week, and I'm passing it on to my customers in order to maintain my margin. Believe me, I'm not getting rich."

"What's strange is that the price doesn't seem to have anything to do with supply and demand. I can buy all the gasoline I can sell, and my sales don't change much regardless of what I charge. People pay whatever they have to. They are going to drive regardless of what it costs. Maybe that tells you something."

"There isn't any shortage of gas. I have a feeling that the suppliers are deliberately raising their prices in order to make more money, but that's only one man's opinion."

"Definitely, there is some jockeying going on among dealers. Somebody cuts his price a cent and steals some business from the guy across the street, but he can't keep it up because he's losing money, and he has to go back to the old price. Our operating costs are all about the same. There aren't any short-cuts. That's why all the stations in the same block post the same prices."

One thing that may be changing is the difference between self-serve and full-serve, which is on the order of 20-cents a gallon in price.

"We get very few full-serve customers any more," an Ann Arbor gasoline dealer said. "We almost might as well take out our full-serve pumps or change them over to self-serve. I keep them as a courtesy to a few long-time customers who have the money to pay for special attention and don't mind doing it whatever the cost."

"Most people have learned how to pump their own gas, check their own oil and add a quart if they need it, clean their windshields, and put air in their tires. Full-serve customers want a little more than that. They want us to look at the battery, check power steering and power brake fluid levels, and inspect belts and hoses, just good preventive maintenance so they won't have trouble down the road. They probably save money in the long run, but you can't sell most people on that idea. All they look at is the higher cost of full-serve, and they decide to go the cheaper way."

"What I am doing is sending my employees out on the driveway to ask self-serve customers if they would like a quick look under the hood. I sell a few quarts of oil and some other things that way. My workers might as well be doing that as sitting inside waiting for full-serve customers who don't show up."

Two Injured In Collision On Old US-12

Two Chelsea girls were injured in a two-car automobile accident at Old US-12 and Silver Fox Dr. half a mile west of the village on Friday, April 12.

Taken to Chelsea Community Hospital by Huron Valley Ambulance were Katrina A. Heaton, 16, of 14201 Hayrake Hollow and Audra A. McClear, 16, of 14244 Eisenbeiser Dr.

The sheriff's department report said that a car driven by Heaton collided with a vehicle operated by Jean-Marc Isaz, 38, of 17776 Sylvan Lane. He was not injured.

Investigating deputies reported that the Isaz car was east-bound on Old US-12 when the Heaton vehicle backed out of a driveway. The Heaton car was making a left turn onto Silver Fox Dr., when the two collided. Both left the road and went into a ditch.

Heaton was admitted to the hospital with "incapacitating" injuries. McClear, a passenger in the Heaton car, was treated for injuries described as "not incapacitating."

MATERIALS OFFERED: John Mitchell (right) of Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home and Sherill Proctor, media specialist at Chelsea High school, display literature on teen suicide, a big and growing problem. A special program will be presented on April 30 at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Program Offered To Study Problems of Teen Suicides

"Suicide in Youth and What Can You Do About It?" will be the topic at a program to be presented at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 30, at Chelsea Community Hospital, sponsored by the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home in co-operation with the hospital.

A film titled "Did Jenny Have to Die?" will be shown. The film communicates to both teen-agers and adults about the youth suicide problem.

Suicide is the No. 2 killer among teen-agers, accounting for at least 5,000 deaths a year. The real number may be two or three times that high.

Authorities agree that many thousands of automobile and other "accidents" involving teen-agers may be suicides.

Mitchell said if projections hold true, close to one half a million teen-agers will try to kill themselves during the next 12 months.

What is causing this epidemic, and what can be done about it? Those are questions the program will attempt to answer.

Joining John Mitchell in the presentation will be Jay Callahan, supervisor of psychiatric emergency services at the University of Michigan Hospital. Callahan has a master's degree in special work and psychology, and is the leader of the Survivors of Suicide group of Ann Arbor.

The program is free and open to all ages of the community. Persons wishing to attend are asked to call the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, 475-1444. Literature is available at the funeral home. The film can be shown to any group desiring it.

The appointment of Chelsea's new Fire Chief, Paul "Bud" Hanked, was approved by the Chelsea Village Council. He had been elected by active members of the Chelsea Fire Department the previous month upon notification of Jim Gaken's retirement. Bud Hanked joined the department in November 1956 following his acceptance by other members of the department. He served in various capacities within the volunteer department ranging from secretary-treasurer, second lieutenant, and assistant fire chief. Hanked is employed as an assembler at Dana Corp., where he has worked since 1963.

Ford Motor Co. records indicated that Palmer Motor Sales began April 15, 1912. Therefore, as a Ford franchise, Palmer Motor Sales celebrated its 69th birthday and was the oldest Ford dealership in Michigan as well as one of the oldest in the United States. In addition to selling Ford Motor products, the business offered buyers the Studebaker between 1915 and 1917 and the Dodge car between 1915 and 1916.

Patricia Hepburn, a former Chelseaite living in Ann Arbor, joined a group of four friends of the Society for Epidemiology and Volunteer Assistance (SEVA) Foundation in hopes of raising $250,000 for the Nepal Blindness Program. The group planned to walk 3,000 miles from Canada to Mexico, taking five months to complete their course across the backbone of the Rocky Mountains. The trek was designed to capture the attention of the American public and to direct it to the problem of disease-caused Nepalese blindness. Sponsorship pledges would finance the walk with left over funds donated to SEVA Foundation.

J. L. Fitzsimmons, a 1980 graduate of Chelsea High school, took top honors and won a trip to Toronto following his magical feats during a Gong Show presentation at Aura Inn, Manchester. In a field of six contestants, the crowded Aura Inn audience was dazzled by Fitzsimmons' magic show which included audience participation and a grand finale, escaping from a straight jacket.

Easter Egg Hunt winners were determined following the races in each division. Presented with gift certificates by the Easter Bunny, they included, Pam Brown, Frankie Waller, Bobby Shears, Lisa Dorr, Sandy Young, and Kirk Stubbs. Jaycee chairmen of the event were Mitchell Zink and Dick Cail.

Youths from Waterloo United Methodist church participated in a massive clean-up campaign of the area. Pictured in the act of picking up unsightly debris were David Clouse and Donnie Walz. The young people reported that most of the litter found along the roadsides was pre-return law beer cans and bottles of all kinds.

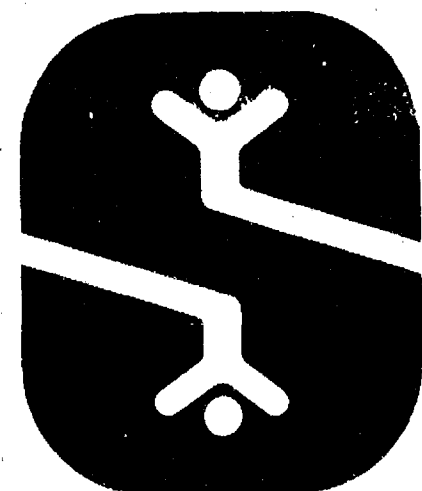

The advent of warm, dry weather kept the fire department busy fighting one grass fire after another over Easter weekend. Chief Gaken commented that most of the fire calls resulted in minor fires, and that one or two trucks were dispatched at each call. In all cases, fires were extinguished within 15 minutes.

No one reported seeing a funnel, but it certainly was a big wind that blew through the area (Continued on page four)

Student Aid Plan Could Cut Allocations to Colleges
A student financial aid package that would double Governor James Blanchard's proposed aid increase while trimming his proposed allocation to the institutions themselves has been unveiled by House Speaker Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) and other Democratic representatives.

The 10-bill package, Owen said, is a re-ordering of priorities to help students whose ability to attend college has been hurt by the state's high tuition and to counter threatened budget cuts by President Reagan.

The Democratic plan would increase student financial aid in 1985-86 by $30 million, compared to Blanchard's proposed $15.3 million increase to $31.8 million. The package, Owen said, would assist a total of 25,000 students.

But Representative Lynn Jondahl (D-East Lansing), one of the sponsors of the bills in the package, said that the aid would be trying to "catch up" to the 60,000 to 70,000 students now eligible for financial aid that will be cut off by the federal budget proposals.

The package would take the funds for student aid proposed by Blanchard and add some $14 million which will be taken by an across-the-board cut of the Governor's recommended increases to the state's public colleges.

That cut should be less than .25 percent of the proposed increase, Owen said.

He noted he had not discussed the plan with the state's university presidents and anticipated they would oppose the cut of their proposals. "Anytime you talk about restricting their flexibility they're not supportive of it," he said.

Owen dismissed suggestions that cutting the universities' increases might force them to raise tuition. His package includes an additional $2.7 million for tuition fees as developed last year, he said.

The speaker noted the package is an effort to "emphasize that tuition rates are beyond the means of the average student," and show the colleges and universities that the Legislature considers student aid a higher priority than it has been given by those institutions.

The package would create a new Michigan educational opportunity grants program, for $10 million, which provide grants based on need for use by full-or part-time jobs for students. The grants would be distributed by colleges after other funds were first used.

The legislation also creates a work/study program, with $5 million, to provide part-time jobs for students. Those jobs would have to pay at least minimum wage and the state funds would finance up to 80 percent of the wages for jobs in non-profit firms and up to 50 percent of the wages for jobs in profit-making businesses.

Also created would be a $4 million program to help adults attending universities.

The package also endorses Blanchard's proposed $8.2 million increase in the Michigan Competitive Scholarship Program and creates a financial aid hotline and outreach program for $100,000 to help students find out about available financial aid packages.

Family Farm Authority Provided $5 Million in Loans in 1984

The Michigan Family Farm Development authority made low-interest loans totalling more than $5 million in 1984 to qualified beginning farmers through the authority's bond program, Authority Executive Director Donald J. Schaner reported.

The loans are made to beginning farmers with net worth of less than $250,000, as long as they can qualify by having farming experience, appropriate background and sufficient training.

Schaner said that of the money loaned in 1984, nearly three-fourths was used for improvement and/or purchase of agricultural land. The remaining 26 percent helped with the purchase of machinery and equipment.

Under the program, qualifying farmers may borrow up to $250,000 for land and improvements and $125,000 for depreciable property, such as machinery and equipment.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Folks don't have bad habits no more, they have diseases. Bug Hookum told the fellers at the country Saturday night that he had saw where fat has joined the list what ails us. Bug, that eats like a hog and stays skinny as a rail, looked around an allowed he was worried that this new one is catching.

Bug had saw where the National Institutes of Health in Washington said that millions of Americans was suffering obesity, and that this disease had to be took ever bit as serious as others that git a heap more attention and reserch. The warning went on to say overeating had to be looked at like overdrinking, overgambing, oversmoking and all the other overs. Folks that can't stop eating are as sick as them that can't stop doping, was Bug's words.

Zeke Grubb was first to bounce back from that jab about fat being catching. Zeke quit growing out. He said Bug's report was good news because he had been blaming himself fer eating more and moving less these past 40 year. It's a relief, Zeke allowed, to know he's been sick all this time when he thought he was healthy as a heavy horse. People don't git sick on purpose, Zeke went on, so fer sure his fat ain't his fault.

Actual, Zeke declared, the fat disease must run in his family the way the bleeding disease use to run in the bluebloods that bred with one another cause nobody else was good enough fer em. Zeke said his pa and his pa's pa were bound to of had terminal fat because both of em were overwait the day they died. Zeke said he knew fer a solid fact that his pa died a slow, enjoyable death, fer no man ever lived to eat like his pa, and no woman ever got more pleasure out of feeding a man than his ma.

While Zeke was talking Bug had washed down a twinpack of Twinkies with a can of pop, and when Zeke let up to catch a bite the fellers got to comparing their notes on food. Ed Doolittle reported where the U. S. Department of Agriculture told a Colorado company it had to take the "Rocky" out of Rocky Mountain Oysters because they were growed and processed in Indiana. Ed said he backed the Colorado legislature that is bucking the USDA ruling on discrimination grounds. If the order is to perfect "geographic integrity," like USDA says, Ed wanted to know what it expected to do with such as Oklahoma cucumbers, Kentucky Fried Chickens, German chocolate cake and Brussels sprouts.

Clem Webster come with the good news. Clem said he was a recovering chocoholic that might fall off the wagon on account of word out of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Reserchers there are saying that chocolate is good fer you! Clem reported. They have found this wonderful stuff fights tooth decay with a special natural chemic. Clem allowed that he had lost the final battle in the tooth decay war some years back, but he was thinking of going back to heavy doses of chocolate fer his gums sake.

When Bug got the floor he reported where Spam lovers had put on a Spam can art show in Providence, R. I. recent, and where the Carnation Co. has come up with a birth control dog food. Bug said the news in this food item was that if the Spam people was to use the Carnation idea they probable could cut the world's population explosion to a whimper in one generation.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Learn To Take Your Own Blood Pressure

A blood pressure clinic will be sponsored by the University of Michigan Medical Center Family Practice Center at Chelsea. The clinic will teach people to take their own blood pressure. The session will be held from 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, April 18 at the Family Practice Center.

"High blood pressure—hypertension—is one of the most serious diseases in the United States. It contributes directly or indirectly to about one million deaths a year and affects approximately one out of every four or five adults," states Tom Graesser, a registered nurse at the Family Practice Center and instructor for the program.

"Unlike many other health problems," continues Graesser, "high blood pressure does not usually produce any symptoms. Many people may not know they have high blood pressure until it begins to cause trouble with the heart, brain, or kidneys."

To keep track of one's blood pressure, there is a simple, painless inexpensive test that takes about only 30 seconds. The clinic will teach people to take their own blood pressure using equipment they can purchase for an investment of $20-$100.

Graesser adds that, "people can keep a record of their blood pressure readings which may result in fewer visits to the physician. This may in turn yield a financial savings to the patient."

Short sleeve shirts should be worn to facilitate the use of the blood pressure equipment. Individual equipment can be checked against that at the Family Practice Center.

To register, call the Family Practice Center at 475-1321, ext. 272 or the Department of Family Practice at 764-8010. There is a $2 registration fee.

Chelsea Community Hospital Departments of Substance Abuse and Psychiatry are offering an inpatient program for older chemically dependent people who also may have emotional problems.

The program is specifically tailored to the needs of geriatric problem drinkers or problem drug users. In contrast to most substance abuse treatment, the program places less emphasis on confrontation and attempts to work at the individual's pace.

Spring and new clothes go together like bread and jam. It is a good time to take stock of the basics of your wardrobe and decide what items need to fill in gaps or make new additions.

The Co-operative Extension Service is sponsoring an educational seminar May 8 from 5 to 9:30 p.m. to teach how to extend the use of your wardrobe by careful selection, how to save money by sewing and how to save time by using the latest professional techniques.

"Sew a Workable Wardrobe" will be presented by Irene James, traveling home economist who is the author of home sewing articles and the owner of Sew-Pak, a business that makes educational sewing kits. She will display the latest fashion and fabrics, demonstrate the latest efficient sewing techniques and show how to mix garments to extend their usefulness.

The seminar will be held at the County Service Center, 4133 Washtenaw, Ann Arbor. The cost is $11.50; reservations are due by April 24, and may be made by calling 973-9510.

Assistant Superintendent Mills indicated that the original budget deficit of $683,000 had been reduced to an acceptable figure of $169,935, which can be accommodated by using portions of the fund balance. He indicated that the Finance Committee will meet on April 15 at 8 p.m. to review the budget reductions and will report to the board at the April 22 meeting.

Marie Crouch and Peg Moore were present to inform the board that Authors' Day is Wednesday, May 8, at North and South schools. A guest author will present a lecture and be available to talk with students and parents.

This will be on the agenda for the next meeting.

suddenly Monday evening, April 12. The wind, which came up out of a dead calm, at about 10:30 p.m., seemed to many residents to blow through in about five minutes, making a loud sound, "like a railroad train coming through," and passing on, to be followed again by rain, and an eerie stillness. A tree on the property of Robert Bassett, 17325 Waterloo Rd., was twisted off six feet above the ground, and rammed into the porch and kitchen of the house. Power was off for about an hour and numerous trees and branches were thrown about.

A Michigan State University Middle East expert predicted the end of the cease fire between Israel and the Arab nations was not likely to bring open warfare. Sylvan Township Clerk Richard Kern was notified by County Clerk, Luella M. Smith that extra precautions should be taken to secure the voting machines since it was believed a state recount was possible because of the close results in the contest for one of the posts on the Wayne State University Board of Governors. Pending a decision on the possible state recount, Kern said, no check would be undertaken on whether the Sylvan township machines were improperly adjusted so that cross voting for candidates for constable was not possible.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Confession is said to be good for the soul, so here goes.

I've been away for five weeks. There are no secrets in a small town, so let it be stated that I spent 24 days as a patient in the Substance Abuse Program at Chelsea Community Hospital, and another 10 days beginning to put my life back into some sort of manageable order.

After nearly 40 years of fighting a battle against the bottle, I admitted that I had lost it totally. Alcohol had whipped me, as it will defeat every single one of us victims who suffer from the disease called alcoholism. We make up about 10 percent of the population. Across the country there are at least 20 million of us alcohol-addicted persons living and suffering in a peculiar kind of hell that gets worse each day.

We alcoholics are "different" in the sense that we were born with the disease. We have had it from day one. We carry a defect in our genetic makeup, which we inherited. Alcoholism runs in families, and is passed on, much like diabetes, hemophilia and certain mental disorders. It may skip several generations, as it did in my case. There were no drunks among my parents and grandparents, but there were some farther back.

Normal people can handle booze, using it socially as an aid to unwind and relax. Alcohol has been woven into my way of life. It was readily available relatively cheap. Having nothing better to do one day while lying in the hospital feeling sorry for myself during the gut-wrenching process called detoxification (drying out) I made a mental list of the bars and package stores within 10 miles of Chelsea. I added up more than 20 without trying very hard, places that I knew about from the experience of having patronized them. There may be more, although I didn't miss very many. An alcoholic makes it a point to learn all the local sources of supply, so he will never be more than a few minutes away from his next drink.

I suspect that non-alcoholics—the 90 percent of you readers who don't have the disease—cannot possibly understand the compulsion that drives us alcoholics to drink. Strange as it may seem, we don't really want to drink, because we know that the soothing effect is only temporary and that the "high" will be followed by a "low" that is just plain awful.

That vicious circle leads to an effort to stay forever high by drinking continuously—all day, every day, around the clock. Sleep, when it comes, is short, three or four hours in a stupor followed by a tortured awakening with physical and mental pains that can be eased only by drinking some more.

We develop an amazing amount of tolerance for the stuff. Getting and keeping a high requires an ever greater level of alcohol in our systems. Anybody who has a reputation for being able to "hold his liquor" has had a lot of practice. I got to where I could put down a fifth of 86-proof vodka in 12 hours without feeling or showing any outward signs of being drunk. It took more than that to get a glow. When I checked myself into the emergency room at Chelsea Hospital, my measured blood-alcohol level was close to the amount considered fatal for a normal person.

There is presently no "cure" for the disease of alcoholism—no pill or potion or elixir that will correct the genetic flaw of body chemistry which causes the sickness. Alcoholics have just three choices—become insane, die or quit drinking. The first two are not at all attractive, yet it is amazing how many people opt for them. Alcohol is officially ranked third on the list of "killers," behind cancer and heart disease. Some knowledgeable authorities suspect it is really No. 1, because alcohol is the cause underlying countless cases of cancer and cardiovascular attacks.

Statistically, alcohol kills 250,000 people every year in the United States. Those are the cases that can be traced directly to alcohol. The real number probably is several times that high.

I'm lucky. Considering that I had been drinking for nearly 40 years—the last 20 of them heavily and the last 10 more or less continuously—I passed my physical examination with a remarkably clean bill of health. My doctor was amazed and said so. "Considering that you will be 59 years old in a couple of months and have abused alcohol during most of your life, you are in amazingly good shape," he told me. "You should get down on your knees and be grateful for whatever higher power has been watching over you. I fully expected to find problems in your liver, your heart or some other organ, and I didn't. You can live a long time yet if you stop drinking and take care of yourself."

So I've stopped. It's been six weeks since my last drink—a modest accomplishment indeed compared to those of many of my fellow members of Alcoholics Anonymous who have been sober for periods ranging up to 30 years and longer. For me it's an achievement. Six weeks is a short time, but it's exactly 42 days more than my previous record for sobriety over a stretch of 38 years.

It hasn't been easy. I was warned not to expect instant miracles, and there haven't been any. The problems that had piled up to the point where I finally sought help are still there and will not go away. Untangling the mess that I made of my life and getting things back under control will take time, work and patience. There have been frustrations and disappointments already, and there will be many more. What took 38 years to do can't be undone overnight.

Among other things, I'm having to re-learn how to write. Facing a typewriter cold sober is a whole lot different from sitting down to it half-smashed. This column has taken me more than twice as long to put on paper as it once would have, and I'm not kidding myself into believing that it is well done. But, it's a start, and I'll get better as time goes by.

Keynote Music Has New Owners

Keynote Music, Inc., at 526 N. Main St. next to the Tower Mart, has been sold to Chelsea couple Rich and Jill McKenzie of Kalmbach Rd.

Pat and Jim Stirling, founders of the store in 1983, sold the business for family reasons. Jim suffered a stroke shortly after the store opened, and has been unable to devote time to the business.

"It's difficult," Pat says. There are some real tugs. We've put a lot of ourselves into it. Sometimes you just have to make those decisions." The McKenzies, who have lived in Chelsea since they served as their own general contractors on a house they built five years ago, are an ambitious couple in their early thirties. They also seem to be exceptionally well-qualified to be in charge of such a business.

Rich has the music background. He has studied the violin for most of his life, through grade school, and at both the Eastman School of Music, in Rochester, N.Y., and the State University of New York at Fredonia. He also has a degree in business from Eastern Michigan University. He spent the last nine years working for Shar Music Co. of Ann Arbor, direct marketers of string instruments.

The new owners have already renamed the company, now called the Keynote Music & Learning Center, to bring it more into line with their basic philosophy. They've even added a logo, an equilateral triangle with a dot in each corner. The logo, Rich says, reflects the three-sided relationship of the student, parent coach, and teacher.

Rich says he wants to take the business, which he likens to a two-lane street, and "turn it into a four-way highway." He plans to get more involved in catalog marketing of instruments, for starters. He says his work at Shar has given him valuable connections in the business, especially with the people involved with using the Suzuki method of teaching. He also wants to become more involved with the schools in a consultant-like capacity, where he can use his extensive background in string instruments to help schools and parents understand what they are buying. A final area to develop, he says, is in offering "non-traditional areas of music education that are usually considered to be supplemental but are enriching," such as the Dalcroze method of body movement and rhythm.

Rich also says that eventually he'd like to move to larger quarters in Chelsea, and he even has his eye on a particular place, although he doesn't want it revealed.

"We'd like to consolidate the whole operation under one roof," Rich says. "We need more studio space since we can't give all our lessons in this building. I think that's been a hindrance to developing a corporate image as a learning center."

As the business develops, there will be five separate parts to it. There will be the traditional voice and music lesson, including the Suzuki method; mail order sales of stringed instruments; retail sale of a variety of instruments; the institutional consultation; and the full-service repair shop. They plan an open house in May.

ORV Registrations Expire April 30

If you're one of thousands of Michigan residents planning to take advantage of the more than 2,000 miles of Michigan Off-Road Vehicle (ORV) trails this spring, there's one note of caution you should heed.

As of April 30, the prior three-year registration expires and must be renewed to avoid penalties. According to Henry Webster, Forest Management Division Chief of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the tendency to wait until the last moment causes some big problems for vacationers.

"The difficulty arises when they've decided to wait to register until they plan to use the vehicle on these trails," says Webster. "Quite often their departure time doesn't coincide with Secretary of State Office hours and they are disappointed to find they can't continue as planned."

The cost for the three-year registration is $9 (or $3 per year) and the money from those registrations is earmarked for new trail development, young people's safety classes and much more. In addition, the registration of the vehicle helps with theft protection and vehicle identification.

The procedure for registration renewal is easy—just mail the form you received in the mail with your check for $9. New owners must take proof of ownership and proof of paid sales tax to the nearest Secretary of State Office for the transaction.

C. of C. Membership Dues Being Increased

At an April 9 board meeting of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce the March 27 quarterly membership meeting at Chelsea Community Hospital was discussed. Prospective members as well as current members were invited. The presentation at the meeting included Gabe Cherem describing the EMU study that is in progress, Mark Heydlauff giving an update on the work of the Downtown Development Committee, and Fritz Weber discussing the Chelsea Industrial Park.

The Chamber has proposed a new dues structure which will be reflected in the invoices to be sent out soon. The new structure resulted from a study of chamber dues in other communities similar to Chelsea. This study, plus an evaluation of the upcoming projects and their costs, made it necessary to implement the changes in the dues structure.

The Chamber is looking forward to the completion of the Community Development Project done by a select student group from Eastern Michigan University under the direction of Cherem. The study is designed to provide a menu of promotable events and features about the Chelsea area along with specific solutions to implement the promotions and get results. A presentation will be held in May to fully describe all elements of the project.

Old Faithful is getting tired. Yellowstone's famous geyser, which has spouted every 69 minutes for almost a century, now makes visitors wait as long as 100 minutes between eruptions, reports National Wildlife magazine. An earthquake is partly to blame, say scientists, but so are tourists who persist in dropping objects into the geyser, thus reducing its water supply.

and hats were also highly discussed. Participants were strongly warned about the hazard of entering an unventilated building without self-contained breathing apparatus (Air Paks). "Use as little water as possible and contain the run-off," people were reminded. Water spreads contamination over a wide area. Construction of dikes to prevent flow to lakes, streams, sewers and the like was recommended. The cooling effect of water retards high-temperature decomposition of the chemicals to less toxic compounds, the instructors suggested. Another idea presented at the Saturday seminar was to use water fog spray, not straight stream fog spray, to have more effective control. Avoiding bottle breakage limits fuel additions and prevents contamination, people at the seminar learned, and streams spread fire and contamination, something about which many people never wondered. Some strong words on poisoning were spoken at the Saturday training session, and it was made clear that symptoms of poisoning may be delayed up to 12 hours and chemicals may poison by ingestion, absorbing through broken skin or inhalation.

Employees or their representatives have the right to file complaint with the U. S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requesting workplace inspection, and complainants' names may be withheld from the employer, according to a Labor Department fact sheet.

Safe Tractor Operation Reduces Rollover Risk

Safe tractor operation can reduce the chance of tractor rollovers, which can cause equipment damage and serious injury. "About 800 people die from tractor accidents in the United States each year, and over half of those fatalities are due to tractor rollovers," says Howard Doss, extension agricultural safety specialist at Michigan State University. "Using safe operating practices and taking precautions to prevent tractor accidents will cut injuries and expensive equipment repairs," he says.

Doss advises buying only tractors equipped with rollover protection, which he terms a form of insurance. It is worth the extra money to buy equipment with rollover protection, he says, because chances of surviving an upset without overturn protection are slim.

Operators can prevent tractor upsets by understanding and avoiding the causes of rollovers.

Causes of side rollovers include fishtailing or jackknifing towed loads because the tractor is being driven too fast, Doss says. Reducing speed—especially when driving on slippery surfaces—slowing on turns and applying even brake pressure, help avoid an upset. Operators should make sure brake pedals are locked together before driving at moderate speeds, because unequal brake pressure can push a tractor onto its side.

MYI Plans Pre-Tour Concerts

Musical Youth International will present the first of its pre-tour concerts on Sunday, April 21, in the Universal Mall at 12 Mile and Dequinder in Detroit. The MYI band and choir will provide two performances each, the first beginning at 2 p.m. and the second beginning at 4 p.m.

This is not the first time the Musical Youth International has appeared for the Universal Mall Corp. Last year MYI presented several concerts for shopping mall members of the Universal Mall Corp. during their Australia concert tour.

Conductors this year are Paul Barber and Kevin Cushman. Barber is music co-ordinator for the Farmington Public Schools and Cushman is the choral director for Detroit Catholic Central.

The 70 MYI musicians were selected by audition from more than 100 students from Southeastern Michigan. During the month of July they will serve as good-will ambassadors throughout Great Britain by performing.

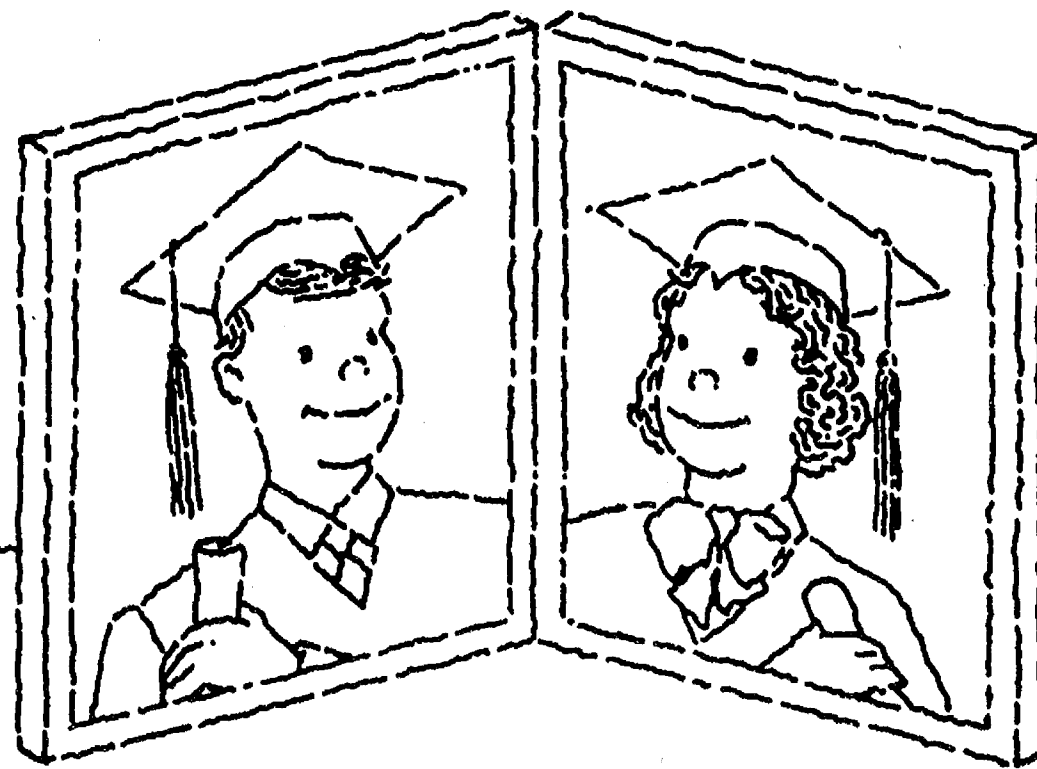

Musical Youth International was founded by the late Dr. Lester McCoy. The non-profit organization grew from his belief that musically talented students could provide international understanding through the universal language of music. Mrs. Lester McCoy is currently the executive director.

Cabbage Patch Dolls Lost on School Playground

Two little mothers, Rianne Jones and Erica Johnson, are very sad over the loss of their Cabbage Patch dolls which had been laid down on South school playground while the little girls played in another area of the playground waiting to be called home to join the families at dinner and the 5th-year birthday party for Erica. Erica would then open her presents which were clothes for her Cabbage Patch doll "Dianna."

In their excitement they left the playground without their dolls and when they returned to the playground their dolls were gone. Rianne and Erica hope that those who found them will return them. Rianne is the six-year-old daughter of Phil and Sherry Jones, 501 Maywood.

Nearly 100 members and guests attended the 40th birthday of the VFW Post and Auxiliary No. 4076 on Saturday, April 13 at the Chrysler Union Hall on Chelsea-Manchester Rd.

The celebration was dedicated to Charles Ritter, first commander, and to the late Magdalen Weber, the first president. General chairpersons were Gary and Mary Erskine, the current commander and president. Duane and Gini Boyer presided at the social hour with Ron Zatorski. Dorlene Cozzens was in Citations of Merit were awarded to Gert O'Dell, Fremont Boyer, Charles Ritter and Lucy Platt by past department of Michigan president Mildred Swartz. A Certificate of Appreciation was presented to Eulahlee Packard for 25 years of service to the community as the "Flag Lady" of Chelsea, by Gini Boyer, community service chairman, on behalf of the local auxiliary.

The post history was given by Charles Ritter and the auxiliary history was presented by Lucy Platt.

Forty-year membership pins were presented to Charles Ritter, Mac Packard, and Laurence Boyer.

Patchwork on US-23 May Slow Traffic North of Ann Arbor

Traffic on US-23 north of Ann Arbor may be slowed by intermittent lane closures beginning Monday, April 15, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) says.

The lane closures from M-14 north to Territorial Rd., will be in effect during daytime hours only for resurfacing and concrete patching work.

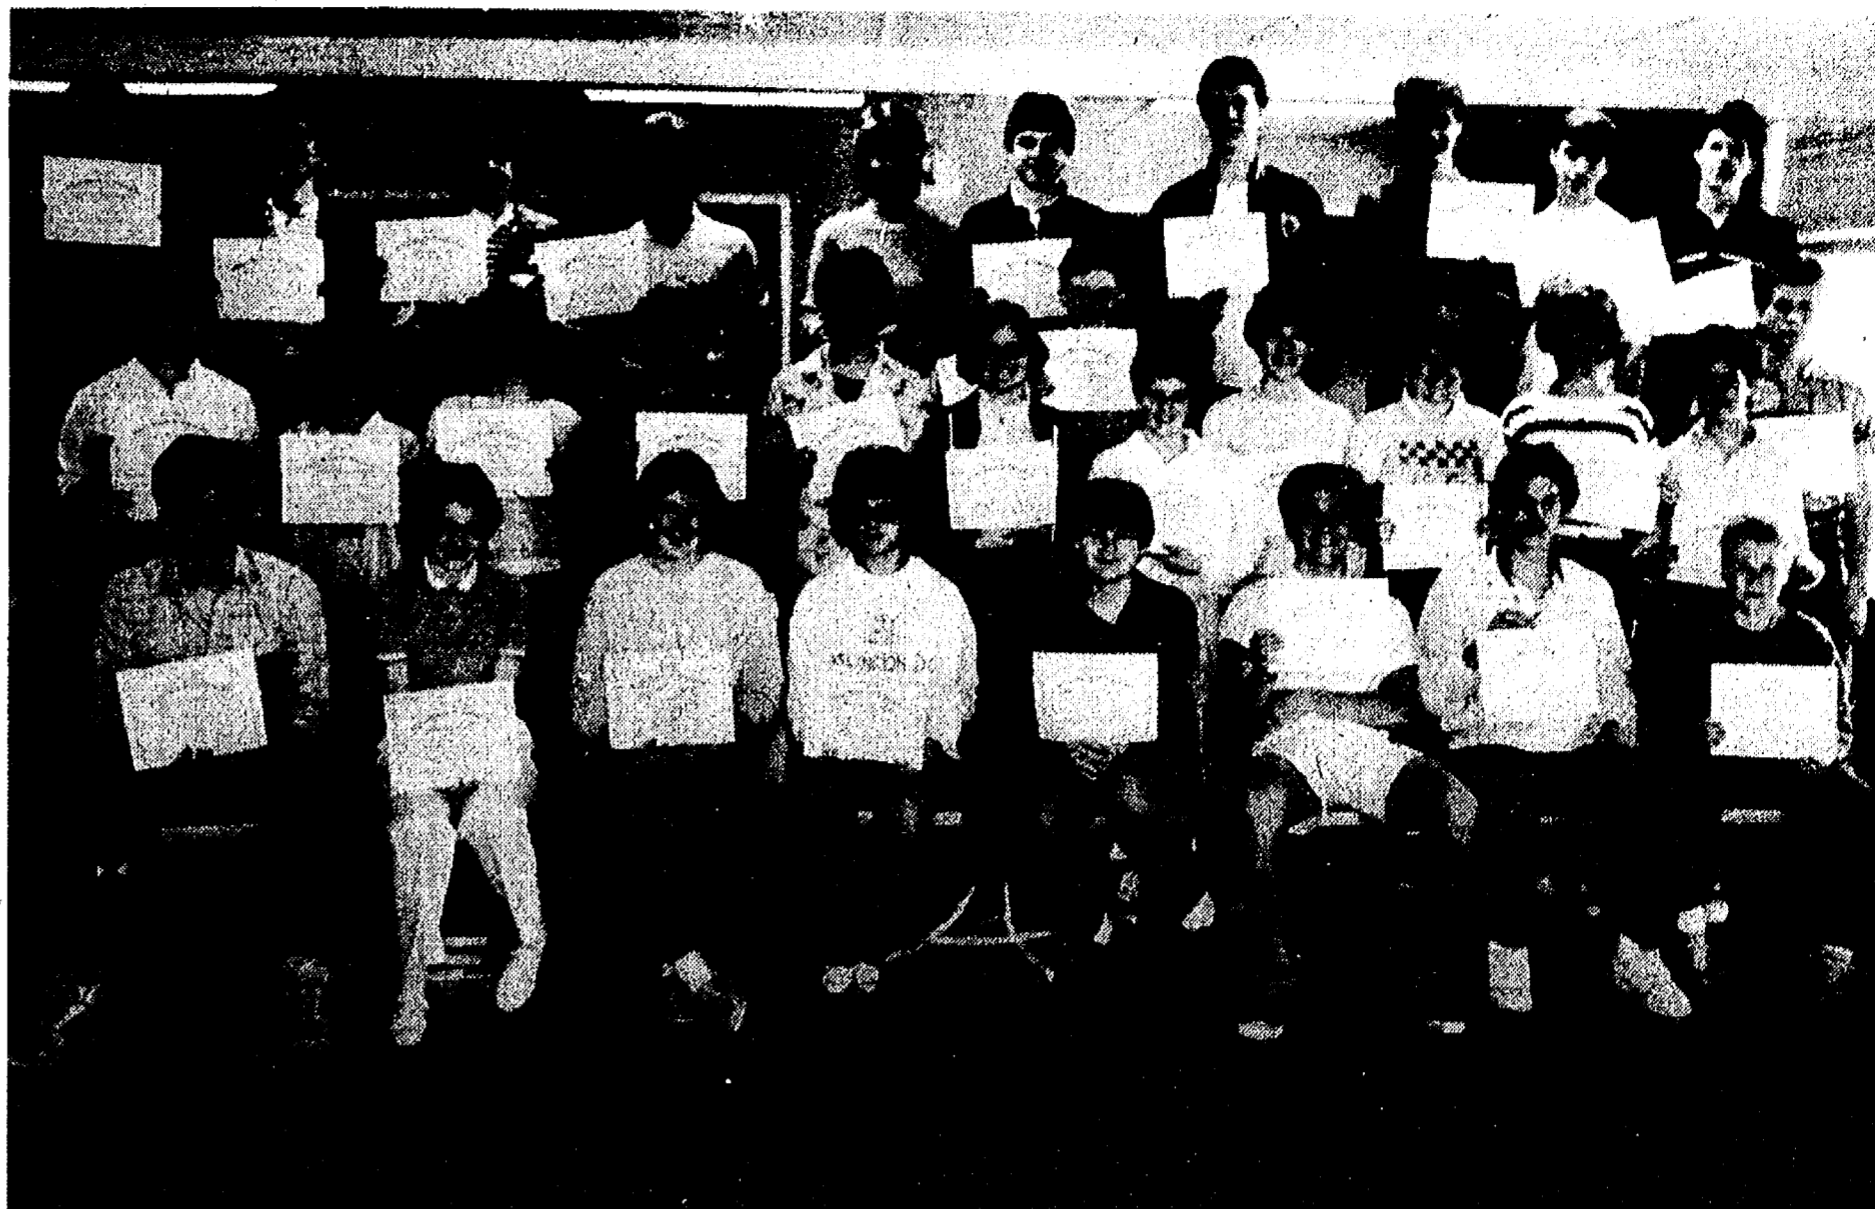

The project is expected to be completed by mid-July.

Cassidy Lake Continually Faces Problem of Walkaways

If you took a survey of Chelsea residents, you'd probably find that most people would be just as happy if the Cassidy Lake Technical School for men on Waterloo Rd. would somehow disappear.

There are so many walkaways from the minimum security institution that they hardly rank front page news anymore.

The Chelsea police even have a standard "walkaway" card that they fill out, that also includes walkaways from Camp Waterloo, a few miles further away from Chelsea.

Last year, 34 inmates left the institution without being officially released. Cassidy Lake officials say the number will probably be about the same this year.

Short of fencing in the 80-plus wooded acres, there's probably no way to alter the number of AWOLS drastically, both village and Cassidy Lake officials agree. They also say that a fence is not likely to be built either, simply because the facility would become, by definition, a medium security one. They say that in terms of rehabilitation, there's probably a need for more minimum security facilities rather than the other way around.

"Minimum security prisons will always have walkaways," says Dr. Jack Wellsey, Cassidy Lake's director of education.

The Cassidy Lake Community Liaison Council recently released its quarterly report. The council is composed of law enforcement officials, village officials, and other concerned citizens. It meets every other month to discuss Cassidy Lake issues.

Statistics in the report reveal, among other things, that as of March 25, 118 of 246 prisoners (48 percent) were in for "assaultive" crimes, and exactly half of them, 59, committed armed robbery. The entire breakdown goes as follows: armed robbery, 59; manslaughter, 9; assault to armed robbery, 10; assault on murder, 5; assault-less murder, 5; unarmed robbery, 15; felonious assault, 11; safe robbery, 2; murder, second degree, 1; and cruelty to child, 1.

Most of those in for "non-assaultive" crimes are there for breaking and entering (56 of 128), or a larceny of some type (27). Others are there for violation of a drug law (11), and possession of a gun (7).

Two hundred and four of the prisoners are being incarcerated for the first time in their lives, the report says.

Minutes of the last council meeting show that 75 percent are age 23 or younger, 15 percent are 24 to 30, and 10 percent are over 30.

While there are approximately 250 prisoners at Cassidy Lake at any one time, the facility sees more than 1,000 inmates during the course of a year (1,050 last year), according to Cassidy Lake Deputy Superintendent John Andrews, who's in charge of security. He says the average inmate stays three of four months before moving on to a different program, such as parole or a community corrections center.

The prison's demographics and escape rate may seem frightening, conjuring the image of

Varsity Softball Team Opens By Dividing Four Contests

Followers of Chelsea's varsity softball team who think the Bulldogs are automatic winners every time they take to the field had better think again.

That was coach Charlie Waller's comment after a long day of softball at Dana Field last Saturday. Chelsea breezed past Webberville, 8-0 and 9-4, in the morning, then lost a pair to Ann Arbor Pioneer, 6-5 and 7-3.

Waller doesn't get upset easily, but he didn't like being asked if Chelsea had blown the two games against Pioneer. He answered in what for him is strong language, and this is a capsule of what he said:

"Look, we aren't the only good team around any more. There are a lot of good teams in the area, and Pioneer is one of them. We can beat them if we play our best, but we didn't do it. Pioneer played better than we did, and deserved to win.

"There was a time when we had the strongest softball program around, but that time has passed. It's just plain not fair to the girls or to the coaches to expect us to win every game we play. We're going to lose some games, and we did today.

"We saw some excellent pitching and fine all-around play, and we weren't quite good enough to match it. Today, Pioneer was better than we were. It could be a different story later on. We'll play them again in a tournament and we'll see what happens."

The season-opening contest went according to the script as premiere pitcher Beth Unterbrink hurled six innings of one-hit ball and gave up just one walk. The lone hit was a scratch. Jill Schaffner finished up in relief.

The Bulldogs pounded out 14 hits. Unterbrink, Anne Weber and Laura Anderson had three apiece.

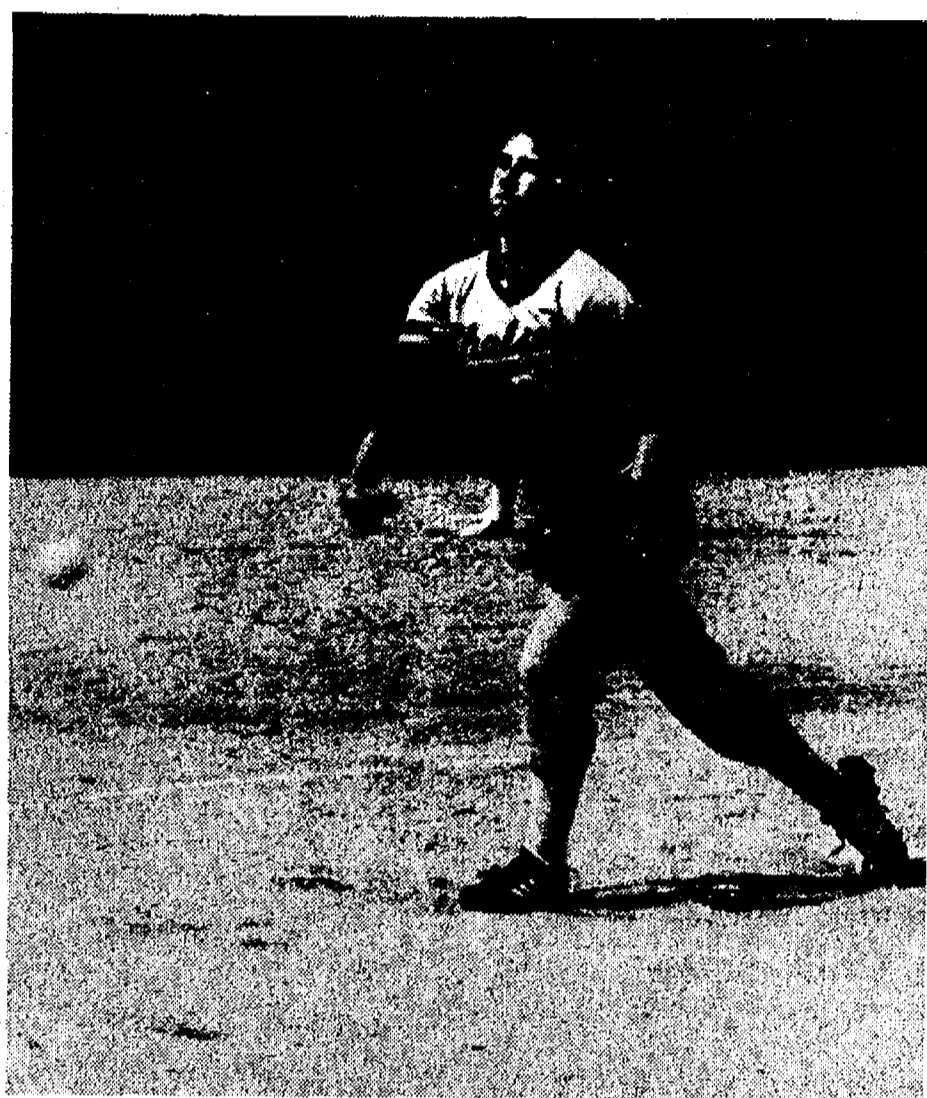

The second game saw Chris DeFant breeze to a four-hitter while pitching all the way in her first varsity start. Weber, Unterbrink, Jennifer Cattell, Laura Anderson, Kelly Hawker, Michelle Easton, Lori Folcik, Joanne Tobin and Tina Paddock supplied hefty hitting.

Hawker started on the mound in the first game against Pioneer and kept it under control through six innings despite streaks of wildness. She took a 4-1 lead into the top of the seventh but couldn't hold it. Tobin came on in relief but didn't get the fire out until Pioneer put across five runs, enough to win.

Paddock had two of Chelsea's six hits, including a clutch double which drove in two runs.

Tobin started the second game against Pioneer and appeared to have good stuff, but the visitors teed off for nine hits and seven runs in the first four innings. Chelsea, meanwhile, could do little at bat against a tantalizing junk-ball pitcher whose hardest throw wouldn't break a pane of glass. Cattell hit safely twice, but nobody else did much at the plate.

"If anything bothered me about the four games, it was our failure to hit the soft stuff," Waller said. "We didn't adjust to the off-speed pitching, and I suspect we will see a lot of it until we prove we can hit it. That's something we definitely must work on."

TWO-WAY PLAYER: Chris DeFant pitches and plays in the infield for Chelsea's varsity softball team. Above, she puts her all behind one of the pitches that earned her a victory over Webberville last Saturday. Below, she takes a throw for a force-out at third base. The ball is in her glove ahead of the runner.

Waller said he carried out his game plan for the day, giving everybody playing time and all four front-line pitchers several innings of work.

JV Softball Team Wins First Four

More eyes than usual are focused on Chelsea's junior varsity softball squad this spring. The girls are playing under a new coach, Pat Clarke, and they carry the burden of being counted on next year to replace a varsity team composed mostly of seniors who will graduate in June.

That made last Saturday's results all the more exciting as the JV's played and won four games on Dana Field, including two wins over Class A Ann Arbor Pioneer.

"Sure I'm pleased," a jubilant Clarke said afterward. "We played some very good ball, and some not so good ball, but the over-all results were fine. What else can you say when you play four games in one day and win them all?"

(Pioneer) games if I'd handled the pitching differently and sent up some pinch-hitters, but that wasn't the idea. It would have been nice to win, and I know some fans were disappointed, but we accomplished what we set out to do and I'm not unhappy."

Waller revealed that he intends to bring this year's team along a bit slower than its predecessor.

"We peaked too early last year, and I think it cost us a state championship. We were tired down the last stretch last season, and it showed in the way we played. This year, I want us to be playing championship ball at the end, when it counts."

The Bulldogs were state Class B runners-up last season. Almost all of that team is back this spring.

"Our pitchers have thrown only 200 balls a day in practice, instead of 300, and that probably means they aren't as strong as they were a year ago. We've cut everything else back in proportion.

"Our goal is to reach our peak at the finish. We will lose some games along the way, as we did today, but we want to be ready when a title is on the line."

The Bulldogs were a tired group at the end of a long day last Saturday, and that could have been a result of the "easy does it" approach. Four games are a lot to play in a little more than seven hours.

"The girls were worn out and not very happy about themselves when it was all over," Waller said, "but they'll get over it and bounce back. They are a mature bunch, mostly seniors. Losing a couple of games early may teach them what they have to do to win."

The Bulldogs will get a chance to show what they are made of when they take on Fowlerville in a doubleheader here Saturday.

Chelsea Mat Club Moves 15 to Region

Chelsea Recreation Wrestling Club traveled to the district tournament last Saturday. Seventeen youngsters participated, and 15 qualified for the regional tournament this week-end in Kalamazoo. The top four finishers are allowed to advance to the regionals.

In the eight-and-under age group, David Paton and Jordan Dyer each took first-place honors. Jeremy Feldkamp and Michael Pidd captured a second and a fourth place, respectively.

Bryndon Skelton, Colby Skelton, Jeremy Wolf and Steve Grau each gained first in the 9-10 class with John Bobo getting a second, Kevin McCalla a third with Matt Powell and Scott Koscielniak - Herrst each taking fourths.

A first-place medal was won by Joey Wolf in the 11-12 age bracket. Craig McCalla and Jamie Basso took second and third place in the 13-14 group.

Girls Track Team Still Awaiting First Competition

Chelsea's girls track team was ready to run last Thursday in its scheduled opening meet against Allen Park, but the visitors didn't show up.

"It was disappointing to the girls," coach Bill Bainton said. "They have been practicing hard and were looking forward to competition. Allen Park had spring vacation last week, and just plain couldn't put a team together."

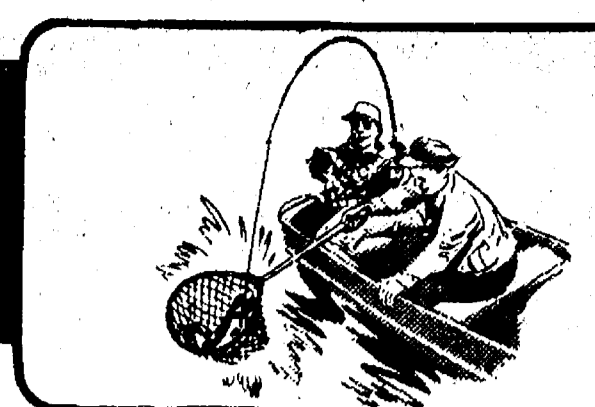

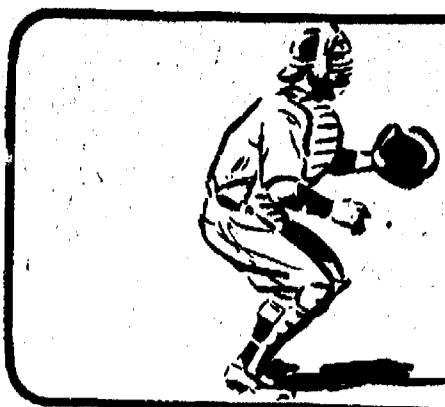

"I guess it goes into the record as a forfeit, so we're technically 1-0, but we don't get any satisfaction out of winning that way. The girls are eager to test themselves in a meet."

They had their chance yesterday afternoon in a home dual match against always strong Jackson Lumen Christi.

Todd Sprague Earns Two Places in Meet

Todd Sprague of Chelsea, a sophomore on the Western Michigan University track team, earned two places in the Ohio University Relays held April 6.

Sprague took third in the shot put with a toss of 49' 4", and finished fourth in the hammer throw with a heave of 166' 3"

Varsity Baseball Team Begins Season with Win Over Northwest

Chelsea's varsity baseball team rallied for five runs in the top of the eighth inning to defeat Jackson Northwest, 9-4, there last Thursday, and get its season started on a winning note.

The second game of a scheduled doubleheader was called at the end of three innings because of darkness with Chelsea ahead, 5-1. The contest won't count in the record, but it helped to give Bulldog coach Wayne Welton an optimistic feeling about the prospects for his inexperienced but promising squad.

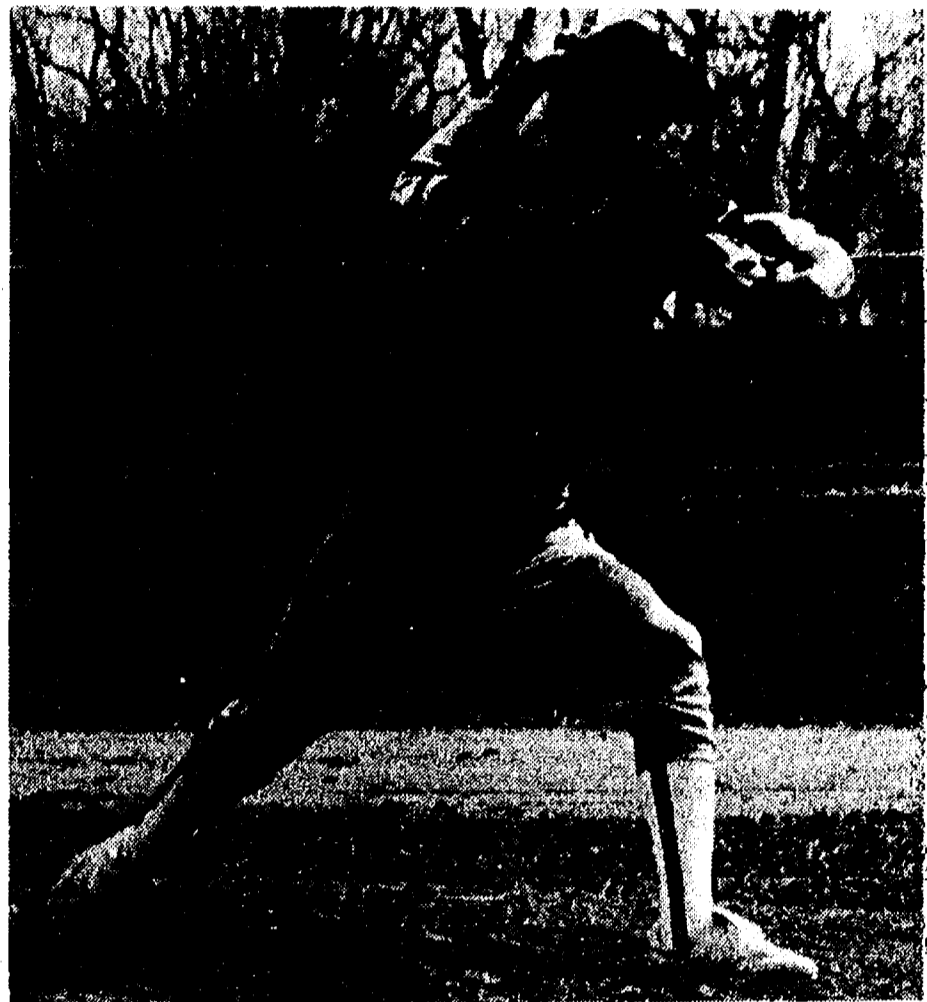

"We got strong pitching and played good defense, which I expected," Welton said. "What I wasn't really confident about was our hitting, and I liked what I saw. We swung that bat real well. We hit the ball hard and scored runs. We got timely hits when we needed them. If we continue to hit like that, we are going to be tough to beat. We'll match up against anybody on our schedule."

Welton also liked what he watched in the performance of junior catcher Ray Spencer, who made his first varsity start and played outstanding defensive ball while calling all the pitches from behind the plate.

"Ray has a couple of tough acts to follow," Welton noted. "We've had great catching in recent years from Rodney Robeson and Rick Boham, who were two of the best. Ray is going to rank right along with them. He has made remarkable progress this spring. I don't ordinarily let an inexperienced catcher call the pitches this early in the season. Ray did it so well that I didn't send in a single sign from the sidelines."

Dan Bellus started on the mound in the opening game, the one that counted for the record, and pitched effectively during five of the six innings he worked. He gave up three runs in the fifth, allowing Northwest to tie the game at 4-4.

Chuck Downer took over in relief and retired all six batters

KEVIN MAYNARD has been something of a one-man gang so far during the young baseball season, pitching and fielding well and hitting the ball a ton. His homer against Ann Arbor Pioneer was one of the longest balls ever hit on the Chelsea field, according to coach Wayne Welton. "I can't quite believe it yet," Welton said as he described how far Maynard's four-bagger traveled. "Let's just say it would have been out of any Major League ballpark."

he faced over the final two frames, earning credit for the victory. Downer also stroked four hits during the afternoon, including a home run.

Evan Roberts' clutch double drove in what proved to be the winning run in Chelsea's extra-inning outburst that won the game. Kevin Maynard, Mark Mull and Keith Neibauer also accounted for RBI's with hits at the right time.

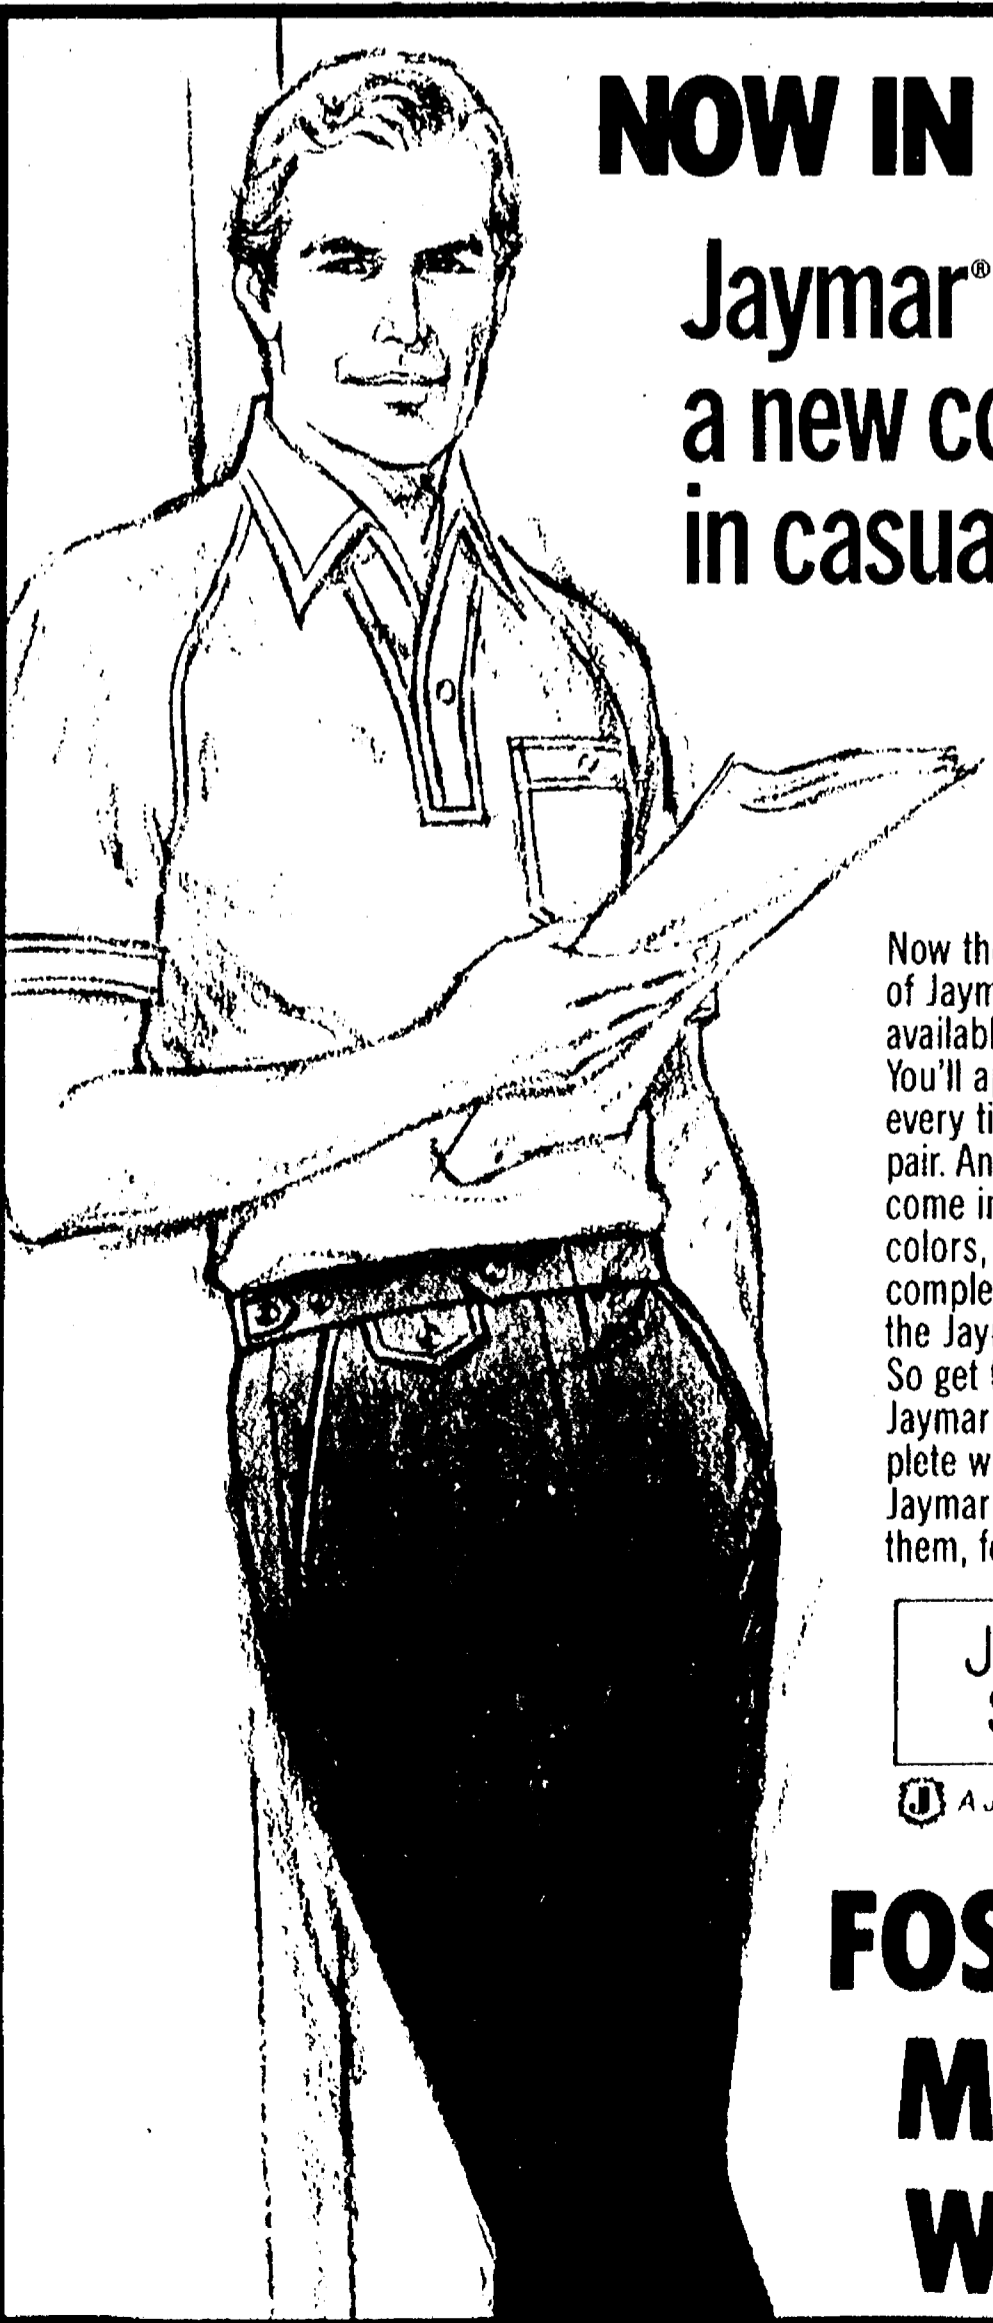

In all, the Bulldogs punched out 12 safeties during the game and committed only one error.

The second game almost certainly would have wound up in a Chelsea victory if it could have been played through the minimum five innings required to make it official.

"We went until 7:30, and it was getting awfully dark," Welton said. "The umpires were correct in calling it. It's probably unrealistic to schedule a doubleheader on a week-day afternoon at this time of year if you can't start playing until 3:30."

"As the days get longer and we switch to Daylight Savings Time later this month, it will be a different story. It would have been nice to finish that second game against Northwest, but I'm not complaining. We got in 11 innings of good, solid baseball, and I'm pleased with what the boys showed me."

Last-Event Victory Pulls Track Team To Win in Opener

It came down to the wire before the Chelsea boys track team pulled out a 71-66 victory over Allen Park here last Thursday in what Bulldog coach Bill Wehrwein called a "very satisfying" win that did a lot to build confidence.

Chelsea needed to win the last event, the 1,600-meter relay, to come out on top, and the quartet of Kyle Kemmish, Scott Miller, Dean Boote and Tim Bowdish did it with a good early-season time of 3:38.9.

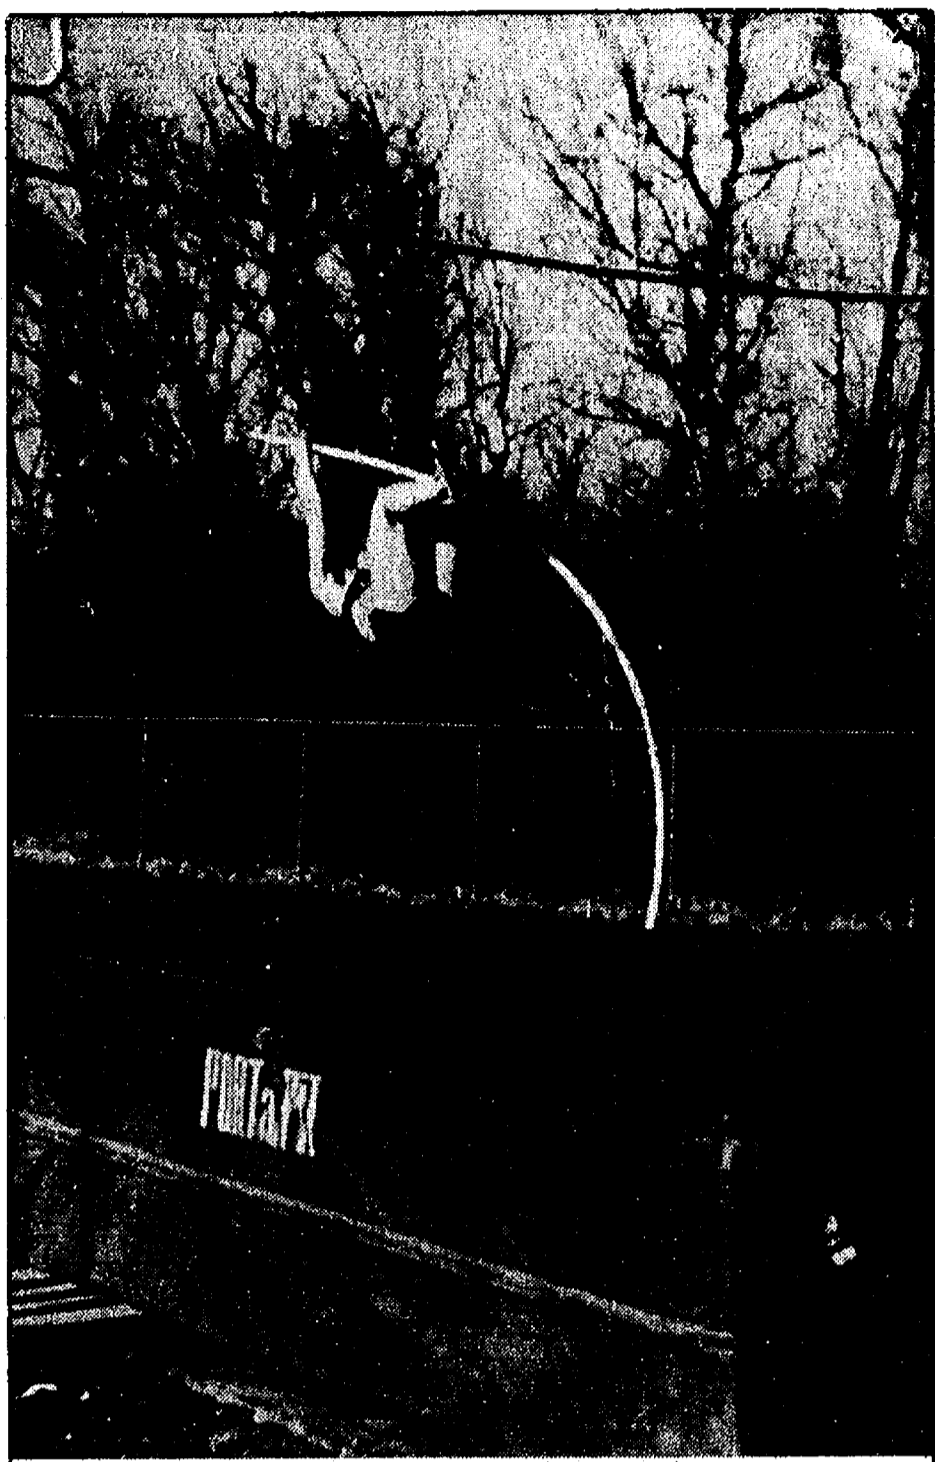

That effort would have been in vain, however, had not Chelsea's Jared Bradley, John Cattell and Allen Kuhl swept the next-to-last race, the 3,200-meter run.

"We had to place at least one-two in the 3,200 in order to have a chance to win the meet, no matter what we did in the concluding relay," Wehrwein noted, and we got all three scoring spots. I'm especially proud of what Cattell did. He ran the best race of his life to win the second place we had to have."

Other Bulldog first places were won by Rob Long (shot put), Ed Brosnan (pole vault), Long (discus), 3,200-meter relay (Boote, Kuhl, Bradley, Bowdish), Bowdish (1,600 meter run), 400-meter relay (Boote, Miller, Brosnan, Curtis Heard), 400-meter dash (Kemmish), 800-meter run (Bowdish).

Other Chelsea point-winners included Andy Box (third in shot put), Mike Carignan (third in pole vault), Doug Webb (second in high jump), Miller (second in 110 high hurdles), Heard (third in 100-meter dash), 800-meter relay (second by team of Jim Eisenbeiser, Dennis Parisho, David Freitas, Chris Gieske), Bradley (third in 1,600 run), Kuhl (third in 800), Miller (third in 300-meter low hurdles), Heard (third in 200).

Bowdish had an excellent afternoon, scoring two individual first places and anchoring two winning relay teams. Long's double victory in the shot and discus likewise stood out.

"We're pretty strong in the middle and long distances," Wehrwein summed up, "and we're not at all bad in the field events. We still don't have a lot of strength in the sprints and hurdles, but we're better than we were a year ago."

Runs Registered in Plenty As Chelsea, Pioneer Split

The Chelsea and Ann Arbor Pioneer varsity teams just about wore out the basebaths during a doubleheader here last Saturday, scoring a total of 40 runs.

When the dust settled after a long day of baseball, each team had won a game. Pioneer took the opener, 15-4, breaking a close contest wide open with a 10-run outburst in the last inning. Chelsea came back for an 11-10 win in the nightcap that went two extra innings.

"If you look only at the line scores, you might conclude that the pitching was poor, and that would be wrong," Bulldog coach Wayne Welton commented. "Actually, there was some fine pitching on both sides. Both teams hit the ball well, and both made mistakes in the field which allowed a lot of unearned runs to score. It was typical early-season high school baseball. We can play better, and so can Pioneer, and both will."

Chelsea hung close in the opener and trailed by only a run, 5-4, after six innings. The roof caved in as the visitors plated 10 runs on nine hits and a variety of Bulldog miscues in the top of the seventh.

"We just plain fell apart, and that has to be expected from a young, inexperienced team," Welton said. "Give credit to Pioneer. We opened the door, and they took advantage of it. They hit some solid shots, and we made some errors."

Kevin Maynard opened on the mound for Chelsea and pitched three-hit ball for six innings before tiring and giving way to Chuck Downer in relief. Downer had poor luck. He wasn't hit hard, but several Pioneer strokes found the right spot for safeties and a couple of easily fielded balls were booted.

Eric Schaffner pitched four innings of shut-out relief to earn the victory in the second game. Kevin Walz drove in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth.

Mark Mull was the starting pitcher and threw pretty well, according to Welton. "He made only one really bad pitch, and it was hit for a three-run homer which tied the game in the top of the sixth. The boy who hit it is one of the best, as good as any high school batter I've seen. I can't fault Mark too much for that one."

Maynard smacked one of the longest home runs ever seen on the Chelsea field, a booming line drive to straight-away center that reached the pine trees near the pressbox on the fly. "Kevin has tremendous power, and hits for distance even though he isn't especially big physically," Welton noted. "That was a long, long ball."

Welton was pleased with Schaffner, who returned to baseball this spring after sitting out last year to devote full time to golf. "Eric will help as a pitcher and in the infield. It will take him awhile to get his timing back as a hitter."

Finally, Welton continued to enthuse over the play of catcher Ray Spencer, who stroked three doubles, walked twice, drove in two runs and scored twice in the second game. He caught all 16 innings of the twin-bill and played fine defense.

Welton was not unhappy over the split with a very good Pioneer team. "I suspect we saw the best pitching we will face all season," he commented, "and we batted pretty well against it. Our comeback to win the second game showed me something about our character. We have a young team, but they are good kids as well as good athletes. It's the kind of group that I enjoy working with, because I know they will practice hard and improve. We have a lot of potential."

The Bulldogs are 2-1 on the season with a doubleheader coming up against always tough Class A Brighton there tomorrow.

ROB LONG was literally "caught in the act" as he released the discus in this unusual snap by The Standard photographer. Long won both the discus and the shot put in last week's opening meet.

Waterfowl Migration Is Spectacular Event

The well known fall color tour of Michigan has a spring counterpart—the opportunity to observe migrating waterfowl on their flight through the state.

Glenn Dudderar, extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, says spring is a good time to view the birds for several reasons.

"Migrating waterfowl are in full color now because of the mating season," he points out. "They're also very vocal now, for the same reason, so it's hard to miss their passing if you're outside and they come anywhere near you. They're coming through Michigan in large numbers, often in flocks of spectacular size, and in much of southern Michigan, you don't even have to go anywhere special to see them—just be observant whenever you're outside."

If you want to improve your chances of viewing waterfowl in large numbers, you can visit one of several wildlife areas in the state that are set up to accommodate visitors. These include:

—Harsen's Island, part of the St. Clair Wildlife Area east of Mt. Clemens. For information and directions, call Harsen's Island, (313) 748-9504, or contact the DNR district office at 2455 N. Williams Lake Rd., Pontiac, (313) 666-1500.

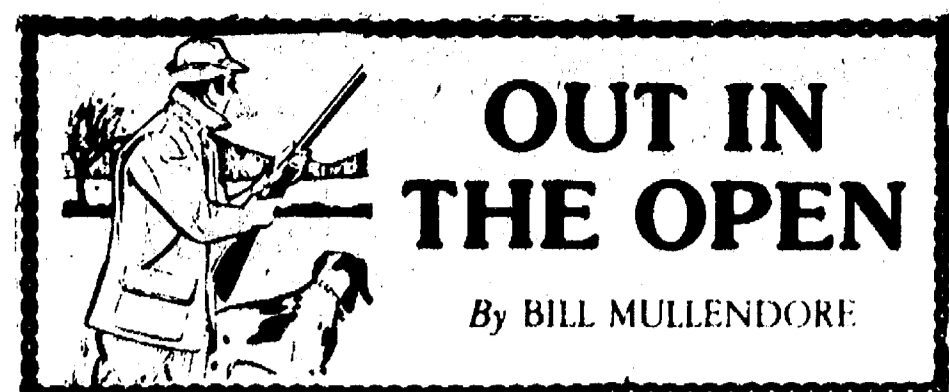

—Fish Point, northeast of Bay City. For directions and maps, call Fish Point Wildlife Area, Unionville, (517) 674-2511, or contact the DNR district office at 715 S. Cedar St., Imlay City, (313) 724-2015.

—Allegan State Game Area, west of Allegan. For directions and information, call or write Allegan State Game Area, 4590 118th Ave., Allegan, (616) 673-2430.

—Kellogg Bird Sanctuary, west of Battle Creek. For information and directions, call (616) 671-5721.

—Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge, 5 miles south of Saginaw on the west side of M-13. Call ahead—(517) 777-5930—for a map of the best places to view the birds.

The spring waterfowl migration is quite a spectacle, Dudderar says, even for people who don't appreciate the subtle differences between various duck or goose species. For those who are knowledgeable about waterfowl, this spring offers the chance to see white-fronted geese, a western species that is not common here, along with the usual Canada geese, ducks galore and whistling swans. The approach of the last Saturday in April calls to mind a mixture of memories.

Saturday, April 26, 1951, was my wedding day, one of the two most important days of my life. The other was June 26, 1926, when I was born. I don't remember anything about that one, but am assured that it indeed did happen and have a birth certificate to prove it.

Come a week from Friday, I will have been married to the same woman for 34 years. That is by no means a record, but it begins to stand out as some sort of personal milestone in this era of quick marriage and even quicker divorce. I marvel that Vivian has put up with me all this time.

That may seem a far-fetched way of getting into a column on trout fishing, so let me explain.

The last Saturday in April is the traditional opening day of Michigan's trout fishing season. It doesn't mean as much as it used to, because today's fisheries biologists/managers have seen to it that some waters are open for some species on some basis around the calendar. If you can't control your yen to go fishing for trout in, say, December or February, you can find someplace where it's legal. You might even catch something while congealing into a state of near-frozen numbness. If that's your notion of fun, so be it and more power to you.

Late April in northern Michigan is a fickle time at best. The weather can be nice, and occasionally is. It can also be nasty, and is more often than not. The thing is that the end of April is a time for hope. Winter has lasted for a seeming eternity. April brings the wishful thought that the dreary monotony of snow and cold and slippery roads can't possibly go on forever, even though it seems to. Something better is bound to happen sooner or later if only you are patient and forbearing. An end to the suffering is in sight.

I can't remember exactly how I got talked into getting married on the opening day of trout season. If you were a dedicated trout fisherman—and I was—the last Saturday in April was marked in red letters that couldn't be erased for any reason. Nothing, absolutely nothing, was going to interfere with the rite of opening day. It was a sacred day to be faithfully observed come hell or high water (and there was considerable of both over the years).

Somehow, my bride-to-be arranged that I should sacrifice custom and tradition of long and up until then immutable standing. Instead of walking in a trout stream on April 26, 1951, I walked into a church and emerged after an hour or so as a married man. Life has never been the same since. It has been much better. I've never regretted having given up that opening day—well, almost never.

It was a miserable day from a weather standpoint—cold, blustery, windy and wet. I kept telling myself that I was fortunate to be inside where it was warm and dry. Experience had taught the hard way that trout could not be caught under such conditions. I had tried many a time, and had never succeeded in catching anything other than a bad cold. Getting married on the average last Saturday in a Michigan April isn't a bad way to spend the day, unless you plan

Let's face it, the right time to go trout fishing in Michigan is along about the middle of June. By then the streams are running within their banks, the water temperature has risen into a range that encourages trout to seek food instead of burying their heads in the sand, the sun shines at least one day out of every three, and you can be comfortable in a pair of waders reinforced with insulated undergarments. Rod and reel don't freeze up, and flies don't become coated with ice as you whip them through the air. You don't have to go ashore every half-hour to build a bonfire and thaw out until your teeth quit chattering and you can once more feel your fingers.

Still, I wonder. Might the opening day I missed have been the magic one when the trout would break the ice to take a dry fly off the surface? It never happened to me in actual experience and the chances that it ever would be next to zero, but that doesn't kill the hope for a once-in-a-lifetime miracle.

Robert Traver, the pen name of former Michigan Supreme Court Justice John Voelker, is known for his best-selling novel, "Anatomy of a Murder," which was later made into a smash-hit movie. He wrote another book that I like better, titled "Trout Madness." Voelker gave up his distinguished career as a lawyer and judge to devote full time to trout fishing, which tells me he is a man who puts first things first. Most of us, alas, don't have the good fortune to write a book that earns a comfortable royalty income forever after.

Anyway, Voelker wrote in "Trout Madness" about an opening day on which he slipped and slid into a remote Upper Peninsula beaver pond that was covered with ice except for a springhole about 10 feet across. Casting dry flies onto that little patch of open water, he took a 10-fish limit of husky brook trout. (At least he says, he did. Fishermen, even judges who fish, have been known to lie a little.)

I've tried fishing for trout with ice on the water and snow on the ground, and the only thing I ever caught was near-pneumonia.

Still, I think back to that last Saturday in April of 1951. Might that have been the impossible-dream day when, in defiance of all the odds, the trout were in a taking mood? I'll never know, and so the suggestion remains open and tantalizing.

Let me hasten to add that I'm happy to have spent the day the way I did. A fishing trip, even an opening day fishing trip, is a one-day affair, an experience that can be repeated over and over again. Getting married is a once-in-a-lifetime happening, or at least is supposed to be and has been for me. I don't regret the selection of the date even though I didn't have much say in the matter.

But, could it have been done a day earlier? Might we have spent our wedding night somewhere close to a trout stream so that I could have gotten up early and made a few casts simply for the sake of having a part in an ages-old rite of early spring?

Such are the crazy thoughts that cross the mind as opening day approaches.

Habitat Improvement Starts for Pheasants

Thirteen land-owners in the nine-county Jackson DNR district have signed agreements to preserve at least two acres of secure, undisturbed nesting cover for pheasants during this spring's breeding season, and more volunteers are sought.

Most of the 13 have also agreed to plant a grain sorghum food patch next to the nesting site, to provide winter cover for birds that make it through to the cold weather months.

Those are the beginnings of a co-operative DNR program with private land-owners to improve pheasant habitat as a way of restoring ringnecks, which have slumped alarmingly in recent years. Habitat improvement is believed to be the key to bringing pheasants back from last year's modern-era low point.

Chicks produced at the Mason game farm will be used to supplement the effort by providing new stock for release in suitable cover. By itself, restocking will not accomplish much if anything, biologists say. Stocked birds have no chance to survive unless adequate cover is provided for them.

In a related effort, a brood stock of pheasants imported from northern China is being established at the game farm. The hope is that the new (to Michigan) strain of birds will find homes in available cover here.

The imports are smaller than their Michigan cousins and are said to be harder. They thrive in brushy habitat in China. Many of southern Michigan's former meadows and swales have grown up to shrubs and trees.

First releases of the Chinese birds are at least a couple of years in the future, depending on the success of the breeding program at the game farm.

Cassidy Lake Continually Faces Problem of Walkaways

violent criminals periodically running loose, terrorizing the Chelsea area. But according to Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall, the escapees are rarely involved in crimes in his jurisdiction. Last year there were two auto thefts where Cassidy inmates were suspects. Occasionally one will be caught on a stolen bicycle.

"The potential for something more serious is there," McDougall says. "And for that reason, people should be concerned about the problem. If one out of 34 commits violence, it's serious."

Part of the "potential" McDougall and other enforcement officials worry about is that assaultive criminals, who have been violent before, are more likely to be violent compared to other types of criminals.

Wellsey, who deals with the prison population every day, downplays the problem of escapes.

"I'd say there's a greater chance that your home would be broken into by someone in the local community," Wellsey says. "The loudly-voiced fears are unfounded."

McDougall and Wellsey agree that the reason more crimes are not committed by escapees is that generally they are passing through on their way to somewhere else, usually the Detroit area, where most of the inmates are from. The most convenient route happens to be through Chelsea to I-94, where they can hitch a ride. Also, An-draws says, inmates are not required to wear prison uniforms, which would give them another reason to break into someone's home—to look for less conspicuous clothing.

A greater problem than crimes committed by escapees for McDougall and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, is the vast amount of resources used in chasing and detaining them.

"We get involved to some extent in all of the escapes," McDougall says. "We spend a lot more time when one of them is actually seen in the area. There's quite a loss of manpower hours. One time last September, we spent about 30 man hours in a single day chasing a guy. They had to bring out a K-9 unit (tracking dog) and a helicopter unit." A curious side note is that there is no state law requiring Cassidy Lake to notify the Chelsea police of an escape, although the Chelsea department is the first to be called, McDougall says. The facility is only required to notify the state police, who, in turn, would notify Chelsea police.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Ron Schebl estimates that more than $70,000 was spent last year by his department in the pursuit and detention of escapees, both from Cassidy Lake and Camp Waterloo. He says after one is caught, the escapee usually stays in jail a minimum of three days. Currently, neither the Chelsea department or the Sheriff's department is reimbursed by the state for these expenditures.

When a prisoner escapes, An-draws says statistics show, it is most likely to happen within the first 35 days of incarceration (87 percent) and from 8 to 10 p.m. (47 percent).

"The walkaways are usually due to some kind of crisis event at home or with their girlfriend," Andrews says. "They usually aren't planned out for long."

When escapees are questioned after being picked up, according to Wellsey, they often say they were pressured into leaving by circumstances within the facility. He says they often point to pressures for sex or indebtedness due to gambling or drugs. However, Wellsey dismisses those reasons, saying that "the courts are more willing to listen to a duress defense." Then Wellsey points to another ironic reason some may walkaway.

"Many of them are afraid of integrating into society," Wellsey says. "A lot of guys want to get caught, because they'll do more time." Those who escape and are caught (all of 1984's escapees were caught) are not returned to Cassidy Lake.

When McDougall, Wellsey and Andrews talk about the problem of escapes, it almost sounds as though they are trying to hold back a tidal wave with a few sand bags.

The biggest problem they face is simply prison overcrowding in general throughout the state. Cassidy Lake was originally intended for first-time, youthful offenders who had committed non-violent crimes. With other prisons filled to capacity and more, some offenders have been sent over the years to Cassidy Lake.

"We're often able to spot them (the ones who will try to escape) easily enough," Wellsey says. "A lot of that is a gut level feeling. The problem is that we don't have anywhere to move them. We have to make a real convincing pitch to the central office (Department of Corrections) in Lansing before any action will be taken."

Since Cassidy Lake can't be fenced in, and prisoners can't be transferred easily, institute officials are trying to make the best of a bad situation. One bit of state help they will get is the building of some new quarters that will house about 80 prisoners. Construction tentatively begins in May.

"I don't anticipate any increase in the population as a result of the building," Andrews says. "I am not aware of any plan to do that. Those decisions are made at the central office."

Andrews says the new buildings will be better designed than some of the current structures that were built in the 1930s by the Youth Conservation Corp. He said a new three-wing design will allow easier monitoring of inmate activities.

In addition, in the last year an hourly head count has been instituted. While this may not significantly reduce the incidence of escape, officials concede, it does mean that a prisoner won't be gone for more than an hour before it is detected, which is a key to a quick capture. There are also 24 hour road patrols.

Other internal programs, according to Andrews, include extensive group counseling, and elaborate orientation program, the grouping of prisoners by like personality types, and a growing tutorial program for which officials are always looking for interested community people to help out with.

To Wellsey, the tutorial program could be the biggest key to helping prevent escapes.

"So many of them feel as though society has shut them out," Wellsey says. "A lot of them have concerns about what it will be like to be on the street again. A lot of them need help with basic things like reading. They need the one-on-one attention."

Give Blood, Save Life

Dexter Community will host a Blood Bank Clinic on Monday, April 29 from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ. Free babysitting and snacks will be provided. You just provide the blood! The blood will save lives.

We've been fortunate to have around 120 regular donors for our past banks but the drive is on to increase this number. Washtenaw county has an average daily need of 180 pints a day—that's 65,700 pints a year! Since 95% of all people need blood at sometime in their lives—we're talking about saving most everybody! We are a giving and caring community and should shoulder our part of donating.

You may call Debbie Medved at 426-3027 or Shawn Detling at 426-4343 to make an appointment or plan to just drop in on the 29th. So please note the date and be there—to help save lives!

Girl Scout Leaders Will be Honored

April 22 is Girl Scout Leader's Day. On this day members of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council will say thank-you to the people who make Girl Scouting happen: the leaders and assistant leaders.

In honor of this day, more than 1,200 leaders and assistant leaders in the council will be presented a specially designed bumper sticker as a way to say "thanks for helping."

As part of the Leader Day celebration, 16 volunteers were selected to attend Girl Scouts of the USA trainings at its national conference center in New York. The council paid part of the cost for leaders to attend these trainings.

The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, a United Way Agency, serves four counties in Michigan: Livingston, Monroe, Washtenaw and part of Wayne.

A Depository can be described as a library within a library. It is a collection of Government publications within a currently existing college or university library, a public, State, or Federal library, or a law library. Each year Depository Librarians select titles from more than 25,000 new publications issued by our government.

Joseph C. Fisher Named Manager Of D'Arcy Direct

As reported in the New York Times of March 28, Dr. Joseph C. Fisher of Westport, Conn., has been appointed senior vice-president/general manager of D'Arcy Direct. D'Arcy Direct is a branch of Darcy MacManus Masius, a world-wide advertising agency based in New York City.

When making the appointment an officer of the company, Richard Ross, said "In his new role Joe will strengthen the company's administrative and financial operations. His past experience as president and director of existing companies makes him an ideal candidate for these new responsibilities. His effort will be to position the company as a leader in the field of direct marketing for the country's top companies."

Dr. Fisher graduated from Chelsea High school in 1966, and from Albion College. He received his PhD from Tufts University.

Joseph C. Fisher is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Fisher of Charleston, S. C., former residents of Chelsea.

Maggie birds follow one of the more unusual displays of bird behavior, says International Wildlife magazine. After the death of a fellow magpie, the flock assembles, then one by one, or in groups of two or three, the magpies swoop down to peck at the dead companion. According to an Idaho State University researcher they conduct these elaborate funeral "rites" to find out what killed the magpie and to see which of them died, so they will know how the death will affect the pecking order.

Blood Bank Clinic Slated In Dexter

The Dexter community will host a Blood Bank, Monday, April 29, from 1 until 7 p.m. at St. Andrew's church.

"Free baby-sitting service will be provided, and there will be snacks for the donors," explains Jane Boyce, who chairs the event this time, "but we need you to provide the blood—the blood that will save lives."

"We have been fortunate to have around 120 regular donors for our past blood banks," Jane confirms, "but the drive is on to increase this number."

Dexter Blood Bank encompasses the Dexter Community Schools district, parts or the entirety of eight townships, most of which are located in Washtenaw county (with a tiny area of Livingston included as well).

Washtenaw county has an average daily need of 180 pints a day—that's 65,700 pints a year!

Since 95 percent of all people need blood at some time during their lives, this could be talking about saving most everybody, adds Jane. "We are a giving and caring community, and should shoulder our part of donating," she states.

Call Debbie Medved at 426-3027, or Shawn Detling at 426-4343, to make an appointment. Or, plan to just drop in on April 29. Draw a "little drop of blood" shape on your calendar for April 29, to help remind you—Jane asks that you be there—to help save lives.

Michigan History Included in State Publication

Did you know that the Sawtooth Reef at Eagle Harbor in Michigan's northwest Upper Peninsula is the site of the largest concentration of shipwrecks on Lake Superior?

Or that the population of Keeweenaw county, now at approximately 2,000 individuals, peaked at 7,157 in 1910 during the copper boom?

Or that a supper of baked trout, pork and beans, bread, dried applesauce and coffee, cost 25 cents in 1844 in Copper Harbor?

These facts, along with other articles, historic photos and drawings of the American Fur Co. in the old Northwest Territory, Detroit's first Shriners Circus in 1906 and Michigan short story writer Ring Lardner of Niles, are features in the March/April issue of Michigan History, the state's official historical presentation.

Published by the History Division of the Department of State, Michigan History is available in single copies of $2 each or subscription for $9.95 per year. It is also available on many newsstands. The Style Show, always an important part of the Spring Achievement event was held on the stage of the high school, with a great number of talented young people participating. The construction and modeling talents this spring were of near professional quality.

Unfortunately, as the newspaper went to press this week, information from the county 4-H office was not available for publication, so readers will be delayed a week in seeking more information about winners in the many different categories. The Dexter Leader and Chelsea Standard regret being unable to provide a complete list of the many young people in the area who entered the competition.

Postmaster Asks for Pets To Be Restrained

With the arrival of warmer weather, Chelsea Postmaster Larry Williams has asked dog owners to help protect letter carriers, utility workers and other citizens from the dangers of dog bites.

The postmaster said that, nationally, nearly 6,000 letter carriers alone were bitten by dogs last year. Williams added that those statistics included no injuries to Chelsea letter carriers.

"In recent years, the public has responded to our plea to keep pets restrained, and we have seen a decline in bites nationally," Williams said. "Nevertheless, much is still to be done to eliminate the hazard to our employees and other citizens who might be bitten."

Williams said that all dogs are territorial by nature, and even the most gentle pet will bite if it feels its domain is threatened by the presence of a carrier or other person. "With a little care, a pet owner can not only protect our carriers, but his or her pet and pocketbook, too," he said.

Postmaster Williams stressed that the Postal Service protects its carriers from dog bite hazards. Among remedies in situations when a pet owner fails to restrain a dog is interruption of home delivery to the residence or, in some cases, to entire neighborhoods. The Postal Service will also seek to recover injury compensation damages and provides counseling to carriers who have been bitten and who wish to seek legal action against dog owners.

"We suggest that pets be kept away from the mailbox and areas the letter carrier uses for access to the property," he said. "If the pet cannot be kept behind a secure fence, the owner should restrain it with a secure leash or tether or at least keep the pet inside the house during the usual hours carriers are making their rounds."

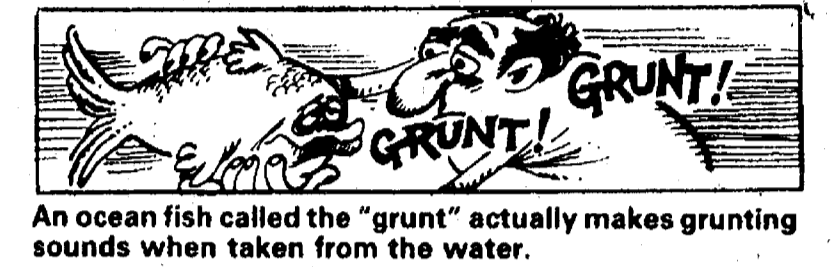

Williams added, "We try to do our part by stressing awareness of dog bites to our carriers, but we rely heavily on the support and co-operation of the community to help us end these painful and costly injuries."

Auto, Checks Stolen from Area Homes

Chelsea police suspect that a Cassidy Lake walkway may be responsible for a stolen automobile on Howard Rd. and some checks missing from another automobile Sunday, April 14.

Jack Robert Rittner, 20, walked away from Cassidy Lake on the evening of Saturday, April 13. Rittner, a white male with blonde hair, hazel eyes, a moustache, and tattoos on both arms, and reportedly wearing personal clothing, was serving 10 months to two years six months for attempted auto theft.

Police said the 1972 Malibu two-door was discovered missing at 6:20 Sunday morning, and that the owner had both sets of keys in his possession. They said the car was last seen in the owner's driveway at 11 p.m. Saturday night.

Police also said that 20 to 25 personal checks were reported missing from an automobile in the same general area, near McKinley and Dewey Sts. The owner reported them missing from an automobile that was parked in his garage.

In other police activity, a radar detector was reported stolen on Sunday, April 14. According to police, the owner of the equipment was uncertain whether the incident happened in the parking lot of Chelsea Lanes or the parking lot of the Wolverine Bar because he had been to both establishments Saturday evening.

STREAMLINE WITH VERTICAL BLINDS

The latest in fashion and long on good looks — with an attractive price.
Tilt open for a glance or draw open wide for a room of light. Many colors, fabrics, weaves to delight the senses.

LAYER WITH WOVEN WOODS

Energy efficient as well as handsome. Textured for an atmosphere of comfort. Crafted for real value — few window treatments will outlast woven woods. Slim Romanette® shades will fit inside your windows — ideal for layered treatments.

CHARM WITH WOOD-SLAT BLINDS

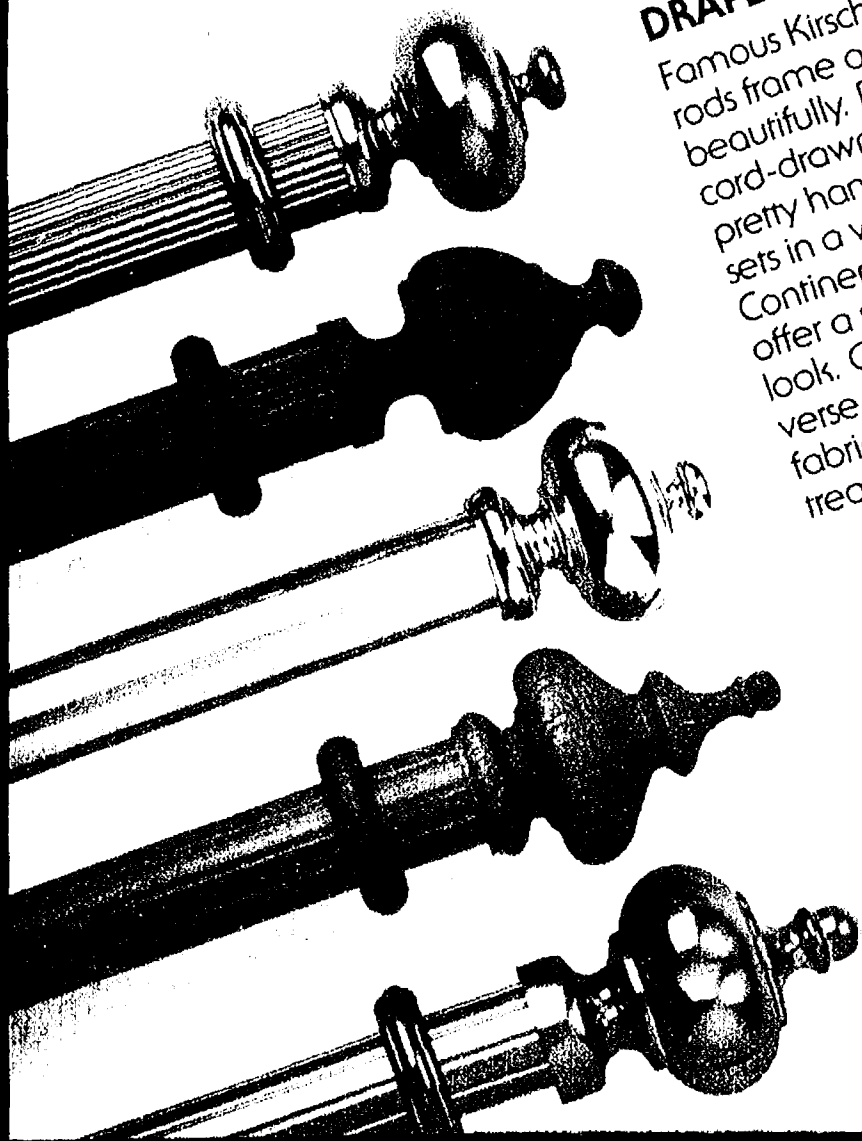

Natural good looks for your windows. Dress them in Kirsch wood-slat blinds — the appeal of shutters at far less cost. Easy to install. Easy to use. Twist open, the view is clear. Twist closed and privacy's assured.

A BEAUTIFUL COLLECTION OF WINDOW TREATMENTS

DISTINCTIVE DRAPERY RODS

Famous Kirsch drapery rods frame any window beautifully. Decorative cord-drawn traverse or pretty hand-drawn pole sets in a variety of finishes. Continental® curtain rods offer a shirred-valance look. Conventional traverse rods hold "finishing" fabric panels over other treatments.

EXCITE WITH MINI-BLINDS

From traditional to contemporary — Kirsch mini-blinds can match a mood or set one. Functional, as well as pretty, tempered aluminum slim slats give long years of wear. Flexible enough to bend and spring right back.

VERSATILITY WITH PLEATED SHADES

Barely or brilliantly there, they enhance any window. You select the view and hue right for your home. Variables include aluminized sheer, semi-sheer and opaque fabrics.

Prints or solids. Energy effective, too. Made with quality fabrics by Verosol.[®]

DELIGHT WITH WINDOW SHADES

Shades have never been as unexpectedly delightful as Kirsch makes them for you. Brighten or subdue a window with fine, Swedish fabrics. Metal rollers won't distort or sag. Use as an accent or a backdrop for lovely fabric panels.
